This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at `http://books.google.com/`

Bequest of

Ida Prescott Clough

HARVARD COLLEGE LIBRARY

THE FIRST EDITION OF SHAKESPEARE.

THE WORKS

OF

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE,

IN REDUCED FACSIMIL

FROM THE FAMOUS FIRST FOLIO EDITION OF 1623.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

BY J. O. HALLIWELL-PHILLIPPS.

NEW YORK:

FUNK & WAGNALLS, PUBLISHERS, 18 & 20 ASTOR PLACE.

1887.

13411.13
B

PREFACE.

IT may be safely asserted, without fear of the writer being accused of exaggeration, that the First Folio Edition of Shakespeare is the most interesting and valuable book in the whole range of English literature. There is no work in that literature at all approaching near to it in critical value. When it is mentioned that this volume is the sole authority for the texts of such masterpieces as the Tempest, Macbeth, Twelfth Night, Measure for Measure, Coriolanus, Julius Cæsar, Timon of Athens, Antony and Cleopatra, Cymbeline, As You Like It, and The Winter's Tale—were the rest of the book waste-paper, enough will have been said to confirm its unrivalled importance. And its value increases every day, for day by day it is more clearly ascertained that many of the subtler meanings of passages in the works of Shakespeare depend upon minute indications and peculiarities which are alone to be traced in the original printed text.

A few of the dramas in the First Folio were possibly edited from Shakespeare's original manuscripts. This may be conjectured to have been probably the case with some of the author's latest productions, single copies of which might have sufficed for some years for the necessities of the theatres; but there can be no doubt that most of the autographs of the plays had been lost some time before the writer's decease, many possibly having been destroyed by the fire at the Globe Theatre in the year 1613. The editors of the Folio, however, boldly assert that they "have published them as where before you were abused with divers stolen and surreptitious copies, maimed and deformed by the frauds and stealths of injurious impostors that exposed them, even those are now offered to your view cured and perfect of their limbs, and all the rest absolute in their numbers as he conceived them; who, as he was a happy imitator of nature, was a most gentle expresser of it; his mind and hand went together, and what he thought he uttered with that easiness that we have scarce received from him a blot in his papers." This evidently is meant to imply that the whole of the volume was carefully edited from the author's manuscripts, whereas it is certain that in several instances Heminge and Condell used printed copies of the old quarto editions, in which were certain manuscript alterations, some of the latter being valuable, but others the reverse. Horne Tooke, indeed, inconsiderately followed by numerous others, goes so far as to say that "the First Folio is the only edition worth regarding;" adding,—"it is much to be wished that an edition of Shakespeare were given literatim according to the First Folio, which is now become so scarce and dear that few persons can obtain it; for, by the presumptuous license of the dwarfish commentators, we risk the loss of Shakespeare's genuine text which that Folio assuredly contains, notwithstanding some few slight errors of the press." Horne Tooke was not so well read as were the commentators, none of whom could have exhibited such an entire ignorance of the value of the Quartos. Every one, however, who has really studied the question, must admit that his opinion is correct in regard to no inconsiderable portion of the Folio volume, and that, even in those cases in which the texts of the Quartos are on the whole to be preferred, no student of Shakespeare could possibly dispense with incessant references to the collective edition. The value of the First Folio is so unequivocal, that there is no necessity for its wildest partizan to resort to exaggeration.

The reader will more readily understand the purport of these observations, if we add a list of the plays in the order in which they are here printed, with observations on the relative authorities of the texts. It will, of course, be understood that the mention of the circumstance of any drama in this volume being a first edition, conveys also the fact that it is the only authoritative text: — 1. The Tempest. First edition. Perhaps edited from the author's own manuscript, which we know was not amongst those destroyed in the fire at the Globe Theatre. 2. The Two Gentlemen of Verona. First edition. 3. The Merry Wives of Windsor. First edition of the play in its complete state. A surreptitious quarto appeared in 1602, but it is merely an imperfect copy of the author's first sketch of the comedy. 4. Measure for Measure. First edition. 5. Comedy of Errors. First edition. 6. Much Ado About Nothing. Printed from a quarto edition which appeared in 1600, with a few omissions and variations. 7. Love's Labour's Lost. Printed from a quarto edition published in 1598, with a few alterations of slight consequence. 8. A Midsummer Night's Dream. Printed from Roberts's quarto edition of 1600. 9. The Merchant of Venice. Printed from Heyes's quarto of 1600, with a number of variations and corrections. 10. As You Like It. First edition. 11. The Taming of the Shrew. First edition. 12. All's Well that Ends Well. First edition. 13. Twelfth Night. First edition. 14. The Winter's Tale. First edition. 15. King John. First edition. 16. Richard the Second. Mainly printed from the quarto edition of 1615. 17. First Part of Henry the Fourth. Chiefly taken from the quarto edition of 1613. 18. Second Part of Henry the Fourth. There was a quarto edition issued in 1600, but the editors of the Folio appear to have used a manuscript playhouse transcript of the comedy. 19. Henry the Fifth. First complete edition. The earlier quartos were surreptitiously printed, and are very imperfect. 20. First Part of Henry the Sixth. First edition. This play could not have been written by Shakespeare, though he may possibly have added a few touches to it. 21. The Second Part of Henry the Sixth. First edition. It is an alteration of an older play called the "First part of the Contention betwixt the Two Famous Houses of York and Lancaster, with the Death of the good Duke Humphrey," 1594. 22. The Third Part of Henry the Sixth. First edition. It is an alteration of the "True Tragedy of Richard Duke of York, and the Death of good King Henry the Sixth, with the whole Contention between the two Houses, Lancaster and York," 1595. 23. Richard the Third. Edited from a playhouse copy of the quarto edition of 1602, which must, however, have had numerous manuscript alterations and additions. 24. Henry the Eighth. First edition. 25. Troilus and Cressida. Printed from the quarto of 1609, with certain omissions and some valuable additions. 26. Coriolanus. First edition. 27. Titus Andronicus. Edited from a playhouse transcript. It is nearly impossible to believe that this drama could have been written by Shakespeare, and I rather incline to conjecture that the editors of the First Folio inserted the older play on the subject, first printed in 1594, through either mistake or ignorance, knowing that Shakespeare had written a drama on the same theme, and finding no other version of it in their collection of plays. 28. Romeo and Juliet. Edited from a playhouse copy of the quarto edition of 1609. 29. Timon of Athens. First edition. 30. Julius Cæsar. First edition. 31. Macbeth. First edition. 32. Hamlet. Edited from a playhouse transcript. 33. King Lear.

Edited from a playhouse transcript, certainly not from the author's manuscript. 34. Othello. Edited from a playhouse transcript. 35. Antony and Cleopatra. First edition. 36. Cymbeline. First edition.

The First Folio was originally issued at the selling price of twenty shillings. The present average value of a perfect copy is £500, and one very fine example in the possession of Lady Burdett-Coutts cost that lady, at the Daniel sale, no less a sum than £714. There is no doubt that these prices will be largely exceeded in the future. It is scarcely necessary to say that the volume has been for generations the almost exclusive property of wealthy collectors, and a sealed book to the generality of readers and students. By the aid of modern science it is now placed in a conveniently reduced form within the reach of all. It is not of course pretended that any facsimile of any old book will in all cases of minute research entirely supersede the necessity of a reference to copies of the ancient impression, but for all usual practical objects of study this cheap reproduction will place its owner on a level with the envied possessors of the far-famed original.

J. O. HALLIWELL-PHILLIPPS.

tion of the "True Tragedy of Richard Du York, and the Death of good King Henr Sixth, with the whole Contention between two Houses, Lancaster and York," 1595. Richard the Third. Edited from a playhc copy of the quarto edition of 1602, which m however, have had numerous manuscript alte tions and additions. 24. Henry the Eigh First edition. 25. Troilus and Cressida. Prir ed from the quarto of 1609, with certain omissio and some valuable additions. 26. Coriolanu First edition. 27. Titus Andronicus. Edite from a playhouse transcript. It is nearly impossi ble to believe that this drama could have beer written by Shakespeare, and I rather incline to conjecture that the editors of the First Folio inserted the older play on the subject, first printed in 1594, through either mistake or ignorance, knowing that Shakespeare had written a drama on the same theme, and finding no other version of it in their collection of plays. 28. Romeo and Juliet. Edited from a playhouse copy of the quarto edition of 1609. 29. Timon of Athens. First edition. 30. Julius Cæsar. First edition. 31. Macbeth. First editi 32. Hamlet. Edited from a playhouse

SHAKESPEARE:

THE FIRST FOLIO.

[1623.]

A Reduced Facsimile.

To the Reader.

This Figure, that thou here ſeeſt put,
It was for gentle Shakeſpeare cut:
Wherein the Grauer had a ſtrife with Nature, to out-doo the life:
O, could he but haue drawne his wit
As well in braſſe, as he hath hit
His face, the Print would then ſurpaſſe
All, that was euer writ in braſſe.
But, ſince he cannot, Reader, looke
Not on his Picture, but his Booke.

B. I.

MR. WILLIAM

SHAKESPEARES

COMEDIES, HISTORIES, & TRAGEDIES.

Published according to the True Originall Copies.

LONDON

Printed by Isaac Iaggard, and Ed. Blount. 1623.

TO THE MOST NOBLE AND INCOMPARABLE PAIRE OF BRETHREN.

WILLIAM
Earle of Pembroke, &c. Lord Chamberlaine to the Kings moſt Excellent Maieſty.

AND

PHILIP
Earle of Montgomery, &c. Gentleman of his Maieſties Bed-Chamber. Both Knights of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter, and our ſingular good LORDS.

Right Honourable,

WHilſt we ſtudie to be thankfull in our particular, for the many fauors we haue receiued from your L.L we are ſaine, vpon the ill fortune, to mingle two the moſt diuerſe things that can bee, feare, and raſhneſſe; raſhneſſe in the enterprize, and feare of the ſucceſſe. For, when we valew the places your H.H. ſuſtaine, we cannot but know their dignity greater, then to deſcend to the reading of theſe trifles: and, while we name them trifles, we haue depriu'd our ſelues of the defence of our Dedication. But ſince your L.L. haue beene pleas'd to thinke theſe trifles ſome-thing, heeretofore; and haue proſequuted both them, and their Authour liuing, with ſo much fauour: we hope, that (they out-liuing him, and he not hauing the fate, common with ſome, to be exequutor to his owne writings) you will vſe the like indulgence toward them, you haue done vnto their parent. There is a great difference, whether any Booke choose his Patrones, or finde them: This hath done both. For, ſo much were your L. L. likings of the ſeuerall parts, when they were acted, as before they were publiſhed, the Volume aſk'd to be yours. We haue but collected them, and done an office to the dead, to procure his Orphanes, Guardians; without ambition either of ſelfe-profit, or fame: onely to keepe the memory of ſo worthy a Friend, & Fellow aliue, as was our SHAKESPEARE by humble offer of his playes, to your moſt noble patronage. Wherein, as we haue iuſtly obſerued, no man to come neere your L. L. but with a kind of religious addreſſe; it hath bin the height of our care, who are the Preſenters, to make the preſent worthy of your H. H. by the perfection. But, there we muſt alſo craue our abilities to be conſiderd, my Lords. We cannot go beyond our owne powers. Country hands reach foorth milke, creame, fruites, or what they haue: and many Nations (we haue heard) that had not gummes & incenſe, obtained their requeſts with a leauened Cake. It was no fault to approch their Gods, by what meanes they could: And the moſt, though meaneſt, of things are made more precious, when they are dedicated to Temples. In that name therefore, we moſt humbly conſecrate to your H. H. theſe remaines of your ſeruant Shakeſpeare; that what delight is in them, may be euer your L. L. the reputation his, & the faults ours, if any be committed, by a payre ſo carefull to ſhew their gratitude both to the liuing, and the dead, as is

Your Lordſhippes moſt bounden,

IOHN HEMINGE.
HENRY CONDELL.

To the great Variety of Readers.

FRom the moſt able, to him that can but ſpell: There you are number'd. We had rather you were weighd. Eſpecially, when the fate of all Bookes depends vpon your capacities: and not of your heads alone, but of your purſes. Well! It is now publique, & you wil ſtand for your priuiledges wee know: to read, and cenſure. Do ſo, but buy it firſt. That doth beſt commend a Booke, the Stationer ſaies. Then, how odde ſoeuer your braines be, or your wiſedomes, make your licence the ſame, and ſpare not. Iudge your ſixe-pen'orth, your ſhillings worth, your fiue ſhillings worth at a time, or higher, ſo you riſe to the iuſt rates, and welcome. But, what euer you do, Buy. Cenſure will not driue a Trade, or make the Iacke go. And though you be a Magiſtrate of wit, and ſit on the Stage at Black-Friers, or the Cock-pit, to arraigne Playes dailie, know, theſe Playes haue had their triall alreadie, and ſtood out all Appeales; and do now come forth quitted rather by a Decree of Court, then any purchas'd Letters of commendation.

It had bene a thing, we confeſſe, worthie to haue bene wiſhed, that the Author himſelfe had liu'd to haue ſet forth, and ouerſeen his owne writings; But ſince it hath bin ordain'd otherwiſe, and he by death departed from that right, we pray you do not envie his Friends, the office of their care, and paine, to haue collected & publiſh'd them; and ſo to haue publiſh'd them, as where (before) you were abus'd with diuerſe ſtolne, and ſurreptitious copies, maimed, and deformed by the fraŭds and ſtealthes of iniurious impoſtors, that expos'd them: euen thoſe, are now offer'd to your view cur'd, and perfect of their limbes, and all the reſt, abſolute in their numbers, as he conceiued thē. Who, as he was a happie imitator of Nature, was a moſt gentle expreſſer of it. His mind and hand went together: And what he thought, he vttered with that eaſineſſe, that wee haue ſcarſe receiued from him a blot in his papers. But it is not our prouince, who onely gather his works, and giue them you, to praiſe him. It is yours that reade him. And there we hope, to your diuers capacities, you will finde enough, both to draw, and hold you: for his wit can no more lie hid, then it could be loſt. Reade him, therefore; and againe, and againe: And if then you doe not like him, ſurely you are in ſome manifeſt danger, not to vnderſtand him. And ſo we leaue you to other of his Friends, whom if you need, can bee your guides: if you neede them not, you can leade your ſelues, and others And ſuch Readers we wiſh him.

John Heminge.
Henrie Condell.

To the memory of my beloued, The AVTHOR Mr. William Shakespeare: And what he hath left vs.

*To draw no enuy (Shakespeare) on thy name,*
Am I thus ample to thy Booke, and Fame:
While I confesse thy writings to be such,
As neither Man, nor Muse, can praise too much.
'Tis true, and all mens suffrage. But these waies were not the paths I meant vnto thy praise:
For seeliest Ignorance on these may light,
Which, when it sounds at best, but eccho's right;
Or blinde Affection, which doth ne're aduance
The truth, but gropes, and vrgeth all by chance.
Or crafty Malice, might pretend this praise,
And thinke to ruine, where it seem'd to raise.
These are, as some infamous Baud, or whore,
Should praise a Matron. What could hurt her more?
But thou art proofe against them, and indeed
Aboue th'all fortune of them, or the need.
I, therefore will begin. Soule of the Age!
The applause! delight! the wonder of our Stage!
My Shakespeare, rise; I will not lodge thee by Chaucer, or Spenser, or bid Beaumont lye
A little further, to make thee a roome:
Thou art a Monument, without a tombe,
And art alive still, while thy Booke doth liue,
And we haue wits to read, and praise to giue.
That I not mixe thee so, my braine excuses;
I meane with great, but disproportion'd Muses
For, if I thought my iudgement were of yeares,
I should commit thee surely with thy peeres,
And tell, how farre thou didst'st our Lily out-shine,
Or sporting Kid, or Marlowes mighty line.
And though thou hadst small Latine, and lesse Greeke,
From thence to honour thee, I would not seeke
For names; but call forth thund'ring Æschylus, Euripides, and Sophocles to vs,
Pacuuius, Accius, him of Cordous dead,
To life againe, to heare thy Buskin tread,
And shake a Stage: Or, when thy Sockes were on,
Leaue thee alone, for the comparison

Of all, that insolent Greece, or haughtie Rome sent forth, or since did from their ashes come.
Triumph, my Britaine, thou hast one to showe,
To whom all Scenes of Europe homage owe.
He was not of an age, but for all time!
And all the Muses still were in their prime,
when like Apollo he came forth to warme
Our eares, or like a Mercury to charme!
Nature her selfe was proud of his designes,
And ioy'd to weare the dressing of his lines!
which were so richly spun, and woven so fit,
As since, she will vouchsafe no other Wit.
The merry Greeke, tart Aristophanes,
Neat Terence, witty Plautus, now not please;
But antiquated, and deserted lye
As they were not of Natures family.
Yet must I not giue Nature all: Thy Art,
My gentle Shakespeare, must enioy a part.
For though the Poets matter, Nature be,
His Art doth giue the fashion. And, that he,
Who casts to write a liuing line, must sweat,
(such as thine are) and strike the second heat
Vpon the Muses anuile: turne the same,
(And himselfe with it) that he thinkes to frame;
Or for the laurell, he may gaine a scorne,
For a good Poet's made, as well as borne.
And such wert thou. Looke how the fathers face
Liues in his issue, euen so, the race
Of Shakespeares minde, and manners brightly shines
In his well torned, and true-filed lines:
In each of which, he seemes to shake a Lance,
As brandish't at the eyes of Ignorance.
Sweet Swan of Auon! what a sight it were
To see thee in our waters yet appeare,
And make those flights vpon the bankes of Thames,
That so did take Eliza, and our Iames!
But stay, I see thee in the Hemisphere
Aduanc'd, and made a Constellation there!
Shine forth, thou Starre of Poets, and with rage,
Or influence, chide, or cheere the drooping Stage;
Which, since thy flight frõ hence, hath mourn'd like night,
And despaires day, but for thy Volumes light.

BEN: IONSON.

Vpon the Lines and Life of the Famous Scenicke Poet, Maſter WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE.

THoſe hands, which you ſo clapt, go now, and wring
You Britaines braue; for done are Shakeſpeares dayes:
His dayes are done, that made the dainty Playes,
Which made the Globe of heau'n and earth to ring.
Dry'de is that veine, dry'd is the Theſpian Spring,
Turn'd all to teares, and Phœbus clouds his rayes:
That corp's, that coffin now beſticke thoſe bayes,
Which crown'd him Poet firſt, then Poets King.
If Tragedies might any Prologue haue,
All thoſe he made, would ſcarſe make one to this:
Where Fame, now that he gone is to the graue
(Deaths publique tyring-houſe) the Nuncius is.
For though his line of life went ſoone about.
The life yet of his lines ſhall neuer out.

HVGH HOLLAND.

TO THE MEMORIE

of the deceaſed Authour Maiſter W. SHAKESPEARE.

SHake-ſpeare, at length thy pious fellowes giue
The world thy Workes: thy Workes, by which, out-liue
Thy Tombe, thy name muſt when that ſtone is rent,
And Time diſſolues thy Stratford Moniment,
Here we aliue ſhall view thee ſtill. This Booke,
When Braſſe and Marble fade, ſhall make thee looke
Freſh to all Ages: when Poſteritie
Shall loath what's new, thinke all is prodegie
That is not Shake-ſpeares; eu'ry Line, each Verſe
Here ſhall reuiue, redeeme thee from thy Herſe.
Nor Fire, nor cankring Age, as Naſo ſaid,
Of his, thy wit-fraught Booke ſhall once inuade.
Nor ſhall I e're beleeue, or thinke thee dead
(Though miſt) vntill our bankrout Stage be ſped
(Impoſſible) with ſome new ſtratne t'out-do
Paſſions of Iuliet, and her Romeo;
Or till I heare a Scene more nobly take,
Then when thy half-Sword parlying Romans ſpake.
Till theſe, till any of thy Volumes reſt
Shall with more fire, more feeling be expreſt,
Be ſure, our Shake-ſpeare, thou canſt neuer dye,
But crown'd with Laurell, liue eternally.

L. Digges.

To the memorie of M. W. Shake-ſpeare.

WEE wondred (Shake-ſpeare) that thou went'ſt ſo ſoone
From the Worlds-Stage, to the Graues-Tyring-roome.
Wee thought thee dead, but this thy printed worth,
Tels thy Spectators, that thou went'ſt but forth
To enter with applauſe. An Actors Art,
Can dye, and liue, to acte a ſecond part.
That's but an Exit of Mortalitie,
This, a Re-entrance to a Plaudite.

I. M.

The Workes of William Shakeſpeare, containing all his Comedies, Hiſtories, and Tragedies: Truely ſet forth, according to their firſt ORIGINALL.

The Names of the Principall Actors in all theſe Playes.

William Shakeſpeare.
Richard Burbadge.
John Hemmings.
Auguſtine Phillips
William Kempt.
Thomas Poope.
George Bryan.
Henry Condell.
William Slye.
Richard Cowly.
John Lowine.
Samuell Groſſe.
Alexander Cooke.
Samuel Gilburne.
Robert Armin.
William Oſtler.
Nathan Field.
John Underwood.
Nicholas Tooley.
William Eccleſtone.
Joſeph Taylor.
Robert Benfield.
Robert Goughe.
Richard Robinſon.
Iohn Shancke.
Iohn Rice.

A CATALOGVE

of the seuerall Comedies, Hiſtories, and Tragedies contained in this Volume.

COMEDIES.

The Tempeſt.	Folio 1.
The two Gentlemen of Verona.	20
The Merry Wiues of Windſor.	38
Meaſure for Meaſure.	61
The Comedy of Errours.	85
Much adoo about Nothing.	101
Loues Labour loſt.	122
Midſummer Nights Dreame.	145
The Merchant of Venice.	163
As you Like it.	185
The Taming of the Shrew.	208
All is well, that Ends well.	230
Twelfe-Night, or what you will.	255
The Winters Tale.	304

HISTORIES.

The Life and Death of King John.	Fol. 1.
The Life & death of Richard the ſecond.	23
The Firſt part of King Henry the fourth.	46
The Second part of K. Henry the fourth.	74
The Life of King Henry the Fift.	69
The Firſt part of King Henry the Sixt.	96
The Second part of King Hen. the Sixt.	120
The Third part of King Henry the Sixt.	147
The Life & Death of Richard the Third.	173
The Life of King Henry the Eight.	205

TRAGEDIES.

The Tragedy of Coriolanus.	Fol. 1.
Titus Andronicus.	31
Romeo and Juliet.	53
Timon of Athens.	80
The Life and death of Julius Cæſar.	109
The Tragedy of Macbeth.	131
The Tragedy of Hamlet.	152
King Lear.	283
Othello, the Moore of Venice.	310
Anthony and Cleopater.	346
Cymbeline King of Britaine.	369

THE TEMPEST.

Actus primus, Scena prima.

A tempestuous noise of Thunder and Lightning heard: Enter a Ship-master, and a Boatswaine.

Master.

BOat-swaine.

Boats. Heere Master: What cheere?

Mast. Good: Speake to th'Mariners: fall too't, yarely, or we run our selues a ground, bestirre, bestirre. Exit.

Enter Mariners.

Boats. Heigh my hearts, cheerely, cheerely my hearts: yare, yare: Take in the toppe-sale: Tend to th'Masters whistle: Blow till thou burst thy winde, if roome enough.

Enter Alonso, Sebastian, Anthonio, Ferdinando, Gonzalo, and others.

Alon. Good Boatswaine haue care: where's the Master? Play the men.

Boats. I pray now keepe below.

Ant. Where is the Master, Boson?

Boats. Do you not heare him? you marre our labour, Keepe your Cabines: you do assist the storme.

Gon. Nay, good be patient.

Boats. When the Sea is: hence, what cares these roarers for the name of King? to Cabine; silence: trouble vs not.

Gon. Good, yet remember whom thou hast aboord.

Boats. None that I more loue then my selfe. You are a Counsellor, if you can command these Elements to silence, and worke the peace of the present, we will not hand a rope more, vse your authoritie: If you cannot, giue thankes you haue liu'd so long, and make your selfe readie in your Cabine for the mischance of the hour, if it so hap. Cheerely good hearts: out of our way I say. Exit.

Gon. I haue great comfort from this fellow: methinks he hath no drowning marke vpon him, his complexion is perfect Gallowes: stand fast good Fate to his hanging, make the rope of his destiny our cable, for our owne doth little aduantage: If he be not borne to bee hang'd, our case is miserable. Exit.

Enter Boatswaine.

Boats. Downe with the top-Mast: yare, lower, lower, bring her to Try with Maine-course. A plague——— Cry within. Enter Sebastian, Anthonio & Gonzalo.

vpon this howling: they are louder then the weather, or our office: yet againe? What do you heere? Shal we giue ore and drowne, haue you a minde to sinke?

Sebast. A poxe o'your throat, you bawling, blasphemous incharitable Dog.

Boats. Worke you then.

Ant. Hang cur, hang, you whoreson insolent Noyse-maker, we are lesse afraid to be drowned, then thou art.

Gonz. I'le warrant him for drowning, though the Ship were no stronger then a Nut-shell, and as leaky as an vnstanched wench.

Boats. Lay her a hold, a hold, set her two courses off to Sea againe, lay her off.

Enter Mariners wet.

Mari. All lost, to prayers, to prayers, all lost.

Boats. What must our mouths be cold?

Gonz. The King, and Prince, at prayers, let's assist them, for our case is as theirs.

Sebast. I am out of patience.

Ant. We are merely cheated of our liues by drunkards, This wide-chopt-rascall, would thou might'st lye drowning the washing of ten Tides.

Gonz. Hee'l be hang'd yet,
Though euery drop of water sweare against it.
And gape at widst to glut him. A confused noyse within.
Mercy on vs.
We split, we split, Farewell my wife and children,
Farewell brother: we split, we split, we split.

Ant. Let's all sinke with' King

Seb. Let's take leaue of him. Exit.

Gonz. Now would I giue a thousand furlongs of Sea, for an Acre of barren ground: Long heath, Browne firrs, any thing: the wills aboue be done, but I would fayne dye a dry death. Exit.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Prospero and Miranda.

Mira. If by your Art (my dearest father) you haue
Put the wild waters in this Roare; slay them:
The skye it seemes would powre down stinking pitch,
But that the Sea, mounting to th' welkins cheeke,
Dashes the fire out. Oh! I haue suffered
With those that I saw suffer: A braue vessell

(Who had no doubt ſome noble creature in her)
Dash'd all to peeces: O the cry did knocke
Againſt my very heart: poore ſoules, they periſh'd.
Had I byn any God of power, I would Haue ſuncke the Sea within the Earth, or ere
It ſhould the good Ship ſo haue ſwallow'd, and
The fraughting Soules within her.
Proſ. Be collected,
No more amazement: Tell your pitteous heart
there's no harme done.
Mira. O woe, the day.
Proſ. No harme:
I haue done nothing, but in care of thee
(Of thee my deere one; thee my daughter) who Art ignorant of what thou art, naught knowing
Of whence I am: nor that I am more better
Then Proſpero, Maſter of a full poore cell,
And thy no greater Father.
Mira. More to know
Did neuer medle with my thoughts.
Proſ. 'Tis time
I ſhould informe thee farther: Lend thy hand
And plucke my Magick garment from me: So,
Lye there my Art: wipe thou thine eyes, haue comfort,
The direfull ſpectacle of the wracke which touch'd
The very vertue of compaſſion in thee:
I haue with ſuch prouiſion in mine Art
So ſafely ordered, that there is no ſoule
No not ſo much perdition as an hayre
Betid to any creature in the veſſell
Which thou heard'ſt cry, which thou ſaw'ſt ſinke: Sit
For thou muſt now know farther. [downe,
Mira. You haue often
Begun to tell me what I am, but ſtopt
And left me to a bootleſſe Inquiſition,
Concluding, ſtay: not yet.
Proſ. The howr's now come
The very minute byds thee ope thine eare,
Obey, and be attentiue. Canſt thou remember
A time before we came vnto this Cell?
I doe not thinke thou canſt, for then thou was't not
Out three yeeres old.
Mira. Certainely Sir, I can.
Proſ. By what? by any other houſe, or perſon?
Of any thing the Image, tell me, that
Hath kept with thy remembrance.
Mira. 'Tis farre off:
And rather like a dreame, then an aſſurance
That my remembrance warrants: Had I not
Fowre, or fiue women once, that tended me?
Proſ. Thou hadſt; and more Miranda: But how is it
That this liues in thy minde? What ſeeſt thou els
In the dark-backward and Abiſme of Time?
If thou remembreſt ought ere thou canſt here,
How thou can'ſt here thou maiſt.
Mira. But that I doe not.
Proſ. Twelue yere ſince (Miranda) twelue yere ſince, Thy father was the Duke of Millaine and
A Prince of power:
Mira. Sir, are not you my Father?
Proſ. Thy Mother was a peece of vertue, and
She ſaid thou waſt my daughter; and thy father
Was Duke of Millaine, and his onely heire,
And Princeſſe; no worſe iſſued.
Mira. O the heauens,
What foule play had we, that we came from thence?
Or bleſſed was't we did?
Proſ. Both, both my Girle,
By foule-play (as thou ſaiſt) were we heau'd thence,
But bleſſedly holpe hither.
Mira. O my heart bleedes
To thinke oth' teene that I haue turn'd you to,
Which is from my remembrance, pleaſe you, farther;
Proſ. My brother and thy vncle, call'd Antonio:
I pray thee marke me, that a brother ſhould
Be ſo perfidious: he, whom next thy ſelfe
Of all the world I lou'd, and to him put
The manage of my ſtate, as at that time
Through all the ſignories it was the firſt,
And Proſpero, the prime Duke, being ſo reputed
In dignity; and for the liberall Artes,
Without a paralell; thoſe being all my ſtudie,
The Gouernment I caſt vpon my brother,
And to my State grew ſtranger, being tranſported
And rapt in ſecret ſtudies, thy falſe vncle
(Do'ſt thou attend me?)
Mira. Sir, moſt heedefully.
Proſ. Being once perfected how to graunt ſuites, how to deny them: who t'aduance, and who
To traſh for ouer-topping; new created
The creatures that were mine, I ſay, or chang'd 'em,
Or els new form'd 'em; hauing both the key,
Of Officer, and office, ſet all hearts i'th ſtate
To what tune pleas'd his eare, that now he was
The Iuy which had hid my princely Trunck,
And ſuckt my verdure out on't: Thou attend'ſt not?
Mira. O good Sir, I doe.
Proſ. I pray thee marke me:
I thus neglecting worldly ends, all dedicated
To cloſenes, and the bettering of my mind with that, which but by being ſo retir'd
Ore-priz'd all popular rate: in my falſe brother
Awak'd an euill nature, and my truſt
Like a good parent, did beget of him
A falſehood in it's contrarie, as great
As my truſt was, which had indeede no limit,
A confidence ſans bound. He being thus Lorded,
Not onely with what my reuenew yeelded,
But what my power might els exact. Like one
Who hauing into truth, by telling of it,
Made ſuch a ſynner of his memorie
To credite his owne lie, he did beleeue
He was indeed the Duke, out o'th' Subſtitution
And executing th'outward face of Roialtie
With all prerogatiue: hence his Ambition growing:
Do'ſt thou heare?
Mira. Your tale, Sir, would cure deafeneſſe.
Proſ. To haue no Screene between this part he plaid,
And him he plaid it for, he needer will be Abſolute Millaine, Me (poore man) my Librarie
Was Dukedome large enough: of temporall roalties
He thinks me now incapable. Confederates
(ſo dric he was for Sway) with King of Naples
To giue him Annuall tribute, doe him homage Subiect his Coronet, to his Crowne and bend
The Dukedom yet vnbow'd (alas poore Millaine)
To moſt ignoble ſtooping.
Mira. Oh the heauens:
Proſ. Marke his condition, and th'euent, then tell me
If this might be a brother.
Mira. I ſhould ſinne
To thinke but Noblie of my Grand-mother,

Good

mbers haue borne bad ſowles.
. Now the Condition.
ing of Naples being an Enemy
inueterate hearkens my Brothers ſuit, was. That he in lieu o'th premiſes, nage, and I know not how much Tribute, preſently extirpate me and mine
the Dukedome, and confer faire Millaine
ll the Honour, on my brother: Whereon ther ous Armie leuied, one mid-night
o th' purpoſe, did Antonio open ates of Millaine, and ith' dead of darkeneſſe ſſers for th' purpoſe hurried thence d thy crying ſelfe.
r. Alack, for pitty:
membring how I cride out then r it out againe: it is a hint ngs mine eyes too'r.
Heare a little further,
n I'le bring thee to the preſent buſineſſe
now 'ſ vpon 't: without the which, this Story oſt impertinent.
. Wherefore did they not were deſtroy vs?
Well demanded, wench
provokes that queſtion: Deare, they durſt not, e the loue my people bore me: nor ſet ſo bloudy on the buſineſſe: but alours fairer, painted their foule ends.
they hurried vs a-boord a Barke,
ſome Leagues to Sea, where they prepared n carkaſſe of a Butt, not rigg'd, kie, ſayle, nor maſt, the very rats
inſtly haue quit it: There they hoyſt vs to th' Sea, that roard to vs; to ſigh ardes, whoſe pitty ſighing backe againe ms ſowing wrong.
Alack, what trouble
Was he to you?
O, a Cherubin
ou'r that did preſerue me; Thou didſt ſmile,
with a ſtoutnede from heauen,
I haue deck'd the ſea with drops full ſalt,
ing burthen groan'd, which taſt'd in me ergoing ſtomacke, to beare vp t what ſhould enſue.
. How came we a ſhore?
By prouidence diuine,
ood, we had, and ſome freſh water, that Neapolitan Gonzalo
his Charity, (who being then appointed of this deſigne) did giue vs, with ments, linnens, ſtuffe, and neceſſaries ſince haue ſteeded much, ſo of his gentleneſſe ng I lou'd my bookes, he furniſhd me ome owne Library, with volumes, that aboue my Dukedome.
. Would I might
e ſee that man.
Now I are'ſt,
, and heare the laſt of our ſea-ſorrow:
this ſtand we are'riu'd, and heere thy Schoolemaſter, made thee more profit ther Princeſſe can, that haue more time ies bowres; and Tutors, not ſo eareſull.
Heauens thank you for't. And now I pray you Sir,
For ſtill 'tis beating in my minde; your reaſon
For raiſing this Sea-ſtorme?
Pro. Know thus far forth,
By accident moſt ſtrange, bountifull Fortune
(Now my deere Lady) hath mine enemies
Brought to this ſhore: And by my preſcience
I finde my Zenith doth depend vpon
A moſt auſpitious ſtarre, whoſe influence
If now I court not, but omit; my fortunes
Will euer after droope: Heare ceaſe more queſtions,
Thou art inclinde to ſleepe: 'tis a good dulneſſe,
And giue it way: I know thou canſt not chuſe:
Come away, Seruant, come; I am ready now, Approach my Ariel. Come. Enter Ariel.
Ari. All haile, great Maſter, graue Sir, haile: I come
To anſwer thy beſt pleaſure; be't to fly,
To ſwim, to diue into the fire; to ride
On the curld clowds: to thy ſtrong bidding, taske
Ariel, and all his Qualitie.
Pro. Haſt thou, Spirit,
Performd to point, the Tempeſt that I bad thee.
Ar. To euery Article.
I boorded the Kings ſhip: now on the Beake,
Now in the Waſte, the Decke, in euery Cabyn,
I flam'd amazement, ſometime I'ld diuide
And burne in many places; on the Top-maſt,
The Yards and Bore-ſpritt, would I flame diſtinctly,
Then meete, and ioyne. Ioues Lightning, the precurſers
O'th dreadfull Thunder-claps more momentarie
And ſight out-running were not; the fire, and cracks
Of ſulphurous roaring, the moſt mighty Neptune
Seeme to beſiege, and make his bold waues tremble,
Yea, his dread Trident ſhake.
Pro. My braue Spirit,
Who was ſo firme, ſo conſtant, that this coyle
Would not infect his reaſon?
Ar. Not a ſoule
But felt a Feauer of the madde, and plaid
Some tricks of deſperation; all but Mariners
Pluog'd in the foaming bryne, and quit the veſſell;
Then all a fire with me the Kings ſonne Ferdinand
With haire vp-ſtaring (then like reeds, not haire)
Was the firſt man that leapt; cride hell is empty,
And all the Diuels are heere.
Pro. Why that's my ſpirit:
But was not this nye ſhore?
Ar. Cloſe by, my Maſter.
Pro. But are they (Ariell) ſafe?
Ar. Not a haire periſhd:
On their ſuſtaining garments not a blemiſh,
But freſher than before: and as thou badſt me,
In troops I haue diſperſd them 'bout the Iſle:
The Kings ſonne haue I landed by himſelfe,
Whom I left cooling of the Ayre with ſighes,
In an odde Angle of the Iſle, and ſitting
His armes in this ſad knot.
Pro. Of the Kings ſhip,
The Mariners, ſay how thou haſt diſpoſd,
And all the reſt o'th' Fleete?
Ar. Safely in harbour
Is the Kings ſhippe, in the deepe Nooke, where once
Thou calldſt me vp at midnight to fetch dewe
From the ſtill-vext Bermoothes, there ſhe's hid;
The Mariners all vnder hatches ſtowed,
Who, with a Charme ioynd to their ſuffred labour
I haue left aſleep: and for the reſt o'th' Fleet

(Which I diſpers'd) they all haue met againe,
And are vpon the Mediterranean Flote
Bound ſadly home for Naples,
Supposing that they ſaw the Kings ſhip wrackt,
And his great perſon periſh.
Pro. Ariel, thy charge
Exactly is perform'd; but there's more worke:
What is the time o'th'day?
Ar. Paſt the mid ſeaſon.
Pro. At leaſt two Glaſſes: the time 'twixt ſix & now
Muſt by vs both be ſpent moſt preciouſly.
Ar. Is there more toyle? Since ſ̃ doſt giue me pains,
Let me remember thee what thou haſt promis'd,
Which is not yet perform'd me.
Pro. How now? moodie?
What is't thou canſt demand?
Ar. My Libertie.
Pro. Before the time be out? no more.
Ar. I prethee,
Remember I haue done thee worthy ſeruice,
Told thee no lyes, made thee no miſtakings, ſerv'd
Without or grudge, or grumblings; thou did promiſe
To bate me a full yeere.
Pro. Do'ſt thou forget
From what a torment I did free thee? Ar. No.
Pro. Thou do'ſt: & thinkſt it much to tread ſ̃ Ooze
Of the ſalt deepe;
To run vpon the ſharpe winde of the North,
To doe me buſineſſe in the veines o'th' earth
When it is bak'd with froſt.
Ar. I doe not Sir.
Pro. Thou lieſt, malignant Thing: haſt thou forgot
The foule Witch Sycorax, who with Age and Enuy
Was growne into a hoope? haſt thou forgot her?
Ar. No Sir.
Pro. Thou haſt: where was ſhe borne? ſpeak: tell me:
Ar. Sir, in Argier.
Pro. Oh, was ſhe ſo: I muſt
Once in a moneth recount what thou haſt bin,
Which thou forgetſt. This damn'd Witch Sycorax
For miſchiefes manifold, and ſorceries terrible
To enter humane hearing, from Argier
Thou know'ſt was baniſh'd: for one thing ſhe did
They would not take her life: Is not this true? Ar. I, Sir.
Pro. This blew-ey'd hag, was hither brought with
And here was left by th' Saylors; thou my ſlaue, (child,
As thou reportſt thy ſelfe, was then her ſeruant,
And for thou waſt a Spirit too delicate
To act her earthy, and abhord commands,
Refuſing her grand heſts, ſhe did confine thee
By helpe of her more potent Miniſters,
And in her moſt vnmittigable rage,
Into a cloven Pyne, within which rift
Impriſon'd, thou didſt painefully remaine
A dozen yeeres: within which ſpace ſhe di'd,
And left thee there: where thou didſt vent thy groanes
As faſt as Mill-wheeles ſtrike: Then was this Iſland (Saue for the Son, that he did littour heere,
A freckled whelpe, hag-borne) not honour'd with
A humane ſhape.
Ar. Yes: Caliban her ſonne.
Pro. Dull thing, I ſay ſo: he, that Caliban
Whom now I keepe in ſeruice, thou beſt know'ſt
What torment I did finde thee in; thy groanes
Did make wolues howle, and penetrate the breaſts
Of ever-angry Beares; it was a torment
To lay vpon the damn'd, which Sycorax
Could not againe vndoe: it was mine Art,
When I arriu'd, and heard thee, that made gape
The Pyne, and let thee out.
Ar. I thanke thee Maſter.
Pro. If thou more murmur'ſt, I will rend an Oake
And peg-thee in his knotty entrailes, till
Thou haſt howl'd away twelue winters.
Ar. Pardon, Maſter,
I will be correſpondent to command
And doe my ſpryting, gently.
Pro. Doe ſo: and after two daies
I will diſcharge thee.
Ar. That's my noble Maſter:
What ſhall I doe? ſay what? what ſhall I doe?
Pro. Goe make thy ſelfe like a Nymph o'th' Sea,
Be ſubiect to no ſight but thine, and mine: inuiſible
To euery eye-ball elſe: goe take this ſhape
And hither come in't: goe: hence
With diligence. Exit.
Pro. Awake, deere hart awake, thou haſt ſlept well, Awake.
Mir. The ſtrangeneſs of your ſtory, put Heauineſſe in me.
Pro. Shake it off: Come on,
Wee'll viſit Caliban, my ſlaue, who neuer
Yeelds vs kinde anſwere.
Mir. 'Tis a villaine Sir, I doe not loue to looke on.
Pro. But as 'tis
We cannot miſſe him: he do's make our fire,
Fetch in our wood, and ſerues in Offices
That profit vs: What hoa: ſlaue: Caliban:
Thou Earth, thou: ſpeake.
Cal. within. There's wood enough within.
Pro. Come forth I ſay, there's other buſines for thee:
Come thou Tortoys, when? Enter Ariel like a water-
Fine apparition: my quaint Ariel, Nymph.
Heark in thine eare.
Ar. My Lord, it ſhall be done. Exit.
Pro. Thou poyſonous ſlaue, got by ſ̃ diuell himſelfe Vpon thy wicked Dam; come forth. Enter Caliban.
Cal. As wicked dewe, as ere my mother brush'd
With Rauens feather from vnwholeſome Fen
Drop on you both: A Southweſt blow on yee,
And bliſter you all ore.
Pro. For this be ſure, to night thou ſhalt haue cramps,
Side-ſtitches, that ſhall pen thy breath vp, Vrchins
Shall for that vaſt of night, that they may worke
All exerciſe on thee: thou ſhalt be pinch'd
As thicke as hony-combe, each pinch more ſtinging
Then Bees that made 'em.
Cal. I muſt eat my dinner:
This Iſland's mine by Sycorax my mother,
Which thou tak'ſt from me: when thou cam'ſt firſt
Thou ſtroakſt me, & made much of me: would'ſt giue me
Water with berries in't: and teach me how
To name the bigger Light, and how the leſſe
That burne by day, and night: and then I lou'd thee
And ſhew'd thee all the qualities o'th' Iſle,
The freſh Springs, Brine-pits; barren place and fertill,
Curs'd be I that did ſo: All the Charmes
Of Sycorax: Toades, Beetles, Bats light on you:
For I am all the Subiects that you haue,
Which firſt was min owne King: and here you ſty-me
In this hard Rocke, whiles you doe keepe from me
The reſt o'th' Iſland.

Pro. Thou

Pro. Thou moſt lying ſlaue,
Whom ſtripes may moue, not kindnes: I haue vs'd thee
(Filth as thou art) with humane care, and lodg'd thee
In mine owne Cell, till thou didſt ſeeke to violate
The honor of my childe.
Cal. Oh ho, oh ho, would't had bene done:
Thou didſt preuent me, I had peopel'd elſe
This Iſle with Calibans.
Mira. Abhorred Slaue,
Which any print of goodneſſe wilt not take,
Being capable of all ill: I pittied thee,
Took paines to make thee ſpeak, taught thee each houre
One thing or other: when thou didſt not (Sauage)
Know thine owne meaning; but wouldſt gabble, like
A thing moſt brutiſh, I endow'd thy purpoſes
With words that made them knowne: But thy vild race
(Tho thou didſt learn) had that in't, which good natures
Could not abide to be with; therefore waſt thou Deſeruedly confin'd into this Rocke, who hadſt
Deſeru'd more then a priſon.
Cal. You taught me Language, and my profit on't
Is, I know how to curſe: the red-plague rid you
For learning me your language.
Pro. Hag-ſeed, hence:
Fetch vs in Fewell, and be quicke thou'rt beſt,
To anſwer other buſineſſe: (hrug'ſt thou (Malice)
If thou neglect'ſt, or doſt vnwillingly
What I command, Ile racke thee with old Cramps,
Fill all thy bones with Aches, make thee rore,
That beaſts ſhall tremble at thy dyn.
Cal. No, 'pray thee.
I muſt obey, his Art is of ſuch pow'r,
It would controll my Dams god Setebos,
And make a vaſſaile of him.
Pro. So ſlaue, hence. Exit Cal.

Enter Ferdinand & Ariel, inuiſible playing & ſinging.

Ariel Song. Come vnto theſe yellow ſands,
and then take hands:
Curtſied when you haue, and kiſt
the wilde waues whiſt:
Foote it featly here, and there, and ſweete Sprights beare
the burthen. Burthen diſperſedly.
Harke, harke, bough wough: the watch-Dogges barke, bough-wough
Ar. Hark, hark, I heare, the ſtraine of ſtrutting Chanticlere cry cockadidle-dowe.
Fer. Where ſhould this Muſick be? I'th aire, or th'earth?
It ſounds no more: and ſure it waytes vpon
Some God 'oth'Iſland, ſitting on a banke,
Weeping againe the King my Fathers wracke.
This Muſicke crept by me vpon the waters,
Allaying both their fury, and my paſſion
With it's ſweet ayre: thence I haue follow'd it (Or it hath drawne me rather) but 'tis gone.
No, it begins againe.
Ariell Song. Full fadom fiue thy Father lies,
Of his bones are Corrall made:
Thoſe are pearles that were his eies,
Nothing of him that doth fade,
But doth ſuffer a Sea-change
Into ſomething rich & ſtrange:
Sea-Nimphs hourely ring his knell.
Burthen: ding dong.
Harke now I heare them, ding-dong bell.
Fer. The Ditty do's remember my drown'd father,
This is no mortall buſines, nor no ſound
That the earth owes: I heare it now aboue me.
Pro. The fringed Curtaines of thine eye aduance,
And ſay what thou ſee'ſt yond.
Mira. What is't a Spirit?
Lord, how it lookes about: Beleeue me ſir,
It carries a braue forme. But 'tis a ſpirit.
Pro. No wench, it eats, and ſleeps, & hath ſuch ſenſes
As we haue: ſuch. This Gallant which thou ſeeſt
Was in the wracke: and but hee's ſomething ſtain'd
With greeſe (that's beauties canker) y might'ſt call him
A goodly perſon: he hath loſt his fellowes,
And ſtrayes about to finde 'em.
Mir. I might call him
A thing diuine, for nothing naturall
I euer ſaw ſo Noble.
Pro. It goes on I ſee
As my ſoule prompts it: Spirit, fine ſpirit, Ile free thee
Within two dayes for this.
Fer. Moſt ſure the Goddeſſe
On whom theſe ayres attend: Vouchſafe my pray'r
May know if you remaine vpon this Iſland,
And that you will ſome good inſtruction giue
How I may beare me heere: my prime requeſt
(Which I do laſt pronounce) is (O you wonder)
If you be Mayd, or no?
Mir. No wonder Sir,
But certainly a Mayd.
Fer. My Language? Heauens:
I am the beſt of them that ſpeake this ſpeech,
Were I but where 'tis ſpoken.
Pro. How? the beſt?
What wer't thou if the King of Naples heard thee?
Fer. A ſingle thing, as I am now, that wonders
To heare thee ſpeake of Naples: he do's heare me,
And that he do's, I weepe: my ſelfe am Naples,
Who, with mine eyes (neuer ſince at ebbe) beheld
The King my Father wrack't.
Mir. Alacke, for mercy.
Fer. Yes faith, & all his Lords, the Duke of Millaine
And his braue ſonne, being twaine.
Pro. The Duke of Millaine
And his more brauer daughter, could controll thee
If now 'twere fit to do't: At the firſt ſight
They haue chang'd eyes: Delicate Ariel,
Ile ſet thee free for this. A word good Sir,
I feare you haue done your ſelfe ſome wrong: A word.
Mir. Why ſpeakes my father ſo vngently? This
Is the third man that ere I ſaw; the firſt
That ere I ſigh'd for: pitty moue my father
To be enclin'd my way.
Fer. O, if a Virgin,
And your affection not gone forth, Ile make you
The Queene of Naples.
Pro. Soft ſir, one word more.
They are both in eythers pow'rs: But this ſwift buſines
I muſt vneaſie make, leaſt too light winning
Make the prize light. One word more: I charge thee
That thou attend me: Thou do'ſt beere vſurpe
The name thou ow'ſt not, and haſt put thy ſelfe
Vpon this Iſland, as a ſpy, to win it
From me, the Lord on't.
Fer. No, as I am a man.
Mir. Ther's nothing ill, can dwell in ſuch a Temple
If the ill-ſpirit haue ſo fayre a houſe,
Good things will ſtriue to dwell with't
Pro. Follow me.

Proſ. Speake not you for him: he's a Traitor: come,
Ile manacle thy neck and feete together:
Sea water ſhalt thou drinke: thy food ſhall be
The freſh-brooke Muſſels, wither'd roots, and huskes Wherein the Acorne cradled. Follow.

For. No,
I will reſiſt ſuch entertainment, till
Mine enemy ha's more pow'r.

He draws, and is charmed from moving.

Mira. O deere Father,
Make not too raſh a triall of him, for
He's gentle, and not fearefull.

Proſ. What I ſay,
My foote my Tutor? Put thy ſword vp Traitor,
Who mak'ſt a ſhew, but dar'ſt not ſtrike: thy conſcience
Is ſo poſſeſt with guilt: Come, from thy ward,
For I can here diſarme thee with this ſticke,
And make thy weapon drop.

Mira. Beſeech you Father.

Proſ. Hence: hang not on my garments.

Mira. Sir haue pity,
Ile be his ſurety.

Proſ. Silence: One word more
Shall make me chide thee, if not hate thee: What,
An aduocate for an Impoſtor? Huſh:
Thou think'ſt there is no more ſuch ſhapes as he,
(Having ſeene but him and Caliban:) Fooliſh wench,
To th'moſt of men, this is a Caliban,
And they to him are Angels.

Mira. My affections
Are then moſt humble: I haue no ambition
To ſee a goodlier man.

Proſ. Come on, obey:
Thy Nerues are in their infancy againe,
And haue no vigour in them.

For. So they are:
My ſpirits, as in a dreame, are all bound vp:
My Fathers loſſe, the weakneſſe which I feele,
The wracke of all my friends, nor this mans threats,
To whom I am ſubdude, are but light to me,
Might I but through my priſon once a day
Behold this Mayd: all corners elſe o'th'Earth
Let liberty make vſe of: ſpace enough
Haue I in ſuch a priſon.

Proſ. It workes: Come on.
Thou haſt done well, fine Ariell: follow me,
Harke what thou elſe ſhalt do mee.

Mira. Be of comfort,
My Fathers of a better nature (Sir)
Then he appeares by ſpeech: this is vnwonted
Which now came from him.

Proſ. Thou ſhalt be as free
As mountaine windes; but then exactly do
All poynts of my command.

Ariell. To th'ſyllable.

Proſ. Come follow: ſpeake not for him. Exeunt.

Actus Secundus. Scœna Prima.

Enter Alonſo, Sebaſtian, Anthonio, Gonzalo, Adrian, Francisco, and others.

Gon. Beſeech you Sir, be merry; you haue cauſe,
(So haue we all) of ioy; for our eſcape
Is much beyond our loſſe; our hint of woe
Is common, every day, ſome Saylors wife,
The Maſters of ſome Merchant, and the Merchant
Haue iuſt our Theame of woe: But for the miracle,
(I meane our preſeruation) few in millions
Can ſpeake like vs: then wiſely (good Sir) weigh
Our ſorrow, with our comfort.

Alonſ. Prethee peace.

Seb. He receiues comfort like cold porredge.

Ant. The Viſitor will not giue him o're ſo.

Seb. Looke, hee's winding vp the watch of his wit,
By and by it will ſtrike.

Gon. Sir.

Seb. One: Tell.

Gon. When every griefe is entertaind,
That's offer'd comes to th'entertainer.

Seb. A dollor.

Gon. Dolour comes to him indeed, you haue ſpoken truer then you purpos'd.

Seb. You haue taken it wiſdier then I meant you ſhould.

Gon. Therefore my Lord.

Ant. Fie, what a ſpend-thrift is he of his tongue.

Alon. I pre-thee ſpare.

Gon. Well, I haue done: But yet

Seb. He will be talking.

Ant. Which, of he, or Adrian, for a good wager, Firſt begins to crow?

Seb. The old Cocke.

Ant. The Cockrell.

Seb. Done: The wager?

Ant. A Laughter.

Seb. A match.

Adr. Though this Iſland ſeeme to be deſert.

Seb. Ha, ha, ha.

Ant. So: you'r paid.

Adr. Vninhabitable, and almoſt inacceſſible.

Seb. Yet

Adr. Yet

Ant. He could not miſſe't.

Adr. It muſt needs be of ſubtle, tender, and delicate temperance.

Ant. Temperance was a delicate wench.

Seb. I, and a ſubtle, as he moſt learnedly deliuer'd.

Adr. The ayre breathes vpon vs here moſt ſweetly.

Seb. As if it had Lungs, and rotten ones.

Ant. Or, as 'twere perfum'd by a Fen.

Gon. Heere is every thing aduantageous to life.

Ant. True, ſaue meanes to liue.

Seb. Of that there's none, or little.

Gon. How luſh and luſty the graſſe lookes?
How greene?

Ant. The ground indeed is tawny.

Seb. With an eye of greene in't.

Ant. He miſſes not much.

Seb. No: he doth but miſtake the truth totally.

Gon. But the rarity of it is, which is indeed almoſt beyond credit.

Seb. As many vouche rarieties are.

Gon. That our Garments being (as they were) drenche in the Sea, hold notwithſtanding their freſhneſſe and gloſſes, being rather new dy'de then ſtain'd with ſalte water.

Ant. If but one of his pockets could ſpeake, would it not ſay he lyes?

Seb. I, or very falſely pocket vp his report.

Gon.

Gon. Me thinkes our garments are now as freſh as when we put them on firſt in Affricke, at the marriage of the kings faire daughter Claribel to the king of Tunis.

Seb. 'Twas a ſweet marriage, and we proſper well in our returne.

Adri. Tunis was never grac'd before with ſuch a Paragon to their Queene.

Gon. Not ſince widdow Dido's time.

Ant. Widow? A pox o'that: how came that Widdow in? Widdow Dido!

Seb. What if he had ſaid Widdower Æneas too? Good Lord, how you take it?

Adri. Widdow Dido ſaid you? You make me ſtudy of that: She was of Carthage, not of Tunis.

Gon. This Tunis Sir was Carthage.

Adri. Carthage? Gon. I aſſure you Carthage.

Ant. His word is more then the miraculous Harpe.

Seb. He hath rais'd the wall, and houſes too.

Ant. What impoſſible matter will he make eaſy next?

Seb. I thinke hee will carry this Iſland home in his pocket, and give it his ſonne for an Apple.

Ant. And ſowing the kernels of it in the Sea, bring forth more Ilands.

Gon. I. Ant. Why in good time.

Gon. Sir, we were talking, that our garments ſeeme now as freſh as when we were at Tunis at the marriage of your daughter, who is now Queene.

Ant. And the rareſt that ere came there.

Seb. Bate (I beſeech you) widdow Dido.

Ant. O Widdow Dido? I, Widdow Dido.

Gon. Is not Sir my doublet as freſh as the firſt day I wore it? I meane in a ſort.

Ant. That ſort was well fiſh'd for.

Gon. When I wore it at your daughters marriage.

Alon. You cram theſe words into mine eares, againſt the ſtomacke of my ſenſe: would I had never Married my daughter there: For comming thence My ſonne is loſt, and (in my rate) ſhe too, Who is ſo farre from Italy removed, I ne're againe ſhall ſee her: O thou mine heire Of Naples and of Millaine, what ſtrange fiſh Hath made his meale on thee?

Fran. Sir he may liue, I ſaw him beate the ſurges vnder him, And ride vpon their backes; he trod the water Whoſe enmity he flung aſide: and breſted The ſurge moſt ſwolne that met him: his bold head 'Bove the contentious waues he kept, and oared Himſelfe with his good armes in luſty ſtroke To th'ſhore; that ore his waue-worne baſis bowed As ſtooping to releeue him: I not doubt He came aliue to Land.

Alon. No, no, he's gone.

Seb. Sir you may thank your ſelfe for this great loſſe, That would not bleſſe our Europe with your daughter, But rather loſſe her to an Affrican, Where ſhe at leaſt, is baniſh'd from your eye, Who hath cauſe to wet the greefe on't.

Alon. Pre-thee peace.

Seb. You were kneel'd too, & importun'd otherwiſe By all of vs: and the faire ſoule her ſelfe Weigh'd betweene loathneſſe, and obedience, at Which end o'th'beame ſhould bow: we haue loſt your I feare for ever: Millaine and Naples haue (ſon, Moe widdowes in them of this buſineſſe making, Then we bring men to comfort them:

The faults your owne.

Alon. So is the deer'ſt oth'loſſe

Gon. My Lord Sebaſtian,
The truth you ſpeake doth lacke ſome gentleneſſe, And time to ſpeake it in: you rub the ſore, When you ſhould bring the plaiſter.

Seb. Very well. Ant. And moſt Chirurgeonly.

Gon. It is foule weather in vs all, good Sir, When you are cloudy.

Seb. Fowle weather? Ant. Very foule.

Gon. Had I plantation of this Iſle my Lord.

Ant. Hee'd ſow't with Nettle-ſeed.

Seb. Or dockes, or Mallowes.

Gon. And were the King on't, what would I do?

Seb. Scape being drunke, for want of Wine.

Gon. I'th'Commonwealth I would (by contraries) Execute all things: For no kinde of Traffick Would I admit: No name of Magiſtrate: Letters ſhould not be knowne: Riches, poverty, And vſe of ſervice, none: Contract, Succeſſion, Borne, bound of Land, Tilth, Vineyard none: No vſe of Metall, Corne, or Wine, or Oyle: No occupation, all men idle, all: And Women too, but innocent and pure: No Soueraignty.

Seb. Yet he would be King on't.

Ant. The latter end of his Common-wealth forgets the beginning.

Gon. All things in common Nature ſhould produce Without ſweat or endeuour: Treaſon, felony, Sword, Pike, Knife, Gun, or neede of any Engine Would I not haue: but Nature ſhould bring forth Of it owne kinde, all foyzon, all abundance To feed my innocent people.

Seb. No marrying 'mong his ſubiects?

Ant. None (man) all idle; Whores and knaues.

Gon. I would with ſuch perfection gouerne Sir: T'Excell the Golden Age.

Seb. 'Saue his Maieſty. Ant. Long liue Gonzalo.

Gon. And do you marke me, Sir? (me.

Alon. Pre-thee no more: thou doſt talke nothing to

Gon. I do well beleeue your Highneſſe, and did it to miniſter occaſion to theſe Gentlemen, who are of ſuch ſenſible and nimble Lungs, that they alwayes vſe to laugh at nothing.

Ant. 'Twas you we laugh'd at.

Gon. Who, in this kind of merry fooling am nothing to you: ſo you may continue, and laugh at nothing ſtill.

Ant. What a blow was there given?

Seb. And it had not falne flat-long.

Gon. You are Gentlemen of braue mettall: you would lift the Moone out of her ſpheare, if ſhe would continue in it fiue weekes without changing.

Enter Ariell playing ſolemne Muſicke.

Seb. We would ſo, and then go a Bat-fowling.

Ant. Nay good my Lord, be not angry.

Gon. No I warrant you, I will not adiuenture my diſcretion ſo weakly: Will you laugh me aſleepe, for I am very heauy.

Ant. Go ſleepe, and heare vs.

Alon. What, all ſo ſoone aſleepe? I wiſh mine eyes Would (with themſelues) ſhut vp my thoughts, I finde they are inclin'd to do ſo.

Seb. Pleaſe you Sir, Do not omit the heauy offer of it: It ſildome viſits ſorrow, when it doth, it is a Comforter.

Ant.

Ant. We two my Lord, will guard your person,
While you take your rest, and watch your safety.
Alon. Thanks you: Wondrous heavy.
Seb. What a strange drowsiness possesses them?
Ant. It is the quality o'th'Clymate.
Seb. Why
Doth it not then our eye-lids sinke? I finde
Not my selfe disposd to sleep.
Ant. Nor I, my spirits are nimble:
They fell together all, as by consent
They dropt, as by a Thunder-stroke: what might Worthy Sebastian? O, what might? no more:
And yet, me thinkes I see it in thy face,
What thou should'st be: th'occasion speaks thee, and
My strong imagination sees a Crowne
Dropping upon thy head.
Seb. What art not thou waking?
Ant. Do you not heare me speake?
Seb. I do, and surely
It is a sleepy Language; and thou speak'st
Out of thy sleepe: What is it thou didst say?
This is a strange repose, to be asleepe
With eyes wide open: standing, speaking, moving:
And yet so fast asleepe.
Ant. Noble Sebastian,
Thou let'st thy fortune sleepe: die rather: wink'st
Whiles thou art waking.
Seb. Thou do'st snore distinctly,
There's meaning in thy snores.
Ant. I am more serious than my custome: you Must be so too, if heed me: which to do,
Trebles thee o're.
Seb. Well: I am standing water.
Ant. Ile teach you how to flow.
Seb. Do so: to ebbe
Hereditary Sloth instructs me.
Ant. O!
If you but knew how you the purpose cherish
Whiles thus you mocke it: how in stripping it
You more invest it: ebbing men, indeed
(Most often) do so neere the bottome run
By their owne feare, or sloth.
Seb. 'Pre-thee say on,
The setting of thine eye, and cheeke proclaime
A matter from thee; and a birth, indeed,
Which throwes thee much to yeeld.
Ant. Thus Sir:
Although this Lord of weake remembrance; this
Who shall be of as little memory
When he is earth'd, hath here almost perswaded
(For hee's a Spirit of perswasion, only Professes to perswade) the King his sonne's alive,
'Tis as impossible that he's undrown'd,
As he that sleepes here, swims.
Seb. I have no hope
That hee's undrown'd.
Ant. O, out of that no hope,
What great hope have you? No hope that way, Is Another way so high a hope, that even Ambition cannot pierce a winke beyond
But doubt discovery there. Will you grant with me
That Ferdinand is drown'd.
Seb. He's gone.
Ant. Then tell me, who's the next heire of Naples?
Seb. Claribell.
Ant. She that is Queene of Tunis: she that dwells
Ten leagues beyond mans life: she that from Naples
Can have no note, unlesse the Sun were post:
The Man i'th' Moone's too slow, till new-borne chinnes
Be rough, and Razor-able: She that from whom
We all were sea-swallow'd, though some cast againe,
(And by that destiny) to performe an act
Whereof, what's past is Prologue; what to come
In yours, and my discharge.
Seb. What stuffe is this? How say you?
'Tis true my brothers daughter's Queene of Tunis,
So is she heyre of Naples, 'twixt which Regions
There is some space.
Ant. A space, whose ev'ry cubit
Seemes to cry out, how shall that Claribel
Measure us backe to Naples? keepe in Tunis,
And let Sebastian wake. Say, this were death
That now hath seiz'd them, why they were no worse
Then now they are: There be that can rule Naples
As well as he that sleepes: Lords, that can prate
As amply, and unnecessarily
As this Gonzallo: I my selfe could make
A Chough of as deepe chat: O, that you bore
The minde that I do; what a sleepe were this
For your advancement? Do you understand me?
Seb. Me thinkes I do.
Ant. And how do's your content
Tender your owne good fortune?
Seb. I remember
You did supplant your Brother Prospero.
Ant. True:
And looke how well my Garments sit upon me,
Much feater then before: My Brothers servants
Were then my fellowes, now they are my men.
Seb. But for your conscience.
Ant. I Sir: where lies that? If 'twere a kybe 'Twould put me to my slipper: But I feele not
This Deity in my bosome: Twenty consciences
That stand 'twixt me, and Milaine, candied be they,
And melt ere they molloft: Here lies your Brother,
No better then the earth he lies upon.
If he were that which now hee's like (that's dead)
Whom I with this obedient steele (three inches of it)
Can lay to bed for ever: whiles you doing thus,
To the perpetuall winke for aye might put
This ancient morsell: this Sir Prudence, who Should not upbraid our course: for all the rest
They'l take suggestion, as a Cat laps milke, They'l tell the clocke, to any businesse that
We say befits the houre.
Seb. Thy case, deare Friend
Shall be my president: As thou got'st Milaine,
I'le come by Naples: Draw thy sword, one stroke
Shall free thee from the tribute which thou paiest,
And I the King shall love thee.
Ant. Draw together:
And when I rere my hand, do you the like
To fall it on Gonzalo.
Seb. O, but one word.

Enter Ariell with Musicke and Song.

Ariel. My Master through his Art foresees the danger
That you (his friend) are in, and sends me forth
(For else his project dies) to keepe them living.

Sings in Gonzalos eare.

While you here do snoring lie,
Open-ey'd Conspiracie
His time doth take:

If

If of Life you keepe a care,
Shake off ſlumber and beware.
Awake, awake.

Ant. Then let vs both be ſodaine.

Gon. Now, good Angels preſerue the King.

Alo. Why how now hoa; awake? why are you drawn?
Wherefore this ghaſtly looking?

Gon. What's the matter?

Seb. Whiles we ſtood here ſecuring your repoſe,
(Euen now) we heard a hollow burſt of bellowing
Like Bulls, or rather Lyons, did't not wake you?
It ſtrooke mine eare moſt terribly.

Alo. I heard nothing.

Ant. O, 'twas a din to fright a Monſters eare;
To make an earthquake: ſure it was the roare
Of a whole heard of Lyons.

Alo. Heard you this Gonzalo?

Gon. Vpon mine honour, Sir, I heard a humming,
(And that a ſtrange one too) which did awake me:
I ſhak'd you Sir, and cride: as mine eyes opend,
I ſaw their weapons drawne: there was a noyſe,
That's verity: 'tis beſt we ſtand vpon our guard;
Or that we quit this place: let's draw our weapons.

Alo. Lead off this ground & let's make further ſearch
For my poore ſonne.

Gon. Heauens keepe him from theſe Beaſts:
For he is ſure i'th Iſland.

Alo. Lead away. (done.

Ariell. Proſpero my Lord, ſhall know what I haue
So (King) goe ſafely on to ſeeke thy Son. Exeunt.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Caliban, with a burthen of Wood (a noyſe of Thunder heard.)

Cal. All the infections that the Sunne ſuckes vp
From Bogs, Fens, Flats, on Proſper fall, and make him
By ynch-meale a diſeaſe: his Spirits heare me,
And yet I needes muſt curſe. But they'll nor pinch,
Fright me with Vrchyn-ſhewes, pitch me i'th mire,
Nor lead me like a fire-brand, in the darke
Out of my way, vnleſſe he bid 'em; but
For euery trifle, are they ſet vpon me.
Sometime like Apes, that moe and chatter at me,
And after bite me: then like Hedg-hogs, which Lie tumbling in my bare-foote way, and mount
Their pricks at my foot-fall: ſometime am I
All wound with Adders, who with cloues & tongues
Doe hiſſe me into madneſſe: Lo, now Lo, Enter
Here comes a Spirit of his, and to torment me Trinculo.
For bringing wood in ſlowly: I'le fall flat,
Perchance he will not mind me.

Tri. Here's neither buſh, nor ſhrub to beare off any weather at all: and another Storme brewing, I heare it ſing i'th' winde: yond ſame blacke cloud, yond huge one, looks like a foule bumbard that would ſhed his liquor: if it ſhould thunder, as it did before, I know not where to hide my head: yond ſame cloud cannot choſe but fall by pailfuls. What haue we here, a man, or a fiſh? dead or alme? a fiſh, he ſmels like a fiſh: a very ancient and fiſh-like ſmell: a kinde of, not of the neweſt poore-John: a ſtrange fiſh: were I in England now (as once I was) and had but this fiſh painted; not a holiday-foole there but would giue a piece of ſiluer: there, would this Monſter, make a man: any ſtrange beaſt there, makes a man: when they will not giue a doit to relieue a lame Begger, they will lay out ten to ſee a dead Indian: Leg'd like a man; and his Finnes like Armes: warme o'my troth: I doe now let looſe my opinion; hold it no longer; this is no fiſh, but an Iſlander, that hath lately ſuffered by a Thunderbolt: Alas, the ſtorme is come againe: my beſt way is to creepe vnder his Gaberdine: there is no other ſhelter hereabout: Miſery acquaints a man with ſtrange bedfellowes: I will here ſhrowd till the dregges of the ſtorme be paſt.

Enter Stephano ſinging.

Ste. I ſhall no more to ſea, to ſea, here ſhall I dye aſhore.
This is a very ſcuruy tune to ſing at a mans
Funerall: well, here's my comfort. Drinker.

Sings. The Maſter, the Swabber, the Boate-ſwaine & I;
The Gunner, and his Mate
Lou'd Mall, Meg, and Marrion, and Margerie,
But none of vs car'd for Kate.
For ſhe had a tongue with a tang,
Would cry to a Sailor goe hang:
She lou'd not the ſauour of Tar nor of Pitch,
Yet a Tailor might ſcratch her where ere ſhe did itch.
Then to Sea Boyes, and let her goe hang.
This is a ſcuruy tune too:
But here's my comfort. drinks.

Cal. Doe not torment me: oh.

Ste. What's the matter?
Haue we diuels here?
Doe you put trickes vpon's with Saluages, and Men of Inde? ha? I haue not ſcap'd drowning, to be afeard now of your foure legges: for it hath bin ſaid; as proper a man as euer went on foure legs, cannot make him giue ground: and it ſhall be ſaid ſo againe, while Stephano breathes at'noſtrils.

Cal. The Spirit torments me: oh.

Ste. This is ſome Monſter of the Iſle, with foure legs; who hath got (as I take it) an Ague: where the diuell ſhould he learne our language? I will giue him ſome reliefe if it be but for that: if I can recouer him, and keepe him tame, and get to Naples with him, he's a Preſent for any Emperour that euer trod on Neates-leather.

Cal. Doe not torment me 'prethee: I'le bring my wood home faſter.

Ste. He's in his fit now; and doe's not talke after the wiſeſt: hee ſhall taſte of my Bottle: if hee haue neuer drunke wine afore, it will goe neere to remoue his Fit: if I can recouer him, and keepe him tame, I will not take too much for him; hee ſhall pay for him that hath him, and that ſoundly.

Cal. Thou do'ſt me yet but little hurt; thou wilt anon, I know it by thy trembling: Now Proſper workes vpon thee.

Ste. Come on your wayes: open your mouth: here is that which will giue language to you Cat; open your mouth; this will ſhake your ſhaking, I can tell you, and that ſoundly: you cannot tell who's your friend; open your chaps againe.

Tri. I ſhould know that voyce:
It ſhould be,

But

But hee is dround; and theſe are diuels: O defend me.

Ste. Foure legges and two voyces; a moſt delicate Monſter: his forward voyce now is to ſpeake well of his friend: his backward voice, is to vtter foule ſpeeches, and to detract: if all the wine in my bottle will recouer him, I will helpe his Ague: Come: Amen. I will poure ſome to thy other mouth.

Tri. Stephano.

Ste. Doth thy other mouth call me? Mercy, mercy: This is a diuell, and no Monſter: I will leaue him, I haue no long Spoone.

Tri. Stephano: if thou beeſt Stephano touch me, and ſpeake to me. for I am Trinculo; be not afeard, thy good friend Trinculo.

Ste. If thou bee'ſt Trinculo: come forth: I'le pull thee by the leſſer legges: If any be Trinculo's legges, theſe are they: Thou art very Trinculo indeede: how cam'ſt thou to be the ſiege of this Moone-calfe? Can he vent Trinculo's?

Tri. I tooke him to be kil'd with a thunder-ſtroke; but art thou not dround Stephano: I hope now thou art not dround: Is the Storme ouer-blowne: I hid mee vnder the dead Moone-Calfes Gaberdine, for feare of the Storme: And art thou liuing Stephano? O Stephano, two Neapolitanes ſcap'd?

Ste. Prethee doe not turne me about, my ſtomacke is not conſtant.

Cal. Theſe be fine things, and if they be not ſprights: that's a braue God, and beares Celeſtiall liquor: I will kneele to him.

Ste. How did'ſt thou ſcape?
How cam'ſt thou hither?.
Sweare by this Bottle how thou cam'ſt hither: I eſcap'd vpon a But of Sacke, which the Saylors heaued o'reboord, by this Bottle which I made of the barke of a Tree, with mine owne hands, ſince I was caſt aſhore.

Cal. Ile ſweare vpon that Bottle, to be thy true ſubiect, for the liquor is not earthly.

St. Heere: ſweare then how thou eſcap'dſt.

Tri. Swom aſhore (man) like a Ducke: I can ſwim like a Ducke, I'le be ſworne.

Ste. Here, kiſſe the Booke.
Though thou canſt ſwim like a Ducke, thou art made like a Gooſe.

Tri. O Stephano, ha'ſt any more of this?

Ste. The whole But (man) my Cellar is in a rocke by th'ſea-ſide, where my Wine is hid:
How now Moone-Calfe, how do'ſt thine Ague?

Cal. Haſt thou not dropt from heauen?

Ste. Out o'th Moone I doe aſſure thee. I was the Man ith' Moone, when time was.

Cal. I haue ſeene thee in her: and I doe adore thee: My Miſtris ſhew'd me thee, and thy Dog, and thy Buſh.

Ste. Come, ſweare to that: kiſſe the Booke: I will furniſh it anon with new Contents: Sweare.

Tri. By this good light, this is a very ſhallow Monſter: I afeard of him? a very weake Monſter:
The Man ith Moone?
A moſt poore credulous Monſter:
Well drawne Monſter, in good ſooth.

Cal. Ile ſhew thee euery fertill inch 'oth Iſland: and I will kiſſe thy foote. I prethee be my god.

Tri. By this light, a moſt perfidious, and drunken Monſter, when's god's aſleepe he'll rob his Bottle.

Cal. Ile kiſſe thy foot. Ile ſweare my ſelfe thy Subiect.

Ste. Come on then: downe and ſweare.

Tri. I ſhall laugh my ſelfe to death at this puppi-headed Monſter: a moſt ſcuruie Monſter: I could finde in my heart to beate him.

Ste. Come, kiſſe.

Tri. But that the poore Monſter's in drinke:
An abhominable Monſter.

Cal. I'le ſhew thee the beſt Springs: I'le plucke thee Berries: I'le fiſh for thee; and get thee wood enough.
A plague vpon the Tyrant that I ſerue;
I'le beare him no more Sticks, but follow thee, thou wondrous man.

Tri. A moſt ridiculous Monſter, to make a wonder of a poore drunkard.

Cal. I'prethee let me bring thee where Crabs grow; and I with my long nayles will digge thee pig-nuts; ſhow thee a Iayes neſt, and inſtruct thee how to ſnare the nimble Marmazet: I'le bring thee to cluſtring Philberts, and ſometimes I'le get thee young Scamels from the Rocke: Wilt thou goe with me?

Ste. I pre'thee now lead the way without any more talking. Trinculo, the King, and all our company elſe being dround, wee will inherit here: Here; beare my Bottle: Fellow Trinculo; we'll fill him by and by againe.

Caliban Sings drunkenly.

Farewell Maſter; farewell, farewell.

Tri. A howling Monſter: a drunken Monſter.

Cal. No more dams I'le make for fiſh,
Nor fetch in firing, at requiring,
Nor ſcrape trencharing, nor waſh diſh.
'Ban' ban' Cacaliban
Has a new Maſter, get a new Man.

Freedome, high-day, high-day freedome, freedome high-day, freedome.

Ste. O braue Monſter; lead the way. Exeunt.

Actus Tertius. Scœna Prima.

Enter Ferdinand (bearing a Log.)

Fer. There be ſome Sports are painfull; & their labor
Delight in them ſet off: Some kindes of baſeneſſe
Are nobly vndergon; and moſt poore matters
Point to rich ends: this my meane Taske
Would be as heauy to me, as odious, but
The Miſtris which I ſerue, quickens what's dead,
And makes my labours, pleaſures: O She is
Ten times more gentle, then her Father's crabbed;
And he's compos'd of harſhneſſe. I muſt remoue
Some thouſands of theſe Logs, and pile them vp,
Vpon a ſore injunction; my ſweet Miſtris
Weepes when ſhe ſees me worke, & ſaies, ſuch baſenes
Had neuer like Executor: I forget:
But theſe ſweet thoughts, doe euen refreſh my labours,
Moſt buſie leſt, when I doe it. Enter Miranda and Proſpero.

Mir. Alas, now pray you
Worke not ſo hard: I would the lightning had Burnt vp thoſe Logs that you are enioynd to pile:
Pray ſet it downe, and reſt you: when this burnes
'Twill weepe for hauing wearied you: my Father
Is hard at ſtudy; pray now reſt your ſelfe.

He's

Hee's ſafe for theſe three houres.
Fer. O moſt deere Miſtris,
The Sun will ſet before I ſhall diſcharge
What I muſt ſtriue to do.
Mir. If you'l ſit downe
Ile bearе your Logges the while: pray giue me that,
Ile carry it to the pile.
Fer. No precious Creature,
I had rather crackе my ſinewes, breake my backe,
Then you ſhould ſuch diſhonor vndergoe,
While I ſit lazy by.
Mir. It would become me
As well as it do's you; and I ſhould do it
With much more eaſe: for my good will is to it,
And yours it is againſt.
Pro. Poore worme thou art infected,
This viſitation ſhewes it.
Mir. You looke wearily.
Fer. No, noble Miſtris, 'tis freſh morning with me
When you are by at night: I do beſeech you
Chiefely, that I might ſet it in my prayers
What is your name?
Mir. Miranda, O my Father,
I haue broke your heſt to ſay ſo.
Fer. Admir'd Miranda,
Indeede the top of Admiration, worth
What's deereſt to the world: full many a Lady
I haue ey'd with beſt regard, and many a time
Th'harmony of their tongues, hath into bondage
Brought my too diligent eare: for ſeuerall vertues
Haue I lik'd ſeuerall women, neuer any
With ſo full ſoule, but ſome defect in her
Did quarrell with the nobleſt grace ſhe ow'd,
And put it to the ſoule. But you, O you,
So perfect, and ſo peerleſſe, are created
Of euerie Creatures beſt.
Mir. I do not know
One of my ſexe: no womans face remember,
Saue from my glaſſe, mine owne: Nor haue I ſeene
More that I may call men, then you good friend,
And my deere Father: how features are abroad
I am ſkilleſſe of; but by my modeſtie
(The iewell in my dower) I would not wiſh
Any Companion in the world but you:
Nor can imagination forme a ſhape
Beſides your ſelfe, to like of: but I prattle
Something too wildely, and my Fathers precepts
I therein do forget.
Fer. I am, in my condition
A Prince (Miranda) I do thinke a King
(I would not ſo) and would no more endure
This wodden ſlauerie, then to ſuffer
The fleſhy-fly blow my mouth: heare my ſoule ſpeake.
The very inſtant that I ſaw you, did
My heart flie to your ſeruice, there reſides
To make me ſlaue to it, and for your ſake
Am I this patient Logge-man.
Mir. Do you loue me?
Fer. O heauen; O earth, bearе witneſs to this ſound,
And crowne what I profeſſe with kinde euent
If I ſpeake true: if hollowly, inuert
What beſt is boaded me, to miſchiefe: I,
Beyond all limit of what elſe i'th world
Do loue, prize it, honor you.
Mir. I am a foole
To weepe at what I am glad of.

Pro. Faire encounter
Of two moſt rare affections: heauens raine grace
On that which breeds betweene 'em.
Fer. Wherefore weepe you?
Mir. At mine vnworthineſſe, that dare not offer
What I deſire to giue; and much leſſe take
What I ſhall die to want: But this is trifling,
And all the more it ſeekes to hide it ſelfe,
The bigger bulke it ſhewes. Hence baſhfull cunning,
And prompt me plaine and holy innocence.
I am your wife, if you will marrie me;
If not, Ile die your maid: to be your fellow
You may denie me, but Ile be your ſeruant
Whether you will or no.
Fer. My Miſtris (deereſt)
And I thus humble euer.
Mir. My husband then?
Fer. I, with a heart as willing
As bondage ere of freedome: heere's my hand.
Mir. And mine, with my heart in't; and now farewel
Till halfe an houre hence.
Fer. A thouſand, thouſand. Exeunt.
Pro. So glad of this as they I cannot be,
Who are ſurpriz'd with all; but my reioycing
At nothing can be more: Ile to my booke,
For yet ere ſupper time, muſt I performe
Much buſineſſe appertaining. Exit.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Caliban, Stephano, and Trinculo.

Ste. Tell not me, when the But is out we will drinke water, not a drop before; therefore bearе vp, & board 'em' Seruant Monſter, drinke to me.
Trin. Seruant Monſter? the folly of this Iland, they ſay there's but fiue vpon this Iſle; we are three of them, if th'other two be brain'd like vs, the State totters.
Ste. Drinke ſeruant Monſter when I bid thee, thy eies are almoſt ſet in thy head.
Trin. Where ſhould they bee ſet elſe? hee were a braue Monſter indeede if they were ſet in his taile.
Ste. My man-Monſter hath drown'd his tongue in ſacke: for my part the Sea cannot drowne mee, I ſwam ere I could recouer the ſhore, fiue and thirtie Leagues off and on, by this light thou ſhalt bee my Lieutenant Monſter, or my Standard.
Trin. Your Lieutenant if you liſt, hee's no ſtandard.
Ste. We'el not run Monſieur Monſter.
Trin. Nor go neither: but you'l lie like dogs, and yet ſay nothing neither.
Ste. Moone-calfe, ſpeak once in thy life, if thou beeſt a good Moone-calfe.
Cal. How does thy honour? Let me licke thy ſhooe: Ile not ſeruе him, he is not valiant.
Trin. Thou lieſt moſt ignorant Monſter, I am in caſe to iuſtle a Conſtable: why, thou debosh'd Fiſh thou, was there euer man a Coward, that hath drunk ſo much Sacke as I to day? wilt thou tell a monſtrous lie, being but halfe a Fiſh, and halfe a Monſter?
Cal. Loe, how he mockes me, wilt thou let him my Lord?

Trin. Lord, quoth he? that a Monſter ſhould be ſuch a Naturall?

Cal. Loe, loe againe: bite him to death I prethee.

Ste. Trinculo, keepe a good tongue in your head: If you proue a mutineere, the next Tree: the poore Monſter's my ſubiect, and he ſhall not ſuffer indignity.

Cal. I thanke my noble Lord. Wilt thou be pleas'd to hearken once againe to the ſuite I made to thee?

Ste. Marry will I: kneele, and repeate it, I will ſtand, and ſo ſhall Trinculo.

Enter Ariell inuiſible.

Cal. As I told thee before, I am ſubiect to a Tirant, A Sorcerer, that by his cunning hath cheated me Of the Iſland.

Ariell. Thou lyeſt.

Cal. Thou lyeſt, thou ieſting Monkey thou: I would my valiant Maſter would deſtroy thee. I do not lye.

Ste. Trinculo, if you trouble him any more in's tale, By this hand, I will ſupplant ſome of your teeth.

Trin. Why, I ſaid nothing.

Ste. Mum then, and no more: proceed.

Cal. I ſay by Sorcery he got this Iſle From me, he got it. If thy Greatneſſe will Reuenge it on him, (for I know thou dar'ſt) But this Thing dare not.

Ste. That's moſt certaine.

Cal. Thou ſhalt be Lord of it, and Ile ſerue thee.

Ste. How now ſhall this be compaſt? Canſt thou bring me to the party?

Cal. Yea, yea my Lord, Ile yeeld him thee aſleepe, Where thou maiſt knocke a naile into his head.

Ariell. Thou lieſt, thou canſt not.

Cal. What a py'de Ninnie's this? Thou ſcuruy patch: I do beſeech thy Greatneſſe giue him blowes, And take his bottle from him: When that's gone, He ſhall drinke nought but brine, for Ile not ſhew him Where the quicke Freſhes are.

Ste. Trinculo, run into no further danger: Interrupt the Monſter one word further, and by this hand, Ile turne my mercie out o'doores, and make a Stockfiſh of thee.

Trin. Why, what did I? I did nothing: Ile go farther off.

Ste. Didſt thou not ſay he lyed?

Ariell. Thou lieſt.

Ste. Do I ſo? Take thou that, As you like this, giue me the lye another time.

Trin. I did not giue the lie: Out o'your wittes, and hearing too? A pox o'your bottle, this ean Sacke and drinking doo: A murren on your Monſter, and the diuell take your fingers.

Cal. Ha, ha, ha.

Ste. Now forward with your Tale: prethee ſtand further off.

Cal. Beate him enough: after a little time Ile beate him too.

Ste. Stand farther. Come proceede.

Cal. Why, as I told thee, 'tis a cuſtome with him I'th afternoone to ſleepe: there thou maiſt braine him, Hauing firſt ſeiz'd his bookes: Or with a logge Batter his ſkull, or paunch him with a ſtake, Or cut his weazand with thy knife. Remember Firſt to poſſeſſe his Bookes; for without them Hee's but a Sot, as I am; nor hath not One Spirit to command: they all do hate him As rootedly as I. Burne but his Bookes. He ha's braue Vtenſils (for ſo he calles them) Which when he ha's a houſe, hee'l decke withall. And that moſt deeply to conſider, is The beautie of his daughter. he himſelfe Cals her a non-pareill: I neuer ſaw a woman But onely Sycorax my Dam, and ſhe; But ſhe as farre ſurpaſſeth Sycorax, As great'ſt do's leaſt.

Ste. Is it ſo braue a Laſſe?

Cal. I Lord, ſhe will become thy bed, I warrant, And bring thee forth braue brood.

Ste. Monſter, I will kill this man: his daughter and I will be King and Queene, ſaue our Graces: and Trinculo and thy ſelfe ſhall be Vice-royes: Doſt thou like the plot Trinculo?

Trin. Excellent.

Ste. Giue me thy hand, I am ſorry I beate thee: But while thou liu'ſt keepe a good tongue in thy head.

Cal. Within this halfe houre will he be aſleepe, Wilt thou deſtroy him then?

Ste. I on mine honour.

Ariell. This will I tell my Maſter.

Cal. Thou mak'ſt me merry: I am full of pleaſure, Let vs be iocond. Will you troule the Catch You taught me but whileare?

Ste. At thy requeſt Monſter, I will do reaſon, Any reaſon: Come on Trinculo, let vs ſing.

Sings.

Flout 'em, and cout 'em: and ſcout 'em, and flout 'em.
Thought is free.

Cal. That's not the tune.

Ariell playes the tune on a Tabor and Pipe.

Ste. What is this ſame?

Trin. This is the tune of our Catch, plaid by the picture of No-body.

Ste. If thou beeſt a man, ſhew thy ſelfe in thy likenes: If thou beeſt a diuell, take't as thou liſt.

Trin. O forgiue me my ſinnes.

Ste. He that dies payes all debts: I defie thee; Mercy vpon vs.

Cal. Art thou afeard?

Ste. No Monſter, not I.

Cal. Be not affeard, the Iſle is full of noyſes, Sounds, and ſweet aires, that giue delight and hurt not: Sometimes a thouſand twangling Inſtruments Will hum about mine eares; and ſometime voices, That if I then had wak'd after long ſleepe, Will make me ſleepe againe, and then in dreaming, The clouds methought would open, and ſhew riches Ready to drop vpon me, that when I wak'd I cri'de to dreame againe.

Ste. This will proue a braue kingdome to me, Where I ſhall haue my Muſicke for nothing.

Cal. When Proſpero is deſtroy'd.

Ste. That ſhall be by and by: I remember the ſtorie.

Trin. The ſound is going away. Lets follow it, and after do our worke.

Ste. Leade Monſter, Wee'l follow: I would I could ſee this Taborer, He layes it on.

Trin. Wilt come? Ile follow Stephano.

Exeunt.

Scena

Scena Tertia.

Enter Alonſo, Sebaſtian, Anthonio, Gonzallo, Adrian, Franciſco, &c.

Gon. By'r lakin, I can goe no further, Sir,
My old bones akes: here's a maze trod indeede
Through fourth rights, & Meanders: by your patience
I needes muſt reſt me.

Al. Old Lord, I cannot blame thee,
Who, am my ſelfe attach'd with wearineſſe
To th'dulling of my ſpirits: Sit downe, and reſt:
Euen here I will put off my hope, and keepe it
No longer for my Flatterer: he is drown'd
Whom thus we ſtray to finde, and the Sea mocks
Our fruſtrate ſearch on land: well, let him goe.

Ant. I am right glad, that he's ſo out of hope:
Doe not for one repulſe forgoe the purpoſe
That you reſolu'd t'effect.

Seb. The next advantage will we take throughly.

Ant. Let it be to night,
For now they are oppreſs'd with travaile, they Will not, nor cannot uſe ſuch vigilance
As when they are freſh.

Solemne and ſtrange Muſicke: and Proſper on the top (inuiſible:) Enter ſeuerall ſtrange ſhapes, bringing in a Banket; and dance about it with gentle actions of ſalutations, and inuiting the Kinge to eate, they depart.

Seb. I ſay to night: no more.

Al. What harmony is this? my good friends, harke.

Gon. Marueilous ſweet Muſicke.

Alo. Gone vs kind keepers, heauen: what were theſe?

Seb. A liuing Drolerie: now I will beleeue
That there are Vnicornes: that in Arabia
There is one Tree, the Phœnix throne, one Phœnix
At this houre reigning there.

Ant. Ile beleeue both:
And what do'e elſe want credit, come to me
And Ile be ſworne 'tis true: Trauellers ne're did lye,
Though fooles at home condemne em.

Gon. If in Naples
I ſhould report this now, would they beleeue me?
If I ſhould ſay I ſaw ſuch Islands;
(For certes, theſe are people of the Island)
Who though they are of monſtrous ſhape, yet note
Their manners are more gentle, kinde, then of
Our humaine generation you ſhall finde
Many, nay almoſt any.

Pro. Honeſt Lord,
Thou haſt ſaid well: for ſome of you there preſent:
Are worſe then diuels.

Al. I cannot too much muſe
Such ſhapes, ſuch geſture, and ſuch ſound expreſſing
(Although they want the vſe of tongue) a kinde
Of excellent dumbe diſcourſe.

Pro. Praiſe in departing.

Fr. They vaniſh'd ſtrangely.

Seb. No matter, ſince (mocks.
They haue left their Viands behinde; for wee haue ſto-
Will pleaſe you taſte of what is here?

Al. Not I. (Boyes

Gon. Faith Sir, you needs not feare: when wee were
Who would beleeue that there were Mountayneeres,
Dew-lapt, like Bulls, whoſe throats had hanging at'em
Wallets of fleſh? or that there were ſuch men
Whoſe heads ſtood in their breſts? which now we finde
Each putter out of fiue for one, will bring vs
Good warrant of.

Al. I will ſtand to, and feede,
Although my laſt, no matter, ſince I feele
The beſt is paſt: brother: my Lord, the Duke,
Stand too, and doe as we.

Thunder and Lightning. Enter Ariell (like a Harpey) claps his wings vpon the Table, and with a quient deuice the Banquet vaniſhes.

Ar. You are three men of ſinne, whom deſtiny
That hath to inſtrument this lower world,
And what is in't: the neuer ſurfeited Sea,
Hath caus'd to belch vp you; and on this Iſland,
Where man doth not inhabit, you 'mongſt men,
Being moſt vnfit to liue: I haue made you mad;
And euen with ſuch like valour, men hang, and drowne
Their proper ſelues: you fooles, I and my fellowes
Are miniſters of Fate, the Elements
Of whom your ſwords are temper'd, may as well
Wound the loud windes, or with bemockt-at-Stabe
Kill the ſtill cloſing waters, as diminiſh
One dowle that's in my plumbe: My fellow miniſters
Are like-invulnerable: if you could hurt,
Your ſwords are now too maſſie for your ſtrengths,
And will not be vplifted: But remember
(For that's my buſineſſe to you) that you three
From Millaine did ſupplant good Proſpero,
Expos'd vnto the Sea (which hath requit it)
Him, and his innocent childe: for which foule deed,
The Powres, delaying (not forgetting) haue
Incens'd the Seas, and Shores; yea, all the Creatures
Againſt your peace: Thee of thy Sonne, Alonſo
They haue bereft; and doe pronounce by me
Lingring perdition (worſe then any death
Can be at once) ſhall ſtep, by ſtep attend
You, and your wayes, whoſe wrathe to guard you from,
Which here, in this moſt deſolate Iſle, elſe fals
Vpon your heads, is nothing but heartes-ſorrow,
And a cleere life enſuing.
He vaniſhes in Thunder: then (to ſoft Muſicke.) Enter the ſhapes againe, and dance (with mockes and mowes) and carrying out the Table.

Pro. Brauely the figure of this Harpie, haſt thou Perform'd (my Ariell) a grace it had deuouring:
Of my Inſtruction, haſt thou nothing bated
In what thou had'ſt to ſay: ſo with good life,
And obſeruation ſtrange, my meaner miniſters
Their ſeuerall kindes haue done: my high charmes work,
And theſe (mine enemies) are all knit vp
In their diſtractions: they now are in my powre;
And in theſe fits, I leaue them, while I viſit
Yoong Ferdinand (whom they ſuppoſe is drown'd)
And his, and mine lou'd darling.

Gon. I'th name of ſomething holy, Sir, why ſtand you
In this ſtrange ſtare?

Al. O, it is monſtrous: monſtrous:
Me thought the billowes ſpoke, and told me of it,
The windes did ſing it to me: and the Thunder
(That deepe and dreadfull Organ-Pipe) pronounc'd
The name of Proſper: it did beſe my Treſpaſſe, Therefore my Sonne i'th Ooze is bedded; and I'le ſeeke him deeper then ere plummet ſounded,
And with him there lye mudded. Exit.

Seb. But one feend at a time,
Ile fight their Legions ore.

Ant. Be the thy Second. Exeunt.

Gon. All three of them are desperate: their great guilt (Like poyson giuen to worke a great time after)
Now gins to bite the spirits: I doe beseech you (That are of suppler ioynts) follow them swiftly,
And hinder them from what this extasie
May now prouoke them to.

Ad. Follow, I pray you. Exeunt omnes.

Actus Quartus. Scena Prima.

Enter Prospero, Ferdinand, and Miranda.

Pro. If I haue too austerely punish'd you,
Your compensation makes amends, for I
Haue giuen you here, a third of mine owne life,
Or that for which I liue: who, once againe
I tender to thy hand: All thy vexations
Were but my trials of thy loue, and thou
Hast strangely stood the test: here, afore heauen
I ratifie this my rich guift: O Ferdinand,
Doe not smile at me, that I boast her of,
For thou shalt finde she will out-strip all praise
And make it halt, behinde her.

Fer. I doe beleeue it Against an Oracle.

Pro. Then, as my guest, and thine owne acquisition Worthily purchas'd, take my daughter: But
If thou do'st breake her Virgin-knot, before
All sanctimonious ceremonies may
With full and holy right, be minister'd,
No sweet aspersion shall the heauens let fall
To make this contract grow; but barraine hate,
Sower-ey'd disdaine, and discord shall bestrew
The vnion of your bed, with weedes so loathly
That you shall hate it both: Therefore take heede,
As Hymens Lamps shall light you.

Fer. As I hope
For quiet dayes, faire Issue, and long life,
With such loue, as 'tis now the murkiest den,
The most opportune place, the strongst suggestion,
Our worser Genius can, shall neuer melt
Mine honor into lust, to take away
The edge of that dayes celebration,
When I shall thinke, or Phœbus Steeds are founderd,
Or Night kept chain'd below.

Pro. Fairely spoke;
Sit then, and talke with her, she is thine owne;
What Ariell, my industrious seruant Ariell. Enter Ariell.

Ar. What would my potent master? here I am.

Pro. Thou, and thy meaner fellowes, your last seruice
Did worthily performe: and I must vse you
In such another tricke: goe bring the rabble
(Ore whom I giue thee powre) here, to this place:
Incite them to quicke motion, for I must Bestow vpon the eyes of this yong couple
Some vanity of mine Art: it is my promise,
And they expect it from me.

Ar. Presently?

Pro. I: with a twinckle.

Ar. Before you can say come, and goe,
And breathe twice; and cry, so, so:
Each one tripping on his Toe,
Will be here with mop, and mowe.
Doe you loue me Master? no?

Pro. Dearely, my delicate Ariell: doe not approach
Till thou do'st heare me call.

Ar. Well: I conceiue. Exit.

Pro. Looke thou be true: doe not giue dalliance
Too much the raigne: the strongest oathes, are straw
To th'fire ith' blood: be more abstemious,
Or else good night your vow.

Fer. I warrant you, Sir,
The white cold virgin Snow, vpon my heart
Abates the ardour of my Liuer.

Pro. Well.
Now come my Ariell, bring a Corolary,
Rather then want a Spirit; appear, & pertly. Soft musick.
No tongue: all eyes; be silent. Enter Iris.

Ir. Ceres, most bounteous Lady, thy rich Leas
Of Wheate, Rye, Barley, Fetches, Oates and Pease;
Thy Turphie-Mountaines, where liue nibling Sheepe,
And flat Medes thetchd with Stouer, them to keepe:
Thy bankes with pioned, and twilled brims
Which spungie April, at thy best betrims;
To make cold Nymphes chast crowmes; & thy broome-Whose shadow the dismissed Batchelor loues, (groues;
Being lasse-lorne: thy pole-clipt vineyard,
And thy Sea-marge sterrile, and rockey-hard,
Where thou thy selfe do'st ayre, the Queene o'th Skie,
Whose watry Arch, and messenger, am I.
Bids thee leaue these, & with her soueraigne grace, Iuno
Here on this grasse-plot, in this very place descends.
To come, and sport: here Peacocks fly amaine:
Approach, rich Ceres, her to entertaine. Enter Ceres.

Cer. Haile, many-coloured Messenger, that nere
Do'st disobey the wife of Iupiter:
Who, with thy saffron wings, vpon my flowres
Diffusest hony drops, refreshing showres,
And with each end of thy blew bowe do'st crowne
My boskie acres, and my vnshrubd downe,
Rich scarph to my proud earth: why hath thy Queene
Summond me hither, to this short gras'd Greene?

Ir. A contract of true Loue, to celebrate,
And some donation freely to estate
On the bles'd Louers.

Cer. Tell me heauenly Bowe,
If Venus or her Sonne, as thou do'st know,
Doe now attend the Queene? since they did plot
The meanes, that dunkie Dis, my daughter got,
Her, and her blind-Boyes scandald company,
I haue forsworne.

Ir. Of her societie
Be not afraid: I met her deitie
Cutting the clouds towards Paphos: and her Son
Done drawn with her: here thought they to haue done
Some wanton charme, vpon this Man and Maide,
Whose vowes are, that no bed-right shall be paid
Till Hymens Torch be lighted: but in vaine,
*Mars*es hot Minion is returnd againe,
Her waspish headed sonne, has broke his arrowes,
Swears he will shoote no more, but play with Sparrowes,
And be a Boy right out.

Cer. Highest Queene of State,
Great Iuno comes, I know her by her gate.

Iu. How do's my bounteous sister? goe with me
To blesse this twaine, that they may prosperous be,
And honourd in their Issue. They Sing.

Iu. Honor, riches, marriage, blessing,
Long continuance, and encreasing,
Hourely ioyes, be still vpon you,

Iuno

Iuno ſings her bleſſings on you.
Earths increaſe, foyſon plentie,
Barnes, and Garners, never empty.
Vines, with cluſtring bunches growing,
Plants, with goodly burthen bowing:
Spring come to you at the fartheſt,
In the very end of Harveſt.
Scarcity and want ſhall ſhun you,
Ceres bleſſing ſo is on you.

Fer. This is a moſt maieſticke viſion, and Harmoniously charmingly: may I be bold To thinke theſe ſpirites?

Pro. Spirites, which by mine Art I haue from their confines call'd to enact My preſent fancies.

Fer. Let me liue here euer, So rare a wondred Father, and a wife Makes this place Paradiſe.

Pro. Sweet now, ſilence: Iuno and Ceres whiſper ſeriouſly, There's ſomething elſe to doe: huſh, and be mute Or elſe our ſpell is mar'd.

Iuno and Ceres whiſper, and ſend Iris on employment.

Iris. You Nimphs cal'd Nayades of ỹ windring brooks, With your ſedg'd crowneas, and euer-harmeleſſe lookes, Leaue your criſpe channels, and on this greene-Land Anſweare your ſummons Iuno do's command. Come temperate Nimphes, and helpe to celebrate A Contract of true Loue: be not too late.

Enter Certaine Nimphes.

You Sun-burn'd Sicklemen of Auguſt weary, Come hether from the furrow, and be merry, Make holly day: your Rye-ſtraw hats put on, And theſe freſh Nimphes encounter euery one In Country footing.

Enter certaine Reapers (properly habited:) they ioyne with the Nimphes in a graceful dance, towards the end whereof, Proſpero ſtarts ſuddainly and ſpeakes, after which to a ſtrange hollow and confuſed noyſe, they heauily vaniſh.

Pro. I had forgot that foule conſpiracy Of the beaſt Caliban, and his confederates Againſt my life: the minute of their plot Is almoſt come: Well done, auoid: no more.

Fer. This is ſtrange: your fathers in ſome paſſion That workes him ſtrongly.

Mir. Neuer till this day Saw I him touch'd with anger, ſo diſtemper'd.

Pro. You doe looke (my ſon) in a mou'd ſort, As if you were diſmaid: be cheerefull Sir, Our Reuells now are ended: Theſe our actors, (As I foretold you) were all Spirits, and Are melted into Ayre, into thin Ayre, And like the baſeleſſe fabricke of this viſion The Clowd-capt Towres, the gorgeous Pallaces, The ſolemne Temples, the great Globe it ſelfe, Yea, all which it inherite, ſhall diſſolue, And like this inſubſtantiall Pageant faded Leaue not a racke behinde: we are ſuch ſtuffe As dreames are made on; and our little life Is rounded with a ſleepe: Sir, I am vext, Beare with my weake neeſſe, my old braine is troubled: Be not diſturb'd with my infirmitie, If you be pleas'd, retire into my Cell, And there repoſe, a turne or two, Ile walke To ſtill my beating minde.

Fer. Mir. We wiſh your peace. Exit.

Pro. Come with a thought; I thank thee Ariell: come.

Enter Ariell.

Ar. Thy thoughts I cleaue to, what's thy pleaſure?

Pro. Spirit: We muſt prepare to meet with Caliban.

Ar. I my Commander, when I preſented Ceres I thought to haue told thee of it, but I fear'd Leaſt I might anger thee.

Pro. Say again, where didſt thou leaue theſe varlots?

Ar. I told you Sir, they were red-hot with drinking, So full of valour, that they ſmote the ayre For breathing in their faces: beate the ground For kiſſing of their feete; yet alwaies bending Towards their proiect: then I beate my Tabor, At which like vnback't colts they pricke their eares, Aduanc'd their eye-lids, lifted vp their noſes As they ſmelt muſicke, ſo I charm'd their eares That Calfe-like, they my lowing follow'd, through Tooth'd briars, ſharpe firzes, prickling goſſe, & thorns, Which entred their fraile ſhins: at laſt I left them I'th' filthy mantled poole beyond your Cell, There dancing vp to th'chins, that the fowle Lake Ore-ſtunck their feet.

Pro. This was well done (my bird) Thy ſhape inuiſible retaine thou ſtill: The trumpery in my houſe, goe bring it hither For ſtale to catch theſe theeues. Ar. I go, I goe. Exit.

Pro. A Deuill, a borne-Deuill, on whoſe nature Nurture can neuer ſticke: on whom my paines Humanely taken, all, all loſt, quite loſt, And, as with age, his body vglier growes, So his minde cankers: I will plague them all, Euen to roaring: Come, hang on them this line.

Enter Ariell, loaden with gliſtering apparell, &c. Enter Caliban, Stephano, and Trinculo, all wet.

Cal. Pray you tread ſoftly, that the blinde Mole may not heare a foot fall: we now are neere his Cell.

St. Monſter, your Fairy, which you ſay is a harmles Fairy, Has done little better then plaid the Iacke with vs.

Trin. Monſter, I do ſmell all horſe-piſſe, at which My noſe is in great indignation.

Ste. So is mine. Do you heare Monſter: If I ſhould Take a diſpleaſure againſt you: Looke you, Trin. Thou wert but a loſt Monſter.

Cal. Good my Lord, giue me thy faiour ſtil, Be patient, for the prize Ile bring thee too Shall hudwinke this miſchance: therefore ſpeake ſoftly, All's huſht as midnight yet.

Trin. I, but to looſe our bottles in the Poole.

Ste. There is not onely diſgrace and diſhonor in. that Monſter, but an infinite loſſe.

Trin. That's more to me then my wetting: Yet this is your harmleſſe Fairy, Monſter.

Ste. I will ſtench off my bottle, Though I be o're eares for my labour.

Cal. Pre-thee (my King) be quiet. Seeſt thou heere This is the mouth o'th Cell: no noiſe, and enter: Do that good miſcheeſe, which may make this Iſland Thine owne for euer, and I thy Caliban For aye thy foot-licker.

Ste. Giue me thy hand, I do begin to haue bloody thoughts.

Trin. O King Stephano, O Peere: O worthy Stephano, Looke what a wardrobe heere is for thee.

Cal. Let it alone thou foole, it is but trafh.

Trin. Oh, ho, Monſter: wee know what belongs to a frippery, O King Stephano.

Ste. Put off that gowne (Trincolo) by this hand Ile haue that gowne.

Tri. Thy grace ſhall haue it. (meane

Cal. The dropſie drowne this foole, what doe you
To doate thus on ſuch luggage? let's alone
And doe the murther firſt: if he awake,
From toe to crowne hee'l fill our skins with pinches,
Make vs ſtrange ſtuffe.

Ste. Be you quiet (Monſter) Miſtris line, is not this my Ierkin? now is the Ierkin vnder the line: now Ierkin you are like to loſe your haire, & proue a bald Ierkin.

Trin. Doe, doe; we ſteale by lyne and leuell, and't like your grace.

Ste. I thank thee for that ieſt; here's a garment for't: Wit ſhall not goe vn-rewarded while I am King of this Country: Steale by line and leuell, is an excellent paſſe of pate: there's another garment for't.

Tri. Monſter, come put ſome Lime vpon your fingers, and away with the reſt.

Cal. I will haue none on't: we ſhall looſe our time,
And all be turn'd to Barnacles, or to Apes
With foreheads villanous low.

Ste. Monſter, lay to your fingers: helpe to beare this away, where my hogſhead of wine is, or Ile turne you out of my kingdome: goe to, carry this.

Tri. And this.

Ste. I, and this.

A noiſe of Hunters heard. Enter diuers Spirits in ſhape of Dogs and Hounds, hunting them about: Proſpero and Ariel ſetting them on.

Pro. Hey Mountaine, hey.

Ari. Siluer: there it goes, Siluer.

Pro. Fury, Fury: there Tyrant, there: harke, harke.
Goe, charge my Goblins that they grinde their ioynts
With dry Conuultions, ſhorten vp their ſinewes
With aged Cramps, & more pinch-ſpotted make them,
Then Pard, or Cat o' Mountaine.

Ari. Harke, they rore.

Pro. Let them be hunted ſoundly: At this houre
Lies at my mercy all mine enemies:
Shortly ſhall all my labours end, and thou Shalt haue the ayre at freedome: for a little Follow, and doe me ſeruice. Exeunt.

Actus quintus: Scœna Prima.

Enter Proſpero (in his Magicke robes) and Ariel.

Pro. Now do's my Proiect gather to a head:
My charmes cracke not: my Spirits obey, and Time
Goes vpright with his carriage: how's the day?

Ar. On the ſixt hower, at which time, my Lord
You ſaid our worke ſhould ceaſe.

Pro. I did ſay ſo,
When firſt I rais'd the Tempeſt: ſay my Spirit,
How fares the King, and 's followers?

Ar. Confin'd together
In the ſame faſhion, as you gaue in charge,
Juſt as you left them; all priſoners Sir
In the Lime-grone which weather-fends your Cell,
They cannot boudge till your releaſe: The King,
His Brother, and yours, abide all three diſtracted,
And the remainder mourning ouer them,
Brim full of ſorrow, and diſmay: but chiefly
Him that you term'd Sir, the good old Lord Gonzallo,
His teares runs downe his beard like winters drops
From eaues of reeds: your charm ſo ſtrongly works 'em
That if you now beheld them, your affections
Would become tender.

Pro. Doſt thou thinke ſo, Spirit?

Ar. Mine would, Sir, were I humane.

Pro. And mine ſhall.
Haſt thou (which art but aire) a touch, a feeling
Of their afflictions, and ſhall not my ſelfe,
One of their kinde, that reliſh all as ſharpely,
Paſſion as they, be kindlier mou'd then thou art?
Though with their high wrongs I am ſtrook to th' quick,
Yet, with my nobler reaſon, gainſt my furie
Doe I take part: the rarer Action is
In vertue, then in vengeance: they, being penitent,
The ſole drift of my purpoſe doth extend
Not a frowne further: Goe, releaſe them Ariell,
My Charmes Ile breake, their ſences Ile reſtore,
And they ſhall be themſelues.

Ar. Ile fetch them, Sir. Exit.

Pro. Ye Elues of hills, brooks, ſtading lakes & groues,
And ye, that on the ſands with printleſſe foote
Doe chaſe the ebbing-Neptune, and doe flie him
When he comes backe: you demy-Puppets, that
By Moone-ſhine doe the greene ſowre Ringlets make,
Whereof the Ewe not bites: and you, whoſe paſtime
Is to make midnight-Muſhrumps, that reioyce
To heare the ſolemne Curfewe, by whoſe ayde
(Weake Maſters though ye be) I haue bedymm'd
The Noone-tide Sun, call'd forth the mutenous windes,
And twixt the greene Sea, and the azur'd vault
Set roaring warre: To the dread rattling Thunder
Haue I giuen fire, and rifted Ioues ſtowt Oke
With his owne Bolt: The ſtrong baſs'd promontorie
Haue I made ſhake, and by the ſpurs pluckt vp
The Pyne, and Cedar. Graues at my command
Haue wak'd their ſleepers, op'd, and let 'em forth
By my ſo potent Art. But this rough Magicke
I heere abiure: and when I haue requir'd
Some heauenly Muſicke (which euen now I do)
To worke mine end vpon their Senſes, that
This Ayrie-charme is for, I'le breake my ſtaffe,
Bury it certaine fadomes in the earth,
And deeper then did euer Plummet ſound
Ile drowne my booke. Solemne muſicke.

Heere enters Ariel before: Then Alonſo with a frantacke geſture, attended by Gonzalo. Sebaſtian and Anthonio in like manner attended by Adrian and Franciſco: They all enter the circle which Proſpero had made, and there ſtand charm'd: which Proſpero obſeruing, ſpeakes.

A ſolemne Ayre, and the beſt comforter,
To an vnſettled fancie, Cure thy braines
(Now vſeleſſe) boile within thy ſkull: there ſtand
For you are Spell-ſtopt.
Holy Gonzallo, Honourable man,
Mine eyes ev'n ſociable to the ſhew of thine
Fall fellowly drops: The charme diſſolues apace,
And as the morning ſteales vpon the night
(Melting the darkeneſſe) ſo their riſing ſences
Begin to chace the ignorant fumes that mantle
Their cleerer reaſon. O good Gonzallo
My true preſeruer, and a loyall Sir,
To him thou follow'ſt; I will pay thy graces
Home both in word, and deede: Moſt cruelly

Didſt

…ſe, vſe me, and my daughter:
…was a further re in the Act.
…ch'd for't now Sebaſtian. Fleſh, and bloud,
…r mine, that entertaine ambition,
…eſe, and nature, whom, with Sebaſtian
…nd pinches therefore are moſt ſtrong)
…t haue kill'd your King: I do forgiue thee,
…ough thou art: Their vnderſtanding
…ll, and the approching tide
…ill the reaſonable ſhore
…ouſe, and muddy: not one of them
…es on me, or would know me: Ariell,
…Hat, and Rapier in my Cell,
…me, and my ſelfe preſent
…ſume Millaine: quickly Spirit,
…e long be ſeee.

Ariell ſings, and helps to attire him.

…e the Bee ſucky, there ſucke I,
…Cowſlips bell, I lie,
…e I couch when Owles doe cry,
…he Batt's backy I doe flie
…ſiue Summer merrily.
…rily, merrily, ſhall I liue now,
…er the bloſſome that hangs on the Bow.
…that's my dainty Ariell: I ſhall miſſe
…thee ſhall haue freedome: ſo, ſo, ſo,
…ſhip, inuiſible as thou art.
…on finde the Mariners aſleepe
…achen: the Maſter and the Boat-ſwaine
…, enforce them to this place:
…, I pre'thee.
…ke the aire before me, and returne
…alſt twice beate. Exit.
…ſtrument, trouble, wonder, and amazement
…: ſome benuenly power guide vs
…orefall Country.
…ld Sir King
…l Duke of Millaine, Proſpero:
…rence that a liuing Prince
…ake to thee, I embrace thy body,
…and my Company, I bid
…come.
…ere thou bee'ſt he or no,
…aſcend triffle to abuſe me,
…e beene) I doe know: thy Pulſe
…ſh, and blood: and ſince I ſaw thee,
…of my minde amenda, with which
…ſelfe held me: this muſt craue
…t as all) a moſt ſtrange ſtory.
…me I relligne, and doe entreat
…me my wrongs: But how ſhould Proſpero
…d be heere?
…, noble Friend,
…ere thine age, whoſe honor cannot
…or conſin'd.
…hether this be,
…e not ſweare.
…doe yet taſte
…es o'th' Iſle, that will not let you
…s certaine: Welcome, my friends all,
…erace of Lords, were I ſo minded
…plucke his Highneſſe frowne vpon you
…on Traitors: at this time
…tales.
…Diuell ſpeakes in him:

For you (moſt wicked Sir) whom to call brother
Would euen infect my mouth, I do forgiue
Thy rankeſt fault; all of them: and require
My Dukedome of thee, which, perforce I know
Thou muſt reſtore.

Alo. If thou beeſt Proſpero
Giue vs particulars of thy preſeruation,
How thou haſt met vs heere, whom three howres ſince
Were wracke vpon this ſhore? where I haue loſt (How ſharp the point of this remembrance is)
My deere ſonne Ferdinand.

Pro. I am woe for't, Sir.

Alo. Irreparable is the loſſe, and patience
Saies, it is paſt her cure.

Pro. I rather thinke
You haue not ſought her helpe, of whoſe ſoft grace
For the like loſſe, I haue her ſouereigne aid,
And reſt my ſelfe content.

Alo. You the like loſſe?

Pro As great to me, as late, and ſupportable
To make the deere loſſe, haue I meanes much weaker
Then you may call to comfort you; for I
Haue loſt my daughter.

Alo. A daughter?
Oh heauens, that they were liuing both in Naples
The King and Queene there, that they were, I wiſh
My ſelfe were mudded in that oo-zie bed
Where my ſonne lies: when did you loſe your daughter?

Pro. In this laſt Tempeſt. I perceiue theſe Lords
At this encounter doe ſo much admire,
That they deuoure their reaſon, and ſcarce thinke
Their eies doe offices of Truth: Their words
Are naturall breath: but how ſoeu'r you haue
Beene inſtiled from your ſences, know for certain
That I am Proſpero, and that very Duke
Which was thruſt forth of Millaine, who moſt ſtrangely
Vpon this ſhore (where you were wrackt) was landed
To be the Lord on't: No more yet of this,
For 'tis a Chronicle of day by day,
Not a relation for a break-faſt, nor Beſitting this firſt meeting: Welcome, Sir;
This Cell's my Court: heere haue I few attendants,
And Subiects none abroad: pray you looke in:
My Dukedome ſince you haue giuen me againe,
I will requite you with as good a thing,
At leaſt bring forth a wonder, to content ye
As much, as me my Dukedome.

Here Proſpero diſcouers Ferdinand and Miranda, playing at Cheſſe.

Mir. Sweet Lord, you play me falſe.

Fer. No my deareſt loue,
I would not for the world. (wrangle,

Mir. Yes, for a ſcore of Kingdomes, you ſhould
And I would call it faire play.

Alo. If this proue
A viſion of the Iſland, one deere Sonne
Shall I twice looſe.

Seb. A moſt high miracle.

Fer. Though the Seas threaten they are mercifull,
I haue curs'd them without cauſe.

Alo. Now all the bleſſings
Of a glad father, compaſſe thee about:
Ariſe, and ſay how thou cam'ſt heere.

Mir. O wonder!
How many goodly creatures are there heere?
How beauteous mankinde is? O braue new world

That has ſuch people in't.

Pro. 'Tis new to thee. (play?

Alo. What is this Maid, with whom thou was't at
Your eld'ſt acquaintance cannot be three houres:
Is ſhe the goddeſſe that hath ſeuer'd vs,
And brought vs thus together?

Fer. Sir, ſhe is mortall;
But by immortall prouidence, ſhe's mine;
I choſe her when I could not aske my Father
For his aduiſe: nor thought I had one: She
Is daughter to this famous Duke of Millaine,
Of whom, ſo often I haue heard renowne,
But neuer ſaw before: of whom I haue
Receiu'd a ſecond life; and ſecond Father
This Lady makes him to me.

Alo. I am hers.
But O, how odly will it ſound, that I
Muſt aske my childe forgiueneſſe?

Pro. There Sir ſtop,
Let vs not burthen our remembrances, with
A heauineſſe that's gon.

Gon. I haue inly wept,
Or ſhould haue ſpoke ere this: looke downe you gods
And on this couple drop a bleſſed crowne;
For it is you, that haue chalk'd forth the way
Which brought vs hither.

Alo. I ſay Amen, Gonzallo.

Gon. Was Millaine thruſt from Millaine, that his Iſſue
Should become Kings of Naples? O reioyce
Beyond a common ioy, and ſet it downe
With gold on laſting Pillers: In one voyage
Did Claribell her husband finde at Tunis,
And Ferdinand her brother, found a wife,
Where he himſelfe was loſt: Proſpero, his Dukedome
In a poore Iſle: and all of vs, our ſelues,
When no man was his owne.

Alo. Giue me your hands:
Let griefe and ſorrow ſtill embrace his heart,
That doth not wiſh you ioy.

Gon. Be it ſo, Amen.

Enter Ariell, with the Maſter and Boatſwaine amazedly following.

O looke Sir, looke Sir, here is more of vs:
I prophеſi'd, if a Gallowes were on Land
This fellow could not drowne: Now blaſphemy,
That ſwear'ſt Grace ore-boord, not an oath on ſhore,
Haſt thou no mouth by land?
What is the newes?

Boa. The beſt newes is, that we haue ſafely found
Our King, and company: The next: our Ship,
Which but three glaſſes ſince, we gaue out ſplit,
Is tyte, and yare, and brauely rig'd, as when
We firſt put out to Sea.

Ar. Sir, all this ſeruice
Haue I done ſince I went.

Pro. My trickſey Spirit.

Alo. Theſe are not naturall euents, they ſtrengthen
From ſtrange, to ſtranger: ſay, how came you hither?

Boa. If I did thinke, Sir, I were well awake,
I'ld ſtriue to tell you: we were dead of ſleepe,
And (how we know not) all clapt vnder hatches,
Where, but euen now, with ſtrange, and ſeuerall noyſes
Of roring, ſhreeking, howling, gingling chaines,
And mo diuerſitie of ſounds, all horrible,
We were awak'd: ſtraight way, at liberty;
Where we, in all our trim, freſhly beheld
Our royall, good, and gallant Ship: our Maſter
Capring to eye her: on a trice, ſo pleaſe you,
Euen in a dreame, were we diuided from them,
And were brought moaping hither.

Ar. Was't well done?

Pro. Bravely (my diligence) thou ſhalt be free.

Alo. This is as ſtrange a Maze, as ere men trod,
And there is in this buſineſſe, more then nature
Was euer conduct of: ſome Oracle
Muſt rectifie our knowledge.

Pro. Sir, my Leige,
Doe not infeſt your minde, with beating on
The ſtrangeneſſe of this buſineſſe, at pickt leiſure
(Which ſhall be ſhortly ſingle) I'le reſolue you,
(Which to you ſhall ſeeme probable) of euery
Theſe happend accidents: till when, be cheereſull
And thinke of each thing well: Come hither Spirit,
Set Caliban, and his companions free:
Vntye the Spell: How fares my gracious Sir?
There are yet miſſing of your Companie
Some few odde Lads, that you remember not.

Enter Ariell, driuing in Caliban, Stephano, and Trinculo in their ſtolne Apparell.

Ste. Euery man ſhift for all the reſt, and let
No man take care for himſelfe; for all is
But fortune: Coraggio Bully-Monſter Coraggio.

Tri. If theſe be true ſpies which I weare in my head, here's a goodly ſight.

Cal. O Setebos, theſe be braue Spirits indeede
How fine my Maſter is? I am afraid
He will chaſtiſe me.

Seb. Ha, ha:
What things are theſe, my Lord Anthonio?
Will money buy em?

Ant. Very like: one of them
Is a plaine Fiſh, and no doubt marketable.

Pro. Marke but the badges of theſe men, my Lords,
Then ſay if they be true: This miſhapen knaue;
His Mother was a Witch, and one ſo ſtrong
That could controle the Moone; make flowes, and ebs
And deale in her command, without her power:
Theſe three haue robd me, and this demy-diuell;
(For he's a baſtard one) had plotted with them
To take my life: two of theſe Fellowes, you Muſt know, and owne, this Thing of darkeneſſe, I Acknowledge mine.

Cal. I ſhall be pinch't to death.

Alo. Is not this Stephano, my drunken Butler?

Seb. He is drunke now;
Where had he wine?

Alo. And Trinculo is reeling ripe: where ſhould they Finde this grand Liquor that hath gilded 'em?
How cam'ſt thou in this pickle?

Tri. I haue bin in ſuch a pickle ſince I ſaw you laſt,
That I feare me will neuer out of my bones:
I ſhall not feare fly-blowing.

Seb. Who how now Stephano?

Ste. O touch me not, I am not Stephano, but a Cramp.

Pro. You'ld be King o'the Iſle, Sirha?

Ste. I ſhould haue bin a ſore one then.

Alo. This is a ſtrange thing as ere I look'd on.

Pro. He is as diſproportion'd in his Manners
As in his ſhape: Goe Sirha, to my Cell,
Take with you your Companions: as you looke
To haue my pardon, trim it handſomely.

Cal. I that I will: and Ile be wiſe hereafter,

And

ſor grace: what a thrice double Aſſe ake this drunkard ſee a god?
hip this dull foole?
ione to, away. (found it ence, and beſtow your luggage where you ſoole it rather.
, I inuite your Highneſſe, and your traine ore Cell: where you ſhall take your reſt ernighe, which part of it, Ile waſte diſcourſe, as I not doubt, ſhall make it
e away: The ſtory of my life, rticular accidents, gon by ne to this Iſle: And in the morne
you to your ſhip, and ſo to Naples,

Where I haue hope to ſee the nuptiall
Of theſe our deere-belou'd, ſolemnized,
And thence retire me to my Millaine, where Euery third thought ſhall be my graue.
Ale. I long
To heare the ſtory of your life; which muſt
Take the eare ſtrangely.
Pro. I'le deliuer all,
And promiſe you calme Seas, auſpicious gales,
And ſaile, ſo expeditious, that ſhall catch
Your Royall fleete farre off: My Ariel; chicke
That is thy charge: Then to the Elements
Be free, and fare thou well: pleaſe you draw neere.
Exeunt omnes.

PILOGVE,
ſpoken by Proſpero.

y Charmes are all o're-throwne,
lone ſtrength I haue's mine owne.
oſt faint: now 'tis true
were cooſinde by you,
Naples, Let me not
ue my Dukedome got,
m'd the deceiuer, dwell
r Iſland, by your Spell, me from my bands
lpe of your good hands:
ath of yours, my Saile
r elſe my project failes, to pleaſe: Now I want enfeeble: Art to inchant,
ding to diſpaire,
t releaſ'd by prayer
ces ſo, that it aſſaults
rſie, and frees all faults.
from crimes would pardon'd be,
r Indulgence ſet me free. Exit.

The Scene, an vn-inhabited Iſland

Names of the Actors.

Alonſo, K. of Naples:
Sebaſtian his Brother.
Proſpero, the right Duke of Millaine.
Anthonio his brother the vſurping Duke of Millaine
Ferdinand, Son to the King of Naples.
Gonzalo, an honeſt old Councellor.
Adrian, & Franciſco, Lords.
Caliban, a ſaluage and deformed ſlaue.
Trinculo, a Ieſter.
Stephano, a drunken Butler.
Maſter of a Ship.
Boate-Swaine
Marriners.
Miranda, daughter to Proſpero.
Ariell, an ayrie ſpirit.
Iris
Ceres
Iuno
Nymphes
Reapers } Spirits.

FINIS.

THE

THE Two Gentlemen of Verona.

Actus primus, Scena prima.

Valentine: Protheus, and Speed.

Valentine.

Cease to perswade, my loving Protheus;
Home-keeping-youth, haue euer homely wits.
Wer't not affection chaines thy tender dayes
To the sweet glances of thy honour'd Loue,
I rather would entreat thy company,
To see the wonders of the world abroad,
Then (liuing dully sluggardiz'd at home)
Weare out thy youth with shapelesse idlenesse.
But since thou lou'st; loue still, and thriue therein,
Euen as I would, when I to loue begin.

Pro. Wilt thou be gone? Sweet Valentine adew,
Thinke on thy Protheus, when thou (hap'ly) seest
Some rare note-worthy obiect in thy trauaile.
Wish me partaker in thy happinesse,
When thou do'st meet good hap; and in thy danger,
(If euer danger doe environ thee)
Commend thy grieuance to my holy prayers,
For I will be thy beadsman, Valentine.

Val. And on a loue-booke pray for my successe?

Pro. Vpon some booke I loue, I'le pray for thee.

Val. That's on some shallow Storie of deepe loue,
How yong Leander crost the Hellespont.

Pro That's a deepe Storie, of a deeper loue.
For he was more then ouer-shooes in loue.

Val. 'Tis true; for you are ouer-bootes in loue,
And yet you neuer swom the Hellespont.

Pro. Ouer the Bootes? nay giue me not the Boots.

Val. No, I will not; for it boots thee not.

Pro What? (groues:

Val. To be in loue; where scorne is bought with Coy looks, with hart-sore sighes: one fading moments
With twenty watchfull, weary, tedious nights; (mirth,
If hap'ly won, perhaps a hapleſſe gaine,
If lost, why then a grieuous labour won,
How euer but a folly bought with wit,
Or else a wit, by folly vanquished.

Pro So, by your circumstance, you call me foole

Val. So, by your circumstance, I feare you'll proue

Pro. 'Tis Loue you cauill at, I am not Loue

Val. Loue is your master, for he masters you;
And he that is so yoked by a foole,
Me thinkes should not be chronicled for wise.

Pro Yet Writers say; as in the sweetest Bud,
The eating Canker dwels; so eating Loue
Inhabits in the finest wits of all.

Val. And Writers say; as the most forward Bud
Is eaten by the Canker ere it blow,
Euen so by Loue, the yong, and tender wit
Is turn'd to folly, blasting in the Bud,
Loosing his verdure, euen in the prime,
And all the faire effects of future hopes.
But wherefore waste I time to counsaile thee
That art a votary to fond desire?
Once more adieu: my Father at the Road
Expects my comming, there to see me ship'd.

Pro And thither will I bring thee Valentine.

Val. Sweet Protheus, no: Now let vs take our leaue:
To Millaine let me heare from thee by Letters
Of thy successe in loue; and what newes else
Betideth here in absence of thy Friend:
And I likewise will visite thee with mine.

Pro. All happinesse bechance to thee in Millaine.

Val. As much to you at home: and so farewell. Exit

Pro. He after Honour hunts, I after Loue;
He leaues his friends, to dignifie them more;
I loue my selfe, my friends, and all for loue?
Thou Iulia thou hast metamorphis'd me.
Made me neglect my Studies, loose my time;
Warre with good counsaile, set the world at nought;
Made Wit with musing, weake; hart sick with thought.

Sp. Sir Protheus: 'saue you: saw you my Master?

Pro. But now he parted hence to embarque for Millaine.

Sp. Twenty to one then, he is ship'd already,
And I haue plaid the Sheepe in loosing him.

Pro. Indeede a Sheepe doth very often stray,
And if the Shepheard be awhile away.

Sp. You conclude that my Master is a Shepheard then, and I Sheepe?

Pro. I doe.

Sp. Why then my hornes are his hornes, whether I wake or sleepe.

Pro. A silly answere, and fitting well a Sheepe.

Sp. This proues me still a Sheepe.

Pro. True: and thy Master a Shepheard.

Sp. Nay, that I can deny by a circumstance.

Pro. It shall goe hard but ile proue it by another.

Sp The Shepheard seekes the Sheepe, and not the Sheepe the Shepheard; but I seeke my Master, and my Master seekes not me: therefore I am no Sheepe

Pro. The Sheepe for fodder follow the Shepheard, the Shepheard for foode followes not the Sheepe: thou for wages followest thy Master, thy Master for wages
followes not thee: therefore thou art a Sheepe

Sp. Such another proofe will make me cry baa.

Pro. But do'st thou heare: gau'st thou my Letter to Iulia?

Sp. I

Sir: I (a lost-Mutton) gaue your Letter to her Mutton) and she (a lac'd-Mutton) gaue mee (a ton) nothing for my labour.
Here's too small a Pasture for such store of
.
the ground be ouer-charg'd, you were best day, in that you are astray: 'twere best pound

y Sir, lesse then a pound shall serue me for carr Letter.
ou mistake; I meane the pound, a Pinfold.
rom a pound to a pin? fold it ouer and ouer, fold too little for carrying a letter to your louer ot what said she?

God-I, why that's noddy.
ou mistooke Sir: I say she did nod;
take me if she did nod, and I say I.
and that set together is noddy.
w you haue taken the paines to set it toge-
r for your paines.
No, no, you shall haue it for bearing the letter.
ll, I perceiue I must be faine to beare with you.
y Sir, how doe you beare with me?
rry Sir, the letter very orderly,
thing but the word noddy for my paines.
ieshrew me, but you haue a quicke wit.
nd yet it cannot ouer-take your slow purse.
Come, come, open the matter in briefe; what yen your purse, that the money, and the matter ath at once deliuered.

Well Sir: here is for your paines: what said she?
nely Sir, I thinke you'll hardly win her.
Why? could'st thou perceiue so much from her?
, I could perceiue nothing at all from her;
much as a ducket for deliuering your letter:
so hard to me, that brought your minde;
'll proue as hard to you in telling your minde.
ue told me but stones, for she's as hard as steele.
What said she, nothing?
, not so much as take this for thy paines: (me;
e your bounty, I thank you, you haue cestern'd al whereof, henceforth, carry your letters your d so Sir, I'le commend you to my Master.
Go, go, be gone, to saue your Ship from wrack,
annot perish hauing thee aboarde,
ster'd to a drier death on shore?
e send some better Messenger,
Iulia would not daigne my lines,
g them from such a worthlesse post.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Iulia and Lucetta.

But say Lucetta (now we are alone)
'l thou then counsaile me to fall in loue?
I Madam, so you stumble not vnheedfully.
Mall the faire resort of Gentlemen,
ry day with par'le encounter me,
In thy opinion which is worthiest loue?
Lu. Please you repeat their names, ile shew my minde,
According to my shallow simple skill.
Iu. What think'st thou of the faire sir Eglamoure?
Lu. As of a Knight, well-spoken, neat, and fine;
But were I you he neuer should be mine.
Iu. What think'st thou of the rich Mercatio?
Lu. Well of his wealth; but of himselfe, so, so.
Iu. What think'st thou of the gentle Protheus?
Lu. Lord, Lord: to see what folly raignes in vs.
Iu. How now? what meanes this passion at his name?
Lu. Pardon deare Madam, 'tis a passing shame,
That I (vnworthy body as I am)
Should censure thus on louely Gentlemen
Iu. Why not on Protheus, as of all the rest?
Lu. Then thus: of many good, I thinke him best.
Iul. Your reason?
Lu. I haue no other but a womans reason:
I thinke him so, because I thinke him so.
Iul. And would'st thou haue me cast my loue on him?
Lu. I: if you thought your loue not cast away.
Iul. Why he, of all the rest, hath neuer mou'd me.
Lu. Yet he, of all the rest, I thinke best loues ye.
Iul. His little speaking, shewes his loue but small.
Lu. Fire that's closest kept, burnes most of all.
Iul. They doe not loue, that doe not shew their loue.
Lu. Oh, they loue least, that let men know their loue.
Iul. I would I knew his minde.
Lu. Peruse this paper Madam.
Iul. To Iulia: say, from whom?
Lu. That the Contents will shew.
Iul. Say, say: who gaue it thee?
Lu. Sir Valentines page: & sent I think from Protheus;
He would haue giuen it you, but I being in the way,
Did in your name receiue it: pardon the fault I pray.
Iul. Now (by my modesty) a goodly Broker:
Dare you presume to harbour wanton lines?
To whisper, and conspire against my youth?
Now trust me, 'tis an office of great worth,
And you an officer fit for the place:
There: take the paper: see it be return'd,
Or else returne no more into my sight.
Lu. To plead for loue, deserues more fee, then hate.
Iul. Will ye be gon?
Lu. That you may ruminate. Exit.
Iul. And yet I would I had o're-look'd the Letter;
It were a shame to call her backe againe,
And pray her to a fault, for which I chid her.
What foole is she, that knowes I am a Maid,
And would not force the letter to my view?
Since Maides, in modesty, say no, to that,
Which they would haue the profferer construe, I.
Fie, fie: how way-ward is this foolish loue;
That (like a testie Babe) will scratch the Nurse,
And presently, all humbled kisse the Rod?
How churlishly, I chid Lucetta hence,
When willingly, I would haue had her here?
How angerly I taught my brow to frowne,
When inward ioy enforc'd my heart to smile?
My pennance is, to call Lucetta backe
And aske remission, for my folly past.
What hoe: Lucetta.
Lu. What would your Ladiship
Iul. Is't neere dinner time?
Lu. I would it were,
That you might kill your stomacke on your meat,

And not vpon your Maid.
Iu. What is't that you
Tooke vp so gingerly?
Lu. Nothing.
Iu. Why did'st thou stoope then?
Lu. To take a paper vp, that I let fall.
Iul. And is that paper nothing?
Lu. Nothing concerning me.
Iul. Then let it lye, for those that it concernes.
Lu. Madam, it will not lye where it concernes,
Vnlesse it haue a false Interpreter.
Iul. Some loue of yours, hath writ to you in Rime.
Lu. That I might sing it (Madam) to a tune:
Giue me a Note, your Ladiship can set.
Iul. As little by such toyes, as may be possible:
Best sing it to the tune of Light o, Loue.
Lu. It is too heauy for so light a tune.
Iu. Heauy? belike it hath some burden then?
Lu. I: and melodious were it, would you sing it.
Iu. And why not you?
Lu. I cannot reach so high.
Iu. Let's see your Song
How now Minion?
Lu. Keepe tune there still; so you will sing it out:
And yet me thinkes I do not like this tune.
Iu You doe not?
Lu. No (Madam) tis too sharpe.
Iu. You (Minion) are too saucie.
Lu. Nay, now you are too flat;
And marre the concord, with too harsh a descant:
There wanteth but a Meane to fill your Song.
Iu. The meane is drowned with you vnruly base.
Lu. Indeede I bid the base for Protheus.
Iu. This babble shall not henceforth trouble me;
Here is a coile with protestation.
Goe, get you gone: and let the papers lye:
You would be fingring them, to anger me.
Lu. She makes it strange, but she would be best pleas'd
To be so angred with another Letter.
Iu. Nay, would I were so angred with the same:
Oh hatefull hands, to teare such louing words;
Iniurious Waspes, to feede on such sweet hony,
And kill the Bees that yeelde it, with your stings;
Ile kisse each seuerall paper, for amends:
Looke, here is writ, kinde Iulia: vnkinde Iulia,
As in reuenge of thy ingratitude,
I throw thy name against the bruzing-stones,
Trampling contemptuously on thy disdaine.
And here is writ, Loue wounded Protheus.
Poore wounded name: my bosome, as a bed,
Shall lodge thee till thy wound be throughly heal'd;
And thus I search it with a soueraigne kisse
But twice, or thrice, was Protheus written downe:
Be calme (good winde) blow not a word away,
Till I haue found each letter, in the Letter,
Except mine own name: That, some whirle-winde beare
Vnto a ragged, fearefull, hanging Rocke,
And throw it thence into the raging Sea.
Loe, here in one line is his name twice writ:
Poore forlorne Protheus, passionate Protheus:
To the sweet Iulia: that ile teare away:
And yet I will not, sith so prettily
He couples it, to his complaining Names;
Thus will I fold them, one vpon another;
Now kisse, embrace, contend, doe what you will.
Lu. Madam: dinner is ready, and your father stayes.
Iu. Well, let vs goe.
Lu. What, shall these papers lye, like Tel-tales here?
Iu. If you respect them; best to take them vp.
Lu. Nay, I was taken vp, for laying them downe.
Yet here they shall not lye, for catching cold.
Iu. I see you haue a months minde to them.
Lu. I (Madam) you may say what sights you see;
I see things too, although you iudge I winke.
Iu. Come, come, will please you goe. Exeunt.

Scœna Tertia.

Enter Antonio and Panthino. Protheus.

Ant. Tell me Panthino, what sad talke was that,
Wherewith my brother held you in the Cloyster?
Pan. 'Twas of his Nephew Protheus, your Sonne.
Ant. Why? what of him?
Pan. He wondred that your Lordship
Would suffer him, to spend his youth at home,
While other men, of slender reputation
Put forth their Sonnes, to seeke preferment out.
Some to the warres, to try their fortune there;
Some, to discouer Islands farre away:
Some, to the studious Vniuersities;
For any, or for all these exercises,
He said, that Protheus your sonne, was meet;
And did request me, to importune you
To let him spend his time no more at home;
Which would be great impeachment to his age,
In hauing knowne no trauaile in his youth.
Ant. Nor need'st thou much importune me to that Whereon, this month I haue bin hammering.
I haue consider'd well, his losse of time,
And how he cannot be a perfect man,
Not being tryed, and tutord in the world:
Experience is by industry atchieu'd,
And perfected by the swift course of time.
Then tell me, whether were I best to send him?
Pan. I thinke your Lordship is not ignorant
How his companion, youthfull Valentine,
Attends the Emperour in his royall Court.
Ant. I know it well. (thither.
Pan. 'Twere good, I thinke, your Lordship sent him
There shall he practise Tilts, and Turnaments;
Heare sweet discourse, conuerse with Noble-men,
And be in eye of euery Exercise
Worthy his youth, and nobleness of birth.
Ant. I like thy counsaile: well hast thou aduis'd:
And that thou maist perceiue how well I like it,
The execution of it shall make knowne;
Euen with the speediest expedition,
I will dispatch him to the Emperors Court.
Pan. To morrow, may it please you, Don Alphonso,
With other Gentlemen of good esteeme
Are iourneying, to salute the Emperor,
And to commend their seruice to his will.
Ant. Good company: with them shall Protheus go:
And in good time: now will we breake with him.
Pro. Sweet Loue, sweet lines, sweet life,
Here is her hand, the agent of her heart;
Here is her oath for loue, her honors paune;

r Fathers would applaud our loues
our happineſſe with their conſents.
Oh heauenly Iulia.
How now? What Letter are you reading there?
May't pleaſe your Lordſhip, 'tis a word or two ndations ſent from Valentine;
by a friend, that came from him.
Lend me the Letter: Let me ſee what newes.
There is no newes (my Lord) but that he writes
ouly he liues, how well-belou'd, graced by the Emperor;
me with him, partner of his fortune.
And how ſtand you affected to his wiſh?
as one relying on your Lordſhips will,
depending on his friendly wiſh.
My will is ſomething ſorted with his wiſh:
that I thus ſodainly proceed;
I will, I will, and there an end:
u'd, that thou ſhalt ſpend ſome time
Valentine, in the Emperors Court:
ntenance he from his friends receiues,
bition thou ſhalt haue from me,
w be in readineſſe, to goe,
not: for I am peremptory.
My Lord I cannot be ſo ſoone prouided, deliberate a day or two.
Look what thou want'ſt ſhalbe ſent after thee:
of May: to morrow thou muſt goe;
Panthion; you ſhall be imployd,
on his Expedition.
hus haue I ſhund the fire, for feare of burning ch'd one in the ſea, where I am drown'd.
ſhew my Father Iulias Letter,
hould take exceptions to my loue,
the vantage of mine owne excuſe
xcepted moſt againſt my loue.
this ſpring of loue reſembleth
reſine glory of an Aprill day,
ow ſhewes all the beauty of the Sun,
nd by a clowd takes all away.
Sir Protheus, your Fathers call's for you,
aſt, therefore I pray you go.
May this it is: my heart accords thereto,
thouſand times it anſwer's no.

Exeunt. Finis.

Actus ſecundus: Scœna Prima.

Enter Valentine, Speed, Siluia.

Sir, your Gloue.
Not mine: my Gloues are on.
Why then this may be yours: for this is but one Ha? Let me ſee: I, giue it me, it's mine:
rnament, that deckes a thing diuine,
e, Siluia.
Madam Siluia: Madam Siluia.
How now Sirha?
Shee is not within hearing Sir.
Why ſir, who bad you call her?
Your worſhip ſir, or elſe I miſtooke.
Well: you'l ſtill be too forward.
And yet I was laſt chidden for being too ſlow.

Val. Goe to ſir, tell me: do you know Madam Siluia?
Speed. Shee that your worſhip loues?
Val. Why, how know you that I am in loue?
Speed. Marry by theſe ſpeciall markes: firſt, you haue learn'd (like Sir Protheus) to wreath your Armes like a Male-content: to reliſh a Loue-ſong, like a Robin-red-breaſt: to walke alone like one that had the peſtilence: to ſigh, like a Schoole-boy that had loſt his A. B. C. to weep like a yong wench that had buried her Grandam: to faſt, like one that takes diet: to watch, like one that feares robbing: to ſpeake puling, like a beggar at Hallow-Maſſe: You were wont, when you laughed, to crow like a cocke; when you walk'd, to walke like one of the Lions: when you faſted, it was preſently after dinner: when you look'd ſadly, it was for want of money: And now you are Metamorphus'd with a Miſtris, that when I looke on you, I can hardly thinke you my Maſter.
Val. Are all theſe things perceiu'd in me?
Speed. They are all perceiu'd without ye.
Val. Without me? they cannot.
Speed. Without you? Nay, that's certaine: for without you were ſo ſimple, none elſe would: but you are ſo without theſe follies, that theſe follies are within you, and ſhine through you like the water in an Vrinall: that not an eye that ſees you, but is a Phyſician to comment on your Malady.
Val. But tell me: do'ſt thou know my Lady Siluia?
Speed. Shee that you gaze on ſo, as ſhe ſits at ſupper?
Val. Haſt thou obſeru'd that? euen ſhe I meane.
Speed. Why ſir, I know her not.
Val. Do'ſt thou know her by my gazing on her, and yet know'ſt her not?
Speed. Is ſhe not hard-fauour'd, ſir?
Val. Not ſo faire (boy) as well fauour'd.
Speed. Sir, I know that well enough.
Val. What doſt thou know?
Speed. That ſhee is not ſo faire, as (of you) well-fauour'd.
Val. I meane that her beauty is exquiſite,
But her fauour infinite.
Speed. That's becauſe the one is painted, and the other out of all count.
Val. How painted? and how out of count?
Speed. Marry ſir, ſo painted to make her faire, that no man counts of her beauty.
Val. How eſteem'ſt thou me? I account of her beauty.
Speed. You neuer ſaw her ſince ſhe was deform'd.
Val. How long hath ſhe beene deform'd?
Speed. Euer ſince you lou'd her.
Val. I haue lou'd her euer ſince I ſaw her,
And ſtill I ſee her beautifull.
Speed. If you loue her, you cannot ſee her.
Val. Why?
Speed. Becauſe Loue is blinde: O that you had mine eyes, or your owne eyes had the lights they were wont to haue, when you chidde at Sir Protheus, for going vngarter'd.
Val. What ſhould I ſee then?
Speed. Your owne preſent folly, and her paſſing deformitie: for hee beeing in loue, could not ſee to garter his hoſe; and you, beeing in loue, cannot ſee to put on your hoſe. (ning
Val. Belike (boy) then you are in loue, for laſt morYou could not ſee to wipe my ſhoes.
Speed. True ſir: I was in loue with my bed, I thanke you, you ſwing'd me for my loue, which makes mee the bolder bolder to chide you, for yours

Val In conclusion, I ſtand affected to her.

Speed. I would you were ſet, ſo your affection would ceaſe.

Val. Laſt night ſhe enioyn'd me,
To write ſome lines to one ſhe loues.

Speed. And haue you?

Val. I haue.

Speed. Are they not lamely writt?

Val. No (Boy) but as well as I can do them
Peace, here ſhe comes.

Speed. Oh excellent motion; oh exceeding Puppet:
Now will he interpret to her.

Val. Madam & Miſtres, a thouſand good-morrows.

Speed. Oh, 'giue ye-good-ev'n: here's a million of manners

Sil. Sir Valentine, and ſeruant, to you two thouſand

Speed. He ſhould giue her intereſt: & ſhe giues it him.

Val. As you inioynd me; I haue writ your Letter
Vnto the ſecret, nameles friend of yours:
Which I was much vnwilling to proceed in,
But for my duty to your Ladiſhip. (done.

Sil. I thanke you (gentle Seruant) 'tis very Clerkly.

Val. Now truſt me (Madam) it came hardly-off:
For being ignorant to whom it goes,
I writ at randome, very doubtfully.

Sil. Perchance you think too much of ſo much pains?

Val. No (Madam) ſo it ſteed you, I will write (Pleaſe you command) a thouſand times as much:
And yet ——

Sil. A pretty period: well: I gheſſe the ſequell;
And yet I will not name it: and yet I care not.
And yet, take this againe: and yet I thanke you:
Meaning henceforth to trouble you no more.

Speed. And yet you will; and yet, another yet,

Val. What meanes your Ladiſhip?
Doe you not like it?

Sil. Yes, yes: the lines are very quaintly writ,
But (ſince vnwillingly) take them againe.
Nay, take them.

Val. Madam, they are for you.

Sil. I, I: you writ them Sir, at my requeſt,
But I will none of them: they are for you:
I would haue had them writ more mouingly:

Val. Pleaſe you, Ile write your Ladiſhip another.

Sil. And when it's writ: for my ſake read it ouer.
And if it pleaſe you, ſo: if not: why ſo:

Val. If it pleaſe me, (Madam?) what then?

Sil. Why if it pleaſe you, take it for your labour;
And ſo good-morrow Seruant. Exit. Sil.

Speed. Oh Ieſt vnſeene: inſcrutible: inuiſible,
As a noſe on a mans face, or a Weathercocke on a ſteeple
My Maſter ſues to her: and ſhe hath taught her Suitor,
He being her Pupill, to become her Tutor.
Oh excellent deuiſe, was there euer heard a better?
That my maſter being ſcribe,
To himſelfe ſhould write the Letter?

Val. How now Sir?
What are you reaſoning with your ſelfe?

Speed. Nay: I was riming: 'tis you y haue the reaſon.

Val. To doe what?

Speed. To be a Spokeſman from Madam Siluia.

Val. To whom?

Speed. To your ſelfe: why, ſhe woes you by a figure.

Val. What figure?

Speed. By a Letter, I ſhould ſay

Val. Why ſhe hath not writ to me?

Speed. What need ſhe,
When ſhee hath made you write to your ſelfe?
Why, doe you not perceiue the ieſt?

Val. No, beleeue me.

Speed. No beleeuing you indeed ſir;
But did you perceiue her earneſt?

Val. She gaue me none, except an angry word.

Speed. Why ſhe hath giuen you a Letter.

Val. That's the Letter I writ to her friend.

Speed. And y letter hath ſhe deliuer'd, & there an end.

Val. I would it were no worſe.

Speed. Ile warrant you, 'tis as well:
For often haue you writ to her: and ſhe in modeſty,
Or elſe for want of idle time, could not againe reply,
Or feating els ſome meſſeger, y might her mind diſcouer
Her ſelf hath taught her Loue himſelf, to write vnto her
All this I ſpeak in print, for in print I found it. (louer.
Why muſe you ſir, 'tis dinner time.

Val. I haue dyn'd

Speed. I, but hearken ſir: though the Cameleon Loue can feed on the ayre, I am one that am nouriſh'd by my victuals: and would fame haue meate: oh bee not like your Miſtreſſe, be moued, be moued. Exeunt.

Scæna ſecunda.

Enter Protheus, Iulia, Panthion.

Pro. Haue patience, gentle Iulia:

Iul. I muſt where is no remedy.

Pro. When poſſibly I can, I will returne.

Iul. If you turne not: you will return the ſooner:
Keepe this remembrance for thy Iulia's ſake.

Pro. Why then wee'll make exchange;
Here, take you this.

Iul. And ſeale the bargaine with a holy kiſſe.

Pro. Here is my hand, for my true conſtancie:
And when that howre ore-ſlips me in the day,
Wherein I ſigh not (Iulia) for thy ſake,
The next enſuing howre, ſome foule miſchance
Torment me for my Loues forgetfulneſſe:
My father ſtaies my comming: anſwere not:
The tide is now; nay, not thy tide of teares,
That tide will ſtay me longer then I ſhould,
Iulia, farewell: what, gon without a word?
I, ſo true loue ſhould doe: it cannot ſpeake,
For truth hath better deeds, then words to grace it.

Panth. Sir Protheus: you are ſtaid for.

Pro. Goe: I come, I come
Alas, this parting ſtrikes poore Louers dumbe.
Exeunt.

Scæna Tertia.

Enter Launce, Panthion.

Launce. Nay, 'twill bee this howre ere I haue done weeping: all the kinde of the Launces, haue this very fault: I haue receiu'd my proportion, like the prodigious ſonne,

d am going with Sir Protheus to the Imperialls
I thinke Crab my dog, be the ſowreſt natured ue liues : My Mother weeping : my Father
: my Siſter crying : our Maid howling : our inging her hands, and all our houſe in a great e, yet did not this cruell-hearted Curre ſhedde
: he is a ſtone, a very pibble ſtone, and has no
y in him then a dogge : a Iew would haue wept eene our parting : why my Grandam hauing looke you, wept her ſelfe blinde at my parting:
hew you the manner of it. This ſhooe is my fao, this left ſhooe is my father; no, no, this left my mother : nay, that cannot bee ſo neyther:
ſo, it is ſo : it hath the worſer ſole: this ſhooe hole in it, is my mother : and this my father:
ce on't, there tis : Now ſir, this ſtaffe is my ſi-r, looke you, ſhe is as white as a lilly, and as wand : this hat is Nan our maid : I am the no, the dogge is himſelfe, and I am the dogge:
gge is me, and I am my ſelfe : I: ſo, ſo : now my Father ; Father, your bleſſing : now
o the ſhooe ſpeake a word for weeping :
ld I kiſſe my Father ; well, hee weepes on :
ne I to my Mother : Oh that ſhe could ſpeake
e a would-woman : well, I kiſſe her : why
; heere's my mothers breath vp and downe :
ne I to my ſiſter ; marke the moane ſhe makes :
dogge all this while ſheds not a teare : nor word : but ſee how I lay the duſt with my Launce, away, away : a Boord : thy Maſter is d : thou art to poſt after with oares ; what's the why weep'ſt thou man ? away aſſe, you l looſe

if you tarry any longer.
It is no matter if the tide were loſt, for it is the Tide, that euer any man tide.
What's the vnkindeſt tide?
Why, he that's tide here, Crab my dog.
Tut, man : I meane thou'lt looſe the flood, and the flood, looſe thy voyage, and in looſing thy looſe thy Maſter, and in looſing thy Maſter, ruice, and in looſing thy ſeruice : —— why
ſtop my mouth?
For feare thou ſhouldſt looſe thy tongue.
Where ſhould I looſe my tongue?
In thy Tale.
In thy Taile.
Looſe the Tide, and the voyage, and the Maſter, and the Seruice, and the tide: why man, if the Riuer were dry, I am able to fill it with my teares : if the winde were downe, I could driue the boate with my ſighes.
Come : come away man, I was ſent to call
Sir : call me what thou dar'ſt.
Wilt thou goe?
Well, I will goe.

Exeunt.

Scena Quarta.

Valentine, Siluia, Thurio, Speed, Duke, Protheus.
ſeruant.
Miſtris.

Spee. Maſter, Sir Thurio frownes on you.
Val. I Boy, it's for loue.
Spee. Not of you.
Val. Of my Miſtreſſe then.
Spee. 'Twere good you knockt him.
Sil. Seruant, you are ſad.
Val. Indeed, Madam, I ſeeme ſo.
Thu. Seeme you that you are not?
Val. Hap'ly I doe.
Thu. So doe Counterfeyts.
Val. So doe you.
Thu. What ſeeme I that I am not?
Val. Wiſe.
Thu. What inſtance of the contrary?
Val. Your folly.
Thu. And how quoſt you my folly?
Val. I quoat it in your Ierkin.
Thu. My Ierkin is a doublet.
Val. Well then, Ile double your folly.
Thu. How?
Sil. What, angry, Sir Thurio, do you change colour?
Val. Giue him leaue, Madam, he is a kind of Camelion.
Thu. That hath more minde to feed on your blood, then liue in your ayre.
Val. You haue ſaid Sir.
Thu. I Sir, and done too for this time.
Val. I know it wel ſir, you alwaies end ere you begin.
Sil. A fine volly of words, gentlemē, & quickly ſhot off
Val. 'Tis indeed, Madam, we thank the giuer.
Sil. Who is that Seruant?
Val. Your ſelfe (ſweet Lady) for you gaue the fire,
Sir Thurio borrows his wit from your Ladiſhips looker,
And ſpends what he borrowes kindly in your company.
Thu. Sir, if you ſpend word for word with me, I ſhall make your wit bankrupt. (words,
Val. I know it well ſir : you haue an Exchequer of
And I thinke, no other treaſure to giue your followers:
For it appeares by their bare Liueries
That they liue by your bare words.
Sil. No more, gentlemen, no more:
Here comes my father.
Duk. Now, daughter Siluia, you are hard beſet.
Sir Valentine, your father is in good health,
What ſay you to a Letter from your friends
Of much good newes?
Val. My Lord, I will be thankfull,
To any happy meſſenger from thence.
Duk. Know ye Don Antonio, your Countriman?
Val. I, my good Lord, I know the Gentleman
To be of worth, and worthy eſtimation,
And not without deſert ſo well reputed.
Duk. Hath he not a Sonne?
Val. I, my good Lord, a Son, that well deſerues
The honor, and regard of ſuch a father.
Duk. You know him well?
Val. I knew him as my ſelfe : for from our Infancie
We haue conuerſt, and ſpent our howres together,
And though my ſelfe haue beene an idle Trewant,
Omitting the ſweet benefit of time
To cloath mine age with Angel-like perfection:
Yet hath Sir Protheus (for that's his name)
Made vſe, and fair aduantage of his daies:
His yeares but yong, but his experience old.
His head vn-mellowed, but his Iudgement ripe
And in a word (for far behinde his worth Comes all the praiſes that I now beſtow.)

He is compleat in feature, and in minde,
With all good grace, to grace a Gentleman.
Duke. Beſhrew me ſir, but if he make this good
He is as worthy for an Empreſſe loue,
As meet to be an Emperors Counceller:
Well, Sir: this Gentleman is come to me
With Commendation from great Potentates,
And heere he meanes to ſpend his time a while,
I thinke 'tis no vn-welcome newes to you.
Val. Should I haue wiſh'd a thing, it had beene he.
Duke. Welcome him then according to his worth:
Siluia, I ſpeake to you, and you Sir Thurio,
For Valentine, I need not cite him to it,
I will ſend him hither to you preſently.
Val. This is the Gentleman I told your Ladiſhip
Had come along with me, but that his Miſtreſſe
Did hold his eyes, lockt in her Chriſtall lookes.
Sil. Be-like that now ſhe hath enfranchis'd them
Vpon ſome other pawne for fealty.
Val. Nay ſure, I thinke ſhe holds them priſoners ſtil.
Sil. Nay then he ſhould be blind, and being blind
How could he ſee his way to ſeeke out you?
Val. Why Lady, Loue hath twenty paire of eyes.
Thur. They ſay that Loue hath not an eye at all.
Val. To ſee ſuch Louers, Thurio, as your ſelfe,
Vpon a homely obiect, Loue can winke.
Sil. Haue done, haue done: here comes ỹ gentleman.
Val. Welcome, deer Protheus: Miſtris, I beſeech you
Confirme his welcome, with ſome ſpeciall fauor.
Sil. His worth is warrant for his welcome hether,
If this be he you oft haue wiſh'd to heare from.
Val. Miſtris, it is: ſweet Lady, entertaine him
To be my fellow-ſeruant to your Ladiſhip.
Sil. Too low a Miſtres for ſo high a ſeruant.
Pro. Not ſo, ſweet Lady, but too meane a ſeruant
To haue a looke of ſuch a worthy a Miſtreſſe.
Val. Leaue off diſcourſe of diſabilitie:
Sweet Lady, entertaine him for your Seruant.
Pro. My dutie will I boaſt of, nothing elſe.
Sil. And dutie neuer yet did want his meed.
Seruant, you are welcome to a worthleſſe Miſtreſſe.
Pro. Ile die on him that ſaies ſo but your ſelfe.
Sil. That you are welcome?
Pro. That you are worthleſſe. (you.
Thur. Madam, my Lord your father wold ſpeak with
Sil. I wait vpon his pleaſure: Come Sir Thurio,
Goe with me: once more, new Seruant welcome;
Ile leaue you to confer of home affaires,
When you haue done, we looke too heare from you.
Pro. Wee'll both attend vpon your Ladiſhip.
Val. Now tell me: how do all from whence you came?
Pro. Your frends are wel, & haue the much comended.
Val. And how doe yours?
Pro. I left them all in health.
Val. How does your Lady? & how thriues your loue?
Pro. My tales of Loue were wont to weary you,
I know you ioy not in a Loue-diſcourſe.
Val. I Protheus, but that life is alter'd now,
I haue done pennance for contemning Loue,
Whoſe high emperious thoughts haue puniſh'd me
With bitter faſts, with penitentiall grones,
With nightly teares, and daily hart-ſore ſighes,
For in reuenge of my contempt of loue,
Loue hath chas'd ſleepe from my enthralled eyes,
And made them watchers of mine owne hearts ſorrow.
O gentle Protheus, Loue's a mighty Lord,
And hath ſo humbled me, as I confeſſe
There is no woe to his correction,
Nor to his Seruice, no ſuch ioy on earth:
Now, no diſcourſe, except it be of loue
Now can I breake my faſt, dine, ſup, and ſleepe,
Vpon the very naked name of Loue.
Pro. Enough; I read your fortune in your eye:
Was this the Idoll, that you worſhip ſo?
Val. Euen She; and is ſhe not a heauenly Saint
Pro. No; But ſhe is an earthly Paragon.
Val. Call her diuine.
Pro. I will not flatter her.
Val. O flatter me: for Loue delights in praiſes.
Pro. When I was ſick, you gaue me bitter pils,
And I muſt miniſter the like to you.
Val. Then ſpeake the truth by her; if not diuine,
Yet let her be a principalitie,
Soueraigne to all the Creatures on the earth.
Pro. Except my Miſtreſſe.
Val. Sweet: except not any,
Except thou wilt except againſt my Loue.
Pro. Haue I not reaſon to prefer mine owne?
Val. And I will help thee to preſer her too:
Shee ſhall be dignified with this high honour,
To beare my Ladies traine, leſt the baſe earth
Should from her veſture chance to ſteale a kiſſe,
And of ſo great a fauor growing proud,
Diſdaine to roote the Sommer-ſwelling flowre,
And make rough winter euerlaſtingly.
Pro. Why Valentine, what Bragadiſme is this?
Val. Pardon me (Protheus) all I can is nothing,
To her, whoſe worth, make other worthies nothing;
Shee is alone.
Pro. Then let her alone.
Val. Not for the world: why man, ſhe is mine owne.
And I as rich in hauing ſuch a Iewell
As twenty Seas, if all their ſand were pearle,
The water, Nectar, and the Rocks pure gold.
Forgiue me that I doe not dreame on thee,
Becauſe thou ſeeſt me doate vpon my loue:
My foolish Riuall that her Father likes
(Onely for his poſſeſſions are ſo huge)
Is gone with her along, and I muſt after,
For Loue (thou know'ſt is full of iealouſie.)
Pro. But ſhe loues you? (howre.
Val. I, and we are betroathd: nay more, our mariage
With all the cunning manner of our flight
Determin'd of: how I muſt climbe her window,
The Ladder made of Cords, and all the meanes
Plotted, and 'greed on for my happineſſe.
Good Protheus goe with me to my chamber,
In theſe affaires to aid me with thy counſaile.
Pro. Goe on before: I ſhall enquire you forth.
I muſt vnto the Road, to diſ-embarque
Some neceſſaries, that I needs muſt vſe,
And then Ile preſently attend you.
Val. Will you make haſte? Exit.
Pro. I will.
Euen as one heate, another heate expels,
Or as one naile, by ſtrength driues out another.
So the remembrance of my former Loue
Is by a newer obiect quite forgotten,
It is mine, or Valentines praiſe?
Her true perfection, or my falſe tranſgreſſion?
That makes me reaſonleſſe, to reaſon thus?
Shee is faire; and ſo is Iulia that I loue,

(That

(That I did loue, for now my loue is thaw'd,
Which like a waxen Image 'gainſt a fire
Beares no impreſſion of the thing it was.)
Me thinkes my zeale to Valentine is cold,
And that I loue him not as I was wont:
O, but I loue his Lady too-too much,
And that's the reaſon I loue him ſo little.
How ſhall I dote on her with more aduice,
That thus without aduice begin to loue her?
'Tis but her picture I haue yet beheld,
And that hath dazel'd my reaſons light:
But when I looke on her perfections,
There is no reaſon, but I ſhall be blinde.
If I can checke my erring loue, I will,
If not, to compaſſe her Ile vſe my skill.

Exeunt.

Scena Quinta.

Enter Speed and Launce.

Speed. Launce, by mine honeſty welcome to Padua.

Laun. Forſweare not thy ſelfe, ſweet youth, for I am not welcome. I reckon this always, that a man is never vndone till he be hang'd, nor neuer welcome to a place, till ſome certaine ſhot be paid, and the Hoſteſſe ſay welcome.

Speed. Come on you mad-cap: Ile to the Ale-houſe with you preſently; where, for one ſhot of fiue pence, thou ſhalt haue fiue thouſand welcomes: But ſirha, how did thy Maſter part with Madam Iulia?

Laun. Marry after they cloſ'd in earneſt, they parted very friendly in ieſt.

Speed. But ſhall ſhe marry him?

Laun. No.

Speed. How then? ſhall he marry her?

Laun. No, neither.

Speed. What, are they broken?

Laun. No; they are both as whole as a fiſh.

Speed. Why then, how ſtands the matter with them?

Laun. Marry thus, when it ſtands well with him, it ſtands well with her.

Speed. What an aſſe art thou, I vnderſtand thee not.

Laun. What a blocke art thou, that thou canſt not? My ſtaffe vnderſtands me?

Speed. What thou ſaiſt?

Laun. I, and what I do too: looke thee, Ile but leane, and my ſtaffe vnderſtands me.

Speed. It ſtands vnder thee indeed.

Laun. Why, ſtand-vnder, and vnder-ſtand is all one.

Speed. But tell me true, will't be a match?

Laun. Aske my dogge, if he ſay I, it will: if hee ſay no, it will: if hee ſhake his taile, and ſay nothing, it will.

Speed. The concluſion is then, that it will.

Laun. Thou ſhalt neuer get ſuch a ſecret from me, but by a parable.

Speed. 'Tis well that I get it ſo: but Launce, how ſaiſt thou that that my maſter is become a notable Louer?

Laun. I neuer knew him otherwiſe.

Speed. Then how?

Laun. A notable Lubber: as thou reportſt him to be

Speed. Why, thou whorſon Aſſe, thou miſtak'ſt me.

Laun. Why Foole, I meant not thee, I meant thy Maſter.

Speed. I tell thee, my Maſter is become a hot Louer.

Laun. Why, I tell thee I care not, though hee burne himſelfe in Loue. If thou wilt goe with me to the Ale-houſe: if not, thou art an Hebrew, a Iew, and not worth the name of a Chriſtian.

Speed. Why?

Laun. Becauſe thou haſt not ſo much charity in thee as to goe to the Ale with a Chriſtian: Wilt thou goe?

Speed. At thy ſeruice.

Exeunt.

Scœna Sexta.

Enter Protheus ſolus.

Pro. To leaue my Iulia, ſhall I be forſworne?
To loue faire Siluia, ſhall I be forſworne?
To wrong my friend, I ſhall be much forſworne.
And ev'n that Powre which gaue me firſt my oath
Prouokes me to this three-fold periurie.
Loue bad me ſweare, and Loue bids me for-ſweare:
O ſweet-ſuggeſting Loue, if thou haſt ſin'd,
Teach me (thy tempred ſubiect) to excuſe it.
At firſt I did adore a twinkling Starre,
But now I worſhip a celeſtiall Sunne:
Vn-heedfull vowes may heedfully be broken,
And he wants wit, that wants reſolued will,
To learne his wit, t'exchange the bad for better;
Fie, fie, vnreuerend tongue, to call her bad,
Whoſe ſoueraignty ſo oft thou haſt preſerd,
With twenty thouſand ſoule-confirming oathes,
I cannot leaue to loue; and yet I doe:
But there I leaue to loue, where I ſhould loue.
Iulia I looſe, and Valentine I looſe,
If I keepe them, I needs muſt looſe my ſelfe:
If I looſe them, thus finde I by their loſſe,
For Valentine, my ſelfe: for Iulia, Siluia.
I to my ſelfe am dearer then a friend,
For Loue is ſtill moſt precious in it ſelfe,
And Siluia (witneſſe heauen that made her faire)
Shewes Iulia but a ſwarthy Ethiope.
I will forget that Iulia is aliue,
Remembring that my Loue to her is dead.
And Valentine Ile hold an Enemie,
Ayming at Siluia as a ſweeter friend.
I cannot now proue conſtant to my ſelfe,
Without ſome treachery vs'd to Valentine.
This night he meaneth with a Corded-ladder
To climbe celeſtiall Siluia's chamber window,
My ſelfe in counſaile his competitor.
Now preſently Ile giue her father notice
Of their diſguiſing and pretended flight.
Who (all inrag'd) will baniſh Valentine:
For Thurio he intends ſhall wed his daughter,
But Valentine being gon, Ile quickely croſſe
By ſome ſlie tricke, blunt Thurio's dull proceeding.
Loue lend me wings, to make my purpoſe ſwift
As thou haſt lent me wit, to plot this drift.

Exit.

Scœna ſeptima.

Enter Iulia and Lucetta.

Iul Counſaile, Lucetta, gentle girle aſſiſt me,
And euʳmʳkinde loue, I doe conjure thee,
Who art the Table wherein all my thoughts
Are viſibly Character'd, and engrau'd,
To leſſon me, and tell me ſome good meane
How with my honour I may vndertake
A iourney to my louing Protheus.
Luc. Alas, the way is wearieſome and long
Iul. A true-deuoted Pilgrime is not weary
To meaſure Kingdomes with his feeble ſteps.
Much leſſe ſhall ſhe that hath Loues wings to flie,
And when the flight is made to one ſo deere,
Of ſuch diuine perfection as Sir Protheus
Luc. Better forbeare, till Protheus make returne.
Iul. Oh, know'ſt ỹ not, his looks are my ſoules food?
Pitty the dearth that I haue pined in
By longing for that food ſo long a time.
Didſt thou but know the inly touch of Loue,
Thou wouldſt as ſoone goe kindle fire with ſnow
As ſeeke to quench the fire of Loue with words,
Luc. I doe not ſeeke to quench your Loues hot fire,
But qualifie the fires extreame rage
Leſt it ſhould burne aboue the bounds of reaſon
Iul. The more thou dam'ſt it vp, the more it burnes
The Current that with gentle murmure glides
(Thou know'ſt) being ſtop'd, impatiently doth rage.
But when his faire courſe is not hindered,
He makes ſweet muſicke with th'enameld ſtones,
Giuing a gentle kiſſe to euery ſedge
He ouer-taketh in his pilgrimage.
And ſo by many winding nookes he ſtraies
With willing ſport to the wilde Ocean
Then let me goe, and hinder not my courſe.
Ile be as patient as a gentle ſtreame,
And make a paſtime of each weary ſtep,
Till the laſt ſtep haue brought me to my Loue,
And there Ile reſt, as after much turmoile
A bleſſed ſoule doth in Elyzium.
Luc. But in what habit will you goe along?
Iul. Not like a woman, for I would preuent
The looſe encounters of laſcitious men
Gentle Lucetta, fit me with ſuch weedes
As may beſeeme ſome well reputed Page.
Luc. Why then your Ladiſhip muſt cut your haire
Iul. No girle, Ile knit it vp in ſilken ſtrings,
With twentie od-conceited true-loue knots
To be fantaſticque, may become a youth
Of greater time then I ſhall ſhew to be (chese
Luc. What faſhion (Madam) ſhall I make your bree
Iul That fits as well, as tell me (good my Lord)
What compaſſe will you weare your Farthingale?
Why eu'n what faſhion thou beſt likes (Lucetta.)
Luc You muſt needs haue th'ẽ with a cod-peece (Ma
Iul. Out, out, (Lucetta) that wilbe illfauourd (dam)
Luc. A round hoſe (Madam) now's not worth a pin
Vnleſſe you haue a cod-peece to ſtick pins on.
Iul. Lucetta, as thou lou'ſt me let me haue
What thou think'ſt meet, and is moſt mannerly
But tell me (wench) how will the world repute me
For vndertaking ſo vnſtaid a iourney?
I feare me it will make me ſcandaliz'd.
Luc. If you thinke ſo, then ſtay at home, and go not.
Iul. Nay, that I will not.
Luc. Then neuer dreame on Infamy, but go:
If Protheus like your iourney, when you come,
No matter who's diſpleas'd, when you are gone:
I feare me he will ſcarce be pleas'd with all.
Iul. That is the leaſt (Lucetta) of my feare:
A thouſand oathes, an Ocean of his teares,
And inſtances of infinite of Loue,
Warrant me welcome to my Protheus.
Luc. All theſe are ſeruants to deceitfull men.
Iul. Baſe men, that vſe them to ſo baſe effect:
But truer ſtarres did gouerne Protheus birth,
His words are bonds, his oathes are oracles,
His loue ſincere, his thoughts immaculate,
His teares, pure meſſengers, ſent from his heart,
His heart, as far from fraud, as heauen from earth.
Luc. Pray heau'n he proue ſo when you come to him.
Iul. Now, as thou lou'ſt me, do him not that wrong,
To beare a hard opinion of his truth:
Onely deſerue my loue, by louing him,
And preſently goe with me to my chamber
To take a note of what I ſtand in need of,
To furniſh me vpon my longing iourney
All that is mine I leaue at thy diſpoſe,
My goods, my Lands, my reputation,
Onely, in lieu thereof, diſpatch me hence.
Come; anſwere not: but to it preſently,
I am impatient of my tarriance

Exeunt.

Actus Tertius, Scena Prima.

Enter Duke, Thurio, Protheus, Valentine, Launce, Speed.

Duke Sir Thurio, giue vs leaue (I pray) a while,
We haue ſome ſecrets to confer about.
Now tell me Protheus, what's your will with me?
Pro. My gracious Lord, that which I wold diſcouer,
The Law of friendſhip bids me to conceale,
But when I call to minde your gracious fauours
Done to me (vnderſeruing as I am)
My duties pricks me on to vtter that
Which elſe, no worldly good ſhould draw from me.
Know (worthy Prince) Sir Valentine my friend
This night intends to ſteale away your daughter:
My ſelfe am one made priuy to the plot
I know you haue determin'd to beſtow her
On Thurio, whom your gentle daughter hates,
And ſhould ſhe thus be ſtolne away from you,
It would be much vexation to your age.
Thus (for my duties ſake) I rather choſe
To croſſe my friend in his intended drift,
Then (by concealing it) heap on your head
A pack of ſorrowes, which would preſſe you downe
(Being vnpreuented) to your timeleſſe graue
Duke. Protheus, I thank thee for thine honeſt care,
Which to requite, command me while I liue.
This loue of theirs my ſelfe haue often ſeene
Haply when they haue iudg'd me faſt aſleepe,
And oftentimes haue purpoſ'd to forbid

Sir

alentine her company, and my Court.
eazing left my iealous eyme might erre,
o (vnworthily) diſgrace the man ſhneſſe that I euer yet haue ſhun'd)
e him gentle looker, thereby to finde which thy ſelfe haſt now diſclos'd to me.
hat thou muſt perceiue my feare of that,
ring that tender youth is ſoone ſuggeſted,
atly lodge her in an vpper Towre, ey whereof, my ſelfe haue euer kept:
hence ſhe cannot be conuay'd away.
e. Know (noble Lord) they haue deuis'd a meane
he her chamber-window will aſcend, with a Corded-ladder fetch her downe:
hich, the youthfull Louer now is gone,
his way comes he with it preſently.
re (if it pleaſe you) you may intercept him.
good my Lord) doe it ſo cunningly.
my diſcouery be not aimed at:
oue of you, not hate vnto my friend,
made me publiſher of this preſence.
ke. Vpon mine Honor, he ſhall neuer know
I had any light from thee of this.
e. Adiew, my Lord, Sir Valentine is comming.
k. Sir Valentine, whether away ſo faſt?
l. Pleaſe it your Grace, there is a Meſſenger ſtayes to beare my Letters to my friends,
I am going to deliuer them.
k. Be they of much import?
l. The tenure of them doth but ſignifie ealth, and happy being at your Court.
k. Nay then no matter: ſtay with me a while,
o breake with thee of ſome affaires touch me neere: wherein thou muſt be ſecret.
ot vnknown to thee, that I haue ſought atch my friend Sir Thurio, to my daughter.
l. I know it well (my Lord) and ſure the Match
e rich and honourable: beſides, the gentleman
l of Vertue, Bounty, Worth, and Qualities ming ſuch a Wife, as your faire daughter:
ot your Grace win her to fancie him?
k. No, truſt me, She is peeuiſh, ſullen, froward,
d, diſobedient, ſtubborne, lacking duty,
her regarding that ſhe is my childe,
ſeeing me, as if I were her father:
may I ſay to thee, this pride of hers
n aduice) hath drawne my loue from her, where I thought the remnant of mine age
ld haue beene cheriſh'd by her child-like dutie,
w am full reſolu'd to take a wife,
urne her out, to who will take her in:
let her beauty be her wedding dowre:
ne, and my poſſeſſions ſhe eſteemes not.
l. What would your Grace haue me to do in this?
k. There is a Lady in Verona heere om I affect: but ſhe is nice, and coy, naught eſteemes my aged eloquence.
therefore would I haue thee to my Tutor long agoone I haue forgot to court, des the faſhion of the time is chang'd)
e, and which way I may beſtow my ſelfe
s regarded in her ſun-bright eye.
l. Win her with gifts, if ſhe reſpect not words, ſhe loues often in their ſilent kinde
then quicke words, doe moue a womans minde.
k. But ſhe did ſcorne a preſent that I ſent her,
Val. A woman ſometime ſcorns what beſt contents her.
Send her another: never giue her o're,
For ſcorne at firſt, makes after-loue the more.
If ſhe doe frowne, 'tis not in hate of you,
But rather to beget more loue in you.
If ſhe doe chide, 'tis not to haue you gone,
For why, the fooles are mad, if left alone.
Take no repulſe, what euer ſhe doth ſay,
For, get you gon, ſhe doth not meane away.
Flatter, and praiſe, commend, extoll their graces:
Though ere ſo blacke, ſay they haue Angells faces,
That man that hath a tongue, I ſay is no man,
If with his tongue he cannot win a woman.
Duk. But ſhe I meane, is promis'd by her friends
Vnto a youthfull Gentleman of worth,
And kept ſeuerely from reſort of men,
That no man hath acceſſe by day to her.
Val. Why then I would reſort to her by night.
Duk. I, but the doores be lockt, and keyes kept ſafe,
That no man hath recourſe to her by night.
Val. What lets but one may enter at her window?
Duk. Her chamber is aloft, far from the ground,
And built ſo ſheluing, that one cannot climbe it
Without apparant hazard of his life.
Val. Why then a Ladder quaintly made of Cords
To caſt vp, with a paire of anchoring hookes,
Would ſerue to ſcale another Hero's towre,
So bold Leander would aduenture it.
Duk. Now as thou art a Gentleman of blood
Aduiſe me, where I may haue ſuch a Ladder.
Val. When would you vſe it? pray ſir, tell me that.
Duk. This very night; for Loue is like a childe
That longs for euery thing that he can come by.
Val. By ſeauen a clock, Ile get you ſuch a Ladder.
Duk. But harke thee: I will goe to her alone,
How ſhall I beſt conuey the Ladder thither?
Val. It will be light (my Lord) that you may beare it
Vnder a cloake, that is of any length.
Duk. A cloake as long as thine will ſerue the turne?
Val. I my good Lord.
Duk. Then let me ſee thy cloake,
Ile get me one of ſuch another length.
Val. Why any cloake will ſerue the turn (my Lord)
Duk. How ſhall I faſhion me to weare a cloake?
I pray thee let me feele thy cloake vpon me.
What Letter is this ſame? what's heere? To Siluia?
And heere an Engine fit for my proceeding,
Ile be ſo bold to breake the ſeale for once.

My thoughts do harbour with my Siluia nightly,
And ſlaues they are to me, that ſend them flying.
Oh, could their Maſter come, and go as lightly,
Himſelfe would lodge where (ſenceleſs) they are lying.
My Herald Thoughts, in thy pure-beſtowne reſt-them,
Whilſt I (their King) that thither them importune
Doe curſe the grace, that with ſuch grace hath bleſt them,
Becauſe my ſelfe doe want my ſeruants fortune.
I curſe my ſelfe, for they are ſent by me,
That they ſhould harbour where their Lord ſhould be.

What's here? Siluia, this night I will enfranchiſe thee.
Tis ſo: and heere's the Ladder for the purpoſe.
Why Phaeton (for thou art Merops ſonne)
Wilt thou aſpire to guide the heauenly Car?
And with thy daring folly burne the world?
Wilt thou teach ſtars, becauſe they ſhine on thee?

Goe base Intruder, ouer-weening Slaue,
Bestow thy fawning smiles on equall mates,
And thinke my patience, (more then thy desert)
Is priuiledge for thy departure hence.
Thanke me for this, more then for all the fauors
Which (all too-much) I haue bestowed on thee.
But if thou linger in my Territories
Longer then swiftest expedition
Will giue thee time to leaue our royall Court,
By heauen, my wrath shall farre exceed the loue
I euer bore my daughter, or thy selfe.
Be gone, I will not heare thy vaine excuse,
But as thou lou'st thy life, make speed from hence.

Val. And why not death, rather then liuing torment? To die, is to be banisht from my selfe,
And Siluia is my selfe: banish'd from her
Is selfe from selfe. A deadly banishment:
What light, is light, if Siluia be not seene?
What ioy is ioy, if Siluia be not by?
Vnlesse it be to thinke that she is by
And feed vpon the shadow of perfection.
Except I be by Siluia in the night,
There is no musicke in the Nightingale.
Vnlesse I looke on Siluia in the day,
There is no day for me to looke vpon.
Shee is my essence, and I leaue to be;
If I be not by her faire influence
Foster'd, illumin'd, cherish'd, kept aliue.
I flie not death, to flie his deadly doome,
Tarry I heere, I but attend on death,
But flie I hence, I flie away from life.

Pro. Run (boy) run, run, and seeke him out.

Lan. So-hough, So hough

Pro. What seest thou?

Lan. Him we goe to finde,
There's not a haire on's head, but 'tis a Valentine.

Pro. Valentine?

Val. No.

Pro. Who then? his Spirit?

Val. Neither.

Pro. What then?

Val. Nothing

Lan. Can nothing speake? Master, shall I strike?

Pro. Who wouldst thou strike?

Lan. Nothing.

Pro. Villaine, forbeare.

Lan. Why Sir, Ile strike nothing: I pray you.

Pro. Sirha, I say forbeare: friend Valentine, a word.

Val. My eares are stopt, & cannot hear good newes,
So much of bad already hath possest them.

Pro. Then in dumbe silence will I bury mine,
For they are harsh, vn-tuneable, and bad.

Val. Is Siluia dead?

Pro. No, Valentine.

Val. No Valentine indeed, for sacred Siluia,
Hath she forsworne me?

Pro. No, Valentine.

Val. No Valentine, if Siluia haue forsworne me,
What is your newes?

Lan. Sir, there is a proclamation, y you are vanished.

Pro. That thou art banish'd: oh that's the newes,
From hence, from Siluia, and from me thy friend.

Val. Oh, I haue fed vpon this woe already,
And now excesse of it will make me surfet.
Doth Siluia know that I am banish'd?

Pro. I, I: and she hath offered to the doome
(Which vn-reuerst stands in effectuall force)
A Sea of melting pearle, which some call teares;
Those at her fathers churlish feete she tendred,
With them vpon her knees, her humble selfe,
Wringing her hands, whose whitenes so became them,
As if but now they waxed pale for woe:
But neither bended knees, pure hands held vp,
Sad sighes, deepe groanes, nor siluer-shedding teares
Could penetrate her vncompassionate Sire;
But Valentine, if he be tane, must die.
Besides, her intercession chaf'd him so,
When she for thy repeale was suppliant,
That to close prison he commanded her,
With many bitter threats of biding there.

Val. No more: vnles the next word that thou speak'st
Haue some malignant power vpon my life:
If so: I pray thee breath it in mine eare,
As ending Antheme of my endlesse dolor.

Pro. Cease to lament for that thou canst not helpe,
And study helpe for that which thou lament'st.
Time is the Nurse, and breeder of all good;
Here, if thou stay, thou canst not see thy loue;
Besides, thy staying will abridge thy life:
Hope is a louers staffe, walke hence with that
And manage it, against despairing thoughts:
Thy letters may be here, though thou art hence,
Which, being writ to me, shall be deliuer'd
Euen in the milke-white bosome of thy Loue.
The time now serues not to expostulate,
Come, Ile conuey thee through the City-gate,
And-ere I part with thee, confer at large
Of all that may concerne thy Loue-affaires:
As thou lou'st Siluia (though not for thy selfe)
Regard thy danger, and along with me.

Val. I pray thee Launce, and if thou seest my Boy
Bid him make hafte, and meet me at the North-gate.

Pro. Goe sirha, finde him out: Come Valentine.

Val. Oh my deere Siluia; hapleſſe Valentine.

Launce. I am but a foole, looke you, and yet I haue the wit to thinke my Master is a kinde of a knaue: but that's all one, if he be but one knaue: He liues not now that knowes me to be in loue, yet I am in loue, but a Teeme of horse shall not plucke that from me: nor who 'tis I loue: and yet 'tis a woman; but what woman, I will not tell my selfe: and yet 'tis a Milke-maid: yet 'tis not a maid: for shee hath had Gossips: yet 'tis a maid, for she is her Masters-maid, and serues for wages. Shee hath more qualities then a Water-Spaniell, which is much in a bare Christian: Heere is the Cate-log of her Condition. Imprimis, Shee can fetch and carry: why a horse can doe no more; nay, a horse cannot fetch, but only carry, therefore is shee better then a Iade. Item. She can milke, looke you, a sweet vertue in a maid with cleane hands.

Speed. How now Signior Launce? what newes with your Masterſhip?

La. With my Masterſhip? why, it is at Sea:

Sp. Well, your old vice still: mistake the word: what newes then in your paper?

La. The blackſt newes that euer thou heard'ſt.

Sp. Why man? how blacke?

La. Why, as blacke as Inke.

Sp. Let me read them?

La. Fie on thee Iolt-head, thou canst not read.

Sp. Thou lyeſt: I can.

La. I will try thee: tell me this: who begot thee?

Sp. Marry,

Sp. Marry, the ſon of my Grand-father.

La. Oh illiterate loyterer; it was the ſonne of thy Grand-mother: this proues that thou canſt not read.

Sp. Come ſoole, come: try me in thy paper.

La. There: and S. Nicholas be thy ſpeed.

Sp. Inprimis ſhe can milke.

La. I that ſhe can.

Sp. Item, ſhe brewes good Ale.

La. And thereof comes the prouerbe: (Bleſſing of your heart, you brew good Ale.)

Sp. Item, ſhe can ſowe.

La. That's as much as to ſay (Can ſhe ſo?)

Sp. Item ſhe can knit.

La. What needs a man care for a ſtock with a wench, When ſhe can knit him a ſtocke?

Sp. Item, ſhe can waſh and ſcoure.

La. A ſpeciall vertue: for then ſhee needs not be waſh'd, and ſcour'd.

Sp. Item, ſhe can ſpin.

La. Then may I ſee the world on wheeles, when ſhe can ſpin for her living.

Sp. Item, ſhe hath many nameleſſe vertues.

La. That's as much as to ſay Baſtard-vertues: that indeede know not their fathers; and therefore haue no names.

Sp. Here follow her vices.

La. Cloſe at the heeles of her vertues.

Sp. Item, ſhee is not to be faſting in reſpect of her breath.

La. Well, that fault may be mended with a breakfaſt: read on.

Sp. Item, ſhe hath a ſweet mouth.

La. That makes amends for her ſoure breath.

Sp. Item, ſhe doth talke in her ſleepe.

La. It's no matter for that; ſo ſhee ſleepe not in her talke.

Sp. Item, ſhe is ſlow in words.

La. Oh villaine, that ſet this downe among her vices; To be ſlow in words, is a womans onely vertue:
I pray thee out with't, and place it for her chiefe vertue.

Sp. Item, ſhe is proud.

La. Out with that too:
It was Eues legacie, and cannot be t'ane from her.

Sp. Item, ſhe hath no teeth.

La. I care not for that neither: becauſe I loue crufts.

Sp. Item, ſhe is curſt.

La. Well: the beſt is, ſhe hath no teeth to bite.

Sp. Item, ſhe will often praiſe her liquor.

La. If her liquor be good, ſhe ſhall: if ſhe will not, I will, for good things ſhould be praiſed.

Sp. Item, ſhe is too liberall.

La. Of her tongue ſhe cannot; for that's writ downe ſhe is ſlow of: of her purſe, ſhee ſhall not, for that ile keepe ſhut: Now, of another thing ſhee may, and that cannot I helpe. Well, proceede.

Sp. Item, ſhee hath more haire then wit, and more faults then haires, and more wealth then faults.

La. Stop there: ile haue her: ſhe was mine, and not mine, twice or thrice in that laſt Article: rehearſe that once more.

Sp. Item, ſhe hath more haire then wit.

La. More haire then wit: it may be ile proue it: The couers of the ſalt, hides the ſalt, and therefore it is more then the ſalt; the haire that couers the wit, is more then the wit; for the greater hides the leſſe: What's next?

Sp. And more faults then haires.

La. That's monſtrous: oh that that were out.

Sp. And more wealth then faults.

La. Why that word makes the faults gracious: Well, ile haue her: and if it be a match, as nothing is impoſſible.

Sp. What then?

La. Why then, will I tell thee, that thy Maſter ſtaies for thee at the North gate.

Sp. For me?

La. For thee? I, who art thou? he hath ſtaid for a better man then thee.

Sp. And muſt I goe to him?

La. Thou muſt run to him; for thou haſt ſtaid ſo long, that going will ſcarce ſerue the turne.

Sp. Why didſt not tell me ſooner? 'pox of your loue Letters.

La. Now will he be ſwing'd for reading my Letter; An vnmannerly ſlaue, that will thruſt himſelfe into ſecrets: Ile after, to reioyce in the boyes correction. Exeunt.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Duke, Thurio, Protheus.

Du. Sir Thurio, feare not, but that ſhe will loue you
Now Valentine is baniſh'd from her ſight.

Th. Since his exile ſhe hath deſpis'd me moſt,
Forſworne my company, and rail'd at me,
That I am deſperate of obtaining her.

Du. This weake impreſſe of Loue, is as a figure Trenched in ice, which with an houres heate
Diſſolues to water, and doth looſe his forme.
A little time will melt her frozen thoughts,
And worthleſſe Valentine ſhall be forgot.
How now ſir Protheus, is your countriman
(According to our Proclamation) gon?

Pro. Gon, my good Lord.

Du. My daughter takes his going grieuouſly?

Pro. A little time (my Lord) will kill that griefe.

Du. So I beleeue: but Thurio thinkes not ſo:
Protheus, the good conceit I hold of thee,
(For thou haſt ſhowne ſome ſigne of good deſert)
Makes me the better to conſer with thee.

Pro. Longer then I proue loyall to your Grace,
Let me not liue, to looke vpon your Grace.

Du. Thou know'ſt how willingly, I would effect
The match betweene ſir Thurio, and my daughter?

Pro. I doe my Lord.

Du. And alſo, I thinke, thou art not ignorant
How ſhe oppoſes her againſt my will?

Pro. She did my Lord, when Valentine was here.

Du. I, and perſeuerſly, ſhe perſeuers ſo:
What might we doe to make the girle forget
The loue of Valentine, and loue ſir Thurio?

Pro. The beſt way is, to ſlander Valentine,
With falſehood, cowardize, and poore deſcent:
Three things, that women highly hold in hate.

Du. I, but ſhe'll thinke, that it is ſpoke in hate.

Pro. I, if his enemy deliuer it.
Therefore it muſt with circumſtance be ſpoken
By one, whom ſhe eſteemeth as his friend.

Du. Then you muſt vndertake to ſlander him.

Pro.

Pro. And that (my Lord) I ſhall be loath to doe:
'Tis an ill office for a Gentleman,
Eſpecially againſt his very friend.
Du. Where your good word cannot aduantage him,
Your ſlander never can endamage him;
Therefore the office is indifferent,
Being intreated to it by your friend.
Pro. You haue preuail'd (my Lord) if I can doe it
By ought that I can ſpeake in his diſpraiſe,
She ſhall not long continue loue to him.
But ſay this weede her loue from Valentine,
It followes not that ſhe will loue ſir Thurio.
Th. Therefore, as you vowinde her loue from him;
Leaſt it ſhould rauell, and be good to none,
You muſt prouide to bottome it on me
Which muſt be done, by praiſing me as much
As you, in worth diſpraiſe, ſir Valentine.
Du. And Protheus, we dare truſt you in this kinde,
Becauſe we know (on Valentines report)
You are already loues firme votary,
And cannot ſoone reuolt, and change your minde.
Vpon this warrant, ſhall you haue acceſſe,
Where you, with Siluia, may conferre at large
For ſhe is lumpiſh, heauy melancholly,
And (for your friends ſake) will be glad of you;
Where you may temper her, by your perſwaſion,
To hate yong Valentine, and loue my friend.
Pro. As much as I can doe, I will effect:
But you ſir Thurio, are not ſharpe enough.
You muſt lay Lime, to tangle her deſires
By wayleſull Sonnets, whoſe compoſed Rimes
Should be full fraught with ſeruiceable vowes.
Du. I, much is the force of heauen-bred Poeſie.
Pro. Say that vpon the altar of her beauty
You ſacrifice your teares, your ſighes, your heart:
Write till your inke be dry: and with your teares
Moiſt it againe: and frame ſome feeling line,
That may diſcouer ſuch integrity:
For Orpheus Lute, was ſtrung with Poets ſinewes,
Whoſe golden touch could ſoften ſteele and ſtones;
Make Tygers tame, and huge Leuiathans
Forſake vnſounded deepes, to dance on Sands.
After your dire-lamenting Elegies,
Viſit by night your Ladies chamber-window
With ſome ſweet Conſort; To their Inſtruments
Tune a deploring dumpe: the nights dead ſilence
Will well become ſuch ſweet complaining griefuance:
This, or elſe nothing, will inherit her.
Du. This diſcipline, ſhowes thou haſt bin in loue
Th. And thy aduice, this night, ile put in practiſe.
Therefore, ſweet Protheus, my direction-giuer,
Let vs into the City preſently
To ſort ſome Gentlemen, well skil'd in Muſicke.
I haue a Sonnet, that will ſerue the turne
To glue the on-ſet to thy good aduiſe.
Du. About it Gentlemen.
Pro. We'll wait vpon your Grace, till after Supper,
And afterward determine our proceedings.
Du. Euen now about it, I will pardon you. Exeunt.

Actus Quartus. Scæna Prima.

Enter Valentine, Speed, and certaine Out-lawes.

1. Out. Fellowes, ſtand faſt: I ſee a paſſenger.
2. Out. If there be ten, ſhrinke not, but down with 'em.
3. Out. Stand ſir, and throw vs that you haue about 'ye.
If not: we'll make you ſit, and rifle you.
Sp. Sir we are vndone; theſe are the Villaines
That all the Trauailers doe feare ſo much.
Val. My friends.
1. Out. That's not ſo, ſir: we are your enemies.
2. Out. Peace: we'll heare him.
3. Out. I by my beard will we: for he is a proper man.
Val. Then know that I haue little wealth to looſe:
A man I am, croſs'd with aduerſitie:
My riches, are theſe poore habiliments,
Of which, if you ſhould here diſfurniſh me,
You take the ſum and ſubſtance that I haue.
2. Out. Whether trauell you?
Val. To Verona.
1. Out. Whence came you?
Val. From Millaine.
3. Out. Haue you long ſoiourn'd there? (ſtaid,
Val. Some ſixteene moneths, and longer might haue
If crooked fortune had not thwarted me.
1. Out. What, were you baniſh'd thence?
Val. I was.
2. Out. For what offence?
Val. For that which now torments me to rehearſe;
I kil'd a man, whoſe death I much repent,
But yet I ſlew him manfully, in fight,
Without falſe vantage, or baſe treachery.
1. Out. Why were repent it, if it were done ſo;
But were you baniſht for ſo ſmall a fault?
Val. I was, and held me glad of ſuch a doome.
2. Out. Haue you the Tongues?
Val. My youthfull trauaile, therein made me happy,
Or elſe I often had beene often miſerable.
3. Out By the bare ſcalpe of Robin Hoods fat Fryer,
This fellow were a King, for our wilde faction.
1. Out. We'll haue him: Sirs, a word
Sp. Maſter, be one of them:
It's an honourable kinde of theeuery.
Val. Peace villaine.
2. Out. Tell vs this: haue you any thing to take to?
Val. Nothing but my fortune.
3. Out. Know then, that ſome of vs are Gentlemen,
Such as the fury of vngouern'd youth
Thruſt from the company of awfull men.
My ſelfe was from Verona baniſhed,
For practiſing to ſteale away a Lady,
And heire and Neece, allide vnto the Duke.
2. Out. And I from Mantua, for a Gentleman,
Who, in my moode, I ſtab'd vnto the heart.
1. Out. And I, for ſuch like petty crimes as theſe
But to the purpoſe: for we cite our faults,
That they may hold excus'd our lawleſſe liues,
And partly ſeeing you are beautifide
With goodly ſhape; and by your owne report,
A Linguiſt, and a man of ſuch perfection,
As we doe in our quality much want.
2. Out. Indeede becauſe you are a baniſh'd man,
Therefore, aboue the reſt, we parley to you:
Are you content to be our Generall?
To make a vertue of neceſſity,
And liue as we doe in this wildernеſſe?
3. Out. What ſaiſt thou? wilt thou be of our conſort?
Say I, and be the captaine of vs all:
We'll doe thee homage, and be rul'd by thee,
Loue thee, as our Commander, and our King.

1. Out

1. Out. But if thou ſcorne our curteſie, thou dyeſt.
2. Out. Thou ſhalt not liue, to brag what we haue of-
Val. I take your offer, and will liue with you,
Prouided that you do no outrages
On ſilly women, or poore paſſengers.
3. Out. No, we deteſt ſuch vile baſe practiſes.
Come, goe with vs, we'll bring thee to our Crewes,
And ſhow thee all the Treaſure we haue got;
Which, with our ſelues, all reſt at thy diſpoſe. Exeunt.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Protheus, Thurio, Iulia, Hoſt, Muſitian, Siluia.

Pro. Already haue I bin falſe to Valentine,
And now I muſt be as vnioſt to Thurio,
Vnder the colour of commending him,
I haue acceſſe my owne loue to preferr.
But Siluia is too faire, too true, too holy,
To be corrupted with my worthleſſe guifts;
When I protteſt true loyalty to her,
She twits me with my falſehood to my friend;
When to her beauty I commend my vowes,
She bids me thinke how I haue bin forſworne
In breaking faith with Iulia, whom I lou'd;
And notwithſtanding all her ſodaine quips,
The leaſt whereof would quell a louers hope:
Yet (Spaniel-like) the more ſhe ſpurnes my loue,
The more it growes, and fawneth on her ſtill;
But here comes Thurio: now muſt we to her window,
And giue ſome euening Muſique to her eare.

Th. How now, Sir Protheus, are you crept before vs?

Pro. I gentle Thurio, for you know that loue
Will creepe in ſeruice, where it cannot goe.

Th. I but I hope, Sir, that you loue not here.

Pro. Sir, but I doe: or elſe I would be hence.

Th. Who, Siluia?

Pro. I, Siluia, for your ſake.

Th. I thanke you for your owne: Now Gentlemen
Let's tune, and to it luſtily a while.

Ho. Now, my yong gueſt, me thinks your' allycholly
I pray you why is it?

Iu. Marry (mine Hoſt) becauſe I cannot be merry.

Ho. Come, we'll haue you merry: ile bring you where you ſhall heare Muſique, and ſee the Gentleman that you aſk'd for.

Iu. But ſhall I heare him ſpeake.

Ho. I that you ſhall.

Iu. That will be Muſique.

Ho. Harke, harke.

Iu. Is he among theſe?

Ho. I: but peace, let's heare'm.

Song. Who is Siluia? what is ſhe?
That all our Swaines commend her?
Holy faire, and wiſe is ſhe,
The heauen ſuch grace did lend her,
that ſhe might admired be.
Is ſhe kinde as ſhe is faire?
For beauty liues with kindneſſe:
Loue doth to her eyes repaire,
To helpe him of his blindneſſe:
And being help'd, inhabits there.
Then to Siluia, let vs ſing,
That Siluia is excelling;
She excels each mortall thing
Vpon the dull earth dwelling.
To her let vs Garlands bring.

Ho. How now? are you ſadder then you were before;
How doe you, man? the Muſicke likes you not.

Iu. You miſtake: the Muſitian likes me not.

Ho. Why, my pretty youth?

Iu. He plaies falſe (father.)

Ho. How, out of tune on the ſtrings.

Iu. Not ſo; but yet
So falſe that he grieues my very heart-ſtrings.

Ho. You haue a quicke eare (ment.

Iu. I, I would I were deafe: it makes me haue a ſlow

Ho. I perceiue you delight not in Muſique.

Iu. Not a what, when it iars ſo.

Ho. Harke, what fine change is in the Muſique.

Iu. I: that change is the ſpight.

Ho. You would haue them alwaies play but one thing.

Iu. I would alwaies haue one play but one thing.
But Hoſt doth this Sir Protheus, that we talke on,
Often reſort vnto this Gentlewoman?

Ho. I tell you what Launce his man told me,
He lou'd her out of all nicke.

Iu. Where is Launce?

Ho. Gone to ſeeke his dog, which to morrow, by his Maſters command, hee muſt carry for a preſent to his Lady.

Iu. Peace, ſtand aſide, the company parts.

Pro. Sir Thurio, feare not you, I will ſo plead,
That you ſhall ſay, my cunning drift excels.

Th. Where meete we?

Pro. At Saint Gregories well.

Th. Farewell.

Pro. Madam: good eu'n to your Ladiſhip.

Sil. I thanke you for your Muſique (Gentlemen)
Who is that that ſpake?

Pro. One (Lady) if you knew his pure hearts truth,
You would quickly learne to know him by his voice.

Sil. Sir Protheus, as I take it.

Pro. Sir Protheus (gentle Lady) and your Seruant.

Sil. What's your will?

Pro. That I may compaſſe yours.

Sil. You haue your wiſh: my will is euen this,
That preſently you hie you home to bed:
Thou ſubtile, periur'd, falſe, diſloyall man:
Think'ſt thou I am ſo ſhallow, ſo conceitleſſe,
To be ſeduced by thy flattery,
That has't deceiu'd ſo many with thy vowes?
Returne, returne and make thy loue amends:
For me (by this pale queene of night I ſweare)
I am ſo farre from graunting thy requeſt,
That I deſpiſe thee, for thy wrongfull ſuite,
And by and by intend to chide my ſelfe,
Euen for this time I ſpend in talking to thee.

Pro. I graunt (ſweet loue) that I did loue a Lady,
But ſhe is dead.

Iu. 'Twere falſe, if I ſhould ſpeake it;
For I am ſure ſhe is not buried.

Sil. Say that ſhe be: yet Valentine thy friend
Suruiues; to whom (thy ſelfe art witneſſe)
I am betroth'd: and art thou not aſham'd
To wrong him, with thy importunacy?

Pro.

He is compleat in feature, and in minde,
With all good grace, to grace a Gentleman.
Duk. Beſhrew me ſir, but if he make this good
He is as worthy for an Empreſſe loue,
As meet to be an Emperors Councellor:
Well, Sir: this Gentleman is come to me
With Commendation from great Potentates,
And heere he meanes to ſpend his time a while,
I thinke 'tis no vn-welcome newes to you.
Val. Should I haue wiſh'd a thing, it had beene he.
Duk. Welcome him then according to his worth:
Siluia, I ſpeake to you, and you Sir Thurio,
For Valentine, I need not cite him to it,
I will ſend him hither to you preſently.
Val. This is the Gentleman I told your Ladiſhip
Had come along with me, but that his Miſtreſſe
Did hold his eyes, lockt in her Chriſtall lookes.
Sil. Be-like that now ſhe hath enfranchis'd them
Vpon ſome other pawne for fealty.
Val. Nay ſure, I thinke ſhe holds them priſoners ſtil.
Sil. Nay then he ſhould be blind, and being blind
How could he ſee his way to ſeeke out you?
Val. Why Lady, Loue hath twenty paire of eyes.
Thur. They ſay that Loue hath not an eye at all.
Val. To ſee ſuch Louers, Thurio, as your ſelfe,
Vpon a homely obiect, Loue can winke.
Sil. Haue done, haue done: heere comes ỹ gentleman.
Val. Welcome, deere Protheus: Miſtris, I beſeech you
Confirme his welcome, with ſome ſpeciall fauor.
Sil. His worth is warrant for his welcome hether,
If this be he you oft haue wiſh'd to heare from.
Val. Miſtris, it is: ſweet Lady, entertaine him
To be my fellow-ſeruant to your Ladiſhip.
Sil. Too low a Miſtres for ſo high a ſeruant.
Pro. Not ſo, ſweet Lady, but too meane a ſeruant
To haue a looke of ſuch a worthy a Miſtreſſe.
Val. Leaue off diſcourſe of diſabilitie:
Sweet Lady, entertaine him for your Seruant.
Pro. My dutie will I boaſt of, nothing elſe.
Sil. And dutie neuer yet did want his meed.
Seruant, you are welcome to a worthleſſe Miſtreſſe.
Pro. Ile die on him that ſaies ſo but your ſelfe.
Sil. That you are welcome?
Pro. That you are worthleſſe. (you.
Thur. Madam, my Lord your father wold ſpeak with
Sil. I wait vpon his pleaſure: Come Sir Thurio,
Goe with me: once more, new Seruant welcome;
Ile leaue you to confer of home affaires,
When you haue done, we looke too heare from you.
Pro. Wee'll both attend vpon your Ladiſhip.
Val. Now tell me: how do all from whence you came?
Pro. Your frends are wel, & haue the much comended.
Val. And how doe yours?
Pro. I left them all in health.
Val. How does your Lady? & how thriues your loue?
Pro. My tales of Loue were wont to weary you,
I know you ioy not in a Loue-diſcourſe.
Val. I Protheus, but that life is alter'd now,
I haue done pennance for contemning Loue,
Whoſe high emperious thoughts haue puniſh'd me
With bitter faſts, with penitentiall grones,
With nightly teares, and daily hart-ſore ſighes,
For in reuenge of my contempt of loue,
Loue hath chas'd ſleepe from my enthralled eyes,
And made them watchers of mine owne hearts ſorrow.
O gentle Protheus, Loue's a mighty Lord,
And hath ſo humbled me, as I confeſſe
There is no woe to his correction,
Nor to his Seruice, no ſuch ioy on earth:
Now, no diſcourſe, except it be of loue
Now can I breake my faſt, dine, ſup, and ſleepe,
Vpon the very naked name of Loue.
Pro. Enough: I read your fortune in your eye:
Was this the Idoll, that you worſhip ſo?
Val. Euen She; and ſhe not a heauenly Saint
Pro. No; But ſhe is an earthly Paragon.
Val. Call her diuine.
Pro. I will not flatter her.
Val. O flatter me: for Loue delights in praiſes.
Pro. When I was ſick, you gaue me bitter pils,
And I muſt miniſter the like to you.
Val. Then ſpeake the truth by her; if not diuine,
Yet let her be a principalitie,
Soueraigne to all the Creatures on the earth.
Pro. Except my Miſtreſſe.
Val. Sweet: except not any,
Except thou wilt except againſt my Loue.
Pro. Haue I not reaſon to prefer mine owne?
Val. And I will help thee to preſer her to:
Shee ſhall be dignified with this high honour,
To beare my Ladies traine, leſt the baſe earth
Should from her veſture chance to ſteale a kiſſe,
And of ſo great a fauor growing proud,
Diſdaine to roote the Sommer-ſwelling flowre,
And make rough winter euerlaſtingly.
Pro. Why Valentine, what Bragadiſme is this?
Val. Pardon me (Protheus) all I can is nothing,
To her, whoſe worth, make other worthies nothing;
Shee is alone.
Pro. Then let her alone.
Val. Not for the world: why man, ſhe is mine owne,
And I as rich in hauing ſuch a Iewell
As twenty Seas, if all their ſand were pearle,
The water, Nectar, and the Rocks pure gold.
Forgiue me, that I doe not dreame on thee,
Becauſe thou ſeeſt me doate vpon my loue:
My fooliſh Riuall that her Father likes
(Onely for his poſſeſſions are ſo huge)
Is gone with her along, and I muſt after,
For Loue (thou know'ſt is full of iealouſie.)
Pro. But ſhe loues you? (howre.
Val. I, and we are betrothd: nay more, our mariage
With all the cunning manner of our flight
Determin'd of: how I muſt climbe her window,
The Ladder made of Cords, and all the meanes
Plotted, and 'greed on for my happineſſe.
Good Protheus goe with me to my chamber,
In theſe affaires to aid me with thy counſaile.
Pro. Goe on before: I ſhall enquire you forth.
I muſt vnto the Road, to diſ-embarque
Some neceſſaries, that I needs muſt vſe,
And then Ile preſently attend you.
Val. Will you make haſte? Exit.
Pro. I will.
Euen as one heate, another heate expels,
Or as one naile, by ſtrength driues out another.
So the remembrance of my-former Loue
Is by a newer obiect quite forgotten,
It is mine, or Valentines praiſe?
Her true perfection, or my falſe tranſgreſſion?
That makes me reaſonleſſe, to reaſon thus?
Shee is faire; and ſo is Iulia that I loue,

(That

(That I did loue, for now my loue is thaw'd,
Which like a waxen Image 'gainſt a fire
Beares no impreſſion of the thing it was.)
Me thinkes my zeale to Valentine is cold,
And that I loue him not as I was wont:
O, but I loue his Lady too-too much,
And that's the reaſon I loue him ſo little.
How ſhall I dote on her with more aduice,
That thus without aduice begin to loue her?
'Tis but her picture I haue yet beheld,
And that hath dazel'd my reaſons light:
But when I looke on her perfections,
There is no reaſon, but I ſhall be blinde.
If I can checke my erring loue, I will,
If not, to compaſſe her Ile vſe my skill.

Exeunt.

Scena Quinta.

Enter Speed and Launce.

Speed. Launce, by mine honeſty welcome to Padua.

Laun. Forſweare not thy ſelfe, ſweet youth, for I am not welcome. I reckon this alwaies, that a man is neuer vndone till hee be hang'd, nor neuer welcome to a place, till ſome certaine ſhot be paid, and the Hoſteſſe ſay welcome.

Speed. Come on you mad-cap: Ile to the Ale-houſe with you preſently; where, for one ſhot of fiue pence, thou ſhalt haue fiue thouſand welcomes: But ſirha, how did thy Maſter part with Madam Iulia?

Laun. Marry after they clos'd in earneſt, they parted very fairely in ieſt.

Speed. But ſhall ſhe marry him?

Laun. No.

Speed. How then? ſhall he marry her?

Laun. No, neither.

Speed. What, are they broken?

Laun. No; they are both as whole as a fiſh.

Speed. Why then, how ſtands the matter with them?

Laun. Marry thus, when it ſtands well with him, it ſtands well with her.

Speed. What an aſſe art thou, I vnderſtand thee not.

Laun. What a blocke art thou, that thou canſt not? My ſtaffe vnderſtands me?

Speed. What thou ſaiſt?

Laun. I, and what I do too: looke thee, Ile but leane, and my ſtaffe vnderſtands me.

Speed. It ſtands vnder thee indeed.

Laun. Why, ſtand-vnder, and vnder-ſtand is all one.

Speed. But tell me true, will't be a match?

Laun. Aske my dogge, if he ſay I, it will: if hee ſay no, it will: if hee ſhake his taile, and ſay nothing, it will.

Speed. The concluſion is then, that it will.

Laun. Thou ſhalt neuer get ſuch a ſecret from me, but by a parable.

Speed. 'Tis well that I get it ſo: but Launce, how ſaiſt thou that that my maſter is become a notable Louer?

Laun. I neuer knew him otherwiſe.

Speed. Then how?

Laun. A notable Lubber: as thou reportedſt him to be.

Speed. Why, thou whorſon Aſſe, thou miſtak'ſt me.

Laun. Why Foole, I meant not thee, I meant thy Maſter.

Speed. I tell thee, my Maſter is become a hot Louer.

Laun. Why, I tell thee I care not, though hee burne himſelfe in Loue. If thou wilt goe with me to the Ale-houſe; if not, thou art an Hebrew, a Iew, and not worth the name of a Chriſtian.

Speed. Why?

Laun. Becauſe thou haſt not ſo much charity in thee as to goe to the Ale with a Chriſtian: Wilt thou goe?

Speed. At thy ſeruice.

Exeunt.

Scæna Sexta.

Enter Protheus ſolus.

Pro. To leaue my Iulia, ſhall I be forſworne?
To loue faire Siluia, ſhall I be forſworne?
To wrong my friend, I ſhall be much forſworne.
And ev'n that Powre which gaue me firſt my oath
Prouokes me to this three-fold periure.
Loue bad mee ſweare, and Loue bids me for-ſweare;
O ſweet-ſuggeſting Loue, if thou haſt ſin'd,
Teach me (thy tempted ſubiect) to excuſe it.
At firſt I did adore a twinkling Starre,
But now I worſhip a celeſtiall Sunne;
Vn-heedfull vowes may heedfully be broken,
And he wants wit, that wants reſolued will,
To learne his wit, t'exchange the bad for better;
Fie, fie, vnreuerend tongue, to call her bad,
Whoſe ſouereignty ſo oft thou haſt preſerd,
With twenty thouſand ſoule-confirming oathes.
I cannot leaue to loue; and yet I doe:
But there I leaue to loue, where I ſhould loue.
Iulia I looſe, and Valentine I looſe,
If I keepe them, I needs muſt looſe my ſelfe:
If I looſe them, thus finde I by their loſſe,
For Valentine, my ſelfe: for Iulia, Siluia.
I to my ſelfe am deerer then a friend,
For Loue is ſtill moſt precious in it ſelfe,
And Siluia (witneſſe heauen that made her faire)
Shewes Iulia but a ſwarthy Ethiope.
I will forget that Iulia is aliue,
Remembring that my Loue to her is dead.
And Valentine Ile hold an Enemie,
Ayming at Siluia as a ſweeter friend.
I cannot ouer-come conſtant to my ſelfe,
Without ſome treachery vs'd to Valentine.
This night he meaneth with a Corded-ladder
To climbe celeſtiall Siluia's chamber window,
My ſelfe in counſaile his competitor.
Now preſently Ile giue her father notice
Of their diſguiſing and pretended flight.
Who (all inrag'd) will baniſh Valentine:
For Thurio he intends ſhall wed his daughter,
But Valentine being gon, Ile quickely croſſe
By ſome ſlie tricke, blunt Thurio's dull proceeding.
Loue lend me wings, to make my purpoſe ſwift
As thou haſt lent me wit, to plot this drift.

Exit.

Scœna ſeptima.

Enter Iulia and Lucetta.

Iul Counſaile, Lucetta, gentle girle aſſiſt me,
And euen in kinde loue, I doe coniure thee,
Who art the Table wherein all my thoughts
Are viſibly Character'd, and engrau'd,
To leſſon me, and tell me ſome good meane
How with my honour I may vndertake
A iourney to my louing Protheus.
Luc. Alas, the way is wearifome and long
Iul. A true-deuoted Pilgrime is not weary
To meaſure Kingdomes with his feeble ſteps,
Much leſſe ſhall ſhe that hath Loues wings to flie,
And when the flight is made to one ſo deere,
Of ſuch diuine perfection as Sir Protheus
Luc. Better forbeare, till Protheus make returne.
Iul. Oh, know'ſt ſ not, his looks are my ſoules food?
Pitty the dearth that I haue pined in
By longing for that food ſo long a time.
Didſt thou but know the inly touch of Loue,
Thou wouldſt as ſoone goe kindle fire with ſnow
As ſeeke to quench the fire of Loue with words.
Luc. I doe not ſeeke to quench your Loues hot fire,
But qualifie the fires extreame rage
Leſt it ſhould burne aboue the bounds of reaſon
Iul. The more thou dam'ſt it vp, the more it burnes
The Current that with gentle murmure glides
(Thou know'ſt) being ſtop'd, impatiently doth rage.
But when his faire courſe is not hindered,
He makes ſweet muſicke with th'enameld ſtones,
Giuing a gentle kiſſe to euery ſedge
He ouer-taketh in his pilgrimage.
And ſo by many winding nookes he ſtraies
With willing ſport to the wilde Ocean
Then let me goe, and hinder not my courſe.
Ile be as patient as a gentle ſtreame,
And make a paſtime of each weary ſtep,
Till the laſt ſtep haue brought me to my Loue,
And there Ile reſt, as after much turmoile
A bleſſed ſoule doth in Elyzium.
Luc. But in what habit will you goe along?
Iul. Not like a woman, for I would preuent
The looſe encounters of laſciuious men
Gentle Lucetta, fit me with ſuch weedes
As may beſeeme ſome well reputed Page.
Luc. Why then your Ladiſhip muſt cut your haire
Iul. No girle, Ile knit it vp in ſilken ſtrings,
With twentie od-conceited true-loue knots
To be fantaſtique, may become a youth
Of greater time then I ſhall ſhew to be. (chen
Luc. What faſhion (Madam) ſhall I make your bree
Iul That fits as well, as tell me (good my Lord)
What compaſſe will you weare your Farthingale?
Why cu'n what faſhion thou beſt likes (Lucetta.)
Luc You muſt needs haue th'em with a cod-peece (Ma
Iul. Out, out, (Lucetta) that wilbe illfauourd (dam)
Luc. A round hoſe (Madam) now's not worth a pin
Vnleſſe you haue a cod-peece to ſtick pins on.
Iul. Lucetta, as thou lou'ſt me let me haue
What thou think'ſt meet, and is moſt mannerly
But tell me (wench) how will the world repute me
For vndertaking ſo vnſtaid a iourney?
I feare me it will make me ſcandaliz'd.
Luc. If you thinke ſo, then ſtay at home, and go not.
Iul. Nay, that I will not.
Luc. Then neuer dreame on Infamy, but go:
If Protheus like your iourney, when you come,
No matter who's diſpleas'd, when you are gone:
I feare me he will ſcarce be pleas'd with all.
Iul. That is the leaſt (Lucetta) of my feare:
A thouſand oathes, an Ocean of his teares,
And inſtances of infinite of Loue,
Warrant me welcome to my Protheus.
Luc. All theſe are ſeruants to deceitfull men.
Iul. Baſe men, that vſe them to ſo baſe effect;
But truer ſtarres did gouerne Protheus birth,
His words are bonds, his oathes are oracles,
His loue ſincere, his thoughts immaculate,
His teares, pure meſſengers, ſent from his heart,
His heart, as far from fraud, as heauen from earth.
Luc. Pray heau'n he proue ſo when you come to him.
Iul. Now, as thou lou'ſt me, do him not that wrong,
To beare a hard opinion of his truth:
Onely deſerue my loue, by louing him,
And preſently goe with me to my chamber
To take a note of what I ſtand in need of,
To furniſh me vpon my longing iourney
All that is mine I leaue at thy diſpoſe,
My goods, my Lands, my reputation,
Onely, in lieu thereof, diſpatch me hence.
Come; anſwere not: but to it preſently,
I am impatient of my tarriance

Exeunt.

Actus Tertius, Scena Prima.

Enter Duke, Thurio, Protheus, Valentine, Launce, Speed.

Duke Sir Thurio, giue vs leaue (I pray) a while,
We haue ſome ſecrets to confer about.
Now tell me Protheus, what's your will with me?
Pro. My gracious Lord, that which I wold diſcouer,
The Law of friendſhip bids me to conceale,
But when I call to minde your gracious fauours
Done to me (vndeſeruing as I am)
My duties pricks me on to vtter that
Which elſe, no worldly good ſhould draw from me.
Know (worthy Prince) Sir Valentine my friend
This night intends to ſteale away your daughter:
My ſelfe am one made priuy to the plot
I know you haue determin'd to beſtow her
On Thurio, whom your gentle daughter hates,
And ſhould ſhe thus be ſtolne away from you,
It would be much vexation to your age.
Thus (for my duties ſake) I rather choſe
To croſſe my friend in his intended drift,
Then (by concealing it) heap on your head
A pack of ſorrowes, which would preſſe you downe
(Being vnpreuented) to your timeleſſe graue
Duke. Protheus, I thank thee for thine honeſt care,
Which to requite, command me while I liue.
This loue of theirs my ſelfe haue often ſeene
Haply when they haue iudg'd me faſt aſleepe,
And oftentimes haue purpos'd to forbid

Sir

Sir Valentine her companie, and my Court.
But fearing leſt my iealous eyne might erre,
And ſo (vnworthily) diſgrace the man
(A raſhneſſe that I euer yet haue ſhun'd)
I gaue him gentle lookes, thereby to finde
That which thy ſelfe haſt now diſclos'd to me.
And that thou maiſt perceiue my feare of that,
Knowing that tender youth is ſoone ſuggeſted,
I nightly lodge her in an vpper Towre,
The key whereof, my ſelfe haue euer kept:
And thence ſhe cannot be conuay'd away.

Pro. Know (noble Lord) they haue deuis'd a meane
How he her chamber-window will aſcend,
And with a Corded-ladder fetch her downe:
For which, the youthfull Louer now is gone,
And this way comes he with it preſently.
Where (if it pleaſe you) you may intercept him.
But (good my Lord) doe it ſo cunningly
That my diſcouery be not aimed at:
For, loue of you, not hate vnto my friend,
Hath made me publiſher of this preſence.

Duke. Vpon mine Honor, he ſhall neuer know
That I had any light from thee of this.

Pro. Adiew, my Lord, Sir Valentine is comming.

Duke. Sir Valentine, whether away ſo faſt?

Val. Pleaſe it your Grace, there is a Meſſenger
That ſtayes to beare my Letters to my friends,
And I am going to deliuer them.

Duke. Be they of much import?

Val. The tenure of them doth but ſignifie
My health, and happy being at your Court.

Duke. Nay then no matter: ſtay with me a while,
I am to breake with thee of ſome affaires
That touch me neere: wherein thou muſt be ſecret.
'Tis not vnknown to thee, that I haue ſought
To match my friend Sir Thurio, to my daughter.

Val. I know it well (my Lord) and ſure the Match
Were rich and honourable: beſides, the gentleman
Is full of Vertue, Bounty, Worth, and Qualities
Beſeeming ſuch a Wife, as your faire daughter:
Cannot your Grace win her to fancie him?

Duke. No, truſt me, She is peeuiſh, ſullen, froward,
Proud, diſobedient, ſtubborne, lacking duty,
Neither regarding that ſhe is my childe,
Nor fearing me, as if I were her father:
And may I ſay to thee, this pride of hers
(Vpon aduice) hath drawne my loue from her,
And where I thought the remnant of mine age
Should haue beene cherish'd by her child-like durie,
I now am full reſolu'd to take a wife,
And turne her out, to who will take her in:
Then let her beauty be her wedding dowre:
For me, and my poſſeſſions ſhe eſteemes not.

Val. What would your Grace haue me to do in this?

Duke. There is a Lady in Verona heere
Whom I affect: but ſhe is nice, and coy,
And nought eſteemes my aged eloquence.
Now therefore would I haue thee to my Tutor
(For long agone I haue forgot to court, Beſides the faſhion of the time is chang'd)
How, and which way I may beſtow my ſelfe
To be regarded in her ſun-bright eye.

Val. Win her with gifts, if ſhe reſpect not words,
Dumbe Iewels often in their ſilent kinde
More then quicke words, doe moue a womans minde.

Duke. But ſhe did ſcorne a preſent that I ſent her,

Val. A woman ſometime ſcorns what beſt contents her.
Send her another: never giue her o're,
For ſcorne at firſt, makes after-loue the more.
If ſhe doe frowne, 'tis not in hate of you,
But rather to beget more loue in you.
If ſhe doe chide, 'tis not to haue you gone,
For why, the fooles are mad, if left alone.
Take no repulſe, what euer ſhe doth ſay,
For, get you gon, ſhe doth not meane away.
Flatter, and praiſe, commend, extoll their graces:
Though neere ſo blacke, ſay they haue Angells faces,
That man that hath a tongue, I ſay is no man,
If with his tongue he cannot win a woman.

Duke. But ſhe I meane, is promis'd by her friends
Vnto a youthfull Gentleman of worth,
And kept ſeuerely from reſort of men,
That no man hath acceſſe by day to her.

Val. Why then I would reſort to her by night.

Duke. I, but the doores be lockt, and keyes kept ſafe,
That no man hath recourſe to her by night.

Val. What letts but one may enter at her window?

Duke. Her chamber is aloft, far from the ground,
And built ſo ſheluing, that one cannot climbe it
Without apparant hazard of his life.

Val. Why then a Ladder quaintly made of Cords
To caſt vp, with a paire of anchoring hookes,
Would ſerue to ſcale another Hero's towre,
So bold Leander would aduenture it.

Duke. Now as thou art a Gentleman of blood
Aduiſe me, where I may haue ſuch a Ladder.

Val. When would you vſe it? pray ſir, tell me that.

Duke. This very night; for Loue is like a childe
That longs for euery thing that he can come by.

Val. By ſeuen a clock, Ile get you ſuch a Ladder.

Duke. But harke thee: I will goe to her alone,
How ſhall I beſt conuey the Ladder thither?

Val. It will be light (my Lord) that you may beare it
Vnder a cloake, that is of any length.

Duke. A cloake as long as thine will ſerue the turne?

Val. I my good Lord.

Duke. Then let me ſee thy cloake,
Ile get me one of ſuch another length.

Val. Why any cloake will ſerue the turn (my Lord)

Duke. How ſhall I faſhion me to weare a cloake?
I pray thee let me feele thy cloake vpon me.
What Letter is this ſame? what's here? To Siluia?
And heere an Engine fit for my proceeding.
Ile be ſo bold to breake the ſeale for once.

My thoughts do harbour with my Siluia nightly,
And ſlaues they are to me, that ſend them flying.
Oh, could their Maſter come, and go as lightly,
Himſelfe would lodge where (ſenceleſs) they are lying.
My Herald Thoughts, in thy pure-bleſſing reſt them,
While I (their King) that thither them importune
Do curſe the grace that with ſuch grace hath bleſt them,
Becauſe my ſelfe doe want my ſeruants fortune.
I curſe my ſelfe, for they are ſent by me,
That they ſhould harbour where their Lord ſhould be.

What's here? Siluia, this night I will enfranchiſe thee.
'Tis ſo: and heere's the Ladder for the purpoſe.
Why Phaeton (for thou art Merops ſonne)
Wilt thou aſpire to guide the heauenly Car?
And with thy daring folly burne the world?
Wilt thou reach ſtars, becauſe they ſhine on thee?

Goe base Intruder, ouer-weening Slaue,
Bestow thy fawning smiles on equall mates,
And thinke my patience, (more then thy desert)
Is priuiledge for thy departure hence.
Thanke me for this, more then for all the fauors
Which (all too-much) I haue bestowed on thee.
But if thou linger in my Territories
Longer then swiftest expedition
Will giue thee time to leaue our royall Court,
By heauen, my wrath shall farre exceed the loue
I euer bore my daughter, or thy selfe.
Be gone, I will not heare thy vaine excuse,
But as thou lou'st thy life, make speed from hence.

Val. And why not death, rather then liuing torment?
To die, is to be banisht from my selfe,
And Siluia is my selfe: banish'd from her
Is selfe from selfe. A deadly banishment:
What light, is light, if Siluia be not seene?
What ioy is ioy, if Siluia be not by?
Vnlesse it be to thinke that she is by
And feed vpon the shadow of perfection.
Except I be by Siluia in the night,
There is no musicke in the Nightingale.
Vnlesse I looke on Siluia in the day,
There is no day for me to looke vpon.
Shee is my essence, and I leaue to be;
If I be not by her faire influence
Foster'd, illumin'd, cherish'd, kept alive.
I flie not death, to flie his deadly doome,
Tarry I heere, I but attend on death,
But flie I hence, I flie away from life.

Pro. Run (boy) run, run, and seeke him out.

Lan. So-hough, So hough

Pro. What seest thou?

Lan. Him we goe to finde,
There's not a haire on's head, but 'tis a Valentine.

Pro. Valentine?

Val. No.

Pro. Who then? his Spirit?

Val. Neither.

Pro. What then?

Val. Nothing

Lan. Can nothing speake? Master, shall I strike?

Pro. Who wouldst thou strike?

Lan. Nothing.

Pro. Villaine, forbeare.

Lan. Why Sir, Ile strike nothing: I pray you.

Pro. Sirha, I say forbeare: friend Valentine, a word.

Val. My eares are stopt, & cannot hear good newes,
So much of bad already hath possest them.

Pro. Then in dumbe silence will I bury mine,
For they are harsh, vn-tuneable, and bad.

Val. Is Siluia dead?

Pro. No, Valentine.

Val. No Valentine indeed, for sacred Siluia,
Hath she forsworne me?

Pro. No, Valentine.

Val. No Valentine, if Siluia haue forsworne me.
What is your newes?

Lan. Sir, there is a proclamation, y^ you are vanished.

Pro. That thou art banish'd: oh that's the newes,
From hence, from Siluia, and from me thy friend.

Val. Oh, I haue fed vpon this woe already,
And now excesse of it will make me surfet.
Doth Siluia know that I am banish'd?

Pro. I, I: and she hath offered to the doome
(Which vn-reuersed stands in effectuall force)
A Sea of melting pearle, which some call teares;
Those at her fathers churlish feete she tendred,
With them vpon her knees, her humble selfe,
Wringing her hands, whose whitenes so became them,
As if but now they waxed pale for woe:
But neither bended knees, pure hands held vp,
Sad sighes, deepe grones, nor siluer-shedding teares
Could penetrate her vncompassionate Sire;
But Valentine, if he be tane, must die.
Besides, her intercession chaf'd him so,
When she for thy repeale was suppliant,
That to close prison he commanded her,
With many bitter threats of biding there.

Val. No more: vales the next word that thou speak'st
Haue some malignant power vpon my life:
If so: I pray thee breath it in mine eare,
As ending Antheme of my endlesse dolor.

Pro. Cease to lament for that thou canst not helpe,
And study helpe for that which thou lament'st.
Time is the Nurse, and breeder of all good;
Here, if thou stay, thou canst not see thy loue;
Besides, thy staying will abridge thy life:
Hope is a louers staffe, walke hence with that
And manage it, against despairing thoughts:
Thy letters may be here, though thou art hence,
Which, being writ to me, shall be deliuer'd
Euen in the milke-white bosome of thy Loue.
The time now serues not to expostulate,
Come, Ile conuey thee through the City-gate,
And ere I part with thee, confer at large
Of all that may concerne thy Loue-affaires:
As thou lou'st Siluia (though not for thy selfe)
Regard thy danger, and along with me.

Val. I pray thee Launce, and if thou seest my Boy
Bid him make haste, and meet me at the North-gate.

Pro. Goe sirha, finde him out: Come Valentine.

Val. Oh my deere Siluia; hapelesse Valentine.

Launce. I am but a foole, looke you, and yet I haue the wit to thinke my Master is a kinde of a knaue: but that's all one, if he be but one knaue: He liues not now that knowes me to be in loue, yet I am in loue, but a Teeme of horse shall not plucke that from me: nor who 'tis I loue: and yet 'tis a woman; but what woman, I will not tell my selfe: and yet 'tis a Milke-maid: yet 'tis not a maid: for shee hath had Gossips: yet 'tis a maid, for she is her Masters-maid, and serues for wages. She hath more qualities then a Water-Spaniell, which is much in a bare Christian: Heere is the Cate-log of her Condition. Inprimis, Shee can fetch and carry: why a horse can doe no more; nay, a horse cannot fetch, but only carry, therefore is shee better then a Jade. Item. She can milke, looke you, a sweet vertue in a maid with cleane hands.

Speed. How now Signior Launce? what newes with your Mastership?

La. With my Mastership? why, it is at Sea:

Sp. Well, your old vice still: mistake the word: what newes then in your paper?

La. The blackest newes that euer thou heard'st.

Sp. Why man? how blacke?

La. Why, as blacke as Inke.

Sp. Let me read them?

La. Fie on thee Iolt-head, thou canst not read.

Sp. Thou lyest: I can.

La. I will try thee: tell me this: who begot thee?

Sp. Marry,

Sp. Marry, the ſon of my Grand-father.

La. Oh illiterate loyterer; it was the ſonne of thy Grand-mother: this proues that thou canſt not read.

Sp. Come ſoole, come: try me in thy paper.

La. There: and S. Nicholas be thy ſpeed.

Sp. Iuprious ſhe can milke.

La. That ſhe can.

Sp. Item, ſhe brewes good Ale.

La. And thereof comes the prouerbe: (Bleſſing of your heart, you brew good Ale.)

Sp. Item, ſhe can ſowe.

La. That's as much as to ſay (Can ſhe ſo?)

Sp. Item ſhe can knit.

La. What needs a man care for a ſtock with a wench, When ſhe can knit him a ſtocke?

Sp. Item, ſhe can waſh and ſcoure.

La. A ſpeciall vertue: for then ſhee need not be waſh'd, and ſcour'd.

Sp. Item, ſhe can ſpin.

La. Then may I ſet the world on wheeles, when ſhe can ſpin for her living.

Sp. Item, ſhe hath many nameleſſe vertues.

La. That's as much as to ſay Baſtard-vertues: that indeede know not their fathers; and therefore haue no names.

Sp. Here follow her vices.

La. Cloſe as the heeles of her vertues.

Sp. Item, ſhee is not to be faſting in reſpect of her breath.

La. Well: that fault may be mended with a breakfaſt: read on.

Sp. Item, ſhe hath a ſweet mouth.

La. That makes amends for her ſoure breath.

Sp. Item, ſhe doth talke in her ſleepe.

La. It's no matter for that; ſo ſhee ſleepe not in her talke.

Sp. Item, ſhe is ſlow in words.

La. Oh villaine, that ſet this downe among her vices; To be ſlow in words, is a womans onely vertue: I pray thee out with't, and place it for her chiefe vertue.

Sp. Item, ſhe is proud.

La. Out with that too: It was Eues legacie, and cannot be t'ane from her.

Sp. Item, ſhe hath no teeth.

La. I care not for that neither: becauſe I loue crufts.

Sp. Item, ſhe is curſt.

La. Well: the beſt is, ſhe hath no teeth to bite.

Sp. Item, ſhe will often praiſe her liquor.

La. If her liquor be good, ſhe ſhall: if ſhe will not, I will; for good things ſhould be praiſed.

Sp. Item, ſhe is too liberall.

La. Of her tongue ſhe cannot; for that's writ downe ſhe is ſlow of: of her purſe, ſhee ſhall not, for that ile keepe ſhut: Now, of another thing ſhee may, and that cannot I helpe. Well, proceede.

Sp. Item, ſhee hath more haire then wit, and more faults then haires, and more wealth then faults.

La. Stop there: Ile haue her: ſhe was mine, and not mine, twice or thrice in that laſt Article: rehearſe that once more.

Sp. Item, ſhe hath more haire then wit.

La. More haire then wit: it may be ile proue it: The couer of the ſalt, hides the ſalt, and therefore it is more then the ſalt; the haire that couers the wit, is more then the wit; for the greater hides the leſſe: What's next?

Sp. And more faults then haires.

La. That's monſtrous: oh that that were out.

Sp. And more wealth then faults.

La. Why that word makes the faults gracious: Well, ile haue her: and if it be a match, as nothing is impoſſible.

Sp. What then?

La. Why then, will I tell thee, that thy Maſter ſtaies for thee at the North gate.

Sp. For me?

La. For thee? I, who art thou? he hath ſtaid for a better man then thee.

Sp. And muſt I goe to him?

La. Thou muſt run to him; for thou haſt ſtaid ſo long, that going will ſcarce ſerue the turne.

Sp. Why didſt not tell me ſooner? 'pox of your loue Letters.

La. Now will he be ſwing'd for reading my Letter; An vnmannerly ſlaue, that will thruſt himſelfe into ſecrets: Ile after, to reioyce in the boyes correction. Exeunt.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Duke, Thurio, Protheus.

Du. Sir Thurio, feare not, but that ſhe will loue you Now Valentine is baniſh'd from her ſight.

Th. Since his exile ſhe hath deſpis'd me moſt, Forſworne my company, and rail'd at me, That I am deſperate of obtaining her.

Du. This weake impreſſe of Loue, is as a figure Trenched in ice, which with an houres heate Diſſolues to water, and doth looſe his forme. A little time will melt her frozen thoughts, And worthleſſe Valentine ſhall be forgot. How now ſir Protheus, is your countriman (According to our Proclamation) gon?

Pro. Gon, my good Lord.

Du. My daughter takes his going grieuouſly?

Pro. A little time (my Lord) will kill that griefe.

Du. So I beleeue: but Thurio thinkes not ſo: Protheus, the good conceit I hold of thee, (For thou haſt ſhowne ſome ſigne of good deſert) Makes me the better to conſer with thee.

Pro. Longer then I proue loyall to your Grace, Let me not liue, to looke vpon your Grace.

Du. Thou know'ſt how willingly, I would effect The match betweene ſir Thurio, and my daughter?

Pro. I doe my Lord.

Du. And alſo, I thinke, thou art not ignorant How ſhe oppoſes her againſt my will?

Pro. She did my Lord, when Valentine was here.

Du. Land perverſly, ſhe perſeuers ſo: What might we doe to make the girle forget The loue of Valentine, and loue ſir Thurio?

Pro. The beſt way is, to ſlander Valentine, With falſehood, cowardize, and poore deſcent: Three things, that women highly hold in hate.

Du. I, but ſhe'll thinke, that it is ſpoke in hate.

Pro. I, if his enemy deliuer it. Therefore it muſt with circumſtance be ſpoken By one, whom ſhe eſteemeth as his friend.

Du. Then you muſt vndertake to ſlander him.

Pro.

Pro. And that (my Lord) I ſhall be loath to doe:
'Tis an ill office for a Gentleman,
Eſpecially againſt his very friend.
Du. Where your good word cannot aduantage him,
Your ſlander neuer can endamage him;
Therefore the office is indifferent,
Being intreated to it by your friend.
Pro. You haue preuail'd (my Lord) if I can doe it
By ought that I can ſpeake in his diſpraiſe,
She ſhall not long continue loue to him.
But ſay this weede her loue from Valentine,
It followes not that ſhe will loue fir Thurio.
Th. Therefore, as you vnwinde her loue from him;
Leaſt it ſhould rauell, and be good to none,
You muſt prouide to bottome it on me
Which muſt be done, by praiſing me as much
As you, in worth diſpraiſe, fir Valentine.
Du. And Protheus, we dare truſt you in this kinde,
Becauſe we know (on Valentines report)
You are already loues firme votary,
And cannot ſoone reuolt, and change your minde.
Vpon this warrant, ſhall you haue acceſſe,
Where you, with Siluia, may conferre at large
For ſhe is lumpiſh, heauy melancholly,
And (for your friends ſake) will be glad of you;
Where you may temper her, by your perſwaſion,
To hate yong Valentine, and loue my friend.
Pro. As much as I can doe, I will effect:
But you fir Thurio, are not ſharpe enough.
You muſt lay Lime, to tangle her deſires
By wailefull Sonnets, whoſe compoſed Rimes
Should be full fraught with ſeruiceable vowes.
Du. I, much is the force of heauen-bred Poeſie.
Pro. Say that vpon the altar of her beauty
You ſacrifice your teares, your ſighes, your heart:
Write till your inke be dry: and with your teares
Moiſt it againe: and frame ſome feeling line,
That may diſcouer ſuch integrity:
For Orpheus Lute, was ſtrung with Poets ſinewes,
Whoſe golden touch could ſoften ſteele and ſtones;
Make Tygers tame, and huge Leuiathans
Forſake vnſounded deepes, to dance on Sands.
After your dire-lamenting Elegies,
Viſit by night your Ladies chamber-window
With ſome ſweet Conſort; To their Inſtruments
Tune a deploring dumpe: the nights dead ſilence
Will well become ſuch ſweet complaining griefuance:
This, or elſe nothing, will inherit her.
Du. This diſcipline, ſhowes thou haſt bin in loue
Th. And thy aduice, this night, ile put in practiſe.
Therefore, ſweet Protheus, my direction-giuer,
Let vs into the City preſently
To ſort ſome Gentlemen, well skil'd in Muſicke.
I haue a Sonnet, that will ſerue the turne
To glue the on-ſet to thy good aduiſe.
Du. About it Gentlemen.
Pro. We'll wait vpon your Grace, till after Supper,
And afterward determine our proceedings.
Du. Euen now about it, I will pardon you. Exeunt.

Actus Quartus. Scœna Prima.

Enter Valentine, Speed, and certaine Out-lawes.
1. Out. Fellowes, ſtand faſt: I ſee a paſſenger.
2. Out. If there be ten, ſhrinke not, but down with 'em.
3. Out. Stand ſir, and throw vs that you haue about 'ye.
If not: we'll make you ſit, and riſle you.
Sp. Sir we are vndone; theſe are the Villaines
That all the Trauailers doe feare ſo much.
Val. My friends.
1. Out. That's not ſo, ſir: we are your enemies.
2. Out. Peace: we'll heare him.
3. Out. I by my beard will we: for he is a proper man.
Val. Then know that I haue little wealth to looſe;
A man I am, croſs'd with aduerſitie:
My riches, are theſe poore habiliments,
Of which, if you ſhould here diſfurniſh me,
You take the ſum and ſubſtance that I haue.
2. Out. Whether trauell you?
Val. To Verona.
1. Out. Whence came you?
Val. From Millaine.
3. Out. Haue you long ſoiourn'd there? (ſtaid,
Val. Some ſixteene moneths, and longer might haue
If crooked fortune had not thwarted me.
1. Out. What, were you baniſh'd thence?
Val. I was.
2. Out. For what offence?
Val. For that which now torments me to rehearſe;
I kil'd a man, whoſe death I much repent,
But yet I ſlew him manfully, in fight,
Without falſe vantage, or baſe treachery.
1. Out. Why nere repent it, if it were done ſo;
But were you baniſht for ſo ſmall a fault?
Val. I was, and held me glad of ſuch a doome.
2. Out. Haue you the Tongues?
Val. My youthfull trauaile, therein made me happy,
Or elſe I often had beene often miſerable.
3. Out By the bare ſcalpe of Robin Hoods fat Fryer,
This fellow were a King, for our wilde faction.
1. Out. We'll haue him: Sirs, a word
Sp. Maſter, be one of them:
It's an honourable kinde of theeuery.
Val. Peace villaine.
2. Out. Tell vs this: haue you any thing to take to?
Val. Nothing but my fortune.
3. Out. Know then, that ſome of vs are Gentlemen,
Such as the fury of vngouern'd youth
Thruſt from the company of awfull men.
My ſelfe was from Verona baniſhed,
For practiſing to ſteale away a Lady,
And heire and Neece, allide vnto the Duke.
2. Out. And I from Mantua, for a Gentleman,
Who, in my moode, I ſtab'd vnto the heart.
1. Out. And I, for ſuch like petty crimes as theſe
But to the purpoſe: for we cite our faults,
That they may hold excus'd our lawleſſe liues,
And partly ſeeing you are beautifide
With goodly ſhape; and by your owne report,
A Linguiſt, and a man of ſuch perfection,
As we doe in our quality much want.
2. Out. Indeede becauſe you are a baniſh'd man,
Therefore, aboue the reſt, we parley to you:
Are you content to be our Generall?
To make a vertue of neceſſity,
And liue as we doe in this wilderneſſe?
3. Out. What ſaiſt thou? wilt thou be of our conſort?
Say I, and be the captaine of vs all:
We'll doe thee homage, and be rul'd by thee,
Loue thee, as our Commander, and our King.

1. Out

1. Out. But if thou scorne our curtesie, thou dyest.
2. Out. Thou shalt not liue, to brag what we haue of-
Val. I take your offer, and will liue with you, (fer'd.
Prouided that you do no outrages
On silly women, or poore passengers.
3. Out. No, we detest such vile base practises.
Come, goe with vs, we'l bring thee to our Crewes,
And show thee all the Treasure we haue got;
Which, with our selues, all rest at thy dispose. Exeunt.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Protheus, Thurio, Iulia, Host, Musitian, Silvia.

Pro. Already haue I bin false to Valentine,
And now I must be as vniust to Thurio,
Vnder the colour of commending him,
I haue access my owne loue to prefer.
But Siluia is too faire, too true, too holy,
To be corrupted with my worthlesse guifts;
When I protest true loyalty to her,
She twits me with my falsehood to my friend;
When to her beauty I commend my vowes,
She bids me thinke how I haue bin forsworne
In breaking faith with Iulia, whom I lou'd;
And notwithstanding all her sodaine quips,
The least whereof would quell a louers hope:
Yet (Spaniel-like) the more she spurnes my loue,
The more it growes, and fawneth on her still;
But here comes Thurio; now must we to her window,
And giue some euening Musique to her eare.

Th. How now, sir Protheus, are you crept before vs?

Pro. I gentle Thurio, for you know that loue
Will creepe in seruice, where it cannot goe.

Th. I but I hope, Sir, that you loue not here.

Pro. Sir, but I do: or else I would be hence.

Th. Who, Siluia?

Pro. I, Siluia, for your sake.

Th. I thanke you for your owne: Now Gentlemen
Let's tune, and to it lustily a while.

Ho. Now, my yong gooth, me thinks your' allycholly I pray you why is it?

Iu. Marry (mine Host) because I cannot be merry.

Ho. Come, we'll haue you merry: ile bring you where you shall heare Musique, and see the Gentleman that you ask'd for.

Iu. But shall I heare him speake.

Ho. I that you shall.

Iu. That will be Musique.

Ho. Harke, harke.

Iu. Is he among these?

Ho. I: but peace, let's heare'm.

Song. Who is Siluia? what is she?
That all our Swaines commend her?
Holy, faire, and wise is she.
The heauen such grace did lend her,
that she might be admired be.
Is she kinde as she is faire?
For beauty liues with kindenesse:
Loue doth to her eyes repaire,
To helpe him of his blindenesse:
And being help'd, inhabits there.
Then to Siluia, let vs sing,
That Siluia is excelling;
She excels each mortall thing
Vpon the dull earth dwelling.
To her let vs Garlands bring.

Ho. How now? are you sadder then you were before;
How doe you, man? the Musicke likes you not.

Iu. You mistake: the Musitian likes me not.

Ho. Why, my pretty youth?

Iu. He plaies false (father.)

Ho. How, out of tune on the strings.

Iu. Not so: but yet
So false that he grieues my very heart-strings.

Ho. You haue a quicke eare (heare.

Iu. I, I would I were deafe: it makes me haue a slow

Ho. I perceiue you delight not in Musique.

Iu. Not a whit, when it iars so.

Ho. Harke, what fine change is in the Musique.

Iu. I: that change is the spight.

Ho. You would haue them alwaies play but one thing.

Iu. I would alwaies haue one play but one thing.
But Host, doth this Sir Protheus, that we talke on,
Often resort vnto this Gentlewoman?

Ho. I tell you what Launce his man told me,
He lou'd her out of all nicke.

Iu. Where is Launce?

Ho. Gone to seeke his dog, which to morrow, by his Masters command, hee must carry for a present to his Lady.

Iu. Peace, stand aside, the company parts.

Pro. Sir Thurio, feare not you, I will so plead,
That you shall say, my cunning drift excels.

Th. Where meete we?

Pro. At Saint Gregories well.

Th. Farewell.

Pro. Madam: good eu'n to your Ladiship.

Sil. I thanke you for your Musique (Gentlemen)
Who is that that spake?

Pro. One (Lady) if you knew his pure hearts truth,
You would quickly learne to know him by his voice.

Sil. Sir Protheus, as I take it.

Pro. Sir Protheus (gentle Lady) and your Seruant.

Sil. What's your will?

Pro. That I may compasse yours.

Sil. You haue your wish: my will is euen this,
That presently you hie you home to bed:
Thou subtile, periur'd, false, disloyall man:
Think'st thou I am so shallow, so conceitlesse,
To be seduced by thy flattery,
That has't deceiu'd so many with thy vowes?
Returne, returne and make thy loue amends:
For me (by this pale queene of night I sweare)
I am so farre from granting thy request,
That I despise thee, for thy wrongfull suite,
And by and by intend to chide my selfe,
Euen for this time I spend in talking to thee.

Pro. I grant (sweet loue) that I did loue a Lady,
But she is dead.

Iu. 'Twere false, if I should speake it;
For I am sure she is not buried.

Sil. Say that she be: yet Valentine thy friend
Suruiues; to whom (thy selfe art witnesse)
I am betroth'd; and art thou not asham'd
To wrong him, with thy importunacy?

Pro. I likewiſe heare that Valentine is dead.
Sil. And ſo ſuppoſe am I; for in her graue
Aſſure thy ſelfe, my loue is buried.
Pro. Sweet Lady, let me rake it from the earth.
Sil. Goe to thy Ladies graue and call hers thence,
Or at the leaſt, in hers, ſepulcher thine.
Iul. He heard not that.
Pro. Madam: if your heart be ſo obdurate:
Vouchſafe me yet your Picture for my loue,
The Picture that is hanging in your chamber:
To that ile ſpeake, to that ile ſigh and weepe:
For ſince the ſubſtance of your perfect ſelfe
Is elſe deuoted, I am but a ſhadow;
And to your ſhadow, will I make true loue.
Iul. If 'twere a ſubſtance you would ſure deceiue it,
And make it but a ſhadow, as I am.
Sil. I am very loath to be your Idoll Sir;
But, ſince your falſehood ſhall become you well
To worſhip ſhadowes, and adore falſe ſhapes,
Send to me in the morning, and ile ſend it:
And ſo, good reſt.
Pro. As wretches haue ore-night
That wait for execution in the morne.
Iul. Hoſt, will you goe?
Ho. By my hallidome, I was faſt aſleepe.
Iul. Pray you, where lies Sir Protheus?
Ho. Marry, at my houſe:
Truſt me, I thinke 'tis almoſt day.
Iul. Not ſo: but it hath bin the longeſt night
That ere I watch'd, and the moſt heauieſt.

Scæna Tertia.

Enter Eglamore, Silvia.

Eg. This is the houre that Madam Silvia
Entreated me to call, and know her minde
Ther's ſome great matter ſhe'ld employ me in.
Madam, Madam.
Sil. Who cals?
Eg. Your ſeruant, and your friend;
One that attends your Ladiſhips command.
Sil. Sir Eglamore, a thouſand times good morrow.
Eg. As many (worthy Lady) to your ſelfe:
According to your Ladiſhips impoſe,
I am thus early come, to know what ſeruice
It is your pleaſure to command me in.
Sil. Oh Eglamoure, thou art a Gentleman:
Thinke not I flatter (for I ſweare I doe not)
Valiant, wiſe, remorſe-full, well accompliſh'd.
Thou art not ignorant what deere good will
I beare vnto the baniſh'd Valentine:
Nor how my father would enforce me marry
Vaine Thurio (whom my very ſoule abhor'd.)
Thy ſelfe haſt lou'd, and I haue heard thee ſay
No griefe did euer come ſo neere thy heart,
As when thy Lady, and thy true-loue dide,
Vpon whoſe Graue thou vow'dſt pure chaſtitie:
Sir Eglamoure: I would to Valentine
To Mantua, where I heare, he makes abode;
And for the wayes are dangerous to paſſe,
I doe deſire thy worthy company,
Vpon whoſe faith and honor, I repoſe.
Vrge not my fathers anger (Eglamoure)
But thinke vpon my griefe (a Ladies griefe)
And on the iuſtice of my flying hence,
To keepe me from a moſt vnholy match,
Which heauen and fortune ſtill rewards with plagues.
I doe deſire thee, euen from a heart
As full of ſorrowes, as the Sea of ſands,
To beare me company, and goe with me:
If not, to hide what I haue ſaid to thee,
That I may venture to depart alone.
Egl. Madam, I pitty much your grieuances,
Which, ſince I know they vertuouſly are plac'd,
I giue conſent to goe along with you,
Wreaking as little what betideth me,
As much, I wiſh all good befortune you.
When will you goe?
Sil. This euening comming.
Eg. Where ſhall I meete you?
Sil. At Frier Patrickes Cell,
Where I intend holy Confeſſion.
Eg. I will not faile your Ladiſhip:
Good morrow (gentle Lady.)
Sil. Good morrow, kinde Sir Eglamoure. Exeunt.

Scena Quarta.

Enter Launce, Protheus, Iulia, Silvia.

Lau. When a mans ſeruant ſhall play the Curre with him (looke you) it goes hard: one that I brought vp of a puppy: one that I ſau'd from drowning, when three or foure of his blinde brothers and ſiſters went to it: I haue taught him (euen as one would ſay preciſely, thus I would teach a dog) I was ſent to deliuer him, as a preſent to Miſtris Silvia, from my Maſter; and I came no ſooner into the dyning-chamber, but he ſteps me to her Trencher, and ſteales her Capons-leg: O, 'tis a foule thing, when a Cur cannot keepe himſelfe in all companies: I would haue (as one ſhould ſay) one that takes vpon him to be a dog indeede, to be, as it were, a dog at all things. If I had not had more wit then he, to take a fault vpon me that he did, I thinke verily hee had bin hang'd for't: ſure as I liue he had ſuffer'd for't: you ſhall iudge: Hee thruſts me himſelfe into the company of three or foure gentleman-like-dogs, vnder the Dukes table: hee had not bin there (bleſſe the marke) a piſſing while, but all the chamber ſmelt him: out with the dog (ſaies one) what cur is that (ſaies another) whip him out (ſaies the third) hang him vp (ſaies the Duke.) I hauing bin acquainted with the ſmell before, knew it was Crab; and goes me to the fellow that whips the dogges: friend (quoth I) you meane to whip the dog: I marry doe I (quoth he) you doe him the more wrong (quoth I) 'twas I did the thing you wot of: he makes me no more adoe, but whips me out of the chamber: how many Maſters would doe this for his Seruant? nay, ile be ſworne I haue ſat in the ſtockes, for puddings he hath ſtolne, otherwiſe he had bin executed: I haue ſtood on the Pillorie for Geeſe he hath kil'd, otherwiſe he had ſuffered for't: thou think'ſt not of this now: nay, I remember the tricke you ſeru'd me, when I tooke my leaue of Madam Silvia: did not

ſhill marke me, and doe as I do; when did'ſt aue vp my leg, and make water againſt a s farthingale? did'ſt thou euer ſee me doe

ame is thy name: I like thee well, by thee in ſome ſeruice peeſently.
u you pleaſe, ſhe doe what I can.
thou wilt.
whoo-ſon peazant.
ou bin theſe two dayes loytering?
Sir, I carried Maſtris Siluia the dogge you hat ſaies ſhe to my little Iewell?

ſhe ſaies your dog was a cur, and tels you is good enough for ſuch a preſent.
u receiu'd my dog?
uede did ſhe not.
ough't him backe againe.
didſt thou offer her this from me?
e other Squirrill was ſtolne from me am boyes in the market place.
r'd her maine owne, who is a dog
f yours, & therefore the guilt the greater.
ge: thee hence, and finde my dog againe,
e againe into my ſight.
ayeſt thou to vexe me here;
ll an end, tarries me ſo ſhame?
e entertained thee,
ſtue needs of ſuch a youth,
ſome diſcretion doe my buſineſſe;
ing to yond ſoolish Lowt,
or thy face, and thy behauiour, Angury deceiue me not)
d bringing vp, fortune, and truth:
ue thee, for this I entertaine thee.
nd take this Ring with thee
Madam Siluia;
well, deliuer'd it to me
ies you lou'd not her, nor leaue her token:
like?
lo: I thanke ſhe liues.

do'ſt thou cry alas?
not chooſe her pitty her efore ſhould'ſt thou pitty her?
ſe, methinkes that ſhe lou'd you as well
ue your Lady Siluia
n him, that has forgot her loue, her, that cares not for your loue.
e, ſhould be ſo contrary
ou it, makes me cry alas.
: goe her that Ring, and therewithall
tifie her chamber: Tell my Lady, tunate for her heauenly Picture:
dome, hye home vnto my chamber,
ſhalt finde me faſt, and ſolitarie.
any woman would doe ſuch a meſſage?
ellow, thou haſt engrauen'd
the Shepheard of thy Lambs, ore, why doe I pitty him
very heart deſpiſeth me?
es her, he deſpiſeth me,
him, I muſt pitty him.
ore him, when he parted from me,
to remember my good will
I (vnhappy Meſſenger)
To plead for that, which I would not obtaine,
To carry that, which I would haue refus'd
To praiſe his faith, which I would haue diſprais'd.
I am my Maſters true confirmed Loue,
But cannot be true ſeruant to my Maſter,
Vnleſſe I proue falſe traitor to my ſelfe
Yet will I woe for him, but yet ſo coldly,
As (heauen it knowes) I would not haue him ſpeed.
Gentlewoman, good day. I pray you be my meane
To bring me where to ſpeake with Madam Siluia.
Sil. What would you with her, if that I be ſhe?
Iul. If you be ſhe, I doe intreat your patience
To heare me ſpeake the meſſage I am ſent on.
Sil From whom?
Iul. From my Maſter, Sir Protheus Madam.
Sil. Oh: he ſends you for a Picture?
Iul. I, Madam.
Sil. Vrſula, bring my Picture there,
Goe, giue your Maſter this: tell him from me
One Iulia, that his changing thoughts forget
Would better fit his Chamber, then this Shadow.
Iul. Madam, pleaſe you peruſe this Letter;
Pardon me (Madam) I haue vnaduis'd
Deliuer'd you a paper that I ſhould not;
This is the Letter to your Ladiſhip.
Sil. I pray thee let me looke on that againe.
Iul. It may not be: good Madam pardon me.
Sil. There, hold:
I will not looke vpon your Maſters lines.
I know they are ſtuft with proteſtations,
And full of new-found oathes, which he will breake
As eaſily as I doe teare his paper.
Iul. Madam, he ſends your Ladiſhip this Ring.
Sil. The more ſhame for him, that he ſends it me;
For I haue heard him ſay a thouſand times,
His Iulia gaue it him, at his departure
Though his falſe finger haue prophan'd the Ring,
Mine ſhall not doe his Iulia ſo much wrong.
Iul. She thankes you.
Sil. What ſai'ſt thou?
Iul. I thanke you Madam, that you tender her:
Poore Gentlewoman, my Maſter wrongs her much.
Sil. Do'ſt thou know her?
Iul. Almoſt as well as I doe know my ſelfe.
To thinke vpon her woes, I doe proteſt
That I haue wept a hundred ſeuerall times.
Sil. Belike ſhe thinks that Protheus hath forſook her?
Iul. I thinke ſhe doth: and that's her cauſe of ſorrow.
Sil. Is ſhe not paſſing faire?
Iul. She hath bin fairer (Madam) then ſhe is.
When ſhe did thinke my Maſter lou'd her well;
She, in my iudgement, was as faire as you.
But ſince ſhe did neglect her looking-glaſſe,
And threw her Sun-expelling Maſque away,
The ayre hath ſtarv'd the roſes in her cheekes,
And pinch'd the lilly-tincture of her face,
That now ſhe is become as blacke as I.
Sil. How tall was ſhe?
Iul. About my ſtature: for at Pentecoſt,
When all our Pageants of delight were plaid,
Our youth got me to play the womans part,
And I was trim'd in Madam Iulias gowne,
Which ſerued me as fit, by all mens iudgements,
As if the garment had bin made for me:
Therefore I know ſhe is about my height,
And at that time I made her weepe a good,

For

For I did play a lamentable part.
(Madam) 'twas Ariadne, paſſioning
For Theſeus periury, and vniuſt flight;
Which I ſo liuely acted with my teares:
That my poore Miſtris moued therewithall,
Wept bitterly: and would I might be dead,
If I in thought felt not her very ſorrow.
Sil. She is beholding to thee (gentle youth)
Alas (poore Lady) deſolate, and left;
I weepe my ſelfe to thinke vpon thy words.
Here youth: there is my purſe; I giue thee this (well.
For thy ſweet Miſtris ſake, becauſe thou lou'ſt her. Fare-
Iul. And ſhe ſhall thanke you for't, if ere you know
A vertuous gentlewoman, milde, and beautifull. (her.
I hope my Maſters ſuit will be but cold,
Since ſhe reſpects my Miſtris loue ſo much.
Alas, how loue can trifle with it ſelfe:
Here is her Picture: let me ſee, I thinke
If I had ſuch a Tyre, this face of mine
Were full as louely, as is this of hers;
And yet the Painter flatter'd her a little,
Vnleſſe I flatter with my ſelfe too much.
Her haire is Aburne, mine is perfect Yellow,
If that be all the difference in his loue,
Ile get me ſuch a coulour'd Perrywig:
Her eyes are grey as glaſſe, and ſo are mine:
I, but her fore-head's low, and mine's as high.
What ſhould it be that he reſpects in her,
But I can make reſpectiue in my ſelfe?
If this fond Loue, were not a blinded god.
Come ſhadow, come, and take this ſhadow vp,
For 'tis thy riuall. O thou ſenceleſſe forme,
Thou ſhalt be worſhip'd, kiſs'd, lou'd, and ador'd;
And were there ſence in his Idolatry,
My ſubſtance ſhould be ſtatue in thy ſtead.
Ile vſe thee kindly, for thy Miſtris ſake
That vs'd me ſo: or elſe by Ioue, I vow,
I ſhould haue ſcratch'd out your vnſeeing eyes,
To make my Maſter out of loue with thee. Exeunt.

Actus Quintus. Scœna Prima.

Enter Eglamoure, Siluia.

Egl. The Sun begins to guild the weſterne skie
And now it is about the very houre
That Siluia, at Fryer Patrecks Cell ſhould meet me,
She will not faile; for Louers breake not houres,
Vnleſſe it be to come before their time,
So much they ſpur their expedition.
See where ſhe comes: Lady a happy euening.
Sil. Amen, Amen: goe on (good Eglamoure)
Out at the Poſterne by the Abbey wall;
I feare I am attended by ſome Spies.
Egl. Feare not: the Forreſt is not three leagues off,
If we recouer that, we are ſure enough. Exeunt.

Scœna Secunda.

Enter Thurio, Protheus, Iulia, Duke.

Th. Sir Protheus, what ſaies Siluia to my ſuit?
Pro. Oh Sir, I finde her milder then ſhe was,
And yet ſhe takes exceptions at your perſon.
Thu. What? that my leg is too long?
Pro. No, that it is too little. (dee.
Thu. Ile weare a Boote, to make it ſomewhat roun-
Pro. But loue will not be ſpurd to what it loathes.
Thu. What ſaies ſhe to my face?
Pro. She ſaies it is a faire one.
Thu. Nay then the wanton lyes: my face is blacke
Pro. But Pearles are faire; and the old ſaying is,
Blacke men are Pearles, in beauteous Ladies eyes.
Thu. 'Tis true, ſuch Pearles as put out Ladies eyes,
For I had rather winke, then looke on them.
Thu. How likes ſhe my diſcourſe?
Pro. Ill, when you talke of war.
Thu. But well, when I diſcourſe of loue and peace.
Iul. But better indeede, when you hold you peace.
Thu. What ſayes ſhe to my valour?
Pro. Oh Sir, ſhe makes no doubt of that.
Iul. She needes not, when ſhe knowes it cowardize.
Thu. What ſaies ſhe to my birth?
Pro. That you are well deriu'd.
Iul. True: from a Gentleman, to a foole.
Thu. Conſiders ſhe my Poſſeſſions?
Pro. Oh, I: and pities them.
Thu. Wherefore?
Iul. That ſuch an Aſſe ſhould owe them.
Pro. That they are out by Leaſe.
Iul. Here comes the Duke.
Du. How now ſir Protheus; how now Thurio?
Which of you ſaw Eglamoure of late?
Thu. Not I.
Pro. Nor I.
Du. Saw you my daughter?
Pro. Neither.
Du. Why then
She's fled vnto that peazant, Valentine,
And Eglamoure is in her Company.
'Tis true: for Frier Laurence met them both
As he, in penance wander'd through the Forreſt:
Him he knew well: and gueſt that it was ſhe,
But being maſk'd, he was not ſure of it.
Beſides ſhe did intend Confeſſion
At Patrecks Cell this euen, and there ſhe was not.
Theſe likelihoods confirme her flight from hence;
Therefore I pray you ſtand, not to diſcourſe,
But mount you preſently, and meete with me
Vpon the riſing of the Mountaine foote
That leads toward Mantua, whether they are fled:
Diſpatch (ſweet Gentlemen) and follow me.
Thu. Why this it is, to be a peeuiſh Girle,
That flies her fortune when it followes her:
Ile after; more to be reueng'd on Eglamoure,
Then for the loue of reck-leſſe Siluia.
Pro. And I will follow, more for Siluias loue
Then hate of Eglamoure that goes with her.
Iul. And I will follow, more to croſſe that loue
Then hate for Siluia, that is gone for loue. Exeunt.

Scœna Tertia.

Siluia, One-Speech.

1. One. Come, come be patient:

We

ng you to our Captaine.
uſand more miſchances then this one me how to brooke this patiently.
ome, bring her away.
here is the Gentleman that was with her?
ag nimble footed, he hath out-run vs.
nd Valerius follow him:
th her to the Weſt end of the wood,
Captaine: We'll follow him that's fled,
is beſet, he cannot ſcape.
ome. I muſt bring you to our Captaine ſtaue.
e beares an honourable minde,
uſe a woman lawleſſy.
dertune: this I endure for thee.

Exeunt.

Scena Quarta.

ine, Protheus, Siluia, Iulia, Duke, Thurio, ts.
w vſe doth breed a habit in a man?
y deſart, vnfrequented woods
ke them flouriſhing peopled Townes:
alone, vn-ſeene of any,
ghtingales complaining Notes
reſſes, and record my woes,
doſt inhabit in my breſt,
e Manſion ſo long Tenant-leſſe, ominous, the building fall,
memory of what it was,
with thy preſence, Siluia:
Nimph, cherith thy for-lorne ſwaine.
ring, and what ſlir is this to day?
mates, that make their wills their Law,
vnhappy paſſenger in chace;
e well: yet I haue much to doe em from vneuill outrages.
hee Valentine: who't this comes heere?
dam, this ſeruice I haue done for you (reſpect not aught your ſeruant doth) ſe, and reskew you from him.
haue forc'd your honour, and your loue,
ne for my meed, but one faire looke:
oone then this I cannot beg, en this, I am ſure you cannot giue)
w like a dreame is this? I ſee, and heare:
ne patience to forbeare a while.
derable, vnhappy that I am.
appy were you (Madam) ere I came;
oming, I haue made you happy.
y approach thou mak'ſt me moſt vnhappy.
me, when he approacheth to your preſence.
I beene ceaſed by a hungry Lion, e beene a break-faſt to the Beaſt,
haue falſe Protheus reskue me:
e iudge how I loue Valentine,
as tender to me as my ſoule, ooth (for more there cannot be) falſe periur'd Protheus:
e gone, ſolicit me no more.
at dangerous action, ſtood it next to death
e vndergone, for one calme looke:
eſt in Loue, and ſtill approu'd
When women cannot loue, where they're belou'd.
Sil. When Protheus cannot loue, where he's belou'd:
Read ouer Iulia's heart, (thy firſt beſt Loue)
For whoſe deare ſake, thou didſt then rend thy faith
Into a thouſand oathes; and all thoſe oathes,
Deſcended into periury, to loue me,
Thou haſt no faith left now, vnleſſe thou'dſt two,
And that's farre worſe then none: better haue none
Then plurall faith, which is too much by one:
Thou Counterfeyt, to thy true friend.
Pro. In Loue,
Who reſpects friend?
Sil. All men but Protheus.
Pro. Nay, if the gentle ſpirit of mouing words
Can no way change you to a milder forme:
Ile woo you like a Souldier, at armes end,
And loue you gainſt the nature of Loue: force ye.
Sil. Oh heauen.
Pro. Ile force thee yeeld to my deſire.
Val. Ruffian: let goe that rude vnciuill touch,
Thou friend of an ill faſhion.
Pro. Valentine.
Val. Thou cõmon friend, that's without faith or loue.
For ſuch is a friend now: treacherous man,
Thou haſt beguil'd my hopes; nought but mine eye
Could haue perſwaded me: now I dare not ſay
I haue one friend aliue; thou wouldſt diſproue me:
Who ſhould be truſted, when one's right hand
Is periured to the boſome? Protheus
I am ſorry I muſt neuer truſt thee more,
But count the world a ſtranger for thy ſake:
The priuate wound is deepeſt: oh time, moſt accurſt:
'Mongſt all foes that a friend ſhould be the worſt?
Pro. My ſhame and guilt confounds me:
Forgiue me Valentine: if hearty ſorrow
Be a ſufficient Ranſome for offence,
I tender't heere: I doe as truely ſuffer,
As ere I did commit.
Val. Then I am paid:
And once againe, I doe receiue thee honeſt;
Who by Repentance is not ſatisfied,
Is not of heauen, nor earth; for theſe are pleas'd:
By Penitence th'Eternalls wrath's appeas'd:
And that my loue may appeare plaine and free,
All that was mine, in Siluia, I giue thee.
Iul. Oh me vnhappy.
Pro. Looke to the Boy.
Val. Why, Boy?
Why wag: how now? what's the matter? look vp: ſpeak.
Iul. O good ſir, my maſter charg'd me to deliuer a ring to Madam Siluia: which (out of my neglect) was neuer done.
Pro. Where is that ring? boy?
Iul. Heere 'tis: this is it.
Pro. How? let me ſee.
Why this is the ring I gaue to Iulia.
Iul. Oh, cry you mercy ſir, I haue miſtooke:
This is the ring you ſent to Siluia.
Pro. But how cam'ſt thou by this ring? at my depart
I gaue this vnto Iulia.
Iul. And Iulia her ſelfe did giue it me,
And Iulia her ſelfe hath brought it hither.
Pro. How? Iulia?
Iul. Behold her, that gaue ayme to all thy oathes,
And entertain'd 'em deepely in her heart.
How oft haſt thou with periury cleft the roote?
Oh Protheus, let this habit make thee bluſh.

Be thou aſham'd that I haue tooke vpon me
Such an immodeſt rayment ; if ſhame liue
In a diſguiſe of loue?
It is the leſſer blot modeſty findes,
Women to change their ſhapes, then men their minds.
Pro. Then men their minds? tis true: oh heuen, were man
But Conſtant, he were perfect; that one error
Fils him with faults: makes him run through all th'ſins;
Inconſtancy falls-off, ere it begins
What is in Siluia's face, but I may ſpie
More freſh in Iulia's, with a conſtant eye?
Val. Come, come: a hand from either.
Let me be bleſt to make this happy cloſe
'Twere pitty two ſuch friends ſhould be long foes.
Pro. Beare witnes (heauen) I haue my wiſh for euer.
Iul. And I mine.
Out-l. A prize: a prize: a prize.
Val. Forbeare, forbeare I ſay: It is my Lord the Duke.
Your Grace is welcome to a man diſgrac'd, Baniſhed Valentine.
Duke. Sir Valentine?
Thu. Yonder is Siluia: and Siluia's mine.
Val. Thurio giue backe; or elſe embrace thy death:
Come not within the meaſure of my wrath
Doe not name Siluia thine: if once againe,
Verona ſhall not hold thee: heere ſhe ſtands,
Take but poſſeſſion of her, with a Touch
I dare thee, but to breath vpon my Loue,
Thur. Sir Valentine, I care not for her, I:
I hold him but a foole that will endanger
His Body, for a Girle that loues him not:
I claime her not, and therefore ſhe is thine.
Duke. The more degenerate and baſe art thou
To make ſuch meanes for her, as thou haſt done,
And leaue her on ſuch ſlight conditions.
Now, by the honor of my Anceſtry
I doe applaud thy ſpirit, Valentine,
And thinke thee worthy of an Empreſſe loue:
Know then, I heere forget all former greeſes,
Cancell all grudge, repeale thee home againe,
Plead a new ſtate in thy vn-riual'd merit,
To which I thus ſubſcribe: Sir Valentine,
Thou art a Gentleman, and well deriu'd,
Take thou thy Siluia, for thou haſt deſeru'd her.
Val. I thank your Grace, y gift hath made me happy:
I now beſeech you (for your daughters ſake)
To grant one Boone that I ſhall aske of you.
Duke. I grant it (for thine owne) whate're it be.
Val. Theſe baniſh'd men, that I haue kept withall,
Are men endu'd with worthy qualities.
Forgiue them what they haue committed here,
And let them be recall'd from their Exile:
They are reformed, ciuill, full of good,
And fit for great employment (worthy Lord.)
Duke. Thou haſt preuaild, I pardon them and thee:
Diſpoſe of them, as thou knowſt their deſerts.
Come, let vs goe, we will include all iarres,
With Triumphes, Mirth, and rare ſolemnity.
Val. And as we walke along, I dare be bold
With our diſcourſe, to make your Grace to ſmile.
What thinke you of this Page (my Lord?)
Duke. I thinke the Boy hath grace in him, he bluſhes.
Val. I warrant you (my Lord) more grace, then Boy.
Duke. What meane you by that ſaying?
Val. Pleaſe you, Ile tell you, as we paſſe along,
That you will wonder what hath fortuned:
Come Protheus, 'tis your pennance, but to heare
The ſtory of your Loues diſcouered.
That done, our day of marriage ſhall be yours
One Feaſt, one houſe, one mutuall happineſſe. Exeunt.

The names of all the Actors.

Duke: Father to Siluia
Valentine, } the two Gentlemen.
Protheus. }
Anthonio: father to Protheus.
Thurio: a fooliſh riuall to Valentine.
Eglamoure: Agent for Siluia in her eſcape.
Hoſt: where Iulia lodges.
Out-lawes with Valentine.
Speed: a clowniſh ſeruant to Valentine.
Launce: the like to Protheus.
Panthion: ſeruant to Antonio.
Iulia: beloued of Protheus.
Siluia: beloued of Valentine.
Lucetta: waighting-woman to Iulia.

FINIS.

THE

THE
Merry Wiues of Windſor.

Actus primus, Scena prima.

Enter Iuſtice Shallow, Slender, Sir Hugh Euans, Maſter Page, Falſtaffe, Bardolph. Nym. Piſtoll, Anne Page, Miſtreſſe Ford, Miſtreſſe Page, Simple.

Shallow.

Sir Hugh, perſwade me not: I will make a Star-Chamber matter of it, if hee were twenty Sir Iohn Falſtaffs, he ſhall not abuſe Robert Shallow Eſquire. (Coram.

Slen. In the County of Glouceſter. Iuſtice of Peace and Shal. I (Coſen Slender) and Cuſt-alorum.

Slen. I, and Rato lorum too; and a Gentleman borne (Maſter Parſon) who writes himſelfe Armigero, in any Bill, Warrant, Quittance, or Obligation, Armigero.

Shal. I that I doe, and haue done any time theſe three hundred yeeres.

Slen. All his ſucceſſors (gone before him) hath don't: and all his Anceſtors (that come after him) may: they may giue the dozen white Luces in their Coate.

Shal. It is an olde Coate.

Euans. The dozen white Louſes doe become an old Coate well: it agrees well paſſant; It is a familiar beaſt to man, and ſignifies Loue.

Shal. The Luſe is the freſh fiſh, the ſalt-fiſh, is an old Coate.

Slen. I may quarter (Coz).

Shal. You may, by marrying.

Euans. It is marring indeed, if he quarter it.

Shal. Not a whit.

Euan. Yes per-lady: if he has a quarter of your coat, there is but three Skirts for your ſelfe, in my ſimple coniectures: but that is all one: if Sir Iohn Falſtaffe haue committed diſparagements vnto you, I am of the Church and will be glad to do my beneuolence, to make attonements and compremiſes betweene you.

Shal. The Councell ſhall heare it, it is a Riot.

Euan. It is not meet the Councell heare a Riot: there is no feare of Got in a Riot: The Councell (looke you) ſhall deſire to heare the feare of Got, and not to heare a Riot: take your viza-ments in that.

Shal. Ha! o' my life, if I were yong againe, the ſword ſhould end it.

Euans. It is pettet that friends is the ſword, and end it: and there is alſo another deuice in my praine, which peradueniure prings goot diſcretions with it. There is Anne Page, which is daughter to Maſter Thomas Page which is pretty virginity.

Slen. Miſtris Anne Page? ſhe has browne haire, and ſpeakes ſmall like a woman.

Euans. It is that ferry perſon for all the orld, as iuſt as you will deſire, and ſeuen hundred pounds of Monoyes, and Gold, and Siluer, is her Grand-fire vpon his deathes-bed, (Got deliuer to a ioyfull reſurrections) giue, when ſhe is able to ouertake ſeuenteene yeeres old. It were a goot motion, if we leaue our pribbles and prabbles, and deſire a marriage betweene Maſter Abraham, and Miſtris Anne Page.

Slen. Did her Grand-fire leaue her ſeauen hundred pound?

Euan. I, and her father is make her a petter penny.

Slen. I know the young Gentlewoman, ſhe has good gifts.

Euan. Seuen hundred pounds, and poſſibilities, is goot gifts.

Shal. Wel, let vs ſee honeſt M^r Page: is Falſtaffe there?

Euan. Shall I tell you a lye? I doe deſpiſe a lyer, as I doe deſpiſe one that is falſe, or as I deſpiſe one that is not true: the Knight Sir Iohn is there, and I beſeech you be ruled by your well-willers: I will peat the doore for M^r. Page. What hos? Got-pleſſe your houſe heere.

M^r. Page. Who's there?

Euan. Here is go't's pleſſing and your friend, and Iuſtice Shallow, and heere yong Maſter Slender: that peraduentures ſhall tell you another tale, if matters grow to your likings.

M^r. Page. I am glad to ſee your Worſhips well: I thanke you for my Veniſon Maſter Shallow.

Shal. Maſter Page, I am glad to ſee you: much good doe it your good heart: I wiſh'd your Veniſon better, it was ill killd: how doth good Miſtreſſe Paget and I thank you alwaies with my heart, la: with my heart.

M^r. Page. Sir, I thanke you.

Shal. Sir, I thanke you: by yea, and no I doe.

M^r. Pa. I am glad to ſee you, good Maſter Slender.

Slen. How do's your fallow Greyhound, Sir, I heard ſay he was out-run on Cotſall.

M^r. Pa. It could not be iudg'd, Sir.

Slen. You'll not confeſſe: you'll not confeſſe.

Shal. That he will not, 'tis your fault, 'tis your fault: 'tis a good dogge.

M^r. Pa. A Cur, Sir.

Shal. Sir: hee's a good dog, and a faire dog, can there be more ſaid? he is good, and faire. Is Sir Iohn Falſtaffe heere?

M^r. Pa. Sir, hee is within: and I would I could doe a good office betweene you.

Euan. It is ſpoke as a Chriſtians ought to ſpeake.

Shal. He hath wrong'd me (Maſter Page.)

M^r. Pa. Sir, he doth in ſome ſort confeſſe it.

Shal. If it be confeſſed, it is not redreſſed; Is not that ſo (M. Page?) he hath wrong'd me, indeed he hath, at a word he hath: beleeue me, Robert Shallow Eſquire, ſaith he is wronged.

Ma. Pa. Here comes Sir Iohn.

Fal. Now, Maſter Shallow, you'll complaine of me to the King?

Shal. Knight, you haue beaten my men, kill'd my deere, and' .oke open my Lodge.

Fal. But not kiſs'd your Keepers daughter?

Shal. Tut, a pin: this ſhall be anſwer'd.

Fal. I will anſwere it ſtrait, I haue done all this: That is now anſwer'd.

Shal. The Councell ſhall know this.

Fal. 'Twere better for you if it were known in counſell: you'll be laugh'd at.

Eu. Pauca verba, Sir Iohn) good worts.

Fal. Good worts? good Cabidge: Slender, I broke your head: what matter haue you againſt me?

Slen. Marry ſir, I haue matter in my head againſt you, and againſt your cony-catching Raſcalls, Bardolf, Nym, and Piſtoll.

Bar. You Banbery Cheeſe.

Slen. I, it is no matter.

Piſt. How now, Mephoſtophilus?

Slen. I, it is no matter.

Nym. Slice, I ſay: pauca, pauca: Slice, that's my humor.

Slen. Where's Simple my man? can you tell, Coſen?

Eua. Peace, I pray you: now let vs vnderſtand: there is three Vmpires in this matter, as I vnderſtand: that is, Maſter Page (fidelicet Maſter Page,) & there is my ſelfe, (fidelicet my ſelfe) and the three party is (laſtly, and finally) mine Hoſt of the Gater.

Ma Pa. We three to hear it, & end it between them.

Euan. Fery goo't, I will make a priefe of it in my note-booke, and we wil afterwards o'ke vpon the cauſe, with as great diſcreetly as we can.

Fal. Piſtoll.

Piſt. He heares with eares.

Euan. The Teuill and his Tam: what phraſe is this? he heares with eare? why, it is affectations.

Fal. Piſtoll, did you picke M. Slenders purſe?

Slen. I, by theſe gloues did hee, or I would I might neuer come in mine owne great chamber againe elſe, of ſeauen groates in mill-ſixpences, and two Edward Shouelboords, that coſt me two ſhilling and two pence a peece of Yead Miller: by theſe gloues.

Fal. Is this true, Piſtoll?

Euan. No, it is falſe, if it is a picke-purſe.

Piſt. Ha, thou mountaine Forreyner: Sir Iohn, and Maſter mine, I combat challenge of this Latine Bilboe: word of deniall in thy labras here; word of denial; froth, and ſcum thou lieſt.

Slen. By theſe gloues, then 'twas he.

Nym. Be auis'd ſir, and paſſe good humours: I will ſay marry trap with you, if you runne the nut-hooks humor on me, that is the very note of it.

Slen. By this hat, then he in the red face had it: for though I cannot remember what I did when you made me drunke, yet I am not altogether an aſſe.

Fal. What ſay you Scarlet, and Iohn?

Bar. Why ſir, (for my part) I ſay the Gentleman had drunke himſelfe out of his fiue ſentences.

Eu. It is his fiue ſences: fie, what the ignorance is.

Bar. And being fap, ſir, was (as they ſay) caſheerd: and ſo conclusions paſt the Car-eires.

Slen. I, you ſpake in Latten then to: but 'tis no matter; Ile nere be drunk whilſt I liue againe, but in honeſt, ciuill, godly company for this tricke: if I be drunke, Ile be drunke with thoſe that haue the feare of God, and not with drunken knaues.

Euan. So got-udge me, that is a vertuous minde.

Fal. You heare all theſe matters deni'd, Gentlemen; you heare it.

Mi. Page. Nay daughter, carry the wine in, wee'll drinke within.

Slen. Oh heauen: This is Miſtreſſe Anne Page.

Mi. Page How now Miſtris Ford?

Fal. Miſtris Ford, by my troth you are very well met: by your leaue good Miſtris.

Mi. Page. Wife, bid theſe gentlemen welcome: come, we haue a hot Veniſon paſty to dinner; Come gentlemen, I hope we ſhall drinke downe all vnkindneſſe.

Slen. I had rather then forty ſhillings I had my booke of Songs and Sonnets heere: How now Simple, where haue you beene? I muſt wait on my ſelfe, muſt I? you haue not the booke of Riddles about you, haue you?

Sim. Booke of Riddles? why did you not lend it to Alice Short-cake vpon Allhallowmas laſt, a fortnight afore Michaelmas.

Shal. Come Coz, come Coz, we ſtay for you: a word with you Coz: marry this, Coz: there is as 'twere a tender, a kinde of tender, made a farre-off by Sir Hugh here: doe you vnderſtand me?

Slen. I Sir, you ſhall finde me reaſonable; if it be ſo. I ſhall doe that that is reaſon.

Shal. Nay, but vnderſtand me.

Slen. So I doe Sir.

Euan. Giue eare to his motions: (Mr Slender) I will deſcription the matter to you, if you be capacity of it.

Slen. Nay, I will doe as my Cozen Shallow ſaies: I pray you pardon me, he's a Iuſtice of Peace in his Countrie, ſimple though I ſtand here.

Euan. But that is not the queſtion: the queſtion is concerning your marriage.

Shal. I, there's the point Sir.

Eu. Marry is it: the very point of it, to Mi. Anne Page.

Slen. Why if it be ſo; I will marry her vpon any reaſonable demands.

Eu. But can you affection the 'o-man, let vs command to know that of your mouth, or of your lips: for diuers Philoſophers hold, that the lips is parcell of the mouth therfore preciſely, ca you carry your good wil to the maid?

Sh. Coſen Abraham Slender, can you loue her?

Slen. I hope ſir, I will do as it ſhall become one that would doe reaſon.

Eu. Nay, got's Lords, and his Ladies, you muſt ſpeake poſſitable, if you can carry-her your deſires towards her.

Shal. That you muſt:

Will you, (vpon good dowry) marry her?

Slen. I will doe a greater thing then that, vpon your requeſt (Coſen) in any reaſon.

Shal. Nay conceiue me, conceiue mee. (ſweet Coz) it what I doe is to pleaſure you (Coz:) can you loue the maid?

Slen. I will marry her (Sir) at your requeſt: but if there bee no great loue in the beginning, yet Heauen may decreaſe it vpon better acquaintance, when wee are married, and haue more occaſion to know one another: I hope vpon familiarity will grow more content: but if you ſay mary-her, I will mary-her, that I am freely diſſolued, and diſſolutely.

Eu. It

Ea. It is a fery diſcretion-anſwere; ſaue the fall is in the'ord, diſſolutely: the ort is (according to our meaning) reſolutely: his meaning is good.

Sh. I: I thinke my Coſen meant well.

Sl. I, or elſe I would I might be hang'd(la.)

Sh. Here,comes faire Miſtris Anne: would I were yong for your ſake, Miſtris Anne.

An. The dinner is on the Table, my Father deſires your worſhips company.

Sh. I will wait on him,(faire Miſtris Anne.)

Ea. Od's pleſſed-will: I will not be abſẽce at the grace.

An. Will't pleaſe your worſhip to come in,Sir?

Sl. No,I thank you forſooth,hartely;I am very well.

An. The dinner attends you,Sir.

Sl. I am not a-hungry, I thanke you, forſoomh: goe Sirha, for all you are my man, goe wait vpon my Coſen Shallow: a Iuſtice of peace ſometime may be beholding to his friend,for a Man; I keepe but three Men, and a Boy yet, till my Mother be dead: but what though, yet I liue like a poore Gentleman borne.

An. I may not goe in without your worſhip: they will not ſit till you come.

Sl. I faith, ile eate nothing: I thanke you as much as though I did.

An. I pray you Sir walke in.

Sl. I had rather walke here (I thanke you) I bruis'd my ſhin th'other day, with playing at Sword and Dagger with a Maſter of Fence (three veneys for a diſh of ſtew'd Prunes) and by my troth, I cannot abide the ſmell of hot meate ſince. Why doe your dogs barke ſo? be there Beares i'th' Towne?

An. I thinke there are, Sir, I heard them talk'd of.

Sl. I loue the ſport well, but I ſhall as ſoone quarrell at it, as any man in England: you are afraid if you ſee the Beare looſe, are you not?

An. I indeede Sir.

Sl. That's meate and drinke to me now: I haue ſeene Sackerſon looſe, twenty times, and haue taken him by the Chaine: but (I warrant you) the women haue ſo cride and ſhreekt at it, that it paſt: But women indeede, cannot abide'em, they are very ill-fauour'd rough things.

Mr. Pa. Come, gentle M. Slender, come; we ſtay for you.

Sl. Ile eate nothing. I thanke you Sir.

Mr. Pa. By cocke and pie, you ſhall not choofe, Sir come, come.

Sl. Nay,pray you lead the way.

Mr. Pa. Come on, Sir.

Sl. Miſtris Anne; your ſelfe ſhall goe firſt.

An. Not I Sir, pray you keepe on.

Sl. Truſty I will not goe firſt: truely-la: I will not doe you that wrong.

An. I pray you Sir.

Sl. Ile rather be vnmannerly,then troubleſome: you doe your ſelfe wrong indeede-la. Exeunt.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Euans, and Simple.

Ea. Go your waies, and aske of Doctor Caius houſe, which is the way; and there dwels one Miſtris Quickly; which is in the manner of his Nurſe,or his dry-Nurſe,or his Cooke; or his Laundry; his Waſher, and his Ringer.

Si. Well Sir.

Ea. Nay,it is better yet: giue her this letter; for it is a'oman that altogethers acquaintace with Miſtris Anne Page; and the Letter is to deſire, and require her to ſolicite your Maſters deſires, to Miſtris Anne Page: I pray you be gon: I will make an end of my dinner, ther's Pippins and Cheeſe to come. Exeunt.

Scena Tertia.

Enter Falſtaffe, Hoſt, Bardolfe, Nym, Piſtoll, Page.

Fal. Mine Hoſt of the Garter?

Ho. What ſaies my Bully Rooke? ſpeake ſchollerly, and wiſely.

Fal. Truely mine Hoſt; I muſt turne away ſome of my followers.

Ho. Diſcard,(bully Hercules) caſheere; let them wag; trot, trot.

Fal. I ſit at ten pounds a weeke.

Ho. Thou'rt an Emperor (Cæſar, Keiſer and Pheazar) I will entertaine Bardolfe: he ſhall draw, he ſhall tap: ſaid I well (bully Hector?)

Fa. Doe ſo (good mine Hoſt.

Ho. I haue ſpoke: let him follow: let me ſee thee froth, and liue: I am at a word: follow.

Fal. Bardolfe, follow him: a Tapſter is a good trade, an old Cloake, makes a new Ierkin: a wither'd Seruingman, a freſh Tapſter: goe, adew.

Ba. It is a life that I haue deſir'd: I will thriue.

Piſ. O baſe hungarian wight: wilt thou the ſpigot wield

Ni. He was gotten in drinke: is not the humor conceited?

Fal. I am glad I am ſo acquit of this Tinderbox: his Theeues were too open: his filching was like an vnskilfull Singer, he kept not time.

Ni. The good humor is to ſteale at a minutes reſt.

Piſ. Conuay: the wiſe it call: Steale? foh: a fico for the phraſe.

Fal. Well ſirs, I am almoſt out at heeles.

Piſ. Why then let Kibes enſue.

Fal. There is no remedy: I muſt conicatch, I muſt ſhift.

Piſ. Yong Rauens muſt haue foode.

Fal. Which of you know Ford of this Towne?

Piſ. I ken the wight: he is of ſubſtance good.

Fal. My honeſt Lads, I will tell you what I am about.

Piſ. Two yards, and more.

Fal. No quips now Piſtoll: (Indeede I am in the waſte two yards about: but I am now about no waſte: I am about thrift) briefely: I doe meane to make loue to Fords wife: I ſpie entertainment in her: ſhee diſcourſes: ſhee carues: ſhe giues the leere of inuitation: I can conſtrue the action of her familiar ſtile, & the hardeſt voice of her behauior(to be engliſh'd rightly) is, I am Sir Iohn Falſtaffs.

Piſ. He hath ſtudied her will,and tranſlated her will: out of honeſty, into Engliſh.

Ni. The Anchor is deepe: will that humor paſſe?

Fal. Now,the report goes, ſhe has all the rule of her husbands Purſe: he hath a legend of Angels.

Piſ. As many deuels entertaine: and to her Boy ſay I.

Ni. The humor riſes: it is good: humor me the angels.

Fal. I haue writ me here a letter to her: & here another to Pages wife, who euen now gaue mee good eyes too; examind my parts with moſt iudicious illiads: ſometimes the beame of her view, guilded my foote: ſometimes my portly belly.

Piſt. Then did the Sun on dung-hill ſhine.

Ni. I thanke thee for that humour.

Fal. O ſhe did ſo courſe o're my exteriors with ſuch a greedy intention, that the appetite of her eye, did ſeeme to ſcorch me vp like a burning-glaſſe: here's another letter to her: She beares the Purſe too: She is a Region in Guiana: all gold, and bountie: I will be Cheaters to them both, and they ſhall be Exchequers to mee: they ſhall be my Eaſt and Weſt Indies, and I will trade to them both: Goe, beare thou this Letter to Miſtris Page; and thou this to Miſtris Ford: we will thriue (Lads) we will thriue.

Piſt. Shall I Sir Pandarus of Troy become,
And by my ſide weare Steele? then Lucifer take all.

Ni. I will run no baſe humor: here take the humor-Letter, I will keepe the hauior of reputation.

Fal. Hold Sirha, beare you theſe Letters tightly,
Saile like my Pinnaſſe to theſe golden ſhores.
Rogues, hence, auaunt, vaniſh like haile-ſtones; goe,
Trudge; plod away ith' hooſe: ſeeke ſhelter, packe:
Falſtaffe will learne the honor of the age,
French-thriſt, you Rogues, my ſelfe, and ſkirted Page.

Piſt. Let Vultures gripe thy guts: for gourd, and Fullam holds: & high and low beguiles the rich & poore,
Teſter ile haue in pouch when thou ſhalt lacke,
Baſe Phrygian Turke.

Ni. I haue opperations,
Which be humors of reuenge.

Piſt. Wilt thou reuenge?

Ni. By Welkin, and her Star.

Piſt. With wit, or Steele?

Ni. With both the humors, I:
I will diſcuſſe the humour of this Loue to Ford.

Piſt. And I to Page ſhall eke vnfold
How Falſtaffe (varlet vile)
His Doue will proue: his gold will hold,
And his ſoft couch defile.

Ni. My humour ſhall not coole: I will inceniſe Ford to deale with poyſon: I will poſſeſſe him with yellowneſſe, for the reuolt of mine is dangerous: that is my true humour.

Piſt. Thou art the Mars of Malcontents: I ſecond thee: troope on. Exeunt.

Scœna Quarta.

Enter Miſtris Quickly, Simple, Iohn Rugby, Doctor, Caius, Fenton.

Qu. What, Iohn Rugby, I pray thee goe to the Caſement and ſee if you can ſee my Maſter, Maſter Doctor Caius comming: if he doe (I'faith) and finde any body in the houſe; here will be an old abuſing of Gods patience, and the Kings Engliſh.

Ru. Ile goe watch.

Qu. Goe, and we'll haue a poſſet for't ſoone at night, (in faith) at the latter end of a Sea-cole-fire: An honeſt, willing, kinde fellow, as euer ſeruant ſhall come in houſe withall: and I warrant you, no tel-tale, nor no breede-bate: his worſt fault is that he is giuen to prayer; hee is ſomething peeuiſh that way: but no body but has his fault: but let that paſſe. Peter Simple, you ſay your name is?

Si. I: for fault of a better.

Qu. And Maſter Slender's your Maſter?

Si. I forſooth.

Qu. Do's he not weare a great round Beard, like a Glouers paring-knife?

Si. No forſooth: he hath but a little wee-face; with a little yellow beard: a Caine colour'd Beard.

Qu. A ſoftly-ſprighted man, is he not?

Si. I forſooth: but he is as tall a man of his hands, as any is betweene this and his head: he hath fought with a Warriner.

Qu. How ſay you: oh, I ſhould remember him: do's he not hold vp his head (as it were?) and ſtrut in his gate?

Si. Yes indeede do's he.

Qu. Well, heauen ſend Anne Page, no worſe fortune: Tell Maſter Parſon Euans, I will doe what I can for your Maſter: Anne is a good girle, and I wiſh —

Ru. Out alas: here comes my Maſter.

Qu. We ſhall all be ſhent: Run in here, good young man: goe into this Cloſſet: he will not ſtay long: what Iohn Rugby? Iohn: what Iohn I ſay? goe Iohn, goe enquire for my Maſter, I doubt he be not well, that hee comes not home: (and downe, downe adowne'a. &c.

Ca. Vat is you ſing? I doe not like des-toyes: pray you goe and vetch me in my Cloſſet, vnboyteene verd: a Box, a greene-a-Box: do intend vat I ſpeake? a greene-a-Box.

Qu. I forſooth ile fetch it you:
I am glad hee went not in himſelfe: if he had found the yong man he would haue bin horne-mad.

Ca. Fe ſe ſe ſe, mai foy, il fait for chaude. Ie vuis voi a le Court la greand affaires.

Qu. Is it this Sir?

Ca. Ouy mette le au mon pocket depeſch quickly:
Vere is dat knaue Rugby?

Qu. What Iohn Rugby, Iohn?

Ru. Here Sir.

Ca. You are Iohn Rugby, and you are Iacke Rugby: Come, take-a-your Rapier, and come after my heele to the Court.

Ru. 'Tis ready Sir, here in the Porch.

Ca. By my troth: I tarry too long: od's-me: quy ay ie oublie: dere is ſome Simples in my Cloſſet, dat I vill not for the varld I ſhall leaue behinde.

Qu. Ay-me, he'll finde the yong man there, & be mad.

Ca. O Diable, Diable: vat is in my Cloſſet?
Villanie, La-roone: Rugby, my Rapier.

Qu. Good Maſter be content.

Ca. Wherefore ſhall I be content-a?

Qu. The yong man is an honeſt man.

Ca. What ſhall de honeſt man do in my Cloſſet: dere is no honeſt man dat ſhall come in my Cloſſet.

Qu. I beſeech you be not ſo flegmaticke: heare the truth of it. He came of an errand to mee, from Parſon Hugh.

Ca. Vell.

Si. I forſooth: to deſire her to —

Qu. Peace, I pray you.

Ca. Peace-a-your tongue: ſpeake-a-your Tale.

Si. To deſire this honeſt Gentlewoman (your Maid) to ſpeake a good word to Miſtris Anne Page, for my Maſter in the way of Marriage.

Qu. This is all indeede-la: but ile ne're put my finger in the fire, and neede not.

Ca. Sir Hugh ſend-a you? Rugby, ballow mee ſome paper: tarry you a littell-a-while.

Qu. I

Qui. I am glad he is ſo quiet: if he had bin throughly moued, you ſhould haue heard him ſo loud, and ſo melancholy: but notwithſtanding man, Ile doe you your Maſter what good I can: and the very yea, & the no is, the French Doctor my Maſter, (I may call him my Maſter, looke you, for I keepe his houſe; and I waſh, ring, brew, bake, ſcowre, dreſſe meat and drinke, make the beds, and doe all my ſelfe.)

Simp. 'Tis a great charge to come vnder one bodies hand.

Qui. Are you a-vis'd o'that? you ſhall finde it a great charge: and to be vp early, and down late: but notwithſtanding, (to tell you in your eare, I would haue no words of it) my Maſter himſelfe is in loue with Miſtris Anne Page: but notwithſtanding that I know Anne mind, that's neither here nor there.

Caius. You, Iack Nape: giue-a this Letter to Sir Hugh, by gar it is a ſhallenge: I will cut his troat in de Parke, and I will teach a ſcurury Iack-a-nape Prieſt to meddle, or make: — you may be gon: it is not good you tarry here: by gar I will cut all his two ſtones: by gar, he ſhall not haue a ſtone to throw at his dogge.

Qui. Alas: he ſpeakes but for his friend.

Caius. It is no matter'a ver dat: do not you tell-a-me dat I ſhall haue Anne Page for my ſelfe? by gar, I will kill de Iack-Prieſt: and I haue appointed mine Hoſt of de Iarteere to meaſure our weapon: by gar, I will my ſelfe haue Anne Page.

Qui. Sir, the maid loues you, and all ſhall bee well: We muſt giue folkes leaue to prate: what the good-ier.

Caius. Rugby, come to the Court with me: by gar, if I haue not Anne Page, I ſhall turne your head out of my doore: follow my heeles, Rugby.

Qui. You ſhall haue Anne fooles head of your owne: No, I know Anne mind for that: neuer a woman in Windſor knowes more of Anne minde than I doe, nor can doe more than I doe with her, I thanke heauen.

Fenton. Who's within there, hoa?

Qui. Who's there, I trow? Come neere the houſe I pray you.

Fen. How now (good woman) how doſt thou?

Qui. The better that it pleaſes your good Worſhip to aſke?

Fen. What newes? how do's pretty Miſtris Anne?

Qui. In truth Sir, and ſhee is pretty, and honeſt, and gentle, and one that is your friend, I can tell you that by the way. I praiſe heauen for it.

Fen. Shall I doe any good thinkſt thou? ſhall I not loſe my ſuit?

Qui. Troth Sir, all is in his hands aboue: but notwithſtanding (Maiſter Fenton) Ile be ſworne on a booke ſhee loues you: haue not your Worſhip a wart aboue your eye?

Fen. Yes marry haue I, what of that?

Qui. Well, thereby hangs a tale: good faith, it is ſuch another Nan: (but (I deteſt) an honeſt maid as euer broke bread: we had an houres talke of that wart: I ſhall neuer laugh but in that maids company: but (indeed) ſhee is giuen too much to Allicholy and muſing: but for you — well — goe too.

Fen. Well: I ſhall ſee her to day: hold, there's money for thee: Let me haue thy voice in my behalfe: if thou ſeeſt her before me, commend me —

Qui. Will I? I faith that wee will: And I will tell your Worſhip more of the Wart, the next time we haue conference, and of other wooers.

Fen. Well, fare-well, I am in great haſte now.

Qui. Fare-well to your Worſhip: truely an honeſt Gentleman: but Anne loues him not: for I know Anne minde as well as another do's: out vpon't: what haue I forgot. Exit.

Actus Secundus. Scœna Prima.

Enter Miſtris Page, Miſtris Ford, Maſter Page, Maſter Ford, Piſtoll, Nim, Quickly, Hoſt, Shallow.

Miſt. Page. What, haue ſcap'd Loue-letters in the holly-day-time of my beauty, and am I now a ſubiect for them? let the ſee?

Aske me no reaſon why I loue you, for though Loue vſe Reaſon for his preciſian, hee admits him not for his Counſailour: you are not young, no more am I: go to then, there's ſimpathie: you are merry, ſo am I: ha, ha, then there's more ſimpathie: you loue ſacke, and ſo do I: would you deſire better ſimpathie? Let it ſuffice thee (Miſtris Page) at the leaſt of the Loue of Soldier can ſuffice, that I loue thee: I will not ſay pitty mee, 'tis not a Souldier-like phraſe; but I ſay, loue me:

By me, thine owne true Knight, by day or night;
Or any kynde of light, with all his might,
For thee to fight. Iohn Falſtaffe.

What a Herod of Iurie is this? O wicked, wicked world: One that is well-nye worne to peeces with age To ſhow himſelfe a yong Gallant? What an vnweyed Behauiour hath this Flemiſh drunkard picke (with The Deuills name) out of my converſation, that he dares In this manner aſſay me? why, hee hath not beene thrice In my Company: what ſhould I ſay to him? I was then Frugall of my mirth: (heauen forgiue mee:) why Ile Exhibit a Bill in the Parliament for the putting downe of men: how ſhall I be reueng'd on him? for reueng'd I will be? as ſure as his guts are made of puddings.

Miſ Ford. Miſtris Page, truſt me, I was going to your houſe.

Miſ Page. And truſt me, I was comming to you: you looke very ill.

Miſ Ford. Nay, Ile nere beleeue that; I haue to ſhew to the contrary.

Miſ Page. 'Faith but you doe in my minde.

Miſ Ford. Well: I doe then: yet I ſay, I could ſhew you to the contrary: O Miſtris Page, giue mee ſome counſaile.

Miſ Page. What's the matter, woman?

Mi. Ford. O woman; if it were not for one trifling reſpect, I could come to ſuch honour.

Mi. Page. 'Hang the trifle (woman) take the honour what is it? diſpence with trifles: what is it?

Mi. Ford. If I would but goe to hell, for an eternall moment, or ſo: I could be knighted.

Mi. Page. What thou liſt? Sir Alice Ford? theſe Knights will hacke, and ſo thou ſhouldſt not alter the article of thy Gentry.

Mi. Ford. Wee burne day-light: heere, read, read: perceiue how I might bee knighted, I ſhall thinke the worſe of fat men, as long as I haue an eye to make difference of mens liking: and yet hee would not ſweare: praiſe praiſe womens modeſty: and gaue ſuch orderly and well-behaued reproofe to al vncomelineſſe, that I would haue ſworne his diſpoſition would haue gone to the truth of his words: but they doe no more adhere and keep place together, then the hundred Pſalms to the tune of Greenſleeues: What tempeſt (I troa) threw this Whale, (with ſo many Tuns of oyle in his belly) a'ſhoare at Windſor? How ſhall I bee reuenged on him? I thinke the beſt way were, to entertaine him with hope, till the wicked fire of luſt haue melted him in his owne greace: Did you euer heare the like?

Miſ. Page. Letter for letter; but that the name of Page and Ford differs: to thy great comfort in this myſtery of ill opinions, heere's the twyn-brother of thy Letter: but let thine inherit firſt, for I proteſt mine neuer ſhall: I warrant he hath a thouſand of theſe Letters, writ with blancke-ſpace for different names (ſure more): and theſe are of the ſecond edition: hee will print them out of doubt: for he cares not what hee puts into the preſſe, when he would put vs two: I had rather be a Gianteſſe, and lye vnder Mount Pelion: Well; I will find you twentie laſciuious Turtles ere one chaſte man

Miſ. Ford. Why this is the very ſame: the very hand: the very words: what doth he thinke of vs?

Miſ. Page Nay I know not: it makes me almoſt readie to wrangle with mine owne honeſty: Ile entertaine my ſelfe like one that I am not acquainted withall: for ſure vnleſſe hee know ſome ſtraine in mee, that I know not my ſelfe, hee would neuer haue boorded me in this furie.

Mi. Ford. Boording, call you it? Ile bee ſure to keepe him aboue decke

Mi. Page. So will I: if hee come vnder my hatches, Ile neuer to Sea againe: Let's bee reueng'd on him: let's appoint him a meeting: giue him a ſhow of comfort in his Suit, and lead him on with a fine baited delay, till hee hath pawn'd his horſes to mine Hoſt of the Garter.

Mi. Ford. Nay, I wil conſent to act any villany againſt him, that may not ſully the charineſſe of our honeſty: oh that my husband ſaw this Letter: it would giue eternall food to his iealouſie.

Miſ. Page. Why look where he comes; and my good man too: hee's as farre from iealouſie, as I am from giuing him cauſe, and that (I hope) is an vnmeaſurable diſtance.

Miſ. Ford. You are the happier woman.

Miſ. Page. Let's conſult together againſt this greaſie Knight: Come hither.

Ford. Well: I hope, it be not ſo

Piſt. Hope is a curtall-dog in ſome affaires.
Sir Iohn affects thy wife.

Ford. Why ſir, my wife is not young.

Piſt. He woues both high and low, both rich & poor, both yong and old, one with another (Ford) he loues the Gally-mawfry (Ford) perpend.

Ford. Loue my wife?

Piſt. With loue, burning hot: preuent:
Or goe thou like Sir Actæon he, with Ring-wood at thy heeles: O, odious is the name.

Ford. What name Sir?

Piſt. The horne I ſay: Farewell:
Take heed, haue open eye, for theeues doe foot by night.
Take heed, ere ſommer comes, or Cuckoo-birds do ſing
Away ſir Corporall Nim
Beleeue it (Page) he ſpeakes ſence.

Ford. I will be patient: I will find out this.

Nim. And this is true: I like not the humor of lying: he hath wronged mee in ſome humors: I ſhould haue borne the humour'd Letter to her: but I haue a ſword: and it ſhall bite vpon my neceſſitie: he loues your wife; There's the ſhort and the long: My name is Corporall Nim: I ſpeak, and I auouch; 'tis true: my name is Nim: and Falſtaffe loues your wife: adieu, I loue not the humour of bread and cheeſe: adieu.

Page. The humour of it (quoth'a?) heere's a fellow frights Engliſh out of his wits.

Ford. I will ſeeke out Falſtaffe.

Page. I neuer heard ſuch a drawling-affecting rogue.

Ford. If I doe finde it: well.

Page. I will not beleeue ſuch a Cataian, though the Prieſt o' th'Towne commended him for a true man.

Ford. 'Twas a good ſenſible fellow: well.

Page. How now Meg?

Miſ. Page. Whether goe you (George!) harke you.

Miſ Ford. How now (ſweet Frank) why art thou melancholy?

Ford. I melancholy? I am not melancholy:
Get you home: goe.

Miſ. Ford. Faith, thou haſt ſome crochets in thy head, Now: will you goe Miſtris Page?

Miſ. Page. Haue with you you'll come to dinner George? Looke who comes yonder ſhee ſhall bee our Meſſenger to this paltrie Knight.

Miſ. Ford. Truſt me, I thought on her: ſhee'll fit it.

Miſ. Page. You are come to ſee my daughter Anne?

Qui. I forſooth: and I pray how do'e good Miſtreſſe Anne?

Miſ. Page. Go in with vs and ſee: we haue an houres talke with you.

Page. How now Maſter Ford?

For. You heard what this knaue told me, did you not?

Page. Yes, and you heard what the other told me?

Ford. Doe you thinke there is truth in them?

Pag. Hang em ſlaues: I doe not thinke the Knight would offer it: But theſe that accuſe him in his intent towards our wiues, are a yoake of his diſcarded men: very rogues, now they be out of ſeruice.

Ford. Were they his men?

Page. Marry were they.

Ford. I like it neuer the better for that,
Do's he lye at the Garter?

Page. I marry do's he: if hee ſhould intend this voyage toward my wife, I would turne her looſe to him; and what hee gets more of her, then ſharpe words, let it lye on my head.

Ford. I doe not miſdoubt my wife: but I would bee loath to turne them together: a man may be too confident: I would haue nothing lye on my head: I cannot be thus ſatisfied.

Page. Looke where my ranting-Hoſt of the Garter comes: there is eyther liquor in his pate, or money in his purſe, when hee lookes ſo merrily: How now mine Hoſt?

Hoſt. How now Bully-Rooke: thou'rt a Gentleman Caueleiro Iuſtice, I ſay

Shal. I follow, (mine Hoſt) I follow Good-euen, and twenty (good Maſter Page.) Maſter Page, wil you go with vs? we haue ſport in hand

Hoſt Tell him Caueleiro-Iuſtice: tell him Bully-Rooke.

Shal. Sir, there is a fray to be fought, betweene Sir Hugh the Welch Prieſt, and Caius the French Doctor.

Ford. Good

Ford. Good mine Hoſt a'th Garter: a word with you.

Hoſt. What ſaiſt thou, my Bully-Rooke?

Shal. Will you go with vs to behold it? My merry Hoſt hath had the meaſuring of their weapons; and (I thinke) hath appointed them contrary places: for (beleeue mee) I heare the Parſon is no Ieſter: harke, I will tell you what our ſport ſhall be.

Hoſt. Haſt thou no ſuit againſt my Knight? my gueſt-Cauſeiere?

Shal. None, I proteſt: but Ile giue you a pottle of burn'd ſacke, to giue me recourſe to him, and tell him my name is Broome: onely for a ieſt.

Hoſt. My hand, (Bully:) thou ſhalt haue egreſſe and regreſſe, (ſaid I well?) and thy name ſhall be Broome. It is a merry Knight: will you goe An-heires?

Shal. Haue with you mine Hoſt.

Page. I haue heard the French-man hath good skill in his Rapier.

Shal. Tut ſir: I could haue told you more: In theſe times you ſtand on diſtance: your Paſſes, Stoccado's, and I know not what: 'tis the heart (Maſter Page) 'tis heere, 'tis heere: I haue ſeene the time, with my long-ſword, I would haue made you fowre tall fellowes skippe like Rattes.

Hoſt. Heere boyes, heere, heere: ſhall we wag?

Page. Haue with you: I had rather heare them ſcold, than fight.

Ford. Though Page be a ſecure foole, and ſtands ſo firmely on his wiues frailty; yet, I cannot put-off my opinion ſo eaſily: ſhe was in his company at Pages houſe: and what they made there, I know not. Well, I will looke further into't, and I haue a diſguiſe, to ſound Falſtaffe: if I finde her honeſt, I looſe not my labor: if ſhe be otherwiſe, 'tis labour well beſtowed. Exeunt.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Falſtaffe, Piſtoll, Robin, Quickly, Bardolffe, Ford.

Fal. I will not lend thee a penny.

Piſt. Why then the world's mine Oyſter, which I, with ſword will open.

Fal. Not a penny: I haue beene content (Sir,) you ſhould lay my countenance to pawne: I haue grated vpon my good friends for three Reprooues for you, and your Coach-fellow Nym; or elſe you had look'd through the grate, like a Geminy of Baboones: I am damn'd in hell, for ſweearing to Gentlemen my friends, you were good Soudiers, and tall-fellowes. And when Miſtreſſe Bryan loſt the handle of her Fan, I took't vpon mine honour thou hadſt it not.

Piſt. Didſt not thou ſhare? hadſt thou not fifteene pence?

Fal. Reaſon, you rogue, reaſon: thinkſt thou Ile endanger my ſoule, gratis? at a word, hang no more about mee, I am no gibbet for you: goe, a ſhort knife, and a throng, to your Manner of Pickt-hatch: goe, you'll not beare a Letter for me you rogue? you ſtand vpon your honor: why, (thou vnconfinable baſeneſſe) it is as much as I can doe to keepe the termes of my honoour preciſe: I, I, I my ſelfe ſometimes, leauing the feare of heauen on the left hand, and hiding mine honor in my neceſſity, am faine to ſhuffle: to hedge, and to lurch, and yet, you Rogue, will en-ſconce your rags; your Cat-a-Mountaine-lookes, your red-lattice phraſes, and your bold-beating-oathes, vnder the ſhelter of your honor? you will not doe it? you?

Piſt. I doe relent: what would thou more of man?

Robin. Sir, here's a woman would ſpeake with you.

Fal. Let her approach.

Qui. Giue your worſhip good morrow.

Fal. Good-morrow, good-wife.

Qui. Not ſo and't pleaſe your worſhip.

Fal. Good maid then.

Qui. Ile be ſworne,
As my mother was the firſt houre I was borne.

Fal. I doe beleeue the ſweeter; what with me?

Qui. Shall I vouch-ſafe your worſhip a word, or two?

Fal. Two thouſand (faire woman) and Ile vouchſafe thee the hearing.

Qui. There is one Miſtreſſe Ford, (Sir) I pray come a little neerer this waies: I my ſelfe dwell with M. Doctor Caius:

Fal. Well, on; Miſtreſſe Ford, you ſay.

Qui. Your worſhip ſaies very true: I pray your worſhip come a little neerer this waies.

Fal. I warrant thee, no-bodie heares: mine owne people, mine owne people.

Qui. Are they ſo? heauen-bleſſe them, and make them his Seruants.

Fal. Well; Miſtreſſe Ford, what of her?

Qui. Why, Sir; ſhee's a good-creature; Lord, Lord, your Worſhip's a wanton: well: heauen forgiue you, and all of vs, I pray———.

Fal. Miſtreſſe Ford: come, Miſtreſſe Ford.

Qui. Marry this is the ſhort, and the long of it: you haue brought her into ſuch a Canaries, as 'tis wonderfull: the beſt Courtier of them all (when the Court lay at Windſor) could never haue brought her to ſuch a Canarie: yet there has beene Knights, and Lords, and Gentlemen, with their Coaches; I warrant you Coach after Coach, letter after letter, gift after gift, ſmelling ſo ſweetly; all Muſke, and ſo ruſtling, I warrant you, in ſilke and golde, and in ſuch alligant termes, and in ſuch wine and ſuger of the beſt, and the faireſt, that would haue wonne any womans heart: and I warrant you, they could neuer get an eye-winke of her: I had my ſelfe twentie Angels giuen me this morning, but I deſie all Angels (in any ſuch ſort, as they ſay) but in the way of honeſty: and I warrant you, they could neuer get her ſo much as ſippe on a cup with the proudeſt of them all, and yet there has beene Earles: nay, (which is more) Penſioners, but I warrant you all is one with her.

Fal. But what ſaies ſhee to mee? be briefe my good ſhee-Mercurie.

Qui. Marry, ſhe hath receiu'd your Letter: for the which ſhe thankes you a thouſand times; and ſhe giues you to notifie, that her husband will be abſence from his houſe, betweene ten and eleuen.

Fal. Ten, and eleuen.

Qui. I, forſooth: and then you may come and ſee the picture (ſhe ſayes) that you wot of: Maſter Ford her husband will be from home: alas, the ſweet woman leades an ill life with him: hee's a very iealouſie-man; ſhe leads a very frampold life with him, (good hart.)

Fal. Ten, and eleuen.

Woman

Woman, commend me to her, I will not faile her.

Qui. Why, you ſay well: But I haue another meſſenger to your worſhip: Miſtreſſe Page hath her heartie commendations to you too: and let mee tell you in your eare, ſhee's as fartuous a ciuill modeſt wife, and one (I tell you) that will not miſſe you morning nor euening prayer, as any is in Windſor, who ere bee the other: and ſhee bade me tell your worſhip, that her husband is ſeldome from home, but ſhe hopes there will come a time. I neuer knew a woman ſo doate vpon a man; ſurely I thinke you haue charmes, la: yes in truth.

Fal. Not I, I aſſure thee; ſetting the attraction of my good parts aſide, I haue no other charmes.

Qui. Bleſſing on your heart for't.

Fal. But I pray thee tell me this: haſh Fords wife, and Pages wife acquainted each other, how they loue me?

Qui. That were a ieſt indeed: they haue not ſo little grace I hope, that were a tricke indeed: But Miſtris Page would deſire you to ſend her your little Page of all loues: her husband has a marueilous infectio to the little Page: and truely Maſter Page is an honeſt man. neuer a wife in Windſor leades a better life then ſhe do's: doe what ſhee will, ſay what ſhe will, take all, pay all, goe to bed when ſhe liſt, riſe when ſhe liſt, all is as ſhe will: and truly ſhe deſerues it; for if there be a kinde woman in Windſor, ſhe is one: you muſt ſend her your Page, no remedie

Fal. Why, I will

Qui. Nay, but doe ſo then and looke you, hee may come and goe betweene you both: and in any caſe haue a nay-word, that you may know one anothers minde, and the Boy neuer neede to vnderſtand any thing; for 'tis not good that children ſhould know any wickednes: olde folkes you know, haue diſcretion, as they ſay, and know the world.

Fal. Farethee-well, commend mee to them both: there's my purſe, I am yet thy debter. Boy, goe along with this woman, this newes diſtracts me

Piſt. This Puncke is one of Cupids Carriers,
Clap on more ſailes, purſue: vp with your fights:
Giue fire: ſhe is my prize, or Ocean whelme them all.

Fal. Saiſt thou ſo (old Iacke) go thy waies: Ile make more of thy olde body then I haue done: will they yet looke after thee? will thou after the expence of ſo much money, be now a gainer? good Body, I thanke thee: let them ſay 'tis groſſely done, ſo it bee fairely done. no matter

Bar. Sir Iohn, there's one Maſter Broome below would faine ſpeake with you, and be acquainted with you; and hath ſent your worſhip a morning's draught of Sacke.

Fal. Broome is his name?

Bar. I Sir.

Fal. Call him in. ſuch Broomes are welcome to mee, that ore'flowes ſuch liquor: ah ha, Miſtreſſe Ford and Miſtreſſe Page, haue I encompaſs'd you? goe to, vie.

Ford. 'Bleſſe you ſir.

Fal. And you ſir would you ſpeake with me?

Ford. I make bold, to preſſe, with ſo little preparation vpon you.

Fal. You'r welcome, what's your will? giue vs leaue Drawer.

Ford. Sir, I am a Gentleman that haue ſpent much, my name is Broome.

Fal. Good Maſter Broome, I deſire more acquaintance of you.

Ford. Good Sir Iohn, I ſue for yours. not to charge you, for I muſt let you vnderſtand, I thinke my ſelfe in better plight for a Lender, then you are: the which hath ſomething emboldned me to this vnſeaſon'd intrusion: for they ſay, if money goe before, all waies doe lye open.

Fal. Money is a good Souldier (Sir) and will on.

Ford. Troth, and I haue a bag of money heere troubles me: if you will helpe to beare it (Sir Iohn) take all, or halfe, for eaſing me of the carriage.

Fal Sir, I know not how I may deſerue to bee your Porter

Ford. I will tell you ſir, if you will giue mee the hearing

Fal. Speake (good Maſter Broome) I ſhall be glad to be your Seruant.

Ford. Sir, I heare you are a Scholler: (I will be briefe with you) and you haue been a man long knowne to me, though I had neuer ſo good meanes as deſire, to make my ſelfe acquainted with you. I ſhall diſcouer a thing to you, wherein I muſt very much lay open mine owne imperfection: but (good Sir Iohn) as you haue one eye vpon my follies, as you heare them vnfolded, turne another into the Regiſter of your owne, that I may paſſe with a reproofe the eaſier, ſith you your ſelfe know how eaſie it is to be ſuch an offender.

Fal. Very well Sir, proceed.

Ford. There is a Gentlewoman in this Towne, her husbands name is Ford.

Fal. Well Sir

Ford. I haue long lou'd her, and I proteſt to you, beſtowed much on her: followed her with a doting obſeruance: Inguſh'd opportunities to meete her: fee'd euery ſlight occaſion that could but nigardly giue mee ſight of her: not only bought many preſents to giue her, but haue giuen largely to many, to know what ſhee would haue giuen: briefly, I haue purſu'd her, as Loue hath purſued mee, which hath been on the wing of all occaſions: but whatſoeuer I haue merited, either in my minde, or in my meanes, meede I am ſure I haue receiued none, vnleſſe Experience be a Iewell, that I haue purchaſed at an infinite rate, and that hath taught mee to ſay this,

"Loue like a ſhadow flies, when ſubſtance Loue purſues,
"Purſuing that that flies, and flying what purſues

Fal. Haue you receiu'd no promiſe of ſatisfaction at her hands?

Ford. Neuer

Fal. Haue you importun'd her to ſuch a purpoſe?

Ford. Neuer

Fal. Of what qualitie was your loue then?

Ford. Like a fair houſe, built on another mans ground, ſo that I haue loſt my edifice, by miſtaking the place, where I erected it

Fal. To what purpoſe haue you vnfolded this to me?

Ford. When I haue told you that, I haue told you all: Some ſay, that though ſhe appeare honeſt to mee, yet in other places ſhee enlargeth her mirth ſo farre, that there is ſhrewd conſtruction made of her. Now (Sir Iohn) here is the heart of my purpoſe: you are a gentleman of excellent breeding, admirable diſcourſe, of great admittance, authenticke in your place and perſon, generally allow'd for your many warlike, court-like, and learned preparations.

Fal. O Sir.

Ford. Beleeue it, for you know it. there is money, ſpend it, ſpend it, ſpend more; ſpend all I haue, only

giue

giue me ſo much of your time in exchange of it, as to lay an ſeiſable ſiege to the honeſty of this Fords wife: vſe your Art of wooing; win her to conſent to you: if any man may, you may as ſoone as any.

Fal. Would it apply well to the vehemency of your affection that I ſhould win what you would enioy? Methinkes you preſcribe to your ſelfe very prepoſterouſly.

Ford. O, vnderſtand my drift: ſhe dwells ſo ſecurely on the excellency of her honor, that the folly of my ſoule dares not preſent it ſelfe: ſhee is too bright to be look'd againſt. Now, could I come to her with any detection in my hand; my deſires had inſtance and argument to commend themſelues, I could driue her then from the ward of her purity, her reputation, her marriage-vow, and a thouſand other her defences, which now are too-too ſtrongly embattailed againſt me: what ſay you too't, Sir Iohn?

Fal. Maſter Broome, I will firſt make bold with your money: next, giue mee your hand: and laſt, as I am a gentleman, you ſhall, if you will, enioy Fords wife.

Ford. O good Sir.

Fal. I ſay you ſhall.

Ford. Want no money (Sir Iohn) you ſhall want none.

Fal. Want no Miſtreſſe Ford (Maſter Broome) you ſhall want none: I ſhall be with her (I may tell you) by her owne appointment, euen as you came in to me, her aſſiſtant, or goe-betweene, parted from me: I ſay I ſhall be with her betweene ten and eleuen: for at that time the ieolious-raſcally-knaue her husband will be forth: come you to me at night, you ſhall know how I ſpeed.

Ford. I am bleſſ'd in your acquaintance: do you know Ford Sir?

Fal. Hang him (poore Cuckoldly knaue) I know him not: yet I wrong him to call him poore: They ſay the ieolous wittolly-knaue hath maſſes of money, for the which his wife ſeemes to me well-fauour'd: I will vſe her as the key of the Cuckoldly-rogues Coffer, & there's my harueſt-home.

Ford. I would you knew Ford, ſir, that you might auoid him, if you ſaw him.

Fal. Hang him, mechanicall-ſalt-butter rogue; I will ſtare him out of his wits: I will awe him with my cudgell: it ſhall hang like a Meteor ore the Cuckolds horne: Maſter Broome, thou ſhalt know, I will predominate ouer the peazant, and thou ſhalt lye with his wife. Come to me ſoone at night: Ford's a knaue, and I will aggrauate his ſtile: thou (Maſter Broome) ſhalt know him for knaue, and Cuckold. Come to me ſoone at night.

Ford. What a damn'd Epicurian-Raſcall is this? my heart is ready to cracke with impatience: who ſaies this is improuident ieolouſie? my wife hath ſent to him, the houre is fixt, the matche is made: would any man haue thought this? ſee the hell of hauing a falſe woman: my bed ſhall be abus'd, my Coffers ranſack'd, my reputation gnawne at, and I ſhall not onely receiue this villanous wrong, but ſtand vnder the adoption of abhominable termes, and by him that does mee this wrong: Termes, names: Amaimon ſounds well: Lucifer, well: Barbaſon, well: yet they are Diuels additions, the names of fiends: But Cuckold, Wittoll, Cuckold? the Diuell himſelfe hath not ſuch a name. Page is an Aſſe, a ſecure Aſſe; hee will truſt his wife, hee will not be ieolous: I will rather truſt a Flemming with my butter, Parſon Hugh the Welſhman with my Cheeſe, an Iriſh-man with my Aqua-vitæ-bottle, or a Theefe to walke my ambling gelding, then my wife with her ſelfe. Then ſhe plots, then ſhee ruminates, then ſhee deuiſes: and what they thinke in their hearts they may effect; they will breake their hearts but they will effect. Heauen bleſſe my ieolouſie: eleuen o' cloeke the howre, I will preuent this, detect my wife, bee reueng'd on Falſtaffe, and laugh at Page. I will about it, better three houres too ſoone, then a mynute too late: fie, fie, fie: Cuckold, Cuckold, Cuckold.

Exit.

Scena Tertia.

Enter Caius, Rugby, Page, Shallow, Slender, Hoſt.

Caius. Iacke Rugby.

Rug. Sir.

Caius. Vat is the clocke, Iack?

Rug. 'Tis paſt the howre (Sir) that Sir Hugh promis'd to meet.

Cai. By gar, he hat ſaue his ſoule, dat he is no-come: hee has pray his Pible well, dat he is no-come: By gar (Iack Rugby) he is dead already, if he be come.

Rug. Hee is wiſe Sir: hee knew your worſhip would kill him if he came.

Cai. By gar, de hetring is no dead, ſo as I will kill him: take your Rapier, (Iacke) I will tell you how I vill kill him.

Rug. Alas ſir, I cannot fence.

Cai. Villanie, take your Rapier.

Rug. Forbeare: heer's company.

Hoſt. 'Bleſſe thee, bully-Doctor.

Shal. 'Saue you Mr. Doctor Caius.

Page. Now, good Mr. Doctor.

Slen. 'Giue you good-morrow, ſir.

Caius. Vat be all you one, two, tree, fowre, come for?

Hoſt. To ſee thee fight, to ſee thee foigne, to ſee thee traueiſe, to ſee thee heere, to ſee thee there, to ſee thee paſſe thy punctio, thy ſtock, thy reuerſe, thy diſtance, thy montant: Is he dead, my Ethiopian? Is he dead, my Franciſco? ha Bully? what ſaies my Eſculapius? my Galien? my heart of Elder? ha? is he dead bully-Stale? is he dead?

Cai. By gar, he is de Coward-Iack-Prieſt of de vorld: he is not ſhow his face.

Hoſt. Thou art a Caſtalion king-Vrinall: Hector of Greece (my Boy)

Cai. I pray you bear witneſſe, that me haue ſtay, ſixe or ſeuen, two tree' howres for him, and hee is no-come.

Shal. He is the wiſer man (M. Doctor) he is a curer of ſoules, and you a curer of bodies: if you ſhould fight, you goe againſt the haire of your profeſſions: is it not true, Maſter Page?

Page. Maſter Shallow; you haue your ſelfe beene a great fighter, though now a man of peace.

Shal. Body-kins M. Page, though I now be old, and of the peace; if I ſee a ſword out, my finger itches to make one: though wee are Iuſtices, and Doctors, and Church-men (M. Page) wee haue ſome ſalt of our youth in vs, we are the ſons of women (M. Page.)

Page. 'Tis true, Mr. Shallow.

Shal. It will be found ſo, (M. Page:) M. Doctor Caius, I am come to fetch you home: I am ſworn of the peace: you haue ſhow'd your ſelfe a wiſe Phyſician, and Sir Hugh hath ſhowne himſelfe a wiſe and patient Churchman: you muſt goe with me, M. Doctor.

Hoſt. Pur-

Host. Pardon, Guest-Iustice; a Mounseur Mocke-water.
Cai. Mock-vater? vat is dat?
Host. Mock-water, in our English tongue, is Valour (Bully.)
Cai. By gar, then I haue as much Mock-vater as de Englishman: scuruy-Iack-dog-Priest: by gar, mee vill cut his eares.
Host. He will Clapper-claw thee tightly (Bully.)
Cai. Clapper-de-claw? vat is dat?
Host. That is, he will make thee amends.
Cai. By-gar, me doe looke hee shall clapper-de-claw me, for by-gar, me vill haue it.
Host. And I will prouoke him to't, or let him wag.
Cai. Me tanck you for dat.
Host. And moreouer, (Bully) but first, Mr. Ghuest, and M. Page, & eeke Caualeiro Slender, goe you through the Towne to Frogmore.
Page. Sir Hugh is there, is he?
Host. He is there, see what humor he is in: and I will bring the Doctor about by the Fields: will it doe well?
Shal. We will doe it.
All. Adieu, good M. Doctor.
Cai. By-gar, me vill kill de Priest, for he speake for a Iack-an-Ape to Anne Page.
Host. Let him die: sheath thy impatience: throw cold water on thy Choller: goe about the fields with mee through Frogmore, I will bring thee where Mistris Anne Page is, at a Farm-house a Feasting: and thou shalt wooe her: Cride-game, said I well?
Cai. By-gar, mee dancke you vor dat: by gar I loue you: and I shall procure 'a you de good Guest: de Earle, de Knight, de Lords, de Gentlemen, my patients.
Host. For the which, I will be thy aduersary toward Anne Page: said I well?
Cai. By-gar, 'tis good: vell said.
Host. Let vs wag then.
Cai. Come at my heeles, Iack Rugby.
Exeunt.

Actus Tertius. Scœna Prima.

Enter Euans, Simple, Page, Shallow, Slender, Host, Caius, Rugby.

Euans. I pray you now, good Master Slenders seruing-man, and friend Simple by your name; which way haue you look'd for Master Caius, that calls himselfe Doctor of Phisicke.
Sim. Marry Sir, the pittie-ward, the Parke-ward: euery way: olde Windsor way, and euery way but the Towne-way.
Euan. I most fehemently desire you, you will also looke that way.
Sim. I will sir.
Euan. 'Plesse my soule: how full of Chollors I am, and trempling of minde: I shall be glad if he haue deceiued me: how melancholies I am? I will knog his Vrinalls about his knaues costard, when I haue good oportunities for the orke: 'Plesse my soule: To shallow Riuers to whose fals: melodious Birds sings Madrigalls: There will we make our Peds of Roses: and a thousand fragrant posies. To shallow: 'Mercie on mee, I haue a great dispositions to cry.
Melodious birds sing Madrigalls: —— When as I sat in Pabilon: and a thousand vagram Posies. To shallow, &c.
Sim. Yonder he is comming, this way, Sir Hugh.
Euan. Hee's welcome: To shallow Riuers, to whose f[...]
Heauen prosper the right: what weapons is he?
Sim. No weapons, Sir: there comes my Master, [...] Shallow, and another Gentleman; from Frogmore, o[...] the stile, this way.
Euan. Pray you giue mee my gowne, or else keep[...] in your armes.
Shal. How now Master Parson? good morrow go[...] Sir Hugh: keepe a Gamester from the dice, and a go[...] Studient from his booke, and it is wonderfull.
Slen. Ah sweet Anne Page.
Page. 'Saue you, good Sir Hugh.
Euan. 'Plesse you from his mercy-sake, all of you.
Shal. What? the Sword, and the Word? Doe you study them both, Mr. Parson?
Page. And youthfull still, in your doublet and ho[...] this raw-rumaticke day?
Euan. There is reasons, and causes for it.
Page. We are come to you, to doe a good office, [...] Parson.
Euan. Fery-well: what is it?
Page. Yonder is a most reuerend Gentleman; w[...] (be-like) hauing receiued wrong by some person, is[...] most odds with his owne grauity and patience, that e[...] you saw.
Shal. I haue liued foure-score yeeres, and vpward[...] neuer heard a man of his place, grauity, and learning, [...] wide of his owne respect.
Euan. What is he?
Page. I thinke you know him: Mr. Doctor Caius [...] renowned French Physician.
Euan. Got's-will, and his passion of my heart: I h[...] as lief you would tell me of a messe of porredge.
Page. Why?
Euan. He has no more knowledge in Hibocrates a[...] Galen, and hee is a knaue besides: a cowardly knaue, [...] you would desires to be acquainted withall.
Page. I warrant you, hee's the man should fight w[...] him.
Slen. O sweet Anne Page.
Shal. It appeares so by his weapons: keepe them [...] sunder: here comes Doctor Caius.
Page. Nay good Mr. Parson, keepe in your weapo[...]
Shal. So doe you, good Mr. Doctor.
Host. Disarme them, and let them question: let the[...] keepe their limbs whole, and hack our English.
Cai. I pray you let-a-mee speake a word with yo[...] eare; vherefore vill you not meet-a me?
Euan. Pray you vse your patience in good time.
Cai. By-gar, you are de Coward: de Iack dog: Io[...] Ape.
Euan. Pray you let vs not be laughing-stocks to oth[...] mens humors: I desire you in friendship, and I will o[...] way or other make you amends: I will knog your Vri[...] about your knaues Cogs-combe.
Cai. Diable: Iack Rugby: mine Host de Iarteer: hau[...] not stay for him, to kill him? haue I not at de place I d[...] appoint?
Euan. As I am a Christians-soule, now looke yo[...] this is the place appointed, Ile bee Iudgement by mi[...] Host of the Garter.
Host. Peace, I say, Gallia and Gaule, French & Wels[...] Soule-Curer, and Body-Curer.

Cai. I, dat is very good, excellant.

Hoſt. Peace, I ſay: heare mine Hoſt of the Garter. Am I politicke? Am I ſubtile? Am I a Machiuell? Shall I looſe my Doctor? No, hee giues me the Potions and the Motions. Shall I looſe my Parſon? my Prieſt? my Sir Hugh? No, he giues me the Prouerbes, and the No-verbes. Giue me thy hand (Celeſtiall) ſo. Boyes of Art, I haue deceiu'd you both. I haue directed you to wrong places: your hearts are mighty, your ſkinnes are whole, and let burn'd Sacke be the iſſue: Come, lay their ſwords to pawne: Follow me, Lad of peace, follow, follow, follow.

Shal. Truſt me, a mad Hoſt: follow Gentlemen, follow.

Slen. O ſweet Anne Page.

Cai. Ha'do I perceiue dat? Haue you make-a-de-ſot of vs, ha, ha?

Eua. This is well, he has made vs his vlowting-ſtog: I deſire you that we may be friends: and let vs knog our prizes togeather to be reuenge on this ſame ſcall-ſcurry-cogging-companion the Hoſt of the Garter.

Cai. By gar, with all my heart: he promiſſe to bring me where is Anne Page: by gar he deceiue me too.

Eua. Well, I will ſmite his noddles: pray you follow.

Scena Secunda.

Miſt. Page, Robin, Ford, Page, Shallow, Slender, Hoſt, Euans, Caius.

Miſt.Page. Nay keepe your way (little Gallant) you were wont to be a follower, but now you are a Leader: whether had you rather lead mine eyes, or eye your maſters heeles?

Rob. I had rather (forſooth) go before you like a man, than follow him like a dwarfe. (Courteſie.

M.Pa. O you are a flattering boy, now I ſee you'l be a Ford. Well met miſtris Page, whether go you

M.Pa. Truly Sir, to ſee your wife, is ſhe at home?

Ford. I, and as idle as ſhe may hang togeather for want of company. I thinke if your husbands were dead, you two would marry.

M.Pa. Be ſure of that, two other husbands.

Ford. Where had you this pretty weather-cocke?

M.Pa. I cannot tell what (the dickens) his name is my husband had him of, what do you cal your Knights name Rob. Sir Iohn Falſtaffe. (ſirrah?

Ford. Sir Iohn Falſtaffe.

M.Pa. He, he, I can neuer hit on's name; there is ſuch a league betweene my goodman, and he: is your Wife at Ford. Indeed ſhe is. (home indeed?

M.Pa. By your leaue ſir, I am ſicke till I ſee her.

Ford. Has Page any braines? Hath he any eies? Hath he any thinking? Sure they ſleepe, he hath no vſe of them: why this boy will carrie a letter twentie mile as eaſie, as a Cannon will ſhoot point-blanke twelue ſcore: hee peeres out his wiues inclination: he giues her folly motion and aduantage: and now ſhe's going to my wife, & Falſtaffes boy with her: A man may heare this ſhowre ſing in the winde; and Falſtaffes boy with her: good plots, they are laide, and our reuolted wiues ſhare damnation togeather. Well, I will take him, then torture my wife, plucke the borrowed vaile of modeſtie from the ſo-ſeeming Miſt. Page, diſcouer Page himſelfe for a ſecure and wilfull Acteon, and to theſe violent proceedings all my neighbors ſhall cry aime. The clocke giues me my Qu, and my aſſurance bids me ſearch, there I ſhall finde Falſtaffe: I ſhall be rather praiſd for this, then mock'd, for it is as poſſitiue, as the earth is firme, that Falſtaffe is there: I will go.

Shal. Page, &c. Well met Mr Ford.

Ford. I truſt me, a good knotte; I haue good cheere at home, and I pray you all go with me.

Shal. I muſt excuſe my ſelfe Mr Ford.

Slen. And ſo muſt I Sir,
We haue appointed to dine with Miſtris Anne,
And I would not breake with her for more mony
Then Ile ſpeake of.

Shal. We haue lingr'd about a match betweene Anne Page, and my cozen Slender, and this day wee ſhall haue our anſwer.

Slen. I hope I haue your good will Father Page.

Pag. You haue Mr Slender, I ſtand wholly for you, But my wife (Mr Doctor) is for you altogether.

Cai. I be-gar, and de Maid is loue-a-me. my nurſh-a-Quickly tell me ſo muſh.

Hoſt. What ſay you to yong Mr Fenton? He capers, he dances, he has eies of youth: he writes verſes, hee ſpeakes holliday, he ſmels April and May, he wil carry't, he will carry't, 'tis in his buttons, he will carry't.

Page. Not by my conſent I promiſe you. The Gentleman is of no having, hee kept companie with the wilde Prince, and Poines: he is of too high a Region, he knows too much: no, hee ſhall not knit a knot in his fortunes, with the finger of my ſubſtance: if he take her, let him take her ſimply: the wealth I haue waits on my conſent, and my conſent goes not that way.

Ford. I beſeech you heartily, ſome of you goe home with me to dinner: beſides your cheere you ſhall haue ſport, I will ſhew you a monſter: Mr Doctor, you ſhal go, ſo ſhall you Mr Page, and you Sir Hugh.

Shal. Well, fare you well:
We ſhall haue the freer woing at Mr Pages.

Cai. Go home Iohn Rugby, I come anon.

Hoſt. Farewell my hearts, I will to my honeſt Knight Falſtaffe, and drinke Canarie with him.

Ford. I thinke I ſhall drinke in Pipe-wine firſt with him, Ile make him dance. Will you go, Gentles?

All. Haue with you, to ſee this Monſter. Exeunt

Scena Tertia.

Enter Mi. Ford, Mi. Page, Seruants, Robin, Falſtaffe, Ford, Page, Caius, Euans.

Miſt. Ford. What Iohn, what Robert.

M. Page. Quickly, quickly: Is the Buck-basket—

Miſt Ford. I warrant. What Robin I ſay

Miſt. Page. Come, come, come.

Miſt. Ford. Heere, ſet it downe.

M. Pag. Giue your men the charge, we muſt be briefe.

M. Ford. Marrie, as I told you before (Iohn & Robert) be ready here hard-by in the Brew-houſe, & when I ſodainly call you, come forth, and (without any pauſe, or ſtaggering) take this basket on your ſhoulders: that done, trudge with it in all haſt, and carry it among the Whitſters in Datchet Mead, and there empty it in the muddie ditch, cloſe by the Thames ſide.

M. Page. You will do it? (direction.

M. Ford. I haue told them ouer and ouer, they lacke no

Be gone, and come when you are call'd.

M.Page. Here comes little Robin. (with you?

Miſt.Ford. How now my Eyas-Muſker, what newes

Rob. My M. Sir Iohn is come in at your backe doore (Miſt. Ford, and requeſts your company.

M.Page. You little Iack-a-lent, haue you bin true to vs

Rob. I, Ile be ſworne: my Maſter knowes not of your being heere: and hath threatned to put me into euerlaſting liberty, if I tell you of it: for he ſweares he'll turne me away.

Miſt.Pag. Thou'rt a good boy: this ſecrecy of thine ſhall be a Tailor to thee, and ſhall make thee a new doublet and hoſe. Ile go hide me.

Mr.Ford. Do ſo: go tell thy Maſter, I am alone: Miſtris Page, remember you your Cue.

Miſt.Pag. I warrant thee, if I do not act it, hiſſe me.

Miſt.Ford. Go-too then: we'l vſe this vnwholſome humidity, this groſſe-watry Pumpion; we'll teach him to know Turtles from Iayes.

Fal. Haue I caught thee, my heauenly Iewell? Why now let me die, for I haue liu'd long enough: This is the period of my ambition: O this bleſſed houre.

Miſt.Ford. O ſweet Sir Iohn.

Fal. Miſtris Ford, I cannot cog, I cannot prate (Miſt. Ford) now ſhall I ſin in my wiſh: I would thy Husband were dead, Ile ſpeake it before the beſt Lord, I would make thee my Lady.

Miſt.Ford. I your Lady Sir Iohn? Alas, I ſhould bee a pittifull Lady.

Fal. Let the Court of France ſhew me ſuch another: I ſee how thine eye would emulate the Diamond: Thou haſt the right arched-beauty of the brow, that becomes the Ship-tyre, the Tyre-valiant, or any Tire of Venetian admittance.

Miſt.Ford. A plaine Kerchiefe, Sir Iohn:
My browes become nothing elſe, nor that well neither.

Fal. Thou art a tyrant to ſay ſo: thou wouldſt make an abſolute Courtier, and the firme fixture of thy foote, would giue an excellent motion to thy gate, in a ſemi-circled Farthingale. I ſee what thou wert if Fortune thy foe, were not Nature thy friend: Come, thou canſt not hide it.

Miſt.Ford. Beleeue me, there's no ſuch thing in me.

Fal. What made me loue thee? Let that perſwade thee. There's ſomething extraordinary in thee: Come, I cannot cog, and ſay thou art this and that, like a-many of theſe liſping-hauthorne buds, that come like women in mens apparrell, and ſmell like Bucklers-berry in ſimple time: I cannot, but I loue thee, none but thee; and thou deſeru'ſt it.

M.Ford. Do not betray me ſir, I fear you loue M.Page.

Fal. Thou might as well ſay, I loue to walke by the Counter-gate, which is as hatefull to me, as the reeke of a Lime-kill.

Miſ Ford. Well, heauen knowes how I loue you,
And you ſhall one day finde it.

Fal. Keepe in that minde, Ile deſerue it.

Miſt Ford. Nay, I muſt tell you, ſo you doe;
Or elſe I could not be in that minde.

Rob. Miſtris Ford, Miſtris Ford; heere's Miſtris Page at the doore, ſweating, and blowing and looking wildely, and would needs ſpeake with you preſently.

Fal. She ſhall not ſee me, I will enſconce mee behinde the Arras.

M.Ford. Pray you do ſo, ſhe's a very tatling women. Whats the matter? How now?

Miſt. Page. O miſtris Ford what haue you done?
You're ſham'd, y'are ouerthrowne, y'are vndone for ever.

M.Ford. What's the matter, good miſtris Page?

M.Page. O weladay, miſt. Ford, hauing an honeſt man to your husband, to giue him ſuch cauſe of ſuſpition.

M.Ford. What cauſe of ſuſpition?

M.Page. What cauſe of ſuſpition? Out vpon you: How am I miſtooke in you?

M.Ford. Why (alas) what's the matter?

M.Page. Your husband's comming hether (Woman) with all the Officers in Windſor, to ſearch for a Gentleman, that he ſayes is heere now in the houſe; by your conſent to take an ill aduantage of his abſence: you are vndone.

M.Ford. 'Tis not ſo, I hope.

M.Page. Pray heauen it be not ſo, that you haue ſuch a man heere: but 'tis moſt certaine your husband's comming, with halfe Windſor at his heeles, to ſerch for ſuch a one, I come before to tell you: If you know your ſelfe cleere, why I am glad of it: but if you haue a friend heere, conuey, conuey him out. Be not amaz'd, call all your ſenſes to you, defend your reputation, or bid farwell to your good life for euer.

M.Ford. What ſhall I do? There is a Gentleman my deere friend: and I feare not mine owne ſhame ſo much, as his perill. I had rather then a thouſand pound he were out of the houſe.

M.Page. For ſhame, never ſtand (you had rather, and you had rather:) your husband's heere at hand, bethinke you of ſome conueyance: in the houſe you cannot hide him. Oh, how haue you deceiu'd me? Looke, heere is a basket, if he be of any reaſonable ſtature, he may creepe in heere, and throw ſowle linnen vpon him, as if it were going to bucking: Or it is whiting time, ſend him by your two men to Datchet-Meade.

M.Ford. He's too big to go in there: what ſhall I do?

Fal. Let me ſee't, let me ſee't, O let me ſee't:
Ile in. Ile in: Follow your friends counſell, Ile in.

M.Page. What Sir Iohn Falſtaffe? Are theſe your Letters, Knight?

Fal. I loue thee, helpe mee away: let me creepe in heere: ile neuer——

M.Page. Helpe to conuey your maſter (Boy:) Call your men (Miſt. Ford.) You diſſembling Knight.

M.Ford. What Iohn, Robert, Iohn; Go, take vp theſe cloathes heere, quickly: Where's the Cowle-ſtaffe? Look how you drumble? Carry them to the Landreſſe in Datchet mead: quickly, come.

Ford. Pray you come neere: if I ſuſpect without cauſe, Why then make ſport at me, then let me be your ieſt, I deſerue it: How now? Whether beare you this?

Ser. To the Landreſſe forſooth?

M.Ford. Why, what haue you to doe whether they beare it? You were beſt meddle with buck-waſhing.

Ford. Buck? I would I could waſh my ſelfe of the Buck: Bucke, bucke, bucke, I bucke: I warrant you Bucke, And of the ſeaſon too; it ſhall appeare.
Gentlemen, I haue dream'd to night, Ile tell you my dreame: heere, heere, heere bee my keyes, aſcend my Chambers, ſearch, ſeeke, finde out: Ile warrant we'le vnkennell the Fox. Let me ſtop this way firſt: ſo now vncape.

Page. Good maſter Ford, be contented:
You wrong your ſelfe too much.

Ford. True (maſter Page) vp Gentlemen.
You ſhall ſee ſport anon:

Follow

entlemen.
is is fery fantaſticall humors and iealouſies.
gar, 'tis no-the faſhion of France:
is in France.
follow him (Gentlemen) ſee the yſſue of

is there not a double excellency in this?
I know not which pleaſes me better,
und is deceiued, or Sir Iohn
What a taking was hee in, when your who was in the basket?
I am halfe afraid he will haue needs of browing him into the water, will doe him

Hang him diſhoneſt rafcall: I would all nine were in the ſame diſtreſſe.
I thinke my husband hath ſome ſpeciall
Falſtaffe being heere: for I neuer ſaw him ſo ealouſie till now
I will lay a plot to try that, and wee will tricket with Falſtaffe: his diſſolute diſeaſe ry this medicine.
ſhall we ſend that foolifhion Cauion, Maſt.
, and excuſe his throwing into the water,
nother hope, to betray him to another

We will do it: let him be ſent for to morocke to haue amends.
not finde him: may be the knaue bragg'd
id not compaſſe.
Heard you that?
You vſe me well, M. Ford? Do you?
o ſo.
eauen make you better then your thoghts
n.
You do your ſelfe mighty wrong (M. Ford)
I muſt beare it.
e be any body in the houſe, & in the cham-e coffers, and in the preſſes: heauen for-the day of iudgement
ut, nor I too: there is no-bodies
, M. Ford, are you not aſham'd? What ſpi-
I ſuggeſts this imagination? I would not ha t in this kind, for ſ welth of Windſor caſtle.
my fault (M. Page) I ſuffer for it.
u ſuffer for a pad conſcience: your wife is mans, as I will deſires among fiue thou-undred too.
, I ſee 'tis an honeſt woman.
, I promiſd you a dinner: come, come, walk pray you pardon me: I wil hereafter make w why I haue done this. Come wife, come y you pardon me. Pray hartily pardon me.
go in Gentlemen, but (truſt me) we'l mock mite you to morrow morning to my houſe ſter we'l a Birding together, I haue a fine
e buſh. Shall it be ſo.
thing.
is ee, I ſhall make two in the Companie be one, or two I ſhall make-a-thecund.
you go, M. Page.
you now remembrance to morrow on the mine Hoſt.
good h-y gar, wathall my heart.
ſhe knaue, to haue his gibes, and his moc-

Exeunt.

Scœna Quarta.

Enter Fenton, Anne, Page, Shallow, Slender, Quickly, Page, Miſt. Page.

Fen. I ſee I cannot get thy Fathers loue,
Therefore no more turne me to him (ſweet Nan.)
Anne. Alas, how then?
Fen. Why thou muſt be thy ſelfe.
He doth obiect, I am too great of birth,
And that my ſtate being gall'd with my expence,
I ſeeke to heale it onely by his wealth.
Beſides theſe, other barres he layes before me,
My Riots paſt, my wilde Societies,
And tels me 'tis a thing impoſſible
I ſhould loue thee, but as a property.
An. May be he tels you true
Fen. No, heauen ſo ſpeed me in my time to come,
Albeit I will confeſſe, thy Fathers wealth
Was the firſt motiue that I woo'd thee (Anne)
Yet wooing thee, I found thee of more valew
Then ſtampes in Gold, or ſummes in ſealed bagges,
And 'tis the very riches of thy ſelfe,
That now I ayme at.
An. Gentle M. Fenton,
Yet ſeeke my Fathers loue, ſtill ſeeke it ſir,
If opportunity and humbleſt ſuite
Cannot attaine it, why then harke you hither.
Shal. Breake their talke Miſtris Quickly,
My Kinſman ſhall ſpeake for himſelfe.
Slen. Ile make a ſhaft or a bolt on't, ſlid, 'tis but venture. (ring.
Shal. Be not diſmaid.
Slen. No, ſhe ſhall not diſmay me:
I care not for that, but that I am affeard.
Qui. Hark ye, M. Slender would ſpeak a word with you
An. I come to him. This is my Fathers choice:
O what a world of vilde ill-fauour'd faults
Looks handſome in three hundred pounds a yeere?
Qui. And how do's good Maſter Fenton?
Pray you a word with you.
Shal. Shee's comming; to her Coz:
O boy, thou hadſt a father.
Slen. I had a father (M. Anne) my vncle can tel you good ieſts of him: pray you Vncle tel Miſt. Anne the ieſt how my Father ſtole two Geeſe out of a Pen, good Vncle.
Shal. Miſtris Anne, my Cozen loues you.
Slen. I that I do, as well as I loue any woman in Glocesterſhire.
Shal. He will maintaine you like a Gentlewoman.
Slen. I that I will, come cut and long-taile, vnder the degree of a Squire.
Shal. He will make you a hundred and fifte pounds ioynture.
Anne. Good Maiſter Shallow let him woo for himſelfe.
Shal. Marrie I thanke you for it: I thanke you for that good comfort: ſhe cals you (Coz) Ile leaue you.
Anne. Now Maſter Slender.
Slen. Now good Miſtris Anne.
Anne. What is your will?
Slen. My will? Odd's-hart-lings, that's a prettie ieſt indeede: I ne're made my Will yet (I thanke Heauen:) I am not ſuch a ſickely creature, I giue Heauen praiſe.

Anne. I meane (M. Slender) what would you with me?
Slen. Truely, for mine owne part, I would little or nothing with you: your father and my vncle hath made motions: if it be my lucke, ſo: if not, happy man be his dole, they can tell you how things go, better then I can: you may aske your father, heere he comes.
Page. Now Mr Slender: Loue him daughter Anne.
Why how now? What does Mr Fenter here?
You wrong me Sir, thus ſtill to haunt my houſe.
I told you Sir, my daughter is diſpoſd of.
Fen. Nay Mr Page, be not impatient.
Miſt. Page. Good M. Fenton, come not to my child.
Page. She is no match for you.
Fen. Sir, will you heare me?
Page. No, good M. Fenton.
Come M. Shallow: Come ſonne Slender, in:
Knowing my minde, you wrong me (M. Fenton.)
Qui. Speake to Miſtris Page.
Fen. Good Miſt. Page, for that I loue your daughter
In ſuch a righteous faſhion as I do,
Perforce, againſt all checkes, rebukes, and manners,
I muſt aduance the colours of my loue,
And not retire. Let me haue your good will.
An. Good mother, do not marry me to yond foole.
Miſt. Page. I meane it not, I ſeeke you a better huſband.
Qui. That's my maſter, M. Doctor.
An. Alas I had rather be ſet quick i'th earth,
And bowl'd to death with Turnips.
Miſt. Page. Come, trouble not your ſelfe good M. Fenton, I will not be your friend, nor enemy:
My daughter will I queſtion how ſhe loues you,
And as I finde her, ſo am I affected:
Till then, farewell Sir, ſhe muſt needs go in,
Her father will be angry.
Fen. Farewell gentle Miſtris: farewell Nan.
Qui. This is my doing now: Nay, ſaide I, will you caſt away your childe on a Foole, and a Phyſitian:
Looke on M. Fenton, this is my doing.
Fen. I thanke thee: and I pray thee once to night,
Giue my ſweet Nan this Ring: there's for thy paines.
Qui. Now heauen ſend thee good fortune, a kinde heart he hath: a woman would run through fire & water for ſuch a kinde heart. But yet, I would my Maiſter had Miſtris Anne, or I would M. Slender had her: or (in ſooth) I would M. Fenton had her; I will do what I can for them all three, for ſo I haue promiſd, and lle bee as good as my word, but ſpecioully for M. Fenton. Well, I muſt of another errand to Sir Iohn Falſtaffe from my two Miſtreſſes: what a beaſt am I to ſlacke it. Exeunt

Scena Quinta.

Enter Falſtaffe, Bardolfe, Quickly, Ford.

Fal. Bardolfe I ſay.
Bar. Heere Sir.
Fal. Go, fetch me a quart of Sacke, put a toſt in't. Haue I liu'd to be carried in a Basket like a barrow of butchers Offall? and to be throwne in the Thames? Well, if I be ſeru'd ſuch another tricke, lle haue my braines 'tane out and butter'd, and giue them to a dogge for a New-yeares gift. The rogues ſlighted me into the riuer with as little remorſe, as they would haue drown'de a blinde bitches Puppies, fifteene i'th litter: and you may know by my ſize, that I haue a kinde of alacrity in ſinking: if the bottome were as deepe as hell, I ſhold down. I had beene drown'd, but that the ſhore was ſhelwy and ſhallow: a death that I abhorre: for the water ſwelles a man; and what a thing ſhould I haue beene, when I had beene ſwel'd? I ſhould haue beene a Mountaine of Mummie.
Bar. Here's M. Quickly Sir to ſpeake with you.
Fal. Come, let me poure in ſome Sack to the Thames water: for my bellies as cold as if I had ſwallow'd ſnowballs, for pillies to coole the reines. Call her in.
Bar. Come in woman.
Qui. By your leaue: I cry you mercy?
Giue your worſhip good morrow.
Fal. Take away theſe Chalices:
Go, brew me a pottle of Sacke finely.
Bard. With Egges, Sir?
Fal. Simple of it ſelfe: lle no Pullet-Sperme in my brewage. How now?
Qui. Marry Sir, I come to your worſhip from M. Ford.
Fal. Miſt. Ford? I haue had Ford enough. I was throwne into the Ford; I haue my belly full of Ford.
Qui. Alas the day, (good-heart) that was not her fault: ſhe do's ſo take on with her men; they miſtooke their erection. (promiſe.
Fal. So did I mine, to build vpon a foolish Womans
Qui. Well, ſhe laments Sir for it, that it would yern your heart to ſee it: her husband goes this morning a birding; ſhe deſires you once more to come to her, betweene eight and nine: I muſt carry her word quickely, ſhe'll make you amends I warrant you.
Fal. Well, I will viſit her, tell her ſo: and bidde her thinke what a man is: Let her conſider his frailety, and then iudge of my merit.
Qui. I will tell her.
Fal. Do ſo. Betweene nine and ten ſaiſt thou?
Qui. Eight and nine Sir.
Fal. Well, be gone: I will not miſſe her.
Qui. Peace be with you Sir.
Fal. I meruaile I heare not of Mr Broome: he ſent me word to ſtay within: I like his money well.
Oh, heere he comes.
Ford. Bleſſe you Sir.
Fal. Now M. Broome, you come to know
What hath paſt betweene me, and Fords wife.
Ford. That indeed (Sir Iohn) is my buſineſſe.
Fal. M. Broome I will not lye to you,
I was at her houſe the houre ſhe appointed me.
Ford. And ſped you Sir?
Fal. very ill-fauouredly M. Broome.
Ford. How ſo Sir, did ſhe change her determination?
Fal. No (M. Broome) but the peaking Cornuto her husband (M. Broome) dwelling in a continual larum of iealouſie, comes me in the inſtant of our encounter, after we had embrac't, kiſt, proteſted, & (as it were) ſpoke the prologue of our Comedy: and at his heeles, a rabble of his companions, thither prouoked and inſtigated by his diſtemper, and (forſooth) to ſerch his houſe for his wiues Loue.
Ford. What? While you were there?
Fal. While I was there.
For. And did he ſearch for you, & could not find you?
Fal. You ſhall heare. As good lucke would haue it, comes in one Miſt. Page, giues intelligence of Fords approch: and in her inuention, and Fords wiues diſtraction, they conuey'd me into a bucke basket.

Ford

Ford. A Buck-basket?

Fal. Yes: a Buck-basket: ram'd me in with foule Shirts and Smockes, Socks, foule Stockings, greaſie Napkins, that (Maſter Broome) there was the rankeſt compound of villanous ſmell, that euer offended noſtrill.

Ford. And how long lay you there?

Fal. Nay, you ſhall heare (Maſter Broome) what I haue ſuffer'd, to bring this woman to euill, for your good: Being thus cram'd in the Basket, a couple of Fords knaues, his Hindes, were cald forth by their Miſtris, to carry me in the name of foule Cloathes to Datchet-lane: they tooke me on their ſhoulders: met the iealous knaue their Maſter in the doore; who aſk'd them once or twice what they had in their Baſket? I quak'd for feare leſt the Lunatique Knaue would haue ſearch'd it: but Fate (ordaining he ſhould be a Cuckold) held his hand: well, on went hee, for a ſearch, and away went I for foule Cloathes: But marke the ſequell (Maſter Broome) I ſuffered the pangs of three ſeuerall deaths: Firſt, an intolerable fright, to be detected with a ielatious rotten Bell-weather: Next to be compaſt'd like a good Bilbo in the circumference of a Peeke, hilt to point, heele to head. And then to be ſtopt in like a ſtrong diſtillation with ſtinking Cloathes, that fretted in their owne greaſe: thinke of that, a man of my Kidney: thinke of that, that am as ſubiect to heate as butter; a man of continuall diſſolution, and thaw: it was a miracle to ſcape ſuffocation. And in the height of this Bath (when I was more then halfe ſtew'd in greaſe (like a Dutch-diſh) to be throwne into the Thames, and coold, glowing-hot, in that ſerge like a Horſe-ſhoo; thinke of that; hiſſing hot: thinke of that (Maſter Broome.)

Ford. In good ſadneſſe Sir, I am ſorry, that for my ſake you haue ſuffered all this.
My ſuite then is deſperate: You'll vndertake her no more?

Fal. Maſter Broome: I will be throwne into Etna, as I haue beene into Thames, ere I will leaue her thus; her Husband is this morning gone a Birding: I haue receiued from her another ambaſſie of meeting: 'twixt eight and nine is the houre (Maſter Broome.)

Ford. 'Tis paſt eight already Sir.

Fal. Is it? I will then addreſſe mee to my appointment: Come to mee ſe your conuenient leiſure, and you ſhall know how I ſpeede: and the concluſion ſhall be crowned with your enioying her: adiew: you ſhall haue her (Maſter Broome) Maſter Broome, you ſhall cuckold Ford.

Ford. Hum: ha? Is this a viſion? Is this a dreame? doe I ſleepe? Maſter Ford awake, awake Maſter Ford: there's a hole made in your beſt coate (Maſter Ford:) this 'tis to be married; this 'tis to haue Linnen, and Buck-baskets: Well, I will proclaime my ſelfe what I am: I will now take the Leacher: hee is at my houſe: hee cannot ſcape me: 'tis impoſſible hee ſhould: hee cannot creepe into a halfe-penny purſe, nor into a Pepper-Boxe: But leaſt the Diuell that guides him, ſhould aide him, I will ſearch impoſſible places: though what I am, I cannot auoide; yet to be what I would not, ſhall not make me tame: If I haue hornes, to make one mad, let the prouerbe goe with me, Ile be horne-mad. Exeunt

Actus Quartus. Scæna Prima.

Enter Miſtris Page, Quickly, William, Euans.

Miſt. Pag. Is he at M. Fords already think'ſt thou?

Qui. Sure he is by this; or will be preſently: but truely he is very courragious mad, about his throwing into the water. Miſtris Ford deſires you to come ſodainely.

Miſt. Pag. Ile be with her by and by: Ile but bring my yong-man here to Schoole: looke where his Maſter comes; 'tis a playing day I ſee: how now Sir Hugh, no Schoole to day?

Eua. No: Maſter Slender is let the Boyes leaue to play.

Qui. 'Bleſſing of his heart.

Miſt Pag. Sir Hugh, my husband ſaies my ſoone profits nothing in the world at his Booke: I pray you aske him ſome queſtions in his Accidence.

Eu. Come hither William, hold vp your head; come.

Miſt. Pag. Come-on Sirha; hold vp your head; anſwere your Maſter, be not afraid.

Eua. William, how many Numbers is in Nownes?

Will. Two.

Qui. Truely, I thought there had bin one Number more, becauſe they ſay od's-Nownes.

Eua. Peace, your tatlings. What is (Faire) William?

Will. Pulcher.

Qu. Powlcats? there are faireer things then Powlcats, ſure.

Eua. You are a very ſimplicity o'man: I pray you peace. What is (Lapis) William?

Will. A Stone.

Eua. And what is a Stone (William?)

Will. A Pebble.

Eua. No; it is Lapis: I pray you remember in your praine.

Will. Lapis.

Eua. That is a good William: what is he (William) that do's lend Articles.

Will. Articles are borrowed of the Pronoune; and be thus declined. Singulariter nominativo hic, hæc, hoc.

Eua. Nominativo hig, hag, hog: pray you marke: genitivo hujus: Well, what is your Accuſatiue-caſe?

Will. Accuſativo hinc.

Eua. I pray you haue your remembrance (childe) Accuſativo hing, hang, hog.

Qu. Hang-hog, is latten for Bacon, I warrant you.

Eua. Leaue your prables (o'man) What is the Focatiue caſe (William?)

Will. O, Vocative, O.

Eua. Remember William, Focative, is caret.

Qu. And that's a good roote.

Eua. O'man, forbeare.

Miſt Pag. Peace.

Eua. What is your Genitive caſe plur all (William?)

Will. Genitive caſe?

Eua. I.

Will. Genitive horum, harum, horum.

Qu. 'Vengeance of Ginyes caſe; fie on her, never name her (childe) if ſhe be a whore.

Eua. For ſhame o'man.

Qu. You doe ill to teach the childe ſuch words: hee teaches him to hic, and to hac; which they'll doe faſt enough of themſelues, and to call horum; fie vpon you.

Euans. O'man, art thou Lunatics? Haſt thou no vnderſtanding for thy Caſes, & the numbers of the Genders? Thou art as fooliſh Chriſtian creatures, as I would deſires.

Mi. Page. Pre'thee hold thy peace.

Eu. Shew me now (William) ſome declenſions of your Pronounes.

Will. Forſooth, I haue forgot.

Eu. It is Qui, que, quod: if you forget your Quies, your Quis, and your Quods you muſt be preeches: Goe your waies and play, go.

M. Pag. He is a better ſcholler then I thought he was.

Eu. He is a good ſprag-memory: Farewel Mis. Page.

Miſ. Page. Adieu good Sir Hugh:
Get you home boy, Come we ſtay too long. Exeunt.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Falſtaffe, Miſt. Ford, Miſt. Page, Seruants, Ford, Page, Caius, Euans, Shallow.

Fal. Mi. Ford, Your ſorrow hath eaten vp my ſufferance; I ſee you are obſequious in your loue, and I proteſſe requitall to a haires bredth, not onely Miſt. Ford, in the ſimple office of loue, but in all the accuſtrement, complement, and ceremony of it: But are you ſure of your husband now?

Miſ. Ford. Hee's a birding (ſweet Sir Iohn.)

Miſ. Page. What hoa, goſſip Ford: what hoa.

Miſ. Ford. Step into th'chamber, Sir Iohn.

Miſ. Page. How now (ſweete heart) whoſe at home beſides your ſelfe?

Miſ Ford Why none but mine owne people.

Miſ Page. Indeed?

Miſ. Ford. No certainly: Speake louder.

Miſt. Pag. Truly, I am ſo glad you haue no body here.

Miſt. Ford. Why?

Miſ Page. Why woman, your husband is in his olde lines againe: he ſo takes on yonder with my husband, ſo rayles againſt all married mankinde; ſo curſes all Eues daughters, of what complexion ſoeuer, and ſo buffettes himſelfe on the ſor-head: crying peere-out, peere-out, that any madneſſe I euer yet beheld, ſeem'd but tameneſſe, ciuility, and patience to this his diſtemper he is in now: I am glad the fat Knight is not heere.

Miſt. Ford. Why, do's he talke of him?

Miſt. Page. Of none but him, and ſweares he was caried out the laſt time hee ſearch'd for him, in a Basket: Proteſts to my husband he is now heere, & hath drawne him and the reſt of their company from their ſport, to make another experiment of his ſuſpition: But I am glad the Knight is not heere; now he ſhall ſee his owne foolerie.

Miſt. Ford. How neere is he Miſtris Page?

Miſt. Pag. Hard by, at ſtreet end; he will be here anon.

Miſt. Ford. I am vndone, the Knight is heere.

Miſ. Page. Why then you are vtterly ſham'd, & hee's but a dead man. What a woman are you? Away with him, away with him: Better ſhame, then murther.

Miſt. Ford. Which way ſhould he go? How ſhould I beſtow him? Shall I put him into the basket againe?

Fal. No, Ile coune no more i'th Basket;
May I not go out ere he come?

Miſt. Page. Alas: three of Mr. Fords brothers watch the doore with Piſtols, that none ſhall iſſue out: otherwiſe you might ſlip away ere hee came: But what make you heere?

Fal. What ſhall I do? Ile creepe vp into the chimney.

Miſt. Ford. There they alwaies vſe to diſcharge their Birding-peeces: creepe into the Kill-hole.

Fal. Where is it?

Miſt. Ford. He will ſeeke there on my word: Neyther Preſſe, Coffer, Cheſt, Trunke, Well, Vault, but he hath an abſtract for the remembrance of ſuch places, and goes to them by his Note: There is no hiding you in the houſe.

Fal. Ile go out then.

Miſt. Ford. If you goe out in your owne ſemblance, you die Sir Iohn, vnleſſe you go out diſguis'd.

Miſt. Ford. How might we diſguiſe him?

Miſt. Page. Alas the day I know not, there is no womans gowne bigge enough for him: otherwiſe he might put on a hat, a muffler, and a kerchiefe, and ſo eſcape.

Fal. Good hearts, deuiſe ſomething: any extremitie, rather then a miſchiefe.

Miſt. Ford. My Maids Aunt the fat woman of Braineford, has a gowne aboue.

Miſt. Page. On my word it will ſerue him: ſhee's as big as he is: and there's her thrum'd hat, and her muffler too: run vp Sir Iohn.

Miſt. Ford. Go, go, ſweet Sir Iohn: Miſtris Page and I will looke ſome linnen for your head.

Miſt. Page. Quicke, quicke, wee'le come dreſſe you ſtraight: put on the gowne the while.

Miſt. Ford. I would my husband would meete him in this ſhape: he cannot abide the old woman of Braineford; he ſweares ſhe's a witch, forbad her my houſe, and hath threatned to beate her.

Miſt. Page. Heauen guide him to thy husbands cudgell: and the diuell guide his cudgell afterwards.

Miſt Ford. But is my husband comming?

Miſt. Page. I in good ſadneſſe is he, and talkes of the basket too, howſoeuer he hath had intelligence.

Miſt. Ford. Wee'l try that: for Ile appoint my men to carry the basket againe, to meete him at the doore with it, as they did laſt time.

Miſt. Page. Nay, but hee'l be heere preſently: let's go dreſſe him like the witch of Braineford.

Miſt. Ford. Ile firſt direct my men, what they ſhall doe with the basket: Goe vp, Ile bring linnen for him ſtraight.

Miſt. Page Hang him diſhoneſt Varlet,
We cannot miſuſe enough:
We'll leaue a proofe by that which we will doo,
Wiues may be merry, and yet honeſt too:
We do not acte that often, ieſt, and laugh,
'Tis old, but true, Still Swine eats all the draugh.

Miſt. Ford. Go Sirs, take the basket againe on your ſhoulders: your Maſter is hard at doore: if hee bid you ſet it downe, obey him: quickly, diſpatch.

1 Ser. Come, come, take it vp.

2 Ser. Pray heauen it be not full of Knight againe.

1 Ser. I hope not, I had liefe as beare ſo much lead.

Ford. I, but if it proue true (Mr. Page) haue you any way then to vnfoole me againe. Set downe the basket villaine: ſome body call my wife: Youth in a basket: Oh you Panderly Raſcals, there's a knot: a gin, a packe, a conſpiracie againſt me: Now ſhall the diuel be ſham'd. What wife I ſay: Come, come forth: behold what ho-

nee

neſt cloathes you ſend forth to bleaching.

Page. Why, this paſſes M. Ford: you are not to goe loofe any longer, you muſt be pinnion'd.

Euans. Why, this is Lunaticks: this is madde, as a mad dogge.

Shal. Indeed M. Ford, this is not well indeed.

Ford. So ſay I too Sir, come hither Miſtris Ford. Miſtris Ford, the honeſt woman, the modeſt wife, the vertuous creature, that hath the iealous foole to her husband: I ſuſpect without cauſe (Miſtris) do I?

Miſt. Ford. Heauen be my witneſſe you doe, if you ſuſpect me in any dishonestie.

Ford. Well ſaid Brazon-face, hold it out: Come forth ſirrah.

Page. This paſſes.

Miſt. Ford. Are you not aſham'd let the cloths alone.

Ford. I ſhall finde you anon.

Eua. 'Tis vnreaſonable; will you take vp your wiues cloathes? Come, away.

Ford. Empty the basket I ſay.

M. Ford. Why man, why?

Ford. Maſter Page, as I am a man, there was one conuay'd out of my houſe yeſterday in this basket: why may not he be there againe, in my houſe I am ſure he is: my Intelligence is true, my iealouſie is reaſonable, pluck me out all the linnen.

Miſt. Ford. If you find a man there, he ſhall dye a Fleas death.

Page. Here's no man.

Shal. By my fidelity this is not well Mr. Ford: This wrongs you.

Euans. Mr Ford, you muſt pray, and not follow the imaginations of your owne heart: this is iealouſies.

Ford. Well, hee's not heere I ſeeke for.

Page. No, nor no where elſe but in your braine.

Ford. Helpe to ſearch my houſe this one time: if I find not what I ſeeke, ſhew no colour for my extremity: Let me for euer be your Table-ſport: Let them ſay of me, as iealous as Ford, that ſearch'd a hollow Wall-nut for his wiues Leman. Satisfie me once more, once more ſerch with me.

M. Ford. What hoa (Miſtris Page,) come you and the old woman downe: my husband will come into the Chamber.

Ford. Old woman? what old womans that?

M. Ford. Why it is my maids Aunt of Braineford.

Ford. A witch, a Queane, an olde cozening queane: Haue I not forbid her my houſe. She comes of errands do's ſhe? We are ſimple men, wee doe not know what's brought to paſſe vnder the profeſſion of Fortune-telling. She workes by Charmes, by Spels, by th'Figure, & ſuch dawbry as this is, beyond our Element: wee know nothing. Come downe you Witch, you Hagge you, come downe I ſay.

Miſt. Ford. Nay, good ſweet husband, good Gentlemen, let him ſtrike the old woman.

Miſt. Page. Come mother Prat, Come giue me your hand.

Ford. Ile Prat-her: Out of my doore, you Witch, you Ragge, you Baggage, you Poulcat, you Runnion, out, out: Ile conjure you, Ile fortune-tell you.

Miſt. Page. Are you not aſham'd?

I thinke you haue kill'd the poore woman.

Miſt. Ford. Nay he will do it, 'tis a goodly credite for you.

Ford. Hang her witch.

Eua. By yea, and no, I thinke the o'man is a witch indeede: I like not when a o'man has a great peard; I ſpie a great peard vnder his muffler.

Ford. Will you follow Gentlemen, I beſeech you follow: ſee but the iſſue of my iealouſie: If I cry out thus vpon no traile, neuer truſt me when I open againe.

Page. Let's obey his humour a little further: Come Gentlemen.

Miſt. Page. Truſt me he beate him moſt pittifully.

Miſt. Ford. Nay by th'Maſſe that he did not: he beate him moſt vnpittifully, me thought.

Miſt. Page. Ile haue the cudgell hallow'd, and hung ore the Altar, it hath done meritorious ſeruice.

Miſt. Ford. What thinke you? May we with the warrant of woman hood, and the witneſſe of a good conſcience, purſue him with any further reuenge?

M. Page. The ſpirit of wantonneſſe is ſure ſcar'd out of him, if the diuell haue him not in fee-ſimple, with fine and recouery, he will neuer (I thinke) in the way of waſte, attempt vs againe.

Miſt. Ford. Shall we tell our husbands how wee haue ſeru'd him?

Miſt. Page. Yes, by all meanes: if it be but to ſcrape the figures out of your husbands braines: if they can find in their hearts, the poore vnuertuous fat Knight ſhall be any further afflicted, wee two will ſtill bee the miniſters.

Miſt. Ford. Ile warrant, they'l haue him publiquely ſham'd, and me thinkes there would be no period to the ieſt, ſhould he not be publikely ſham'd.

Miſt. Page. Come, to the Forge with it, then ſhape it: I would not haue things coole. Exeunt

Scena Tertia.

Enter Hoſt and Bardolfe.

Bar. Sir, the Germane deſires to haue three of your horſes: the Duke himſelfe will be to morrow at Court, and they are going to meet him.

Hoſt. What Duke ſhould that be comes ſo ſecretly? I heare not of him in the Court: let mee ſpeake with the Gentlemen, they ſpeake Engliſh?

Bar. I Sir? Ile call him to you.

Hoſt. They ſhall haue my horſes, but Ile make them pay: Ile ſauce them, they haue had my houſes a week at commaund: I haue turn'd away my other gueſts, they muſt come off, Ile ſawce them, come. Exeunt

Scena Quarta.

Enter Page, Ford, Miſtris Page, Miſtris Ford, and Euans.

Eua. 'Tis one of the beſt diſcretions of a o'man as euer I did looke vpon.

Page. And did he ſend you both theſe Letters at an inſtant?

Miſt. Page. Within a quarter of an houre.

Ford. Pardon me (wife) henceforth do what ſ'e will: I rather will ſuſpect the Sunne with gold,
Then thee with wantonnes: Now doth thy honor ſtand
(In

(In him that was of late an Heretike)
As firme as faith.
Page. 'Tis well, 'tis well, no more:
Be not as extreme in ſubmiſſion, as in offence,
But let our plot go forward: Let our wiues
Yet once againe (to make vs publike ſport)
Appoint a meeting with this old fat-fellow,
Where we may take him, and diſgrace him for it.
Ford. There is no better way then that they ſpoke of.
Page. How? to ſend him word they'll meete him in the Parke at midnight? Fie, fie, he'll neuer come.
Eu. You ſay he has bin throwne in the Riuers: and has bin grieuouſly peaten, as an old o'man: me-thinkes there ſhould be terrors in him, that he ſhould not come: Me-thinkes his fleſh is puniſh'd, hee ſhall haue no deſires.
Page. So thinke I too.
M. Ford. Deuiſe but how you'l vſe him whē he comes,
And let vs two deuiſe to bring him thether.
Miſ. Page. There is an old tale goes, that Herne the Hunter (ſometime a keeper heere in Windſor Forreſt)
Doth all the winter time, at ſtill midnight
Walke round about an Oake, with great rag'd-hornes,
And there he blaſts the tree, and takes the cattle,
And makes milch-kine yeeld blood, and ſhakes a chaine
In a moſt hideous and dreadfull manner.
You haue heard of ſuch a Spirit, and well you know
The ſuperſtitious idle-headed-Eld
Receiu'd, and did deliuer to our age
This tale of Herne the Hunter, for a truth.
Page. Why yet there want not many that do feare
In deepe of night to walke by this Hernes Oake:
But what of this?
Miſt. Ford. Marry this is our deuiſe,
That Falſtaffe at that Oake ſhall meete with vs.
Page. Well, let it not be doubted but he'll come,
And in this ſhape, when you haue brought him thether,
What ſhall be done with him? What is your plot?
Miſt. Pa. That likewiſe haue we thoght vpon: & thus:
Nan Page (my daughter) and my little ſonne,
And three or foure more of their growth, wee'l dreſſe
Like Vrchins, Ouphes, and Fairies, greene and white,
With rounds of waxen Tapers on their heads,
And rattles in their handſ; vpon a ſodaine,
As Falſtaffe, ſhe, and I, are newly met,
Let them from forth a ſaw-pitruſh at once
With ſome diffuſed ſong: Vpon their ſight
We two, in great amazednes will flye:
Then let them all encircle him about,
And Fairy-like to pinch the vncleane Knight;
And aske him why that houre of Fairy Reuell,
In their ſo ſacred pathes, he dares to tread
In ſhape prophane.
Ford. And till he tell the truth,
Let the ſuppoſed Fairies pinch him, ſound,
And burne him with their Tapers.
Miſt. Page. The truth being knowne,
We'll all preſent our ſelues; dis horne the ſpirit,
And mocke him home to Windſor.
Ford. The children muſt
Be practiſ'd well to this, or they'l neu'r doo't.
Eua. I will teach the children their behauiours: and I will be like a Iacke-an-Apes alſo, to burne the Knight with my Taber.
Ford. That will be excellent,
Ile go buy them vizards.
Miſt. Page. My Nan ſhall be the Queene of all the Fairies, finely attired in a robe of white.
Page. That ſilke will I go buy, and in that time
Shall M. Slender ſteale my Nan away,
And marry her at Eaton: go, ſend to Falſtaffe ſtraight.
Ford. Nay, Ile to him againe in name of Broome, Hee'l tell me all his purpoſe: ſure hee'l come.
Miſt. Page. Feare not you that: Go get vs properties
And tricking for our Fayries.
Euans. Let vs about it,
It is admirable pleaſures, and ferry honeſt knaueries.
Miſ. Page Go Miſt. Ford,
Send quickly to Sir Iohn, to know his minde:
Ile to the Doctor, he hath my good will,
And none but he to marry with Nan Page:
That Slender (though well landed) is an Idoot:
And he, my husband beſt of all affects:
The Doctor is well monied, and his friends
Potent at Court: he, none but he ſhall haue her,
Though twenty thouſand worthier come to craue her.

Scena Quinta.

Enter Hoſt, Simple, Falſtaffe, Bardolfe, Euans, Caius, Quickly.

Hoſt. What would'ſt thou haue? (Boore) what? (thick ſkin) ſpeake, breathe, diſcuſſe: breefe, ſhort, quicke, ſnap.
Simp. Marry Sir, I come to ſpeake with Sir Iohn Falſtaffe from M. Slender.
Hoſt. There's his Chamber, his Houſe, his Caſtle, his ſtanding-bed and truckle-bed: 'tis painted about with the ſtory of the Prodigall, freſh and new: go, knock and call: hee'l ſpeake like an Anthropophaginian vnto thee: Knocke I ſay.
Simp. There's an olde woman, a fat woman gone vp into his chamber: Ile be ſo bold as ſtay Sir till ſhe come downe: I come to ſpeake with her indeed.
Hoſt. Ha? A fat woman? The Knight may be robb'd: Ile call. Bully-Knight, Bully Sir Iohn: ſpeake from thy Lungs Military: Art thou there? It is thine Hoſt, thine Epheſian calls.
Fal. How now, mine Hoſt?
Hoſt. Heve's a Bohemian-Tartar tarries the comming downe of thy fat-woman: Let her deſcend (Bully) let her deſcend: my Chambers are honourable: Fie, priuacy? Fie.
Fal. There was (mine Hoſt) an old-fat-woman euen now with me, but ſhe's gone.
Simp. Pray you Sir, was't not the Wiſe-woman of Brainford?
Fal. I marry was it (Muſſel-ſhell) what would you with her?
Simp. My Maſter (Sir) my maſter Slender, ſent to her ſeeing her go thorough the ſtreets, to know (Sir) whether one Nim (Sir) that beguil'd him of a chaine, had the chaine, or no.
Fal. I ſpake with the old woman about it.
Sim. And what ſayes ſhe, I pray Sir?
Fal. Marry ſhee ſayes, that the very ſame man that beguil'd Maſter Slender of his Chaine, cozon'd him of it.
Simp. I would I could haue ſpoken with the Woman her her ſelfe, I had other things to haue ſpoken with her too, from him.

Fal. What are they? let vs know

Hoſt. I: come: quicke.

Fal. I may not conceale them (Sir.)

Hoſt. Conceale them, or thou di'ſt.

Sim. Why ſir, they were nothing but about Miſtris Anne Page, to know if it were my Maſters fortune to haue her, or no.

Fal. 'Tis, 'tis his fortune.

Sim. What Sir?

Fal. To haue her, or no: goe; ſay the woman told me ſo.

Sim. May I be bold to ſay ſo Sir?

Fal. I Sir; like who more bold.

Sim. I thank your worſhip: I ſhall make my Maſter glad with theſe tydings.

Hoſt. Thou are clearkly: thou art clearkly (Sir Iohn) was there a wiſe woman with thee?

Fal. I that there was (mine Hoſt) one that hath taught me more wit, then euer I learn'd before in my life: and I paid nothing for it neither, but was paid for my learning.

Enter. Out alas (Sir) cozonage: meere cozonage.

Hoſt. Where be my horſes? ſpeake well of them varletto.

Ger. Run away with the cozoners: for ſo ſoone as I came beyond Eaton, they threw me off, from behinde one of them, in a ſlough of myre; and ſet ſpurres, and away; like three Germane-diuels; three Doctor Fauſtaſſes.

Hoſt. They are gone but to meete the Duke (villaine) doe not ſay they be fled: Germanes are honeſt men.

Euan. Where is mine Hoſt?

Hoſt. What is the matter Sir?

Euan. Haue a care of your entertainments: there is a friend of mine come to Towne, tells me there is three Cozen-Iermans, that has cozend all the Hoſts of Readins, of Maidenhead; of Cole-brooke, of horſes and money: I tell you for good will (looke you) you are wiſe, and full of gibes, and vlouting-ſtocks: and 'tis not conuenient you ſhould be cozoned. Fare you well.

Cai. Vere is mine Hoſt de Iarteere?

Hoſt. Here (Maſter Doctor) in perplexitie, and doubtfull dilemma.

Cai. I cannot tell vat is dat: but it is tell-a-me, dat you make grand preparation for a Duke de Iamanie: by my troth: der is no Duke that the Court is know, to come: I tell you for good will: adieu.

Hoſt. Hay and cry, (villaine) goe: aſſiſt me Knight, I am vndone: fly, run: hay, and cry (villaine) I am vndone.

Fal. I would all the world might be cozond, for I haue beene cozond and beaten too: if it ſhould come to the eare of the Court, how I haue beene transformed; and how my transformation hath beene waſhd, and cudgeld, they would melt mee out of my fat drop by drop, and liquor Fiſhermens-boots with me: I warrant they would whip me with their fine wits, till I were as creſt-faine as a dride-peare: I neuer proſper'd, ſince I forſwore my ſelfe at Primero: well, if my winde were but long enough, I would repent: Now? Whence come you?

Qui. From the two parties forſooth.

Fal. The Diuell take one partie, and his Dam the other: and ſo they ſhall be both beſtowed; I haue ſuffer'd more for their ſakes; more then the villanous inconſtancy of mans diſpoſition is able to beare.

Qui. And haue not they ſuffer'd? Yes, I warrant; ſpeciouſly one of them; Miſtris Ford (good heart) is beaten blacke and blew, that you cannot ſee a white ſpot about her.

Fal. What call'ſt thou mee of blacke, and blew? I was beaten my ſelfe into all the colours of the Raine-bow: and I was like to be apprehended for the Witch of Brainford, but that my admirable dexteritie of wit, my counterfeiting the action of an old woman deliuer'd me, the knaue Conſtable had ſet me ith' Stocks, ith' common Stocks, for a Witch.

Qu. Sir: let me ſpeake with you in your Chamber, you ſhall heare how things goe, and (I warrant) to your content: here is a Letter will ſay ſomewhat: (good-hearts) what a-doe here is to bring you together? Sure, one of you do's not ſerue heauen well, that you are ſo croſſ'd.

Fal. Come vp into my Chamber. Exeunt.

Scena Sexta.

Enter Fenton, Hoſt.

Hoſt. Maſter Fenton, talke not to mee, my minde is heauy: I will giue ouer all.

Fen. Yet heare me ſpeake: aſſiſt me in my purpoſe, And (as I am a gentleman) ile giue thee A hundred pound in gold, more then your loſſe.

Hoſt. I will heare you (Maſter Fenton) and I will (at the leaſt) keepe your counſell.

Fen. From time to time, I haue acquainted you With the deare loue I beare to faire Anne Page, Who, mutually, hath anſwer'd my affection, (So farre forth, as her ſelfe might be her chooſer) Euen to my wiſh; I haue a letter from her Of ſuch contents, as you will wonder at; The mirth whereof, ſo larded with my matter, That neither (ſingly) can be manifeſted Without the ſhew of both: fat Falſtaffe Hath a great Scene; the image of the ieſt Ile ſhow you here at large (harke good mine Hoſt) To night at Hernes-Oke, iuſt 'twixt twelue and one, Muſt my ſweet Nan preſent the Faerie-Queene: The purpoſe why, is here: in which diſguiſe While other ieſts are ſomething ranke on foote, Her father hath commanded her to ſlip Away with Slender, and with him, at Eaton Immediately to Marry: She hath conſented: Now Sir, Her Mother, (euen ſtrong againſt that match And firme for Doctor Caius) hath appointed That he ſhall likewiſe ſhuffle her away, While other ſports are tasking of their minder, And at the Deanry, where a Prieſt attends Strait marry her: to this her Mothers plot She ſeemingly obedient) likewiſe hath Made promiſe to the Doctor: Now, thus it reſts, Her Father meanes ſhe ſhall be all in white; And in that habit, when Slender ſees his time To take her by the hand, and bid her goe, She ſhall goe with him: her Mother hath intended (The better to deuote her to the Doctor), For they muſt all be maſk'd, and vizarded)

That

That quaint in greene, ſhe ſhall be looſe en-roab'd,
With Ribonds-pendant, flaring 'bout her head;
And when the Doctor ſpies his vantage ripe,
To pinch her by the hand, and on that token,
The maid hath giuen conſent to go with him.

Hoſt. Which meanes ſhe to deceiue? Father, or Mother.

Fen. Both (my good Hoſt) to go along with me:
And heere it reſts, that you'l procure the Vicar
To ſtay for me at Church, 'twixt twelue, and one,
And in the lawfull name of marrying,
To giue our hearts vnited ceremony.

Hoſt. Well, husband your deuice; Ile to the Vicar,
Bring you the Maid, you ſhall not lacke a Prieſt.

Fen. So ſhall I euermore be bound to thee;
Beſides, Ile make a preſent recompence. Exeunt

Actus Quintus. Scœna Prima.

Enter Falſtaffe, Quickly, and Ford.

Fal. Pre'thee no more prattling: go, Ile hold, this is the third time: I hope good lucke lies in odde numbers: Away, go, they ſay there is Diuinity in odde Numbers, either in natiuity, chance; or death: away.

Qui. Ile prouide you a chaine, and Ile do what I can to get you a paire of hornes.

Fal. Away I ſay, time wearer, hold vp your head & mince. How now M. Broome? Maſter Broome, the matter will be knowne to night, or neuer. Bee you in the Parke about midnight, at Hernes-Oake, and you ſhall ſee wonders.

Ford. Went you not to her yeſterday (Sir) as you told me you had appointed?

Fal. I went to her (Maſter Broome) as you ſee, like a poore-old-man, but I came from her (Maſter Broome) like a poore-old-woman; that ſame knaue (Ford hir husband) hath the fineſt mad diuell of Ieloufie in him (Maſter Broome) that euer gouern'd Frenſie. I will tell you, he beate me grieuouſly, in the ſhape of a woman: (for in the ſhape of Man (Maſter Broome) I feare not Goliah with a Weauers beame, becauſe I know alſo, life is a Shuttle) I am in haſt, go along with mee, Ile tell you all (Maſter Broome:) ſince I pluckt Geeſe, plaide Trewant, and whipt Top, I knew not what 'twas to be beaten, till lately. Follow mee, Ile tell you ſtrange things of this knaue Ford, on whom to night I will be reuenged, and I will deliuer his wife into your hand. Follow, ſtrange things in hand (M. Broome) follow. Exeunt.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Page, Shallow, Slender.

Page. Come, come: wee'll couch i'th Caſtle-ditch, till we ſee the light of our Fairies. Remember ſon Slender, my Slen. I forſooth, I haue ſpoke with her, & we haue a nay-word, how to know one another. I come to her in white, and cry Mum; ſhe cries Budget, and by that we know one another.

Shal. That's good too: But what needes either your Mum, or her Budget? The white will decipher her well enough. It hath ſtrooke ten a clocke.

Page. The night is darke, Light and Spirits will become it wel: Heauen proſper our ſport. No man means euill but the deuill, and we ſhal know him by his hornes. Lets away: follow me. Exeunt.

Scena Tertia.

Enter Miſt. Page, Miſt. Ford, Caius.

Miſt. Page. Mr Doctor, my daughter is in green, when you ſee your time, take her by the hand, away with her to the Deanerie, and diſpatch it quickly: go before into the Parke: we two muſt go together.

Cai. I know vat I haue to do, adieu.

Miſt. Page. Fare you well (Sir.) my husband will not reioyce ſo much at the abuſe of Falſtaffe, as he will chafe at the Doctors marrying my daughter: But 'tis no matter; better a little chiding, then a great deale of heart-breake.

Miſt. Ford. Where is Nan now? and her troop of Fairies? and the Welch-deuill Herne?

Miſt. Page. They are all couch'd in a pit hard by Hernes Oake, with obſcur'd Lights; which at the very inſtant of Falſtaffes and our meeting, they will at once diſplay to the night.

Miſt. Ford. That cannot chooſe but amaze him.

Miſt. Page. If he be not amaz'd he will be mock'd: If he be amaz'd, he will euery way be mock'd.

Miſt. Ford. We'll betray him finely.

Miſt. Page. Againſt ſuch Lewdſters, and their lechery, Thoſe that betray them, do no treachery.

Miſt. Ford. The houre drawes-on: to the Oake, to the Oake. Exeunt.

Scena Quarta.

Enter Euans and Fairies.

Euans. Trib, trib Fairies: Come, and remember your parts: be pold (I pray you) follow me into the pit, and when I giue the watch-'ords, do as I pid you: Come, come, trib, trib. Exeunt.

Scena Quinta.

Enter Falſtaffe, Miſtris Page, Miſtris Ford, Euans, Anne Page, Fairies, Page, Ford, Quickly, Slender, Fenton, Caius, Piſtoll.

Fal. The Windſor-bell hath ſtroke twelue: the Minute drawes-on: Now the hot-bloodied-Gods aſſiſt me: Remember Ioue, thou was't a Bull for thy Europa, Loue ſet on thy hornes. O powerfull Loue, that in ſome reſpects makes a Beaſt a Man: in ſom other, a Man a beaſt. You were alſo (Iupiter) a Swan, for the loue of Leda: O

omnipotent

Loue, how neere the God drew to the com-
Goose: a fault done first in the forme of a ast, a beastly fault:) and then another fault lance of a Fowle, thinke on't (Ioue) a fowle-n Gods haue hot backes, what shall poore r me, I am heere a Windsor Stagge, and the inke) i'th Forrest. Send me a coole rut-time lee can blame me to pisse my Tallow? Who e my Doe?
L. Sir Iohn? Art thou there (my Deere?) eere?
Doe, with the blacke Scut? Let the skie oes: let it thunder, to the tune of Greene-e-kissing Comfits, and snow Eringoes: Let a tempest of prouocation, I will shelter mee

Mistris Page is come with me(sweet hart.)
ide me like a brib'd-Bucke, each a Haunch:
my sides to my selfe, my shoulders for the s walke; and my hornes I bequeath your Am I a Woodman, ha? Speake I like Herne
Why, now is Cupid a child of conscience, fication. As I am a true spirit, welcome.
Alas, what noise?
Heauen forgiue our sinnes,
at should this be?
M.Page. Away, away.
nke the diuell wil not haue me damn'd,
le that's in me should set hell on fire;
euer else crosse me thus.
Enter Fairies.
iries blacke, gray, greene, and white,
-shine reuellers, and shades of night.
a heires of fixed destiny,
r office, and your quality.
goblyn, make the Fairy Oyes.
rs, list your names: Silence you aiery toyes
Windsor-chimnies shalt thou leape:
thou find'st vnrak'd, and hearths vnswept,
the Maids as blew as Bill-berry,
t Queene, hates Sluts, and Sluttery.
y are Fairies, he that speaks to them shall die,
nd couch: No man their workes must eie.
er's Bede! Go you, and where you find a maid
e sleepe has thrice her prayers said,
e Organs of her fantasie,
as sound as carelesse infancie,
s sleepe, and thinke not on their sins,
armes, legs, backes, shoulders, sides, & shins.
out, about:
dsor Castle (Elues) within, and out.
l lucke (Ouphes) on euery sacred roome,
y stand till the perpetuall doome, wholsome, as in state 'tis fit,
e Owner, and the Owner it.
ll Chaires of Order, looke you scowre
e of Balme; and euery precious flowre, Instalment, Coate, and seu'rall Crest,
ll Blazon, euermore be blest. ly-meadow-Fairies, looke you sing
e Garters-Compasse, in a ring.
ore that it beares: Greene let it be, le-fresh then all the Field to see:
Soit Qui Mal-y-Pence, write
-tuffes, Flowres purple, blew, and white,
re-pearle, and rich embroiderie,

Buckled below faire Knight-hoods bending knee.
Fairies vse Flowres for their charactery.
Away, disperse: But till 'tis one a clocke,
Our Dance of Custome, round about the Oke
Of Herne the Hunter, let vs not forget. (set:
Euan. Pray you lock hand in hand: your selues in order
And twenty glow-wormes shall our Lanthornes bee
To guide our Measure round about the Tree.
But stay, I smell a man of middle earth.
Fal. Heauens defend me from that Welsh Fairy,
Least he transforme me to a peece of Cheese.
Pist. Vilde worme, thou wast ore-look'd euen in thy birth.
Qu. With Triall-fire touch me his finger end:
If he be chaste, the flame will backe descend
And turne him to no paine: but if he start,
It is the flesh of a corrupted hart.
Pist. A triall, come.
Eua. Come: will this wood take fire?
Fal. Oh, oh, oh.
Qui. Corrupt, corrupt, and tainted in desire.
About him (Fairies) sing a scornfull rime,
And as you trip, still pinch him to your time.

The Song.

Fie on sinnefull phantasie: Fie on Lust, and Luxurie:
Lust is but a bloudy fire, kindled with vnchaste desire,
Fed in heart whose flames aspire,
As thoughts do blow them higher and higher.
Pinch him (Fairies) mutually: Pinch him for his villanie.
Pinch him, and burne him, and turne him about,
Till Candles, & Star-light, & Moone-shine be out.

Page. Nay do not flye, I thinke we haue watcht you now: VVill none but Herne the Hunter serue your turne?
M. Page. I pray you come, hold vp the iest no higher.
Now (good Sir Iohn) how like you Windsor wiues?
See you these husband? Do not these faire yoakes Become the Forrest better then the Towne?
Ford. Now Sir, whose a Cuckold now?
Mr Broome, Falstaffes a Knaue, a Cuckoldly knaue, Heere are his hornes Master Broome:
And Master Broome, he hath enioyed nothing of Fords, but his Buck-basket, his cudgell, and twenty pounds of money, which must be paid to Mr Broome, his horses are arrested for it, Mr Broome.
M.Ford. Sir Iohn, we haue had ill lucke: wee could neuer meete: I will neuer take you for my Loue againe, but I will alwayes count you my Deere.
Fal. I do begin to perceiue that I am made an Asse.
Ford. I, and an Oxe too: both the proofes are extant.
Fal. And these are not Fairies:
I was three or foure times in the thought they were not Fairies, and yet the guiltinesse of my minde, the sodaine surprize of my powers, droue the grossenesse of the foppery into a receiu'd beleefe, in despight of the teeth of all rime and reason, that they were Fairies. See now how wit may be made a Iacke-a-Lent, when 'tis vpon ill imployment.
Euans. Sir Iohn Falstaffe, serue Got, and leaue your desires, and Fairies will not pinse you.
Ford. VVell said Fairy Hugh.
Euans. And leaue you your Iealouzies too, I pray you.

Ford.

Ford. I will neuer miſtruſt my wife againe, till thou art able to woo her in good Engliſh.

Fal. Haue I laid my braine in the Sun, and dri'de it, that it wants matter to preuent ſo groſſe ore-reaching as this? Am I ridden with a Welch Goate too? Shal I haue a Coxcombe of Frize? Tis time I were choak'd with a peece of toaſted Cheeſe.

Eu. Seeſe is not good to giue putter; your belly is all putter.

Fal. Seeſe, and Putter? Haue I liu'd to ſtand at the taunt of one that makes Fritters of Engliſh? This is enough to be the decay of luſt and late-walking through the Realme.

Miſt. Page. Why Sir Iohn, do you thinke though wee would haue thruſt vertue out of our hearts by the head end ſhoulders, and haue giuen our ſelues without ſcruple to hell, that euer the deuill could haue made you our delight?

Ford. What, a hodge-pudding? A bag of flex?

Miſt. Page. A puft-man?

Page. Old, cold, withe'd, and of intollerable entrailes?

Ford. And one that is as ſlanderous as Sathan?

Page. And as poore as Iob?

Ford. And as wicked as his wife?

Euan. And giuen to Fornications, and to Tauernes, and Sacke, and Wine, and Metheglins, and to drinkings and ſwearings, and ſtarings? Pribles and prables?

Fal. Well, I am your Theame: you haue the ſtart of me, I am deiected: I am not able to anſwer the Welch Flannell. Ignorance it ſelfe is a plummet ore me, vſe me as you will.

Ford. Marry Sir, wee'l bring you to Windſor to one Maſter Broome, that you haue cozon'd of money, to whom you ſhould haue bin a Pander: ouer and aboue that you haue ſuffer'd, I thinke, to repay that money will be a biting affliction.

Page. Yet be cheerefull Knight: thou ſhalt eat a poſſet to night at my houſe, wher I will deſire thee to laugh at my wife, that now laughes at thee: Tell her Maſter Slender hath married her daughter.

Miſt. Page. Doctors doubt that;
If Anne Page be my daughter, ſhe is (by this) Doctour Caius wife.

Slen. Whoo hoe, hoe, Father Page.

Page. Sonne? How now? How now Sonne, Haue you diſpatch'd?

Slen. Diſpatch'd? Ile make the beſt in Gloſterſhire know on't: would I were hang'd la, elſe.

Page. Of what ſonne?

Slen. I came yonder at Eaton to marry Miſtris Anne Page, and ſhe's a great lubberly boy. If it had not bene i'th Church, I would haue ſwing'd him, or hee ſhould haue ſwing'd me. If I did not thinke it had beene Anne Page, would I might neuer ſtirre, and 'tis a Poſt-maſters Boy.

Page. Vpon my life then, you tooke the wrong.

Slen. What needs you tell me that? I think ſo, when I tooke a Boy for a Girle: If I had bene married to him, (for all he was in womans apparrell) I would not haue had him.

Page. Why this is your owne folly,
Did not I tell you how you ſhould know my daughter,
By her garments?

Slen. I went to her in greene, and cried Mum, and ſhe cride budget, as Anne and I had appointed, and yet it was not Anne, but a Poſt-maſters boy

Miſt. Page. Good George be not angry, I knew of your purpoſe: turn'd my daughter into white, and indeede ſhe is now with the Doctor at the Deanrie, and there married.

Cai. Ver is Miſtris Page: by gar I am cozoned. I ha married oon Garſoon, a boy; oon peſant, by gar. A boy, it is not Anne Page, by gar, I am cozened.

M. Page. Why? did you take her in white?

Cai. I bee gar, and 'tis a boy: be gar, Ile raiſe all Windſor.

Ford. This is ſtrange: Who hath got the right Anne?

Page. My heart miſgiues me, here comes Maſter Fenton.
How now Maſter Fenton?

Anne Pardon good father, good my mother pardon

Page. Now Miſtris:
How chanee you went not with Maſter Slender?

M. Page. Why went you not with Maſter Doctor, maid?

Fen. You do amaze her: heare the truth of it.
You would haue married her moſt ſhamefully,
Where there was no proportion held in loue:
The truth is, ſhe and I (long ſince contracted)
Are now ſo ſore that nothing can diſſolue vs:
Th'offence is holy, that ſhe hath committed,
And this deceit looſes the name of craft,
Of diſobedience, or vnduteous title,
Since therein ſhe doth euitate and ſhun
A thouſand irreligious curſed houres
Which forced marriage would haue brought vpon her.

Ford. Stand not amaz'd, here is no remedie:
In Loue, the heauens themſelues do guide the ſtate,
Money buyes Lands, and wiues are ſold by fate.

Fal. I am glad, though you haue tane a ſpecial ſtand to ſtrike vs me, that your Arrow hath glanc'd.

Page. Well, what remedy? Fenton, heauen giue thee ioy, what cannot be eſchew'd, muſt be embrac'd.

Fal. When night-dogges run, all ſorts of Deere are chac'd.

M. Page. Well, I will muſe no further: Maſter Fenton,
Heauen giue you many, many merry dayes:
Good husband, let vs euery one go home,
And laugh this ſport ore by a Countrie fire.
Sir Iohn and all.

Ford. Let it be ſo (Sir Iohn:)
To Maſter Broome, you yet ſhall hold your word,
For he, to night, ſhall lye with Miſtris Ford. Exeunt

FINIS.

MEASVRE,
For Measure.

Actus primus, Scena prima.

Enter Duke, Escalus, Lords.

Duke.

Escalus.

Esc. My Lord. (fold,

Duke. Of Gouernment, the properties to vn-
Would seeme in me t'affect speech & discourse,
Since I am put to know, that your owne Science
Exceedes (in that) the lists of all aduice
My strength can giue you: Then no more remaines
But that, to your sufficiency, as your worth is able,
And let them worke: The nature of our People,
Our Cities Institutions, and the Termes
For Common Iustice, y'are as pregnant in
As Art, and practise, hath inriched any
That we remember: There is our Commission,
From which, we would not haue you warpe; call hither,
I say, bid come before vs Angelo:
What figure of vs thinke you, he will beare.
For you must know, we haue with speciall soule
Elected him our absence to supply;
Lent him our terror, dreft him with our loue,
And giuen his Deputation all the Organs
Of our owne powre: What thinke you of it?

Esc. If any in Vienna be of worth
To vndergoe such ample grace, and honour,
It is Lord Angelo.

Enter Angelo.

Duke. Looke where he comes.

Ang. Always obedient to your Graces will,
I come to know your pleasure.

Duke. Angelo:
There is a kinde of Character in thy life,
That to th'obseruer, doth thy history
Fully vnfold: Thy selfe, and thy belongings
Are not thine owne so proper, as to waste
Thy selfe vpon thy vertues; they on thee:
Heauen doth with vs, as we, with Torches doe,
Not light them for themselues: For if our vertues
Did not goe forth of vs, 'twere all alike
As if we had them not: Spirits are not finely touch'd
But to fine issues: nor nature neuer lends
The smallest scruple of her excellence,
But like a thrifty goddesse, she determines
Her selfe the glory of a creditour,
Both thanks, and vse; but I do bend my speech
To one that can my part in him aduertise;
Hold therefore Angelo:
In our remoue, be thou at full, our selfe:
Mortallitie and Mercie in Vienna
Liue in thy tongue, and heart: Old Escalus
Though first in question, is thy secondary.
Take thy Commission.

Ang. Now good my Lord
Let there be some more test, made of my mettle,
Before so noble, and so great a figure
Be stamp't vpon it.

Duke. No more euasion:
We haue with a leauen'd, and prepared choice
Proceeded to you; therefore take your honors:
Our haste from hence is of so quicke condition,
That it prefers it selfe, and leaues vnquestion'd
Matters of needfull value: We shall write to you
As time, and our concernings shall importune,
How it goes with vs, and doe looke to know
What doth befall you here. So fare you well:
To th'hopefull execution doe I leaue you,
Of your Commissions.

Ang. Yet giue leaue (my Lord,)
That we may bring you something on the way.

Duke. My haste may not admit it,
Nor needs you (on mine honor) haue to doe
With any scruple: your scope is as mine owne,
So to inforce, or qualifie the Lawes
As to your soule seemes good: Giue me your hand,
Ile priuily away: I loue the people,
But doe not like to stage me to their eyes:
Though it doe well, I doe not relliſh well
Their lowd applause, and Aues vehement:
Nor doe I thinke the man of safe discretion
That do's affect it. Once more fare you well.

Ang. The heauens giue safety to your purposes.

Esc. Lead forth, and bring you backe in happinesse. Exit.

Duke. I thanke you, fare you well.

Esc. I shall desire you, Sir, to giue me leaue
To haue free speech with you; and it concernes me
To looke into the bottome of my place:
A powre I haue, but of what strength and nature,
I am not yet instructed.

Ang. 'Tis so with me: Let vs with-draw together,
And we may soone our satisfaction haue
Touching that point.

Esc. Ile wait vpon your honor. Exeunt.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Lucio, and two other Gentlemen.

Luc. If the Duke, with the other Dukes, come not to composition with the King of Hungery, why then all the Dukes fall vpon the King.

1. Gent. Heauen grant vs its peace, but not the King of Hungaries.

2. Gent. Amen.

Luc. Thou conclud'st like the Sanctimonious Pirat, that went to sea with the ten Commandements, but scrap'd one out of the Table.

2. Gent. Thou shalt not Steale?

Luc. I, that he raz'd.

1. Gent. Why? 'twas a commandement, to command the Captaine and all the rest from their functions: they put forth to steale: There's not a Souldier of vs all, that in the thanks-giuing before meate, do rallish the petition well, that prates for peace.

2. Gent. I neuer heard any Souldier dislike it.

Luc. I beleeue thee: for I thinke thou neuer was't where Grace was said.

2. Gent. No? a dozen times at least.

1. Gent. What? in meeter?

Luc. In any proportion, or in any language.

1. Gent. I thinke, or in any Religion.

Luc. I, why not? Grace, is Grace, despight of all controuersie: as for example; Thou thy selfe art a wicked villaine, despight of all Grace.

1. Gent. Well: there went but a paire of sheeres betweene vs.

Luc. I grant: as there may betweene the Lists, and the Veluet. Thou art the List.

1. Gent. And thou the Veluet; thou art good veluet; thou'rt a three pild-peece I warrant thee: I had as lieue be a Lyst of an English Kersey, as be pil'd, as thou art pil'd, for a French Veluet. Do I speake feelingly now?

Luc. I thinke thou do'st: and indeed with most painfull feeling of thy speech: I will, out of thine owne confession, learne to begin thy health; but, whilst I liue forget to drinke after thee.

1. Gen. I thinke I haue done my selfe wrong, haue I not?

2. Gent. Yes, that thou hast; whether thou art tainted, or free.

Enter Bawde.

Luc. Behold, behold, where Madam Mitigation comes. I haue purchas'd as many diseases vnder her Roofe,
As come to

2. Gent. To what, I pray?

Luc. Iudge.

2. Gent. To three thousand Dollours a yeare.

1. Gent. I, and more.

Luc. A French crowne more.

1. Gent. Thou art alwayes figuring diseases in me; but thou art full of error, I am sound.

Luc. Nay, not (as one would say) healthy: but so sound, as things that are hollow; thy bones are hollow; Impiety has made a feast of thee.

1. Gent. How now, which of your hips has the most profound Sciatica?

Bawd. Well, well: there's one yonder arrested, and carried to prison, was worth fiue thousand of you all.

2. Gent. Who's that I pray thee?

Bawd. Marry Sir, that's Claudio, Signior Claudio.

1. Gent. Claudio to prison? 'tis not so.

Bawd. Nay, but I know 'tis so: I saw him arrested: saw him carried away: and which is more, within these three dates his head to be chop'd off.

Luc. But, after all this fooling, I would not haue it so: Art thou sure of this?

Bawd. I am too sure of it: and it is for getting Madam Iulietta with childe.

Luc. Beleeue me this may be: he promis'd to meete me two howres since, and he was euer precise in promise keeping.

2. Gent. Besides you know, it drawes something neere to the speech we had to such a purpose.

1. Gent. But most of all agreeing with the proclamation.

Luc. Away; let's goe learne the truth of it. Exit.

Bawd. Thus, what with the war; what with the sweat, what with the gallowes, and what with pouerty, I am Custom-shrunke. How now? what's the newes with you. Enter Clowne.

Clo. Yonder man is carried to prison.

Bawd. Well: what has he done?

Clo. A Woman.

Bawd. But what's his offence?

Clo. Groping for Trowts, in a peculiar Riuer.

Bawd. What? is there a maid with child by him?

Clo. No: but there's a woman with maid by him: you haue not heard of the proclamation, haue you?

Bawd. What proclamation, man?

Clow. All houses in the Suburbs of Vienna must be pluck'd downe.

Bawd. And what shall become of those in the Citie?

Clow. They shall stand for seed: they had gone downe too, but that a wise Burger put in for them.

Bawd. But shall all our houses of resort in the Suburbs be pull'd downe?

Clow. To the ground, Mistris.

Bawd. Why here's a change indeed in the Commonwealth: what shall become of me?

Clow. Come: feare not you: good Counsellors lacke no Clients: though you change your place, you needs not change your Trade: Ile bee your Tapster still; courage, there will bee pitty taken on you; you that haue worne your eyes almost out in the seruice, you will bee considered.

Bawd. What's to doe heere, Thomas Tapster? let's withdrawe?

Clo. Here comes Signior Claudio, led by the Prouost to prison: and there's Madam Iuliet. Exeunt.

Scena Tertia.

Enter Prouost, Claudio, Iuliet, Officers, Lucio, & 2. Gent.

Cla. Fellow, why do'st thou show me thus to th'world?
Beare me to prison, where I am committed.

Pro. I do it not in euill disposition,
But from Lord Angelo by speciall charge.

Cla. Thus can the demy-god (Authority)
Make vs pay downe, for our offence, by weight.
The words of heauen; on whom it will, it will,
On whom it will not (so) yet still 'tis iust. (strainst.

Luc. Why how now Claudio? whence comes this re-

Cla. From too much liberty, (my Lucio) Liberty
As surfeit is the father of much fast,
So euery Scope by the immoderate vse
Turnes to restraint: Our Natures due pursue

Like

lats that rauyn downe their proper Bane, ly eſtill, and when we drinke, we die.
. If I could ſpeake ſo wiſely vnder an arreſt, I ſend for certaine of my Creditors: and yet, to ſay
th, I had as liefe haue the foppery of freedome, as ortalitie of impriſonment: what's thy offence,
?
. What (but to ſpeake of) would offend againe.
. What, is't murder?
. No.
. Lecherie?
. Call it ſo.
. Away, Sir, you muſt goe.
. One word, good friend
a word with you.
. A hundred:
'll doe you any good: Is Lechery ſo look'd after?
. Thus ſtands it with me: vpon a true contract ſolleſſion of Iuliet at bed,
now the Lady, ſhe is faſt my wife,
at we doe the denunciation lacke ward Order. This we came not to,
for propogation of a Dowre
ming in the Coffer of her friends, whom we thought it meet to hide our Loue ime had made them for vs. But it chances alth of our moſt mutuall entertainment
Character too groſſe, is writ on Iuliet.
. With childe, perhaps?
. Vnhappely, euen ſo.
he new Deputie, now for the Duke,
ther it be the fault and glimpſe of newnes ether that the body publique, be ſe whereon the Gouernor doth ride, newly in the Seate, that it may know command; lets it ſtrait feele the ſpur:
her the Tirranny be in his place, is Eminence that fills it vp ger in: But this new Gouernor es me all the inrolled penalties haue (like vn-ſcowr'd Armor) hung by th'wall
g, that nineteene Zodiacks haue gone round, one of them beene worne; and for a name puts the drowſie and neglected Act
'on me: 'tis ſurely for a name.
. I warrant it is: And thy head ſtands ſo tickle on ioulders, that a milke-maid, if ſhe be in loue, may off: Send after the Duke, and appeale to him.
. I haue done ſo, but hee's not to be found.
ner (Lucio) doe me this kinde ſeruice:
ay, my ſiſter ſhould the Cloyſter enter,
here receiue her approbation.
aine her with the danger of my ſtate,
ge her, in my voice, that ſhe make friends
e ſtrict deputie: bid her ſelfe aſſay him, great hope in that: for in her youth is a prone and ſpeechleſſe dialect, s moue men: beſide, ſhe hath proſperous Art
ſhe will play with reaſon, and diſcourſe, well ſhe can perſwade.
. I pray ſhee may; as well for the encouragement like, which elſe would ſtand vnder grieuous imon: as for the enioying of thy life, who I would be ſhould bee thus foolliſhly loſt, at a game of ticke-Ile ſo her.
. I thanke you good friend Lucio.

Luc. Within two houres.
Cla. Come Officer, away. Exeunt.

Scena Quarta.

Enter Duke and Frier Thomas.

Duk. No: holy Father, throw away that thought,
Beleeue not that the dribling dart of Loue
Can pierce a compleat boſome: why, I deſire thee
To giue me ſecret harbour, hath a purpoſe
More graue, and wrinkled, then the aimes, and ends
Of burning youth.
Fri. May your Grace ſpeake of it?
Duk. My holy Sir, none better knowes then you
How I haue euer lou'd the life removed
And held in idle price, to haunt aſſemblies
Where youth, and coſt, witleſſe braverie keepes.
I haue deliuerd to Lord Angelo
(A man of ſtricture and firme abſtinence)
My abſolute power, and place here in Vienna,
And he ſuppoſes me trauaild to Poland,
(For ſo I haue ſtrewd it in the common eare)
And ſo it is receiu'd: Now (pious Sir)
You will demand of me, why I do this.
Fri. Gladly, my Lord.
Duk. We haue ſtrict Statutes, and moſt biting Laws,
(The needfull bits and curbes to headſtrong weedes,)
Which for this fourteene yeares, we haue let ſlip
Euen like an ore-growne Lyon in a Caue
That goes not out to prey: Now, as fond Fathers,
Hauing bound vp the threatning twigs of birch,
Onely to ſticke it in their childrens ſight
For terror, not to vſe: in time the rod
More mock'd, then fear'd: ſo our Decrees,
Dead to infliction, to themſelues are dead,
And liberrie, plucks Iuſtice by the noſe;
The Baby beates the Nurſe, and quite a-ſhwart
Goes all decorum.
Fri. It reſted in your Grace
To vnlooſe this tyde-vp Iuſtice, when you pleaſ'd:
And it in you more dreadfull would haue ſeem'd
Then in Lord Angelo.
Duk. I doe feare: too dreadfull:
Sith 'twas my fault, to giue the people ſcope,
'T would be my tirranny to ſtrike and gall them,
For what I bid them doe: For, we bid this be done
When euill deedes haue their permiſſiue paſſe,
And not the puniſhment: therefore indeede (my father)
I haue on Angelo impos'd the office,
Who may in th'ambuſh of my name, ſtrike home,
And yet, my nature neuer in the ſight
To do in ſlander: And to behold his ſway
I will, as 'twere a brother of your Order,
Viſit both Prince, and People: Therefore I pre'thee
Supply me with the habit, and inſtruct me
How I may formally in perſon beare
Like a true Frier: Moe reaſons for this action
At our more leyſure, ſhall I render you;
Onely, this one: Lord Angelo is preciſe,
Stands at a guard with Enuie: ſcarce confeſſes
That his blood flowes: or that his appetite
Is more to bread then ſtone: hence ſhall we ſee
If power change purpoſe: what our Seemers be. Exit.

Scena Quinta.

Enter Isabell and Francisca a Nun.

Isa. And haue you Nuns no farther priuiledges?

Nun. Are not these large enough?

Isa. Yes truely; I speake not as desiring more,
But rather wishing a more strict restraint
Vpon the Sisterstood, the Votarists of Saint Clare.

Lucio within.

Luc. Hoa? peace be in this place.

Isa. Who's that which cals?

Nun. It is a mans voice: gentle Isabella
Turne you the key, and know his businesse of him;
You may; I may not: you are yet vnsworne;
When you haue vowd, you must not speake with men,
But in the presence of the Prioresse;
Then if you speake, you must not show your face;
Or if you show your face, you must not speake:
He cals againe: I pray you answere him.

Isa. Peace and prosperitie: who is't that cals?

Luc. Haile Virgin, (if you be) as those cheeke-Roses
Proclaime you are no lesse: can you so steed me,
As bring me to the sight of Isabella,
A Nouice of this place, and the faire Sister
To her vnhappie brother Claudio?

Isa. Why her vnhappy Brother? Let me aske,
The rather for I now must make you know
I am that Isabella, and his Sister.

Luc. Gentle & faire: your Brother kindly greets you;
Not to be weary with you; he's in prison.

Isa. Woe me; for what?

Luc. For that, which if my selfe might be his Iudge,
He should receiue his punishment, in thankes:
He hath got his friend with childe.

Isa. Sir, make me not your storie.

Luc. 'Tis true; I would not, though 'tis my familiar sin,
With Maids to seeme the Lapwing, and to iest
Tongue, far from heart: play with all Virgins so:
I hold you as a thing enskied, and sainted,
By your renouncement, an immortall spirit
And to be talk'd with in sincerity,
As with a Saint.

Isa. You doe blaspheme the good, in mocking me.

Luc. Doe not beleeue it: fewnes, and truth; 'tis thus,
Your brother, and his louer haue embrac'd;
As those that feed, grow full: as blossoming Time
That from the seedues, the bare fallow brings
To teeming foyson: euen so her plenteous wombe
Expresseth his full Tilth, and husbandry.

Isa. Some one with childe by him? my cosen Iuliet?

Luc. Is she your cosen?

Isa. Adoptedly, as schoole-maids change their names
By vaine, though apt affection.

Luc. She it is.

Isa. Oh, let him marry her.

Luc. This is the point.
The Duke is very strangely gone from hence;
Bore many gentlemen (my selfe being one)
In hand, and hope of action: but we doe learne,
By those that know the very Nerues of State,
His giuing-out, were of an infinite distance
From his true meant desygne: vpon his place,
(And with full line of his authority)
Gouernes Lord Angelo; A man, whose blood
Is very snow-broth: one, who neuer feeles
The wanton stings, and motions of the sence;
But doth rebate, and blunt his naturall edge
With profits of the minde. Studie, and fast
He (to giue feare to vse, and libertie,
Which haue, for long, run-by the hideous law,
As Myce, by Lyons) hath picks out an act.
Vnder whose heauy sence, your brothers life
Falls into forfeit: he arrests him on it,
And followes close the rigor of the Statute
To make him an example: all hope is gone,
Vnlesse you haue the grace, by your faire prayer
To soften Angelo: And that's my pith of businesse
'Twixt you, and your poore brother.

Isa. Doth he so,
Seeke his life?

Luc. Has censur'd him already,
And as I heare, the Prouost hath a warrant
For's execution.

Isa. Alas: what poore
Abilitie's in me, to doe him good.

Luc. Assay the powre you haue.

Isa. My power? alas, I doubt.

Luc. Our doubts are traitors
And makes vs loose the good we oft might win,
By fearing to attempt: Goe to Lord Angelo
And let him learne to know, when Maidens sue
Men giue like gods: but when they weepe and kneele,
All their petitions, are as freely theirs
As they themselues would owe them.

Isa. Ile see what I can doe.

Luc But speedily.

Isa. I will about it strait;
No longer staying, but to giue the Mother
Notice of my affaire: I hombly thanke you;
Commend me to my brother: soone at night
Ile send him certaine word of my successe.

Luc. I take my leaue of you.

Isa. Good sir, adieu. Exeunt.

Actus Secundus. Scena Prima.

Enter Angelo, Escalus, and seruants, Iustice.

Ang. We must not make a scar-crow of the Law,
Setting it vp to feare the Birds of prey,
And let it keepe one shape, till custome make it
Their perch, and not their terror.

Esc. I, but yet
Let vs be keene, and rather cut a little
Then fall, and bruise to death: alas, this gentleman
Whom I would saue, had a most noble father,
Let but your honour know
(Whom I beleeue to be most strait in vertue)
That in the working of your owne affections,
Had time cohered with Place, or place with wishing,
Or that the resolute acting of our blood
Could haue attaind th'effect of your owne purpose,
Whether you had not sometimes in your life
Er'd in this point, which now you censure him,
And pul'd the Law vpon you.

Ang. 'Tis one thing to be tempted (Escalus)

Another

Another thing to fall: I not deny
The Iury passing on the Prisoners life
May in the sworne-twelue haue a theefe, or two Guiltier then him they try: what's open made to Iustice,
That Iustice seizes; What knowes the Lawes
That theeues do passe on theeues? Tis very pregnant,
The Iewell that we finde, we stoope, and take't,
Because we see it; but what we doe not see,
We tread vpon, and neuer thinke of it.
You may not so extenuate his offence,
For I haue had such faults; but rather tell me
When I, that censure him, do so offend,
Let mine owne Iudgement patterne out my death,
And nothing come in partiall. Sir, he must dye.

Enter Prouost.

Esc. Be it as your wisedome will.

Ang. Where is the Prouost?

Pro. Here if it like your honour.

Ang. See that Claudio
Be executed by nine to morrow morning,
Bring him his Confessor, let him be prepar'd,
For that's the vtmost of his pilgrimage.

Esc. Well: heauen forgiue him: and forgiue vs all.
Some rise by sinne, and some by vertue fall
Some run from brakes of Ice, and answere none,
And some condemned for a fault alone.

Enter Elbow, Froth, Clowne, Officers.

Elb. Come, bring them away: if these be good people in a Common-weale, that doe nothing but vse their abuses in common houses, I know no law: bring them away.

Ang. How now Sir, what's your name? And what's the matter?

Elb. If it please your honour, I am the poore Dukes Constable, and my name is Elbow; I doe leane vpon Iustice Sir, and doe bring in here before your good honor, two notorious Benefactors.

Ang. Benefactors? Well: What Benefactors are they? Are they not Malefactors?

Elb. If it please your honour, I know not well what they are: But precise villaines they are, that I am sure of, and void of all prophanation in the world, that good Christians ought to haue.

Esc. This comes off well: here's a wise Officer.

Ang. Goe to: What quality are they of? Elbow is your name?
Why do'st thou not speake Elbow?

Clo. He cannot Sir: he's out at Elbow.

Ang. What are you Sir?

Elb. He Sir? a Tapster Sir: parcell Baud: one that serues a bad woman: whose house Sir was (as they say) pluckt downe in the Suburbs: and now shee professes a hot-house; which, I thinke is a very ill house too.

Esc. How know you that?

Elb. My wife Sir? whom I detest before heauen, and your honour.

Esc. How? thy wife?

Elb. I Sir: whom I thanke heauen is an honest woman.

Esc. Do'st thou detest her therefore?

Elb. I say Sir, I will detest my selfe also, as well as she, that this house, if it be not a Bauds house, it is pitty of her life, for it is a naughty house.

Esc. How do'st thou know that, Constable?

Elb. Marry Sir, by my wife, who, if she had bin a woman Cardinally giuen, might haue bin accus'd in fornication, adultery, and all vncleanlinesse there.

Esc. By the womans meanes?

Elb. I Sir, by Mistris Ouer-dons meanes: but as she spit in his face, so she defide him.

Clo. Sir, if it please your honor, this is not so.

Elb. Proue it before these varlets here, thou honorable man, proue it.

Esc. Doe you heare how he misplaces?

Clo. Sir, she came in great with childe: and longing (sauing your honors reuerence) for stew'd prewyns; sir, we had but two in the house, which at that very distant time stood, as it were in a fruit dish (a dish of some three pence; your honours haue seene such dishes) they are not China-dishes, but very good dishes.

Esc. Go too: go too: no matter for the dish sir.

Clo. No indeede sir not of a pin; you are therein in the right: but, to the point: As I say, this Mistris Elbow, being (as I say) with childe, and being great bellied, and longing (as I said) for prewyns: and having but two in the dish (as I said) Master Froth here, this very man, hauing eaten the rest (as I said) & (as I say) paying for them very honestly: for, as you know Master Froth, I could not giue you three pence a peece.

Fro. No indeede.

Clo. Very well: you being then (if you be remembred) cracking the stones of the foresaid prewyns.

Fro. I, so I did indeede.

Clo. Why, very well: I telling you then (if you be remembred) that such a one, and such a one, were past cure of the thing you wot of, vnlesse they kept very good diet, as I told you.

Fro. All this is true.

Clo. Why very well then.

Esc. Come: you are a tedious foole: to the purpose: what was done to Elbowes wife, that hee hath cause to complaine of? Come me to what was done to her.

Clo. Sir, your honor cannot come to that yet.

Esc. No sir, nor I meane it not.

Clo. Sir, but you shall come to it, by your honours leaue: And I beseech you, looke into Master Froth here sir, a man of foure score pound a yeare; whose father died at Hallowmas: Was't not at Hallowmas Master Froth?

Fro. Allhallond-Eue.

Clo. Why very well: I hope here be truthes: he Sir, sitting (as I say) in a lower chaire, Sir, 'twas in the bunch of Grapes, where indeede you haue a delight to sit, haue you not?

Fro. I haue so, because it is an open roome, and good for winter.

Clo. Why very well then: I hope here be truthes.

Ang. This will last out a night in Russia
When nights are longest there: Ile take my leaue,
And leaue you to the hearing of the cause;
Hoping youle finde good cause to whip them all.

Esc. I thinke no lesse: good morrow to your Lordship. Now Sir, come on: What was done to Elbowes wife, once more?

Clo. Once Sir? there was nothing done to her once.

Elb. I beseech you Sir, aske him what this man did to my wife.

Clo. I beseech your honor, aske me.

Esc. Well sir, what did this Gentleman to her?

Clo. I beseech you sir, looke in this Gentlemans face: good Master Froth looke vpon his honor; 'tis for a good purpose: doth your honor marke his face?

Esc. I sir, very well.

Clo. Nay, I beseech you marke it well.

Esc. Well, I doe so.

Clo. Doth your honor see any harme in his face?

Esc. Why no.

Clo. Ile be supposd vpon a booke, his face is the worst thing about him: good then: if his face be the worst thing about him, how could Master Froth doe the Constables wife any harme? I would know that of your honour.

Esc. He's in the right (Constable) what say you to it?

Elb. First, and it like you, the house is a respected house; next, this is a respected fellow; and his Mistris is a respected woman.

Clo. By this hand Sir, his wife is a more respected person then any of us all.

Elb. Varlet, thou lyest; thou lyest wicked varlet: the time is yet to come that shee was euer respected with man, woman, or childe.

Clo Sir, she was respected with him, before he married with her.

Esc. Which is the wiser here; Iustice or Iniquitie? Is this true?

Elb. O thou caytiffe: O thou varlet: O thou wicked Hannibal; I respected with her, before I was married to her? If euer I was respected with her, or she with me, let not your worship thinke me the poore Dukes Officer: proue this, thou wicked Hannibal, or ile haue mine action of battry on thee.

Esc. If he tooke you a box 'oth'eare, you might haue your action of slander too.

Elb. Marry I thanke your good worship for it: what is't your Worships pleasure I shall doe with this wicked Caitiffe?

Esc. Truly Officer, because he hath some offences in him, that thou wouldst discouer, if thou couldst, let him continue in his courses, till thou knowst what they are.

Elb. Marry I thanke your worship for it: Thou seest thou wicked varlet now, what's come vpon thee. Thou art to continue now thou Varlet, thou art to continue.

Esc. Where were you borne, friend?

Froth. Here in Vienna, Sir.

Esc. Are you of fourescore pounds a yeere?

Froth. Yes, and 't please you sir.

Esc. So: what trade are you of, sir?

Clo. A Tapster, a poore widdowes Tapster.

Esc. Your Mistris name?

Clo. Mistris Ouer-don.

Esc. Hath she had any more then one husband?

Clo. Nine, sir: Ouer-don by the last.

Esc. Nine? come hether to me, Master Froth; Master Froth, I would not haue you acquainted with Tapsters; they will draw you Master Froth, and you will hang them: get you gon, and let me heare no more of you.

Fro. I thanke your worship: for mine owne part, I neuer come into any roome in a Tap-house, but I am drawne in.

Esc. Well: no more of it Master Froth: farewell: Come you hether to me, M^r. Tapster: what's your name M^r. Tapster?

Clo. Pompey.

Esc. What else?

Clo. Bum, Sir.

Esc. Troth, and your bum is the greatest thing about you, so that in the beastliest sence, you are Pompey the great; Pompey, you are partly a bawd, Pompey; howsoeuer you colour it in being a Tapster, are you not? come, tell me true, it shall be the better for you.

Clo. Truly sir, I am a poore fellow that would liue.

Esc. How would you liue Pompey? by being a bawde what doe you thinke of the trade Pompey? is it a lawfull trade?

Clo. If the Law would allow it, sir.

Esc. But the Law will not allow it Pompey; nor it shall not be allowed in Vienna.

Clo. Do's your Worship meane to geld and splay all the youth of the City?

Esc. No, Pompey.

Clo. Truely Sir, in my poore opinion they will too't then: if your worship will take order for the drabs and the knaues, you need not to feare the bawds.

Esc. There is pretty orders beginning I can tell you: It is but heading, and hanging.

Clo. If you head, and hang all that offend that way but for ten yeare together; you'll be glad to giue out a Commission for more heads: if this law hold in Vienna ten yeare, ile rent the fairest house in it after three pence a Bay: if you liue to see this come to passe, say Pompey told you so.

Esc. Thanke you good Pompey; and in requitall of your prophesie, harke you: I aduise you let me not finde you before me againe vpon any complaint whatsoeuer; no, not for dwelling where you doe: if I doe Pompey, I shall beat you to your Tent, and proue a shrewd Cæsar to you: in plaine dealing Pompey, I shall haue you whipt; so for this time, Pompey, fare you well.

Clo. I thanke your Worship for your good counsell; but I shall follow it as the flesh and fortune shall better determine. Whip me? no, no, let Carman whip his Iade, The valiant heart's not whipt out of his trade. Exit.

Esc. Come hether to me, Master Elbow: come hither Master Constable: how long haue you bin in this place of Constable?

Elb. Seuen yeere, and a halfe sir.

Esc. I thought by the readinesse in the office, you had continued in it some time: you say seuen yeares together.

Elb. And a halfe sir.

Esc. Alas, it hath beene great paines to you: they do you wrong to put you so oft vpon't. Are there not men in your Ward sufficient to serue it?

Elb. Faith sir, few of any wit in such matters: as they are chosen, they are glad to choose me for them: I do it for some peece of money, and goe through with all.

Esc. Looke you bring me in the names of some six or seuen, the most sufficient of your parish.

Elb. To your Worships house sir?

Esc. To my house: fare you well: what's a clocke, thinke you?

Iust. Eleuen, Sir.

Esc. I pray you home to dinner with me.

Iust. I humbly thanke you.

Esc. It grieues me for the death of Claudio
But there's no remedie:

Iust. Lord Angelo is seuere.

Esc. It is but needfull.
Mercy is not it selfe, that oft looses so,
Pardon is still the nurse of second woe:
But yet, poore Claudio; there is no remedie.
Come Sir. Exeunt.

Scæna

Scena Secunda.

Enter Provoſt, Seruant.

Hee's hearing of a Cauſe; he will come ſtraight him of you.
'Pray you doe, Ile know
aſure, may be he will relent; alas
h but as offended in a dreame, ges, all Ages ſmack of this vice, and he for't?

Enter Angelo.

g. Now, what's the matter Provoſt?
. Is it your will Claudio ſhall die to morrow?
. Did not I tell thee yea? hadſt thou not order?
lo'ſt thou aske againe?
. Leſt I might be too raſh:
your good correction, I haue ſeene after execution, Iudgement hath ted out his doome.
. Goe to; let that be mine,
ou your office, or giue vp your Place,
ou ſhall well be ſpar'd.
I craue your Honours pardon:
ſhall be done Sir, with the groaning Iuliet?
very neere her howre.
g. Diſpoſe of her
ne more fitter place; and that with ſpeed.
. Here is the ſiſter of the man condemn'd,
a acceſſe to you.
g. Hath he a Siſter?
. I my good Lord, a very vertuous maid,
a be ſhortlie of a Siſter-hood, already.
g. Well: let her be admitted.
e the Fornicatreſſe be remou'd,
e haue needfull, but not lauiſh meanes,
ſhall be order for't.

Enter Lucio and Iſabella.

. 'Saue your Honour. (will ſ
g. Stay a little while: y'are welcome: what's your
. I am a wofull Sutor to your Honour, but your Honor heare me.
g. Well: what's your ſuite.
. There is a vice that moſt I doe abhorre, oſt deſire ſhould meet the blow of Iuſtice;
hich I would not plead, but that I muſt, uich I muſt not plead, but that I am re, twixt will, and will not.
g. Well: the matter?
. I haue a brother is condemn'd to die,
eſeech you let it be his fault,
e my brother.
. Heauen giue thee moouing graces.
g. Condemn: the fault, and not the actor of it,
uery fault 's condemn'd ere it be done:
were the verie Cipher of a Function
the faults, whoſe fine ſtands in record,
goe by the Actor:
. Oh iuſt, but ſeuere Law:
brother then; heauen keepe your honour.
. Giue't not ore ſo: to him againe, entreat him, deuere before him, hang vpon his gowne,
e too cold: if you ſhould need a pin,
You could not with more tame a tongue deſire it:
To him, I ſay.
Iſab. Muſt he needs die?
Ang. Maiden, no remedie.
Iſab. Yes: I doe thinke that you might pardon him,
And neither heauen, nor man grieue at the mercy.
Ang. I will not doe't.
Iſab. But can you if you would?
Ang. Looke what I will not, that I cannot doe.
Iſab. But might you doe't & do the world no wrong
If ſo your heart were touch'd with that remorſe,
As mine is to him?
Ang Hee's ſentenc'd, tis too late.
Luc. You are too cold.
Iſab. Too late? why no: I that doe ſpeak a word
May call it againe: well, beleeue this
No ceremony that to great ones longs,
Not the Kings Crowne; nor the deputed ſword,
The Marſhalls Truncheon, nor the Iudges Robe
Become them with one halfe ſo good a grace
As mercie does: If he had bin as you, and you as he,
You would haue ſlipt like him, but he like you
Would not haue beene ſo ſterne.
Ang. Pray you be gone.
Iſab. I would to heauen I had your potencie,
And you were Iſabell: ſhould it then be thus?
No: I would tell what 'twere to be a Iudge,
And what a priſoner.
Luc. I, touch him: there's the vaine.
Ang. Your Brother is a forfeit of the Law,
And you but waſte your words.
Iſab. Alas, alas:
Why all the ſoules that were, were forfeit once,
And he that might the vantage beſt haue tooke,
Found out the remedie: how would you be,
If he, which is the top of Iudgement, ſhould
But iudge you, as you are? Oh, thinke on that,
And mercie then will breathe within your lips
Like man new made.
Ang. Be you content, (faire Maid)
It is the Law, not I, condemne your brother,
Were he my kinſman, brother, or my ſonne,
It ſhould be thus with him; he muſt die to morrow.
Iſab. To morrow? oh, that's ſodaine,
Spare him, ſpare him:
Hee's not prepar'd for death; euen for our kitchins
We kill the fowle of ſeaſon: ſhall we ſerue heauen
With leſſe reſpect then we doe miniſter
To our groſſe-ſelues? good, good my Lord, bethink you;
Who is it that hath di'd for this offence?
There's many haue committed it.
Luc. I, well ſaid.
Ang. The Law hath not bin dead, though it hath ſlept
Thoſe many had not dar'd to doe that euill
If the firſt, that did th' Edict infringe
Had anſwer'd for his deed. Now 'tis awake,
Takes note of what is done, and like a Prophet
Lookes in a glaſſe that ſhewes what future euills
Either now, or by remiſſeneſſe, new conceiu'd,
And ſo in progreſſe to be hatch'd, and borne,
Are now to haue no ſucceſſiue degrees,
But here they liue to end.
Iſab. Yet ſhew ſome pittie.
Ang. I ſhew it moſt of all, when I ſhow Iuſtice;
For then I pittie thoſe I doe not know,
Which a diſmis'd offence, would after gaule

And doe him right, that answering one foule wrong
Liues not to act another. Be satisfied;
Your Brother dies to morrow; be content.
Isab. So you must be ſ firſt that giues this sentence,
And hee, that ſuffers: Oh, it is excellent
To haue a Giants ſtrength: but it is tyrannous
To vſe it like a Giant.
Luc. That's well ſaid.
Isab. Could great men thunder
As Ioue himſelfe do's, Ioue would neuer be quiet
For euery pelting petty Officer
Would vſe his heauen for thunder;
Nothing but thunder: Merciſull heauen,
Thou rather with thy ſharpe and ſulpherous bolt
Splits the vn-wedgable and gnarled Oke,
Then the ſoft Mertill: But man, proud man,
Dreſt in a little briefe authoritie,
Moſt ignorant of what he's moſt aſſur'd,
(His glaſſie Eſſence) like an angry Ape
Plaies ſuch phantaſtique tricks before high heauen,
As makes the Angels weepe: who with our ſpleenes,
Would all themſelues laugh mortall.
Luc. Oh, to him, to him wench: he will relent,
Hee's comming: I perceiue't.
Pro. Pray heauen ſhe win him.
Isab. We cannot weigh our brother with our ſelfe.
Great men may ieſt with Saints: tis wit in them,
But in the leſſe ſowle prophanation.
Luc. Thou'rt i'th right (Girle) more o'that.
Isab. That in the Captaine's but a choller icke word,
Which in the Souldier is flat blaſphemie.
Luc. Art auis'd o'that? more on't.
Ang. Why doe you put theſe ſayings vpon me?
Isab. Becauſe Authoritie, though it erre like others,
Hath yet a kinde of medicine in it ſelfe
That ſkins the vice o'th top; goe to your boſome,
Knock there, and aske your heart what it doth know
That's like my brothers fault: if it confeſſe
A naturall guiltineſſe, ſuch as is his,
Let it not ſound a thought vpon your tongue
Againſt my brothers life.
Ang. Shee ſpeakes, and 'tis ſuch ſence
That my Sence breeds with it; fare you well.
Isab. Gentle my Lord, turne backe.
Ang. I will bethinke me: come againe to morrow.
Isa. Hark, how Ile bribe you: good my Lord turn back.
Ang. How? bribe me?
Isa. I, with ſuch gifts that heauen ſhall ſhare with you.
Luc. You had mar'd all elſe.
Isab. Not with fond Sickles of the teſted-gold,
Or Stones, whoſe rate are either rich, or poore
As fancie values them: but with true prayers,
That ſhall be vp at heauen, and enter there
Ere Sunne riſe: prayers from preſerued ſoules,
From faſting Maides whoſe mindes are dedicate
To nothing temporall.
Ang. Well: come to me to morrow.
Luc. Goe to: 'tis well; away.
Isab. Heauen keepe your honour ſafe.
Ang. Amen.
For I am that way going to temptation,
Where prayers croſſe.
Isab. At what hower to morrow,
Shall I attend your Lordſhip?
Ang. At any time 'fore-noone.
Isab. 'Saue your Honour.
Ang. From thee: euen from thy vertue.
What's this? what's this? is this her fault, or mine?
The Tempter, or the Tempted, who ſins moſt? ha?
Not ſhe: nor doth ſhe tempt: but it is I,
That, lying by the Violet in the Sunne,
Doe as the Carrion do's, not as the flowre,
Corrupt with vertuous ſeaſon: Can it be,
That Modeſty may more betray our Sence
Then womans lightneſſe? having waſte ground enough,
Shall we deſire to raze the Sanctuary
And pitch our euils there? oh fie, fie, fie:
What doſt thou? or what art thou Angelo?
Doſt thou deſire her fowly, for thoſe things
That make her good? oh, let her brother liue:
Theeues for their robbery haue authority,
When Iudges ſteale themſelues: what, doe I loue her,
That I deſire to heare her ſpeake againe?
And feaſt vpon her eyes? what is't I dreame on?
Oh cunning enemy, that to catch a Saint,
With Saints doſt baite thy hooke: moſt dangerous
Is that temptation, that doth goad vs on
To ſinne, in louing vertue: neuer could the Strumpet
With all her double vigor, Art, and Nature
Once ſtir my temper: but this vertuous Maid
Subdues me quite: Euer till now
When men were fond, I ſmild, and wondred how. Exit.

Scena Tertia.

Enter Duke and Provoſt.

Duke. Haile to you, Provoſt, ſo I thinke you are.
Pro. I am the Prouoſt: whats your will, good Friet?
Duke. Bound by my charity, and my bleſt order,
I come to viſite the afflicted ſpirits
Here in the priſon: doe me the common right
To let me ſee them: and to make me know
The nature of their crimes, that I may miniſter
To them accordingly.
Pro. I would do more then that, if more were needfull
Enter Iuliet.
Looke here comes one: a Gentlewoman of mine,
Who falling in the flawes of her owne youth,
Hath bliſterd her report: She is with childe,
And he that got it, ſentenc'd: a yong man,
More fit to doe another ſuch offence,
Then dye for t his.
Duke. When muſt he dye?
Pro. As I do thinke to morrow.
I haue prouided for you, ſtay a while
And you ſhall be conducted.
Duke. Repent you (faire one) of the ſin you carry?
Iul. I doe; and beare the ſhame moſt patiently.
Du. Ile teach you how you ſhal arraign your conſcience
And try your penitence, if it be ſound,
Or hollowly put on.
Iul. Ile gladly learne.
Duke. Loue you the man that wrong'd you?
Iul. Yes, as I loue the woman that wrong'd him.
Duke. So then it ſeemes your moſt offence full act
Was mutually committed.
Iul. Mutually.
Duke. Then was your ſin of heauier kinde then his.
Iul. I doe confeſſe it, and repent it (Father.)

: 'Tis meet ſo (daughter) but leaſt you do repent
e the ſin hath brought you to this ſhame,
h ſorrow is alwaies toward our ſelues, not heauen, ng we would not (pare heauen, as we loue it,
we ſtand in feare.
I doe repent me, as it is an euill,
hat the ſhame with ioy.
ſy. There reſts:
nariner (as I heare) muſt die to morrow,
am going with inſtruction to him:
goe with you, Benedicte. Exit.
. Muſt die to morrow? oh iniurious Loue eſpits me a life, whoſe very comfort a dying horror.
. 'Tis pitty of him. Exeunt.

Scena Quarta.

Enter Angelo.

. When I would pray, & think, I thinke and pray
ueral ſubiects: heauen hath my empty words,
t my Inuention, hearing not my Tongue,
ors on Iſabell: heauen in my mouth,
did but onely chew his name,
my heart the ſtrong and ſwelling euill conception: the ſtate whereon I ſtudied a good thing, being often read me heard, and tedious: yes, my Grauitie rim (let no man heare me) I take pride,
I, with boote, change for an idle plume
h the ayre beats for vaine: oh place, oh forme, often doſt thou with thy eaſe, thy habit
ch awe from fooles, and tye the wiſer ſoules
y falſe ſeeming? Blood, thou art blood, rite good Angell on the Deuills horne
e the Deuills Creſt: how now? who's there?

Enter Seruant.

. One Iſabell, a Siſter, deſires acceſſe to you.
g. Teach her the way: oh, heauens doe's my bloud thus muſter to my heart, ng both it vnable for it ſelfe, diſpoſſeſſing all my other parts
ceſſary ſtrength?
y the foolliſh throngs with one that ſwounds,
all to help him, and ſo ſtop the ayre ich but ſhould nouriſe: and euen ſo eneral ſubiect to a well-wiſht King heir owne part, and in obſequious fondneſſe
d to his preſence, where their vn-taught loue rmds appeare offence: how now faire Maid.

Enter Iſabella.

. I am come to know your pleaſure. (me,
That you might know it, would much better pleaſe
n demand what tis: your Brother cannot liue.
Euen ſo: heauen keepe your Honor.
g. Yet may he liue a while: and it may be g as you, or I: yet he muſt die.
. Vnder your Sentence?
g. Yes.
. When, I beſeech you: that in his Reprieue ter, or thereter) he may be ſo fitted is ſoule ſicken not.
g. Ha? fie, theſe filthy vices: It were as good
To pardon him, that hath from nature ſtolne
A man already made, as to remit
Their ſawcie ſweetnes, that do coyne heauens Image
In ſtamps that are forbid: 'tis all as eaſie,
Falſely to take away a life true made,
As to put mettle in reſtrained meanes
To make a falſe one.
Iſab. 'Tis ſet downe ſo in heauen, but not in earth.
Ang. Say you ſo then I ſhall poze you quickly.
Which had you rather, that the moſt iuſt Law
Now tooke your brothers life, and to redeeme him
Giue vp your body to ſuch ſweet vncleanneſſe
As ſhe that he hath ſtaind?
Iſab. Sir, beleeue this,
I had rather giue my body, then my ſoule.
Ang. I talke not of your ſoule: our compel'd ſins
Stand more for number, then for accompt.
Iſab. How ſay you?
Ang. Nay I'le not warrant that: for I can ſpeake Againſt the thing I ſay: Anſwere to this,
I (now the voyce of the recorded Law)
Pronounce a ſentence on your Brothers life,
Might there not be a charitie in ſinne,
To ſaue this Brothers life?
Iſab. Pleaſe you to doo't,
Ile take it as a perill to my ſoule,
It is no ſinne at all, but charitie.
Ang. Pleas'd you to doo't, at perill of your ſoule
Were equall poize of ſinne, and charitie.
Iſab. That I do beg his life, if it be ſinne
Heauen let me beare it: you granting of my ſuit,
If that be ſin, Ile make it my Morne-praier,
To haue it added to the faults of mine,
And nothing of your anſwere.
Ang. Nay, but heare me,
Your ſence purſues not mine: either you are ignorant,
Or ſeeme ſo craftie; and that's not good.
Iſab. Let be ignorant, and in nothing good,
But graciouſly to know I am no better.
Ang. Thus wiſdome wiſhes to appeare moſt bright,
When it doth taxe it ſelfe: As theſe blacke Maſques
Proclaime an en-ſhield beauty ten times louder
Then beauty could diſplaied: But marke me,
To be receiued plaine, Ile ſpeake more groſſe:
Your Brother is to dye.
Iſab. So.
Ang. And his offence is ſo, as it appeares,
Accountant to the Law, vpon that paine.
Iſab. True.
Ang. Admit no other way to ſaue his life
(As I ſubſcribe not that, nor any other,
But in the loſſe of queſtion) that you, his Siſter,
Finding your ſelfe deſir'd of ſuch a perſon,
Whoſe credit with the Iudge, or owne great place,
Could fetch your Brother from the Manacles
Of the all-building-Law: and that there were
No earthly meane to ſaue him, but that either
You muſt lay downe the treaſures of your body,
To this ſuppoſed, or elſe to let him ſuffer:
What would you doe?
Iſab. As much for my poore Brother, as my ſelfe;
That is: were I vnder the tearmes of death,
Th'impreſſion of keene whips, I'ld weare as Rubies,
And ſtrip my ſelfe to death, as to a bed,
That longing haue bin ſicke for, ere I'ld yeeld
My body vp to ſhame.

Ang. That

Ang. Then must your brother die.
Isa. And 'twer the cheaper way:
Better it were a brother dide at once,
Then that a sister, by redeeming him
Should die for ever.
Ang. Were not you then as cruell as the Sentence,
That you haue slander'd so?
Isa. Ignomie in ransome, and free pardon
Are of two houses: lawfull mercie,
Is nothing kin to fowle redemption.
Ang. You seem'd of late to make the Law a tirant,
And rather prou'd the sliding of your brother
A merriment, then a vice.
Isa. Oh pardon me my Lord, it oft falls out
To haue, what we would haue,
We speake not what we meane:
I something do excuse the thing I hate,
For his aduantage that I dearely loue.
Ang. We are all fraile.
Isa. Else let my brother die,
If not a feadarie but onely he
Owe, and succeed thy weaknesse.
Ang. Nay, women are fraile too.
Isa. I, as the glasses where they view themselues,
Which are as easie broke as they make formes:
Women? Helpe heauen; men their creation marre
In profiting by them: Nay, call vs ten times fraile,
For we are soft, as our complexions are,
And credulous to false prints.
Ang. I thinke it well:
And from this testimonie of your owne sex
(Since I suppose we are made to be no stronger
Then faults may shake our frames) let me be bold;
I do arrest your words. Be that you are,
That is a woman; if you be more, you're none.
If you be one (as you are well exprest
By all externall warrants) shew it now,
By putting on the destin'd Liuerie.
Isa. I haue no tongue but one; gentle my Lord,
Let me entreate you speake the former language.
Ang. Plainlie conceiue I loue you.
Isa. My brother did loue Iuliet,
And you tell me that he shall die for't.
Ang. He shall not Isabell if you giue me loue.
Isa. I know your vertue hath a licence in't,
Which seemes a little fouler then it is,
To pluck on others.
Ang. Beleeue me on mine Honor,
My words expresse my purpose.
Isa. Ha! Little honor, to be much beleeu'd,
And most pernitious purpose: Seeming, seeming.
I will proclaime thee Angelo, looke for't.
Signe me a present pardon for my brother,
Or with an out-stretcht throate Ile tell the world aloud
What man thou art.
Ang. Who will beleeue thee Isabell?
My vnsoild name, th'austerenesse of my life,
My vouch against you, and my place i'th State,
Will so your accusation ouer-weigh,
That you shall stifle in your owne report,
And smell of calumnie. I haue begun,
And now I giue my sensuall race, the reine,
Fit thy consent to my sharpe appetite,
Lay by all nicetie, and prolixious blushes
That banish what they sue for: Redeeme thy brother,
By yeelding vp thy bodie to my will,
Or else he must not onelie die the death,
But thy vnkindnesse shall his death draw out
To lingring sufferance: Answer me to morrow,
Or by the affection that now guides me most.
Ile proue a Tirant to him. As for you,
Say what you can; my false, ore-weighs your true. Exit
Isa. To whom should I complaine? Did I tell this,
Who would beleeue me? O perilous mouthes
That bearе in them, one and the selfesame tongue,
Either of condemnation, or approofe,
Bidding the Law make curtsie to their will,
Hooking both right and wrong to th'appetite,
To follow as it drawes. Ile to my brother,
Though he hath falne by prompture of the blood,
Yet hath he in him such a minde of Honor,
That had he twentie heads to tender downe
On twentie bloodie blockes, he'ld yeeld them vp,
Before his sister should her bodie stoope
To such abhord pollution.
Then Isabell liue chaste, and brother die;
More then our Brother, is our Chastitie.
Ile tell him yet of Angelo's request,
And fit his minde to death, for his soules rest. Exit.

Actus Tertius. Scena Prima.

Enter Duke, Claudio, and Prouost.

Du. So then you hope of pardon from Lord Angelo?
Cla. The miserable haue no other medicine
But onely hope: I haue hope to liue, and am prepar'd to die.
Duke. Be absolute for death: either death or life
Shall thereby be the sweeter. Reason thus with life:
If I do loose thee, I do loose a thing
That none but fooles would keepe: a breath thou art,
Seruile to all the skyie-influences,
That dost this habitation where thou keepst
Hourely afflict: Merely, thou art deaths foole,
For him thou labourst by thy flight to shun,
And yet runst toward him still. Thou art not noble,
For all th'accommodations that thou bearst,
Are nurst by baseneſse: Thou'rt by no meanes valiant,
For thou dost fear the soft and tender forke
Of a poore worme: thy best of rest is sleepe,
And that thou oft prouoakst, yet grosselie fearst
Thy death, which is no more. Thou art not thy selfe.
For thou exists on manie a thousand graines
That issue out of dust. Happie thou art not,
For what thou hast not, still thou striu'st to get,
And what thou hast forgetst. Thou art not certaine,
For thy complexion shifts to strange effects,
After the Moone: If thou art rich, thou'rt poore,
For like an Asse, whose backe with Ingots bowes;
Thou bearst thy heauie riches but a iournie,
And death vnloads thee; Friend hast thou none.
For thine owne bowels which do call thee, fire
The meere effusion of thy proper loines
Do curse the Gowt, Sapego, and the Rheume
For ending thee no sooner. Thou hast nor youth, nor age
But as it were an after-dinners sleepe
Dreaming on both, for all thy blessed youth
Becomes as aged, and doth beggе the almes
Of palsied-Eld: and when thou art old, and feist

Thou

aſt neither heere, affection, limbe, nor beautie he thy riches pleaſant: what's yet in this eares the name of life? Yet in this life more thouſand deaths; yet death we feare akes theſe oddes, all euen.
I humblie thanke you.
to liue, I finde I ſeeke to die,
eking death, finde life: Let it come on.
Enter Iſabella.
Iſ. What hoa? Peace heere; Grace, and good com-
Pro. Who's there? Come in, the wiſh deſerues a
Iſ. Deare ſir, ere long Ile viſit you againe.
Clo. Moſt holie Sir, I thanke you.
Iſ. My buſineſſe is a word or two with Claudio.
Pro. And very welcom: looke Signior, heere's your Duke. Prouoſt, a word with you.
Pro. As manie as you pleaſe.
Duke. Bring them to heare me ſpeak, where I may be conceal'd.
Now ſiſter, what's the comfort?
Iſ. Why,
comfortleſſe: as moſt good, moſt good indeede,
Angelo hauing affaires to heauen
ds you for his ſwift Ambaſſador,
e you ſhall be an euerlaſting Leiger;
ſtore your beſt appointment make with ſpeed,
orrow you ſet on.
Iſ. Is there no remedie?
Pro. None, but ſuch remedie, as to ſaue a head
cauſe a heart in twaine:
Iſ. But is there anie?
Pro. Yes brother, you may liue;
e is a diueliſh mercie in the Iudge,
'l implore it, that will free your life.
ther you ſtill death.
Iſ. Perpetuall durance?
Pro. I iuſt, perpetuall durance, a reſtraint ugh all the worlds vaſtiditie you had determin'd ſcope.
Iſ. But in what nature?
Pro. In ſuch a one, as you conſenting to't, ld barke your boone from that trunke you beare,
cauſe you naked.
Iſ. Let me know the point.
Pro. Oh, I do feare thee Claudio, and I quake, thou a feauorous life ſhouldſt entertaine,
ſix or ſeuen winters more reſpect
a perpetuall Honor. Dar'ſt thou die?
ſence of death is moſt in apprehenſion,
the poore Beetle that we tread vpon perpetuall ſufferance, finds a pang as great, hen a Giant dies.
Clo. Why giue you me this ſhame?
ke you I can a reſolution fetch flowrie tenderneſſe? If I muſt die, encounter darkneſſe as a bride,
ugge it in mine armes.
Iſ. There ſpake my brother: there my fathers graue
ters forth a voice. Yes, thou muſt die:
art too noble, to conſerue a life
ſe appliances. This outward ſainted Deputie, ole ſeeled viſage, and deliberate word
ounds i'th head, and ſollies doth emmew
As Falcon doth the Fowle, is yet a diuell:
His filth within being caſt, he would appeare
A pond, as deepe as hell.
Cla. The prenzie, Angelo?
Iſa. Oh 'tis the cunning Liuerie of hell,
The damneſt bodie to inueſt, and couer
In prenzie gardes; doſt thou thinke Claudio,
If I would yeeld him my virginitie
Thou might'ſt be freed?
Cla. Oh heauens, it cannot be.
Iſa. Yes, he would giu't thee; from this rank offence
So to offend him ſtill. This night's the time
That I ſhould do what I abhorre to name,
Or elſe thou dieſt to morrow.
Clau. Thou ſhalt not do't.
Iſa. O, were it but my life,
I'de throw it downe for your deliuerance
As frankely as a pin.
Clau. Thankes deere Iſabell.
Iſa. Be readie Claudio, for your death to morrow.
Clau. Yes. Has he affections in him,
That thus can make him bite the Law by th'noſe,
When he would force it? Sure it is no ſinne,
Or of the deadly ſeuen it is the leaſt.
Iſa. Which is the leaſt?
Cla. If it were damnable, he being ſo wiſe,
Why would he for the momentarie tricke
Be perdurablie fin'de? Oh Iſabell.
Iſa. What ſaies my brother?
Cla. Death is a fearefull thing.
Iſa. And ſhamed life, a hatefull.
Cla. I, but to die, and go we know not where,
To lie in cold obſtruction, and to rot,
This ſenſible warme motion, to become
A kneaded clod; And the delighted ſpirit
To bath in fierie floods, or to recide
In thrilling Region of thicke-ribbed Ice,
To be impriſon'd in the viewleſſe windes
And blowne with reſtleſſe violence round about
The pendant world: or to be worſe then worſt
Of thoſe, that lawleſſe and incertaine thought,
Imagine howling, 'tis too horrible.
The weariеſt, and moſt loathed worldly life
That Age, Ache, periury, and impriſonment
Can lay on nature, is a Paradiſe
To what we feare of death.
Iſa. Alas, alas.
Cla. Sweet Siſter, let me liue.
What ſinne you do, to ſaue a brothers life,
Nature diſpenſes with the deede ſo farre,
That it becomes a vertue.
Iſa. Oh you beaſt,
Oh faithleſſe Coward, oh diſhoneſt wretch,
Wilt thou be made a man, out of my vice?
Is't not a kinde of Inceſt, to take life
From thine owne ſiſters ſhame? What ſhould I thinke, Heauen ſhield my Mother plaid my Father faire:
For ſuch a warped ſlip of wilderneſſe
Nere iſſu'd from his blood. Take my defiance,
Die, periſh: Might but my bending downe
Repreeue thee from thy fate, it ſhould proceede.
Ile pray a thouſand prairs for thy death,
No word to ſaue thee.
Cla. Nay heare me Iſabell.
Iſa. Oh fie, fie, fie:
Thy ſinne's not accidentall, but a Trade;

Mercie

Mercy to thee would proue it ſelfe a Bawd,
'Tis beſt that thou dieſt quickly.

Cla. Oh heare me Iſabella.

Duk. Vouchſafe a word, yong ſiſter, but one word.

Iſa. What is your Will.

Duk. Might you diſpenſe with your leyſure, I would by and by haue ſome ſpeech with you: the ſatisfaction I would require, is likewiſe your owne benefit.

Iſa. I haue no ſuperfluous leyſure, my ſtay muſt be ſtolen out of other affaires: but I will attend you a while.

Duke. Son, I haue ouer-heard what hath paſt between you & your ſiſter, Angelo had neuer the purpoſe to corrupt her; onely he hath made an aſſay of her vertue, to practiſe his iudgement with the diſpoſition of natures. She (hauing the truth of honour in her) hath made him that gracious deniall, which he is moſt glad to receiue: I am Confeſſor to Angelo, and I know this to be true, therfore prepare your ſelfe to death: do not ſatisfie your reſolution with hopes that are fallible, to morrow you muſt die, goe to your knees, and make ready.

Cla. Let me aſk my ſiſter pardon. I am ſo out of loue with life, that I will ſue to be rid of it.

Duke. Hold you there: farewell. Prouſt, a word with you.

Pro. What's your will (father?)

Duk. That now you are come, you will be gone: leaue me a while with the Maid, my minde promiſes with my habit, no loſſe ſhall touch her by my company.

Pro. In good time. Exit.

Duk. The hand that hath made you faire, hath made you good: the goodnes that is cheape in beauty, makes beauty briefe in goodnes; but grace being the ſoule of your complexion, ſhall keepe the body of it euer faire: the aſſault that Angelo hath made to you, Fortune hath conuaid to my vnderſtanding; and but that frailty hath examples for his falling, I ſhould wonder at Angelo: how will you doe to content this Subſtitute, and to ſaue your Brother?

Iſab. I am now going to reſolue him: I had rather my brother die by the Law, then my ſonne ſhould be vnlawfullie borne. But (oh) how much is the good Duke deceiu'd in Angelo: if euer he returne, and I can ſpeake to him, I will open my lips in vaine, or diſcouer his gouernment.

Duke. That ſhall not be much amiſſe: yet, as the matter now ſtands, he will auoid your accuſation: he made triall of you onelie. Therefore faſten your eare on my aduiſings, to the loue I haue in doing good; a remedie preſents it ſelfe. I doe make my ſelfe beleeue that you may moſt vprightcouſly do a poor wronged Lady a merited benefit; redeem your brother from the angry Law; doe no ſtaine to your owne gracious perſon, and much pleaſe the abſent Duke, if peraduenture he ſhall euer returne to haue hearing of this buſineſſe.

Iſab. Let me heare you ſpeake farther; I haue ſpirit to do any thing that appeares not fowle in the truth of my ſpirit.

Duke. Vertue is bold, and goodnes neuer fearefull: Haue you not heard ſpeake of Mariana the ſiſter of Frederick the great Souldier, who miſcarried at Sea?

Iſa. I haue heard of the Lady, and good words went with her name.

Duke. Shee ſhould this Angelo haue married: was affianced to her oath, and the nuptiall appointed: between which time of the contract, and limit of the ſolemnitie, her brother Frederick was wrackt at Sea, hauing in that periſhed veſſell, the dowry of his ſiſter: but marke how heauily this befell to the poore Gentlewoman, there ſhe loſt a noble and renowned brother, in his loue toward her, euer moſt kinde and naturall: with him the portion and ſinew of her fortune, her marriage dowry: with both, her combynate-husband, this well-ſeeming Angelo.

Iſab. Can this be ſo? did Angelo ſo leaue her?

Duke. Left her in her teares, & dried not one of them with his comfort: ſwallowed his vowes whole, pretending in her, diſcoueries of diſhonor: in few, beſtow'd her on her owne lamentation, which ſhe yet weares for his ſake: and he, a marble to her teares, is waſhed with them, but relents not.

Iſab. What a merit were it in death to take this poore maid from the world? what corruption in this life, that it will let this man liue? But how out of this can ſhee auaile?

Duke. It is a rupture that you may eaſily heale: and the cure of it not onely ſaues your brother, but keepes you from diſhonor in doing it.

Iſab. Shew me how (good Father.)

Duke. This fore-named Maid hath yet in her the continuance of her firſt affection: his vniuſt vnkindeneſſe (that in all reaſon ſhould haue quenched her loue) hath (like an impediment in the Current) made it more violent and vnruly: Goe you to Angelo, anſwere his requiring with a plauſible obedience, agree with his demands to the point: onely referre your ſelfe to this aduantage; firſt, that your ſtay with him may not be long: that the time may haue all ſhadow, and ſilence in it: and the place anſwere to conuenience: this being granted in courſe, and now followes all: wee ſhall aduiſe this wronged maid to ſteed vp your appointment, goe in your place: if the encounter acknowledgeit ſelfe hereafter, it may compell him to her recompence; and here, by this is your brother ſaued, your honor vntainted, the poore Mariana aduantaged, and the corrupt Deputy ſcaled. The Maid will I frame, and make fit for his attempt: if you thinke well to carry this as you may, the doubleneſs of the benefit defends the deceit from reproofe. What thinke you of it?

Iſab. The image of it giues me content already, and I truſt it will grow to a moſt proſperous perfection.

Duk. It lies much in your holding vp: haſte you ſpeedily to Angelo, if for this night he intreat you to his bed, giue him promiſe of ſatisfaction: I will preſently to S. Lukes, there at the moated-Grange reſides this deiected Mariana; at that place call vpon me, and diſpatch with Angelo, that it may be quickly.

Iſab. I thank you for this comfort. fare you well good father. Exit.

Enter Elbow, Clowne, Officers.

Elb. Nay, if there be no remedy for it, but that you will needes buy and ſell men and women like beaſts, we ſhall haue all the world drinke browne & white baſtard.

Duk. Oh heauens, what ſtuffe is heere.

Clow. 'Twas neuer merry world ſince of two vſuries the merrieſt was put downe, and the worſer allow'd by order of Law: a fur'd gowne to keepe him warme; and furd with Foxe and Lamb-ſkins too, to ſignifie, that craft being richer then Innocency, ſtands for the facing.

Elb. Come your way ſir: 'bleſſe you good Father Frier.

Duk. And you good Brother Father; what offence hath this man made you, Sir?

Elb. Marry

it, he hath offended the Law; and Sir, e a Theefe too Sir: for wee haue found ſtrange Pick-lock, which we haue ſent

eah, a Bawd, a wicked bawd, ou cauſeſt to be done,
es to liue. Do thou but thinke
n a maw, or clooth a backe ie vice: ſay to thy ſelfe, minable and beaſtly touches way my ſelfe, and liue
ue thy luring is a life.
ending? Go mend, go mend.
do's ſtinke in ſome ſort, Sir:
ld proue
he dwell haue giuen thee proofs for ſin
his. Take him to priſon Officer:
inſtruction muſt both worke
ſt will profit.
before the Deputy Sir, he has giuen
e Deputy cannot abide a Whore-ma-Whore-monger, and comes before him, go a mile on his errand.
re were all, as ſome would ſeeme to bee
ie faults from ſeeming free.

Enter Lucio.

ie will come to your waſt, a Cord ſir.
nſort, I cry baile: Here's a Gentleman, end.
ow noble Pompey? What, at the wheele ou led in triumph? What is there none agues newly made woman to bee had the hand in the pocket, and extracting repiy? Ha? What ſaiſt thou to this d Method? Is't not drown'd i'th laſt ſaiſt thou Troſt? Is the world as it was the vvay? Is it ſad, and few words?
like of it?
ot, and thus ſtill vvorſe?
ith my deere Morſell, thy Miſtris? Pro-le?
, ſhee hath eaten vp all her beefe, and the tub.
s good: It is the right of it: it muſt be ſh Whoore, and your pouder'd Baud, an uence, it muſt be ſo. Art going to pri-ſhe

is not anſwer Pompey: farewell: goe ſay ee: for debt Pompey? Or how?
ng a baud, for being a baud.
hen impriſon him: if impriſonment be d, why lit his right. Baud is he doubtquity too: Baud borne. Farewell good end me to the priſon Pompey, you will ard now Pompey, you vvill keepe the r, your good Worſhip will be my bailes?

er'd vvill I not Pompey, it is not the wear:
mpey) to encreaſe your bondage if you uſe: Why, your mettle is the more:
mpey.

you.
vdge at priſt ſtill, Pompey? Ha?
our waſte ſir, come.

Clo. You will not baile me then Sir?

Luc. Then Pompey, nor now: what newes abroad Friar? What newes?

Elb. Come your waies ſir, come.

Luc. Goe to kennell (Pompey) goe:
What newes Friar of the Duke?

Duke. I know none: can you tell me of any?

Luc. Some ſay he is with the Emperor of Ruſſia: other ſome, he is in Rome: but where is he thinke you?

Duke. I know not where: but wherefoeuer, I wiſh him well.

Luc. It was a mad fantaſticall tricke of him to ſteale from the State, and vſurpe the beggerie hee was neuer borne to: Lord Angelo Dukes it well in his abſence: he puts tranſgreſſion to't.

Duke. He do's well in't.

Luc. A little more lenitie to Lecherie would doe no harme in him. Something too crabbed that way, Frier.

Duke. It is too generall a vice, and ſeueritie muſt cure it.

Luc. Yes in good ſooth, the vice is of a great kindred; it is vvell allied, but it is impoſſible to extirpe it quite, Frier, till eating and drinking be put downe. They ſay this Angelo vvas not made by Man and Woman, after this downe-right vvay of Creation: is it true, thinke you?

Duke. How ſhould he be made then?

Luc. Some report, a Sea-maid ſpawn'd him. Some, that he vvas begot betweene two Stock-fiſhes. But it is certaine, that when he makes water, his Vrine is congeal'd ice, that I know to bee true: and he is a motion generatiue, that's infallible.

Duke. You are pleaſant ſir, and ſpeake apace.

Luc. Why, what a ruthleſſe thing is this in him, for the rebellion of a Cod-peece, to take away the life of a man? Would the Duke that is abſent haue done this? Ere he vvould haue hang'd a man for the getting a hundred Baſtards, he vvould haue paide for the Nurſing a thouſand. He had ſome feeling of the ſport, hee knew the ſeruice, and that inſtructed him to mercie.

Duke. I neuer heard the abſent Duke much detected for Women, he was not enclin'd that vvay.

Luc. Oh Sir, you are deceiu'd.

Duke. 'Tis not poſſible.

Luc. Who, not the Duke? Yes, your beggar of fifty: and his vſe was, to put a ducket in her Clack-diſh; the Duke had Crochets in him. Hee would be drunke too, that let me informe you.

Duke. You do him wrong, ſurely.

Luc. Sir, I vvas an inward of his: a ſhie fellow vvas the Duke, and I beleeue I know the cauſe of his vvithdrawing.

Duke. What (I prethee) might be the cauſe?

Luc. No, pardon: 'Tis a ſecret muſt bee lockt within the teeth and the lippes: but this I can let you vnderſtand, the greater file of the ſubiect held the Duke to be vviſe.

Duke. Wiſe? Why no queſtion but he was.

Luc. A very ſuperficiall, ignorant, vnweighing fellow.

Duke. Either this is Enuie in you, Folly, or miſtaking: The very ſtreame of his life, and the buſineſſe he hath helmed, muſt vppon a warranted neede, giue him a better proclamation. Let him be but teſtimonied in his owne bringings forth, and hee ſhall appeare to the enuious, a Scholler, a Stateſman, and a Soldier: therefore you ſpeake vnskilfully: or, if your knowledge be more, it is much darkned in your malice.

Luc. Sir, I know him, and I loue him.

Duke. Loue talkes with better knowledge, & knowledge with deare loue.

Luc. Come Sir, I know what I know

Duke. I can hardly beleeue that, since you know not what you speake. But if euer the Duke returne (as our prayers are he may) let mee desire you to make your answer before him: if it bee honest you haue spoke, you haue courage to maintaine it; I am bound to call vpon you, and I pray you your name?

Luc. Sir my name is Lucio, well known to the Duke.

Duke. He shall know you better Sir, if I may liue to report you.

Luc. I feare you not

Duke. O you hope the Duke will returne no more: or you imagine me too vnhurtfull an opposite: but indeed I can doe you little harme: You'll for-sweare this againe?

Luc. Ile be hang'd first. Thou art deceiu'd in mee Friar. But no more of this. Canst thou tell if Claudio die to morrow, or no?

Duke. Why should he die Sir?

Luc. Why? For filling a bottle with a Tunnell dish: I would the Duke we talke of were return'd againe: this vngenitur'd Agent will vn-people the Prouince with Continencie. Sparrowes must not build in his house-eeues, because they are lecherous: The Duke yet would haue darke deeds darkelie answered, hee would neuer bring them to light: would hee were return'd. Marrie this Claudio is condemned for vntrussing. Farewell good Friar. I prethee pray for me: The Duke (I say to thee againe) would eate Mutton on Fridales. He's now past it, yet (and I say to thee) hee would mouth with a beggar, though she smelt browne-bread and Garlicke: say that I said so: Farewell. Exit.

Duke. No might, nor greatnesse in mortality
Can censure scape: Back wounding calumnie
The whitest vertue strikes. What King so strong
Can tie the gall vp in the slanderous tong?
But who comes heere?

Enter Escalus, Prouost, and Bawd.

Esc. Go, away with her to prison.

Bawd. Good my Lord be good to mee, your Honor is accounted a mercifull man: good my Lord.

Esc. Double, and treble admonition, and still forfeite in the same kinde? This would make mercy sweare and play the Tirant.

Pro. A Bawd of eleuen yeares continuance, may it please your Honor.

Bawd. My Lord, this is one Lucio's information against me, Mistris Kate Keepe-downe was with childe by him in the Dukes time, he promis'd her marriage: his Childe is a yeere and a quarter olde come Philip and Iacob: I haue kept it my selfe; and see how hee goes about to abuse me.

Esc. That fellow is a fellow of much Licence: Let him be call'd before vs. Away with her to prison: Goe too, no more words. Prouost, my Brother Angelo will not be alter'd, Claudio must die to morrow: Let him be furnish'd with Diuines, and haue all charitable preparation. If my brother wrought by my pitie, it should not be so with him.

Pro. So please you, this Friar hath beene with him, and aduis'd him for th'entertainment of death.

Esc. Good'euen, good Father

Duke. Blisse, and goodnesse on you.

Esc. Of whence are you?

Duke. Not of this Countrie, though my chance is now
To vse it for my time: I am a brother
Of gracious Order, late come from the See,
In speciall businesse from his Holinesse.

Esc. What newes abroad i'th World?

Duke. None, but that there is so great a Feauor on goodnesse, that the dissolution of it must cure it. Nouelties is only in request, and as it is as dangerous to be aged in any kinde of course, as it is vertuous to be constant in any vndertaking. There is scarse truth enough aliue to make Societies secure, but Securitie enough to make Fellowships accurst: Much vpon this riddle runs the wisedome of the world: This newes is old enough, yet it is euerie daies newes. I pray you Sir, of what disposition was the Duke?

Esc. One, that aboue all other strifes,
Contended especially to know himselfe.

Duke. What pleasure was he giuen to?

Esc. Rather reioycing to see another merry, then merrie at anie thing which profest to make him reioyce. A Gentleman of all temperance. But leaue wee him to his euents, with a prayer they may proue prosperous, & let me desire to know, how you finde Claudio prepar'd? I am made to vnderstand, that you haue lent him visitation.

Duke. He professes to haue receiued no sinister measure from his Iudge, but most willingly humbles himselfe to the determination of Iustice: yet had he framed to himselfe (by the instruction of his frailty) manie deceiuing promises of life, which I (by my good leisure) haue discredited to him, and now is he resolu'd to die.

Esc. You haue paid the heauens your Function, and the prisoner the verie debt of your Calling. I haue labour'd for the poore Gentleman, to the extremest shoare of my modestie, but my brother-Iustice haue I found so seuere, that he hath forc'd me to tell him, her is indeede Iustice.

Duke. If he haue liu'd,
Answere the straitnesse of his proceeding,
It shall become him well: wherein if he chance to faile
He hath sentenc'd himselfe.

Esc. I am going to visit the prisoner, Fare you well.

Duke. Peace be with you,
He who the sword of Heauen will beare,
Should be as holy, as seuere:
Patterne in himselfe to know,
Grace to stand, and Vertue go:
More, nor lesse to others paying,
Then by selfe-offences weighing.
Shame to him, whose cruell striking,
Kils for faults of his owne liking:
Twice-trebble shame on Angelo,
To weed my vice, and let his grow.
Oh, what may Man within him hide,
Though Angel on the outward side?
How may likenesse made in crimes,
Making practise on the Times,
To draw with idle Spiders strings
Most ponderous and substantiall things?
Craft against vice, I must applie.
With Angelo to night shall lye
His old betrothed (but despised:)
So disguise shall by th'disguised
Pay with falshood, false exacting,
And performe an olde contracting. Exit

Actus

uartus. Scæna Prima,

Mariana, and Boy ſinging.

ake thoſe lips away,
ſeuerely were forſworne,
e eyes: the breake of day
thus doe miſlead the Morne ſſes bring againe, bring againe lone, ſeale'd in vaine, ſeal'd in vaine.

r Duke.
ſt thy ſong, and haſte thee quick away,
t of comfort, whoſe aduice
ny brawling diſcontent.
it, and well could wiſh
d me here ſo muſicall
, and beleeue me ſo,
diſpleaſ'd, but pleaſ'd my woe
though Muſick oft hath ſuch a charme d; and good prouoake to harme.
ſhath any body enquir'd for mee here in this time haue I promiſ'd here to re not him enquir'd after. I haue ſat

Enter Iſabell.
ſtantly beleeue you: the time is come craue your forbearance alittle, may be ou ſoone for ſome aduantage to your rayes bound to you. Exit.

ll meet, and well come:
s from this good Deputie?
a Garden circummur'd with Bricke, ſide is with a Vineyard back'd;
rard is a planched gate,
cning with this bigger Key
ommand a little doore,
Vineyard to the Garden leades,
e my promiſe, vpon the e night, to call vpon him.
you on your knowledge find this way?
ane a due, and wary note vpon't,
and moſt guiltie diligence,
cept, he did ſhow me
e.
e no other tokens
eed, concerning her obſeruance?
e but onely a repaire ith' darke.
aſſeſt him, my moſt ſtay
for I haue made him know, omes with me along
e; whoſe perſwaſion is,
Brother,
I borne vp.
e knowne to Mariana
Enter Mariana.
hat hoa, within; come forth,
ainted with this Maid,
you good.
re the like,
erſwade your ſelfe that I reſpect you?

Mar. Good Friar, I know you do, and haue found it.
Duke. Take then this your companion by the hand
Who hath a ſtorie readie for your eare:
I ſhall attend your leiſure, but make haſte
The vaporous night approaches.
Mar. Wilt pleaſe you walke aſide. Exit
Duke. Oh Place, and greatnes: millions of falſe eies
Are ſtucke vpon thee: volumes of report
Run with theſe falſe, and moſt contrarious Queſt
Vpon thy doings: thouſand eſcapes of wit
Make thee the father of their idle dreame,
And racke thee in their fancies. Welcome, how agreed?
Enter Mariana and Iſabella.
Iſab. Shee'll take the enterprize vpon her father,
If you aduiſe it.
Duke. It is not my conſent,
But my entreaty too.
Iſa. Little haue you to ſay
When you depart from him, but ſoft and low,
Remember now my brother.
Mar. Feare me not.
Duke. Not gentle daughter, feare you not at all:
He is your husband on a pre-contract:
To bring you thus together 'tis no ſinne,
Sith that the Iuſtice of your title to him
Doth flouriſh the deceit. Come, let vs goe.
Our Corne's to reape, for yet our Tithes to ſow. Exeunt

Scena Secunda.

Enter Prouoſt and Clowne.

Pro. Come hither ſirha; can you cut off a mans head?
Clo. If the man be a Bachelor Sir, I can.
But if he be a married man, he's his wiues head.
And I can neuer cut off a womans head.
Pro. Come ſir, leaue me your ſnatches, and yeeld mee a direct anſwere. To morrow morning are to die Claudio and Barnardine: heere is in our priſon a common executioner, who in his office lacks a helper, if you will take it on you to aſſiſt him, it ſhall redeeme you from your Gyues: if not, you ſhall haue your full time of impriſonment, and your deliuerance with an vnpittied whipping: for you haue beene a notorious bawd.
Clo. Sir, I haue beene an vnlewfull bawd, time out of minde, but yet I will bee content to be a lawfull hangman: I would bee glad to receiue ſome inſtruction from my fellow partner.
Pro. What hoa, Abhorſon: where's Abhorſon there?
Enter Abhorſon.
Abh. Doe you call ſir?
Pro. Sirha, here's a fellow will helpe you to morrow in your execution: if you thinke it meet, compound with him by the yeere, and let him abide here with you, if not, vſe him for the preſent, and diſmiſſe him, hee cannot plead his eſtimation with you: he hath beene a Bawd.
Abh. A Bawd Sir? fie vpon him, he will diſcredit our myſterie.
Pro. Goe too Sir, you waigh equallie: a feather will turne the Scale. Exit.
Clo. Pray ſir, by your good fauor: for ſurely ſir, a good fauor you haue, but that you haue a hanging look: Doe you call ſir, your occupation a Myſterie?

Abb. I Sir, a Miſterie.

Clo. Painting Sir, I haue heard ſay, is a Miſterie; and your Whores ſir, being members of my occupation, vſing painting, do proue my Occupation, a Miſterie: but what Miſterie there ſhould be in hanging, if I ſhould be hang'd, I cannot imagine.

Abb. Sir, it is a Miſterie.

Clo. Proofe.

Abb. Euerie true mans apparell fits your Theefe.

Clo. If it be too little for your theefe, your true man thinkes it bigge enough. If it bee too bigge for your Theefe, your Theefe thinkes it little enough: So euerie true mans apparell fits your Theefe.

Enter Prouoſt.

Pro. Are you agreed?

Clo. Sir, I will ſerue him: For I do finde your Hangman is a more penitent Trade then your Bawd: he doth oftner aske forgiueneſſe.

Pro. You ſirrah, prouide your blocke and your Axe to morrow, foure a clock.

Abb. Come on (Bawd) I will inſtruct thee in my Trade: follow.

Clo. I do deſire to learne ſir: and I hope, if you haue occaſion to vſe me for your owne turne, you ſhall finde me y'are. For truly ſir, for your kindneſſe, I owe you a good turne. Exit

Pro. Call hether Barnardine & Claudio:
Th'one has my pitie; not a iot the other,
Being a Murtherer, though he were my brother.

Enter Claudio.

Looke, here's the Warrant Claudio, for thy death,
'Tis now dead midnight, and by eight to morrow
Thou muſt be made immortall. Where's Barnardine.

Cla. As faſt lock'd vp in ſleepe, as guiltleſſe labour,
When it lies ſtarkely in the Trauellers bones,
He will not wake.

Pro. Who can do good on him?
Well, go, prepare your ſelfe. But harke, what noiſe?
Heauen giue your ſpirits comfort: by, and by,
I hope it is ſome pardon, or repreeue
For the moſt gentle Claudio. Welcome Father.

Enter Duke.

Duke. The beſt, and wholſomeſt ſpirits of the night,
Inuellop you, good Prouoſt: who call'd heere of late?

Pro. None ſince the Curfew rung.

Duke. Not Iſabell?

Pro. No.

Duke. They will then e'r't be long.

Pro. What comfort is for Claudio?

Duke. There's ſome in hope.

Pro. It is a bitter Deputie.

Duke. Not ſo, not ſo: his life is paralel'd
Euen with the ſtroke and line of his great Iuſtice
He doth with holie abſtinence ſubdue
That in himſelfe, which he ſpurres on his powre
To qualifie in others: were he meal'd with that
Which he corrects, then were he tirranous,
But this being ſo, he's iuſt. Now are they come.
This is a gentle Prouoſt, ſildome when
The ſteeled Gaoler is the friend of men:
How now? what noiſe? That ſpirit's poſſeſt with haſt,
That wounds th'vnſiſting Poſterne with theſe ſtrokes.

Pro. There he muſt ſtay vntil the Officer
Ariſe to let him in: he is call'd vp.

Duke. Haue you no countermand for Claudio yet?
But he muſt die to morrow?

Pro. None Sir, none.

Duke. As neere the dawning Prouoſt as it is,
You ſhall heare more ere Morning.

Pro. Happely
You ſomething know: yet I beleeue there comes
No countermand: no ſuch example haue were Beſides, vpon the verie ſiege of Iuſtice,
Lord Angelo hath to the publike eare
Profeſt the contrarie.

Enter a Meſſenger.

Duke. This is his Lordſhip man.

Pro. And heere comes Claudio's pardon.

Meſſ. My Lord hath ſent you this note,
And by mee this further charge;
That you ſwerue not from the ſmalleſt Article of it,
Neither in time, matter, or other circumſtance.
Good morrow: for as I take it, it is almoſt day.

Pro. I ſhall obey him.

Duke. This is his Pardon purchas'd by ſuch ſin,
For which the Pardoner himſelfe is in:
Hence hath offence his quicke celeritie,
When it is borne in high Authority.
When Vice makes Mercie; Mercie's ſo extended,
That for the faults Loue, is th'offender friended.
Now Sir, what newes?

Pro. I told you:
Lord Angelo (be-like) thinking me remiſſe
In mine Office, awakens mee
With this vnwonted putting on, methinks ſtrangely:
For he hath not vs'd it before.

Duke. Pray you let's heare.

The Letter.

Whatſoeuer you may heare to the contrary, let Claudio be executed by foure of the clocke and in the afternoone Barnardine: For my better ſatisfaction, let mine haue Claudios head ſent me by five. Let this be duely performed with a thought that more depends on it, then we muſt yet deliuer. Thus faile not to doe your Office, as you will anſwere it at your perill.

What ſay yo to this Sir?

Duke. What is that Barnardine, who is to be executed in th'afternoone?

Pro. A Bohemian borne: But here nurſt vp & bred, One that is a priſoner nine yeeres old.

Duke. How came it, that the abſent Duke had not either deliuer'd him to his libertie, or executed him? I haue heard it was euer his manner to do ſo.

Pro. His friends ſtill wrought Repreeues for him: And indeed his fact till now in the gouernment of Lord Angelo, came not to an vndoubtfull proofe.

Duke. It is now apparant?

Pro. Moſt manifeſt, and not denied by himſelfe.

Duke. Hath he borne himſelfe penitently in priſon How ſeemes he to be touch'd?

Pro. A man that apprehends death no more dreadfully, but as a drunken ſleepe, careleſſe, wreakleſſe, and feareleſſe of what's paſt, preſent, or to come: inſenſible of mortality, and deſperately mortall.

Duke. He wants aduice.

Pro. He will heare none: he hath euermore had the liberty of the priſon: giue him leaue to eſcape hence, hee would not. Drunke many times a day, if not many dayes entirely drunke. We haue very oft awak'd him, as if to carrie him to execution and ſhew'd him a ſeeming warrant for it, it hath not moued him at all.

Duke.

Duke. More of him anon: There is written in your brow Prouoſt, honeſty and conſtancie; if I reade it not truly, my ancient skill beguiles me: but in the boldnes of my cunning, I will lay my ſelfe in hazard: Claudio, whom heere you haue warrant to execute, is no greater forfeit to the Law, then Angelo who hath ſentenc'd him. To make you vnderſtand this in a manifeſted effect, I craue but foure daies reſpit: for the which, you are to do me both a preſent, and a dangerous courteſie.

Pro. Pray Sir, in what?

Duke. In the delaying death.

Pro. Alacke, how may I do it. Hauing the houre limited, and an expreſſe commaund, vnder penaltie, to deliuer his head in the view of Angelo? I may make my caſe as Claudio's, to croſſe this in the ſmalleſt.

Duke. By the vow of mine Order, I warrant you,
If my inſtructions may be your guide,
Let this Barnardine be this morning executed,
And his head borne to Angelo.

Pro. Angelo hath ſeene them both,
And will diſcouer the fauour.

Duke. Oh, death's a great diſguiſer, and you may adde to it; Shaue the head, and tie the beard, and ſay it was the deſire of the penitent to be ſo bar'de before his death: you know the courſe is common. If any thing fall to you vpon this, more then thankes and good fortune, by the Saint whom I profeſſe, I will plead againſt it with my life.

Pro. Pardon me, good Father, it is againſt my oath.

Duke. Were you ſworne to the Duke, or to the Deputie?

Pro. To him, and to his Subſtitutes.

Duke. You will thinke you haue made no offence, if the Duke auouch the iuſtice of your dealing?

Pro. But what likelihood is in that?

Duke. Not a reſemblance, but a certainty: yet ſince I ſee you fearfull, that neither my coate, integrity, nor perſwaſion, can with eaſe attempt you, I will go further then I meant, to pluckе all feares out of you. Looke you Sir, heere is the hand and Seale of the Duke: you know the Charracter I doubt not, and the Signet is not ſtrange to you?

Pro. I know them both.

Duke. The Contents of this, is the returne of the Duke: you ſhall anon ouer-reade it at your pleaſure: where you ſhall finde within theſe two daies, he will be heere. This is a thing that Angelo knowes not, for hee this very day receiues letters of ſtrange tenor, perchance of the Dukes death, perchance entering into ſome Monaſterie, but by chance nothing of what is writ. Looke, th'vnfolding Starre calles vp the Shepheard: put not your ſelfe into amazement, how theſe things ſhould be: all difficulties are but eaſie when they are knowne. Call your executioner, and off with Barnardines head: I will giue him a preſent ſhrift, and aduiſe him for a better place. Yet you are amaz'd, but this ſhall abſolutely reſolue you: Come away, it is almoſt cleere dawne. Exit.

Scena Tertia.

Enter Clowne.

Clo. I am as well acquainted heere, as I was in our houſe of profeſſion: one would thinke it were Miſtris Ouer-dons owne houſe, for heere be many of her olde Cuſtomers. Firſt, here's yong Mr Raſh, hee's in for a commoditie of browne paper, and olde Ginger, nine ſcore and ſeuenteene pounds, of which hee made fiue Markes readie money: marrie then, Ginger was not much in requeſt, for the olde Women were all dead. Then is there heere one Mr Caper, at the ſuite of Maſter Three-Pile the Mercer, for ſome fourre ſuites of Peach-colour'd Satten, which now peaches him a beggar. Then haue we heere, yong Dizie, and yong Mr Deepe-vow, and Mr Copper-ſpurre, and Mr Starue-Lackey the Rapier and dagger man, and yong Drop-heire that kild Luſtie Pudding, and Mr Forthright the Tilter, and braue Mr Shoutie the great Trauceller, and wilde Halfe-Canne that ſlabb'd Pots, and I thinke forth more, all great doers in our Trade, and are now for the Lords ſake.

Enter Abhorſon.

Abh. Sirrah, bring Barnardine hether.

Clo. Mr Barnardine, you muſt riſe and be hang'd, Mr Barnardine.

Abh. What hoa Barnardine.

Barnardine within.

Bar. A pox o'your throats: who makes that noyſe there? What are you?

Clo. Your friends Sir, the Hangman!
You muſt be ſo good Sir to riſe, and be put to death.

Bar. Away you Rogue, away, I am ſleepie.

Abh. Tell him he muſt awake,
And that quickly too.

Clo. Pray Maſter Barnardine, awake till you are executed, and ſleepe afterwards.

Abh. Go in to him, and fetch him out.

Clo. He is comming Sir, he is comming: I heare his Straw ruſſle.

Enter Barnardine.

Abh. Is the Axe vpon the blocke, ſirrah?

Clo. Very readie Sir.

Bar. How now Abhorſon?
What's the newes with you?

Abh. Truly Sir, I would deſire you to clap into your prayers: for looke you, the Warrants come.

Bar. You Rogue, I haue bin drinking all night, I am not fitted for't.

Clo. Oh, the better Sir: for he that drinkes all night, and is hanged betimes in the morning, may ſleepe the ſounder all the next day.

Enter Duke.

Abh. Looke you Sir, heere comes your ghoſtly Father: do we (eſt now thinke you?

Duke. Sir, induced by my charitie, and hearing how haſtily you are to depart, I am come to aduiſe you, Comfort you, and pray with you.

Bar. Friar, not I: I haue bin drinking hard all night, and I will haue more time to prepare mee, or they ſhall beat out my braines with billets: I will not conſent to die this day, that's certaine.

Duke. Oh Sir, you muſt: and therefore I beſeech you Looke forward on the iourny you ſhall go.

Bar. I ſweare I will not die to day for any mans perſwaſion.

Duke. But heare you:

Bar. Not a word: if you haue any thing to ſay to me, come to my Ward: for thence will not I to day.

Exit

Enter Prouoſt.

Duke. Vnfit to liue, or die: oh grauell heart.

After him (Fellowes) bring him to the blocke.

Pro. Now Sir, how do you finde the prisoner?

Duke. A creature vnprepar'd, vnmeet for death,
And to transport him in the minde he is,
Were damnable.

Pro. Heere in the prison, Father,
There died this morning of a cruell Feauor,
One Ragozine, a most notorious Pirate,
A man of Claudio's yeares: his beard, and head
Iust of his colour. What if we do omit
This Reprobate, till he were well enclin'd,
And satisfie the Deputie with the visage
Of Ragozine, more like to Claudio?

Duke. Oh, 'tis an accident that heauen prouides.
Dispatch it presently, the houre drawes on Prefixt by Angelo: See this be done,
And sent according to command, whiles I
Perswade this rude wretch willingly to die.

Pro. This shall be done (good Father) presently.
But Barnardine must die this afternoone,
And how shall we continue Claudio,
To saue me from the danger that might come,
If he were knowne aliue?

Duke. Let this be done,
Put them in secret holds, both Barnardine and Claudio,
Ere twice the Sun hath made his iournall greeting
To yond generation, you shal finde
Your safeties manifested.

Pro. I am your free dependant. Exit.

Duke. Quicke, dispatch, and send the head to Angelo
Now will I write Letters to Angelo,
(The Prouost he shall beare them) whose contents
Shal witnesse to him I am neere at home:
And that by great Iniunctions I am bound
To enter publikely: him Ile desire
To meet me at the consecrated Fount,
A League below the Citie: and from thence,
By cold gradation, and weale-ballanc'd forme,
We shal proceed with Angelo.

Enter Prouost.

Pro. Heere is the head, Ile carrie it my selfe.

Duke. Conuenient is it: Make a swift returne,
For I would commune with you of such things,
That want no eare but yours.

Pro. Ile make all speede. Exit

Isabell within.

Isa. Peace hoa, be heere.

Duke. The tongue of Isabell. She's come to know,
If yet her brothers pardon be come hither:
But I will keepe her ignorant of her good,
To make her heauenly comforts of dispaire,
When it is least expected.

Enter Isabella.

Isa. Hoa, by your leaue.

Duke. Good morning to you, faire, and gracious daughter.

Isa. The better giuen me by so holy a man,
Hath yet the Deputie sent my brothers pardon?

Duke. He hath releasd him, Isabell, from the world,
His head is off, and sent to Angelo.

Isa. Nay, but it is not so.

Duke. It is no other,
Shew your wisedome daughter in your close patience.

Isa. Oh, I wil to him, and plucke out his eies.

Duk. You shal not be admitted to his sight.

Isa. Vnhappie Claudio, wretched Isabell,
Iniurious world, most damned Angelo.

Duke. This nor hurts him, nor profits you a iot,
Forbeare it therefore, giue your cause to heauen,
Marke what I say, which you shal finde
By euery syllable a faithful veritie.
The Duke comes home to morrow: nay drie your eyes,
One of our Covent, and his Confessor
Giues me this instance: Already he hath carried Notice to Escalus and Angelo,
Who do prepare to meete him at the gates, (dome,
There to giue vp their powre: If you can pace your wis-
In that good path that I would wish it go,
And you shal have your bosome on this wretch,
Grace of the Duke, reuenges to your heart,
And general Honor.

Isa. I am directed by you.

Duk. This Letter then to Frier Peter giue,
'Tis that he sent me of the Dukes returne:
Say, by this token, I desire his companie
At Mariana's house to night. Her cause, and yours
Ile perfect him withall, and he shal bring you
Before the Duke; and to the head of Angelo
Accuse him home and home. For my poore selfe,
I am combined by a sacred Vow,
And shall be absent. Wend you with this Letter:
Command these fretting waters from your eies
With a light heart; trust not my holie Order
If I peruert your course: whose heere?

Enter Lucio.

Luc. Good'euen;
Frier, where's the Prouost?

Duke. Not within Sir.

Luc. Oh pretty Isabella, I am pale at mine heart, to see thine eyes so red: thou must be patient; I am faine to dine and sup with water and bran: I dare not for my head fill my belly. One fruitful Meale would set me too't: but they say the Duke will be heere to Morrow. By my troth Isabell I lou'd thy brother, if the olde fantastical Duke of darke corners had bene at home, he had liued.

Duke. Sir, the Duke is marueilous little beholding to your reports, but the best is, he liues not in them.

Luc. Friar, thou knowest not the Duke so well as I do: he's a better woodman then thou tak'st him for.

Duke. Well: you'l answer this one day. Fare ye well.

Luc. Nay tarrie, Ile go along with thee,
I can tel thee pretty tales of the Duke.

Duke. You haue told me too many of him already sir if they be true: if not true, none were enough.

Lucio. I was once before him for getting a Wench with childe.

Duke. Did you such a thing?

Luc. Yes marrie did I; but I was faine to forswear it, They would else haue married me to the rotten Medler.

Duke. Sir your company is fairer then honest, rest you well.

Lucio. By my troth Ile go with thee to the lanes end: if baudy talke offend you, we'el haue very litle of it: nay Friar, I am a kind of Burre, I shal sticke. Exeunt

Scena Quarta.

Enter Angelo & Escalus.

Esc. Euery Letter he hath writ, hath disvouch'd other.

Ang.

vneuen and diſtracted manner, his actions
ke to madneſſe, pray heauen his wiſedome
d: and why meet him at the gates and reorities there?
ſe not.
why ſhould wee proclaime it in an howre
ring, thus if any graue redreſſe of iniuſtice, habit their petitions in the ſtreet?
owes his reaſon for that: to haue a diſpatch
s, and to deliuer vs from deuices heere-ſhall then haue no power to ſtand againſt

l: I beſeech you let it bee proclaim'd beene, Ile call you at your houſe: giue notice
ſort and ſuite as are to meete him.
l ſir: fare you well. Exit.
d night.
ſhapes me quite, makes me vnpregnant
l proceedings. A diſlowred maid, unent body, that enfore'd mſt it? But that her tender ſhame claime againſt her maiden loſſe, he tongue me? yet reaſon dares her no
ority beares of a credent bulke, cular ſcandall once can touch nds the breather. He ſhould haue liu'd riotous youth with dangerous ſenſe times to come haue ta'ne reuenge ng a diſhonor'd life
e of ſuch ſhame: would yet he had liued once our grace we haue forgot a right, we would, and we would not. Exit.

Scena Quinta.

Enter Duke and Frier Peter.

aſe Letters at fit time deliuer me.
know'es our purpoſe and our plot,
being a foote, keepe your inſtruction
u euer to our ſpeciall drift, etimes you doe blench from this to that
h miniſter: Goe call at Flauia's houſe, where I ſtay: giue the like notice
, Rowland, and to Craſſus,
m bring the Trumpets to the gate:
Flauius firſt.
ſhall be ſpeeded well.

Enter Varrius.

hank thee Varrius, thou haſt made good haſt, ill walke: There's other of our friends
's heere anon: my gencle Varrius. Exeunt.

Scena Sexta.

Enter Iſabella and Mariana.

ſpeak ſo indirectly I am loath,
the truth, but to accuſe him ſo part, yet I am adeis'd to doe it.
uitle full purpoſe.
be rul'd by him.

Iſab. Beſides he tells me, that if peraduenture
He ſpeake againſt me on the aduerſe ſide,
I ſhould not thinke it ſtrange, for 'tis a phyſicke
That's bitter, to ſweet end.

Enter Peter.

Mar. I would Frier Peter
Iſab. Oh peace, the Frier is come.
Peter. Come I haue found you out a ſtand moſt fit,
Where you may haue ſuch vantage on the Duke
He ſhall not paſſe you:
Twice haue the Trumpets ſounded,
The generous, and graueſt Citizens
Haue hent the gates, and very neere vpon
The Duke is entring:
Therefore hence away. Exeunt.

Actus Quintus. Scœna Prima.

Enter Duke, Varrius, Lords, Angelo, Eſcalus, Lucio, Citizens at ſeuerall dores.

Duk. My very worthy Coſen, fairely met,
Our old, and faithfull friend, we are glad to ſee you
Ang. Eſc. Happy returne be to your royall grace
Duk. Many and harty thankings to you both:
We haue made enquiry of you, and we heare
Such goodneſſe of your Iuſtice, that our ſoule
Cannot but yeeld you forth to publique thankes
Forerunning more requitall.
Ang. You make my bonds ſtill greater.
Duk. Oh your deſert ſpeaks loud, & I ſhould wrong it
To locke it in the wards of couert boſome
When it deſerues with characters of braſſe
A forted reſidence 'gainſt the tooth of time,
And razure of oblituion: Giue me your hand
And let the Subiect ſee, to make them know
That outward curteſies would faine proclaime
Fauours that keepe within: Come Eſcalus.
You muſt walke by vs, on our other hand,
And good ſupporters are you.

Enter Peter and Iſabella.

Peter. Now is your time
Speake loud, and kneele before him.
Iſab. Iuſtice, O royall Duke, vaile your regard Vpon a wrong'd (I would faine haue ſaid a Maid)
Oh worthy Prince, diſhonor not your eye
By throwing it on any other obiect,
Till you haue heard me, in my true complaint,
And giuen me Iuſtice, Iuſtice, Iuſtice, Iuſtice.
Duk. Relate your wrongs:
In what, by whom? be briefe:
Here is Lord Angelo ſhall giue you Iuſtice,
Reueale your ſelfe to him.
Iſab. Oh worthy Duke,
You bid me ſeeke redemption of the diuell,
Heare me your ſelfe: for that which I muſt ſpeake
Muſt either puniſh me, not being beleeu'd,
Or wring redreſſe from you:
Heare me: oh heare me, heere.
Ang. My Lord, her wits I feare me are not firme:
She hath bin a ſuitor to me, for her Brother
Cut off by courſe of Iuſtice.
Iſab. By courſe of Iuſtice.
Ang. And ſhe will ſpeake moſt bitterly, and ſtrange.

Iſab. Moſt

Isab. Most strange: but yet most truely will I speake,
That Angelo's forsworne, is it not strange?
That Angelo's a murtherer, is't not strange?
That Angelo is an adulterous thiefe,
An hypocrite, a virgin violator,
Is it not strange? and strange?
Duke. Nay it is ten times strange?
Isa. It is not truer he is Angelo,
Then this is all as true, as it is strange:
Nay, it is ten times true, for truth is truth
To th'end of reckning.
Duke. Away with her: poore soule
She speakes this in th'infirmity of sence.
Isa. Oh Prince, I conjure thee as thou beleev'st
There is another comfort, then this world,
That thou neglect me not, with that opinion
That I am touch'd with madnesse: make not impossible
That which but seemes unlike, 'tis not impossible
But one, the wickedst caitiffe on the ground
May seeme as shie, as graue, as just, as absolute:
As Angelo, even so may Angelo
In all his dressings, caracts, titles, formes,
Be an arch-villaine: Beleeve it, royall Prince
If he be lesse, he's nothing, but he's more,
Had I more name for badnesse.
Duke. By mine honesty
If she be mad, as I beleeve no other,
Her madnesse hath the oddest frame of sense,
Such a dependancy of thing, on thing,
As ere I heard in madnesse.
Isab. Oh gracious Duke
Harpe not on that; nor do not banish reason
For inequality, but let your reason serve
To make the truth appeare, where it seemes hid,
And hide the false seemes true.
Duke. Many that are not mad
Have sure more lacke of reason:
What would you say?
Isab. I am the Sister of one Claudio,
Condemnd upon the Act of Fornication
To loose his head, condemn'd by Angelo.
I, (in probation of a Sisterhood)
Was sent to by my Brother; one Lucio
As then the Messenger.
Luc. That's I, and't like your Grace:
I came to her from Claudio, and desir'd her,
To try her gracious fortune with Lord Angelo
For her poore Brothers pardon.
Isab. That's he indeede.
Duke. You were not bid to speake.
Luc No, my good Lord,
Nor wish'd to hold my peace.
Duke. I wish you now then,
Pray you take note of it: and when you haue
A businesse for your selfe: pray heauen you then
Be perfect.
Luc. I warrant your honor.
Duke. The warrant's for your selfe: take heede to't.
Isab. This Gentleman told somewhat of my Tale.
Luc. Right.
Duke. It may be right, but you are i'the wrong
To speake before your time: proceed,
Isab. I went
To this pernicious Caitiffe Deputie.
Duke. That's somewhat madly spoken.
Isab. Pardon it,
The phrase is to the matter.
Duke. Mended againe: the matter: proceed.
Isab. In briefe, to set the needlesse processe by:
How I perswaded, how I prayd, and kneel'd,
How he refeld me, and how I replide
(For this was of much length) the vild conclusion
I now begin with griefe, and shame to vtter.
He would not, but by gift of my chaste body
To his concupiscible intemperate lust
Release my brother; and after much debatement,
My sisterly remorse, confutes mine honour,
And I did yeeld to him: But the next morne beimes,
His purpose forfetting, he sends a warrant
For my poore brothers head.
Duke. This is most likely.
Isab. Oh that it were as like as it is true. (Speak'st,
Duk. By heauen (fond wretch) know'st not what thou
Or else thou art suborn'd against his honor
In hatefull practise: first his Integritie
Stands without blemish: next it imports no reason,
That with such vehemency he should pursue
Faults proper to himselfe: if he had so offended
He would haue waigh'd thy brother by himselfe,
And not haue cut him off: some one hath set you on:
Confesse the truth, and say by whose advice
Thou cam'st heere to complaine.
Isab. And is this all?
Then oh you blessed Ministers aboue
Keepe me in patience, and with ripened time
Vnfold the euill, which is heere wrapt vp
In countenance: heauen shield your Grace from woe
As I thus wrong'd, hence vnbeleeued goe.
Duke. I know you'ld faine be gone: An Officer:
To prison with her: Shall we thus permit
A blasting and a scandalous breath to fall,
On him so neere vs? This needs must be a practise:
Who knew of your intent and comming hither?
Isa. One that I would were heere. Frier Lodowick.
Duk. A ghostly Father, belike:
Who knowes that Lodowicke?
Luc. My Lord, I know him, 'tis a meddling Fryer,
I doe not like the man: had he been Lay my Lord,
For certaine words he spake against your Grace
In your retirment, I had swing'd him soundly.
Duke. Words against me? this 'a good Fryer belike
And to set on this wretched woman here
Against our Substitute: Let this Fryer be found.
Luc. But yesternight my Lord, she and that Fryer
I saw them at the prison: a sawcy Fryar,
A very scuruy fellow.
Peter. Blessed be your Royall Grace:
I haue stood by my Lord, and I haue heard
Your royall ears abus'd: first hath this woman
Most wrongfully accus'd your Substitute,
Who is as free from touch, or soyle with her
As she from one vngot.
Duke. We did beleeve no lesse.
Know you that Frier Lodowick that she speakes of?
Peter. I know him for a man diuine and holy,
Not scuruy, nor a temporary medler
As he's reported by this Gentleman:
And on my trust, a man that never yet
Did (as he vouches) mis-report your Grace.
Luc. My Lord, most villanously, beleeve it.
Peter. Well: he in time may come to cleere himselfe:
But at this instant he is sicke, my Lord:

Of

ange Feanor: vpon his meere request come to knowledge, that there was complaint
ed 'gainſt Lord Angelo, came I hether ake as from his mouth, what he doth know
, and falſe: And what he with his oath
I probation will make vp full cleare ſoever he's conuented: Firſt for this woman, tifie this worthy Noble man
garly and perſonally accus'd, all you heare diſproued to her eyes,
e her ſelfe confeſſe it.
k. Good Frier, let's heare it:
oo not ſmile at this, Lord Angelo?
uen, the vanity of wretched fooles.
s ſome ſeates. Come coſen Angelo,
I'll be impartiall: be you Iudge
r owne Cauſe: Is this the Witnes Frier?

Enter Mariana.

et her ſhew your face, and after, ſpeake.
r. Pardon my Lord, I will not ſhew my face my husband bid me.
ke. What, are you married?
r. No my Lord.
ke. Are you a Maid?
r. No my Lord.
ke. A Widow then?
r. Neither, my Lord.
ke. Why you are nothing then: neither Maid, Wi-nor Wife?
r. My Lord, ſhe may be a Puncke: for many of are neither Maid, Widow, nor Wife.
ke. Silence that fellow: I would he had ſome cauſe tle for himſelfe.
r. Well my Lord.
r. My Lord, I doe confeſſe I nere was married,
I confeſſe beſides, I am no Maid.
I known my husband, yet my husband
wes not, that euer he knew me.
r. He was drunk then, my Lord, it can be no better.
ke. For the benefit of ſilence, would thou wert ſo too.
r. Well, my Lord.
ke. This is no witneſſe for Lord Angelo.
r. Now I come to't, my Lord.
that accuſes him of Fornication,
ſe-ſame manner, doth accuſe my husband,
charges him, my Lord, with ſuch a time,
m I'le depoſe I had him in mine Armes
all th'effect of Loue.
ng. Charges ſhe moe then me?
r. Not that I know.
ke. No? you ſay your husband
r. Why iuſt, my Lord, and that is Angelo, thinkes he knowes, that he nere knew my body,
nowes, he thinkes, that he knowes Iſabels.
ng. This is a ſtrange abuſe: Let's ſee thy face.
r. My husband bids me, now I will vnmaske is that face, thou cruell Angelo ch once thou ſworſt, was worth the looking on:
is the hand, which with a vowd contract
ſtall bedockt in thine: This is the body
tooke away the march from Iſabell, did ſupply thee at thy garden-houſe
r Imagin'd perſon.
ke. Know you this woman?
r. Carnallie ſhe ſaies,
Duk. Sirha, no more.
Luc. Enough my Lord.
Ang. My Lord, I muſt confeſſe, I know this woman,
And fiue yeres ſince there was ſome ſpeech of marriage
Betwixt my ſelfe, and her: which was broke off,
Partly for that her promis'd proportions
Came ſhort of Compoſition: But in chiefe
For that her reputation was diſ-valued
In leuitie: Since which time of fiue yeres
I neuer ſpake with her, ſaw her, nor heard from her
Vpon my faith, and honor.
Mar. Noble Prince,
As there comes light from heauen, and words frō breath,
As there is ſence in truth, and truth in vertue,
I am affianced this mans wife, as ſtrongly
As words could make vp vowes: And my good Lord,
But Tueſday night laſt gon, in's garden houſe,
He knew me as a wife. As this is true,
Let me in ſafety raiſe me from my knees,
Or elſe for euer be confixed here
A Marble Monument.
Ang. I did but ſmile till now,
Now, good my Lord, giue me the ſcope of Iuſtice,
My patience here is touch'd: I doe perceiue
Theſe poore informall women, are no more
But inſtruments of ſome more mightier member
That ſets them on. Let me haue way, my Lord
To finde this practiſe out.
Duke. I, with my heart,
And puniſh them to your height of pleaſure.
Thou fooliſh Frier, and thou pernicious woman
Compact with her that's gone: thinkſt thou, thy oathes,
Though they would ſweare downe each particular Saint,
Were teſtimonies againſt his worth, and credit
That's ſeald in approbation? you, Lord Eſcalus
Sit with my Cozen, lend him your kinde paines
To finde out this abuſe, whence 'tis deriu'd.
There is another Frier that ſet them on,
Let him be ſent for.
Peter. Would he were here, my Lord, for he indeed
Hath ſet the women on to this Complaint;
Your Prouoſt knowes the place where he abides,
And he may fetch him.
Duke. Goe, doe it inſtantly:
And you, my noble and well-warranted Coſen
Whom it concernes to heare this matter forth,
Doe with your iniuries as ſeemes you beſt
In any chaſtiſement; I for a while
Will leaue you; but ſtir not you till you haue
Well determin'd vpon theſe Slanderers. Exit.
Eſc. My Lord, wee'll doe it throughly: Signior Lucio, did not you ſay you knew that Frier Lodowick to be a diſhoneſt perſon?
Luc. Cucullus non facit Monachum, honeſt in nothing but in his Clothes, and one that hath ſpoke moſt villanous ſpeeches of the Duke.
Eſc. We ſhall intreat you to abide heere till he come, and inforce them againſt him: we ſhall finde this Frier a notable fellow.
Luc. As any in Vienna, on my word.
Eſc. Call that ſame Iſabell here once againe, I would ſpeake with her: pray you, my Lord, giue mee leaue to queſtion, you ſhall ſee how I'le handle her.
Luc. Not better then he, by her owne report.
Eſc. Say you?
Luc. Marry ſir, I thinke, if you handled her priuately ſhee

She would sooner confesse, perchance publikely she'll be asham'd.

Enter Duke, Provost, Isabella.

Esc. I will goe darkely to worke with her.

Luc. That's the way: for women are light at midnight.

Esc. Come on Mistris, here's a Gentlewoman, Denies all that you haue said.

Luc. My Lord, here comes the rascall I spoke of, Here, with the Provost.

Esc. In very good time: speake not you to him, till we call vpon you.

Luc. Mum.

Esc. Come Sir, did you set these women on to slander Lord Angelo? they haue confes'd you did.

Duke. 'Tis false.

Esc. How? Know you where you are?

Duke. Respect to your great place; and let the diuell Be sometime honour'd, for his burning throne. Where is the Duke? 'tis he should heare me speake.

Esc. The Duke's in vs: and we will heare you speake, Looke you speake iustly.

Duke. Boldly, at least. But oh poore soules, Come you to seeke the Lamb here of the Fox; Good night to your redresse: Is the Duke gone? Then is your cause gone too: The Duke's vniust, Thus to retort your manifest Appeale, And put your triall in the villaines mouth, Which here you come to accuse.

Luc. This is the rascall: this is he I spoke of.

Esc. Why thou vnreuerend, and vnhallowed Fryer: Is't not enough thou hast suborn'd these women, To accuse this worthy man? but in foule mouth, And in the witnesse of his proper eare, To call him villaine; and then to glance from him, To th' Duke himselfe, to taxe him with Iniustice? Take him hence; to th' racke with him: we'll towze you Ioynt by ioynt, but we will know his purpose: What? vniust?

Duke. Be not so hot: the Duke dare No more stretch this finger of mine, then he Dare racke his owne: his Subiect am I not, Nor here Prouinciall: My businesse in this State Made me a looker on here in Vienna, Where I haue seene corruption boyle and bubble, Till it ore-run the Stew: Lawes, for all faults, But faults so countenanc'd, that the strong Statutes Stand like the forfeites in a Barbers shop, As much in mocke, as marke.

Esc. Slander to th' State:
Away with him to prison.

Ang. What can you vouch against him Signior Lucio? Is this the man that you did tell vs of?

Luc. 'Tis he, my Lord: come hither goodman baldpate, doe you know me?

Duke. I remember you Sir, by the sound of your voice, I met you at the Prison, in the absence of the Duke.

Luc. Oh, did you so? and do you remember what you said of the Duke.

Duke. Most notedly Sir.

Luc. Do you so Sir: And was the Duke a flesh-monger, a foole, and a coward, as you then reported him to be?

Duke. You must (Sir) change persons with me, ere you make that my report: you indeede spoke so of him, and much more, much worse.

Luc. Oh thou damnable fellow: did not I plucke thee by the nose, for thy speeches?

Duke. I protest, I loue the Duke, as I loue my selfe.

Ang. Harke how the villaine would close now, after his treasonable abuses.

Esc. Such a fellow is not to be talk'd withall: Away with him to prison: Where is the Provost? away with him to prison: lay bolts enough vpon him: let him speak no more: away with those Giglets too, and with the other confederate companion.

Duke. Stay Sir, stay a while.

Ang. What, resists he? helpe him Lucio.

Luc. Come sir, come sir, come sir: foh sir, why you bald-pated lying rascall: you must be hooded must you? show your knaues visage with a pose to you: show your sheepe-biting face, and be hang'd an houre: will't not off?

Duke. Thou art the first knaue, that ere mad'st a Duke. First Provost, let me bayle these gentle three: Sneake not away Sir, for the Fryer, and you, Must haue a word anon: lay hold on him.

Luc. This may proue worse then hanging.

Duke. What you haue spoke, I pardon: sit you downe, We'll borrow place of him; Sir, by your leaue: Has't thou or word, or wit, or impudence, That yet can doe thee office? If thou has't Rely vpon it, till my tale be heard, And hold no longer out.

Ang. Oh, my dread Lord, I should be guiltier then my guiltinesse, To thinke I can be vndiscernible, When I perceiue your grace, like powre diuine, Hath look'd vpon my passes. Then good Prince, No longer Session hold vpon my shame, But let my Triall, be mine owne Confession: Immediate sentence then, and sequent death, Is all the grace I beg.

Duke. Come hither Mariana, Say: was't thou ere contracted to this woman?

Ang. I was my Lord.

Duke. Goe take her hence, and marry her instantly. Doe you the office (Fryer) which consummate, Returne him here againe: goe with him Provost. Exit.

Esc. My Lord, I am more amaz'd at his dishonor. Then at the strangenesse of it.

Duke. Come hither Isabell, Your Frier is now your Prince: As I was then Aduertysing, and holy to your businesse, (Not changing heart with habit) I am still, Attornied at your seruice.

Isab. Oh giue me pardon That I, your vassaile, haue employd, and pain'd Your vnknowne Soueraignitie.

Duke. You are pardon'd Isabell: And now, deere Maide, be you as free to vs. Your Brothers death I know sits at your heart: And you may marueile, why I obscur'd my selfe, Labouring to saue his life: and would not rather Make rash remonstrance of my hidden powre, Then let him so be lost: oh most kinde Maid, It was the swift celeritie of his death, Which I did thinke, with slower foot came on, That brain'd my purpose: but peace be with him, That life is better life past fearing death, Then that which liues to feare: make it your comfort, y is your Brother.

So

Enter Angelo, Maria, Peter, Provost.
I doe my Lord.
For this new-maried man, approaching here,
ſalt imagination yet hath wrong'd ell deſended honor: you muſt pardon rana's ſake: But as he adiudg'd your Brother, riminall, in double violation
d Chaſtitie, and of promiſe-breach, dependant for your Brothers life,
y mercy of the Law cries out dible, euen from his proper tongue.
ola for Claudio, death for death.
ll paies haſte, and leaſure, anſwers leaſure;
th quit like, and Meaſure ſtill for Meaſure:
ngelo, thy fault's thus manifeſted;
though thou would'ſt deny, denies thee vantage.
condemne thee to the very Blocke
Claudio ſtoop'd to death, and with like haſte.
ith him.
. Oh my moſt gracious Lord,
ou will not mocke me with a husband?
It is your husband mock't you with a husband,
ing to the ſafe-guard of your honor,
t your marriage ſtis: elſe Imputation,
: he knew you, might reproach your life,
ake your good to come: For his Poſſeſſions,
gh by confiscation they are ours;
en-ſtate, and widow you with all,
you a better husband.
. Oh my deere Lord,
o other, nor no better man.
. Neuer craue him, we are definitiue.
Gentle my Liege.
. You doe but looſe your labour.
ith him to death: Now Sir, to you.
. Oh my good Lord, ſweet Iſabell, take my part.
e your knees, and all my life to come,
you all my life to doe you ſeruice.
. Againſt all ſence you doe importune her,
ſhe kneele downe, in mercie of this fact,
whers ghoſt, his paued bed would breake,
e her hence in horror.
. Iſabel:
ſabel, doe yet but kneele by me,
your hands, ſay nothing: I'll ſpeake all.
y beſt men are moulded out of faults,
the moſt, become much more the better
g a little bad: So may my husband.
: will you not lend a knee?
. He dies for Claudio's death.
Moſt bounteous Sir.
ſ it pleaſe you, on this man condemn'd,
y Brother lie'd: I partly thinke, ocericke gouerned his deedes,
d looke on me: Since it is ſo,
not die: my Brother had but Iuſtice,
he did the thing for which he dide.
ngelo, his Act did not ore-take his bad intent,
ſt be buried but as an intent
ſh'd by the way: thoughts are no ſubiects Intents meerely thoughts.
. Meerely my Lord.
. Your ſuite's vnprofitable: ſtand vp I ſay:
ethought me of another fault.
how came it Claudio was beheaded
At an vnuſuall howre?
Pro. It was commanded ſo.
Duke. Had you a ſpeciall warrant for the deed?
Pro. No my good Lord: it was by priuate meſſage.
Duke. For which I doe diſcharge you of your office,
Giue vp your keyes.
Pro. Pardon me, noble Lord,
I thought it was a fault, but knew it not,
Yet did repent me after more aduice,
For teſtimony whereof, one in the priſon
That ſhould by priuate order elſe haue dide,
I haue reſerv'd aliue.
Duk. What's he?
Pro. His name is Barnardine.
Duke. I would thou hadſt done ſo by Claudio:
Goe fetch him hither, let me looke vpon him.
Eſc. I am ſorry, one ſo learned, and ſo wiſe
As you, Lord Angelo, haue ſtil appear'd,
Should ſlip ſo groſſelie, both in the heat of bloud
And lacke of temper'd iudgement afterward.
Ang. I am ſorrie, that ſuch ſorrow I procure,
And ſo deepe ſticks it in my penitent heart,
That I craue death more willingly then mercy.
'Tis my deſeruing, and I doe entreat it.
Enter Barnardine and Provoſt, Claudio, Iulietta.
Duke. Which is that Barnardine?
Pro. This my Lord.
Duke. There was a Friar told me of this man.
Sirha, thou art ſaid to haue a ſtubborne ſoule
That apprehends no further then this world,
And ſquar'ſt thy life according: Thou'rt condemn'd,
But for thoſe earthly faults, I quit them all,
And pray thee take this mercie to prouide
For better times to come: Frier aduiſe him,
I leaue him to your hand. What muffeld fellow's that?
Pro. This is another priſoner that I ſau'd,
Who ſhould haue di'd when Claudio loſt his head,
As like almoſt to Claudio, as himſelfe.
Duke. If he be like your brother, for his ſake
Is he pardon'd, and for your louelie ſake
Giue me your hand, and ſay you will be mine,
He is my brother too: But fitter time for that:
By this Lord Angelo perceiues he's ſafe,
Methinkes I ſee a quickning in his eye:
Well Angelo, your euill quits you well.
Looke that you loue your wife: her worth, worth yours
I finde an apt remiſſion in my ſelfe:
And yet heere's one in place I cannot pardon,
You ſirha, that knew me for a foole, a Coward,
One all of Luxurie, an aſſe, a mad man:
Wherein haue I ſo deſeru'd of you
That you extoll me thus?
Luc. Faith my Lord, I ſpoke it but according to the trick: if you will hang me for it you may: but I had rather it would pleaſe you, I might be whipt.
Duke. Whipt firſt, ſir, and hang'd after.
Proclaime it Prouoſt round about the Citie,
If any woman wrong'd by this lewd fellow
(As I haue heard him ſweare himſelfe there's one whom he begot with childe) let her appeare,
And he ſhall marry her: the nuptiall finiſh'd,
Let him be whipt and hang'd.
Luc. I beſeech your Highneſſe doe not marry me to a Whore: your Highneſſe ſaid euen now I made you a Duke, good my Lord do not recompence me, in making me a Cuckold.

Duk. Vpon

Duke. Vpon mine honor thou shalt marrie her.
Thy slanders I forgiue, and therewithall
Remit thy other forfeits: take him to prison,
And see our pleasure herein executed.
Luc. Marrying a punke my Lord, is pressing to death,
Whipping and hanging.
Duke. Slandering a Prince deserues it.
She Claudio that you wrong'd, looke you restore.
Ioy to you Mariana, loue her Angelo:
I haue confes'd her, and I know her vertue.
Thanks good friend, Escalus, for thy much goodnesse,
There's more behinde that is more gratulate.
Thanks Prouost for thy care, and secrecie,
We shall imploy thee in a worthier place.
Forgiue him Angelo, that brought you home
The head of Ragozine for Claudio's,
Th'offence pardons it selfe. Deere Isabell,
I haue a motion much imports your good,
Whereto if you'll a willing eare incline;
What's mine is yours, and what is yours is mine
So bring vs to our Pallace, where wee'll show
What's yet behinde, that meete you all should know.

The Scene Vienna.

The names of all the Actors.

Vincentio: the Duke.
Angelo, the Deputie.
Escalus, an ancient Lord.
Claudio, a yong Gentleman.
Lucio, a fantastique.
2. Other like Gentlemen.
Prouost.
Thomas. } 2. Friers.
Peter. }
Elbow, a simple Constable.
Froth, a foolish Gentleman.
Clowne.
Abhorson, an Executioner.
Barnardine, a dissolute prisoner.
Isabella, sister to Claudio.
Mariana, betrothed to Angelo
Iuliet, beloued of Claudio.
Francisca, a Nun.
Mistris Ouer-don, a Bawd.

FINIS.

The Comedie of Errors.

Actus primus, Scena prima.

Duke of Epheſus, with the Merchant of Siracuſa, and other attendants.

Marchant.

Proceed Solinus to procure my fall,
And by the doome of death end woes and all.

Duke. Merchant of Siracuſa, plead no more:
I am not partiall to infringe our Lawes;
The enmity and diſcord which of late
From the contentious outrage of your Duke,
Whoſe chances our well-dearing Countrimen,
With ranſoming gilders to redeeme their liues,
And hath his rigorous ſtatutes with their bloods,
Excluding all pitty from our threatning lookes:
For the mortall and inteſtine iarres
Twixt his ſeditious Countrimen and vs,
In ſolemne Synodes beene decreed,
Both the Siracuſians and our ſelues,
To admit no traffick to our aduerſe townes:
Nay, if any borne at Epheſus
Be ſeene at any Siracuſian Marts and Fayres:
Or if any Siracuſian borne
Come to the Bay of Epheſus, he dies:
His goods confiſcate to the Dukes diſpoſe,
Vnleſſe a thouſand markes be leuied
To quite the penalty, and to ranſome him:
Thy ſubſtance, valued at the higheſt rate,
Cannot amount vnto a hundred Markes,
Therefore by Law thou art condemn'd to die.

Marchant. Yet this my comfort, when your words are done,
My woes end likewiſe with the euening Sonne.

Duke. Well Siracuſian; ſay in briefe the cauſe
Why thou departedſt from thy natiue home?
And for what cauſe thou cam'ſt to Epheſus

Marchant. A heauier taske could not haue beene impos'd,
Then I to ſpeake my griefes vnſpeakeable:
Yet that the world may witneſſe that my end
Was wrought by nature, not by vile offence,
Ile vtter what my ſorrow giues me leaue.
In Siracuſa was I borne, and wedde
Vnto a woman, happy but for me,
And by me, had not our hap beene bad:
With her I liu'd in ioy, our wealth increaſt
By proſperous voyages I often made
To Epidamnum, till my factors death,
And the great care of goods at random left,
Drew from kinde embracements of my ſpouſe:
From whom my abſence was no ſixe moneths olde,
When my ſelfe (almoſt at fainting vnder
The pleaſing puniſhment that women beare)
Had made prouiſion for her following me,
And ſoone, and ſafe, arriued where I was:
There had ſhe not beene long, but ſhe became
A ioyfull mother of two goodly ſonnes:
And, which was ſtrange, the one ſo like the other,
As could not be diſtinguiſh'd but by names.
That very howre, and in the ſelfe-ſame Inne,
A meane woman was deliuered
Of ſuch a burthen Male, twins both alike:
Thoſe, for their parents were exceeding poore,
I bought, and brought vp to attend my ſonnes.
My wife, not meanely proud of two ſuch boyes,
Made daily motions for our home returne:
Vnwilling I agreed, alas, too ſoone we came aboord.
A league from Epidamnum had we ſaild
Before the alwaies winde-obeying deepe
Gaue any Tragicke inſtance of our harme:
But longer did we not retaine much hope;
For what obſcured light the heauens did grant,
Did but conuay vnto our fearefull mindes
A doubtfull warrant of immediate death,
Which though my ſelfe would gladly haue imbrac'd,
Yet the inceſſant weepings of my wife,
Weeping before for what ſhe ſaw muſt come,
And pitteous plainings of the prettie babes
That mourn'd for faſhion, ignorant what to feare,
Forſt me to ſeeke delayes for them and me,
And this it was: (for other meanes was none)
The Sailors ſought for ſafety by our boate,
And left the ſhip then ſinking ripe to vs.
My wife, more carefull for the latter borne,
Had faſtned him vnto a ſmall ſpare Maſt,
Such as ſea-faring men prouide for ſtormes:
To him one of the other twins was bound,
Whil'ſt I had beene like heedfull of the other.
The children thus diſpos'd, my wife and I,
Fixing our eyes on whom our care was fixt,
Faſtned our ſelues at eyther end the maſt,
And floating ſtraight, obedient to the ſtreame,
Was carried towards Corinth, as we thought.
At length the ſonne gazing vpon the earth,
Diſperſt thoſe vapours that offended vs,
And by the benefit of his wiſhed light
The ſeas waxt calme, and we diſcouered
Two ſhippes from farre, making amaine to vs:
Of Corinth that, of Epidaurus this,
But ere they came, oh let me ſay no more,
Gather the ſequell by that went before.

Duke. Nay forward old man, do not breake off ſo,

For we may pitty, though not pardon thee.
Merch. Oh had the gods done so, I had not now
Worthily tearm'd them merciles to vs:
For ere the ships could meet by twice fiue leagues,
We were encountred by a mighty rocke,
Which being violently borne vp,
Our helpefull ship was splitted in the midst;
So that in this vniuſt diuorce of vs,
Fortune had left to both of vs alike,
What to delight in, what to sorrow for,
Her part, poore soule, seeming as burdened
With lesser waight, but not with lesser woe,
Was carried with more speed before the winde,
And in our sight they three were taken vp
By Fishermen of Corinth, as we thought.
At length another ship had seiz'd on vs,
And knowing whom it was their hap to saue,
Gaue healthfull welcome to their ship-wracke guests,
And would haue reft the Fishers of their prey,
Had not their backe beene very slow of saile;
And therefore homeward did they bend their course.
Thus haue you heard me seuer'd from my blisse,
That by misfortunes was my life prolong'd,
To tell sad stories of my owne mishaps.
Duke. And for the sake of them thou sorrowest for Doe me the fauour to dilate at full,
What haue befalne of them and they till now.
Merch. My youngest boy, and yet my eldest care,
At eighteene yeares became inquisitiue
After his brother; and importun'd me
That his attendant, (so his case was like,
Reft of his brother, but retain'd his name,
Might beare him company in the quest of him:
Whom whil'st I laboured of a loue to see,
I hazarded the losse of whom I lou'd.
Fiue Sommers haue I spent in farthest Greece,
Roming cleane through the bounds of Asia,
And coasting homeward, came to Ephesus:
Hopelesse to finde, yet loth to leaue vnsought
Or that, or any place that harbours men:
But here must end the story of my life,
And happy were I in my timelie death,
Could all my trauells warrant me they liue.
Duke. Hapleſse Egeon whom the fates haue markt
To beare the extremitie of dire mishap:
Now trust me, were it not against our Lawes,
Against my Crowne, my oath, my dignity,
Which Princes would they may not disanull,
My soule should sue as aduocate for thee:
But though thou art adiudged to the death,
And passed sentence may not be recal'd
But to our honours great disparagement:
Yet will I fauour thee in what I can;
Therefore Marchant, Ile limit thee this day
To seeke thy helpe by beneficiall helpe,
Try all the friends thou hast in Ephesus,
Beg thou, or borrow, to make vp the summe,
And liue: if no, then thou art doom'd to die:
Iaylor, take him to thy custodie.
Iaylor. I will my Lord.
Merch. Hopelesse and helpeleſse doth Egeon wend,
But to procrastinate his liueleſse end. Exeunt

Enter Antipholus Erotes, a Marchant, and Dromio

Mer. Therefore giue out you are of Epidamnum,
Lest that your goods too soone be confiscate:
This very day a Syracusian Marchant
Is apprehended for a riuall here,
And not being able to buy out his life,
According to the statute of the towne,
Dies ere the wearie sunne set in the West:
There is your monie that I had to keepe.
Ant. Goe beare it to the Centaure, where we host,
And stay there Dromio, till I come to thee;
Within this houre it will be dinner time,
Till that Ile view the manners of the towne,
Peruse the traders, gaze vpon the buildings,
And then returne and sleepe within mine Inne,
For with long trauaile I am stiffe and wearie.
Get thee away.
Dro. Many a man would take you at your word,
And goe indeede, hauing so good a meane.
Exit Dromio.
Ant. A trustie villaine sir, that very oft,
When I am dull with care and melancholly,
Lightens my humour with his merry iests:
What will you walke with me about the towne,
And then goe to my Inne and dine with me?
E.Mar. I am inuited sir to certaine Marchants,
Of whom I hope to make much benefit:
I craue your pardon, soone at fiue a clocke,
Please you, Ile meete with you vpon the Mart,
And afterward consort you till bed time
My present buſineſse calls me from you now.
Ant. Farewell till then: I will goe looſe my ſelfe,
And wander vp and downe to view the Citie.
E.Mar. Sir, I commend you to your owne content.
Exeunt.
Ant. He that commends me to mine owne content,
Commends me to the thing I cannot get:
I to the world am like a drop of water,
That in the Ocean seekes another drop,
Who falling there to finde his fellow forth,
(Vnseene, inquisitiue) confounds himselfe.
So I, to finde a Mother and a Brother,
In quest of them (vnhappie a) looſe my ſelfe.

Enter Dromio of Ephesus.

Here comes the almanacke of my true date:
What now? How chance thou art return'd so soone
E.Dro. Return'd so soone, rather approach'd too late
The Capon burnes, the Pig falls from the spit;
The clocke hath strucken twelue vpon the bell:
My Mistris made it one vpon my cheeke:
She is so hot because the meate is colde:
The meate is colde, because you come not home:
You come not home, because you haue no stomacke:
You haue no stomacke, having broke your fast:
But we that know what 'tis to fast and pray,
Are penitent for your default to day.
Ant. Stop in your winde sir, tell me this I pray?
Where haue you left the mony that I gaue you.
E.Dro. Oh sixe pence that I had a wensday last,
To pay the Sadler for my Mistris crupper:
The Sadler had it Sir, I kept it not.
Ant. I am not in a sportiue humor now:
Tell me, and dally not, where is the monie?
We being strangers here, how dar'st thou trust
So great a charge from thine owne custodie.
E.Dro. I pray you iest sir as you sit at dinner:
I from my Mistris come to you in post:
If I returne I shall be post indeede.

will scoure your fault vpon my pate:
kes your maw, like mine, should be your cooke,
ike you haue without a messenger.
Come Dromio, come, these iests are out of season, them till a merrier houre then this:
is the gold I gaue in charge to thee?
o. To me sir? why you gaue no gold to me?
. Come on sir knaue, haue done your foolishnes,
l me how thou hast dispos'd thy charge.
o. My charge was but to fetch you fro the Mart
o your house, the Phœnix sir, to dinner;
ris and her sister staies for you.
. Now sir I am a Christian answer me, fore plaine you haue bestow'd my money;
ll breake that merrie sconce of yours
nds on tricks, when I am vndispos'd:
e the thousand Markes thou hadst of me?
o. I haue some markes of yours vpon my pate:
f my Mistris markes vpon my shoulders:
a thousand markes betweene you both.
ld pay your worship those againe,
ere you will not beare them patiently.
thy Mistris markes? what Mistris slaue hast thou?
. Your worships wife, my Mistris at the Phœnix;
doth fast till you come home to dinner:
ies that you will hie you home to dinner.
. What wilt thou flout me thus vnto my face orbid? There take you that sir knaue.
o. What meane you sir, for God sake hold your d you will not sir, Ile take my heeles. (hands:

Exeunt Dromio Ep.

. Vpon my life by some deuise or other,
is'ne is ore-wrought of all my money.
y this towne is full of cosenage:
ble Iuglers that deceiue the eie:
orcking Sorcerers that change the minde:
alling Witches, that deforme the bodie:
ed Cheaters, prating Mountebankes;
anie such like liberties of sinne:
ere so, I will be gone the sooner:
e Centaur to goe seeke this slaue,
y feare my money is not safe. Exit.

Actus Secundus.

er Adriana, wife to Antipholis Sereptus, with Luciana her Sister.

. Neither my husband nor the slaue return'd, such haste I sent to seeke his Master?
arum it is euen a clocke.
Perhaps some Merchant hath inuited him,
m the Mart he's somewhere gone to dinner:
sister let vs dine, and neuer fret;
is Master of his libertie:
their Master, and when they see time,
goe or come; if so, be patient Sister.
. Why should their libertie than ours be more?
Because their businesse still lies out adore.
. Looke when I serue him so, he takes it thus.
. Oh, know he is the bridle of your will.
. There's none but asses will be bridled so.

Luc. Why, headstrong liberty is lasht with woe:
There's nothing situate vnder heauens eye,
But hath his bound in earth, in sea, in skie.
The beasts, the fishes, and the winged fowles
Are their males subiects, and at their controules:
Man more diuine, the Master of all these,
Lord of the wide world, and wilde watry seas,
Indued with intellectuall sence and soules,
Of more preheminence then fish and fowles,
Are masters to their females, and their Lords:
Then let your will attend on their accords.

Adri. This seruitude makes you to keepe vnwed.

Luci. Not this, but troubles of the marriage bed.

Adr. But were you wedded, you would beare some sway

Luc. Ere I learne loue, Ile practise to obey.

Adr. How if your husband start some other where?

Luc. Till he come home againe, I would forbeare.

Adr. Patience vnmou'd, no maruel though she pause,
They can be meeke, that haue no other cause:
A wretched soule bruis'd with aduersitie,
We bid be quiet when we heare it crie.
But were we burdned with like waight of paine,
As much, or more, we should our selues complaine:
So thou that hast no vnkinde mate to greeue thee,
With vrging helpelesse patience would releeue me;
But if thou liue to see like right bereft,
This foole-beg'd patience in thee will be left.

Luci. Well, I will marry one day but to trie:
Heere comes your man, now is your husband nie.

Enter Dromio Eph.

Adr. Say, is your tardie master now at hand?

E. Dro. Nay, he's at too hands with me, and that my two eares can witnesse.

Adr. Say, didst thou speake with him? knowst thou his minde?

E. Dro. I, I, he told his minde vpon mine eare, Beshrew his hand, I scarce could vnderstand it.

Luc. Spake he so doubtfully, thou couldst not feele his meaning.

E. Dro. Nay, he strooke so plainly, I could too well feele his blowes; and withall so doubtfully, that I could scarce vnderstand them.

Adri. But say, I prethee, is he comming home?
It seemes he hath great care to please his wife.

E. Dro. Why Mistresse, sure my Master is horne mad.

Adri. Horne mad, thou villaine?

E. Dro. I meane not Cuckold mad,
But sure he is starke mad:
When I desir'd him to come home to dinner,
He ask'd me for a hundred markes in gold:
'Tis dinner time, quoth I: my gold, quoth he:
Your meat doth burne, quoth I: my gold quoth he:
Will you come, quoth I: my gold, quoth he;
Where is the thousand markes I gaue thee villaine?
The Pigge quoth I, is burn'd: my gold, quoth he
My mistresse, sir, quoth I: hang vp thy Mistresse:
I know not thy mistresse, out on thy mistresse.

Luci. Quoth who?

E. Dr. Quoth my Master, I know quoth he, no house, no wife, no mistresse: so that my arrant due vnto my tongue, I thanke him, I bare home vpon my shoulders: for in conclusion, he did beat me there.

Adri. Go back againe, thou slaue, & fetch him home.

Dro. Goe backe againe, and be new beaten home?
For Gods sake send some other messenger.

Adri. Backe ſlaue, or I will breake thy pate a-croſſe.
Dro. And he will bleſſe y croſſe with other beating:
Betweene you, I ſhall haue a holy head.
Adri. Hence prating peſant, fetch thy Maſter home.
Dro. Am I ſo round with you, as you with me,
That like a foot-ball you doe ſpurne me thus?
You ſpurne me hence, and he will ſpurne me hither,
If I laſt in this ſeruice, you muſt caſe me in leather.
Luci. Fie how impatience lowereth in your face.
Adri. His company muſt do his minions grace,
Whil'ſt I at home ſtarue for a merrie looke:
Hath homelie age th'alluring beauty tooke
From my poore cheeke? then he hath waſted it.
Are my diſcourſes dull? Barren my wit,
If voluble and ſharpe diſcourſe be mar'd,
Vnkindneſſe blunts it more then marble hard.
Doe their gay veſtments his affections baite?
That's not my fault, he's maſter of my ſtate.
What ruines are in me that can be found,
By him not ruin'd? Then is he the ground
Of my defeatures. My decayed faire,
A ſunnie looke of his, would ſoone repaire.
But, too vnruly Deere, he breakes the pale,
And feedes from home; poore I am but his ſtale.
Luci. Selfe-harming Ielouſie; fie beat it hence.
Ad. Vnfeeling fools can with ſuch wrongs diſpence:
I know his eye doth homage other-where,
elſe, what lets it but he would be here?
Siſter, you know he promis'd me a chaine,
Would that alone, a loue he would detaine,
So he would keepe faire quarter with his bed
I ſee the Iewell beſt enamaled
Will looſe his beautie: yet the gold bides ſtill
That others touch, and often touching will.
Where gold and no man that hath a name,
By falſhood and corruption doth it ſhame:
Since that my beautie cannot pleaſe his eie,
Ile weepe (what's left away) and weeping die.
Luci. How manie fond fooles ſerue mad Ielouſie?
Exit.

Enter Antipholis Erroris.

Ant. The gold I gaue to Dromio is laid vp Safe at the Centaur, and the heedfull ſlaue
Is wandred forth in care to ſeeke me out
By computation and mine hoſts report.
I could not ſpeake with Dromio, ſince at firſt
I ſent him from the Mart? ſee here he comes.

Enter Dromio Siracuſia.

How now ſir, is your merrie humor alter'd?
As you loue ſtrokes, ſo ieſt with me againe:
You know no Centaur? you receiu'd no gold?
Your Miſtreſſe ſent to haue me home to dinner?
My houſe was at the Phœnix? Waſt thou mad,
That thus ſo madlie thou did diſdſt anſwere me?
S.Dro. What anſwer ſir? when ſpake I ſuch a word?
E.Ant. Euen now, euen here, not halfe an howre ſince.
S.Dro. I did not ſee you ſince you ſent me hence
Home to the Centaur with the gold you gaue me.
Ant. Villaine, thou didſt denie the golde receit,
And toldſt me of a Miſtreſſe, and a dinner,
For which I hope thou felſt I was diſpleas'd.
S.Dro. I am glad to ſee you in this merrie vaine,
What meanes this ieſt, I pray you Maſter tell me?
Ant. Yea, doſt thou leere & flowt me in the teeth?
Think'ſt y I ieſt? hold, take thou that, & that. Beats Dro.
S.Dr. Hold ſir, for Gods ſake, now your ieſt is earneſt, Vpon what bargaine do you giue it me?
Antiph. Becauſe that I familiarlie ſometimes
Doe vſe you for my foole, and chat with you,
Your ſawcineſſe will ieſt vpon my loue,
And make a Common of my ſerious howres,
When the ſunne ſhines, let fooliſh gnats make ſport,
But creepe in crannies, when he hides his beames:
If you will ieſt with me, know my aſpect,
And faſhion your demeanor to my looker,
Or I will beat this method in your ſconce.
S.Dro. Sconce call you it? ſo you would leaue battering, I had rather haue it a head, and you vſe theſe blowes long, I muſt get a ſconce for my head, and inſconce it to, or elſe I ſhall ſeek my wit in my ſhoulders, but I pray ſir, why am I beaten?
Ant. Doſt thou not know?
S.Dro. Nothing ſir, but that I am beaten.
Ant. Shall I tell you why?
S.Dro. I ſir, and wherefore; for they ſay, euery why hath a wherefore.
Ant. Why firſt for flowting me, and then wherefore, for vrging it the ſecond time to me.
S.Dro. Was there euer anie man thus beaten out of ſeaſon, when in the why and the wherefore, is neither rime nor reaſon. Well ſir, I thanke you.
Ant. Thanke me ſir, for what?
S.Dro. Marry ſir, for this ſomething that you gaue me for nothing.
Ant. Ile make you amends next, to giue you nothing for ſomething. But ſay ſir, is it dinner time?
S.Dro. No ſir, I thinke the meat wants that I haue.
Ant. In good time ſir what's that?
S.Dro. Baſting.
Ant. Well ſir, then 'twill be drie.
S.Dro. If it be ſir, I pray you eat none of it.
Ant. Your reaſon?
S.Dro. Leſt it make you chollericke, and purchaſe me another drie baſting.
Ant. Well ſir, learne to ieſt in good time, there's a time for all things.
S.Dro. I durſt haue denied that before you were ſo chollericke.
Anti. By what rule ſir?
S.Dro. Marry ſir, by a rule as plaine as the plaine bald pate of Father time himſelfe.
Ant. Let's heare it.
S.Dro. There's no time for a man to recouer his haire that growes bald by nature.
Ant. May he not doe it by fine and recouerie?
S.Dro. Yes, to pay a fine for a perewig, and recouer the loſt haire of another man.
Ant. Why, is Time ſuch a niggard of haire, being (as it is) ſo plentifull an excrement?
S.Dro. Becauſe it is a bleſſing that hee beſtowes on beaſts, and what he hath ſcanted them in haire, hee hath giuen them in wit.
Ant. Why, but there's manie a man hath more haire then wit.
S.Dro. Not a man of thoſe but he hath the wit to loſe his haire.
Ant. Why thou didſt conclude hairy men plain dealers without wit.
S.Dro. The plainer dealer, the ſooner loſt; yet he looſeth it in a kinde of iollitie.
An. For what reaſon.
S.Dro. For two, and ſound ones too.

An. Nay

. Nay not ſound I pray you.
Dro. Sure ones then.
. Nay, not ſure in a thing falſing.
Dro. Certaine ones then.
. Name them.
Dro. The one to ſaue the money that he ſpends in : the other, that at dinner they ſhould not drop in rage.
You would all this time haue proou'd, here is no
or all things.
Dro. Marry and did ſir: namely, in no time to rehaire loſt by Nature.
But your reaſon was not ſubſtantiall, why there ime to recouer.
Dro. Thus I mend it: Time himſelfe is bald, and ere to the worlds end, will haue bald followers.
I knew 'twould be a bald concluſion: but ſoft,
ſes vs yonder.

Enter Adriana and Luciana.

Ant. I, I. Antipholus, looke ſtrange and frowne, ome Miſtreſſe hath thy ſweet aſpects:
ot Adriana, nor thy wife.
me was once, when thou vn-vrg'd wouldſt vow,
euer words were muſicke to thine eare,
euer obiect pleaſing in thine eye,
euer touch well welcome to thy hand,
euer meat ſweet-ſauour'd in thy taſte.
e I ſpake, or look'd, or touch'd, or caru'd to thee.
comes it now, my Husband, oh how comes it,
thou art thus eſtranged from thy ſelfe?
ſelfe I call it, being ſtrange to me:
ndiuidable: Incorporate ter then thy deere ſelfes better part.
e not teare away thy ſelfe from me:
now my loue: as eaſie maiſt thou fall
p of water in the breaking gulfe, ke vnmingled thence that drop againe out addition or diminiſhing,
e from me thy ſelfe, and not me too.
deerely would it touch thee to the quicke,
dſt thou but heare I were licentious?
at this body conſecrate to thee,
ffian Luſt ſhould be contaminate?
dſt thou not ſpit at me, and ſpurne at me,
ute the name of husband in my face,
eare the ſtain'd skin of my Harlot brow,
rom my falſe hand cut the wedding ring,
reake it with a deepe-diuorcing vow?
u thou canſt, and therefore ſee thou doe it.
oſſeſt with an adulterate blot,
loud is mingled with the crime of luſt:
we two be one, and thou play falſe,
digeſt the poiſon of thy fleſh,
ſtrumpeted by thy contagion
: then faire league and truce with thy true bed, diſtain'd, thou vndiſhonoured.
ep. Plead you to me faire dame? I know you not:
ſelfe I am but two houres old ange vnto your towne, as to your talke, every word by all my wit being ſcan'd,
s within all, one word to vnderſtand.
. Fie brother, how the world is chang'd with you:
were you wont to vſe my ſiſter thus?
ke for you by Dromio home to dinner.

Ant. By Dromio? Dro. By me.
Adr. By thee, and this thou didſt returne from him,
That he did buffet thee, and in his blowes,
Denied my houſe for his, me for his wife.
Ant. Did you converſe ſir with this gentlewoman:
What is the courſe and drift of your compact?
S. Dro. I ſir? I neuer ſaw her till this time.
Ant. Villaine thou lieſt, for euen her verie words,
Didſt thou deliuer to me on the Mart.
S. Dro. I neuer ſpake with her in all my life.
Ant How can ſhe thus then call vs by our names?
Vnleſſe it be by inſpiration.
Adri. How ill agrees it with your grauitie,
To counterfeit thus groſely with your ſlaue,
Abetting him to thwart me in my moode;
Be it my wrong, you are from me exempt,
But wrong not that wrong with a more contempt.
Come I will faſten on this ſleeue of thine:
Thou art an Elme my husband, I a Vine
Whoſe weakneſſe married to thy ſtranger ſtate,
Makes me with thy ſtrength to communicate:
If ought poſſeſſe thee from me, it is droſſe,
Vſurping Iuie, Brier, or idle Moſſe,
Who all for want of pruning, with intruſion,
Infect thy ſap, and liue on thy confuſion.
Ant. To me ſhee ſpeakes, ſhee moues mee for her theame;
What, was I married to her in my dreame?
Or ſleepe I now, and thinke I heare all this?
What error driues our eies and eares amiſſe?
Vntill I know this ſure vncertaintie,
Ile entertaine the free'd fa'lacie.
Luc. Dromio, goe bid the ſeruants ſpred for dinner.
S. Dro. Oh for my beads, I croſſe me for a ſinner.
This is the Fairie land, oh ſpight of ſpights,
We talke with Goblins, Owles and Sprights;
If we obay them not, this will inſue:
They'll ſucke our breath, or pinch vs blacke and blew.
Luc. Why prat'ſt thou to thy ſelfe, and anſwer'ſt not?
Dromio, thou Dromio, thou ſnaile, thou ſlug, thou ſot.
S. Dro. I am transformed Maſter, am I not?
Ant. I thinke thou art in minde, and ſo am I.
S. Dro. Nay Maſter, both in minde, and in my ſhape.
Ant. Thou haſt thine owne forme
S. Dro. No, I am an Ape.
Luc. If thou art chang'd to ought, 'tis to an Aſſe.
S. Dro. 'Tis true ſhe rides me, and I long for graſſe.
'Tis ſo, I am an Aſſe, elſe it could neuer be,
But I ſhould know her as well as ſhe knowes me.
Adr. Come, come, no longer will I be a foole,
To put the finger in the eie and weepe;
Whil'ſt man and Maſter laughes my woes to ſcorne:
Come ſir to dinner, Dromio keepe the gate:
Husband Ile dine aboue with you to day,
And ſhriue you of a thouſand idle prankes:
Sirra, if any aske you for your Maſter,
Say he dines forth, and let no creature enter:
Come ſiſter, Dromio play the Porter well.
Ant. Am I in earth, in heauen, or in hell?
Sleeping or waking, mad or well adviſde:
Knowne vnto theſe, and to my ſelfe diſguiſde:
Ile ſay as they ſay, and perſeuer ſo:
And in this miſt at all aduentures go.
S. Dro. Maſter, ſhall I be Porter at the gate?
Adr. I, and let none enter, leaſt I breake your pate
Luc. Come, come, Antipholus, we dine too late.

Actus Tertius. Scena Prima.

Enter Antipholus of Ephesus, his man Dromio, Angelo the Goldsmith, and Balthasar the Merchant

E.Ant. Good signior Angelo you must excuse vs all,
My wife is shrewish when I keepe not howres;
Say that I lingerd with you at your shop
To see the making of her Carkanet,
And that to morrow you will bring it home.
But here's a villaine that would face me downe
He met me on the Mart, and that I beat him,
And charg'd him with a thousand markes in gold,
And that I did denie my wife and house;
Thou drunkard thou, what didst thou meane by this?

E.Dro. Say what you will sir, but I know what I know,
That you beat me at the Mart I haue your hand to show;
If ỹ skin were parchment, & ỹ blowes you gaue were ink,
Your owne hand-writing would tell you what I thinke.

E.Ant. I thinke thou art an asse.

E.Dro. Marry so it doth appeare
By the wrongs I suffer, and the blowes I beare,
I should kicke being kickt, and being at that passe,
You would keepe from my heeles, and beware of an asse.

E.An. Y'are sad signior Balthazar, pray God our cheer
May answer my good will, and your good welcome here.

Bal. I hold your dainties cheap sir, & your welcom deer.

E.An. Oh signior Balthazar, either at flesh or fish,
A table full of welcome, makes scarce one dainty dish.

Bal. Good meat sir is comon that every churle affords.

Ant. And welcome more common, for thats nothing but words.

Bal. Small cheere and great welcome, makes a merrie feast.

Ant. I, to a niggardly Host, and more sparing guest:
But though my cates be meane, take them in good part,
Better cheere may you haue, but not with better hart.
But soft, my doore is lockt; goe bid them let vs in.

E.Dro. Maud, Briget, Marian, Cisley, Gillian, Ginn.

S.Dro. Mome, Malthorse, Capon, Coxcombe, Idiot, Patch,
Either get thee from the dore, or sit downe at the hatch:
Dost thou conioure for wenches, that ỹ calst for such store,
When one is one too many, goe get thee from the dore.

E.Dro. What patch is made our Porter? my Master stayes in the street.

S.Dro. Let him walke from whence he came, lest hee catch cold on's feet.

E.Ant. Who talks within there? hoa, open the dore.

S.Dro. Right sir, Ile tell you when, and you'll tell me wherefore.

Ant. Wherefore? for my dinner: I haue not din'd to day.

S.Dro. Nor to day here you must not come againe when you may.

Ant. What art thou that keep'st me out from the howse I owe?

S.Dro. The Porter for this time Sir, and my name is Dromio.

E.Dro. O villaine, thou hast stolne both mine office and my name,
The one ne're got me credit, the other mickle blame
If thou hadst beene Dromio to day in my place,
Thou wouldst haue chang'd thy face for a name, or thy name for an asse.

Enter Luce.

Luce. What a coile is there Dromio? who are those at the gate?

E.Dro. Let my Master in Luce.

Luce. Faith no, hee comes too late, and so tell your Master.

E.Dro. O Lord I must laugh, haue at you with a Prouerbe, Shall I set in my staffe.

Luce. Haue at you with another, that's when? can you tell?

S.Dro. If thy name be called Luce, Luce thou hast answer'd him well.

Ant. Doe you heare you minion, you'll let vs in I hope?

Luce. I thought to haue askt you

S.Dro. And you said no

E.Dro. So come helpe, well strooke, there was blow for blow.

Ant. Thou baggage let me in.

Luce. Can you tell for whose sake?

E.Drom. Master, knocke the doore hard,

Luce. Let him knocke till it ake.

Ant. You'll cry for this minion, if I beat the doore downe.

Luce What needs all that, and a paire of stocks in the towne?

Enter Adriana.

Adr. Who is that at the doore ỹ keeps all this noise?

S.Dro. By my troth your towne is troubled with vnruly boies.

Ant. Are you there Wife? you might haue come before.

Adr. Your wife sir knaue? go get you from the dore.

E.Dro. If you went in paine Master, this knaue wold goe sore.

Angelo. Heere is neither cheere sir, nor welcome, we would faine haue either.

Balt. In debating which was best, we shall part with neither.

E.Dro. They stand at the doore, Master, bid them welcome hither

Ant. There is something in the winde, that we cannot get in.

E.Dro. You would say so Master, if your garments were thin.
Your cake here is warme within: you stand here in the cold.
It would make a man mad as a Bucke to be so bought and sold.

Ant. Go fetch me something, Ile break ope the gate.

S.Dro. Breake any breaking here, and Ile breake your knaues pate.

E.Dro. A man may breake a word with you sir, and words are but winde:
I and breake it in your face, so he break it not behinde.

S.Dro. It seemes thou want'st breaking, out vpon thee hinde.

E.Dro. Here's too much out vpon thee, I pray thee let me in.

S.Dro. I, when fowles haue no feathers, and fish haue no fin

Ant Well, Ile breake in: go borrow me a crow.

E.Dro. A crow without feather, Master meane you so?
For

For a fish without a finne, ther's a fowle without a feather,
If a crow help vs in ſires, wee'll plucke a crow together.
Ant. Go, get thee gon, fetch me an iron Crow.
Balth. Haue patience ſir, oh let it not be ſo,
Herein you warre againſt your reputation,
And draw within the compaſſe of ſuſpect
Th'vnuiolated honor of your wife.
Once this your long experience of your wiſedome,
Her ſober vertue, yeares, and modeſtie,
Plead on your part ſome cauſe to you vnknowne;
And doubt not ſir, but ſhe will well excuſe
Why at this time the dores are made againſt you.
Be rul'd by me, depart in patience,
And let vs to the Tyger all to dinner,
And about euening come your ſelfe alone,
To know the reaſon of this ſtrange reſtraint:
If by ſtrong hand you offer to breake in
Now in the ſtirring paſſage of the day,
A vulgar comment will be made of it;
And that ſuppoſed by the common rowt
Againſt your yet vngalled eſtimation
That may with foule intruſion enter in,
And dwell vpon your graue when you are dead;
For ſlander liues vpon ſucceſſion;
For euer hows'd, where it gets poſſeſſion.
Ant. You haue preuail'd, I will depart in quiet,
And in deſpight of mirth meane to be merrie:
I know a wench of excellent diſcourſe,
Prettie and witty; wilde, and yet too gentle;
There will we dine: this woman that I meane
My wife (but I proteſt without deſert)
Hath oftentimes vpbraided me withall:
To her will we to dinner, get you home
And fetch the chaine, by this I know 'tis made,
Bring it I pray you to the Porpentine,
For there's the houſe: That chaine will I beſtow
(Be it for nothing but to ſpight my wife)
Vpon mine hoſteſſe there, good ſir make haſte:
Since mine owne doores refuſe to entertaine me,
Ile knocke elſe-where, to ſee if they'll diſdaine me.
Ang. Ile meet you at that place ſome houre hence.
Ant. Do ſo, this ieſt ſhall coſt me ſome expence.
Exeunt.

Enter Iuliana, with Antipholus of Siracuſa.

Iulia. And may it be that you haue quite forgot
A husbands office? ſhall Antipholus
Euen in the ſpring of Loue, thy Loue-ſprings rot?
Shall loue in buildings grow ſo ruinate?
If you did wed my ſiſter for her wealth,
Then for her wealths-ſake vſe her with more kindneſſe:
Or if you like elſe-where doe it by ſtealth,
Muffle your falſe loue with ſome ſhew of blindneſſe:
Let not my ſiſter read it in your eye:
Be not thy tongue thy owne ſhames Orator:
Looke ſweet, ſpeake faire, become diſloyaltie:
Apparell vice like vertues harbenger:
Beare a faire preſence, though your heart be tainted,
Teach ſinne the carriage of a holy Saint,
Be ſecret falſe: what need ſhe be acquainted?
What ſimple thiefe brags of his owne attaine?
Tis double wrong to truant with your bed,
And let her read it in thy lookes at boord:
Shame hath a baſtard fame, well managed,
Ill deeds is doubled with an euill word:
Alas poore woman, make vs not beleeue
(Being compact of credit) that you loue vs,
Though others haue the arme, ſhew vs the ſleeue
We in your motion turne, and you may moue vs.
Then gentle brother get you in againe;
Comfort my ſiſter, cheere her, call her wife:
'Tis holy ſport to be a little vaine,
When the ſweet breath of flatterie conquers ſtrife.
S. Ant. Sweete Miſtris, what your name is elſe I know not;
Nor by what wonder you do hit of mine:
Leſſe in your knowledge, and your grace you ſhow not,
Then our earths wonder, more then earth diuine.
Teach me deere creature how to thinke and ſpeake:
Lay open to my earthie groſſe conceit:
Smothred in errors, feeble, ſhallow, weake,
The foulded meaning of your words deceit:
Againſt my ſoules pure truth, why labour you,
To make it wander in an vnknowne field?
Are you a god? would you create me new?
Transforme me then, and to your powre Ile yeeld
But if that I am I, then well I know,
Your weeping ſiſter is no wife of mine,
Nor to her bed no homage doe I owe:
Farre more, farre more, to you doe I decline:
Oh traine me not ſweet Mermaide with thy note,
To drowne me in thy ſiſter flood of teares:
Sing Siren for thy ſelfe, and I will dote:
Spread ore the ſiluer waues thy golden haires;
And as a bud Ile take thee, and there lie:
And in that glorious ſuppoſition thinke,
He gaines by death, that hath ſuch meanes to die:
Let Loue being light, be drowned if ſhe ſinke.
Luc. What are you mad, that you doe reaſon ſo?
Ant. Not mad, but mated, how I doe not know.
Luc. It is a fault that ſpringeth from your eie.
Ant. For gazing on your beames faire ſun being by.
Luc. Gaze when you ſhould, and that will cleere your ſight.
Ant. As good to winke ſweet loue, as looke on night.
Luc. Why call you me loue? Call my ſiſter ſo.
Ant. Thy ſiſters ſiſter.
Luc. That's my ſiſter.
Ant. No: it is thy ſelfe, mine owne ſelfes better part:
Mine eies cleere eie, my deere hearts deerer heart;
My food, my fortune, and my ſweet hopes aime;
My ſole earths heauen, and my heauens claime.
Luc. All this my ſiſter is, or elſe ſhould be.
Ant. Call thy ſelfe ſiſter ſweet, for I am thee:
Thee will I loue, and with thee lead my life;
Thou haſt no husband yet, nor I no wife:
Giue me thy hand.
Luc. Oh ſoft ſir, hold you ſtill:
Ile fetch my ſiſter to get her good will. Exit.

Enter Dromio, Siracuſia.

Ant. Why how now Dromio, where run'ſt thou ſo faſt?
S. Dro. Doe you know me ſir? Am I Dromio? Am I your man? Am I my ſelfe?
Ant. Thou art Dromio, thou art my man, thou art thy ſelfe.
Dro. I am an aſſe, I am a womans man, and beſides my ſelfe.
Ant. What womans man? and how beſides thy ſelfe?
Dro. Marrie ſir, beſides my ſelfe, I am due to a woman: One that claimes me, one that haunts me, one that will haue me.
Ant. What

Anti. What elaime laies she to thee?

Dro. Marry sir, such claime as you would lay to your horse, and she would have me as a beast, not that I being a beast she would have me, but that she being a verie beastly creature layes claime to me.

Anti. What is she?

Dro. A very reuerent body: I such a one, as a man may not speake of, without he say sir reuerence. I haue but leane lucke in the match, and yet is she a wondrous fat marriage

Anti. How dost thou meane a fat marriage?

Dro. Marry sir, she's the Kitchin wench, & al grease, and I know not what vse to put her too, but to make a Lampe of her, and run from her by her owne light. I warrant her ragges and the Tallow in them, will burne a Poland Winter: If she liues till doomesday, she'l burne a weeke longer then the whole World

Anti. What complexion is she of?

Dro. Swart like my shoo, but her face nothing like so cleane kept: for why? she sweats a man may goe ouer-shoes in the grime of it.

Anti. That's a fault that water will mend.

Dro. No sir, 'tis in graine, Noahs flood could not do it Anti. What's her name?

Dro. Nell Sir: but her name is three quarters, that's an Ell and three quarters, will not measure her from hip to hip.

Anti. Then she beares some breadth?

Dro. No longer from head to foot, then from hippe to hippe: she is spherically, like a globe: I could find out Countries in her.

Anti. In what part of her body stands Ireland?

Dro. Marry sir in her buttockes, I found it out by the bogges.

Ant. Where Scotland?

Dro. I found it by the barrennesse, hard in the palme of the hand.

Ant. Where France?

Dro. In her forhead, arm'd and reuerted, making warre against her heire.

Ant. Where England?

Dro. I look'd for the chalkie Cliffes, but I could find no whitenesse in them. But I guesse, it stood in her chin by the salt rheume that ranne betweene France, and it.

Ant. Where Spaine?

Dro. Faith I saw it not: but I felt it hot in her breth.

Ant. Where America, the Indies?

Dro. Oh sir, vpon her nose, all ore embellished with Rubies, Carbuncles, Saphires, declining their rich Aspect to the hot breath of Spaine, who sent whole Armadoes of Carrects to be ballast at her nose.

Ant. Where stood Belgia, the Netherlands?

Dro. Oh sir, I did not looke so low. To conclude, this drudge or Diuiner layd claime to mee, call'd mee Dromio, swore I was assur'd to her, told me what priuie markes I had about mee, as the marke of my shoulder, the Mole in my necke, the great Wart on my left arme, that I amaz'd ranne from her as a witch. And I thinke, if my brest had not beene made of faith, and my heart of steele, she had transform'd me to a Curtull dog, & made me turne i'th wheele.

Anti. Go hie thee presently post to the rode,
And if the winde blow any way from shore,
I will not harbour in this Towne to night.
If any Barke put forth, come to the Mart,
Where I will walke till thou returne to me:
If euerie one knowes vs, and we know none,
'Tis time I thinke to trudge, packe, and be gone.

Dro. As from a Beare a man would run for life,
So flie I from her that would be my wife. Exit

Anti. There's none but Witches do inhabite heere,
And therefore 'tis hie time that I were hence:
She that doth call me husband, euen my soule
Doth for a wife abhorre. But her faire sister
Possest with such a gentle soueraigne grace,
Of such inchanting presence and discourse,
Hath almost made me Traitor to my selfe:
But least my selfe be guilty to selfe wrong,
Ile stop mine eares against the Mermaids song

Enter Angelo with the Chaine.

Ang. M^r Antipholus.

Anti. I that's my name.

Ang. I know it well sir, lo here's the chaine,
I thought to haue tane you at the Porpentine,
The chaine vnfinish'd made me stay thus long.

Anti What is your will that I shal do with this?

Ang What please your selfe sir: I haue made it for you.

Anti Made it for me sir, I bespoke it not.

Ang. Not once, nor twice, but twentie times you haue:
Go home with it, and please your Wife withall,
And soone at supper time Ile visit you,
And then receiue my money for the chaine.

Anti. I pray you sir receiue the money now,
For feare you ne're see chaine, nor money more.

Ang. You are a merry man sir, fare you well. Exit.

Anti. What I should thinke of this, I cannot tell
But this I thinke, there's no man is so vaine,
That would refuse so faire an offer'd Chaine
I see a man heere needs not liue by shifts,
When in the streets he meetes such Golden gifts:
Ile to the Mart, and there for Dromio stay,
If any ship put out, then straight away Exit

Actus Quartus. Scæna Prima.

Enter a Merchant, Goldsmith, and an Officer.

Mar. You know since Pentecost the sum is due,
And since I haue not much importun'd you,
Nor now I had not, but that I am bound
To Persia, and want Guilders for my voyage
Therefore make present satisfaction,
Or Ile attach you by this Officer.

Gold. Euen iust the sum that I do owe to you,
Is growing to me by Antipholus,
And in the instant that I met with you,
He had of me a Chaine, at fiue a clocke
I shall receiue the money for the same.
Pleaseth you walke with me downe to his house,
I will discharge my bond, and thanke you too

Enter Antipholus Ephes: Dromio from the Courtezans.

Offi. That labour may you saue: See where he comes.

Ant. While I go to the Goldsmiths house, go thou

And

And buy a rope's end, that will I bestow
Among my wife, and their confederates,
For locking me out of my doores by day:
But soft I see the Goldsmith; get thee gone,
Buy thou a rope, and bring it home to me.

Dro. I buy a thousand pound a yeare, I buy a rope. Exit Dromio

Eph. Ant. A man is well holpe vp that trusts to you,
I promised your presence, and the Chaine,
But neither Chaine nor Goldsmith came to me:
Belike you thought our loue would last too long
If it were chain'd together: and therefore came not.

Gold. Sauing your merrie humor: here's the note
How much your Chaine weighs to the vtmost charect,
The finenesse of the Gold, and chargefull fashion,
Which doth amount to three odde Duckets more
Then I stand debted to this Gentleman,
I pray you see him presently discharg'd,
For he is bound to Sea, and stayes but for it.

Ant. I am not furnish'd with the present money:
Besides I haue some businesse in the towne,
Good Signior take the stranger to my house,
And with you take the Chaine, and bid my wife
Disburse the summe, on the receit thereof,
Perchance I will be there as soone as you.

Gold. Then you will bring the Chaine to her your selfe.

Ant. No beare it with you, least I come not time enough.

Gold. Well sir, I will: Haue you the Chaine about you?

Ant. And if I haue not sir, I hope you haue:
Or else you may returne without your money.

Gold. Nay come I pray you sir, giue me the Chaine:
Both winde and tide stayes for this Gentleman,
And I soo blame haue held him heere too long.

Ant. Good Lord, you vse this dalliance to excuse
Your breach of promise to the Porpentine,
I should haue chid you for not bringing it,
But like a shrew you first begin to brawle.

Mar. The houre steales on, I pray you sir dispatch.

Gold. You heare how he importunes me, the Chaine.

Ant. Why giue it to my wife, and fetch your mony.

Gold. Come, come, you know I gaue it you euen now.
Either send the Chaine, or send me by some token.

Ant. Fie, now you run this humor out of breath,
Come where's the Chaine, I pray you let me see it.

Mar. My businesse cannot brooke this dalliance,
Good sir say, whe'r you answer me, or no:
If not, Ile leaue him to the Officer.

Ant. I answer you? What should I answer you.

Gold. The money that you owe me for the Chaine.

Ant. I owe you none, till I receiue the Chaine.

Gold. You know I gaue it you halfe an houre since.

Ant. You gaue me none, you wrong mee much to say so.

Gold. You wrong me more sir in denying it.
Consider how it stands vpon my credit.

Mar. Well Officer, arrest him at my suite.

Off. I do, and charge you in the Dukes name to obey me.

Gold. This touches me in reputation.
Either content to pay this sum for me,
Or I attach you by this Officer.

Ant. Content to pay thee that I neuer had:
Arrest me foolish fellow if thou dar'st.

Gold. Heere is thy fee, arrest him Officer.
I would not spare my brother in this case,
If he should scorne me so apparantly.

Offic. I do arrest you sir, you heare the suite.

Ant. I do obey thee, till I giue thee baile.
But sirrah, you shall buy this sport as deere,
As all the mettall in your shop will answer.

Gold. Sir, sir, I shall haue Law in Ephesus,
To your notorious shame, I doubt it not.

Enter Dromio Sira. from the Bay.

Dro. Master, there's a Barke of Epidamium,
That stayes but till her Owner comes aboord,
And then sir she bears away. Our fraughtage sir,
I haue conuey'd aboord, and I haue bought
The Oyle, the Balsamum, and Aqua-vitæ.
The ship is in her trim, the merrie winde
Blowes faire from land: they stay for nought at all,
But for their Owner, Master, and your selfe.

Ant. How now? a Madman? Why thou peeuish sheep
What ship of Epidamium stayes for me.

S. Dro. A ship you sent me too, to hier waftage

Ant. Thou drunken slaue, I sent thee for a rope,
And told thee to what purpose, and what end.

S. Dro. You sent me for a ropes end as soone,
You sent me to the Bay sir, for a Barke.

Ant. I will debate this matter at more leisure
And teach your eares to list me with more heede:
To Adriana Villaine hie thee straight:
Giue her this key, and tell her in the Deske
That's couer'd o're with Turkish Tapistrie,
There is a purse of Duckets, let her send it:
Tell her, I am arrested in the streete,
And that shall baile me: hie thee slaue, be gone,
On Officer to prison, till it come. Exeunt

S. Dromio. To Adriana, that is where we din'd,
Where Dowsabell did claime me for her husband,
She is too bigge I hope for me to compasse,
Thither I must, although against my will:
For seruants must their Masters mindes fulfill. Exit

Enter Adriana and Luciana.

Adr. Ah Luciana, did he tempt thee so?
Might'st thou perceiue austerely in his eie,
That he did plead in earnest, yea or no:
Look'd he or red or pale, or sad or merrily?
What obseruation mad'st thou in this case?
Oh, his hearts Meteors tilting in his face.

Luc. First he deni'de you had in him no right.

Adr. He meant he did me none: the more my spight

Luc. Then swore he that he was a stranger heere.

Adr. And true he swore, though yet forsworne hee were.

Luc. Then pleaded I for you.

Adr. And what said he?

Luc. That loue I begg'd for you, he begg'd of me.

Adr. With what perswasion did he tempt thy loue?

Luc. With words, that in an honest suit might moue.
First, he did praise my beautie, then my speech.

Adr. Did'st speake him faire?

Luc. Haue patience I beseech.

Adr. I cannot, nor I will not hold me still,
My tongue, though not my heart, shall haue his will.
He is deformed, crooked, old, and sere,
Ill-fac'd, worse bodied, shapelesse euery where.
Vicious, vngentle, foolish, blunt, vnkinde,

Stigma-

Stigmaticall in making worſe in minde.
Luc. Who would be jealous then of ſuch a one?
No euill loſt is wail'd, when it is gone.
Adr. Ah but I thinke him better then I ſay:
And yet would herein others eies were worſe:
Farre from her neſt the Lapwing cries away;
My heart prayes for him, though my tongue doe curſe.

Enter S. Dromio.

Dro. Here goe: the deske, the purſe, ſweet now make haſte.
Luc. How haſt thou loſt thy breath?
S. Dro. By running faſt.
Adr. Where is thy Maſter Dromio? Is he well?
S. Dro. No, he's in Tartar limbo, worſe then hell:
A diuell in an everlaſting garment hath him;
On whoſe hard heart is button'd vp with ſteele:
A Feind, a Fairie, pittileſſe and ruſſe:
A Wolfe, nay worſe, a fellow all in buſſe.
A back friend, a ſhoulder-clapper, one that countermāds
The paſſages of allies, creekes, and narrow lands:
A hound that runs Counter, and yet draws drifoot well,
One that before the Iudgmēt carries poore ſoules to hel.
Adr. Why man, what is the matter?
S. Dro. I doe not know the matter, hee is reſted on the caſe.
Adr. What is he arreſted? tell me at whoſe ſuite?
S. Dro. I know not at whoſe ſuite he is arreſted well; but is in a ſuite of buffe which reſted him, that can I tell, will you ſend him Miſtris redemption, the monie in his deske.
Adr. Go fetch it Sifter: this I wonder at.
Exit Luciana.
Thus he vnknowne to me ſhould be in debt:
Tell me, was he arreſted on a band?
S. Dro. Not on a band, but on a ſtronger thing:
A chaine, a chaine, doe you not here it ring.
Adria. What, the chaine?
S. Dro. No, no, the bell, 'tis time that I were gone:
It was two ere I left him, and now the clocke ſtrikes one.
Adr. The houres come backe, that did I neuer here.
S. Dro. Oh yes, if any houre meete a Serieant, a turnes backe for verie feare.
Adri. As if time were in debt: how ſondly do'ſt thou reaſon?
S. Dro. Time is a verie bankerout, and owes more then he's worth to ſeaſon.
Nay, he's a theeſe too: haue you not heard men ſay,
That time comes ſtealing on by night and day?
If I be in debt and theft, and a Serieant in the way,
Hath he not reaſon to turne backe an houre in a day?

Enter Luciana.

Adr. Go Dromio, there's the monie, beare it ſtraight,
And bring thy Maſter home immediately.
Come ſiſter, I am preſt downe with conceit:
Conceit, my comfort and my iniurie. Exit.

Enter Antipholus Sirracuſha.

There's not a man I meete but doth ſalute me.
As if I were their well acquainted friend,
And euerie one doth call me by my name:
Some tender monie to me, ſome inuite me;
Some other giue me thankes for kindneſſes;
Some offer me Commodities to buy.
Euen now a tailor cal'd me in his ſhop,
And ſhow'd me Silkes that he had bought for me,
And therewithall tooke meaſure of my body.
Sure theſe are but imaginarie wiles,
And lapland Sorcerers inhabite here.

Enter Dromio Sir.

S. Dro. Maſter, here's the gold you ſent me for: what haue you got the picture of old Adam new apparel'd?
Ant. What gold is this? What Adam do'ſt thou meane?
S. Dro. Not that Adam that kept the Paradiſe: but that Adam that keepes the priſon; hee that goes in the calues-skin, that was kil'd for the Prodigall: hee that came behinde you ſir, like an euill angel, and bid you forſake your libertie.
Ant. I vnderſtand thee not.
S. Dro. No? why 'tis a plaine caſe: he that went like a Baſe-Viole in a caſe of leather; the man ſir, that when gentlemen are tired giues them a ſob, and reſts them: he ſir, that takes pittie on decaied men, and giues them ſuites of durance: he that ſets vp his reſt to doe more exploits with his Mace, then a Morris Pike.
Ant. What thou mean'ſt an officer?
S. Dro. I ſir, the Serieant of the Band: he that brings any man to anſwer it that breakes his Band: one that thinkes a man alwaies going to bed, and ſaies, God giue you good reſt.
Ant. Well ſir, there reſt in your foolerie:
Is there any ſhips puts forth to night? may we be gone?
S. Dro. Why ſir, I brought you word an houre ſince, that the Barke Expedition put forth to night, and then were you hindred by the Serieant to tarry for the Hoy Delay: Here are the angels that you ſent for to deliuer you.
Ant. The fellow is diſtract, and ſo am I,
And here we wander in illuſions:
Some bleſſed power deliuer vs from hence.

Enter a Curtizan.

Cur. Well met, well met, Maſter Antipholus.
I ſee ſir you haue found the Gold-ſmith now.
Is that the chaine you promis'd me to day.
Ant. Sathan auoide, I charge thee tempt me not.
S. Dro. Maſter, is this Miſtris Sathan?
Ant. It is the diuell.
S. Dro. Nay, ſhe is worſe, ſhe is the diuels dam:
And here ſhe comes in the habit of a light wench, and thereof comes, that the wenches ſay God dam me, That's as much to ſay, God make me a light wench: It is written, they appeare to men like angels of light, light is an effect of fire, and fire will burne: ergo, light wenches will burne, come not neere her.
Cur. Your man and you are marueilous merrie ſir.
Will you goe with me, we'll mend our dinner here?
S. Dro. Maſter, if do expect ſpoon-meate, or beſpeake a long ſpoone.
Ant. Why Dromio?
S. Dro. Marrie he muſt haue a long ſpoone that muſt eate with the diuell.
Ant. Auoid thou fiend, what ſeſt thou me of ſup-Thou art, as you are all a ſorcereſſe: (per?
I conſure thee to leaue me, and be gon.
Cur. Giue me the ring of mine you had at dinner,
Or for my Diamond the Chaine you promis'd,
And Ile be gone ſir, and not trouble you.
S. Dro. Some diuels aske but the parings of one nailes, haire, a drop of blood, a pin, a nut, a cherrie-it ſhe more couetous, would haue a chaine: Maſter, and if you giue it her, the diuell will ſhake ne, and fright vs with it.

I pray you ſir my Ring, or elſe the Chaine,
o do not meane to cheate me ſo?
Auant thou witch: Come Dromio let vs go.
. Flie pride ſaies the Pea-cocke, Miſtris that
w. Exit.
Now out of doubt Antipholus is mad,
ld he neuer ſo demeane himſelfe,
e hath of mine worth forty Duckets, he ſame he promis'd me a Chaine,
and other he denies me now:
on that I gather he is mad,
his preſent inſtance of his rage,
tale he told to day at dinner,
ne doores being ſhut againſt his entrance.
a wife acquainted with his fits,
oſe ſhut the doores againſt his way:
is now to hie home to his houſe,
his wife, that being Lunaticke,
d into my houſe, and tooke perforce away. This courſe I fitteſt chooſe, e Duckets is too much to looſe.

Enter Antipholus Epheſ. with a Iailer.

Feare me not man, I will not breake away, hee ere I leaue thee ſo much money
nt thee as I am reſted for.
is in a wayward moode to day,
not lightly truſt the Meſſenger,
ould be attach'd in Epheſus,
'twill ſound harſhly in her eares.

Enter Dromio Eph. with a rope end.

mes my Man, I thinke he brings the monie.
w ſir? Haue you that I ſent you for?
. Here's that I warrant you will pay them all.
But where's the Money?
. Why ſir, I gaue the Monie for the Rope.
Fiue hundred Duckets villaine for a rope?
ro. Ile ſerue you ſir fiue hundred at the rate.
To what end did I bid thee hie thee home?
. To a rope's end ſir, and to that end am I re-

And to that end ſir, I will welcome you.
Good ſir be patient.
. Nay 'tis for me to be patient, I am in adue-

Good now hold thy tongue.
ro. Nay, rather perſwade him to hold his hands.
Thou whoreſon ſenſeleſſe Villaine.
ro. I would I were ſenſeleſſe ſir, that I might your blowes
. Thou art ſenſible in nothing but blowes, and Aſſe.
ro. I am an Aſſe indeede, you may prooue it by eares. I haue ſerued him from the houre of my e to this inſtant, and haue nothing at his hands eruice but blowes. When I am cold, he heates bearing: when I am warme, he cooles me with
: I am wak'd with it when I ſleepe, rais'd with
I ſit, driuen out of doores with it when I goe me, welcom'd home with it when I returne, nay
I beare it on my ſhoulders, as a begger woont her brat:
and I thinke when he hath lam'd me, I ſhall begge with it from doore to doore.

Enter Adriana, Luciana, Courtizan, and a Schoole-maſter, call'd Pinch.

Ant. Come goe along, my wife is comming yonder
E. Dro. Miſtris reſpice finem, reſpect your end, or rather the propheſie like the Parrat, beware the ropes end.
Ant. Wilt thou ſtill talke? Beats Dro.
Curt. How ſay you now? Is not your husband mad?
Adri. His inciuility confirmes no leſſe:
Good Doctor Pinch, you are a Coniurer,
Eſtabliſh him in his true ſence againe,
And I will pleaſe you what you will demand.
Luc. Alas how fiery, and how ſharpe he lookes.
Cur. Marke, how he trembles in his extaſie.
Pinch. Giue me your hand, and let mee feele your pulſe.
Ant. There is my hand, and let it feele your eare.
Pinch. I charge thee Sathan, hous'd within this man,
To yeeld poſſeſſion to my holie prairs,
And to thy ſtate of darkneſſe hie thee ſtraight,
I conjure thee by all the Saints in heauen.
Ant. Peace doting wizard, peace; I am not mad.
Adr. Oh that thou wer't not, poore diſtreſſed ſoule.
Ant. You Minion you, are theſe your Cuſtomers?
Did this Companion with the ſaffron face
Reuell and feaſt it at my houſe to day,
Whil'ſt vpon me the guiltie doores were ſhut,
And I denied to enter in my houſe.
Adr. O husband, God doth know you din'd at home
Where would you had remain'd vntill this time,
Free from theſe ſlanders, and this open ſhame.
Ant. Din'd at home? Thou Villaine, what ſayeſt thou?
Dro. Sir ſooth to ſay, you did not dine at home.
Ant. Were not my doores lockt vp, and I ſhut out?
Dro. Perdie, your doores were lockt, and you ſhut
out.
Ant. And did not ſhe her ſelfe reuile me there?
Dro. Sans Fable, ſhe her ſelfe reuil'd you there.
Ant. Did not her Kitchen maide raile, taunt, and ſcorne me?
Dro. Certes ſhe did, the kitchin veſtall ſcorn'd you.
Ant. And did not I in rage depart from thence?
Dro. In veritie you did, my bones beares witneſſe,
That ſince haue felt the vigor of his rage.
Adr. Is't good to ſooth him in theſe contraries?
Pinch. It is no ſhame, the fellow finds his vaine,
And yeelding to him, humors well his frenſie.
Ant. Thou haſt ſubborn'd the Goldſmith to arreſt mee.
Adr. Alas, I ſent you Monie to redeeme you,
By Dromio heere, who came in haſt for it.
Dro. Monie by me? Heart and good will you might
But ſurely Maſter not a ragge of Monie.
Ant. Went'ſt not thou to her for a purſe of Duckets.
Adri. He came to me, and I deliuer'd it.
Luci. And I am witneſſe with her that ſhe did.
Dro. God and the Rope-maker beare me witneſſe,
That I was ſent for nothing but a rope.
Pinch. Miſtris, both Man and Maſter is poſſeſt,
I know it by their pale and deadly lookes,

They

They muſt be bound and laide in ſome darke roome.
Ant. Say wherefore didſt thou locke me forth to day,
And why doſt thou denie the bagge of gold?
Adr. I did not gentle husband locke thee forth.
Dro. And gentle M^r I receiu'd no gold:
But I confeſſe ſir, that we were lock'd out.
Adr. Diſſembling Villain, thou ſpeak'ſt falſe in both
Ant. Diſſembling harlot, thou art falſe in all,
And art confederate with a damned packe,
To make a loathſome abiect ſcorne of me:
But with theſe nailes, Ile plucke out theſe falſe eyes,
That would behold in me this ſhamefull ſport.

Enter three or foure, and offer to binde him: He ſtrives.

Adr. Oh binde him, binde him, let him not come neere me.
Punch. More company, the fiend is ſtrong within him
Luc. Aye me poore man, how pale and wan he looks.
Ant. What will you murther me, thou Iailor thou?
I am thy priſoner, wilt thou ſuffer them to make a reſcue?
Offi. Maſters let him go: he is my priſoner, and you ſhall not haue him.
Punch. Go binde this man, for he is franticke too.
Adr. What wilt thou do, thou peeuiſh Officer?
Haſt thou delight to ſee a wretched man
Do outrage and diſpleaſure to himſelfe?
Offi. He is my priſoner, if I let him go,
The debt he owes will be requir'd of me.
Adr. I will diſcharge thee ere I go from thee,
Beare me forthwith vnto his Creditor,
And knowing how the debt growes I will pay it.
Good Maſter Doctor ſee him ſafe conuey'd
Home to my houſe, oh moſt vnhappy day.
Ant. Oh moſt vnhappie ſtrumpet.
Dro. Maſter, I am heere entred in bond for you.
Ant. Out on thee Villaine, wherefore doſt thou mad mee?
Dro. Will you be bound for nothing, be mad good Maſter, cry the diuell.
Luc. God helpe poore ſoules, how idlely doe they talke.
Adr. Go beare him hence, ſiſter go you with me:
Say how, whoſe ſuite is he arreſted at?

Exeunt. Manet Offic. Adri. Luci. Courtizan

Offi. One Angelo a Goldſmith, do you know him?
Adr. I know the man: what is the ſumme he owes?
Offi. Two hundred Duckets.
Adr. Say, how growes it due.
Offi. Due for a Chaine your husband had of him.
Adr. He did beſpeake a Chain for me, but had it not.
Cur. When as your husband all in rage to day
Came to my houſe, and tooke away my Ring,
The Ring I ſaw vpon his finger now,
Straight after did I meete him with a Chaine.
Adr. It may be ſo, but I did neuer ſee it.
Come Iailor, bring me where the Goldſmith is,
I long to know the truth hereof at large

Enter Antipholus Sirracuſia with his Rapier drawne, and Dromio Sirac.

Luc. God for thy mercy, they are loose againe.
Adr. And come with naked ſwords,
Let's call more helpe to haue them bound againe.

Exeunt all out.

Offi. Away, they'l kill vs.

Exeunt omnes, as faſt as may be, frighted.

S. Ant. I ſee theſe Witches are afraid of ſwords.
S. Dro. She that would be your wife, now ran from you.
Ant. Come to the Centaur, fetch our ſtuffe from thence:
I long that we were ſafe and ſound aboord.
Dro. Faith ſtay heere this night, they will ſurely do vs no harme: you ſaw they ſpeake vs faire, giue vs gold: me thinkes they are ſuch a gentle Nation, that but for the Mountaine of mad fleſh that claimes marriage of me, I could finde in my heart to ſtay heere ſtill, and turne Witch.
Ant. I will not ſtay to night for all the Towne,
Therefore away, to get our ſtuffe aboord. Exeunt

Actus Quintus. Scœna Prima.

Enter the Merchant and the Goldſmith.

Gold. I am ſorry Sir that I haue hindred you,
But I proteſt he had the Chaine of me,
Though moſt diſhoneſtly he doth denie it.
Mar. How is the man eſteem'd heere in the Citie?
Gold. Of very reuerent reputation ſir,
Of credit infinite, highly belou'd,
Second to none that liues heere in the Citie:
His word might beare my wealth at any time.
Mar Speake ſoftly, yonder as I thinke he walkes.

Enter Antipholus and Dromio againe.

Gold. 'Tis ſo: and that ſelfe chaine about his neeke,
Which he forſwore moſt monſtrouſly to haue.
Good ſir draw neere to me, Ile ſpeake to him:
Signior Antipholus, I wonder much
That you would put me to this ſhame and trouble,
And not without ſome ſcandall to your ſelfe,
With circumſtance and oaths, ſo to denie
This Chaine, which now you weare ſo openly.
Beſide the charge, the ſhame, impriſonment,
You haue done wrong to this my honeſt friend,
Who but for ſtaying on our Controuerſie,
Had hoiſted ſaile, and put to ſea to day:
This Chaine you had of me, can you deny it?
Ant. I thinke I had, I neuer did deny it.
Mar. Yes that you did ſir, and forſwore it too.
Ant. Who heard me to denie it or forſweare it?
Mar. Theſe eares of mine thou knowſt did hear thee:
Fie on thee wretch, 'tis pitty that thou liu'ſt
To walke where any honeſt men reſort.
Ant. Thou art a Villaine to impeach me thus,
Ile proue mine honor, and mine honeſtie
Againſt thee preſently, if thou dar'ſt ſtand:
Mar. I dare and do defie thee for a villaine.

They draw. Enter Adriana, Luciana, Courtezan, & others.

Adr. Hold, hurt him not for God ſake, he is mad,
Some get within him, take his ſword away:
Binde Dromio too, and beare them to my houſe.
S. Dro. Runne maſter run, for Gods ſake take a houſe,
This is ſome Priorie, in, or we are ſpoyl'd.

Exeunt to the Priorie.

Enter

Enter Ladie Abbeſſe

quiet people, wherefore throng you hither?
fetch my more diſtracted husband hence,
e in, that we may binde him faſt,
him home for his recouerie.
knew he was not in his perfect wits.
am ſorry now that I did draw on him.
w long hath this poſſeſſion held the man.
his weeke he hath beene heauie, ſowre ſad, different from the man he was:
afternoone his paſſion
e into extremity of rage.
ath he not loſt much wealth by wrack of ſea,
e deere friend, hath not elſe his eye affection in vnlawfull loue, ailing much in youthfull men,
their eies the liberty of gazing.
theſe ſorrowes is he ſubiect too?
o none of theſe, except it be the laſt,
me loue that drew him oft from home.
u ſhould for that haue reprehended him.
Why ſo I did.
ut not rough enough.
e roughly as my modeſtie would let me
ply in priuate.
nd in aſſemblies too.
but not enough.
was the cauſe of our Conference.
lept not for my vrging it,
e fed not for my vrging it:
as the ſubiect of my Theame:
y I often glanced it:
ell him, it was vilde and bad.
d thereof came it, that the man was mad.
e clamors of a iealous woman,
ee deadly then a mad dogges tooth.
is ſleepes were hindred by thy railing,
f comes it that his head is light.
his meate was ſowre'd with thy vpbraidings,
eales make ill digeſtions,
e raging fire of feauer bred,
a Feauer, but a fit of madneſſe?
his ſports were hindred by thy brables cation barr'd, what doth cauſe
e and doll melancholly,
grim and comfortleſſe diſpaire, heeles a huge infectious troope ongeſtures, and foes to life?
ſport, and life-preſeruing reſt
a'd, would mad or man, or beaſt:
gnorance is then, thy iealous fits ahy husband from the vſe of wits.
e neuer reprehended him but mildely,
ernen'd himſelfe, rough, rude, and wildly,
y voyd theſe rebukes, and anſwer not?
he did betray me to my owne reproofe.
he enter, and lay hold on him.
not a creature enters in my houſe.
en let your ſeruants bring my husband forth
ther: he tooke this place for ſanctuary, priuiledge him from your hands,
brought him to his wits againe,
y labour in affraying it.
will attend my husband, be his nurſe,
Diet his ſickneſſe, for it is my Office,
And will haue no attorney but my ſelfe,
And therefore let me haue him home with me.

Ad. Be patient, for I will not let him ſtirre,
Till I haue vs'd the approoued meanes I haue,
With wholſome ſirrups, drugges, and holy prayers
To make of him a formall man againe:
It is a branch and parcell of mine oath,
A charitable dutie of my order,
Therefore depart, and leaue him heere with me.

Adr. I will not hence, and leaue my husband heere:
And ill it doth beſeeme your holineſſe
To ſeparate the husband and the wife.

Ab. Be quiet and depart, thou ſhalt not haue him.

Luc. Complaine vnto the Duke of this indignity

Adr. Come go, I will fall proſtrate at his feete,
And neuer riſe vntill my teares and prayers
Haue won his grace to come in perſon hither,
And take perforce my husband from the Abbeſſe.

Mar. By this I thinke the Diall points at fiues
Anon I'me ture the Duke himſelfe in perſon
Comes this way to the melancholly vale;
The place of depth, and ſorrie execution,
Behinde the ditches of the Abbey heere.

Gold. Vpon what cauſe?

Mar. To ſee a reuerent Siracuſian Merchant,
Who put vnluckily into this Bay
Againſt the Lawes and Statutes of this Towne,
Beheaded publikely for his offence.

Gold. See where they come, we will beſold his death

Luc. Kneele to the Duke before he paſſe the Abbey.

Enter the Duke of Ephesus, and the Merchant of Siracuse bare head, with the Headſman, & other Officers.

Duke. Yet once againe proclaime it publikely,
If any friend will pay the ſumme for him,
He ſhall not die, ſo much we tender him.

Adr. Iuſtice moſt ſacred Duke againſt the Abbeſſe.

Duke. She is a vertuous and a reuerend Lady,
It cannot be that ſhe hath done thee wrong.

Adr. May it pleaſe your Grace, Antipholus my husband,
Who I made Lord of me, and all I had,
At your important Letters this ill day,
A moſt outragious fit of madneſſe tooke him:
That deſp'rately he hurried through the ſtreete,
With him his bondman, all as mad as he,
Doing diſpleaſure to the Citizens,
By ruſhing in their houſes: bearing thence Rings, Iewels, any thing his rage did like.
Once did I get him bound, and ſent him home,
Whil'ſt to take order for the wrongs I went,
That heere and there his furie had committed.
Anon I wot not, by what ſtrong eſcape
He broke from thoſe that had the guard of him,
And with his mad attendant and himſelfe,
Each one with irefull paſſion, with drawne ſwords
Met vs againe, and madly bent on vs
Chac'd vs away: till raiſing of more aide
We came againe to binde them: then they fled
Into this Abbey, whether we purſu'd them,
And heere the Abbeſſe ſhuts the gates on vs,
And will not ſuffer vs to fetch him out,
Nor ſend him forth, that we may beare him hence.

Therefore moſt gracious Duke with thy command,
Let him be brought forth,and borne hence for helpe.
Duke. Long ſince thy husband ſeru'd me in my wars
And I to thee ingag'd a Princes word,
When thou didſt make him Maſter of thy bed,
To do him all the grace and good I could.
Go ſome of you, knocke at the Abbey gate,
And bid the Lady Abbeſſe come to me:
I will determine this before I ſtirre.

Enter a Meſſenger

Oh Miſtris,Miſtris, ſhift and ſaue your ſelfe,
My Maſter and his man are both broke looſe,
Beaten the Maids a-row, and bound the Doctor,
Whoſe beard they haue ſingd'g off with brands of fire,
And euer as it blaz'd, they threw on him
Great pailes of puddled myre to quench the haire;
My M. preaches patience to him, and the while
His man with Cizers nickes him like a foole:
And ſure (vnleſſe you ſend ſome preſent helpe)
Betweene them they will kill the Conjurer.
Adr. Peace ſoole, thy Maſter and his man are here,
And that is falſe thou doſt report to vs.
Meſſ. Miſtris, vpon my life I tel you true,
I haue not breath'd almoſt ſince I did ſee it.
He cries for you, and vowes if he can take you,
To ſcorch your face, and to disfigure you:

Cry within.

Harke, harke, I heare him Miſtris: flie, be gone.
Duke. Come ſtand by me,feare nothing: guard with Halberds.
Adr. Ay me, it is my husband: witneſſe you,
That he is borne about inuiſible,
Euen now we hous'd him in the Abbey heere.
And now he's there,paſt thought of humane reaſon.

Enter Antipholus, and E. Dromio of Epheſus.

E. Ant. Iuſtice moſt gracious Duke,oh grant me iu- (ſtice, Euen for the ſeruice that long ſince I did thee,
When I beſtrid thee in the warres, and tooke
Deepe ſcarres to ſaue thy life; euen for the blood
That then I loſt for thee, now grant me iuſtice.
Mar.Fat. Vnleſſe the feare of death doth make me dote, I ſee my ſonne Antipholus and Dromio.
E. Ant. Iuſtice(ſweet Prince) againſt ſ Woman there:
She whom thou gau'ſt to me to be my wife;
That hath abuſed and diſhonored me,
Euen in the ſtrength and height of iniurie:
Beyond imagination is the wrong
That ſhe this day hath ſhameleſſe throwne on me.
Duke. Diſcouer how, and thou ſhalt finde me iuſt.
E. Ant. This day (great Duke) ſhe ſhut the doores vpon me,
While ſhe with Harlots feaſted in my houſe.
Duke. A greeuous fault: ſay woman,didſt thou ſo?
Adr. No my good Lord. My ſelfe,he,and my ſiſter,
To day did dine together: ſo befall my ſoule,
As this is falſe he burthens me withall.
Luc. Nere may I looke on day,nor ſleepe on night,
But ſhe tels to your Highneſſe ſimple truth.
Gold. O periur'd woman! They are both forſworne,
In this the Madman iuſtly chargeth them.
E. Ant. My Liege, I am aduiſed what I ſay,
Neither diſturbed with the effect of Wine,
Nor headie-raſh prouoak'd with raging ire,
Albeit my wrongs might make one wiſer mad.
This woman lock'd me out this day from dinner;
That Goldſmith there, were he not pack'd with her,
Could witneſſe it: for he was with me then,
Who parted with me to go fetch a Chaine,
Promiſing to bring it to the Porpentine,
Where Balthaſar and I did dine together.
Our dinner done, and he not comming thither,
I went to ſeeke him. In the ſtreet I met him,
And in his companie that Gentleman
There did this periur'd Goldſmith ſweare me downe,
That I this day of him receiu'd the Chaine,
Which God he knowes, I ſaw not. For the which,
He did arreſt me with an Officer:
I did obey, and ſent my Peſant home
For certaine Ducketa: he with none return'd.
Then fairely I beſpoke the Officer
To go in perſon with me to my houſe.
By th' way, we met my wife, her ſiſter,and a rabble more
Of vilde Confederates. Along with them
They brought one Pinch,a hungry leane-fac'd Villaine;
A meere Anatomie, a Mountebanke,
A thred-bare lugler, and a Fortune-teller,
A needy-hollow-ey'd-ſharpe-looking-wretch;
A liuing dead man. This pernicious ſlaue,
Forſooth tooke on him as a Conjurer:
And gazing in mine eyes, feeling my pulſe,
And with no-face (as 'twere) out-facing me,
Cries out, I was poſſeſt. Then altogether
They fell vpon me, bound me, bore me thence,
And in a darke and dankiſh vault at home
There left me and my man, both bound together,
Till gnawing with my teeth my bonds in ſonder,
I gain'd my freedome; and immediately
Ran hither to your Grace, whom I beſeech
To giue me ample ſatisfaction
For theſe deepe ſhames, and great indignities.
Gold. My Lord, in truth, thus far I witnes with him:
That he din'd not at home, but was lock'd out.
Duke. But had he ſuch a Chaine of thee, or no?
Gold. He had my Lord,and when he ran in heere,
Theſe people ſaw the Chaine about his necke.
Mar. Beſides, I will be ſworne theſe eares of mine,
Heard you confeſſe you had the Chaine of him,
After you firſt forſwore it on the Mart,
And thereupon I drew my ſword on you,
And then you fled into this Abbey heere,
From whence I thinke you are come by Miracle.
E. Ant. I neuer came within theſe Abbey walls,
Nor euer didſt thou draw thy ſword on me:
I neuer ſaw the Chaine, ſo helpe me heauen:
And this is falſe you burthen me withall.
Duke. Why what an intricate impeach is this?
I thinke you all haue drunke of Circes cup:
If heere you hous'd him, heere he would haue bin.
If he were mad, he would not plead ſo coldly:
You ſay he din'd at home, the Goldſmith heere
Denies that ſaying. Sirra, what ſay you?
E. Dro. Sir he din'de with her there,at the Porpentine.
Cur. He did, and from my finger ſnacht that Ring.
E. Ant. Tis true (my Liege) this Ring I had of her.
Duke. Saw'ſt thou him enter at the Abbey heere?
Curt. As ſure (my Liege) as I do ſee your Grace.
Duke. Why this is ſtrange: Go call the Abbeſſe hither.
I thinke you are all mated, or ſtarke mad.

Exit

Exit one to the Abbesse.

Moſt mighty Duke, vouchſafe me ſpeak a word:
I ſee a friend will ſaue my life,
y the ſum that may deliuer me.
. Speake freely Syracuſian what thou wilt.
. Is not your name ſir call'd Antipholus?
not that your bondman Dromio?
Dro. Within this houre I was his bondman ſir,
I thanke him gnaw'd in two my cords,
n I Dromio, and his man, vnbound.
. I am ſure you both of you remember me.
Our ſelues we do remember ſir by you:
ely we were bound as you are now.
e not Pinches patient, are you ſir?
ar. Why looke you ſtrange on me? you know
.
ar. I never ſaw you in my life till now.
h' griefe hath chang'd me ſince you ſaw me laſt,
refoll houres with times deformed hand,
ritten ſtrange defeatures in my face:
me yet, doſt thou not know my voice?
. Neither.
Dromio, not thou?
No truſt me ſir, not I.
I am ſure thou doſt?
romio. I ſir, but I am ſure I do not, and whatſonan denies, you are now bound to beleeue him.
. Not know my voice, oh times extremity ou ſo crack'd and ſplitted my poore tongue
n ſhort yeares, that heere my onely ſonne
s not my ſeeble key of vntun'd cares?
h now this grained face of mine be hid conſuming Winters drizled ſnow, the Conduits of my blood froze vp:
h my night of life ſome memorie:
ſtring lampes ſome fading glimmer left;
deafe eares a little vſe to heare:*
ſe old witneſſes, I cannot erre.
, thou art my ſonne Antipholus.
. I never ſaw my Father in my life.
But ſeuen yeares ſince, in Syracuſe boy now'ſt we parted, but perhaps my ſonne, ham'ſt to acknowledge me in miſerie.
The Duke, and all that know me in the City,
neſſe with me that it is not ſo.
ſaw Syracuſa in my life
. I tell thee Syracuſian, twentie yeares bin Patron to Antipholus, which time, he ne're ſaw Syracuſa:
y age and dangers make thee dote.

Enter the Abbeſſe with Antipholus Sireuſe, and Dromio Sir.

beſſe. Moſt mightie Duke, behold a man much
d.

All gather to ſee them.

. I ſee two husbands, or mine eyes deceiue me
. One of theſe men is genius to the other:
of theſe, which is the naturall man,
hich the ſpirit? Who deciphers them?
romio. I Sir am Dromio, command him away.
rro. I Sir am Dromio, pray let me ſtay.
hat. Egeon art thou not? or elſe his ghoſt.

S. Dromio. On my olde Maſter, who hath bound him heere?

Abb. Who euer bound him, I will loſe his bonds,
And gaine a husband by his liberti e:
Speake olde Egeon, if thou bee'ſt th e man
That hadſt a wife once call'd Æmilia,
That bore thee at a burthen two fa ire ſonnes?
Oh if thou bee'ſt the ſame Egeon, ſpeake:
And ſpeake vnto the ſame Æmilia.

Duke. Why heere begins his Morning ſtorie right:
Theſe two Antipholus, theſe two ſo like,
And theſe two Dromio's, one in ſemblance:
Beſides her vrging of her wracke at ſea,
Theſe are the parents to theſe children,
Which accidentally are met together.

Æ. If I dreame not, thou art Æmilia,
If thou art ſhe, tell me, where is that ſonne
That floated with thee on the fatall rafte.

Abb. By men of Epidamnum, he, and I,
And the twin Dromio, all were taken vp;
But by and by, rude Fiſhermen of Corinth
By force tooke Dromio, and my ſonne from them,
And me they left with thoſe of Epidamnum.
What then became of them, I cannot tell:
I, to this fortune that you ſee mee in.

Duke. Antipholus thou cam'ſt from Corinth firſt.

S. Ant. No ſir, not I, I came from Syracuſe.

Duke. Stay, ſtand apart, I know not which is which.

E. Ant. I came from Corinth my moſt gracious Lord

E. Dro. And I with him.

E. Ant. Brought to this Town by that moſt famous Warriour,
Duke Menaphon, your moſt renowned Vncle.

Adr. Which of you two did dine with me to day?

S. Ant. I, gentle Miſtris.

Adr. And are not you my husband?

E. Ant. No, I ſay nay to that.

S. Ant. And ſo do I, yet did ſhe call me ſo:
And this faire Gentlewoman her ſiſter heere
Did call me brother. What I told you then,
I hope I ſhall haue leiſure to make good,
If this be not a dreame I ſee and heare.

Goldſmith. That is the Chaine ſir, which you had of mee.

S. Ant. I thinke it be ſir, I denie it not.

E. Ant. And you ſir for this Chaine arreſted me.

Gold. I thinke I did ſir, I deny it not.

Adr. I ſent you money ſir to be your baile
By Dromio, but I thinke he brought it not.

E. Dro No, none by me.

S. Ant. This purſe of Duckets I receiu'd from you,
And Dromio my man did bring them me:
I ſee we ſtill did meete each others man,
And I was tane for him, and he for me,
And thereupon theſe errors are aroſe.

E. Ant. Theſe Duckets pawne I for my father heere.

Duke. It ſhall not needs, thy father hath his life.

Cur. Sir I muſt haue that Diamond from you.

E. Ant. There take it, and much thanks for my good cheere.

Abb. Renowned Duke, vouchſafe to take the paines
To go with vs into the Abbey heere
And heare at large diſcourſed all our fortunes
And all that are aſſembled in this place:
That by this ſimpathized one daies error
Haue ſuffer'd wrong. Goe, keepe vs companie.

And

And we ſhall make full ſatisfaction.
Thirtie three yeares haue I but gone in trauaile,
Of you my ſonnes, and till this preſent houre
My heauie burthen are deliuered:
The Duke my husband, and my children both,
And you the Kalenders of their Natiuity,
Go to a Goſſips feaſt, and go with me,
After ſo long greeſe ſuch Natiuitie.

Duke. With all my heart, Ile Goſſip at this feaſt.

Exeunt omnes. Manet the two Dromio's and two Brothers.

S.Dro. Maſt. ſhall I fetch your ſtuffe from ſhipbord?
E.An. Dromio, what ſtuffe of mine haſt thou imbarkt
S.Dro. Your goods that lay at hoſt ſir in the Centaur.
S.Ant. He ſpeakes to me, I am your maſter Dromio,
Come go with vs, we'l looke to that anon,
Embrace thy brother there, reioyce with him. Exit
S.Dro. There is a fat friend at your maſters houſe,
That kitchin'd me for you to day at dinner:
She now ſhall be my ſiſter, not my wife.
E.D. Me thinks you are my glaſſe, & not my brother:
I ſee by you, I am a ſweet-fac'd youth,
Will you walke in to ſee their goſſipping?
S.Dro. Not I ſir, you are my elder.
E.Dro. That's a queſtion, how ſhall we trie it.
S.Dro. We'l draw Cuts for the Signior, till then, lead thou firſt
E.Dro. Nay then thus:
We came into the world like brother and brother:
And now let's go hand in hand, not one before another.

Exeunt

FINIS.

Much adoe about Nothing.

Actus primus, Scena prima.

to Gouernour of Messina, Innogen his wife, He-ghter, and Beatrice his Neece, with a messenger

Leonato.

rame in this Letter, that Don Peter of Arra-
n, comes this night to Messina.
Mess. He is very neere by this : he was not ree Leagues off when I left him ow many Gentlemen haue you lost in this ut few of any sort, and none of name.

victorie is twice it selfe, when the atchieuer
e full numbers : I finde heere, that Don Pe- towed much honor on a yong Florentine, cal-ath deseru'd on his part, and equally remem-n Pedro, he hath borne himselfe beyond the his age, doing in the figure of a Lambe, the ion, he hath indeede better bettred expecta-ou must expect of me to tell you how.

e hath an Vnckle heere in Messina, wil be very
of it.
aue alreadie deliuered him letters, and there uch ioy in him, euen so much, that ioy could selfe modest enough, without a badg of bit-

d he breake out into teares ?
n great measure
kinde ouerflow of kindnesse, there are no fa-en those that are so wash'd, how much beteepe at ioy, then to ioy at weeping?
ray you, is Signior Mountanto return'd from or no ?
know none of that name, Lady, there was
n the armie of any sort.
What is he that you aske for Neece?
My cousin meanes Signior Benedick of Padua
O he's return'd, and as pleasant as euer he was.
e set vp his bils here in Messina, & challeng'd e Flight : and my Vnckles foole reading the subscrib'd for Cupid, and challeng'd him at
. I pray you, how many hath hee kil'd and se warres? But how many hath he kil'd? for romis'd to eate all of his killing.
aith Neece, you taxe Signior Benedicke too hee'l be meet with you, I doubt it not hath done good seruice Lady in these wars.
ou had musty victuall, and he hath holpe to a very valiant Trencher-man, hee hath an tomacke.

Mess. And a good souldier too Lady.
Beat. And a good souldier to a Lady. But what is he to a Lord ?
Mess. A Lord to a Lord, a man to a man, stuft with all honourable vertues.
Beat. It is so indeed, he is no lesse then a stuft man: but for the stuffing well, we are all mortall.
Leon. You must not (sir) mistake my Neece, there is a kind of merry war betwixt Signior Benedick, & her : they neuer meet, but there's a skirmish of wit between them.
Bea. Alas, he gets nothing by that. In our last conflict, foure of his fiue wits went halting off, and now is the whole man gouern'd with one : so that if hee haue wit enough to keepe himselfe warme, let him beare it for a difference betweene himselfe and his horse : For it is all the wealth that he hath left, to be knowne a reasonable creature. Who is his companion now? He hath euery month a new sworne brother.
Mess. I'st possible ?
Beat. Very easily possible : he weares his faith but as the fashion of his hat, it euer changes with ÿ next block.
Mess. I see (Lady) the Gentleman is not in your bookes.
Bea. No, and he were, I would burne my study. But I pray you, who is his companion ? Is there no young squarer now, that will make a voyage with him to the diuell ?
Mess. He is most in the company of the right noble Claudio.
Beat. O Lord, he will hang vpon him like a disease : he is sooner caught then the pestilence, and the taker runs presently mad. God helpe the noble Claudio, if hee haue caught the Benedict, it will cost him a thousand pound ere he be cur'd.
Mess. I will hold friends with you Lady.
Bea. Do good friend.
Leo. You'l ne're run mad Neece.
Bea. No, not till a hot Ianuary.
Mess. Don Pedro is approach'd.

Enter don Pedro, Claudio, Benedicke, Balthasar, and Iohn the bastard.

Pedro. Good Signior Leonato, you are come to meet your trouble : the fashion of the world is to auoid cost, and you encounter it.
Leon. Neuer came trouble to my house in the likenesse of your Grace : for trouble being gone, comfort should remaine : but when you depart from me, sorrow abides, and happinesse takes his leaue.

Pedro. You embrace your charge too willingly: I thinke this is your daughter.

Leonato. Her mother hath many times told me ſo.

Bened. Were you in doubt that you askt her?

Leonato. Signior Benedicke, no, for then were you a childe.

Pedro. You haue it full Benedicke, we may gheſſe by this, what you are, being a man, truely the Lady fathers her ſelfe: be happie Lady, for you are like an honorable father.

Ben. If Signior Leonato be her father, ſhe would not haue his head on her ſhoulders for al Meſſina, as like him as ſhe is.

Beat. I wonder that you will ſtill be talking, Signior Benedicke, no body markes you.

Ben. What my deere Ladie Diſdaine! are you yet liuing?

Beat. Is it poſſible Diſdaine ſhould die, while ſhee hath ſuch meete foode to feede it, as Signior Benedicke? Curteſie it ſelfe muſt conuert to Diſdaine, if you come in her preſence.

Bene. Then is curteſie a turne-coate, but it is certaine I am loued of all Ladies, onely you excepted: and I would I could finde in my heart that I had not a hard heart, for truely I loue none.

Beat. A deere happineſſe to women, they would elſe haue beene troubled with a pernitious Suter, I thanke God and my cold blood, I am of your humour for that, I had rather heare my Dog barke at a Crow, than a man ſweare he loues me.

Bene. God keepe your Ladiſhip ſtill in that minde, ſo ſome Gentleman or other ſhall ſcape a predeſtinate ſcratcht face.

Beat. Scratching could not make it worſe, and 'twere ſuch a face as yours were.

Bene. Well, you are a rare Parrat teacher.

Beat. A bird of my tongue, is better than a beaſt of your.

Ben. I would my horſe had the ſpeed of your tongue, and ſo good a continuer, but keepe your way a Gods name, I haue done.

Beat. You alwaies end with a Iades tricke, I know you of old.

Pedro. This is the ſumme of all: Leonato, ſignior Claudio, and ſignior Benedicke; my deere friend Leonato, hath inuited you all, I tell him we ſhall ſtay here, at the leaſt a moneth, and he heartily praies ſome occaſion may detaine vs longer: I dare ſweare hee is no hypocrite, but praies from his heart.

Leon. If you ſweare, my Lord, you ſhall not be forſworne, let mee bid you welcome, my Lord, being reconciled to the Prince your brother: I owe you all duetie.

Iohn. I thanke you, I am not of many words, but I thanke you.

Leon. Pleaſe it your grace leade on?

Pedro. Your hand Leonato, we will goe together.

Exeunt. Manet Benedicke and Claudio.

Claud. Benedicke, didſt thou note the daughter of ſignior Leonato?

Bene. I noted her not, but I lookt on her.

Claud. Is ſhe not a modeſt yong Ladie?

Bene. Doe you queſtion me as an honeſt man ſhould doe, for my ſimple true iudgement? or would you haue me ſpeake after my cuſtome, as being a profeſſed tyrant to their ſexe?

Claud. No, I pray thee ſpeake in ſober iudgement.

Bene. Why yfaith me thinks ſhee's too low for a hie praiſe, too browne for a faire praiſe, and too little for a great praiſe, onely this commendation I can affoord her, that were ſhee other then ſhe is, ſhe were vnhandſome, and being no other, but as ſhe is, I doe not like her.

Claud. Thou think'ſt I am in ſport, I pray thee tell me truely how thou lik'ſt her.

Bene. Would you buie her, that you enquier after her?

Claud. Can the world buie ſuch a iewell?

Ben. Yea, and a caſe to put it into, but ſpeake you this with a ſad brow? Or doe you play the flowting iacke, to tell vs Cupid is a good Hare-finder, and Vulcan a rare Carpenter: Come, in what key ſhall a man take you to goe in the ſong?

Claud. In mine eie, ſhe is the ſweeteſt Ladie that euer I lookt on.

Bene. I can ſee yet without ſpectaeles, and I ſee no ſuch matter: there's her coſin, and ſhe were not poſſeſt with a furie, exceedes her as much in beautie, as the firſt of Maie doth the laſt of December: but I hope you haue no intent to turne husband, haue you?

Claud. I would ſcarce truſt my ſelfe, though I had ſworne the contrarie, if Hero would be my wife.

Bene. Ist come to this? in faith hath not the world one man but he will weare his cap with ſuſpition? ſhall I neuer ſee a batcheller of three ſcore againe? goe to yfaith, and thou wilt needes thruſt thy necke into a yoke, weare the print of it, and ſigh away ſundaies: looke, don Pedro is returned to ſeeke you.

Enter don Pedro, Iohn the baſtard.

Pedr. What ſecret hath held you here, that you followed not to Leonatoes?

Bened. I would your Grace would conſtraine mee to tell.

Pedro. I charge thee on thy allegeance.

Ben. You heare, Count Claudio, I can be ſecret as a dumbe man, I would haue you thinke ſo (but on my allegiance, marke you this, on my allegiance) hee is in loue, With who? now that is your Graces part: marke how ſhort his anſwere is, with Hero, Leonatoes ſhort daughter.

Claud. If this were ſo, ſo were it vttred.

Bened. Like the old tale, my Lord, it is not ſo, nor 'twas not ſo: but indeede, God forbid it ſhould be ſo.

Claud. If my paſſion change not ſhortly, God forbid it ſhould be otherwiſe.

Pedro. Amen, if you loue her, for the Ladie is verie well worthie.

Claud. You ſpeake this to fetch me in, my Lord.

Pedr. By my troth I ſpeake my thought.

Claud. And in faith, my Lord, I ſpoke mine.

Bened. And by my two faiths and troths, my Lord, I ſpeake mine.

Claud. That I loue her, I feele.

Pedr. That ſhe is worthie, I know.

Bened. That I neither feele how ſhee ſhould be loued, nor know how ſhee ſhould be worthie, is the opinion that fire cannot melt out of me, I will die in it at the ſtake.

Pedr. Thou waſt euer an obſtinate heretique in the deſpight of Beautie.

Claud. And neuer could maintaine his part, but in the force of his will.

Bene. That

woman conceiued me, I thanke her: that ee vp, I likewiſe giue her moſt humble that I will haue a recheate winded in my ing my bugle in an inuiſible baldricke, all ardon me: becauſe I will not do them the ruſt any, I will doe my ſelfe the right to d the fine is, (for the which I may goe the e a Batchellor.
all ſee thee ere I die, looke pale with loue.
h anger, with ſickneſſe, or with hunger, with loue: proue that euer I looſe more ee, then I will get againe with drinking, e eyes with a Ballet-makers penne, and the doore of a brothel-houſe for the ſigne
d.
ll, if euer thou dooſt faſt from this faith,
e a notable argument.
o, hang me in a bottle like a Cat, & ſhoot that hit's me, let him be clapt on the ſhoul-Adam
ll, as time ſhall trie: In time the ſauage
e the yoake.
ſauage bull may, but if euer the ſenſible
g it, pluck off the bulles hornes, and ſet rehead, and let me be vildely painted, and Letters as they write, heere is good horſe em ſignifie vnder my ſigne, here you may he married man.
ie ſhould euer happen, thou wouldſt bee

y, if Cupid haue not ſpent all his Quiuer in wilt quake for this ſhortly.
ake for an earthquake too then.
ll, you will temporize with the houres, in e, good Signior Benedicke, repaire to Leo- nd me to him, and tell him I will not faile
, for indeede he hath made great prepara-ne almoſt matter enough in me forſuch an nd ſo I commit you.

the tuition of God. From my houſe, if I e firſt of July. Your louing friend, Benedict.

mocke not, mocke not: the body of your metime guarded with fragments, and the ne ſlightly baſted on neither, ere you flout further, examine your conſcience, and ſo I
Exit.

Liege, your Highneſſe now may doe me

loue is thine to teach, teach it but how,
it ſee how apt it is to learne ſon that may do thee good.
h Leonato any ſonne my Lord?
childe but Hero, ſhe's his only heire.
eſt her Claudio?
my Lord.
ent onward on this ended action,
ther with a ſouldiers eie,
had a rougher taske in hand
e liking to the name of loue:
return'd, and that warre-thoughts
e places vacant: in their roomes
ing ſoft and delicate deſires,
e more how faire yong Hero,
ther ere I went to warres.

Pedro. Thou wilt be like a louer preſently,
And tire the hearer with a booke of words:
If thou dooſt loue faire Hero, cheriſh it,
And I will breake with her: waſt not to this end,
That thou beganſt to twiſt ſo fine a ſtory?

Claud. How ſweetly doe you miniſter to loue,
That know loues griefe by his complexion!
But leſt my liking might too ſodaine ſeeme,
I would haue ſalu'd it with a longer treatiſe.

Ped. What need ſ bridge much broder then the flood?
The faireſt graunt is the neceſſitie:
Looke what will ſerue, is fit: 'tis once, thou loueſt,
And I will fit thee with the remedie,
I know we ſhall haue reuelling to night,
I will aſſume thy part in ſome diſguiſe,
And tell faire Hero I am Claudio,
And in her boſome Ile vnclaſpe my heart,
And take her hearing priſoner with the force
And ſtrong incounter of my amorous tale:
Then after, to her father will I breake,
And the concluſion is, ſhee ſhall be thine,
In practiſe let vs put it preſently. Exeunt.

Enter Leonato and an old man brother to Leonato.

Leo. How now brother, where is my coſen your ſon: hath he prouided this muſicke?

Old. He is very buſie about it, but brother, I can tell you newes that you yet dreamt not of.

Le. Are they good?

Old. As the euents ſtamps them, but they haue a good couer: they ſhew well outward, the Prince and Count Claudio walking in a thick pleached alley in my orchard, were thus ouer-heard by a man of mine: the Prince diſcouered to Claudio that hee loued my niece your daughter, and meant to acknowledge it this night in a dance, and if hee found her accordant, hee meant to take the preſent time by the top, and inſtantly breake with you of it.

Leo. Hath the fellow any wit that told you this?

Old. A good ſharpe fellow. I will ſend for him, and queſtion him your ſelfe.

Leo. No, no; wee will hold it as a dreame, till it appeare it ſelfe: but I will acquaint my daughter withall, that ſhe may be the better prepared for an anſwer, if peradoenture this bee true: goe you and tell her of it: coſins, you know what you haue to doe, O I cry you mercie friend, goe you with mee and I will vſe your ſkill good coſin haue a care this buſie time. Exeunt

Enter Sir Iohn the Baſtard, and Conrade his companion

Con. What the good yeere my Lord, why are you thus out of meaſure ſad?

Iob. There is no meaſure in the occaſion that breeds therefore the ſadneſſe is without limit.

Con. You ſhould heare reaſon.

Iohn. And when I haue heard it, what bleſſing brin geth it?

Con. If not a preſent remedy, yet a patient ſufferance.

Iob. I wonder that thou (being as thou ſaiſt thou art borne vnder Saturne) goeſt about to apply a morall medicine, to a mortifying miſchiefe: I cannot hide what I am: I muſt bee ſad when I haue cauſe, and ſmile at no mans ieſts, eat when I haue ſtomacke, and waſt for no mans leiſure: ſleepe when I am drowſie, and tend on no mans buſineſſe, laugh when I am merry, and claw no man in his humor.

Con. Yea, but you muſt not make the full ſhow of this, till you may doe it without controllment, you haue of late late ſtood out againſt your brother, and hee hath tane you newly into his grace, where it is impoſſible you ſhould take root, but by the faire weather that you make your ſelfe, it is needful that you frame the ſeaſon for your owne harueſt.

Iohn. I had rather be a canker in a hedge, then a roſe in his grace, and it better fits my blood to be diſdain'd of all, then to faſhion a carriage to rob loue from any: in this (though I cannot be ſaid to be a flattering honeſt man) it muſt not be denied but I am a plaine dealing villaine, I am truſted with a muſſell, and enfranchiſde with a clog, therefore I haue decreed, not to ſing in my cage: if I had my mouth, I would bite: if I had my liberty, I would do my liking: in the meane time, let me be that I am, and ſeeke not to alter me.

Con. Can you make no vſe of your diſcontent?

Iohn. I will make all vſe of it, for I vſe it onely. Who comes here? what newes Borachio?

Enter Borachio.

Bor. I came yonder from a great ſupper, the Prince your brother is royally entertained by Leonato, and I can giue you intelligence of an intended marriage.

Iohn. Will it ſerue for any Modell to build miſchiefe on? What is hee for a foole that betrothes himſelfe to vnquietneſſe?

Bor. Marry it is your brothers right hand.

Iohn. Who, the moſt exquiſite Claudio?

Bor. Euen he.

Iohn. A proper ſquier, and who, and who, which way lookes he?

Bor. Marry on Hero, the daughter and Heire of Leonato.

Iohn. A very forward March-chicke, how came you to this?

Bor. Being entertain'd for a perfumer, as I was ſmoaking a muſty roome, comes me the Prince and Claudio, hand in hand in ſad conference: I whipt behind the Arras, and there heard it agreed vpon, that the Prince ſhould woo Hero for himſelfe, and hauing obtain'd her, giue her to Count Claudio.

Iohn. Come, come, let vs thither, this may proue food to my diſpleaſure, that young ſtart-vp hath all the glorie of my ouerthrow: if I can croſſe him any way, I bleſſe my ſelfe every way, you are both ſure, and will aſſiſt me?

Con. To the death my Lord.

Iohn. Let vs to the great ſupper, their cheere is the greater that I am ſubdued, would the Cooke were of my minde: ſhall we goe proue what's to be done?

Bor. We'll wait vpon your Lordſhip.

Exeunt.

Actus Secundus.

Enter Leonato, his brother, his wife, Hero his daughter, and Beatrice his neece, and a kinſman.

Leonato. Was not Count Iohn here at ſupper?

Brother. I ſaw him not.

Beatrice. How tartly that Gentleman looks, I neuer can ſee him, but I am heart-burn'd an howre after.

Hero. He is of a very melancholy diſpoſition.

Beatrice. Hee were an excellent man that were made iuſt in the mid-way betweene him and Benedicke, the one is too like an image and ſaies nothing, and the other too like my Ladies eldeſt ſonne, euermore tatling.

Leon. Then halfe ſignior Benedicke tongue in Count Iohns mouth, and halfe Count Iohns melancholy in Signior Benedicks face.

Beat. With a good legge, and a good foot vncle, and money enough in his purſe, ſuch a man would winne any woman in the world, if he could get her good will.

Leon. By my troth Neece, thou wilt neuer get thee a husband, if thou be ſo ſhrewd of thy tongue.

Brother. Inſaith ſhee's too curſt.

Beat. Too curſt is more then curſt, I ſhall leſſen Gods ſending that way: for it is ſaid, God ſends a curſt Cow ſhort hornes, but to a Cow too curſt he ſends none.

Leon. So, by being too curſt, God will ſend you no hornes.

Beat. Iuſt, if he ſend me no husband, for the which bleſſing, I am at him vpon my knees every morning and euening: Lord, I could not endure a husband with a beard on his face, I had rather lie in the woollen.

Leonato. You may light vpon a husband that hath no beard.

Beatrice. What ſhould I doe with him? dreſſe him in my apparell, and make him my waiting gentlewoman? he that hath a beard, is more then a youth: and he that hath no beard, is leſſe then a man: and he that is more then a youth, is not for me: and he that is leſſe then a man, I am not for him: therefore I will euen take ſixepence in earneſt of the Berrord, and leade his Apes into hell.

Leon. Well then, goe you into hell.

Beat. No, but to the gate, and there will the Deuill meete me like an old Cuckold with hornes on his head, and ſay get you to heauen Beatrice, get you to heauen, heere's no place for you maids, ſo deliuer I vp my Apes, and away to S. Peter: for the heauens, he ſhowes me where the Batchellers ſit, and there liue we as merry as the day is long.

Brother. Well neece, I truſt you will be rul'd by your father.

Beatrice. Yes faith, it is my coſens dutie to make curſie, and ſay, as it pleaſe you: but yet for all that coſin, let him be handſome fellow, or elſe make an other curſie, and ſay, father, as it pleaſe me.

Leonato. Well neece, I hope to ſee you one day fitted with a husband.

Beatrice. Not till God make men of ſome other mettall then earth, would it not grieue a woman to be ouermaſtred with a peece of valiant duſt? to make account of her life to a clod of waiward marle? no vncle, ile none: Adams ſonnes are my brethren, and truly I hold it a ſinne to match in my kinred.

Leon. Daughter, remember what I told you, if the Prince doe ſolicit you in that kinde, you know your anſwere.

Beatrice. The fault will be in the muſicke coſin, if you be not woo'd in good time: if the Prince be too important, tell him there is meaſure in every thing, and ſo dance out the anſwere, for heare me Hero, wooing, wedding, & repenting, is a Scotch iigge, a meaſure, and a cinquepace: the firſt ſuite is hot and haſty like a Scotch iigge (and full as fantaſticall) the wedding manerly modeſt, (as a meaſure) full of ſtate & anchentry, and then comes repentance, and with his bad legs falls into the cinquepace faſter and faſter, till he ſinkes into his graue.

Leonato.

Leonato. Coſen you apprehend paſſing ſhrewdly.

Beatrice. I haue a good eye vncle, I can ſee a Church by daylight.

Leon. The reuellers are entring brother, make good roome.

Enter Prince, Pedro, Claudio, and Benedicke, and Baltheſar, or dumbe Iohn, Maskers with a drum.

Pedro. Lady, will you walke about with your friend?

Hero. So you walke ſoftly, and looke ſweetly, and ſay nothing, I am yours for the walke, and eſpecially when I walke away

Pedro With me in your company.

Hero. I may ſay ſo when I pleaſe.

Pedro. And when pleaſe you to ſay ſo?

Hero. When I like your fauour, for God defend the Lute ſhould be like the caſe.

Pedro My viſor is Philemons roofe, within the houſe is Loue.

Hero. Why then your viſor ſhould be thatcht.

Pedro. Speake low if you ſpeake Loue.

Bene. Well, I would you did like me

Mar. So would not I for your owne ſake, for I haue many ill qualities.

Bene. Which is one?

Mar. I ſay my prayers aloud.

Bene. I loue you the better, the hearers may cry Amen.

Mar. God match me with a good dancer.

Balt. Amen.

Mar. And God keepe him out of my ſight when the dance is done: anſwer Clarke.

Balt. No more words the Clarke is anſwered.

Vrſula. I know you well enough, you are Signior Antonio.

Anth. At a word, I am not.

Vrſula. I know you by the wagling of your head.

Anth. To tell you true, I counterfet him.

Vrſu. You could neuer doe him ſo ill well, vnleſſe you were the very man: here's his dry hand vp & down, you are he, you are he.

Anth. At a word I am not.

Vrſula. Come, come, doe you thinke I doe not know you by your excellent wit? can vertue hide it ſelfe? goe to, mumme, you are he, graces will appeare, and there's an end.

Beat. Will you not tell me who told you ſo?

Bene. No, you ſhall pardon me.

Beat. Nor will you not tell me who you are?

Bened. Not now.

Beat. That I was diſdainfull, and that I had my good wit out of the hundred merry tales: well, that was Signior Benedicke that ſaid ſo.

Bene. What's he?

Beat. I am ſure you know him well enough.

Bene. Not I, beleeue me.

Beat. Did he neuer make you laugh?

Bene. I pray you what is he?

Beat. Why he is the Princes ieaſter, a very dull foole, only his gift is, in deuiſing impoſſible ſlanders, none but Libertines delight in him, and the commendation is not in his witte, but in his villanie, for he both pleaſeth men and angers them, and then they laugh at him, and beat him: I am ſure he is in the Fleet, I would he had boorded me.

Bene. When I know the Gentleman, Ile tell him what you ſay.

Beat. Do, do, bee'l but breake a comparion or two on me, which peraduenture (not markt, or not laugh'd at) ſtrikes him into melancholly, and then there's a Partridge wing ſaued, for the foole will eate no ſupper that night. We muſt follow the Leaders.

Bene. In euery good thing.

Beat. Nay, if they leade to any ill, I will leaue them at the next turning. Exeunt

Muſicke for the dance.

John Sure my brother is amorous on Hero, and hath withdrawne her father to breake with him about it: the Ladies follow her, and but one viſor remaines.

Borachio. And that is Claudio, I know him by his bearing.

John. Are not you ſignior Benedicke?

Clau. You know me well, I am hee.

John. Signior, you are verie neere my Brother in his loue, he is enamor'd on Hero, I pray you diſſwade him from her, ſhe is no equall for his birth: you may do the part of an honeſt man in it.

Claudio. How know you he loues her?

John. I heard him ſweare his affection.

Bor. So did I too, and he ſwore he would marrie her to night.

John. Come, let vs to the banquet. Exeunt Clau.

Clau. Thus anſwere I in name of Benedicke,
But heare theſe ill newes with the eares of Claudio:
'Tis certaine ſo, the Prince woes for himſelfe:
Friendſhip is conſtant in all other things,
Saue in the Office and affaires of loue:
Therefore all hearts in loue vſe their owne tongues,
Let euerie eye negotiate for it ſelfe,
And truſt no Agent: for beautie is a witch,
Againſt whoſe charmes, faith melteth into blood:
This is an accident of hourely proofe,
Which I miſtruſted not. Farewell therefore Hero.

Enter Benedicke.

Ben. Count Claudio.

Clau. Yea, the ſame.

Ben. Come, will you go with me?

Clau. Whither?

Ben. Euen to the next Willow, about your own buſineſſe, Count. What faſhion will you weare the Garland of? About your necke, like an Vſurers chaine? Or vnder your arme, like a Lieutenants ſcarfe? You muſt weare it one way, for the Prince hath got your Hero.

Clau. I wiſh him ioy of her.

Ben. Why that's ſpoken like an honeſt Drouier, ſo they ſel Bullockes: but did you thinke the Prince wold haue ſerued you thus?

Clau. I pray you leaue me.

Ben. Ho now you ſtrike like the blindman, 'twas the boy that ſtole your meate, and you'l beat the poſt.

Clau. If it will not be, Ile leaue you. Exit

Ben. Alas poore hurt fowle, now will he creepe into ſedges: But that my Ladie Beatrice ſhould know me, & not know me: the Princes foole! Hah? It may be I goe vnder that title, becauſe I am merrie: yea but ſo I am apt to do my ſelfe wrong: I am not ſo reputed, it is the baſe (though bitter) diſpoſition of Beatrice, that putt's the world into her perſon, and ſo giues me out: well, Ile be reuenged as I may.

Enter the Prince.

Pedro. Now Signior, where's the Count, did you ſee him?

Ben

Bene. Troth my Lord, I haue played the part of Lady Fame, I found him heere as melancholy as a Lodge in a Warren, I told him, and I thinke, told him true, that your grace had got the will of this young Lady, and I offered him my company to a willow tree, either to make him a garland, as being forſaken, or to binde him a rod, as being worthy to be whipt.

Pedro. To be whipt, what's his fault?

Bene. The flat tranſgreſſion of a Schoole-boy, who being ouer-ioyed with finding a birds neſt, ſhewes it his companion, and he ſteales it.

Pedro. Wilt thou make a truſt, a tranſgreſſion? the tranſgreſſion is in the ſtealer.

Ben. Yet it had not beene amiſſe the rod had beene made, and the garland too, for the garland he might haue worne himſelfe, and the rod hee might haue beſtowed on you, who (as I take it) haue ſtolne his birds neſt.

Pedro. I will but teach them to ſing, and reſtore them to the owner.

Bene. If their ſinging anſwer your ſaying, by my faith you ſay honeſtly.

Pedro. The Lady Beatrice hath a quarrell to you, the Gentleman that daunſt with her, told her ſhee is much wrong'd by you.

Bene. O ſhe miſuſde me paſt the indurance of a block: an oake but with one greene leafe on it, would haue anſwered her: my very viſor began to aſſume life, and ſcold with her: ſhee told mee, not thinking I had beene my ſelfe, that I was the Princes Jeſter, and that I was duller then a great thaw, hudling jeſt vpon jeſt, with ſuch impoſſible conueiance vpon me, that I ſtood like a man at a marke, with a whole army ſhooting at me: ſhee ſpeakes poynyards, and euery word ſtabbes: if her breath were as terrible as terminations, there were no liuing neere her, ſhe would infect to the north ſtarre: I would not marry her, though ſhe were indowed with all that Adam had left him before he tranſgreſt, ſhe would haue made Hercules haue turned ſpit, yea, and haue cleft his club to make the fire too: come, talke not of her, you ſhall finde her the infernall Ate in good apparell. I would to God ſome ſcholler would coniure her, for certainely while ſhe is heere, a man may liue as quiet in hell, as in a ſanctuary, and people ſinne vpon purpoſe, becauſe they would goe thither, ſo indeed all diſquiet, horror, and perturbation followes her.

Enter Claudio and Beatrice, Leonato, Hero.

Pedro. Looke heere ſhe comes.

Bene. Will your Grace command mee any ſeruice to the worlds end? I will goe on the ſlightſt arrand now to the Antypodes that you can deuiſe to ſend me on: I will fetch you a tooth-picker now from the furtheſt inch of Aſia: bring you the length of Preſter Johns foot: fetch you a hayre off the great Chams beard: doe you any embaſſage to the Pigmies, rather then hould three words conference, with this Harpy: you haue no employment for me?

Pedro. None, but to deſire your good company.

Bene. O God ſir, heeres a diſh I loue not, I cannot indure this Lady tongue. Exit.

Pedr. Come Lady, come, you haue loſt the heart of Signior Benedicke.

Beatr. Indeed my Lord, hee lent it me a while, and I gaue him vſe for it, a double heart for a ſingle one, marry once before he wonne it of mee, with falſe dice, therefore your Grace may well ſay I haue loſt it.

Pedro. You haue put him downe Lady, you haue put him downe.

Beat. So I would not he ſhould do me, my Lord, leſt I ſhould prooue the mother of fooles: I haue brought Count Claudio, whom you ſent me to ſeeke.

Pedro. Why how now Count, wherfore are you ſad?

Claud. Not ſad my Lord.

Pedro. How then? ſicke?

Claud. Neither, my Lord.

Beat. The Count is neither ſad, nor ſicke, nor merry, nor well: but ciuill Count, ciuill as an Orange, and ſomething of a ielous complexion.

Pedro. I faith Lady, I thinke your blaſon to be true, though Ile be ſworne, if hee be ſo, his conceit is falſe: heere Claudio, I haue wooed in thy name, and faire Hero is won, I haue broke with her father, and his good will obtained, name the day of marriage, and God giue thee ioy.

Leona. Count, take of me my daughter, and with her my fortunes: his grace hath made the match, & all grace ſay, Amen to it.

Beatr. Speake Count, tis your Qu,

Claud. Silence is the perfecteſt Herault of Ioy, I were but little happy if I could ſay, how much? Lady, as you are mine, I am yours, I giue away my ſelfe for you, and dote vpon the exchange.

Beat. Speake coſin, or (if you cannot) ſtop his mouth with a kiſſe, and let not him ſpeake neither.

Pedro. Inſaith Lady you haue a merry heart.

Beatr. Yes my Lord I thanke it, poore foole it keepes on the windy ſide of Care, my coſin tells him in his eare that he is in my heart.

Claud. And ſo ſhe doth coſin.

Beat. Good Lord for alliance: thus goes euery one to the world but I, and I am ſun-burn'd, I may ſit in a corner and cry, heigh ho for a husband.

Pedro. Lady Beatrice, I will get you one.

Beat. I would rather haue one of your fathers getting: hath your Grace ne're a brother like you? your father got excellent husbands, if a maid could come by them.

Prince. Will you haue me? Lady.

Beat. No, my Lord, vnleſſe I might haue another for working-daies, your Grace is too coſtly to weare euerie day: but I beſeech your Grace pardon mee, I was borne to ſpeake all mirth, and no matter.

Prince. Your ſilence moſt offends me, and to be merry, beſt becomes you, for out of queſtion, you were born in a merry howre.

Beatr. No ſure my Lord, my Mother cried, but then there was a ſtarre daunſt, and vnder that was I borne: coſins God giue you ioy.

Leonato. Neece, will you looke to thoſe things I told you of?

Beat. I cry you mercy Vncle, by your Graces pardon.

Exit Beatrice.

Prince. By my troth a pleaſant ſpirited Lady.

Leon. There's little of the melancholy element in her my Lord, ſhe is neuer ſad, but when ſhe ſleepes, and not euer ſad then: for I haue heard my daughter ſay, ſhe hath often dreamt of vnhappineſſe, and wakt her ſelfe with laughing.

Pedro. Shee cannot indure to heare tell of a husband.

Leonato. O, by no meanes, ſhe mocks all her wooers out of ſuite.

Prince. She were an excellent wife for Benedick.

Leonato. O Lord, my Lord, if they were but a weeke married, married, they would talke themſelues madde.

Prince. Counte Claudio, when meane you to goe to Church?

Clau. To morrow my Lord, Time goes on crutches, till Loue haue all his rites Leonato. Not till monday, my deare ſonne, which is hence a iuſt ſeuen night, and a time too briefe too, to haue all things anſwer minde.

Prince. Come, you ſhake the head at ſo long a breathing, but I warrant thee Claudio, the time ſhall not goe dully by vs, I will in the interim, vndertake one of Hercules labors, which is, to bring Signior Benedicke and the Lady Beatrice into a mountaine of affection, th'one with th'other, I would faine haue it a match, and I doubt not but to faſhion it, if you three will but miniſter ſuch aſſiſtance as I ſhall giue you direction.

Leonato. My Lord, I am for you, though it coſt mee ten nights watchings.

Claud. And I my Lord.

Prin. And you to gentle Hero?

Hero. I will doe any modeſt office, my Lord, to helpe my coſin to a good husband.

Prin. And Benedick is not the vnhopefulleſt husband that I know: thus farre can I praiſe him, hee is of a noble ſtraine, of approued valour, and confirm'd honeſty, I will teach you how to humour your coſin, that ſhee ſhall fall in loue with Benedicke, and I, with your two helpes, will ſo practiſe on Benedicke, that in deſpight of his quicke wit, and his queaſie ſtomacke, hee ſhall fall in loue with Beatrice: if we can doe this, Cupid is no longer an Archer, his glory ſhall be ours, for we are the onely loue-gods, goe in with me, and I will tell you my drift. Exit.

Enter Iohn and Borachio.

Iohn. It is ſo, the Count Claudio ſhal marry the daughter of Leonato.

Bora. Yes my Lord, but I can croſſe it.

Iohn. Any barre, any croſſe, any impediment, will be medicinable to me, I am ſicke in diſpleaſure to him, and whatſoeuer comes athwart his affection, ranges euenly with mine, how canſt thou croſſe this marriage?

Bor. Not honeſtly my Lord, but ſo couertly, that no diſhoneſty ſhall appeare in me.

Iohn. Shew me breefely how.

Bor. I thinke I told your Lordſhip a yeere ſince, how much I am in the fauour of Margaret, the waiting gentlewoman to Hero.

Iohn. I remember.

Bor. I can at any vnſeaſonable inſtant of the night, appoint her to look out at her Ladies chamber window.

Iohn. What life is in that, to be the death of this marriage?

Bor. The poyſon of that lies in you to temper, goe you to the Prince your brother, ſpare not to tell him, that hee hath wronged his Honor in marrying the renowned Claudio, whoſe eſtimation do you mightily hold vp, to a contaminated ſtale, ſuch a one as Hero.

Iohn. What proofe ſhall I make of that?

Bor. Proofe enough, to miſuſe the Prince, to vexe Claudio, to vndoe Hero, and kill Leonato, looke you for any other iſſue?

Iohn. Onely to deſpight them, I will endeauour any thing.

Bor. Goe then, finde me a meete howre, to draw on Pedro and the Count Claudio alone, tell them that you know that Hero loues me, intend a kinde of zeale both to the Prince and Claudio (as in a loue of your brothers honor who hath made this match) and his friends reputation, who is thus like to be coſen'd with the ſemblance of a maid, that you haue diſcouer'd thus: they will ſcarcely beleeue this without triall: offer them inſtances which ſhall beare no leſſe likelihood, than to ſee mee at her chamber window, heare me call Margaret, Hero; heare Margaret terme me Claudio, and bring them to ſee this the very night before the intended wedding, for in the meane time, I will ſo faſhion the matter, that Hero ſhall be abſent, and there ſhall appeare ſuch ſeeming truths of Heroes diſloyaltie, that iealouſie ſhall be cal'd aſſurance, and all the preparation ouerthrowne.

Iohn. Grow this to what aduerſe iſſue it can, I will put it in practiſe: be cunning in the working this, and thy fee is a thouſand ducates.

Bor. Be thou conſtant in the accuſation, and my cunning ſhall not ſhame me.

Iohn. I will preſentlie goe learne their day of marriage. Exit.

Enter Benedicke alone.

Bene. Boy.

Boy. Signior.

Bene. In my chamber window lies a booke, bring it hither to me in the orchard.

Boy. I am heere already ſir. Exit.

Bene. I know that, but I would haue thee hence, and heere againe. I doe much wonder, that one man ſeeing how much another man is a foole, when he dedicates his behauiours to loue, will after hee hath laught at ſuch ſhallow follies in others, become the argument of his owne ſcorne, by falling in loue, & ſuch a man is Claudio. I haue known when there was no muſicke with him but the drum and the fife, and now had hee rather heare the tabor and the pipe: I haue knowne when he would haue walkt ten mile afoot, to ſee a good armor, and now will he lie ten nights awake carueing the faſhion of a new doblet: he was wont to ſpeake plaine, & to the purpoſe (like an honeſt man & a ſouldier) and now is he turn'd orthography, his words are a very fantaſticall banquet, iuſt ſo many ſtrange diſhes: may I be ſo conuerted, & ſee with theſe eyes? I cannot tell, I thinke not: I will not bee ſworne, but loue may transforme me to an oyſter, but Ile take my oath on it, till he haue made an oyſter of me, he ſhall neuer make me ſuch a foole: one woman is faire, yet I am well: another is wiſe, yet I am well: another vertuous, yet I am well: but till all graces be in one woman, one woman ſhall not come in my grace: rich ſhee ſhall be, that's certaine: wiſe, or Ile none: vertuous, or Ile neuer cheapen her: faire, or Ile neuer looke on her: milde, or come not neere me: Noble, or not for an Angell: of good diſcourſe: an excellent Muſitian, and her haire ſhal be of what colour it pleaſe God, hah! the Prince and Monſieur Loue, I will hide me in the Arbor.

Enter Prince, Leonato, Claudio, and Iacke Wilſon.

Prin. Come, ſhall we heare this muſicke?

Claud. Yes my good Lord: how ſtill the euening is,
As huſht on purpoſe to grace harmonie.

Prin. See you where Benedicke hath hid himſelfe?

Clau. O very well my Lord: the muſicke ended,
Wee'll fit the kid-foxe with a penny worth.

Prince. Come Balthaſar, wee'll heare that ſong again.

Balth. O good my Lord, taxe not ſo bad a voyce,
To ſlander muſicke any more then once.

Prin. It is the witneſſe ſtill of excellency,

To

To slander Musicke any more then once.

Prince. It is the witnesse still of excellencie,
To put a strange face on his owne perfection,
I pray thee sing, and let me woe no more.

Balth. Because you talke of wooing, I will sing,
Since many a wooer doth commence his suit,
To her he thinkes not worthy, yet he wooes,
Yet will he sweare he loues.

Prince. Nay pray thee come,
Or if thou wilt hold longer argument,
Doe it in notes.

Balth. Note this before my notes,
Theres not a note of mine that's worth the noting.

Prince. Why these are very crotchets that he speaks,
Note notes forsooth, and nothing.

Bene. Now diuine aire, now is his soule rauisht, is it not strange that sheepes guts should hale soules out of mens bodies? well, a horne for my money when all's done.

The Song.

Sigh no more Ladies, sigh no more,
Men were deceivers ever,
One foote in Sea, and one on shore,
To one thing constant never,
Then sigh not so, but let them go,
And be you blithe and bonnie,
Converting all your sounds of woe,
Into hey nony nony.

Sing no more ditties, sing no mo,
Of dumps so dull and heavy,
The fraud of men were ever so,
Since summer first was leavy.
Then sigh not so, &c.

Prince. By my troth a good song.

Balth. And an ill singer, my Lord.

Prince. Ha, no, no faith, thou singst well enough for a shift.

Bene. And he had been a dog that should haue howld thus, they would haue hang'd him, and I pray God his bad voyce bode no mischiefe. I had as liefe haue heard the night-raven, come what plague could haue come after it.

Prince. Yea marry, dost thou heare Balthasar? I pray thee get vs some excellent musick: for to morrow night we would haue it at the Lady Heroes chamber window.

Balth. The best I can, my Lord. Exit Balthasar.

Prince. Do so, farewell. Come hither Leonato, what was it you told me of to day, that your Niece Beatrice was in loue with signior Benedicke?

Cla. O I, stalke on, stalke on, the foule sits. I did neuer thinke that Lady would haue loued any man.

Leon. No, nor I neither, but most wonderful, that she should so dote on Signior Benedicke, whom shee hath in all outward behauiours seemed euer to abhorre.

Bene. Is't possible? sits the winde in that corner?

Leo. By my troth my Lord, I cannot tell what to thinke of it, but that she loues him with an inraged affection, it is past the infinite of thought.

Prince. May be she doth but counterfeit.

Claud. Faith like enough.

Leon. O God! counterfeit? there was neuer counterfeit of passion, came so neere the life of passion as she discouers it.

Prince. Why what effects of passion shewes she Claud. Baire the hooke well, this fish will bite.

Leon. What effects my Lord? shee will sit you, you heard my daughter tell you how

Cla. She did indeed.

Prin. How, how I pray you? you amaze me, I would haue thought her spirit had beene inuincible against all assaults of affection.

Leo. I would haue sworne it had my Lord, especially against Benedicke.

Bene. I should thinke this a gull, but that the white-bearded fellow speakes it: knauery cannot sure hide himselfe in such reuerence.

Claud. He hath tane th'infection, hold it vp.

Prince. Hath shee made her affection known to Benedicke?

Leonato. No, and sweares she neuer will, that's her torment.

Claud. 'Tis true indeed, so your daughter saies: shall I, saies she, that haue so oft encountred him with scorne, write to him that I loue him?

Leo. This saies shee now when shee is beginning to write to him, for shee'll be vp twenty times a night, and there will she sit in her smocke, till she haue writ a sheet of paper: my daughter tells vs all.

Cla. Now you take of a sheet of paper, I remember a pretty iest your daughter told vs of Leon. O when she had writ it, & was reading it ouer, she found Benedicke and Beatrice betweene the sheete.

Cla. That..

Leon. O she tore the letter into a thousand halfpence, raild at her self, that she should be so immodest to write, to one that shee knew would flout her: I measure him, saies she, by my owne spirit, for I should flout him if hee writ to mee, yea though I loue him, I should.

Cla. Then downe vpon her knees she falls, weepes, sobs, beates her heart, teares her hayre, prayes, curses, O sweet Benedicke, God giue me patience.

Leon She doth indeed, my daughter saies so, and the extasie hath so much ouerborne her, that my daughter is sometime afeard she will doe a desperate out-rage to her selfe, it is very true.

Prince. It were good that Benedicke knew of it by some other, if she will not discouer it.

Cla. To what end? he would but make a sport of it, and torment the poore Lady worse.

Prin. And he should, it were an almes to hang him, shee's an excellent sweet Lady, and (out of all suspition,) she is vertuous.

Claudio. And she is exceeding wise.

Prince. In euery thing, but in louing Benedicke.

Leon. O my Lord, wisedome and bloud combating in so tender a body, we haue ten proofes to one, that bloud hath the victory, I am sorry for her, as I haue iust cause being her Vncle, and her Guardian.

Prince. I would shee had bestowed this dotage on me, I would haue daft all other respects, and made her halfe my selfe: I pray you tell Benedicke of it, and heare what he will say.

Leon. Were it good thinke you?

Cla. Hero thinkes surely she will die, for she saies she will die, if hee loue her not, and shee will die ere shee make her loue knowne, and she will die if hee woe her, rather than shee will bate one breath of her accustomed crossenesse.

Prin. She doth well, if she should make tender of her loue, loue, 'tis very possible hee'l scorne it, for the man (as you know all) hath a contemptible spirit.

Clau. He is a very proper man.

Pro. He hath indeed a good outward happines.

Clau. 'Fore God, and in my minde very wise.

Pro. He doth indeed shew some sparkes that are like wit.

Leon. And I take him to be valiant.

Prin. As Hector, I assure you, and in the managing of quarrels you may see hee is wise, for either hee auoydes them with great discretion, or undertakes them with a Christian-like feare.

Leon. If hee doe feare God, a must necessarilie keepe peace, if hee breake the peace, hee ought to enter into a quarrell with feare and trembling

Pro. And so will he doe, for the man doth fear God, howsoeuer it seemes not in him, by some large iests hee will make: well, I am sorry for your niece, shall we goe see Benedicke, and tell him of her loue.

Claud. Neuer tell him, my Lord, let her weare it out with good counsell.

Leon. Nay that's impossible, she may weare her heart out first.

Prin. Well, we will heare further of it by your daughter, let it coole the while, I loue Benedicke well, and I could wish he would modestly examine himselfe, to see how much he is vnworthy to haue so good a Lady.

Leon. My Lord, will you walke? dinner is ready.

Clau. If he do not dote on her vpon this, I will neuer trust my expectation.

Pro. Let there be the same Net spread for her, and that must your daughter and her gentlewoman carry: the sport will be, when they hold one an opinion of another dotage, and no such matter, that's the Scene that I would see, which will be merely a dumbe shew: let vs send her to call him into dinner. Exeunt.

Bene. This can be no tricke, the conference was sadly borne, they haue the truth of this from Hero, they seeme to pitie the Lady: it seemes her affections haue the full bent: loue me? why it must be requited: I heare how I am censur'd, they say I will beare my selfe proudly, if I perceiue the loue come from her: they say too, that she will rather die than giue any signe of affection: I did neuer thinke to marry, I must not seeme proud, happy are they that heare their detractions, and can put them to mending: they say the Lady is faire, 'tis a truth, I can bear them witnesse: and vertuous, 'tis so, I cannot reprooue it, and wise, but for louing me, by my troth it is no addition to her witte, nor no great argument of her folly; for I will be horribly in loue with her. I may chance haue some odde quirkes and remnants of witte broken on me, because I haue rail'd so long against marriage: but doth not the appetite alter? a man loues the meat in his youth, that he cannot indure in his age. Shall quips and sentences, and these paper bullets of the braine awe a man from the careere of his humour? No, the world must be peopled. When I said I would die a batcheler, I did not think I should liue till I were maried, here comes Beatrice: by this day, shee's a faire Lady, I doe spie some markes of loue in her.

Enter Beatrice

Beat. Against my will I am sent to bid you come in to dinner.

Bene. Faire Beatrice, I thanke you for your paines.

Beat. I tooke no more paines for those thankes, then you take paines to thanke me, if it had been painefull, I would not haue come.

Bene. You take pleasure then in the message

Beat. Yea iust so much as you may take vpon a knives point, and choake a daw withall: you haue no stomacke signior, fare you well. Exit.

Bene. Ha, against my will I am sent to bid you come into dinner: there's a double meaning in that: I tooke no more paines for those thankes then you tooke paines to thanke me, that's as much as to say, any paines that I take for you is as easie as thankes: if I do not take pitty of her I am a villaine, if I doe not loue her I am a Iew, I will goe get her picture. Exit.

Actus Tertius.

Enter Hero and two Gentlewomen, Margaret, and Vrsula.

Hero. Good Margaret runne thee to the parlour, There shalt thou finde my Cosin Beatrice, Proposing with the Prince and Claudio, Whisper her eare, and tell her I and Vrsula, Walke in the Orchard, and our whole discourse Is all of her, say that thou ouer-heard'st vs, And bid her steale into the pleached bower, Where hony-suckles ripened by the sunne, Forbid the sunne to enter: like fauourites, Made proud by Princes, that aduance their pride, Against that power that bred it, there will she hide her To listen our purpose, this is thy office, Beare thee well in it, and leaue vs alone.

Marg. Ile make her come I warrant you presently.

Hero. Now Vrsula, when Beatrice doth come, As we do trace this alley vp and downe, Our talke must onely be of Benedicke, When I do name him, let it be thy part, To praise him more then euer man did merit, My talke to thee must be how Benedicke Is sicke in loue with Beatrice: of this matter, Is little Cupids crafty arrow made, That onely wounds by heare-say: now begin,

Enter Beatrice.

For looke where Beatrice like a Lapwing runs Close by the ground, to heare our conference.

Vrs. The pleasant'st angling is to see the fish Cut with her golden ores the siluer streame, And greedily deuoure the treacherous baite: So angle we for Beatrice, who euen now, Is couched in the wood-bine coueriure, Feare you not my part of the Dialogue

Hero. Then go we neare her that her eare loose nothing, Of the false sweete baite that we lay for it. No truely Vrsula, she is too disdainfull, I know her spirits are as coy and wilde, As Haggerds of the rocke.

Vrsula. But are you sure, That Benedicke loues Beatrice so intirely?

Hero. So saies the Prince, and my new trothed Lord.

Vrs. And did they bid you tell her of it, Madam?

Hero. They did intreate me to acquaint her of it, But I perswaded them, if they lou'd Benedicke,

To wiſh him wraſtle with affection,
And neuer to let Beatrice know of it.
Vrſula. Why did you ſo, doth not the Gentleman
Deſerue as full as fortunate a bed,
As euer Beatrice ſhall couch vpon?
Hero. O God of loue! I know he doth deſerue,
As much as may be yeelded to a man.
But Nature neuer fram'd a womans heart,
Of prowder ſtuffe then that of Beatrice:
Diſdaine and Scorne ride ſparkling in her eyes,
Miſ-prizing what they looke on, and her wit
Values it ſelfe ſo highly, that to her
All matter elſe ſeemes weake: ſhe cannot loue,
Nor take no ſhape nor proiect of affection,
Shee is ſo ſelfe indeared.
Vrſula. Sure I thinke ſo,
And therefore certainely it were not good
She knew his loue, leſt ſhe make ſport at it.
Hero. Why you ſpeake truth, I neuer yet ſaw man,
How wiſe, how noble, yong, how rarely featur'd,
But ſhe would ſpell him backward: if faire fac'd,
She would ſweare the gentleman ſhould be her ſiſter
If blacke, why Nature drawing of an anticke,
Made a foule blot: if tall, a launce ill headed:
If low, an agot very vildlie cut:
If ſpeaking, why a vane blowne with all windes.
If ſilent, why a blocke moued with none
So turnes ſhe euery man the wrong ſide out,
And neuer giues to Truth and Vertue, that
Which ſimpleneſſe and merit purchaſeth.
Vrſu. Sure, ſure, ſuch carping is not commendable.
Hero. No, not to be ſo odde, and from all faſhions,
As Beatrice is, cannot be commendable,
But who dare tell her ſo? if I ſhould ſpeake,
She would mocke me into ayre, O ſhe would laugh me
Out of my ſelfe, preſſe me to death with wit,
Therefore let Benedicke like couered fire,
Conſume away in ſighes, waſte inwardly:
It were a better death, to die with mockes,
Which is as bad as die with tickling.
Vrſu. Yet tell her of it heare what ſhee will ſay.
Hero. No, rather I will goe to Benedicke,
And counſaile him to fight againſt his paſſion,
And truly Ile deuiſe ſome honeſt ſlanders,
To ſtaine my coſin with, one doth not know,
How much an ill word may impoiſon liking.
Vrſu. O doe not doe your coſin ſuch a wrong,
She cannot be ſo much without true iudgement,
Hauing ſo ſwift and excellent a wit
As ſhe is priſde to haue, as to refuſe
So rare a Gentleman as ſignior Benedicke.
Hero. He is the onely man of Italy,
Alwaies excepted, my deare Claudio.
Vrſu. I pray you be not angry with me, Madame,
Speaking my fancy: Signior Benedicke,
For ſhape, for bearing argument and valour,
Goes formoſt in report through Italy.
Hero. Indeed he hath an excellent good name.
Vrſu. His exceilence did earne it ere he had it:
When are you married Madame?
Hero. Why euerie day to morrow, come goe in,
Ile ſhew thee ſome attires, and haue thy counſell,
Which is the beſt to furniſh me to morrow.
Vrſu. Shee's tane I warrant you,
We haue caught her Madame?
Hero. If it proue ſo, then louing goes by haps,
Some Cupid kills with arrowes, ſome with traps. Exe.
Beat. What fire is in mine eares? can this be true?
Stand I condemn'd for pride and ſcorne ſo much?
Contempt, farewell, and maiden pride, adew,
No glory liues behinde the backe of ſuch.
And Benedicke, loue on, I will requite thee,
Taming my wilde heart to thy louing hand:
If thou doſt loue, my kindneſſe ſhall incite thee
To binde our loues vp in a holy band.
For others ſay thou doſt deſerue, and I Beleeue it better then reportingly. Exit.

Enter Prince, Claudio, Benedicke, and Leonato.

Prince. I doe but ſtay till your marriage be conſummate, and then go I toward Arragon.
Clau. Ile bring you thither my Lord, if you'l vouchſafe me.
Prin. Nay, that would be as great a ſoyle in the new gloſſe of your marriage, as to ſhew a childe his new coat and forbid him to weare it. I will onely bee bold with Benedicke for his companie, for from the crowne of his head, to the ſole of his foot, he is all mirth, he hath twice or thrice cut Cupids bow-ſtring, and the little hang-man dare not ſhoot at him, he hath a heart as ſound as a bell, and his tongue is the clapper, for what his heart thinkes, his tongue ſpeakes.
Bene. Gallants, I am not as I haue bin.
Leo So ſay I, methinkes you are ſadder
Claud. I hope he be in loue.
Prin. Hang him truant, there's no true drop of blood in him to be truly touch't with loue, if he be ſad, he wants money.
Bene. I haue the tooth-ach.
Prin. Draw it.
Bene. Hang it.
Claud. You muſt hang it firſt, and draw it afterwards.
Prin. What? ſigh for the tooth-ach.
Leon. Where is but a humour or a worme.
Bene. Well, euery one cannot maſter a griefe, but hee that has it.
Clau. Yet ſay I, he is in loue.
Prin. There is no appearance of fancie in him, vnleſſe it be a fancy that he hath to ſtrange diſguiſes, as to bee a Dutchman to day, a Frenchman to morrow: vnleſſe hee haue a fancy to this foolery, as it appeares hee hath, hee is no foole for fancy, as you would haue it to appeare he is.
Clau. If he be not in loue with ſome woman, there is no beleeuing old ſignes, a bruſhes hee hat a morning, What ſhould that bode?
Prin. Hath any man ſeene him at the Barbers?
Clau. No, but the Barbers man hath beene ſeen with him, and the olde ornament of his cheeke hath already ſtuft tennis balls.
Leon. Indeed he lookes yonger than hee did, by the loſſe of a beard.
Prin. Nay a rubs himſelfe with Ciuit, can you ſmell him out by that?
Clau. That's as much as to ſay, the ſweet youth's in loue.
Prin. The greateſt note of it is his melancholy
Clau. And when was he wont to waſh his face?
Prin. Yea, or to paint himſelfe? for the which I heare what they ſay of him.
Clau. Nay, but his ieſting ſpirit, which is now crept into a lute-ſtring, and now gouern'd by ſtops

Prince.

Prin. Indeed that tels a heauy tale for him: conclude, he is in loue.

Clau. Nay, but I know who loues him.

Prince. That would I know too, I warrant one that knowes him not.

Clau. Yes, and his ill conditions, and in despight of all, dies for him

Prin. Shee shall be buried with her face vpwards.

Bene. Yet is this no charme for the tooth-ake, old signior, walke aside with mee, I haue studied eight or nine wise words to speake to you, which these hobby-horses must not heare.

Prin. For my life to breake with him about Beatrice.

Clau. 'Tis euen so, Hero and Margaret haue by this played their parts with Beatrice, and then the two Beares will not bite one another when they meete.

Enter Iohn the Bastard.

Bast. My Lord and brother, God saue you.

Prin. Good den brother.

Bast. If your leisure serv'd, I would speake with you.

Prince. In priuate?

Bast. If it please you, yet Count Claudio may heare, for what I would speake of, concernes him.

Prin. What's the matter?

Bast. Meanes your Lordship to be married to morrow?

Prin. You know he does.

Bast. I know not that when he knowes what I know.

Clau. If there be any impediment, I pray you discouer it.

Bast. You may thinke I loue you not, let that appeare hereafter, and aym better at me by that I now will manifest, for my brother (I thinke he holds you well, and in dearenesse of heart) hath holpe to effect your ensuing marriage: surely sute ill spent, and labour ill bestowed.

Prin. Why, what's the matter?

Bastard. I came hither to tell you, and circumstances shortned, (for she hath beene too long a talking of) the Lady is disloyall.

Clau. Who Hero?

Bast. Euen shee, Leonatoes Hero, your Hero, euery mans Hero.

Clau. Disloyall?

Bast. The word is too good to paint out her wickednesse, I could say she were worse, thinke you of a worse title, and I will fit her to it: wonder not till further warrant: goe but with mee to night, you shal see her chamber window entred, euen the night before her wedding day, if you loue her, then to morrow wed her: But it would better fit your honour to change your minde.

Claud. May this be so?

Prince. I will not thinke it.

Bast. If you dare not trust that you see, confesse not that you know: if you will follow mee, I will shew you enough, and when you haue seene more, & heard more, proceed accordingly.

Clau. If I see any thing to night, why I should not marry her to morrow in the congregation, where I should wedde, there will I shame her.

Prin. And as I wooed for thee to obtaine her, I will ioyne with thee to disgrace her.

Bast. I will disparage her no further, till you are my witnesses, beare it coldly but till night, and let the issue shew it selfe

Prin. O day vntowardly turned!

Claud. O mischiefe strangelie thwarting!

Bastard. O plague right well preuented! so will you say, when you haue seene the sequele. Exit.

Enter Dogberry and his compartner with the watch.

Dog. Are you good men and true?

Verg. Yea, or else it were pitty but they should suffer salvation body and soule.

Dogb. Nay, that were a punishment too good for them, if they should haue any allegiance in them, being chosen for the Princes watch.

Verges. Well, giue them their charge, neighbour Dogberry.

Dog. First, who thinke you the most desartlesse man to be Constable?

Watch. 1 Hugh Ote-cake sir, or George Sea-coale, for they can write and reade.

Dogb. Come hither neighbour Sea-coale, God hath blest you with a good name: to be a wel-fauoured man, is the gift of Fortune, but to write and reade, comes by Nature.

Watch 2. Both which Master Constable

Dogb. You haue: I knew it would be your answere: well, for your fauour sir, why giue God thankes, & make no boast of it, and for your writing and reading, let that appeare when there is no need of such vanity, you are thought heere to be the most senslesse and fit man for the Constable of the watch: therefore beare you the lanthorne: this is your charge: You shall comprehend all vagrom men, you are to bid any man stand in the Princes name.

Watch 2. How if a will not stand?

Dogb. Why then take no note of him, but let him go, and presently call the rest of the Watch together, and thanke God you are ridde of a knaue.

Verges. If he will not stand when he is bidden, he is none of the Princes subiects.

Dogb. True, and they are to meddle with none but the Princes subiects: you shall also make no noise in the streetes: for, for the Watch to babble and talke, is most tollerable, and not to be indured.

Watch. We will rather sleepe than talke, wee know what belongs to a Watch.

Dog. Why you speake like an ancient and most quiet watchman, for I cannot see how sleeping should offend: only haue a care that your bills be not stolne: well, you are to call at all the Alehouses, and bid them that are drunke get them to bed.

Watch. How if they will not?

Dogb. Why then let them alone till they are sober, if they make you not then the better answere, you may say, they are not the men you tooke them for.

Watch. Well sir,

Dogb. If you meet a theefe, you may suspect him, by vertue of your office, to be no true man: and for such kinde of men, the lesse you meddle or make with them, why the more is for your honestly.

Watch. If wee know him to be a thiefe, shall wee not lay hands on him.

Dogb. Truly by your office you may, but I think they that touch pitch will be defil'd: the most peaceable way for you, if you doe take a theefe, is, to let him shew himselfe what he is, and steale out of your company.

Ver. You haue bin alwaies cal'd a mereiful man partner.

Dog. Truely I would not hang a dog by my will, much more a man who hath anie honestie in him.

Verges. If you heare a child crie in the night you must call to the nurſe, and bid her ſtill it.

Watch. How if the nurſe be aſleepe and will not heare vs?

Dog. Why then depart in peace, and let the childe wake her with crying, for the ewe that will not heare her Lambe when it baes, will neuer anſwere a calfe when he bleates.

Verges. 'Tis verie true.

Dog. This is the end of the charge: you conſtable are to preſent the Princes owne perſon, if you meete the Prince in the night, you may ſtaie him.

Verges. Nay birladie that I thinke a cannot.

Dog. Fiue ſhillings to one on't with anie man that knowes the Statues, he may ſtaie him, marrie not without the prince be willing, for indeed the watch ought to offend no man, and it is an offence to ſtay a man againſt his will.

Verges. Birladie I thinke it be ſo.

Dog. Ha, ah ha, well maſters good night, and there be anie matter of weight chances, call vp me, keepe your fellowes counſailes, and your owne, and good night, come neighbour.

Watch. Well maſters, we heare our charge, let vs go ſit here vpon the Church bench till two, and then all to bed.

Dog. One word more, honeſt neighbors. I pray you watch about ſignior Leonatoes doore, for the wedding being there to morrow, there is a great coyle to night, adiew, be vigitant I beſeech you. Exeunt.

Enter Borachio and Conrade.

Bor. What, Conrade?

Watch. Peace, ſtir not.

Bor. Conrade I ſay.

Con. Here man, I am at thy elbow.

Bor. Mas and my elbow itcht, I thought there would a ſcabbe follow.

Con. I will owe thee an anſwere for that, and now forward with thy tale.

Bor. Stand thee cloſe then vnder this penthouſe, for it drizzels raine, and I will, like a true drunkard, vtter all to thee.

Watch. Some treaſon maſters, yet ſtand cloſe.

Bor. Therefore know, I haue earned of Don Iohn a thouſand Ducates.

Con. Is it poſſible that anie villanie ſhould be ſo deare?

Bor. Thou ſhould'ſt rather aske if it were poſſible anie villanie ſhould be ſo rich? for when rich villains haue needs of poore ones, poore ones may make what price they will.

Con. I wonder at it.

Bor. That ſhewes thou art vnconfirm'd, thou knoweſt that the faſhion of a doublet, or a hat, or a cloake, is nothing to a man.

Con. Yes, it is apparell.

Bor. I meane the faſhion.

Con. Yes the faſhion is the faſhion.

Bor. Tuſh, I may as well ſay the foole's the foole, but ſeeſt thou not what a deformed theefe this faſhion is?

Watch. I know that deformed, a has bin a vile theefe, this vii. yeares, a goes vp and downe like a gentle man: I remember his name.

Bor. Did'ſt thou not heare ſome bodie?

Con. No, 'twas the vaine on the houſe.

Bor. Seeſt thou not (I ſay) what a deformed theefe this faſhion is, how giddily a turnes about all the Hotblouds, betweene fourteene & fiue & thirtie, ſometimes faſhioning them like Pharaoes ſouldiours in the rechie painting, ſometime like god Bels prieſts in the old Church window, ſometime like the ſhauen Hercules in the ſmircht worm eaten tapeſtrie, where his cod-peece ſeemes as maſſie as his club.

Con. All this I ſee, and ſee that the faſhion weares out more apparrell then the man; but art not thou thy ſelfe giddie with the faſhion too that thou haſt ſhifted out of thy tale into telling me of the faſhion?

Bor. Not ſo neither, but know that I haue to night wooed Margaret the Lady Heroes gentle-woman, by the name of Hero, ſhe leanes me out at her miſtris chamber-window, bids me a thouſand times good night: I tell this tale vildly. I ſhould firſt tell thee how the Prince Claudio and my Maſter planted, and placed, and poſſeſſed by my Maſter Don Iohn, ſaw a far off in the Orchard this amiable incounter.

Con. And thought thy Margaret was Hero?

Bor. Two of them did, the Prince and Claudio, but the diuell my Maſter knew ſhe was Margaret and partly by his oathes, which firſt poſſeſt them, partly by the darke night which did deceiue them, but chiefely, by my villanie, which did confirme any ſlander that Don Iohn had made, away vvent Claudio enraged, ſwore hee vvould meete her as he was apointed next morning at the Temple, and there, before the whole congregation ſhame her with vvhat he ſaw o're night, and ſend her home againe vvithout a husband.

Watch. 1. We charge you in the Princes name ſtand.

Watch. 2. Call vp the right maſter Conſtable, vve haue here recouered the moſt dangerous peece of lechery, that euer vvas knowne in the Commoo-wealth.

Watch. 1. And one Deformed is one of them. I know him, a vveares a locke.

Con. Maſters, maſters.

Watch. 2. Youle be made bring deformed forth I warrant you.

Con. Maſters, neuer ſpeake, vve charge you, let vs obey you to goe vvith vs.

Bor. We are like to proue a goodly commoditie, being taken vp of theſe mens bils.

Con. A commoditie in queſtion I warrant you, come vveele obey you. Exeunt.

Enter Hero, and Margaret, and Vrſula.

Hero. Good Vrſula wake my coſin Beatrice, and deſire her to riſe.

Vrſu. I will Lady.

Her. And bid her come hither.

Vrſ. Well.

Mar. Troth I thinke your other rebato were better.

Hero. No pray thee good Meg, Ile vveare this.

Marg. By my troth's not ſo good, and I vvarrant your coſin vvill ſay ſo.

Hero. My coſin's a foole, and thou art another, Ile vveare none but this.

Mar. I like the new tire vvithin excellently, if the haire vvere a thought browner: and your gowne's a moſt rare faſhion yfaith, I ſaw the Dutcheſſe of Millaine's gowne that they praiſe ſo.

Hero. O that exceedes they ſay.

Mar. By my troth's but a night-gowne in reſpect of yours, cloth a gold and cuts, and lac'd with ſilver, ſet with pearles, downe ſleeues, ſide ſleeues, and ſkirts, round vnderborne with a bleweſh tinſel, but for a fine queint gracefull and excellent faſhion, yours is worth ten on't.

Hero. God

heere's that ſhall driue ſome of them to a non-come, only get the learned writer to ſet downe our excommunication, and meet me at the Iaile. Exeunt.

Actus Quartus.

Enter Prince, Baſtard, Leonato, Frier, Claudio, Benedicke, Hero, and Beatrice.

Leonato. Come Frier Francis, be briefe, onely to the plaine forme of marriage, and you ſhal recount their particular duties afterwards.

Fran. You come hither, my Lord, to marry this Lady.

Clau. No.

Leo. To be married to her: Frier, you come to marrie her.

Frier. Lady, you come hither to be married to this Count.

Hero. I doe.

Frier. If either of you know any inward impediment why you ſhould not be conioyned, I charge you on your ſoules to vtter it.

Claud. Know you any, Hero?

Hero. None my Lord.

Frier. Know you any, Count?

Leon. I dare make his anſwer, None.

Clau. O what men dare do! what men may do! what men daily do!

Bene. How now! interiections? why then, ſome be of laughing, as ha, ha, he.

Clau. Stand thee by Frier, father, by your leaue. Will you with free and vnconſtrained ſoule Giue me this maid your daughter?

Leon. As freely ſonne as God did giue her me.

Clau. And what haue I to giue you back, whoſe worth May counterpoiſe this rich and precious gift?

Prin. Nothing, vnleſſe you render her againe.

Clau. Sweet Prince, you learn me noble thankfulnes: There Leonato, take her backe againe. Giue not this rotten Orenge to your friend, Shee's but the ſigne and ſemblance of her honour: Behold how like a maid ſhe blushes heere! O what authoritie and ſhew of truth Can cunning ſinne couer it ſelfe withall! Comes not that bloud, as modeſt euidence, To witneſſe ſimple Vertue? would you not ſweare All you that ſee her, that ſhe were a maide, By theſe exteriors ſhewes? But ſhe is none: She knowes the heat of a luxurious bed: Her bluſh is guiltineſſe, not modeſtie.

Leonato. What doe you meane, my Lord?

Clau. Not to be married, Not to knit my ſoule to an approued wanton.

Leon. Deere my Lord, if you in your owne proofe, Haue vanquiſht the reſiſtance of her youth, And made defeat of her virginitie. (ther, Clau. I know what you would ſay: if I haue knowne You will ſay, ſhe did imbrace me as a husband, And ſo extenuate the forehand ſinne: No Leonato I neuer tempted her with word too large, But as a brother to his ſiſter, ſhewed Baſhfull ſincerities and comely loue.

Hero. And ſeem'd I euer otherwiſe to you?

Clau. Out on thee ſeeming, I will write againſt it. You ſeeme to me as Diane in her Orbe, As chaſte as is the budde ere it be blowne: But you are more intemperate in your blood, Than Venus, or thoſe pampred animalls, That rage in ſauage ſenſualitie.

Hero. Is my Lord well, that he doth ſpeake ſo wide?

Leon. Sweete Prince, why ſpeake not you?

Prin. What ſhould I ſpeake? I ſtand diſhonour'd that haue gone about, To linke my deare friend to a common ſtale.

Leon. Are theſe things ſpoken, or doe I but dreame?

Baſt. Sir, they are ſpoken, and theſe things are true.

Bene. This lookes not like a nuptiall.

Hero. True, O God!

Clau. Leonato, ſtand I here? Is this the Prince? is this the Princes brother? Is this face Heroes? are our eies our owne?

Leon. All this is ſo, but what of this my Lord?

Clau. Let me but moue one queſtion to your daughter, And by that fatherly and kindly power, (ter, That you haue in her, bid her anſwer truly.

Leo I charge thee doe, as thou art my childe.

Hero. O God defend me how am I beſet, What kinde of catechiſing call you this?

Clau. To make you anſwer truly to your name.

Hero. Is it not Hero? who can blot that name With any iuſt reproach?

Claud. Marry that can Hero, Hero it ſelfe can blot out Heroes vertue. What man was he, talkt with you yeſternight, Out at your window betwixt twelue and one? Now if you are a maid, anſwer to this.

Hero. I talkt with no man at that howre my Lord.

Prince. Why then you are no maiden. Leonato, I am ſorry you muſt heare: vpon mine honor, My ſelfe, my brother, and this grieued Count Did ſee her, heare her, at that howre laſt night, Talke with a ruffian at her chamber window, Who hath indeed moſt like a liberall villaine, Confeſt the vile encounters they haue had A thouſand times in ſecret.

John. Fie, fie, they are not to be named my Lord, Not to be ſpoken of, There is not chaſtitie enough in language, Without offence to vtter them: thus pretty Lady I am ſorry for thy much miſgouernment.

Claud. O Hero! what a Hero hadſt thou beene If halfe thy outward graces had beene placed About thy thoughts and counſailes of thy heart? But fare thee well, moſt foule, moſt faire, farewell Thou pure impiety, and impious puritie, For thee Ile locke vp all the gates of Loue, And on my eie-lids ſhall Conieture hang, To turne all beauty into thoughts of harme, And neuer ſhall it more be gracious.

Leon. Hath no mans dagger heere a point for me?

Beat. Why how now coſin, wherefore ſink you downe?

Baſt. Come, let vs go: theſe things come thus to light, Smother her ſpirits vp.

Bene. How doth the Lady?

Beat. Dead I thinke, helpe vncle,

Hero, why Hero Vncle, Signor Benedicke, Frier.

Leonato. O Fate! take not away thy heauy hand. Death is the faireſt coate for her ſhame That may be wiſht for.

Beat. How

r. How now cosin Hero?
Haue comfort Ladie.
. Dost thou looke vp?
r. Yea, wherefore should she not?
. Wherefore? Why doth not every earthly thing me vpon her? Could she beere denie rie that is printed in her blood?
t liue Hero, do not ope thine eyes:
l I thinke thou wouldst not quickly die,
ht I thy spirits were stronger then thy shames, se would on the reward of reproaches
t thy life Grieu'd I, I had but one?
, for that at frugal Natures frame?
oo much by thee: why had I one?
uer was't thou louelie in my eies?
ad I not with charitable hand
vp a beggars issue at my gates, ncered thus, and mir'd with infamie,
t haue said, no part of it is mine:
ame deriues it selfe from vnknowne loines,
ne, and mine I lou'd, and mine I prais'd, ine that I was proud on mine so much,
my selfe, was to my selfe not mine:
ng of her, why she, O she is falne pit of Inke, that the wide sea drops too few to wash her cleane againe, lk too little, which may season giue
foule tainted flesh.
. Sir, sir, be patient: for my part, I am so attired der, I know not what to say.
. O on my soule my cosin is belied.
. Ladie, were you her bedfellow last night?
. No truly: not although vntill last night,
this twelue month bin her bedfellow.
n. Confirm'd, confirm'd, O that is stronger made h was before barr'd vp with ribs of iron
d the Princes lie, and Claudio lie, lou'd her so, that speaking of her foulnesse,
'd it with teares? Hence from her, let her die.
. Heare me a little, for I haue onely bene silent so and giuen way vnto this course of fortune, by no-f the Ladie, I haue markt.
usand blushing apparitions,
ut into her face, a thousand innocent shames,
gel whitenesse beare away those blushes,
n her eie there hath appear'd a fire me the errors that these Princes hold ft her maiden truth. Call me a foole, not my reading, nor my obseruations,
h with experimental seale doth warrant enure of my booke: trust not my age, nerence, calling, nor diuinitie,
sweet Ladie lye not guiltlesse heere,
some biting error.
. Frier, it cannot be:
feest that all the Grace that she hath left,
t she wil not adde to her damnation,
e of periury, she not denies it:
seek'st thou then to couer with excuse,
which appeares in proper nakednesse?
. Ladie, what man is he you are accus'd of?
r. They know that do accuse me, I know none:
now more of any man aliue
that which maiden modestie doth warrant, ll my former lacke mercy. O my Father,
you that any man with me conuerst,
At houres vnmeete, or that I yesternight
Maintain'd the change of words with any creature,
Refuse me, hate me, torture me to death.
Fri. There is some strange misprision in the Princes.
Ben. Two of them haue the verie bent of honor,
And if their wisedomes be misled in this:
The practise of it liues in Iohn the bastard,
Whose spirits toile in frame of villanies.
Leo. I know not: if they speake but truth of her,
These hands shall teare her: if they wrong her honour,
The proudest of them shall wel heare of it.
Time hath not yet so dried this blood of mine,
Nor age so eate vp my inuention,
Nor Fortune made such hauocke of my meanes,
Nor my bad life reft me so much of friends,
But they shall finde, awak'd in such a kinde,
Both strength of limbe, and policie of minde,
Ability in meanes, and choise of friends,
To quit me of them throughly.
Fri. Pause awhile:
And let my counsell sway you in this case,
Your daughter heere the Princesse (left for dead)
Let her awhile be secretly kept in,
And publish it, that she is dead indeed:
Maintaine a mourning ostentation,
And on your Families old monument,
Hang mournfull Epitaphes, and do all rites,
That appertaine vnto a burialL.
Leon. What shall become of this? What wil this do?
Fri. Marry this wel carried, shall on her behalfe,
Change slander to remorse, that is some good,
But not for that dreame I on this strange course,
But on this trauaile looke for greater birth:
She dying, as it must be so maintain'd,
Vpon the instant that she was accus'd,
Shal be lamented, pitied, and excus'd
Of euery hearer: for it so falls out,
That what we haue, we prize not to the worth,
Whiles we enioy it; but being lack'd and lost,
Why then we racke the value, then we finde
The vertue that possession would not shew vs
Whiles it was ours, so will it fare with Claudio:
When he shal heare she dyed vpon his words,
Th'Idea of her life shal sweetly creepe
Into his study of imagination.
And euery louely Organ of her life,
Shall come apparel'd in more precious habite:
More moouing delicate, and ful of life,
Into the eye and prospect of his soule
Then when she liu'd indeed: then shal he mourne.
If euer Loue had interest in his Liuer,
And wish he had not so accused her:
No, though he thought his accusation true:
Let this be so, and doubt not but successe
Wil fashion the euent in better shape,
Then I can lay it downe in likelihood.
But if all ayme but this be leuelld false,
The supposition of the Ladies death,
Will quench the wonder of her infamie.
And if it sort not well, you may conceale her,
As best befits her wounded reputation,
In some reclusiue and religious life,
Out of all eyes, tongues, mindes and iniuries.
Bene. Signior Leonato, let the Frier aduise you,
And though you know my inwardnesse and loue
Is very much vnto the Prince and Claudio.

Yet

Yet, by mine honor, I will deale in this,
As secretely and iuſtlie, as your ſoule
Should with your bodie.

Leon. Being that I flow in greefe,
The ſmalleſt twine may lead me.

Frier. 'Tis well conſented, preſently away,
For to ſtrange ſores, ſtrangely they ſtraine the cure.
Come Lady, die to liue, this wedding day
Perhaps is but prolong'd, haue patience & endure. Exit

Bene. Lady Beatrice, haue you wept all this while?

Beat. Yea, and I will weepe a while longer.

Bene. I will not deſire that.

Beat. You haue no reaſon, I doe it freely.

Bene. Surelie I do beleeue your fair coſin is wrong'd.

Beat. Ah, how much might the man deſerue of mee that would right her?

Bene. Is there any way to ſhew ſuch friendſhip?

Beat. A verie euen way, but no ſuch friend.

Bene. May a man doe it?

Beat. It is a mans office, but not yours.

Bene. I doe loue nothing in the world ſo well as you, is not that ſtrange?

Beat. As ſtrange as the thing I know not, it were as poſſible for me to ſay, I loued nothing ſo well as you, but beleeue me not, and yet I lie not, I confeſſe nothing, nor I deny nothing, I am ſorry for my couſin.

Bene. By my ſword Beatrice thou lou'ſt me.

Beat. Doe not ſweare by it and eat it.

Bene. I will ſweare by it that you loue mee, and I will make him eat it that ſayes I loue not you.

Beat. Will you not eat your word?

Bene. With no ſawce that can be deuiſed to it, I proteſt I loue thee.

Beat. Why then God forgiue me.

Bene. What offence ſweet Beatrice?

Beat. You haue ſtayed me in a happy howre, I was about to proteſt I loued you.

Bene. And doe it with all thy heart.

Beat. I loue you with ſo much of my heart, that none is left to proteſt.

Bened. Come, bid me doe any thing for thee.

Beat. Kill Claudio.

Bene. Ha, not for the wide world.

Beat. You kill me to denie, farewell.

Bene. Tarrie ſweet Beatrice.

Beat. I am gone, though I am heere, there is no loue in you, nay I pray you let me go.

Bene. Beatrice.

Beat. Infaith I will goe.

Bene. Wee'll be friends firſt

Beat. You dare eaſier be friends with mee, than fight with mine enemy.

Bene. Is Claudio thine enemie?

Beat Is a not approoued in the height a villaine, that hath ſlandered, ſcorned, diſhonoured my kinſwoman? O that I were a man! what, beare her in hand vntill they come to take hands, and then with publike accuſation vncouered ſlander, vnmittigated rancour? O God that I were a man! I would eat his heart in the market-place.

Bene. Heare me Beatrice.

Beat. Talke with a man out at a window, a proper ſaying.

Bene. Nay but Beatrice.

Beat. Sweet Hero, ſhe is wrong'd, ſhee is ſlandered, ſhe is vndone.

Bene. Beat?

Beat. Princes and Counties! ſurelie a Princely teſtimonie, a goodly Count, Comfect, a ſweet Gallant ſurelie, O that I were a man for his ſake! or that I had any friend would be a man for my ſake! But manhood is melted into curſies, valour into complement, and men are onelie turned into tongue, and trim ones too: he is now as valiant as Hercules, that only tells a lie, and ſweares it: I cannot be a man with wiſhing, therfore I will die a woman with grieuing.

Bene. Tarry good Beatrice, by this hand I loue thee.

Beat. Vſe it for my loue ſome other way then ſwearing by it.

Bened. Thinke you in your ſoule the Count Claudio hath wrong'd Hero?

Beat. Yea, as ſure as I haue a thought, or a ſoule.

Bene. Enough, I am engagde, I will challenge him, I will kiſſe your hand, and ſo leaue you: by this hand Claudio ſhall render me a deere account: as you heare of me, ſo thinke of me: goe comfort your coſin, I muſt ſay ſhe is dead, and ſo farewell.

Enter the Conſtables, Borachio, and the Towne Clarke in gownes.

Keeper. Is our whole diſſembly appeard?

Cowley. O a ſtoole and a cuſhion for the Sexton.

Sexton. Which be the malefactors?

Andrew. Marry that am I, and my partner.

Cowley. Nay that's certaine, wee haue the exhibition to examine.

Sexton. But which are the offenders that are to be examined, let them come before maſter Conſtable.

Keeper. Yea marry, let them come before mee, what is your name, friend?

Bor. Borachio.

Keep. Pray write downe Borachio. Yours ſirra.

Con. I am a Gentleman ſir, and my name is Conrade.

Kee. Write downe Maſter gentleman Conrade: maſters, doe you ſerue God: maſters, it is proued already that you are little better than falſe knaues, and it will goe neere to be thought ſo ſhortly, how anſwer you for your ſelues?

Con. Marry ſir, we ſay we are none.

Keep. A marueilous witty fellow I aſſure you, but I will goe about with him: come you hither ſirra, a word in your eare ſir, I ſay to you, it is thought you are falſe knaues.

Bor. Sir, I ſay to you, we are none.

Keep. Well, ſtand aſide, fore God they are both in a tale: haue you writ downe that they are none?

Sext. Maſter Conſtable, you goe not the way to examine, you muſt call forth the watch that are their accuſers.

Keep. Yes marry, that's the eſteſt way, let the watch come forth: maſters, I charge you in the Princes name, accuſe theſe men.

Watch 1. This man ſaid ſir, that Don Iohn the Princes brother was a villaine.

Keep. Write down, Prince Iohn a villaine: why this is flat periurie, to call a Princes brother villaine.

Bora. Maſter Conſtable.

Keep. Pray thee fellow peace, I do not like thy looke I promiſe thee.

Sexton. What heard you him ſay elſe?

Watch 2. Mary that he had receiued a thouſand Ducates of Don Iohn, for accuſing the Lady Hero wrongfully.

Keep.

Kemp. Flat Burglarie as ever was committed.

Cowl. Yea by th'maſſe that it is.

Sexton. What elſe fellow?

Watch 1. And that Count Claudio did meane vpon his words, to diſgrace Hero before the whole aſſembly, and not marry her.

Kemp. O villaine! thou wilt be condemn'd into euerlaſting redemption for this.

Sexton. What elſe?

Watch. This is all.

Sexton. And this is more maſters then you can deny. Prince John is this morning ſecretly ſtolne away: Hero was in this manner accus'd, in this very manner refus'd, and vpon the griefe of this ſuddainely died: Maſter Conſtable, let theſe men be bound, and brought to Leonato, I will goe before, and ſhew him their examination.

Conſt. Come let them be opinion'd.

Sex. Let them be in the hands of Coxcombe.

Kem. Gods my life, where's the Sexton? let him write downe the Princes Officer Coxcombe: come, binde them thou naughty varlet.

Conſtey. Away, you are an aſſe, you are an aſſe.

Kemp. Doſt thou not ſuſpect my place? doſt thou not ſuſpect my yeares? O that he were heere to write me downe an aſſe! but maſters, remember that I am an aſſe: though it be not written down, yet forget not that I am an aſſe: No thou villaine, thou art full of piety as ſhall be prou'd vpon thee by good witneſſe, I am a wiſe fellow, and which is more, an officer, and which is more, a houſholder, and which is more, as pretty a peece of fleſh as any in Meſſina, and one that knowes the Law, goe to, & a rich fellow enough, goe to, and a fellow that hath had loſſes, and one that hath two gownes, and every thing handſome about him: bring him away: O that I had been writ downe an aſſe! Exit

Actus Quintus.

Enter Leonato and his brother.

Brother. If you goe on thus, you will kill your ſelfe,
And 'tis not wiſedome thus to ſecond griefe,
Againſt your ſelfe.

Leon. I pray thee ceaſe thy counſaile,
Which falls into mine eares as profitleſſe,
As water in a ſive: giue not me counſaile,
Nor let no comforter delight mine eare,
But ſuch a one whoſe wrongs doth ſuite with mine.
Bring me a father that ſo lou'd his childe,
Whoſe ioy of her is ouer-whelmed like mine,
And bid him ſpeake of patience,
Meaſure his woe the length and breadth of mine,
And let it anſwere euery ſtraine for ſtraine,
As thus for thus, and ſuch a griefe for ſuch,
In euery lineament, branch, ſhape, and forme:
If ſuch a one will ſmile and ſtroke his beard,
And ſorrow, wagge, cry hem, when he ſhould grone,
Patch griefe with prouerbs, make misfortune drunke,
With candle-waſters: bring him yet to me,
And I of him will gather patience:
But there is no ſuch man, for brother, men
Can counſaile, and ſpeake comfort to that griefe,
Which they themſelues not feele, but taſting it,
Their counſaile turnes to paſſion, which before,
Would giue preceptiall medicine to rage,
Fetter ſtrong madneſſe in a ſilken threed,
Charme ache with ayre, and agony with words,
No, no, 'tis all mens office, to ſpeake patience
To thoſe that wring vnder the load of ſorrow:
But no mans vertue nor ſufficiencie
To be ſo morall, when he ſhall endure
The like himſelfe: therefore giue me no counſaile,
My griefs cry lowder then aduertiſement.

Broth. Therein do men from children nothing differ.

Leonato. I pray thee peace, I will be flesh and bloud
For there was neuer yet Philoſopher,
That could endure the tooth-ake patiently,
How euer they haue writ the ſtile of gods,
And made a puſh at chance and ſufferance.

Brother. Yet bend not all the harme vpon your ſelfe,
Make thoſe that doe offend you, ſuffer too.

Leon. There thou ſpeak'ſt reaſon, nay I will doe ſo,
My ſoule doth tell me, Hero is belied,
And that ſhall Claudio know, ſo ſhall the Prince,
And all of them that thus diſhonour her.

Enter Prince and Claudio.

Brot. Here comes the Prince and Claudio haſtily.

Prin. Good den, good den.

Claud. Good day to both of you.

Leon. Heare you my Lords?

Prin. We haue ſome haſte Leonato.

Leo. Some haſte my Lord! well, fare you well my Lord,
Are you ſo haſty now? well, all is one.

Prin. Nay, do not quarrell with vs, good old man

Brot. If he could right himſelfe with quarrelling,
Some of vs would lie low.

Claud. Who wrongs him?

Leon. Marry thou doſt wrong me, thou diſſembler, thou:
Nay, neuer lay thy hand vpon thy ſword,
I feare thee not.

Claud. Marry beſhrew my hand,
If it ſhould giue your age ſuch cauſe of feare,
In faith my hand meant nothing to my ſword.

Leonato. Tuſh, tuſh, man, neuer fleere and ieſt at me,
I ſpeake not like a dotard, nor a foole,
As vnder priuiledge of age to bragge,
What I haue done being yong, or what would doe,
Were I not old, know Claudio to thy head,
Thou haſt ſo wrong'd my innocent childe and me,
That I am forc'd to lay my reuerence by,
And with grey haires and bruſe of many dates,
Doe challenge thee to triall of a man,
I ſay thou haſt belied mine innocent childe
Thy ſlander hath gone through and through her heart,
And ſhe lies buried with her anceſtors
O in a tombe where neuer ſcandall ſlept,
Saue this of hers, fram'd by thy villanie.

Claud. My villany?

Leonato. Thine Claudio, thine I ſay.

Prin. You ſay not right old man.

Leon. My Lord, my Lord,
Ile proue it on his body if he dare,
Deſpight his nice fence, and his actiue practiſe,
His May of youth, and bloome of luſtihood

Claud. Away, I will not haue to do with you

Leo. Canſt thou ſo daffe me? thou haſt kild my child,
If thou kilſt me, boy, thou ſhalt kill a man.

Bro. He ſhall kill two of vs, and men indeed,
But that's no matter, let him kill one firſt:

Wil

Win me and weare me, let him answere me,
Come follow me boy, come sir boy, come follow me
Sir boy, ile whip you from your foyning fence,
Nay, as I am a gentleman, I will.

Leon. Brother.

Bro. Content your self, God knows I lou'd my neece,
And she is dead, slander'd to death by villaines,
That dare as well answer a man indeede,
As I d are take a serpent by the tongue.
Boyes apes, braggarts, Iackes, milke-sops.

Leon. Brother Anthony.

Brot. Hold you content, what man I know them, yea
And what they weigh, euen to the vtmost scruple,
Scambling, out-facing, fashion-monging boyes,
That lye, and cog and flout, deprave, and slander,
Goe antiquely and show outward hidiousnesse,
And speake of halfe a dozen dang'rous words,
How they might hurt their enemies, if they durst,
And this is all.

Leon. But brother Anthonie.

Ant. Come, tis no matter,
Do not you meddle, let me deale in this.

Pri. Gentlemen both, we will not wake your patience
My heart is sorry for your daughters death:
But on my honour she was charg'd with nothing
But what was true, and very full of proofe.

Leon. My Lord, my Lord.

Prin. I will not heare you

Enter Benedicke.

Leo. No come brother, away, I will be heard.

Exeunt ambo.

Bro. And shall, or some of vs will smart for it.

Prin. See, see, here comes the man we went to seeke.

Clau. Now signior, what newes?

Ben. Good day my Lord.

Prin. Welcome signior, you are almost come to part almost a fray.

Clau. We had like to haue had our two noses snapt off with two old men without teeth.

Prin. Leonato and his brother, what think'st thou? had we fought, I doubt we should haue beene too yong for them.

Ben. In a false quarrell there is no true valour, I came to seeke you both.

Clau. We haue beene vp and downe to seeke thee, for we are high proofe melancholly, and would faine haue it beaten away, wilt thou vse thy wit?

Ben. It is in my scabberd, shall I draw it?

Prin. Doest thou weare thy wit by thy side?

Clau. Neuer any did so, though very many haue been beside their wit, I will bid thee drawe, as we do the minstrels, draw to pleasure vs.

Prin. As I am an honest man he lookes pale, art thou sicke, or angrie?

Clau. What, courage man: what though care kil'd a cat, thou hast mettle enough in thee to kill care.

Ben. Sir, I shall meete your wit in the careere, and you charge it against me, I pray you chuse another subiect.

Clau. Nay then giue him another staffe, this last was broke crosse.

Prin. By this light, he changes more and more, I thinke he be angrie indeede.

Clau. If he be he knowes how to turne his girdle.

Ben. Shall I speake a word in your eare?

Clau. God blesse me from a challenge.

Ben. You are a villaine, I iest not, I will make it good how you dare, with what you dare, and when you dare: do me right, or I will protest your cowardise: you haue kill'd a sweete Ladie, and her death shall fall heauie on you, let me heare from you.

Clau. Well, I will meete you, so I may haue good cheere.

Prin. What, a feast, a feast?

Clau. I faith I thanke him, he hath bid me to a calues head and a Capon, the which if I doe not carue most curiously, say my knife's naught, shall I not finde a woodcocke too?

Ben. Sir, your wit ambles well, it goes easily.

Prin. Ile tell thee how Beatrice prais'd thy wit the other day: I said thou hadst a fine wit: true saies she, a fine little one: no said I, a great wit: right saies shee, a great grosse one: nay said I, a good wit: iust said she, it hurts no body: nay said I, the gentleman is wise: certain said she, a wise gentleman: nay said I, he hath the tongues: that I beleeue said shee, for hee swore a thing to me on munday night, which he forswore on tuesday morning: there's a double tongue, there's two tongues: thus did shee an howre together transshape thy particular vertues, yet at last she concluded with a sigh, thou wast the properest man in Italie.

Claud. For the which she wept heartily, and said shee car'd not.

Prin. Yea that she did, but yet for all that, and if shee did not hate him deadlie, shee would loue him dearely, the old mans daughter told vs all.

Clau. All, all, and moreouer, God saw him when he was hid in the garden.

Prin. But when shall we set the sauage Bulls hornes on the sensible Benedicks head?

Clau. Yea and text vnder-neath, heere dwells Benedicke the married man.

Ben. Fare you well, Boy, you know my minde, I will leaue you now to your gossep-like humor, you breake iests as braggards do their blades, which God be thanked hurt not: my Lord, for your manie courtesies I thanke you, I must discontinue your companie, your brother the Bastard is fled from Messina: you haue among you, kill'd a sweet and innocent Ladie: for my Lord Lackebeard there, he and I shall meete, and till then peace be with him.

Prin. He is in earnest.

Clau. In most profound earnest, and Ile warrant you, for the loue of Beatrice.

Prin. And hath challeng'd thee.

Clau. Most sincerely.

Prin. What a prettie thing man is, when he goes in his doublet and hose, and leaues off his wit.

Enter Constable, Coutrade, and Borachio.

Clau. He is then a Giant to an Ape, but then is an Ape a Doctor to such a man.

Prin. But soft you, let me be, pluck vp my heart, and be sad, did he not say my brother was fled?

Const. Come you sir, if iustice cannot tame you, shee shall nere weigh more reasons in her ballance, nay, and you be a curssing hypocrite once, you must be look'd to.

Prin. How now, two of my brothers men bound? Borachio one.

Clau. Harken after their offence my Lord.

Prin. Officers, what offence haue these men done?

Con. Marrie

Conſt. Marrie ſir, they haue committed falſe report, moreouer they haue ſpoken vntruths, ſecondarily they are ſlanders, ſixt and laſtly, they haue belyed a Ladie, thirdly, they haue verified vniuſt things, and to conclude they are lying knaues.

Prin. Firſt I aske thee what they haue done, thirdlie I aske thee what's their offence, ſixt and laſtlie why they are committed, and to conclude, what you lay to their charge.

Clau. Rightlie reaſoned, and in his owne diuiſion, and by my troth there's one meaning well ſuted.

Prin. Who haue you offended maſters, that you are thus bound to your anſwer? this learned Conſtable is too cunning to be vnderſtood, what's your offence?

Bor. Sweete Prince, let me go no further to mine anſwere: do you heare me, and let this Count kill mee: I haue deceiued euen your very eies: what your wiſedomes could not diſcouer, theſe ſhallow fooles haue brought to light, who in the night ouerheard me confeſſing to this man, how Don Iohn your brother incenſed me to ſlander the Ladie Hero, how you were brought into the Orchard, and ſaw me court Margaret in Heroes garments, how you diſgrac'd her when you ſhould marrie her: my villanie they haue vpon record, which I had rather ſeale with my death, then repeate ouer to my ſhame: the Ladie is dead vpon mine and my maſters falſe accuſation: and briefelie, I deſire nothing but the reward of a villaine.

Prin. Runs not this ſpeech like yron through your bloud?

Clau. I haue drunke poiſon whiles he vtter'd it.

Prin. But did my Brother ſet thee on to this?

Bor. Yea, and paid me richly for the practiſe of it.

Prin. He is compos'd and fram'd of treacherie,
And fled he is vpon this villanie.

Clau. Sweet Hero, now thy image doth appeare
In the rare ſemblance that I lou'd it firſt.

Conſt. Come, bring away the plaintiffes, by this time our Sexton hath reformed Signior Leonato of the matter: and maſters, do not forget to ſpecifie when time & place haue ſerue, that I am an Aſſe.

Con. 2. Here, here comes maſter Signior Leonato, and the Sexton too.

Enter Leonato.

Leon. Which is the villaine? let me ſee his eies,
That when I note another man like him,
I may auoide him: which of theſe is he?

Bor. If you would know your wronger, looke on me.

Leon. Art thou thou the ſlaue that with thy breath haſt kild mine innocent childe?

Bor. Yea, euen I alone.

Leo. No, not ſo villaine, thou beliest thy ſelfe,
Here ſtand a paire of honourable men,
A third is fled that had a hand in it:
I thanke you Princes for my daughters death,
Record it with your high and worthie deedes,
'Twas bravely done, if you bethinke you of it.

Clau. I know not how to pray your patience,
Yet I muſt ſpeake, chooſe your reuenge your ſelfe,
Impoſe me to what penance your inuention
Can lay vpon my ſinne, yet ſinn'd I not,
But in miſtaking.

Prin. By my ſoule nor I,
And yet to ſatisfie this good old man,
I would bend vnder any heauie waight,
That he'le enioyne me to.

Leon. I cannot bid you bid my daughter liue,
That were impoſſible, but I praie you both,
Poſſeſſe the people in Meſſina here,
How innocent ſhe died, and if your loue
Can labour aught in ſad inuention,
Hang her an epitaph vpon her toomb,
And ſing it to her bones, ſing it to night:
To morrow morning come you to my houſe,
And ſince you could not be my ſonne in law,
Be yet my Nephew: my brother hath a daughter,
Almoſt the copie of my childe that's dead,
And ſhe alone is heire to both of vs,
Giue her the right you ſhould haue giu'n her coſin,
And ſo dies my reuenge.

Clau. O noble ſir!
Your ouerkindneſſe doth wring teares from me,
I do embrace your offer, and diſpoſe
For henceforth of poore Claudio.

Leon. To morrow then I will expect your comming,
To night I take my leaue, this naughtie man
Shall face to face be brought to Margaret,
Who I beleeue was packt in all this wrong,
Hired to it by your brother.

Bor. No by my ſoule ſhe was not,
Nor knew not what ſhe did when ſhe ſpoke to me,
But alwaies hath bin iuſt and vertuous,
In anie thing that I do know by her.

Conſt. Moreouer ſir, which indeede is not vnder white and black, this plaintiffe here, the offendour did call mee aſſe, I beſeech you let it be remembred in his puniſhment, and alſo the watch heard them talke of one Deformed, they ſay he weares a key in his eare and a lock hanging by it, and borrowes money in Gods name, the which he hath vs'd ſo long, and neuer paied, that now men grow hard-harted and will lend nothing for Gods ſake: praie you examine him vpon that point.

Leon. I thanke thee for thy care and honeſt paines.

Conſt. Your worſhip ſpeakes like a moſt thankefull and reuerend youth, and I praiſe God for you.

Leon. There's for thy paines.

Conſt. God ſaue the foundation.

Leon. Goe, I diſcharge thee of thy priſoner, and I thanke thee.

Conſt. I leaue an arrant knaue with your worſhip, which I beſeech your worſhip to correct your ſelfe, for the example of others: God keepe your worſhip, I wiſh your worſhip well, God reſtore you to health, I humblie giue you leaue to depart, and if a merie meeting may be wiſht, God prohibite it a come neighbour.

Leon. Vntill to morrow morning, Lords, farewell.

Exeunt.

Brot. Farewell my Lords, we looke for you to morrow.

Prin. We will not faile.

Clau. To night ile mourne with Hero.

Leon. Bring you theſe fellowes on, we'el talke with Margaret, how her acquaintance grew with this lewd fellow.

Exeunt.

Enter Benedicke and Margaret.

Ben. Praie thee ſweete Miſtris Margaret, deſerue well at my hands, by helping mee to the ſpeech of Beatrice.

Mar. Will

Mar. Will you then write me a Sonnet in praise of my beautie?

Bene. In so high a stile Margaret, that no man living shall come over it, for in most comely truth thou deseruest it.

Mar. To haue no man come ouer me, why, shall I alwaies keepe below staires?

Bene. Thy wit is as quicke as the grey-hounds mouth, it catches.

Mar. And yours, as blunt as the Fencers foiles, which hits, but hurt not.

Bene. A most manly wit Margaret, it will not hurt a woman: and so I pray thee call Beatrice, I giue thee the bucklers.

Mar. Giue vs the swords, wee haue bucklers of our owne.

Bene. If you vse them Margaret, you must put in the pikes with a vice, and they are dangerous weapons for Maides.

Mar. Well, I will call Beatrice to you, who I thinke hath legges. Exit Margarite.

Ben. And therefore will come. The God of loue that sits aboue, and knowes me, and knowes me, how pittifull I deserue. I meane in singing, but in louing, Leander the good swimmer, Troilous the first imploier of pandars, and a whole booke full of these quondam carpet-mongers, whose name yet runne smoothly in the euen rode of a blanke verse, why they were neuer so truely turned ouer and ouer as my poore selfe in loue: marrie I cannot shew it rime, I haue tried, I can finde out no rime to Ladie but babie, an innocent rime: for scorne, horne, a hard time: for schoole foole, a babling time: verie ominous endings, no, I was not borne vnder a riming Planner, for I cannot woo in festiuall termes:

Enter Beatrice.

Sweete Beatrice would'st thou come when I cal'd thee?

Beat. Yea Signior, and depart when you bid me.

Bene. O stay but till then.

Beat. Then, is spoken: fare you well now, and yet ere I goe, let me goe with that I came, which is, with knowing what hath past betweene you and Claudio.

Bene. Onely foule words, and thereupon I will kisse thee.

Beat. Foule words is but foule wind, and foule wind is but foule breath, and foule breath is noysome, therefore I will depart vnkist.

Bene. Thou hast frighted the word out of his right sence, so forcible is thy wit, but I must tell thee plainely, Claudio vnder goes my challenge, and either I must shortly heare from him, or I will subscribe him a coward, and I pray thee now tell me, for which of my bad parts didst thou first fall in loue with me?

Beat. For them all together, which maintain'd so politique a state of euill, that they will not admit any good part to intermingle with them: but for which of my good parts did you first suffer loue for me?

Bene. Suffer loue! a good epithite, I do suffer loue indeede, for I loue thee against my will.

Beat. In spight of your heart I think, alas poore heart, if you spight it for my sake, I will spight it for yours, for I will neuer loue that which my friend hates.

Bened. Thou and I are too wise to woo peaceable.

Bea. It appeares not in this confession, there's not one wise man among twentie that will praise himselfe.

Bene. An old, an old instance Beatrice, that liu'd in the time of good neighbours, if a man doe not erect in this age his owne toombe ere he dies, hee shall liue no longer in monuments, then the Bels ring, & the Widdow weepes.

Beat. And how long is that thinke you

Ben. Question, why an houre in clamour and a quarter in the rewme, therfore is it most expedient for the wife, if Don worme (his conscience) finde no impediment to the contrarie, to be the trumpet of his owne vertues, as I am to my selfe so much for praising my selfe, who I my selfe will beare witnesse is praise worthie, and now tell me, how doth your cosin?

Beat. Verie ill.

Bene. And how doe you?

Beat. Verie ill too.

Enter Vrsula.

Bene. Serue God, loue me, and mend, there will I leaue you too, for here comes one in haste.

Vrs. Madam, you must come to your Vncle, yonders old coile at home, it is proued my Ladie Hero hath bin falsely accusde, the Prince and Claudio mightily abusde, and Don Iohn is the author of all, who is fled and gone: will you come presently?

Beat. Will you go heare this newes Signior?

Bene. I will liue in thy heart, die in thy lap, and be buried in thy eies: and moreouer, I will goe with thee to thy Vncles. Exeunt.

Enter Claudio, Prince, and three or foure with Torches.

Clau. Is this the monument of Leonato?

Lord. It is my Lord. Epitaph.

Done to death by slanderous tongues,
Was the Hero that here lies:
Death in guerdon of her wrongs,
Giues her fame which neuer dies:
So the life that died with shame,
Liues in death with glorious fame.
Hang thou there vpon the toombe,
Praising her when I am dombe.

Clau. Now musick sound & sing your solemn hymne.

Song.

Pardon goddesse of the night,
Those that slew thy virgin knight,
For the which with songs of woe,
Round about her toombe they goe:
Midnight assist our moane, helpe vs to sigh and groane
Heauily, heauily.
Graues yawne and yeelde your dead,
Till death be vttered,
Heauenly, heauenly.

(this right.

Lo. Now vnto thy bones good night, yeerely will I do Prin. Good morrow maisters, put your Torches out, The wolues haue preied, and looke, the gentle day Before the wheeles of Phœbus, round about Dapples the drowsie East with spots of grey: Thanks to you all, and leaue vs, fare you well.

Clau. Good morrow maisters, each his seuerall way.

Prin. Come let vs hence, and put on other weedes, And then to Leonatoes we will goe.

Clau. And Hymen now with luckier issue speeds,

Then

Them this for whom we rendred vp this woe. Exeunt.

Enter Leonato, Bene. Mary, Vrsula, old man, Frier, Hero.

Frier. Did I not tell you she was innocent?

Leo. So are the Prince and Claudio who accus'd her,
Vpon the error that you heard debated:
But Margaret was in some fault for this,
Although against her will as it appeares,
In the true course of all the question.

Old. Well, I am glad that all things sort so well.

Bene. And so am I, being else by faith enforc'd
To call young Claudio to a reckoning for it.

Leo. Well daughter, and you gentlewomen all,
Withdraw into a chamber by your selves,
And when I send for you, come hither mask'd:
The Prince and Claudio promis'd by this howre
To visit me, you know your office Brother,
You must be father to your brothers daughter,
And giue her to young Claudio. Exeunt Ladies.

Old. Which I will doe with confirm'd countenance.

Bene. Frier, I must intreat your paines, I think.

Frier. To doe what Signior?

Bene. To binde me, or vndoe me, one of them:
Signior Leonato, truth it is good Signior,
Your neece regards me with an eye of fauour.

Leo. That eye my daughter lent her, 'tis most true.

Bene. And I doe with an eye of loue requite her.

Leo. The sight whereof I thinke you had from me,
From Claudio, and the Prince, but what's your will?

Bene. Your answer sir is Enigmaticall,
But for my will, my will is, your good will
May stand with ours, this day to be conioyn'd,
In the state of honourable marriage,
In which (good Frier) I shall desire your helpe.

Leo. My heart is with your liking.

Frier. And my helpe.

Enter Prince and Claudio, with attendants.

Prin. Good morrow to this faire assembly.

Leo. Good morrow Prince, good morrow Claudio:
We here attend you, are you yet determin'd,
To day to marry with my brothers daughter?

Claud. Ile hold my minde were she an Ethiope.

Leo. Call her forth brother, here's the Frier ready.

Prin. Good morrow Benedicke, why what's the matter?
That you haue such a Februarie face,
So full of frost, of storme, and cloudinesse.

Claud. I thinke he thinkes vpon the sauage bull:
Tush, feare not man, we'll tip thy hornes with gold,
And all Europa shall reioyce at thee,
As once Europa did at lusty Ioue,
When he would play the noble beast in loue.

Ben. Bull Ioue sir, had an amiable low,
And some such strange bull leapt your fathers Cow,
And got a Calfe in that same noble feat,
Much like to you, for you haue iust his bleat.

Enter brother, Hero, Beatrice, Margaret, Vrsula.

Cla. For this I owe you: here comes other reckonings.
Which is the Lady I must seize vpon?

Leo. This same is she, and I doe giue you her.

Cla. Why then she's mine, sweet let me see your face.

Leon. No that you shall not, till you take her hand,
Before this Frier, and (sweare to marry her.

Clau. Giue me your hand before this holy Frier,
I am your husband if you like of me.

Hero. And when I liu'd I was your other wife,
And when you lou'd, you were my other husband.

Clau. Another Hero!

Hero. Nothing certainer.
One Hero died, but I doe liue,
And surely as I liue, I am a maid.

Prin. The former Hero, Hero that is dead.

Leon. Shee died my Lord, but whiles her slander liu'd

Frier. All this amazement can I qualifie,
When after that the holy rites are ended,
Ile tell you largely of faire Heroes death:
Meane time let wonder seeme familiar,
And to the chappell let vs presently.

Ben. Soft and faire Frier, which is Beatrice?

Beat. I answer to that name, what is your will?

Bene. Doe not you loue me?

Beat. Why no, no more then reason.

Bene. Why then your Vncle, and the Prince, & Claudio, haue beene deceiued, they swore you did.

Beat. Doe not you loue mee?

Bene. Troth no, no more then reason.

Beat. Why then my Cosin Margaret and Vrsula
Are much deceiu'd, for they did sweare you did.

Bene. They swore you were almost sicke for me.

Beat. They swore you were wel-nye dead for me.

Bene. 'Tis no matter, then you doe not loue me?

Beat. No truly, but in friendly recompence.

Leon. Come Cosin, I am sure you loue the gentleman.

Clau. And I'le be sworne vpon't, that he loues her,
For here's a paper written in his hand,
A halting sonnet of his owne pure braine,
Fashioned to Beatrice.

Hero. And here's another,
Writ in my cosins hand, stolne from her pocket
Containing her affection vnto Benedicke.

Bene. A miracle, here's our owne hands against our hearts: come I will haue thee, but by this light I take thee for pitie.

Beat. I would not denie you, but by this good day, I yeeld vpon great perswasion, & partly to saue your life, for I was told, you were in a consumption

Leon. Peace I will stop your mouth.

Prin. How dost thou Benedicke the married man?

Bene. Ile tell thee what Prince: a Colledge of wittie-crackers cannot flout me out of my humour, dost thou think I care for a Satyre or an Epigram? no, if a man will be beaten with braines, a shall weare nothing handsome about him: in briefe, since I do purpose to marry, I will thinke nothing to any purpose that the world can say against it, and therefore neuer flout at me, for I haue said against it: for man is a giddy thing, and this is my conclusion: for thy part Claudio, I did thinke to haue beaten thee, but in that thou art like to be my kinsman, liue vnbruis'd, and loue my cousin.

Cla. I had well hop'd y^u^ wouldst haue denied Beatrice, y^t^ I might haue cudgel'd thee out of thy single life, to make thee a double dealer, which out of question thou wilt be, if my Cousin do not looke exceeding narrowly to thee.

Bene. Come, come, we are friends, let's haue a dance ere we are married, that we may lighten our own hearts, and our wiues heeles.

Leon. We'll haue dancing afterward.

Bene. First, of my word, therfore play musick. Prince, thou art sad, get thee a wife, get thee a wife, there is no staff more reuerend then one tipt with horn. Enter Mess.

Messen. My Lord, your brother Iohn is tane in flight,
And brought with armed men backe to Messina.

Bene. Thinke not on him till to morrow, Ile deuise thee braue punishments for him: strike vp Pipers. Dance.

Loues Labour's lost.

Actus primus.

Enter Ferdinand King of Nauarre, Berowne, Longauill, and Dumaine.

Ferdinand.

LEt Fame, that all hunt after in their liues,
Liue registred vpon our brazen Tombes,
And then grace vs in the disgrace of death.
when spight of cormorant deuouring Time,
Th endeuour of this present breath may buy:
That honour which shall bate his sythes keene edge,
And make vs heyres of all eternitie
Therefore braue Conquerours, for so you are,
That warre against your owne affections,
And the huge Armie of the worlds desires,
Our late edict shall strongly stand in force,
Nauar shall be the wonder of the world.
Our Court shall be a little Achademe,
Still and contemplatiue in liuing Art
You three, Berowne, Dumaine, and Longauill,
Haue sworne for three yeeres terme, to liue with me:
My fellow Scholliers, and to keepe those statutes
That are recorded in this scedule heere.
Your oathes are past, and now subscribe your names:
That his owne hand may strike his honour downe,
That violates the smalleſt branch heerein:
If you are arm'd to doe, as sworne to do,
Subscribe to your deepe oathes, and keepe it to.

Longauill. I am resolu'd, 'tis but a three yeeres fast:
The minde shall banquet, though the body pine,
Fat paunches haue leane pates: and dainty bits,
Make rich the ribs, but bankerout the wits.

Dumane. My louing Lord, Dumane is mortified,
The groſſer manner of these worlds delights,
He throwes vpon the groſſe worlds baser slaues:
To loue, to wealth, to pompe, I pine and die,
With all these living in Philosophie.

Berowne. I can but say their protestation ouer,
So much, deare Liege, I haue already sworne,
That is, to liue and study heere three yeeres.
But there are other strict obseruances:
As not to see a woman in that terme,
Which I hope well is not enrolled there.
And one day in a weeke to touch no foode:
And but one meale on euery day beside:
The which I hope is not enrolled there
And then to sleepe but three houres in the night,
And not be seene to winke of all the day,
When I was wont to thinke no harme all night,
And make a darke night too of halfe the day:
Which I hope well is not enrolled there.
O, these are barren taskes, too hard to keepe,
Not to see Ladies, study, fast, not sleepe.

Ferd. Your oath is past, to passe away from these.

Berow. Let me say no my Liedge, and if you please,
I onely swore to study with your grace,
And stay heere in your Court for three yeeres space.

Longa. You swore to that Berowne, and to the rest.

Berow. By yea and nay sir, than I swore in iest.
What is the end of study, let me know?

Fer. Why that to know which else wee should not know.

Ber. Things hid & bard (you meane) frō cōmon sense

Ferd. I, that is studies god-like recompence.

Ber. Come on then, I will sweare to studie so,
To know the thing I am forbid to know:
As thus, to study where I well may dine,
When I to fast expreſsely am forbid.
Or studie where to meet some Mistresse fine,
When Mistresses from common sense are hid.
Or hauing sworne too hard a keeping oath,
Studie to breake it, and not breake my troth.
If studies gaine be thus, and this be so,
Studie knowes that which yet it doth not know,
Sweare me to this, and I will nere say no

Ferd. These be the stops that hinder studie quite,
And traine our intellects to vaine delight.

Ber. Why? all delights are vaine, and that most vaine
Which with paine purchas'd, doth inherit paine,
As painefully to poare vpon a Booke,
To seeke the light of truth, while truth the while
Doth falsely blinde the eye-sight of his looke:
Light seeeking light, doth light of light beguile:
So ere you finde where light in darkeneſse lies,
Your light growes darke by losing of your eyes.
Studie me how to pleaſe the eye indeede,
By fixing it vpon a fairer eye,
Who dazling so, that eye shall be his heed,
And giue him light that it was blinded by.
Studie is like the heauens glorious Sunne,
That will not be deepe search'd with sawcy lookes:
Small haue continuall plodders euer wonne,
Saue base authoritie from others Bookes.
These earthly Godfathers of heauens lights,
That giue a name to euery fixed Starre,
Haue no more profit of their shining nights,
Then those that walke and wot not what they are.
Too much to know, is to know nought but fame:
And euery Godfather can giue a name.

Fer. How well he's read, to reason against reading.

Dum.

ceeded well, to ſtop all good proceeding.
weedes the corne, and ſtill lets grow the ding.
Spring is neare when greene geeſſe are a
ding.
w followes that n his place and time.
eaſon nothing.
urthing then in time.
ame is like an enuious ſneaping Froſt,
e firſt borne infants of the Spring.
ſay I am, why ſhould proud Summer boaſt, rds haue any cauſe to ſing?
I ioy in any abortiue birth?
I no more deſire a Roſe,
Snow in Maves new fangled ſhowes:
ch thing that in ſeaſon growes.
due now it is too late,
climbe ore the houſe to vnlocke the gate.
ſir you out: go home Berowne: adoe.
y good Lord, I haue ſworn to ſtay with you.
I haue for barbariſme ſpoke more,
n Angell knowledge you can ſay,
t Ile keepe what I haue ſworne, penance of each three yeares day.
paper, let me reade the ſame,
ineſt decrees Ile write my name.
well this yeelding reſcues thee from ſhame.
. That no woman ſhall come within a mile

n proclaimed?
re dayes agoe.
's ſee the penaltie.
looſing her tongue.
d this penaltie?
ery that did I
eene Lord, and why?
fright them hence with that dread penaltie,
a law againſt gentilitie.
man be ſeene to talke with a woman with-e of three yeares, hee ſhall indure ſuch ame as the reſt of the Court ſhall poſſibly is Article my Liedge your ſelfe muſt breake, know here comes in Embaſſie

Kings daughter, with your ſelfe to ſpeake:
grace and compleate maieſtie,
nder vp of Aquitaine.
epit, ſicke, and bed-rid Father his Article is made in vaine.
mes th'admired Princeſſe hither.
t ſay you Lords?
as quite forgot
Studie euermore is ouerſhot.
th ſtudy to haue what it would,
et to doe the thing it ſhould:
hath the thing it hunteth moſt, ownes with fire, ſo won, ſo loſt.
muſt of force diſpence with this Decree,
here on meere neceſſitie.
ceſſity will make vs all forſworne
ſand tiones within this three yeeres ſpace:
an with his affects is borne,
he maſtred, but by ſpeciall grace.
faith, this word ſhall breake for me,
me on meere neceſſitie.

So to the Lawes at large I write my name,
And he that breakes them in the leaſt degree,
Stands in attainder of eternall ſhame.
Suggeſtions are to others as to me:
But I beleeue although I ſeeme ſo loth,
I am the laſt that will laſt keepe his oth.
But is there no quicke recreation granted?

Fer. I that there is, our Court you know is haunted
With a refined trauailer of Spaine,
A man in all the worlds new faſhion planted,
That hath a mint of phraſes in his braine:
One, who the muſicke of his owne vaine tongue,
Doth rauiſh like inchanting harmonie:
A man of complements whom right and wrong
Haue choſe as empire of their mutinie.
This childe of fancie that Armado hight,
For interim to our ſtudies ſhall relate,
In high-borne words the worth of many a Knight.
From tawnie Spaine loſt in the worlds debate.
How you delight my Lords, I know not I,
But I proteſt I loue to heare him lie,
And I will vſe him for my Minſtrelſie.

Ber. Armado is a moſt illuſtrious wight,
A man of fire, new words, faſhions owne Knight.

Lon. Coſtard the ſwaine and he, ſhall be our ſport,
And ſo to ſtudie, three yeeres is but ſhort.

Enter a Conſtable with Coſtard with a Letter

Conſt. Which is the Dukes owne perſon.

Ber. This fellow, What would'ſt?

Con. I my ſelfe reprehend his owne perſon, for I am his graces Thorborough: But I would ſee his own perſon in fleſh and blood.

Ber. This is he.

Con. Signeor Arme, Arme commends you: Ther's villanie abroad, this letter will tell you more.

Clow. Sir the Contempts thereof are as touching mee.

Fer. A letter from the magnificent Armado.

Ber. How low ſoeuer the matter, I hope in God for high words.

Lon. A high hope for a low heauen, God grant vs patience.

Ber. To heare, or forbeare hearing.

Lon. To heare meekely ſir, and to laugh moderately, or to forbeare both.

Ber. Well ſir, be it as the ſtile ſhall giue vs cauſe to clime in the merrineſſe.

Clo. The matter is to me ſir, as concerning Iaquenetta. The manner of it is, I was taken with the manner.

Ber. In what manner?

Clo. In manner and forme following ſir all thoſe three. I was ſeene with her in the Manor houſe, ſitting with her vpon the Forme, and taken following her into the Parke: which put to gether, is in manner and forme following. Now ſir for the manner; It is the manner of a man to ſpeake to a woman, for the forme in ſome forme.

Ber. For the following ſir.

Clo. As it ſhall follow in my correction, and God defend the right.

Fer. Will you heare this Letter with attention?

Ber. As we would heare an Oracle

Clo. Such is the ſimplicitie of man to harken after the fleſh.

Ferdinand.

GReat Deputie, the Welkins Viceregerent, and ſole dominator of Nauar, my ſoules earthe God, and bodies faſtring patrone:

Coſt. Not a word of Coſtard yet.

Ferd. So it is.

Coſt. It may be ſo: but if he ſay it is ſo, he is in telling true: but ſo.

Ferd. Peace.

Clow. Be to me, and euery man that dares not fight.

Ferd. No words.

Clow. Of other mens ſecrets I beſeech you.

Ferd. So it is beſieged with ſable coloured melancholie, I did commend the blacke oppreſſing humour to the moſt wholeſome Phyſicke of thy health-giuing ayre: And as I am a Gentleman, betooke my ſelfe to walke: the time when? about the ſixt houre, When beaſts moſt graſe, birds beſt pecke, and men ſit downe to that nourishment which is called ſupper: So much for the time When. Now for the ground Which? which I meane I walkt vpon, It is ycleped, Thy Parke. Then for the place Where? where I meane I did encounter that obſcene and moſt prepoſterous euent that draweth from my ſnow-white pen the ebon coloured Inke, which here thou vieweſt, beholdeſt, ſurmiſeſt, or ſeeſt. But to the place Where? It ſtandeth North-North-eaſt and by Eaſt from the Weſt corner of thy curious knotted garden. There did I ſee that low ſpirited Swaine, that baſe Minow of thy mirth, (Clown Me?) that vnlettered ſmall knowing ſoule, (Clow Me?) that ſhallow vaſſall (Clow. Still mee?) which as I remember, hight Coſtard, (Clow. O me) ſorted and conſorted contrary to thy eſtabliſhed proclaimed Edict and Continet, Cannon: Which with, O with, but with thy paſſion to ſay wherewith:

Clo. With a Wench.

Ferd. With a chylde of our Grandmother Eue, a female; or for thy more ſweet vnderſtanding a woman: him, I (as my euer eſteemed duetie pricketh me on) haue ſent to thee, to receiue the meed of puniſhment by thy ſweet Graces Officer Anthony Dull, a man of good repute, carriage, bearing, & eſtimation.

Anth. Me, an't ſhall pleaſe you? I am Anthony Dull.

Ferd. For Iaquenetta (ſo is the weeker veſſell called) which I apprehended with the aforeſaid Swaine, I keepe her as a veſſell of thy Lawes furie, and ſhall at the houſe of thy ſweet notice, bring her to triall. Thine in all complements of deuoted and heart-burning heat of duetie, Don Adriano de Armado.

Ber. This is not ſo well as I looked for, but the beſt that euer I heard.

Fer I the beſt, for the worſt But ſirra, What ſay you to this?

Clo. Sir I confeſſe the Wench

Fer. Did you heare the Proclamation?

Clo. I doe confeſſe much of the hearing it, but little of the marking of it.

Fer. It was proclaimed a yeeres impriſoment to bee taken with a Wench.

Clow I was taken with none ſir, I was taken vrich a Damoſell.

Fer. Well, it was proclaimed Damoſell.

Clo. This was no Damoſell neyther ſir, ſhee was a Virgin.

Fer It is ſo varried to, for it was proclaimed Virgin.

Clo. If it were, I denie her Virginitie: I was taken with a Maide.

Fer. This Maid will not ſerue your turne ſir.

Clo. This Maide will ſerue my turne ſir.

Kin. Sir I will pronounce your ſentence: You ſhall faſt a Weeke with Branne and water.

Clo. I had rather pray a Moneth with Mutton and Portidge.

Kin And Don Armado ſhall be your keeper.
My Lord Berowne, ſee him deliuer'd ore,
And goe we Lords to put in practiſe that,
Which each to other hath ſo ſtrongly ſworne.

Ber. Ile lay my head to any good mans hat,
Theſe oathes and lawes will proue an idle ſcorne
Sirra, come on.

Clo. I ſuffer for the truth ſir: for true it is, I was taken with Iaquenetta, and Iaquenetta is a true girle, and therefore welcome the ſowre cup of proſperitie, affliction may one day ſmile againe, and vntill then ſit downe ſorrow. Exit.

Enter Armado and Moth his Page.

Arma. Boy, What ſigne is it when a man of great ſpirit growes melancholy?

Boy. A great ſigne ſir, that he will looke ſad.

Brag. Why? ſadneſſe is one and the ſelfe-ſame thing deare imp.

Boy. No no, O Lord ſir no.

Brag. How canſt thou part ſadneſſe and melancholy my tender Iuuenall?

Boy. By a familiar demonſtration of the working, my tough ſignеur.

Brag. Why tough ſignеur? Why tough ſignеur?

Boy Why tender Iuuenall? Why tender Iuuenall?

Brag. I ſpoke it tender Iuuenall, as a congruent apititon. appertaining to thy young daies, which we may nominate tender.

Boy. And I tough ſignеur, as an appertinent title to your olde time, which we may name tough.

Brag. Pretty and apt.

Boy. How meane you ſir, I pretty, and my ſaying apt? or I apt, and my ſaying prettie?

Brag. Thou pretty becauſe little.

Boy. Little pretty, becauſe little: wherefore apt?

Brag And therefore apt, becauſe quicke.

Boy. Speake you this in my praiſe Maſter?

Brag. In thy condigne praiſe.

Boy. I will praiſe an Eele with the ſame praiſe.

Brag. What? that an Eele is ingenuous.

Boy. That an Eeele is quicke.

Brag. I doe ſay thou art quicke in anſweres. Thou heat'ſt my bloud.

Boy. I am anſwer'd ſir.

Brag. I loue not to be croſt. (him.

Boy. He ſpeakes the meere contrary, croſſes loue not

Br. I haue promis'd to ſtudy iij yeres with the Duke.

Boy. You may doe it in an houre ſir.

Brag. Impoſſible.

Boy. How many is one thrice told?

Bra. I am ill at reckning, it fits the ſpirit of a Tapſter.

Boy. You are a gentleman and a gameſter ſir.

Brag. I confeſſe both, they are both the varniſh of a compleat man.

Boy. Then I am ſure you know how much the groſſe ſumme of deuſ-ace amounts to.

Brag. It doth amount to one more then two.

Boy. Which the baſe vulgar call three.

Br. True. Boy. Why ſir is this ſuch a peece of ſtudy? Now here's three ſtudied, ere you'll thrice wink, & how eaſie it is to put yeres to the word three, and ſtudy three yeeres in two words, the dancing horſe will tell you.

Brag. A

A most fine Figure.
To proue you Cypher.
I will heereupon confesse I am in loue : and as for a Souldier to loue ; so am I in loue with a ch. If drawing my sword against the humour on, would deliuer mee from the reprobate sie, I would take Desire prisoner, and ransome y French Courtier for a new deuis'd curtsie. I orne to sigh, me thinkes I should out-sweare
Comfort me Boy, What great men haue beene

Hercules Master.
Most sweete Hercules : more authority deare
e more ; and sweet my childe let them be men eport and carriage.
Sampson Master, he was a man of good carriage, riage : for hee carried the Towne-gates on his
e a Porter : and he was in loue.
O well-knit Sampson, strong ioynted Sampson ;
ell thee in my rapier as much as thou didst mee
g gates. I am in loue too. Who was Sampsons
Brace Moth ?
A Woman, Master.
Of what complexion ?
Of all the foure, or the three, or the two, or one
ure.
Tell me precisely of what complexion ?
Of the sea-water Greene sir.
Is that one of the foure complexions ?
As I haue read sir, and the best of them too.
Greene indeed is the colour of Louers : but to oue of that colour, methinkes Sampson had small r it. He surely affected her for her wit.
It was so sir, for she had a greene wit.
My Loue is most immaculate white and red.
Most immaculate thoughts Master, are mask'd ch colours.
Define, define, well educated infant.
My fathers witte, and my mothers tongue assist

Sweet inuocation of a childe, most pretty and ll.
If shee be made of white and red,
s will nere be knowne :
-in cheekes by faults are bred,
es by pale white showne :
he feare, or be to blame,
ou shall not know,
er cheekes possesse the same,
ature she doth owe :
gerous rime master against the reason of white
e.
Is there not a ballet Boy, of the King and the

The world was very guilty of such a Ballet some s since, but I thinke now tis not to be found : or
, it would neither serue for the writing, nor the

I will haue that subiect newly writ ore, that I mple my digression by some mighty president.
oe loue that Country girle that I tooke in with the rationall hinde Costard : she deserues

To bee whip'd : and yet a better loue then my

Sing Boy, my spirit growes heauy in loue.

Boy. And that's great maruell, louing a light wench.
Brag. I say sing.
Boy. Forbeare till this company be past.

Enter Clowne, Constable, and Wench.

Const. Sir, the Dukes pleasure, is that you keepe Costard safe, and you must let him take no delight, nor no penance, but hee must fast three daies a weeke : for this Damsell, I must keepe her at the Parke, shee is alowd for the Day-woman. Fare you well. Exit

Brag. I do betray my selfe with blushing : Maide.
Maid. Man.
Brag. I wil visit thee at the Lodge.
Maid. That's here by.
Brag. I know where it is situate.
Mai. Lord how wise you are !
Brag. I will tell thee wonders.
Ma. With what face ?
Brag. I loue thee.
Mai. So I heard you say.
Brag. And so farewell.
Mai. Faire weather after you.
Clo. Come Iaquenetta, away. Exeunt.
Brag. Villaine, thou shalt fast for thy offences ere thou be pardoned.
Clo. Well sir, I hope when I doe it, I shall doe it on a full stomacke.
Brag. Thou shalt be heauily punished.
Clo. I am more bound to you then your fellowes, for they are but lightly rewarded.
Clo. Take away this villaine, shut him vp.
Boy. Come you transgressing slaue, away.
Clow. Let mee not bee pent vp sir, I will fast being loose.
Boy. No sir, that were fast and loose : thou shalt to prison.
Clow. Well, if euer I do see the merry dayes of desolation that I haue seene, some shall see.
Boy. What shall some see ?
Clow. Nay nothing, Master Moth, but what they looke vpon. It is not for prisoners to be silent in their words, and therefore I will say nothing : I thanke God, I haue as little patience as another man, and therefore I can be quiet. Exit

Brag. I doe affect the very ground (which is base) where her shooe (which is baser) guided by her foote (which is basest) doth tread. I shall be forsworn (which is a great argument of falshood) if I loue. And how can that be true loue, which is falsly attempted ? Loue is a familiar, Loue is a Diuell. There is no euill Angell but Loue, yet Sampson was so tempted, and he had an excellent strength : Yet was Salomon so seduced, and hee had a very good witte. Cupids Butshaft is too hard for Hercules Clubbe, and therefore too much odds for a Spaniards Rapier : The first and second cause will not serue my turne : the Passado hee respects not, the Duello he regards not ; his disgrace is to be called Boy, but his glorie is to subdue men. Adue Valour, rust Rapier, bee still Drum, for your manager is in loue ; yea hee loueth. Assist me some extemporall god of Rime, for I am sure I shall turne Sonnet. Deuise Wit, write Pen, for I am for whole volumes in folio. Exit

Finis Actus Primus.

Actus Secunda.

Enter the Princeſſe of France with three attending Ladies and three Lords.

Boyet. Now Madam ſummon vp your dearest ſpirits
Conſider who the King your father ſends
To whom he ſends, and what's his Embaſſie
Your ſelfe, held precious in the worlds eſteeme,
To parler with the ſole inheritour
Of all perfections that a man may owe,
Matcheleſſe Navarre, the plea of no leſſe weight
Then Aquitaine, a Dowrie for a Queene.
Be now as prodigall of all deare grace,
As Nature was in making Graces deare,
When ſhe did ſtarue the generall world beſide,
And prodigally gaue them all to you.

Queen. Good L. Boyet, my beauty though but mean,
Needs not the painted flourish of your praiſe
Beauty is bought by iudgement of the eye,
Not vttered by baſe ſale of chapmens tongues
I am leſſe proud to heare you tell my worth,
Then you much willing to be counted wiſe,
In ſpending your wit in the praiſe of mine.
But now to taske the tasker, good Boyet,

Prin. You are not ignorant all-telling fame
Doth noyſe abroad Navar hath made a vow,
Till painefull ſtudie ſhall out-weare three yeares,
No woman may approach his ſilent Court:
Therefore as's ſeemeth it a needfull courſe,
Before we enter his forbidden gates,
To know his pleaſure, and in that behalfe
Bold of your worthineſſe, we ſingle you,
As our beſt moouing faire ſolicitor.
Tell him, the daughter of the King of France,
On ſerious buſineſſe craning quicke diſpatch,
Importunes perſonall conference with his grace
Haſte, ſignifie ſo much while we attend,
Like humble viſag'd ſuters his high will.

Boy. Proud of employment, willingly I goe. Exit.

Prin. All pride is willing pride, and yours is ſo.
Who are the Votaries my louing Lords, that are vow-fellowes with this vertuous Duke?

Lor. Longauill is one.

Prince. Know you the man?

1 Lady. I know him Madame at a marriage feaſt,
Betweene L. Perigort and the beautious heire
Of Iaques Faulconbridge ſolemnized.
In Normandie ſaw I this Longauill,
A man of ſoueraigne parts he is eſteem'd:
Well fitted in Arts, glorious in Armes:
Nothing becomes him ill that he would well.
The only ſoyle of his faire vertues gloſſe,
If vertues gloſſe will ſtaine with any ſoile,
It a ſharp wit match'd with too blunt a Will.
Whoſe edge hath power to cut whoſe will ſtill wills,
It ſhould none ſpare that come within his power.

Prin. Some merry mocking Lord belike, is't ſo?

Lad. 1. They ſay ſo moſt, that moſt his humors know.

Prin. Such ſhort liu'd wits do wither as they grow.
Who are the reſt?

2. Lad. The yong Dumaine, a well accompliſht youth,
Of all that Vertue loue, for Vertue loued.
Moſt power to doe moſt harme, leaſt knowing ill:
For he hath wit to make an ill ſhape good,
And ſhape to win grace though ſhe had no wit.
I ſaw him at the Duke Alanſons once,
And much too little of that good I ſaw,
Is my report to his great worthineſſe.

Roſa Another of theſe Students at that time,
Was there with him, as I haue heard a truth.
Berowne they call him, but a merrier man,
Within the limit of becomming mirth,
I neuer ſpent an houres talke withall.
His eye begets occaſion for his wit,
For every obiect that the one doth catch
The other turnes to a mirth-moouing ieſt.
Which his faire tongue (conceits expoſitor)
Deliuers in ſuch apt and gracious words,
That aged eares play truant at his tales,
And yonger hearings are quite rauiſhed.
So ſweet and voluble is his diſcourſe

Prin. God bleſſe my Ladies, are they all in loue?
That euery one her owne hath garniſhed,
With ſuch bedecking ornaments of praiſe

Ma. Heere comes Boyet

Enter Boyet.

Prin. Now, what admittance Lord?

Boyet. Navar had notice of your faire approach,
And he and his competitors in oath,
Were all addreſt to meete you gentle Lady
Before I came: Marrie thus much I haue learnt,
He rather meanes to lodge you in the field,
Like one that comes heere to beſiege his Court,
Then ſeeke a diſpenſation for his oath:
To let you enter his vnpeopled houſe.

Enter Navar, Longauill, Dumaine, and Berowne.

Heere comes Navar

Nav. Faire Princeſſe, welcom to the Court of Navar

Prin. Faire I giue you backe againe, and welcome I haue not yet: the roofe of this Court is too high to be yours, and welcome to the wide fields, too baſe to be mine.

Nav You ſhall be welcome Madam to my Court.

Prin. I will be welcome then, Conduct me thither.

Nav Heare me deare Lady. I haue ſworne an oath.

Prin. Our Lady helpe my Lord, he'll be forſworne.

Nav Not for the world faire Madam, by my will.

Prin. Why, will ſhall breake it will, and nothing elſe

Nav. Your Ladiſhip is ignorant what it is.

Prin. Were my Lord ſo, his ignorance were wiſe,
Where now his knowledge muſt proue ignorance.
I heare your grace hath ſworne out Houſekeeping:
'Tis deadly ſinne to keepe that oath my Lord,
And ſinne to breake it:
But pardon me, I am too ſodaine bold,
To teach a Teacher ill beſeemeth me.
Vouchſafe to read the purpoſe of my comming,
And ſodainly reſolue me in my ſuite.

Nav. Madam, I will, if ſodainly I may.

Prin. You will the ſooner that I were away,
For you'll proue periur'd if you make me ſtay.

Berow. Did not I dance with you in Brabant once?

Roſa. Did not I dance with you in Brabant once?

Ber. I

new you did.
ow needleſſe was it then to aſk the queſtion?
u muſt not be ſo quicke.
'Tis long of you y' ſpur me with ſuch queſtions.
our wit's too hot,it ſpeeds too faſt, 'twill tire.
lot till it leaue the Rider in the mire.
'hat time a day?
'he howre that fooles ſhould aſke.
ow faire befall your maske.
aire fall the face it couers.
nd ſend you many louers.
men,ſo you be none.
y then will I be gone.
adame,your father heere doth intimate,
s of a hundred thouſand Crownes,
h one halfe, of an intire ſumme,
by my father in his warres.
t be, or we, as neither haue at ſumme; yet there remaines vnpaid thouſand more: in ſurety of the which,
Aquitaine is bound to vs,
ot valued to the moneys worth.
King your father will reſtore
e halfe which is vnſatisfied, ue vp our right in Aquitaine, aire friendſhip with his Maieſtie:
ſeemes he little purpoſeth,
doth demand to haue repaid,
d thouſand Crownes, and not demands
m of a hundred thouſand Crownes, a title liue in Aquitaine.
much rather had depart withall,
he money by our father lent,
aine, ſo guelded as it is.
reſſe, were not his requeſts ſo farre es yeelding, your faire ſelfe ſhould make gainſt ſome reaſon in my breſt, ell ſatisfied to France againe.
ou doe the King my Father too much wrong,
the reputation of your name,
ming to confeſſe receyt
ch hath ſo faithfully beene paid.
loe proteſt I neuer heard of it,
proue it, Ile repay it backe,
Aquitaine.
We arreſt your word:
can prodece acquittances
ſumme, from ſpeciall Officers, his Father.
tisfie me ſo.
o pleaſe your Grace,the packet is not come and other ſpecialties are bound,
you ſhall haue a ſight of them.
ſhall ſuffice me; at which enterview,
reaſon would I yeeld voto:
receiue ſuch welcome at my hand,
, without breach of Honour may er of, to thy true worthineſſe.
ot come faire Princeſſe in my gates,
without you ſhall be ſo receiu'd,
deeme your ſelfe lodg'd in my heart,
deni'd farther harbour in my boſſe:
good thoughts excuſe me,and farewell,
we ſhall viſit you againe.
weet health & faire deſires conſort your grace.
y own wiſh wiſh I thee,in euery place. Exit.

Boy. Lady, I will commend you to my owne heart.
La.Ro. Pray you doe my commendations,
I would be glad to ſee it.
Boy. I would you heard it grone.
La.Ro. Is the ſoule ſicke?
Boy. Sicke at the heart.
La.Ro. Alacke,let it bloud.
Boy. Would that doe it good?
La.Ro My Phiſicke ſaies I.
Boy Will you prick't with your eye.
La Ro. No poynt, with my knife.
Boy. Now God ſaue thy life.
La.Ro. And yours from long liuing.
Ber. I cannot ſtay thankſ-giuing. Exit.

Enter Dumaine.

Dum. Sir,I pray you a word: What Lady is that ſame?
Boy. The heire of Alanſon,Roſalin her name.
Dum. A gallant Lady, Mounſier fare you well.
Long. I beſeech you a word:what is ſhe in the white?
Boy. A woman ſometimes, if you ſaw her in the light.
Long. Perchance light in the light: I deſire her name
Boy. Shee hath but one for her ſelfe,
To deſire that were a ſhame.
Long. Pray you ſir, whoſe daughter?
Boy. Her Mothers, I haue heard.
Long. Gods bleſſing a your beard.
Boy. Good ſir be not offended,
Shee is an heyre of Faulconbridge.
Long. Nay, my choller is ended:
Shee is a moſt ſweet Lady. Exit Long.
Boy. Not vnlike ſir, that may be.

Enter Berowne.

Ber. What's her name in the cap.
Boy. Katherine by good hap.
Ber. Is ſhe wedded, or no.
Boy. To her will ſir, or ſo.
Ber. You are welcome ſir, adieu.
Boy. Fare well to me ſir, and welcome to you. Exit.
La Ma. That laſt is Berowne,the mery mad-cap Lord.
Not a word with him, but a ieſt.
Boy. And euery ieſt but a word.
Prin. It was well done of you to take him at his word.
Boy. I was as willing to grapple,as he was to boord
La.Ma. Two hot Sheepes marie:
And wherefore not Ships? (lips.
Boy. No Sheepe(ſweet Lamb) vnleſſe we feed on your
La. You Sheep & I paſture: ſhall that finiſh the ieſt?
Boy. So you grant paſture for me.
La. Not ſo gentle beaſt.
My lips are no Common, though ſeuerall they be.
Bo. Belonging to whom?
La. To my fortunes and me.
Prin. Good wits will be iangling but gentles agree.
This ciuill warre of wits were much better vſed
On Nauar and his bookemen,for heere 'tis abus'd.
Bo. If my obſeruation(which very ſeldome lies
By the hearts ſtill rhetoricke,diſcloſed with eyes)
Deceiue me not now, Nauar is infected.
Prin. With what?
Bo. With that which we Louers intitle affected.
Prin. Your reaſon.
Bo. Why all his behauiours doe make their retire,
To the court of his eye,peeping thorough deſire.
His hart like an Agot with your print impreſſed,

Proud

Proud with his forme, in his eie pride expreſſed.
His tongue all impatient to ſpeake and not ſee,
Did ſtumble with haſte in his eie-ſight to be,
All ſences to that ſence did make their repaire,
To feele onely looking on faireſt of faire:
Me thought all his ſences were lockt in his eye,
As Iewels in Chriſtall for ſome Prince to buy. (gliſt,
Who tendring their own worth from whence they were
Did point out to buy them along as you paſt
His faces owne margent did coate ſuch amazes,
That all eyes ſaw his eies inchanted with gazes.
Ile giue you Aquitaine, and all that is his,
And you giue him for my ſake, but one louing Kiſſe.

Prin. Come to our Pauillion, Boyet is diſpoſde.

Bro. But to ſpeak that in words, which his eie hath diſ- (clos'd.
I onelie haue made a mouth of his eie,
By adding a tongue, which I know will not lie.

Lad.Ro. Thou art an old Loue-monger, and ſpeakeſt skilfully.

Lad.Ma. He is Cupids Grandfather, and learnes news of him.

Lad.1. Then was Venus like her mother, for her father is but grim.

Boy. Do you heare my mad wenches?

La.1. No.

Boy. What then, do you ſee?

Lad.2. I, our way to be gone.

Boy. You are too hard for me. Exeunt omnes.

Actus Tertius.

Enter Braggart and Boy.

Song.

Bra. Warble childe, make paſſionate my ſenſe of hearing.

Boy. Concolinel.

Brag. Sweete Ayer, go tenderneſſe of yeares: take this Key, giue enlargement to the ſwaine, bring him feſtinatly hither: I muſt imploy him in a letter to my Loue.

Boy. Will you win your loue with a French braule?

Bra. How meaneſt thou, brauling in French?

Boy. No my compleat maſter, but to Iigge off a tune at the tongues end, canarie to it with the feete, humour it with turning vp your eie: ſigh a note and ſing a note, ſometime through the throate: if you ſwallowed loue with ſinging, loue ſometime through: noſe as if you ſnaft vp loue by ſmelling loue with your hat penthouſe-like ore the ſhop of your eies, with your armes croſt on your thinbellie doublet, like a Rabbet on a ſpit, or your hands in your pocket, like a man after the old painting, and keepe not too long in one tune, but a ſnip and away: theſe are complements, theſe are humours, theſe beſraie nice wenches that would be betraied without theſe, and make them men of note: do you note men that moſt are affected to theſe?

Brag. How haſt thou purchaſed this experience?

Boy. By my penne of obſeruation.

Brag. But O, but O.

Boy. The Hobbie-horſe is forgot.

Bra. Cal'ſt thou my loue Hobbi-horſe.

Boy. No Maſter, the Hobbie-horſe is but a Colt, and and your Loue perhaps, a Hackney:

But haue you forgot your Loue?

Brag. Almoſt I had.

Boy. Negligent ſtudent, learne her by heart.

Brag. By heart, and in heart Boy.

Boy. And out of heart Maſter: all thoſe three I will proue.

Brag. What wilt thou proue?

Boy. A man, if I liue (and this) by, in, and without, vpon the inſtant: by heart you loue her, becauſe your heart cannot coene by her: in heart you loue her, becauſe your heart is in loue with her: and out of heart you loue her, being out of heart that you cannot enioy her.

Brag. I am all theſe three.

Boy. And three times as much more, and yet nothing at all.

Brag. Fetch hither the Swaine, he muſt carrie me a letter.

Boy. A meſſage well ſimpathiz'd, a Horſe to be ambaſſadour for an Aſſe.

Brag. Ha, ha, What ſaieſt thou?

Boy. Marrie ſir, you muſt ſend the Aſſe vpon the Horſe for he is verie ſlow gated: but I go.

Brag. The way is but ſhort, away.

Boy. As ſwift as Lead ſir.

Brag. Thy meaning prettie ingenious, is not Lead a merrall heauie, dull, and ſlow?

Boy. Minimum honeſt Maſter, or rather Maſter no.

Brad. I ſay Lead is ſlow.

Boy. You are too ſwift ſir to ſay ſo.
Is that Lead ſlow which is fir'd from a Gunne?

Brag. Sweete ſmoke of Rhetorike,
He reputes me a Cannon, and the Bullet that's he:
I ſhoote thee at the Swaine.

Boy. Thump then, and I flee.

Bra. A moſt acute Iuuenall, voluble and free of grace,
By thy fauour ſweet Welkin, I muſt ſigh in thy face.
Moſt rude melancholie, Valour giues thee place.
My Herald is return'd.

Enter Page and Clowne.

Pag. A wonder Maſter, here's a Coſtard broken in a ſhin.

Ar. Some enigma, ſome riddle, come, thy Lenuy begin.

Clo. No egma, no riddle, no lenuy, no ſalue, in thee male ſir. Or ſir, Plantan, a plaine Plantan: no lenuy, no lenuy, no Salue ſir, but a Plantan.

Ar. By vertue thou inforceſt laughter, thy ſillie thought, my ſpleene, the heauing of my lunges prouoked me to rediculous ſmyling: O pardon me my ſtars, doth the inconſiderate take ſalue for lenuy, and the word lenuy for a ſalue?

Pag. Doe the wiſe thinke them other, is not lenuy a ſalue? (plaine,

Ar. No Page, it is an epilogue or diſcourſe to make Some obſcure precedence that hath tofore bin faine
Now will I begin your morrall, and do you follow with my lenuy.
The Foxe, the Ape, and the Humble-Bee,
Were ſtill at oddes, being but three.

Arm. Vntill the Gooſe came out of doore,
Staying the oddes by adding foure.

Pag. A good Lenuy, ending in the Gooſe: would you deſire more?

Clo. The Boy hath ſold him a bargaine, a Gooſe, that's flat worth it good, and your Goose be set

e well it as cunning as fast and loose:
Lemmy, I that's a fat Goose.
ither, come hither:
gument begin?
g that a Cossard was broken in a shin or the Lemmy
nd I for a Plantan:
t arguments in fat Lemmy, the Goose that you bought,
e market.
me: How was there a Cossard broken in ll you sencibly.

ast no feeling of it Moth,
t Lemmy.
t out, that was safely within,
e shold, and broke my shin
ll talke no more of this matter ere be more matter in the shin.
Lord, I will infranchise thee.
me me to one Frances, I smell some Lanin this.
sweete soule, I meane, setting thee at li-oming thy person: thou were emured, ested, bound.
rue, and now you will be my purgation,

there thy libertie, set thee from durance, eof, impose on thee nothing but this:
rant as the courtesy Maide Esquerretta:
ation, for the best ward of mine honours dependance. Adieu, follow.
e sequell I.
adew. Exit.
weete ounce of mans flesh, my in-come
I looke to his remuneration.
O, that's the Latine word for three-farfarthings remuneration. What's the price
Lee, I'le giue you a remuneration: Why?
uneration: Why? It is a fairer name then ne. I will never buy and sell out of this

Enter Berowne.

ood morrow Costard, exceedingly well met you sir, How much Carnation Ribbon for a remuneration?
is a remuneration?
Sir, halfe penie farthing.
y then three farthings worth of Silke.
e your worship, God be wy you.
haue, I must employ thee:
in my favour, good my knaue.
for me that I shall intreate.
would you haue it done sir?
after-noone,
will doe it sir: Fare you well.
know well not what it is.
now sir, when I haue done it.
illaine thou must know first.
me to your worship to morrow morning.
be done this after-noone,
a bin this:
comes to hunt here in the Parke,
And in her traine there is a gentle Ladie:
When tongues speak sweetly, then they name her name,
And Rosaline they call her, aske for her:
And to her white hand see thou do commend
This seal'd-vp counsaile. There's thy guerdon: goe.
Cost. Guerdon, O sweete guerdon, better then remuneration, a leuenpence-farthing better: most sweete guerdon. I will doe it sir in print: guerdon, remuneration.
Exit.

Ber. O, and I forsooth in loue,
I that haue beene loues whip?
A verie Beadle to a humerous sigh: A Criticke,
Nay, a night-watch Constable,
A domineering pedant ore the Boy,
Then whom no mortall so magnificent.
This wimpled, whyning, purblinde waiward Boy,
This signior Iunios giant dwarfe, don Cupid,
Regent of Loue-rimes, Lord of folded armes,
Th'annointed soueraigne of sighes and groanes:
Liedge of all loyterers and malecontents:
Dread Prince of Placcats, King of Codpeeces
Sole Emperator and great generall
Of trotting Parrators (O my little heart.)
And I to be a Corporall of his field,
And weare his colours like a Tumblers hoope.
What? I loue, I sue, I seeke a wife,
A woman that is like a Germane Cloake,
Still a repairing: euer out of fraine,
And neuer going a right, being a Watch:
But being watcht, that it may still goe right,
Nay, to be perjurde, which is worst of all.
And among three, to loue the worst of all,
A whitly wanton, with a velvet brow,
With two pitch balls stucke in her face for eyes.
I, and by heauen, one that will doe the deede,
Though Argus were her Eunuch and her garde:
And I to sigh for her, to watch for her,
To pray for her, go to: it is a plague
That Cupid will impose for my neglect,
Of his almighty dreadfull little might.
Well, I will loue, write, sigh, pray, shue, grone,
Some men must loue my Lady, and some Ione.

Actus Quartus.

Enter the Princesse, a Forrester, her Ladies, and her Lords.

Qu. Was that the King that spurd his horse so hard,
Against the steepe vprising of the hill?
Boy. I know not, but I thinke it was not he.
Qu. Who ere a was, a shew'd a mounting minde:
Well Lords, to day we shall haue our dispatch,
On Saterday we will returne to France.
Then Forrester my friend, Where is the Bush
That we must stand and play the murderer in?
For. Hereby vpon the edge of yonder Coppice,
A Stand where you may make the fairest shoote.
Qu. I thanke my beautie, I am faire that shoote,
And therevpon thou speak'st the fairest shoote.
For. Pardon me Madam, for I meant not so.
Qu. What, what! First praise me, & then again say no.
O short liu'd pride. Not faire? alacke for woe
For. Yes

For. Yes Madam faire.

Qu. Nay,neuer paint me now,
Where faire is not,praiſe cannot mend the brow.
Here (good my glaſſe) take this for telling true:
Faire paiment for foule words,is more then due.

For. Nothing but faire is that which you inherit.

Qu. See,ſee,my beautie will be ſau'd by merit.
O hereſie in faire,fit for theſe dayes,
A giuing hand,though foule,ſhall haue faire praiſe.
But come,the Bow: Now Mercie goes to kill,
And ſhooting well,is then accounted ill:
Thus will I ſaue my credit in the ſhoote,
Not wounding,pittie would not let me do't:
If wounding, then it was to ſhew my skill,
That more for praiſe,then purpoſe meant to kill.
And out of queſtion,ſo it is ſometimes:
Glory growes guiltie of deteſted crimes,
When for Fames ſake,for praiſe an outward part,
We bend to that,the working of the hart.
As I for praiſe alone now ſeeke to ſpill
The poore Deeres blood,that my heart meanes no ill.

Boy. Do not curſt wiues hold that ſelfe-ſoueraignetie Onely for praiſe ſake,when they ſtriue to be Lords ore their Lords?

Qu. Onely for praiſe,and praiſe we may afford,
To any Lady that ſubdewes a Lord.

Enter Clowne.

Boy. Here comes a member of the common-wealth.

Clo. God dig-you-den all,pray you which is the head Lady?

Qu. Thou ſhalt know her fellow,by the reſt that haue no heads.

Clo. Which is the greateſt Lady,the higheſt?

Qu. The thickeſt,and the talleſt.

Clo. The thickeſt,& the talleſt: it is ſo,truth is truth.
And your waſte Miſtris, were as ſlender as my wit,
One a theſe Maides girdles for your waſte ſhould be fit.
Are not you the chiefe woman? You are the thickeſt here?

Qu. What's your will ſir? What's your will?

Clo. I haue a Letter from Monſier Berowne,
To one Lady Roſaline.

Qu O thy letter,thy letter:He's a good friend of mine.
Stand a ſide good bearer.
Boyet,you can carue,
Breake vp this Capon.

Boyet. I am bound to ſerue.
This Letter is miſtooke: it importeth none here:
It is writ to Iaquenetta.

Qu. We will reade it,I ſweare.
Breake the necke of the Waxe,and euery one giue eare.

Boyet reades.

BY heauen,that thou art faire, is moſt infallible: true that thou art beauteous, truth it ſelfe that thou art louely: more faire then faire,beautifull then beautious, truer then truth it ſelfe: haue comiſeration on thy heroicall Vaſſall. The magnanimous and moſt illuſtrate King Cophetua ſet eie vpon the pernicious and indubitate Begger Zenelophon: and he it was that might rightly ſay,Veni, vidi, vici: Which to annothanize in the vulgar, O baſe and obſcure vulgar; videliſet, He came, See,and ouercame: hee came one; ſee, two; ouercame three. Who came? the King. Why did he come? to ſee. Why did he ſee? to ouercome. To whom came he? to the Begger. What ſaw he? the Begger. Who ouercame he? the Begger. The concluſion is victorie: On whoſe ſide? the King: the captive is inricht: On whoſe ſide? the Beggers. The cataſtrophe is a Nuptiall: on whoſe ſide? the Kings: no,on both in one,or one in both. I am the King (for ſo ſtands the compariſon) thou the Begger, for ſo witneſſeth thy lowlineſſe. Shall I commend thy loue? I may. Shall I enforce thy loue? I could. Shall I entreate thy loue? I will. What, ſhalt thou exchange for ragges, robes: for tittles titles, for thy ſelfe mee. Thus expecting thy reply, I prophane my lips on thy foote, my eyes on thy picture, and my heart on thy euerie part.

Thine in the dearest deſigne of induſtrie,

Don Adriano de Armatho.

Thus doſt thou heare the Nemean Lion roare,
Gainſt thee thou Lambe, that ſtandeſt as his pray:
Submiſſiue fall his princely feete before,
And he from forrage will incline to play.
But if thou ſtriue (poore ſoule) what art thou then?
Foode for his rage, repaſture for his den.

Qu. What plume of feathers is hee that indited this Letter? What veine? What Wethercocke? Did you euer heare better?

Boy. I am much deceiued,but I remember the ſtile.

Qu. Elſe your memorie is bad, going orc it erewhile.

Boy. This Armado is a Spaniard that keeps here in court
A Phantaſime,a Monarcho,and one that makes ſport
To the Prince and his Booke-mates.

Qu Thou fellow, a word.
Who gaue thee this Letter?

Clow. I told you,my Lord.

Qu. To whom ſhould ſt thou giue it?

Clo. From my Lord to my Lady.

Qu. From which Lord,to which Lady?

Clo. From my Lord Berowne,a good maſter of mine,
To a Lady of France, that he call'd Roſaline.

Qu. Thou haſt miſtaken his letter. Come Lords away.
Here ſweete, put vp this, 'twill be thine another day.
Exeunt.

Boy. Who is the ſhooter? Who is the ſhooter?

Roſa. Shall I teach you to know.

Boy. I my continent of beautie.

Roſa. Why ſhe that beares the Bow. Finely put off.

Boy. My Lady goes to kill hornes, but if thou marrie,
Hang me by the necke,if hornes that yeare miſcarrie.
Finely put on.

Roſa. Well then,I am the ſhooter.

Boy. And who is your Deare?

Roſa. If we chooſe by the hornes,your ſelfe come not neare. Finely put on indeede.

Maria. You ſtill wrangle with her Boyet, and ſhee ſtrikes at the brow.

Boyet. But ſhe her ſelfe is hit lower:
Haue I hit her now.

Roſa. Shall I come vpon thee with an old ſaying,that was a man when King Pippin of France was a little boy,as touching the hit it.

Boyet. So I may anſwere thee with one as old that was a woman when Queene Guinouer of Britteine was a little wench, as touching the hit it.

Roſa. Thou

Boy. Thou canſt not hit it, hit it, hit it,
Thou canſt not hit it my good man.
Boy. I cannot, cannot, cannot:
And I cannot, another can. Exit.
Clo. By my troth moſt pleaſant, how both did fit it.
Mar. A mark'e marueilous well ſhot, for they both did hit.
Boy. A mark, O marke but that marke: a marke ſaies my Lady.
Let the mark haue a pricke in't, to meet at, if it may be.
Mar. Wide a'th bow hand, yfaith your hand is out.
Clo. Indeede a'muſt ſhoote nearer, or heele ne're hit the clout.
Boy. And if my hand be out, then belike your hand is in.
Clo. Then will ſhee get the vpſhoot by cleauing the pin.
Mar. Come, come, you talke greaſely, your lips grow foule
Clo. She's too hard for you at pricks, ſir challenge her to boule.
Boy. I feare too much rubbing: good night my good Oule.
Clo. By my ſoule a Swine, a moſt ſimple Clowne.
Lord, Lord, how the Ladies and I haue put him downe.
O my troth moſt ſweete iefts, moſt inconie vulgar wit,
When it comes ſo ſmoothly off, ſo obſcenely, as it were, ſo fit.
Armatho ath to the ſide, O a moſt dainty man.
To ſee him walke before a Lady, and to beare her Fan.
To ſee him kiſſe his hand, and how moſt ſweetly a will ſweare:
And his Page a nother ſide, that handfull of wit,
Ah heauens, it is moſt pathetically nit.
Sowle, ſowle. Exeunt.
Shoote within.

Enter Dull, Holofernes, the Pedant and Nathaniel.

Nat. Very reuerent ſport truely, and done in the teſtimony of a good conſcience.
Ped. The Deare was (as you know) ſanguis in blood, ripe as a Pomwater, who now hangeth like a Iewell in the eare of Cœlo the ſkie; the welken the heauen, and anon falleth like a Crab on the face of Terra, the ſoyle, the land, the earth.
Curat. Nath. Truely M. Holofernes, the epythithes are ſweetly varied like a ſcholler at the leaſt: but ſir I aſſure ye, it was a Bucke of the firſt head.
Hol. Sir Nathaniel, haud credo.
Dull. 'Twas not a haud credo, 'twas a Pricket.
Hol. Moſt barbarous intimation: yet a kinde of inſimation, as it were in via, in way of explication facere: as it were replication, or rather oſtendere, to ſhow as it were his inclination after his vntreſſed, vnpoliſhed, vneducated, vnpruned, vnſwained, or rather vnlettered, or ratheſt vnconfirmed faſhion, to inſert againe my haud credo for a Deare.
Dull. I ſaid the Deare was not a haud credo, 'twas a Pricket.
Hol. Twice ſod ſimplicitie, bis coctus, O thou monſter Ignorance, how deformed dooſt thou looke.
Nath. Sir he hath neuer fed of the dainties that are bred in a booke.
He hath not eate paper as it were:
He hath not drunke inke.
His intellect is not repleniſhed, hee is onely an animall onely ſenſible in the duller parts: and ſuch barren plants are ſet before vs, that we thankfull ſhould be: which we taſte and feeling, are for thoſe parts that doe fructifie in vs more then he.
For as it would ill become me to be vaine, indiſcreet, or a foole;
So were there a patch ſet on Learning, to ſee him in a Schoole.
But omne bene ſay I, being of an old Fathers minde,
Many can brooke the weather, that loue not the winde.
Dull. You two are book-men: Can you tell by your wit, What was a month old at Cains birth, that's not fiue weekes old as yet?
Hol. Diſtiſima goodman Dull, diſtiſima goodman Dull.
Dull. What is diſtima?
Nath. A title to Phebe, to Luna, to the Moone.
Hol. The Moone was a month old when Adam was no more, (ſcore.
And wrought not to fiue-weekes when he came to fiue-
Th'alluſion holds in the Exchange.
Dul. 'Tis true indeede, the Colluſion holds in the Exchange.
Hol. God comfort thy capacity, I ſay th'alluſion holds in the Exchange.
Dul. And I ſay the poluſion holds in the Exchange: for the Moone is neuer but a month old: and I ſay beſide that, twas a Pricket that the Princeſſe kill'd.
Hol. Sir Nathaniel, will you heare an extemporall Epytaph on the death of the Deare, and to humour the ignorant call'd the Deare, the Princeſſe kill'd a Pricket.
Nath. Perge, good M. Holofernes, perge, ſo it ſhall pleaſe you to abrogate ſcurilitie.
Hol I will ſomething affect the letter, for it argues facilitie.

The praiſefull Princeſſe pearſt and prickt
a pretty pleaſing Pricket,
Some ſay a Sore, but not a ſore,
till now made ſore with ſhooting
The Dogges did yell, put all to Sore,
then Sorell ſtungs from thicket:
Or Pricket-ſore, or elſe Sorell,
the people fall a hooting.
If Sore be ſore, then all to Sore,
makes fifti ſores O ſorell:
Of one ſore I an hundred make by adding but one more L.

Nath. A rare talent.
Dul. If a talent be a claw, looke how he claws him with a talent.
Nath. This is a gift that I haue ſimple: ſimple, a fooliſh extrauagant ſpirit, full of formes, figures, ſhapes, obiects, Ideas, apprehenſions, motions, reuolutions. Theſe are begot in the ventricle of memorie, nouriſht in the wombe of primater, and deliuered vpon the mellowing of occaſion: but the gift is good in thoſe in whom it is acute, and I am thankfull for it.
Hol. Sir, I praiſe the Lord for you, and ſo may my pariſhioners, for their Sonnes are well tutor'd by you, and their Daughters profit very greatly vnder you: you are a good member of the common-wealth.
Nath. Me hercle, If their Sonnes be ingenuous, they ſhall ſhall want no inſtruction: If their Daughters be capable, I will put it to them. But Vir ſapit qui pauca loquitur, a ſoule Feminine ſaluteth vs.

Enter Iaquenetta and the Clowne.

Iaqu. God giue you good morrow M. Perſon.

Nath. Maſter Perſon, quaſi Perſon? And if one ſhould be perſt, Which is the one?

Clo Marry M. Schoolemaſter, hee that is likeſt to a hogſhead.

Nath. Of perſing a Hogſhead, a good luſter of conceit in a turph of Earth, Fire enough for a Flirt, Pearle enough for a Swine: 'tis pretty, it is well.

Iaqu. Good Maſter Perſon be ſo good as reade mee this Letter, it was giuen mee by Coſtard, and ſent mee from Don Armatho: I beſeech you reade it.

Nath. Facile precor gelidæ, quando pecus omnia ſub umbra ruminat, and ſo forth. Ah good old Mantuan, I may ſpeake of thee as the traueiler doth of Venice, vnecchio, vnecchia, quæ non te vnde, quæ non te perrecche. Old Mantuan, old Mantuan. Who vnderſtandeth thee not, ve re ſol la mi fa: Vnder pardon ſir, What are the contents? or rather as Horace ſayes in his, What my ſoule verſes.

Bel. I ſir, and very learned.

Nath. Let me heare a ſtaffe, a ſtaffe, a verſe, Lege domine.

If Loue make me forſworne, how ſhall I ſweare to loue?
Ah neuer faith could hold, if not to beautie vowed.
Though to my ſelfe forſworn, to thee Ile faithfull proue.
Thoſe thoughts to me were Okes, to thee like Oſiers bowed.
Studie his byas leaues, and makes his booke thine eyes.
Where all thoſe pleaſures liue, that Art would comprehend.
If knowledge be the marke, to know thee ſhall ſuffice.
Well learned is that tongue, that well can thee commend.
All ignorant that ſoule, that ſees thee without wonder.
Which is to me ſome praiſe, that I thy parts admire;
Thy eye Ioues lightning bearer, thy voyce his dreadfull thunder.
Which not to anger bent, is muſique, and ſweet fire.
Celeſtiall as thou art, Oh pardon loue this wrong,
That ſings heauens praiſe, with ſuch an earthly tongue.

Ped. You finde not the apoſtraphas, and ſo miſſe the accent. Let me ſuperuiſe the canzonet.

Nath. Here are onely numbers ratified, but for the elegancy, facility, & golden cadence of poeſie caret: O-uidius Naſo was the man. And why indeed Naſo, but for ſmelling out the odoriferous flowers of fancy? the leſſer is inuention imitarie is nothing: So doth the Hound his maſter, the Ape his keeper, the tyred Horſe his rider: But Domoſella virgo, Was this directed to you?

Iaq. I ſir from one mounſier Berowne, one of the ſtrange Queenes Lords.

Nath. I will ouerglance the ſuperſcript.
To the ſnow-white hand of the moſt beauteous Lady Roſaline.
I will looke againe on the intellect of the Letter, for the nomination of the parte written to the perſon written vnto.

Your Ladiſhips in all deſired employment, Berowne.

Ped. Sir Holofernes, this Berowne is one of the Votaries with the King, and here he hath framed a Letter to a ſequent of the ſtranger Queenes: which accidentally, or by the way of progreſſion, hath miſcarried. Trip and goe my ſweete, deliuer this Paper into the hand of the King, it may concerne much: ſtay not thy compliment, I forgiue thy dutie, adue.

Maid. Good Coſtard go with me:
Sir God ſaue your life.

Coſt. Haue with thee my girle. Exit.

Hol. Sir you haue done this in the feare of God very religiouſly: and as a certaine Father ſaith

Ped. Sir tell not me of the Father, I do feare colourable colours. But to returne to the Verſes. Did they pleaſe you ſir Nathaniel?

Nath. Marueilous well for the pen.

Ped. I do dine to day at the fathers of a certaine Pupill of mine, where if (being repaſt) it ſhall pleaſe you to gratifie the table with a Grace, I will on my priuiledge I haue with the parents of the foreſaid Childe or Pupill, vndertake your bien venuto, where I will proue thoſe Verſes to be very vnlearned, neither ſauouring of Poetrie, Wit, nor Inuention. I beſeech your Societie.

Nat. And thanke you too: for ſocietie (ſaith the text) is the happineſſe of life.

Ped. And certes the text moſt infallibly concludes it. Sir I do inuite you too, you ſhall not ſay me nay: pauca verba.
Away, the gentles are at their game, and we will to our recreation. Exeunt.

Enter Berowne with a Paper in his hand, alone.

Bero. The King he is hunting the Deare,
I am courſing my ſelfe.
They haue pitcht a Toyle, I am toyling in a pytch, pitch that defiles; defile, a foule word: Well, ſet thee downe ſorrow; for ſo they ſay the foole ſaid, and ſo ſay I, and I the foole: Well proued wit. By the Lord this Loue is as mad as Aiax, it kils ſheepe, it kils mee, I a ſheepe: Well proued againe a my ſide. I will not loue: If I do hang me: yfaith I will not. O but her eye: by this light, but for her eye, I would not loue her; yes, for her two eyes. Well, I doe nothing in the world but lye, and lye in my throate. By heauen I doe loue, and it hath taught mee to Rime, and to be mallicholie: and here is part of my Rime, and heere my mallicholie. Well, ſhe hath one a my Sonnets already, the Clowne bore it, the Foole ſent it, and the Lady hath it: ſweet Clowne, ſweeter Foole, ſweeteſt Lady. By the world, I would not care a pin, if the other three were in. Here comes one with a paper, God giue him grace to grone.
He ſtands aſide. The King entreth.

Kin. Ay mee!

Ber. Shot by heauen: proceede ſweet Cupid, thou haſt thumpt him with thy Birdbolt vnder the left pap: in faith ſecrets.

King. So ſweete a kiſſe the golden Sunne giues not,
To thoſe freſh morning drops vpon the Roſe,
As thy eye beames, when their freſh rayſe haue ſmot.
The night of dew that on my cheekes downe flowes:
Nor ſhines the ſiluer Moone one halfe ſo bright;
Through the tranſparent boſome of the deepe.
As doth thy face through teares of mine giue light:
Thou ſhin'ſt in euery teare that I doe weepe,
No drop, but as a Coach doth carry thee:
So rideſt thou triumphing in my woe.
Do but behold the teares that ſwell in me,
And they thy glory through my griefe will ſhow:

But

ot loue thy ſelfe, then thou wilt keepe es for glaſſes, and ſtill make me weepe.
ne of Queenes, how farre doſt thou excell,
ght can thinke, nor tongue of mortall tell.
ll ſhe know my griefes? Ile drop the paper.
aues ſhade folly. Who is he comes heere?

Enter Longauile. The King ſteps aſide.

ongauill, and reading: liſten eare.
Now in thy likeneſſe, one more foole appeare.
Ay me, I am forſworne.
Why he comes in like a periure, wearing papers.
In loue I hope, ſweet fellowſhip in ſhame.
One drunkard loues another of the name.
Am I the firſt ỷ haue been periur'd ſo? (know,
I could put thee in comfort, not by two that I keſt the triumphery, the corner cap of ſocietie,
e of Loues Tiburne, that hangs vp ſimplicitie.
I feare theſe ſtubborn lines lack power to moue.
Maria, Empreſſe of my Loue,
mbers will I teare, and write in proſe.
O Rimes are gards on wanton Cupids hoſe,
e not his Shop.
This ſame ſhall goe. He reades the Sonnet.
not the heauenly Rhetoricke of thine eye,
'gainſt whom the world cannot hold argument,
ſwade my heart to this falſe periurie?
es for thee broke deſerue not puniſhment.
Woman I forſwore, but I will proue,
u being a Goddeſſe, I forſwore not thee.
Vow was earthly, thou a heauenly Loue.
grace being gain'd, cures all diſgrace in me.
es are but breath, and breath a vapour is.
n thou faire Sun, which on my earth doſt ſhine, haleſt this vapor-vow, in thee it is:
oken then, it is no fault of mine:
ne broke, what foole is not ſo wiſe
ſe an oath, to win a Paradiſe?
his is the liuer veine, which makes fleſh a deity.
Gooſe, a Goddeſſe, pure pure Idolatry.
nd vs, God amend, we are much out o'th'way.

Enter Dumaine.

By whom ſhall I ſend this (company?) Stay.
All hid, all hid, an old infant play,
mie God, here ſit I in the skie, tched fooles ſecrets heedfully ore-eye.
cks to the myll. O heauens I haue my wiſh, transform'd, foure Woodcocks in a diſh.
O moſt diuine Kate.
O moſt prophane coxcombe.
By heauen the wonder of a mortall eye.
By earth ſhe is not, corporall, there you lye.
Her Amber haires for foule hath amber coted.
An Amber coloured Rauen was well noted.
As vpright as the Cedar.
Stoope I ſay her ſhoulder is with-child.
As faire as day.
as ſome daies, but then no ſunne muſt ſhine.
O that I had my wiſh?
And I had mine.
And mine too good Lord.
Amen, ſo I had mine: Is not that a good word?
I would forget her, but a Feuer ſhe
n my blood, and will remembred be.
A Feuer in your blood, why then inciſion
Would let her out in Sawcers, ſweet miſpriſion.
Dum. Once more Ile read the Ode that I haue writ.
Ber. Once more Ile marke how Loue can varry Wit.

Dumaine reades his Sonnet.

On a day, alack the day:
Loue, whoſe Month is euery May,
Spied a bloſſome paſſing faire,
Playing in the wanton ayre:
Through the Veluet, leaues the winde,
All vnſeene, can paſſage finde.
That the Louer ſicke to death,
Wiſh himſelfe the heauens breath.
Ayre (quoth he) thy cheekes may blowe,
Ayre, would I might triumph ſo.
But alacke my hand is ſworne,
Nere to plucke thee from thy throne:
Vow alacke for youth vnmeete,
Youth ſo apt to plucke a ſweet.
Doe not call it ſinne in me,
That I am forſworne for thee.
Thou for whom Ioue would ſweare,
Iuno but an Æthiop were,
And denie himſelfe for Ioue.
Turning mortall for thy Loue.

This will I ſend, and ſomething elſe more plaine.
That ſhall expreſſe my true-loues faſting paine.
O would the King, Berowne and Longauill,
Were Louers too, ill to example ill,
Would from my forehead wipe a periur'd note:
For none offend, where all alike doe dote.
Lon. Dumaine, thy Loue is farre from charitie,
That in Loues griefe deſir'ſt ſocietie:
You may looke pale, but I ſhould bluſh I know,
To be ore-heard, and taken napping ſo.
Kin. Come ſir, you bluſh: as his, your caſe is ſuch,
You chide at him, offending twice as much.
You doe not loue Maria? Longauile,
Did neuer Sonnet for her ſake compile;
Nor neuer lay his wreathed armes athwart
His louing boſome, to keepe downe his heart.
I haue beene cloſely ſhrowded in this buſh,
And markt you both, and for you both did bluſh.
I heard your guilty Rimes, obſeru'd your faſhion:
Saw ſighes reeke from you, noted well your paſſion.
Aye me, ſayes one! O Ioue, the other cries!
On her haires were Gold, Chriſtall the others eyes.
You would for Paradiſe breake Faith and troth,
And Ioue for your Loue would infringe an oath.
What will Berowne ſay when that he ſhall heare
Faith infringed, which ſuch zeale did ſweare.
How will he ſcorne? how will he ſpend his wit?
How will he triumph, leape, and laugh at it?
For all the wealth that euer I did ſee,
I would not haue him know ſo much by me.
Bero. Now ſtep I forth to whip hypocriſie.
Ah good my Liedge, I pray thee pardon me.
Good heart, What grace haſt thou thus to reproue
Theſe wormes for louing, that art moſt in loue?
Your eyes doe make no couches in your teares.
There is no certaine Princeſſe that appeares.
You'll not be periur'd, 'tis a hatefull thing:
Tuſh, none but Minſtrels like of Sonnetting.
But are you not aſham'd? nay, are you not

All three of you, to be thus much ore'ſhot?
You found his Moth, the King your Moth did ſee:
But I a Beame doe finde in each of three.
O what a Scene of fool'ry haue I ſeene,
Of ſighes, of grones, of ſorrow, and of teene:
O me, with what ſtrict patience haue I ſat,
To ſee a King transformed to a Gnat?
To ſee great Hercules whipping a Gigge,
And profound Salomon tuning a lygge?
And Neſtor play at puſh-pin with the boyes,
And Critticke Timon laugh at idle toyes.
Where lies thy griefe? O tell me good Dumaine:
And gentle Longauill, where lies thy paine?
And where my Liedges? all about the breſt:
A Candle hoa!

Kin. Too bitter is thy ieſt.
Are wee betrayed thus to thy ouer-view?

Ber. Not you by me, but I betrayed to you.
I that am honeſt, I that hold it ſinne
To breake the vow I am ingaged in.
I am betrayed by keeping company
With men, like men of inconſtancie.
When ſhall you ſee me write a thing in rime?
Or grone for Ioane? or ſpend a minutes time,
In pruning mee, when ſhall you heare that I will praiſe a hand, a foot, a face, an eye: a gate, a ſtate, a brow, a breſt, a waſte, a legge, a limme.

Kin. Soft, Whither a-way ſo faſt?
A true man, or a theefe, that gallops ſo.

Ber. I poſt from Loue, good Louer let me go

Enter Iaquenetta and Clowne.

Iaqu. God bleſſe the King.

Kin. What Preſence haſt thou there?

Clo. Some certaine treaſon.

Kin. What makes treaſon heere?

Clo. Nay it makes nothing ſir.

Kin. If it marre nothing neither,
The treaſon and you goe in peace away together

Iaqu. I beſeech your Grace let this Letter be read,
Our perſon miſ-doubts it: it was treaſon he ſaid.

Kin. Berowne, read it ouer. He reades the Letter.

Kin. Where hadſt thou it?

Iaqu. Of Coſtard.

King. Where hadſt thou it?

Coſt. Of Don Adramadio, Don Adramadio.

Kin. How now, what is in you? why doſt thou tear it?

Ber. A toy my Liedge, a toy: your grace needes not feare it.

Long. It did moue him to paſſion, and therefore let's heare it.

Dum. It is Berownes writing, and heere is his name.

Ber. Ah you whoreſon loggerhead, you were borne to doe me ſhame.
Guilty my Lord, guilty: I confeſſe, I confeſſe.

Kin. What?

Ber. That you three fooles, lacke mee foole, to make vp the meſſe.
He, he, and you: and you my Liedge, and I,
Are picke-purſes in Loue, and we deſerue to die.
O diſmiſſe this audience, and I ſhall tell you more.

Dum. Now the number is euen

Berow. True true, we are foure: will theſe Turtles be gone?

Kin. Hence ſirs, away.

Clo. Walk aſide the true folke, & let the traytors ſtay.

Ber. Sweet Lords, ſweet Louers, O let vs imbrace,
As true we are as fleſh and bloud can be,
The Sea will ebbe and flow, heauen will ſhew his face:
Young bloud doth not obey an old decree.
We cannot croſſe the cauſe why we are borne:
Therefore of all hands muſt we be forſworne.

King. What, did theſe rent lines ſhew ſome loue of thine? (Roſaline,

Ber. Did they, quoth you? Who ſees the heauenly
That, like a rude and ſauage man of Inde,)
At the firſt opening of the gorgeous Eaſt,
Bowes not his vaſſall head, and ſtrooken blinde,
Kiſſes the baſe ground with obedient breaſt
What peremptory Eagle-ſighted eye
Dares looke vpon the heauen of her brow,
That is not blinded by her maieſtie?

Kin. What zeale, what furie, hath inſpir'd thee now?
My Loue (her Miſtreſs) is a gracious Moone,
Shee (an attending Starre) ſcarce ſeene a light.

Ber. My eyes are then no eyes, nor I Berowne:
O, but for my Loue, day would turne to night,
Of all complexions the cul'd ſouereignty,
Doe meet as at a faire in her faire cheeke,
Where euerall Worthies make one dignity,
Where nothing wants, that want it ſelfe doth ſeeke.
Lend me the flouriſh of all gentle tongues,
Fie painted Rethoricke, O ſhe needs it not,
To things of ſale, a ſellers praiſe belongs:
She paſſes praiſe, then praiſe too ſhort doth blot.
A withered Hermite, fiueſcore winters worne,
Might ſhake off fiftie, looking in her eye:
Beauty doth varniſh Age, as if new borne,
And giues the Crutch the Cradles infancie.
O 'tis the Sunne that maketh all things ſhine.

King. By heauen, thy Loue is blacke as Ebonie.

Berow. Is Ebonie like her? O word diuine?
A wife of ſuch wood were felicitie.
O who can giue an oth? Where is a booke?
That I may ſweare Beauty doth beauty lacke,
If that ſhe learne not of her eye to looke:
No face is faire that is not full ſo blacke.

Kin. O paradoxe, Blacke is the badge of hell,
The hue of dungeons, and the Schoole of night:
And beauties creſt becomes the heauens well.

Ber. Diuels ſoonеſt tempt reſembling ſpirits of light.
O if in blacke my Ladies browes be deckt,
It mournes, that painting vſurping haire
Should raviſh doters with a falſe aſpect:
And therfore is ſhe borne to make blacke, faire.
Her fauour turnes the faſhion of the dayes,
For natiue bloud is counted painting now:
And therefore red that would auoyd diſpraiſe,
Paints it ſelfe blacke, to imitate her brow.

Dum. To looke like her are Chimny-ſweepers blacke.

Lon. And ſince her time, are Colliers counted bright.

King. And Æthiops of their ſweet complexion crake.

Dum. Dark needs no Candles now, for dark is light.

Ber. Your miſtreſſes dare neuer come in rayne,
For feare their colours ſhould be waſhte away.

Kin. 'Twere good yours did: for ſir to tell you plaine.
Ile finde a fairer face not waſht to day.

Ber. Ile proue her faire, or talke till doome-day heere.

Kin. No Diuell will fright thee then ſo much as ſhee.

Dumai. I neuer knew man hold vile ſtuffe ſo deare.

Lon. Looke, heer's thy loue, my foot and her face ſee.

Ber. O if the ſtreets were paued with thine eyes,

Her

were much too dainty for ſuch tread.
O vile, then as ſhe goes what vpward lyes?
ſt ſhould ſee as ſhe walk'd ouer head.
But what of this, are we not all in loue?
O nothing ſo ſure, and thereby all forſwome.
Then leaue this chat, & good Berowne now proue ng is wilfull, and out ſayth not borne.
I marie there, ſome flattery for this euill.
O ſome authority how to proceed,
icks, ſome quillets, how to cheat the diuell.
Some ſalue for periurie.
O 'tis more then needs.
you then affections men at armes,
e what you firſt did ſweare vnto:
to ſtudy, and to ſee no woman:
ſtan againſt the Kingly ſtare of youth.
you faſt? your ſtomacks are too young:
Wherce ingenders maladies.
ere that you haue vow'd to ſtudie (Lords)
ach of you haue forſworne his Booke.
ſtill dreame and pore, and thereon looke.
n would you my Lord, or you, or you,
und the ground of ſtudies excellence,
t the beauty of a womans face;
ances eyes this doctrine I derive,
the Ground, the Bookes, the Achademe, hence doth ſpring the true Promethean fire.
uerſall plodding poyſons vp ble ſpirits in the arteries, on and long during action tyres
owy vigour of the trauailer.
not looking on a womans face,
e in that forſworne the vſe of eyes:
he too, the enacter of your vow.
re is any Author in the world,
ſuch beauty as a womans eye:
g is but an adiunct to our ſelfe, ere we are, our Learning likewiſe is:
ſen our ſe'ues we ſee in Ladies eyes,
r ſelues.
not like wiſe ſee our learning there?
ue made a Vow to ſtudie, Lords,
hat vow we haue forſworne our Bookes:
n would you (my Leege) or you, or you?
r contemplation haue found out
y Numbers as the prompting eyes, ties tutors haue inrich'd you with:
ow Arts intirely keepe the braine:
refore finding barraine practizers,
hew a hatrell of their beauty toyle.
e firſt learned in a Ladies eyes,
ve alone enamel'd in the braine:
h the motion of all elements.
as ſwift as thought in euery power,
ue to euery power a double power.
aine ſimbleſt and their offices.
a precious ſeeing to the eye:
eyes will gaze an Eagle blinde
ſt rare will beare the loweſt ſound
he ſuſpicious head of theft is ſtopt.
ſeling is more ſoft and ſenſible,
the tender hornes of Cockled Snayles.
ngue proues dainty. Bacchus groſſe in taſte,
ſour, is not Loue a Hercules?
ming trees in the Heſperides
a Ipbime, as ſweet and muſicall,
As bright Apollo's Lute, ſtrung with his haire.
And when Loue ſpeakes, the voyce of all the Gods,
Make heauen drowſie with the harmonie.
Neuer durſt Poet touch a pen to write,
Vntill his Inke were temper'd with Loues ſighes?
O then his lines would rauiſh ſauage eares,
And plant in Tyrants milde humilitie.
From womens eyes this doctrine I deriue
They ſparcle ſtill the right promethean fire,
They are the Bookes, the Arts, the Achademes,
That ſhew, contains, and nourriſh all the world.
Elſe none at all in ought proues excellent.
Then fooles you were theſe women to forſweare:
Or keeping what is ſworne, you will proue fooles,
For Wiſedomes ſake, a word that all men loue:
Or for Loues ſake, a word that loues all men.
Or for Mens ſake, the author of theſe Women.
Or Womens ſake, by whom we men are Men.
Let's once looſe our oathes to finde our ſelues,
Or elſe we looſe our ſelues, to keepe our oathes:
It is religion to be thus forſworne.
For Charity it ſelfe fulfills the Law:
And who can ſeuer loue from Charity.
King. Saint Cupid then, and Soulidiers to the field.
Ber. Aduance your Standards, & vpon them Lords.
Pell, mell, downe with them: but be firſt aduiſ'd,
In conflict that you get the Sunne of them.
Long. Now to plaine dealing. Lay theſe glozes by,
Shall we reſolue to woe theſe girles of France?
King. And winne them too, therefore let vs deuiſe,
Some entertainment for them in their Tents.
Ber. Firſt from the Park let vs conduct them thither,
Then homeward euery man attach the hand
Of his faire Miſtreſſe, in the afternoone
We will with ſome ſtrange paſtime ſolace them:
Such as the ſhortneſſe of the time can ſhape,
For Reuels, Dances, Maskes, and merry houres,
Fore-runne faire Loue, ſtrewing her way with flowres.
King. Away away, no time ſhall be omitted,
That will be time, and may by vs be fitted.
Ber. Alone, alone ſowed Cockell, reap'd no Corne,
And Iuſtice alwaies whirles in equall manure:
Light Wenches may proue plagues to men forſworne,
If ſo, our Copper buyes no better treaſure. Exeunt.

Actus Quartus.

Enter the Pedant, Curate and Dull.

Pedant. Satis quid ſufficit.

Curat. I praiſe God for you ſir, your reaſons at dinner haue beene ſharpe & ſententious: pleaſant without ſcurrillity, witty without affection, audacious without impudency, learned without opinion, and ſtrange without hereſie: I did converſe this quondam day with a companion of the kings, who is intituled, nominated, or called, Don Adriano de Armatho.

Ped. Noſti hominem tanquam te, His humour is loſty, his diſcourſe peremptorie: his tongue filed, his eye ambitious, his gate maieſticall, and his generall behauiour vaine, ridiculous, and thraſonicall. He is too picked, too ſpruce, too affected, too odde, as it were, too peregrinat, as I may call it

Curat. A moſt ſingular and choiſe Epithat,

Draw out his Table-booke.

Peda. He draweth out the thred of his verboſitie, finer then the ſtaple of his argument. I abhor ſuch phanaticall phantaſims, ſuch inſociable and poynt deuiſe companions, ſuch rackers of ortagraphie, as to ſpeake dout fine, when he ſhould ſay doubt; det, when he ſhold pronounce debt; d e b t, not deatche clepeth a Calf, Caufe: halfe, hauſe neighbour vocatur nebour; neigh abreuiated ne: this is abhominable, which he would call abhominable: it inſinuateth me of infamie: ne intelligis domine, to make ſtrangicke, lunaticke?

Cura. Laus deo, bene intelligo.

Peda. Bene bene for bene preſtiar, a litle ſcratche, 'twil ſerue.

Enter Braggart, Boy.

Curat. Videt ne quis venit?

Peda. Video, & gaudio.

Brag. Chirra.

Peda. Quare Chirra, not Sirra?

Brag. Men of peace well incountred.

Ped. Moſt militarie ſir ſalutation.

Boy. They haue been at a great feaſt of Languages, and ſtolne the ſcraps.

Clow. O they haue liu'd long on the almes-baſket of words! I marueil thy M. hath not eaten thee for a word, for thou art not ſo long by the head as honorificabilitudinitatibus: Thou art eaſier ſwallowed then a flapdragon.

Page. Peace, the peale begins.

Brag. Mounſier, are you not lettred?

Page. Yes, yes, he teaches boyes the Horne-booke: What is Ab ſpeld backward with the horn on his head?

Peda. Ba, puerice, with a horne added.

Pag. Ba moſt ſeely Sheepe, with a horne: you heare his learning.

Peda. Quis quis, thou Conſonant?

Pag. The laſt of the fiue Vowels if You repeat them, or the firſt if I.

Peda. I will repeat them: a e I.

Pag. The Sheepe, the other two concludes it o u.

Brag. Now by the ſalt waue of the mediterranium, ſweet touch, a quicke venc we of wit, ſnip ſnap, quick & home, it reioyceth my intellect, true wit.

Page. Offered by a childe to an olde man: which is wit-old.

Peda. What is the figure? What is the figure?

Page. Hornes.

Peda. Thou diſputes like an Infant: goe whip thy Gigge.

Pag. Lend me your Horne to make one, and I will whip about your Infamie vnum cita a gigge of a Cuckolds horne.

Clow. And I had but one penny in the world, thou ſhouldſt haue it to buy Ginger bread: Hold, there is the very Remuneration I had of thy Maiſter, thou halfpenny purſe of wit, thou Pidgeon-egge of diſcretion. O & the heauens were ſo pleaſed, that thou were but my Baſtard; What a ioyfull father wouldſt thou make mee? Goe to, thou haſt it ad dunghil at the fingers ends, as they ſay.

Peda. Oh I ſmell falſe Latine, dunghil for vnguem.

Brag. Arte-man prouenbulat, we will bee fingled from the barbarous. Do you not educate youth at the Charge-houſe on the top of the Mountaine?

Peda. Or Mons the hill.

Brag. At your ſweet pleaſure, for the Mountaine.

Peda. I doe ſans queſtion.

Bra. Sir, it is the Kings moſt ſweet pleaſure and affection, to congratulate the Princeſſe at her Pauilion, in the poſteriors of this day, which the rude multitude call the after-noone.

Ped. The poſterior of the day, moſt generous ſir, is liable, congruent, and meaſurable for the after-noone: the word is well culd, choſe, ſweet, and apt I doe aſſure you ſir, I doe aſſure.

Brag. Sir, the King is a noble Gentleman, and my familiar, I doe aſſure ye very good friend: for what is inward betweene vs, let it paſſe. I doe beſeech thee remember thy curteſie. I beſeech thee apparell thy head: and among other importunate & moſt ſerious deſignes, and of great import indeed too: but let that paſſe, for I muſt tell thee it will pleaſe his Grace (by the world) ſometime to leane vpon my poore ſhoulder, and with his royall finger thus dallie with my excrement, with my muſtachio: but ſweet heart let that paſſe. By the world I recount no fable, ſome certaine ſpeciall honours it pleaſeth his greatneſſe to impart to Armado a Souldier, a man of trauell, that hath ſeene the world: but let that paſſe; the very all of all is: but ſweet heart, I do implore ſecrecie, that the King would haue mee preſent the Princeſſe (ſweet chucke) with ſome delightfull oſtentation, or ſhow, or pageant, or antique, or fire-worke: Now, vnderſtanding that the Curate and your ſweet ſelfe are good at ſuch eruptions, and ſodaine breaking out of myrth (as it were) I haue acquainted you withall, to the end to craue your aſſiſtance.

Peda. Sir, you ſhall preſent before her the Nine Worthies. Sir Holofernes, as concerning ſome entertainment of time, ſome ſhow in the poſterior of this day, to be rendred by our aſſiſtance the Kings command: and this moſt gallant, illuſtrate and learned Gentleman, before the Princeſſe: I ſay none ſo fit as to preſent the Nine Worthies.

Curat. Where will you finde men worthy enough to preſent them?

Peda. Ioſua, your ſelfe: my ſelfe, and this gallant gentleman Iudas Machabeus: this Swaine (becauſe of his great limme or ioynt) ſhall paſſe Pompey the great, the Page Hercules.

Brag. Pardon ſir, error: He is not quantitie enough for that Worthies thumb, hee is not ſo big as the end of his Club.

Peda. Shall I haue audience? he ſhall preſent Hercules in minoritie: his enter and exit ſhall bee ſtrangling a Snake; and I will haue an Apologie for that purpoſe.

Pag. An excellent deuice: ſo if any of the audience hiſſe, you may cry, Well done Hercules, now thou croſſheſt the Snake; that is the way to make an offence gracious, though few haue the grace to doe it.

Brag. For the reſt of the Worthies?

Peda. I will play three my ſelfe.

Pag. Thrice worthy Gentleman.

Brag. Shall I tell you a thing?

Peda. We attend.

Brag. We will haue, if this fadge not, an Antique. I beſeech you follow.

Ped. Via good-man Dull, thou haſt ſpoken no word all this while.

Dull. Nor vnderſtood none neither ſir.

Ped. Alone, we will employ thee.

Dull. Ile make one in a dance, or ſo: or I will play

on

…ſabet to the Worthies, & let them dance the hey.
…Moſt Dull, honeſt Dull, to our ſport away. Exit.

Enter Ladies.

…Sweet hearts we ſhall be rich ere we depart,
…ings come thus plentifully in.
…ly wal'd about with Diamonds: Look you, what I
…rom the louing King.
…Madam, came nothing elſe along with that?
…Nothing but this: yes as much loue in Rime,
…uld be cram'd vp in a ſheet of paper
…en both ſides the ſcarfe, margent and all,
…he was faine to ſeale on Cupids name.
…That was the way to make his god-head wax:
…hath beene fiue thouſand yeares a Boy.
…I, and a ſhrewd vnhappy gallowes too.
…You'll nere be friends with him, a kild your ſiſter.
…He made her melancholy, ſad, and heauy, and
…dred: had ſhe beene Light like you, of ſuch a mer-
…rable ſparring ſpirit ſhe might a bin a Grandam ere
…d. And ſo may you: For a light heart liues long.
…What's your darke meaning mouſe, of this light
…?
…A light condition in a beauty darke.
…We need more light to finde your meaning out
…You'll mire the light by taking it in ſnuffe:
…fore I le darkely end the argument.
…Look what you doe, you doe it ſtill i'th darke.
…So do not you, for you are a light Wench.
…Indeed I weigh not you, and therefore light.
…You weigh me not, O that's you care not for me.
…Great reaſon: for paſt care, is ſtill paſt cure.
…Well handled both, a ſet of Wit well played.
…Boyet, you haue a Fauour too?
…ſent it? and what is it?
…I would you knew.
…if my face were but as faire as yours,
…ould ſore were as great, be witneſſe this.
…I haue Verſes too, I thanke Berowne,
…numbers true, and were the numbring too
…the fayreſt goddeſſe on the ground.
…compar'd to twenty thouſand fairs.
…hath drawne my picture in his letter
…Any thing like?
…Much in the letters, nothing in the praiſe
…Beauteous as Incke: a good concluſion.
…Faire as a text B, in a Coppie booke.
…Ware pencils. How? Let me not die your debtor,
…ed Dominicall, my golden letter.
…your face were full of O's.
…A Pox of that ieſt, and I beſhrew all Shrowes.
…Berowne, what was ſent to you
…faire Dumaine?
…Madame, this Gloue.
…Did he not ſend you twaine?
…Yes Madame: and moreouer,
…thouſand Verſes of a faithfull Louer.
…ge inuellation of hypocriſie,
…y compiled, profound ſimplicitie.
…This, and theſe Pearls, to me ſent Longauille
…Letter is too long by halfe a mile.
…I thinke no leſſe: Doſt thou wiſh in heare
…Chaine were longer, and the Letter ſhort.
…Ay I would theſe hands might neuer part.
…We are wiſe girles to mocke our Louers ſo.
…They are worſe fooles to purchaſe mocking ſo.
That ſame Berowne ile torture ere I goe.
O that I knew he were but in by th'weeke,
How I would make him fawne, and begge, and ſeeke,
And wait the ſeaſon, and obſerue the times,
And ſpend his prodigall wits in bootleſſe rimes,
And ſhape his ſeruice wholly to my deuice,
And make him proud to make me proud that iefts.
So perttaunt like would I o'reſway his ſtate,
That he ſhould be my foole, and I his fate.
Par. None are ſo ſurely caught, when they are cateht,
As Wit turn'd foole, folly in Wiſedome hatch'd:
Hath wiſedoms warrant, and the helpe of Schoole,
And Wits owne grace to grace a learned Foole?
Ros. The blood of youth burns not with ſuch exceſſe,
As grauities reuolt to wantonneſſe.
Mar. Folly in Fooles beares not ſo ſtrong a note,
As fool'ry in the Wiſe, when Wit doth dote:
Since all the power thereof is doth apply,
To prouе by Wit, worth in ſimplicitie.

Enter Boyet.

Qu. Heere comes Boyet, and mirth in his face.
Boy. O I am ſtab'd with laughter, Where's her Grace?
Qu. Thy newes Boyet?
Boy. Prepare Madame, prepare,
Arme Wenches armе, incounters mounted are,
Againſt your Peace, Loue doth approach, diſguis'd:
Armed in arguments, you'll be ſurpriz'd.
Muſter your Wits, ſtand in your owne defence,
Or hide your heads like Cowards, and flie hence.
Qu. Saint Dennis to S. Cupid: What are they,
That charge their breath againſt vs? Say ſcout ſay
Boy. Vnder the coole ſhade of a Siccamore,
I thought to cloſe mine eyes ſome halfe an houre:
When lo to interrupt my purpoſ'd reſt,
Toward that ſhade I might behold addreſt,
The King and his companions: warely
I ſtole into a neighbour thicket by,
And ouer-heard, what you ſhall ouer-heare:
That by and by diſguis'd they will be heere.
Their Herald is a pretty knauiſh Page:
That well by heart hath con'd his embaſſage,
Action and accent did they teach him there.
Thus muſt thou ſpeake, and thus thy body beare.
And euer and anon they made a doubt,
Preſence maieſticall would put him out:
For quoth the King, an Angell ſhalt thou ſee?
Yet feare not thou, but ſpeake audatiouſly.
The Boy reply'd, An Angell is not euill:
I ſhould haue feard her, had ſhe beene a deuill.
With that all laugh'd, and clap'd him on the ſhoulder,
Making the bold wagg by their praiſes bolder.
One rebk'd his elboe thus, and ſtem'd, and ſwore,
A better ſpeech was neuer ſpoke before
Another with his finger and his thumb,
Cry'd via, we will doo't, come what will come.
The third he capers'd and cried, All goes well.
The fourth turn'd on the toe, and downe he fell
With that they all did tumble on the ground,
With ſuch a zelous laughter ſo profound,
That in this ſpleene ridiculous appeares,
To checke their folly paſſions ſolemne teares.
Qu. But what, but what, come they to viſit vs?
Boy. They do, they do: and are apparel'd thus,
Like Muſcouites, or Ruſſians, as I geſſe.
Their purpoſe is to parlee, to court, and daunce,

And every one his Loue-feat will aduance,
Vnto his seuerall Mistresse: which they'll know
By fauours seuerall, which they did bestow.
Quee. And will they so? the Gallants shall be task't:
For Ladies; we will every one be mask't,
And not a man of them shall haue the grace
Despight of suite, to see a Ladies face.
Hold Rosaline, this Fauour thou shalt weare,
And then the King will court thee for his Deare:
Hold, take thou this my sweet, and giue me thine,
So shall Berowne take me for Rosaline.
And change your Fauours too, so shall your Loues
Woo contrary, deceiu'd by these remoues.
Rosa. Come on then, weare the fauours most in sight.
Kath. But in this changing, What is your intent?
Quee. The effect of my intent is to crosse theirs:
They do it but in mocking merriment,
And mocke for mocke is onely my intent.
Their seuerall counsels they vnbosome shall,
To Loues mistooke, and so be mockt withall
Vpon the next occasion that we meete,
With Visages displayd to talke and greete.
Ros. But shall we dance, if they desire vs too't?
Quee. No, to the death we will not moue a foot,
Nor to their pen'd speech render we no grace:
But while 'tis spoke, each turne away his face.
Boy. Why that contempt will kill the keepers heart,
And quite diuorce his memory from his part
Quee. Therefore I do it, and I make no doubt,
The rest will ere come in, if he be out.
Theres no such sport, as sport by sport orethrowne:
To make theirs ours, and ours none but our owne.
So shall we stay mocking entended game,
And they well mockt, depart away with shame. Sound.
Boy. The Trompet sounds, be maskt, the maskers come

Enter Blackmoores with muficke, the Boy with a speech, and the reſt of the Lords diſguiſed

Page. All haile, the richeſt Beauties on the earth.
Ber. Beauties no richer than rich Taffata.
Pag. A holy parcell of the fayreſt dames that euer turn'd their backes to mortall viewes:
The Ladies turne their backes to him.
Ber. Their eyes villaine, their eyes.
Pag. That ever turn'd their eyes to mortall viewes
Out
Boy. True, out indeed
Pag. Out of your fauours heauenly Spheres vouchſafe
Not to behold
Ber. Once to behold, rogue
Pag Once to behold with your Sunne beautied eyes, with your Sunne beamed eyes.
Boy. They will not anſwer to that Epythite,
You were beſt call it Daughter beamed eyes
Pag They do not marke me, and that brings me out.
Ber Is this your perfection? be gon you rogue,
Roſa What would theſe ſtrangers?
Know their mindes Boyet.
If they doe ſpeake our language, 'tis our will
That ſome plaine man recount their purpoſes,
Know what they would?
Boyet What would you with the Princes?
Ber. Nothing but peace, and gentle viſitation.
Roſ. What would they, ſay they?
Boy. Nothing but peace, and gentle viſitation.
Roſa. Why that they haue, and bid them ſo be gon.
Boy. She ſaies you haue it, and you may be gon.
Kin. Say to her we haue meaſur'd many miles,
To tread a Meaſure with you on the graſſe.
Boy. They ſay that they haue meaſur'd many a mile,
To tread a Meaſure with you on this graſſe
Roſa. It is not ſo. Aske them how many inches
Is in one mile? If they haue meaſur'd manie,
The meaſure then of one is eaſie told.
Boy. If to come hither, you haue meaſur'd miles,
And many miles: the Princeſſe bids you tell,
How many inches doth fill vp one mile?
Ber. Tell her we meaſure them by weary ſteps.
Boy. She heares her ſelfe
Roſa. How manie wearie ſteps,
Of many wearie miles you haue ore-gone,
Are numbred in the tranell of one mile?
Ber. We number nothing that we ſpend for you,
Our dutie is ſo rich, ſo infinite,
That we may doe it ſtill without accompt.
Vouchſafe to ſhew the ſunſhine of your face,
That we (like ſauages) may worſhip it.
Roſa. My face is but a Moone and clouded too.
Kin. Bleſſed are clouds, to doe as ſuch clouds do.
Vouchſafe bright Moone, and theſe thy ſtars to ſhine, (Thoſe clouds remooued) vpon our wateriſe eyne.
Roſa. O ſuine peticioner, beg a greater matter,
Thou now requeſts but Moonelſhine in the water.
Kin. Then in our meaſure, vouchſafe but one change.
Thou bidſt me begge, this begging is not ſtrange.
Roſa. Play muſicke then: nay you muſt doe it ſoone.
Not yet no dance: thus change: like the Moone.
Kin. Will you not dance? How come you thus eſtranged?
Roſa. You tooke the Moone at full, but now ſhee's changed?
Kin. Yet ſtill ſhe is the Moone, and I the Man.
Roſa. The muſick playes, vouchſafe ſome motion to it: Our eares vouchſafe it.
Kin. But your legges ſhould doe it.
Roſ. Since you are ſtrangers, & come here by chance.
We'll not be nice, take hands, we will not dance.
Kin. Why take you hands then?
Roſa. Onelie to part friends.
Curtſie ſweet hearts, and ſo the Meaſure ends.
Kin. More meaſure of this meaſure be not nice.
Roſa. We can afford no more at ſuch a price.
Kin. Priſe your ſelues: What buyes your companie?
Roſa. Your abſence onelie
Kin. That can neuer be.
Roſa. Then cannot we be bought: and ſo adue,
Twice to your Viſore, and halfe once to you.
Kin. If you denie to dance, let's hold more chat.
Roſ. In priuate then.
Kin. I am beſt pleas'd with that.
Be. White handed Miſtris, one ſweet word with thee.
Qu. Hony, and Milke, and Sugar: there is three.
Ber. Nay then two treyes, an if you grow ſo nice Methegline, Wort, and Malmſey; well runne dice:
There's halfe a dozen ſweets.
Qu Seuenth ſweet adue, ſince you can cogg,
Ile play no more with you.
Ber. One word in ſecret.
Qu. Let it not be ſweet.
Ber Thou greeu'ſt my gall.

Quee.

Qu. Will they returne?

Boy. They will they will, God knowes,
And leape for ioy, though they are lame with blowes:
Therefore change Fauours, and when they repaire,
Blow like ſweet Roſes, in this ſummer aire.

Qu. How blowe? how blowe? Speake to bee vnderſtood.

Boy. Faire Ladies maskt, are Roſes in their bud:
Diſmaskt, their damaske ſweet commixture ſhowne,
Are Angels vailing clouds, or Roſes blowne.

Qu. Auant perplexitie: What ſhall vve do,
If they returne in their owne ſhapes to woo?

Roſa. Good Madam, if by me you'l be aduis'd,
Let's mocke them ſtill as well knowne as diſguis'd:
Let vs complaine to them vvhat fooles were heare,
Diſguis'd like Muſcouites in ſhapeleſſe geare:
And wonder what they were, and to what end
Their ſhallow ſhowes, and Prologue vildely pen'd:
And their rough carriage ſo ridiculous,
Should be preſented at our Tent to vs.

Boyet. Ladies, withdraw: the gallants are at hand.

Ques. Whip to our Tents, as Roes runnes ore Land.

Exeunt.

Enter the King and the reſt.

King. Faire ſir, God ſaue you. Wher's the Princeſſe?

Boy. Gone to her Tent.
Pleaſe it your Maieſtie command me any ſeruice to her?

King. That ſhe vouchſafe me audience for one word.

Boy. I will, and ſo will ſhe, I know my Lord. Exit.

Ber. This fellow pickes vp wit as Pigeons peaſe,
And vtters it againe, when Ioue doth pleaſe.
He is Wits Pedler, and retailes his Wares,
At Wakes, and Waſſels, Meetings, Markets, Faires.
And we that ſell by groſſe, the Lord doth know,
Haue not the grace to grace it with ſuch ſhow.
This Gallant pins the Wenches on his ſleeue.
Had he bin Adam, he had tempted Eue.
He can carue too, and liſpe: Why this is he,
That kiſt away his hand in courteſie.
This is the Ape of Forme, Monſieur the nice,
That when he plaies at Tables, chides the Dice
In honorable termes: Nay he can ſing
A meane moſt meanly, and in Vſhering
Mend him who can: the Ladies call him ſweete.
The ſtaires as he treads on them kiſſe his feete.
This is the flower that ſmiles on euerie one,
To ſhew his teeth as white as Whales bone.
And conſciences that will not die in debt,
Pay him the dutie of honie-tongued Boyet.

King. A blíſter on his ſweet tongue with my hart,
That put Armathoes Page out of his part.

Enter the Ladies.

Ber. See where it comes. Behauiour what wer't thou,
Till this madman ſhew'd thee? And what art thou now?

King. All haile ſweet Madame, and faire time of day.

Qu. Faire in all Haile is foule, as I conceiue.

King. Conſtrue my ſpeeches better, if you may.

Qu. Then wiſh me better, I wil giue you leaue.

King. We came to viſit you, and purpoſe now
To leade you to our Court, vouchſafe it then.

Qu. This field ſhal hold me, and ſo hold your vow:
Nor God, nor I, delights in periur'd men.

King. Rebuke me not for that which you prouoke:

The

The vertue of your eie muſt breake my oth.
Qu. You nickname vertue: vice you ſhould haue ſpoke:
For vertues office neuer breakes men troth.
Now by my maiden honor, yet as pure
As the vnſullied Lilly, I proteſt,
A world of torments though I ſhould endure,
I would not yeeld to be your houſes gueſt:
So much I hate a breaking cauſe to be
Of heauenly oaths, vow'd with integritie.
Kin. O you haue liu'd in deſolation heere,
Vnſeene, vnviſited, much to our ſhame.
Qu. Not ſo my Lord, it is not ſo I ſweare,
We haue had paſtimes heere, and pleaſant game.
A meſſe of Ruſſians left vs but of late.
Kin. How Madam? Ruſſians?
Qu I in truth, my Lord.
Trim gallants, full of Courtſhip and of ſtate.
Roſa. Madam ſpeake true. It is not ſo my Lord:
My Ladie (to the manner of the daies)
In curteſie giues vndeſerving praiſe.
We foure indeed confronted were with foure
In Ruſſia habit: Heere they ſtayed an houre,
And talk'd apace. and in that houre (my Lord)
They did not bleſſe vs with one happy word.
I dare not call them fooles; but this I thinke,
When they are thirſtie, fooles would faine haue drinke
Ber. This ieſt is drie to me. Gentle ſweete,
Your wits makes wiſe things foolish when we greete
With eies beſt ſeeing, heauens fierie eie:
By light we looſe light: your capacitie
Is of that nature, that to your huge ſtoore,
Wiſe things ſeeme foolish, and rich things but poore.
Roſ. This proues you wiſe and rich: for in my eie
Ber. I am a foole, and full of pouertie.
Roſ. But that you take what doth to you belong,
It were a fault to ſnatch words from my tongue.
Ber. O, I am yours and all that I poſſeſſe.
Roſ. All the foole mine.
Ber. I cannot giue you leſſe.
Roſ. Which of the Vizards was it that you wore?
Ber. Where? when? What Vizard?
Why demand you this?
Roſ. There, then, that vizard, that ſuperfluous caſe,
That hid the worſe, and ſhew'd the better face.
Kin. We are diſcried,
They'l mocke vs now downerighte.
Du. Let vs confeſſe, and turne it to a ieſt.
Qu. Amaz'd my Lord? Why lookes your Highnes ſadde?
Roſa Helpe hold his browes, hee'l ſound: why looke you pale?
Sea-ſicke I thinke comming from Muſcouie.
Ber. Thus poure the ſtars down plagues for perjury.
Can any face of braſſe hold longer out?
Heere ſtand I. Ladie dart thy ſkill at me,
Bruiſe me with ſcorne, confound me with a flout.
Thruſt thy ſharpe wit quite through my ignorance
Cut me to peeces with thy keene conceit:
And I will wiſh thee neuer more to dance,
Nor neuer more in Ruſſian habit waite.
O! neuer will I truſt to ſpeeches pen'd,
Nor to the motion of a Schoole-boies tongue
Nor neuer come in vizard to my friend,
Nor woo in rime like a blind-harpers ſongue.
Taffata phraſes, ſilken termes precile,
Three-pil'd Hyperboles, ſpruce affection;
Figures pedanticall, theſe ſummer flies,
Haue blowne me full of maggot oſtentation
I do forſweare them, and I heere proteſt,
By this white Gloue (how white the hand God knows)
Henceforth my woing minde ſhall be expreſt
In ruſſet yeas, and honeſt kerſie noes.
And to begin Wench, ſo God helpe me law,
My loue to thee is ſound ſans cracke or flaw
Roſa. Sans. ſons, I pray you.
Ber. Yet I haue a tricke
Of the old rage: beare with me, I am ſicke.
Ile leaue it by degrees: ſoft, let vs ſee,
Write Lord haue mercie on vs. on thoſe three,
They are infected, in their hearts it lies
They haue the plague, and caught it of your eyes:
Theſe Lords are viſited, you are not free:
For the Lords tokens on you do I ſee.
Qu. No, they are free that gaue theſe tokens to vs.
Ber. Our ſtates are forfeit, ſeeke not to vndo vs.
Roſ. It is not ſo; for how can this be true,
That you ſtand forfeit, being thoſe that ſue
Ber. Peace, for I will not haue to do with you.
Roſ. Nor ſhall not, if I do as I intend.
Ber. Speake for your ſelues, my wit is at an end.
King. Teach vs ſweete Madame, for our rude tranſgreſſion, ſome ſaire excuſe.
Qu. The faireſt is confeſſion.
Were you not heere but euen now, diſguis'd?
Kin. Madam, I was.
Qu. And were you well aduis'd?
Kin. I was faire Madam.
Qu. When you then were heere,
What did you whiſper in your Ladies eare?
King. That more then all the world I did reſpect her
Qu. When ſhee ſhall challenge this, you will reiect her King. Vpon mine Honor no.
Qu. Peace peace, forbeare:
your oath once broke, you force not to forſweare.
King. Deſpiſe me when I breake this oath of mine.
Qu. I will, and therefore keepe it. Roſaline,
What did the Ruſſian whiſper in your eare?
Roſ Madam, he ſwore that he did hold me deare
As precious eye-ſight, and did value me
Aboue this World: adding thereto moreouer,
That he would Wed me, or elſe die my Louer.
Qu. God giue thee ioy of him the Noble Lord
Moſt honorably doth vphold his word.
King. What meane you Madame?
By my life, my troth,
I never ſwore this Ladie ſuch an oth.
Roſ. By heauen you did; and to confirme it plaine, you gaue me this: But take it ſir againe.
King. My faith and this, the Princeſſe I did giue,
I knew her by this Iewell on her ſleeue.
Qu. Pardon me ſir, this Iewell did ſhe weare,
And Lord Berowne (I thanke him) is my deare
What? Will you haue me, or your Pearle againe?
Ber. Neither of either, I remit both twaine.
I ſee the tricke on't: Heere was a conſent,
Knowing aforehand of our merriment,
To dash it like a Chriſtmas Comedie.
Some carry-tale, ſome pleaſe-man, ſome ſlight Zanie,
Some mumble-newes, ſome trencher-knight, ſome Dick
That ſmiles his cheeke in yeares and knowes the trick
To make my Lady laugh, when ſhe's diſpos'd:

Told

Told our intents before: which once diſclos'd,
The Ladies did change Fauours, and then we Following the ſignes, woo'd but the ſigne of ſhe.
Now to our periurie, to adde more terror,
We are againe forſworne in will and error.
Much vpon this 'tis: and might not you
Foreſtall our ſport, to make vs thus vntrue?
Do not you know my Ladies foot by'th ſquier?
And laugh vpon the apple of her eie?
And ſtand betweene her backe ſir, and the fire,
Holding a trencher, ieſting merrilie?
You put our Page out: go, you are alowd.
Die when you will, a ſmocke ſhall be your ſhrowd.
You leere vpon me, do you? There's an eie
Wounds like a Leaden ſword.

Boy. Full merrily hath this braue manager, this carreere bene run.

Ber. Loe, he is tilting ſtraight. Peace, I haue don.

Enter Clowne.

Welcome pure wit, thou part'ſt a faire fray.

Clo. O Lord ſir, they would kno,
Whether the three worthies ſhall come in, or no.

Ber. What, are there but three?

Clo. No ſir, but it is vara fine,
For euerie one purſents three.

Ber. And three times thrice is nine.

Clo. Not ſo ſir, vnder correction ſir, I hope it is not ſo.
You cannot beg vs ſir, I can aſſure you ſir, we know what we know: I hope ſir three times thrice ſir.

Ber. Is not nine.

Clo. Vnder correction ſir, wee know where-vntill it doth amount.

Ber. By Ioue, I alwaies tooke three threes for nine.

Clow. O Lord ſir, it were pittie you ſhould get your liuing by reckning ſir.

Ber. How much is it?

Clo. O Lord ſir, the parties themſelues, the actors ſir will ſhew where-vntill it doth amount: for mine owne part, I am (as they ſay, but to perfect one man in one poore man) Pompion the great ſir.

Ber. Art thou one of the Worthies?

Clo. It pleaſed them to thinke me worthie of Pompey the great: for mine owne part, I know not the degree of the Worthie, but I am to ſtand for him.

Ber. Go, bid them prepare. Exit.

Clo. We will turne it finely off ſir, we will take ſome care.

King. Berowne, they will ſhame vs:
Let them not approach.

Ber. We are ſhame-proofe my Lord: and 'tis ſome policie, to haue one ſhew worſe then the Kings and his companie.

King. I ſay they ſhall not come.

Qu. Nay my good Lord, let me o're-rule you now;
That ſport beſt pleaſes, that doth leaſt know how.
Where Zeale ſtriues to content, and the contents
Dies in the Zeale of that which it preſents:
Their forme confounded, makes moſt forme in mirth,
When great things labouring periſh in their birth.

Ber. A right deſcription of our ſport my Lord.

Enter Braggart

Brag. Annointed, I implore ſo much expence of thy royall ſweet breath, as will vtter a brace of words.

Qu. Doth this man ſerue God?

Ber. Why aske you?

Qu. He ſpeak's not like a man of God's making.

Brag. That's all one my faire ſweet honie Monarch: For I proteſt, the Schoolmaſter is exceeding fantaſticall: Too too vaine, too too vaine. But we will put it (as they ſay) to Fortuna delaguar, I wiſh you the peace of minde moſt royall cupplement.

King. Here is like to be a good preſence of Worthies; He preſents Hector of Troy, the Swaine Pompey the great, the Pariſh Curate Alexander, Armatho Page Hercules, the Pedant Iudas Machabeus: And if theſe foure Worthies in their firſt ſhew thriue, theſe foure will change habites, and preſent the other fiue.

Ber. There is fiue in the firſt ſhew.

King. You are deceiued, 'tis not ſo.

Ber. The Pedant, the Braggart, the Hedge-Prieſt, the Foole, and the Boy,
Abate throw at Nouum, and the whole world againe,
Cannot pricke out fiue ſuch, take each one in's vaine.

King. The ſhip is vnder ſaile, and here ſhe comes amain.

Enter Pompey.

Clo. I Pompey am.

Ber. You lie, you are not he.

Clo. I Pompey am.

Boy. With Libbards head on knee.

Ber. Well ſaid old mocker,
I muſt needs be friends with thee.

Clo. I Pompey am, Pompey ſurnam'd the big.

Du. The great.

Clo. It is great ſir: Pompey ſurnam'd the great:
That oft in field, with Targe and Shield,
did make my foe to ſweat:
And trauailing along this coaſt, I here am come by chance,
And lay my Armes before the legs of this ſweet Laſſe of France.
If your Ladiſhip would ſay thankes Pompey, I had done.

La. Great thankes great Pompey

Clo. Tis not ſo much worth: but I hope I was perfect. I made a little fault in great.

Ber. My hat to a halfe-penie, Pompey proues the beſt Worthie.

Enter Curate for Alexander.

Cura. When in the world I liu'd, I was the worldes Commander:
By Eaſt, Weſt, North, & South, I ſpred my conquering might:
My Scutcheon plaine declares that I am Aliſander.

Boie. Your noſe ſaies no, you are not;
For it ſtands too right.

Ber. Your noſe ſmels no, in this moſt tender ſmelling Knight.

Qu. The Conqueror is diſmaid:
Proceede good Alexander.

Cur. When in the world I liued, I was the worthier Commander.

Boie. Moſt true, 'tis right: you were ſo Aliſander.

Ber. Pompey the great.

Clo. your ſeruant and Coſtard.

Ber. Take away the Conqueror, take away Aliſander.

Clo. O ſir, you haue ouer-throwne Aliſander the conqueror: you will be ſcrap'd out of the painted cloth for this.

this: your Lion that holds his Pollax ſitting on a cloſe ſtoole, will be giuen to Aias. He will be the ninth worthie. A Conqueror, and affraid to ſpeake? Runne away for ſhame Aliſander. There an't ſhall pleaſe you: a fooliſh milde man, an honeſt man, looke you, & ſoon daſht. He is a marueilous good neighbour inſooth, and a verie good Bowler, but for Aliſander, alas you ſee, how 'tis a little ore-parted. But there are Worthies a comming, will ſpeake their minde in ſome other ſort. Exit Ca.

Qu. Stand aſide good Pompey.

Enter Pedant for Iudas, and the Boy for Hercules.

Ped. Great Hercules is preſented by this Impe,
Whoſe Club kil'd Cerberus that three-headed Canus,
And when he was a babe, a childe, a ſhrimpe,
Thus did he ſtrangle Serpents in his Manus:
Quoniam, he ſeemeth in minoritie,
Ergo, I come with this Apologie.
Keepe ſome ſtate in thy exit, and vaniſh. Exit Boy.

Ped. Iudas I am.

Dum. A Iudas?

Ped. Not Iſcariot ſir.
Iudas I am, ycliped Machabeus.

Dum. Iudas Machabeus clipt, is plaine Iudas.

Ber. A kiſſing traitor. How art thou proud Iudas?

Ped. Iudas I am.

Dum. The more ſhame for you Iudas.

Ped. What meane you ſir?

Boy. To make Iudas hang himſelfe.

Ped. Begin ſir, you are my elder.

Ber. Well follow'd, Iudas was hang'd an Elder.

Ped. I will not be put out of countenance.

Ber. Becauſe thou haſt no face.

Ped. What is this?

Boy. A Citterne head.

Dum. The head of a bodkin.

Ber. A deaths face in a ring.

Lon. The face of an old Roman coine, ſcarce ſeene.

Boy. The pummell of Cæſars Faulchion.

Dum. The caru'd-bone face on a Flaske.

Ber. S. Georges halfe cheeke in a brooch.

Dum. I, and in a brooch of Lead.

Ber. I, and worne in the cap of a Tooth-drawer.
And now forward, for we haue put thee in countenance.

Ped. You haue put me out of countenance.

Ber. Falſe, we haue giuen thee faces.

Ped. But you haue out-fac'd them all.

Ber. And thou wer't a Lion, we would do ſo.

Boy. Therefore as he is, an Aſſe, let him go:
And ſo adieu ſweet Iude. Nay, why doſt thou ſtay?

Dum. For the latter end of his name.

Ber. For the Aſſe to the Iude: giue it him. Iud-as away.

Ped. This is not generous, not gentle, not humble.

Boy. A light for monſieur Iudas, it growes darke, he may ſtumble.

Qu. Alas poore Machabeus, how hath he beene baited.

Enter Braggart.

Ber. Hide thy head Achilles, heere comes Hector in Armes.

Dum. Though my mockes come home by me, I will now be merrie.

King. Hector was but a Troyan in reſpect of this.

Boy. But is this Hector?

Kin. I thinke Hector was not ſo cleane timber'd.

Lon. His legge is too big for Hector.

Dum. More Calfe certaine.

Boy. No, he is beſt indued in the ſmall.

Ber. This cannot be Hector.

Dum. He's a God or a Painter, for he makes faces.

Brag. The Armipotent Mars, of Lances the almightie, gaue Hector a gift.

Dum. A gilt Nutmegge.

Ber. A Lemmon.

Lon. Stucke with Cloues.

Dum. No cloues.

Brag. The Armipotent Mars of Lances the almightie, Gaue Hector a gift, the heire of Ilion;
A man ſo breathed, that certaine he would fight, yea
From morne till night, out of his Pauilion
I am that Flower.

Dum. That Mint.

Long. That Cullambine.

Brag. Sweet Lord Longauill reine thy tongue.

Lon. I muſt rather giue it the reine: for it runnes againſt Hector.

Dum. I, and Hector's a Grey-hound.

Brag. The ſweet War-man is dead and rotten,
Sweet chuckes, beat not the bones of the buried:
But I will forward with my deuice:
Sweet Royaltie beſtow on me the ſence of hearing.

Berowne ſteppes forth.

Qu. Speake braue Hector, we are much delighted.

Brag. I do adore thy ſweet Graces ſlipper.

Boy. Loues her by the foot.

Dum. He may not by the yard.

Brag. This Hector farre ſurmounted Hannibal.
The partie is gone.

Clo. Fellow Hector, ſhe is gone; ſhe is two monthes on her way.

Brag. What meaneſt thou?

Clo. Faith vnleſſe you play the honeſt Troyan, the poore Wench is caſt away: ſhe's quick, the child brags in her belly already: 'tis yours.

Brag. Doſt thou infamonize me among Potentates? Thou ſhalt die.

Clo. Then ſhall Hector be whipt for Iaquenetta that is quicke by him, and hang'd for Pompey, that is dead by him.

Dum. Moſt rare Pompey.

Boy. Renowned Pompey.

Ber. Greater then great, great, great, great Pompey. Pompey the huge.

Dum. Hector trembles.

Ber. Pompey is moued, more Ates more Ates ſtirre them, or ſtirre them on.

Dum. Hector will challenge him.

Ber. I, if a haue no more mans blood in's belly, then will ſup a Flea.

Brag. By the North-pole I do challenge thee.

Clo. I will not fight with a pole like a Northern man: Ile ſlaſh, Ile do it by the ſword: I pray you let mee borrow my Armes againe.

Dum. Roome for the incenſed Worthies.

Clo. Ile do it in my ſhirt.

Dum. Moſt reſolute Pompey.

Page. Maſter, let me take you a button hole lower. Do you not ſee Pompey is vncaſing for the combat: what meane you? you will loſt your reputation.

g. Gentlemen and Souldiers pardon me, I will mbat in my ſhirt.
. You may not denie it, Pompey hath made the ngs.
g. Sweet bloods, I both may, and will.
r. What reaſon haue you for't?
g. The naked truth of it is, I haue no ſhirt, moolward for penance.
r. True, and it was inioyned him in Rome for want men: ſince when, I le be ſworne he wore none, but ſclout of Iaquenetta, and that hee weares next his for a fauour.

Enter a Meſſenger, Monſieur Marcade.

Mar. God ſaue you Madame.
. Welcome Marcade, but that thou interrupteſt ertinent.
Mar. I am ſorrie Madam, for the newes I bring is e in my tongue. The King your father
. Dead for my life.
Mar. Euen ſo: My tale is told.
r. Worthies away, the Scene begins to cloud.
g. For mine owne part, I breath free breath: I ſeene the day of wrong, through the little hole of ion, and I will right my ſelfe like a Souldier.
Exeunt Worthies
. How fare's your Maieſtie?
. Boyet prepare, I will away to night.
. Madame not ſo, I do beſeech you ſtay.
. Prepare I ſay. I thanke you gracious Lords
l your faire endeuours and entreats:
f a new ſad-ſoule, that you vouchſafe,
ur rich wiſedome to excuſe, or hide,
liberall oppoſition of our ſpirits,
r-boldly we haue borne our ſelues, converſe of breath (your gentleneſſe guiſe of it.) Farewell worthie Lord:
aue heart beares not a humble tongue.
ſe me ſo, comming ſo ſhort of thankes,
y great ſuite, ſo eaſily obtain'd.
. The extreme parts of time, extremelie formes uſes to the purpoſe of his ſpeed:
often at his verie looſe decides
, which long proceſſe could not arbitrate.
though the mourning brow of progenie
id the ſmiling curteſie of Loue:
holy ſuite which faine it would conuince,
ince loues argument was firſt on foote,
ot the cloud of ſorrow iuſtle it
what it purpoſ'd: ſince to waile friends loſt,
e by much ſo wholſome profitable,
reuayle at friends but newly found.
. I vnderſtand you not, my greefes are double.
r. Honeſt plain words, beſt pierce the eare of griefe by theſe badges vnderſtand the King,
our faire ſakes haue we neglected time,
ſpotle play with our oathes: your beautie Ladies mauch diſcommend vs, faſhioning our humors into the oppoſed end of our intents.
what in vs hath ſeem'd ridiculous:
one is full of vnbefitting ſtraines,
mmon as a childe, skipping and vaine.
d'd by the eie, and therefore like the eie.
of ſtraying ſhapes, of habits, and of formes
Varying in ſubiects as the eie doth roule,
To euerie varied obiect in his glance:
Which parties-coated preſence of looſe loue
Put on by vs, if in your heauenly eies,
Haue miſbecom'd our oathes and grauities.
Thoſe heauenly eies that looke into theſe faults
Suggeſted vs to make: therefore Ladies
Our loue being yours, the error that Loue makes
Is likewiſe yours. We to our ſelues proue falſe,
By being once falſe, for euer to be true
To thoſe that make vs both, faire Ladies you.
And euen that falſhood in it ſelfe a ſinne,
Thus purifies it ſelfe, and turnes to grace.
Qu. We haue receiu'd your Letters, full of Loue:
Your Fauours, the Ambaſſadors of Loue.
And in our maiden counſaile rated them
At courteſhip, pleaſant ieſt, and courteſie,
As bumbaſt and as lining to the time:
But more deuout then theſe are our reſpects
Haue we not bene, and therefore met your loues
In their owne faſhion, like a merriment.
Du. Our letters Madam, ſhew'd much more then ieſt
Lon. So did our lookes.
Roſa. We did not coſt them ſo.
Kin. Now at the lateſt minute of the houre,
Grant vs your loues.
Qu. A time me thinkes too ſhort,
To make a world-without-end bargaine in;
No, no my Lord, your Grace is periur'd much,
Full of deare guiltineſſe, and therefore this:
If for my Loue (as there is no ſuch cauſe)
You will do ought, this ſhall you do for me.
Your oth I will not truſt: but go with ſpeed
To ſome forlorne and naked Hermitage,
Remote from all the pleaſures of the world:
There ſtay, vntill the twelue Celeſtiall Signes
Haue brought about their annuall reckoning.
If this auſtere inſociable life,
Change not your offer made in heate of blood:
If frofts, and faſts, hard lodging, and thin weeds
Nip not the gaudie bloſſomes of your Loue,
But that it beare this triall, and laſt loue:
Then at the expiration of the yeare,
Come challenge me, challenge me by theſe deſerts,
And by this Virgin palme, now kiſſing thine,
I will be thine: and till that inſtant ſhut
My wofull ſelfe vp in a mourning houſe,
Raining the teares of lamentation,
For the remembrance of my Fathers death.
If this thou do denie, let our hands part,
Neither intitled in the others hart.
Kin. If this or more then this, I would denie,
To flatter vp theſe powers of mine with reſt,
The ſodaine hand of death cloſe vp mine eie.
Hence euer then, my heart is in thy breſt.
Ber. And what to me my Loue? and what to me?
Roſ. You muſt be purged too, your ſins are rack'd.
You are attaint with faults and periurie:
Therefore if you my fauor meane to get,
A twelue-moneth ſhall you ſpend, and neuer reſt,
But ſeeke the wearie beds of people ſicke.
Du. But what to me my loue? but what to me?
Kat. A wife? a beard, faire health, and honeſtie,
With three-fold loue, I wiſh you all theſe three.
Du. O ſhall I ſay, I thanke you gentle wife?
Kat. Not ſo my Lord, a twelue-moneth and a day,

Ile marke no words that ſmoothfac'd wooers ſay.
Come when the King doth to my Ladie come:
Then if I haue much loue, Ile giue you ſome.
Dum. Ile ſerue thee true and faithfully till then.
Kath. Yet ſweare not, leaſt ye be forſworne agen.
Lon. What ſaies Maria?
Mari. At the twelue months end,
Ile change my blacke Gowne, for a faithfull friend.
Lon. Ile ſtay with patience: but the time is long.
Mari. The liker you, few taller are ſo yong.
Ber. Studies my Ladie? Miſtreſſe, looke on me,
Behold the window of my heart, mine eie:
What humble ſuite attends thy anſwer there,
Impoſe ſome ſeruice on me for my loue.
Ros. Oft haue I heard of you my Lord Berowne,
Before I ſaw you: and the worlds large tongue
Proclaimes you for a man repleate with mockes,
Full of compariſons, and wounding floutes:
Which you on all eſtates will execute,
That lie within the mercie of your wit,
To weed this Wormewood from your fruitfull braine,
And therewithall to win me, if you pleaſe,
Without the which I am not to be won:
You ſhall this twelue month terme from day to day,
Viſite the ſpeechleſſe ſicke, and ſtill converſe
With groaning wretches: and your taske ſhall be,
With all the fierce endeuour of your wit,
To enforce the pained impotent to ſmile.
Ber. To moue wilde laughter in the throate of death?
It cannot be, it is impoſſible.
Mirth cannot moue a ſoule in agonie.
Ros. Why that's the way to choke a gibing ſpirit,
Whoſe influence is begot of that looſe grace,
Which ſhallow laughing hearers giue to fooles:
A ieſt's proſperitie, lies in the eare
Of him that heares it, neuer in the tongue
Of him that makes it: then, if ſickly eares,
Deaft with the clamors of their owne deare groanes,
Will heare your idle ſcornes, continue then,
And I will haue you, and that fault withall.
But if they will not throw away that ſpirit,
And I ſhal finde you emptie of that fault,
Right ioyfull of your reformation.
Ber. A twelue month? Well: befall what will befall,
Ile ieſt a twelue month in an Hoſpitall.
Qu. I ſweet my Lord, and ſo I take my leaue.
King. No Madam, we will bring you on your way.
Ber. Our woing doth not end like an old Play;
Iacke hath not Gill: theſe Ladies courteſie
Might well haue made our ſport a Comedie.
King. Come ſir, it wants a twelue month and a day,
And then 'twill end.
Ber. That's too long for a play.

Enter Braggart.

Brag. Sweet Maieſty vouchſafe me.
Qu. Was not that Hector?
Dum. The worthie Knight of Troy.
Brag. I will kiſſe thy royal finger, and take leaue.
I am a Votarie, I haue vow'd to Iaquenetta to holde the Plough for her ſweet loue three yeares. But moſt eſteemed greatneſſe, will you heare the Dialogue that the two Learned men haue compiled, in praiſe of the Owle and the Cuckow? It ſhould haue followed in the end of our ſhew.
King. Call them forth quickly, we will do ſo.
Brag. Holla, Approach.

Enter all.

This ſide is Hiems, Winter.
This Ver, the Spring: the one maintained by the Owle.
Th'other by the Cuckow.
Ver, begin.

The Song.

When Daiſies pied, and Violets blew,
And Cuckow-buds of yellow hew:
And Ladie-ſmockes all ſiluer white,
Do paint the Medowes with delight.
The Cuckow then on euerie tree,
Mockes married men, for thus ſings he,
Cuckow.
Cuckow, Cuckow: O word of feare,
Vnpleaſing to a married eare.

When Shepheards pipe on Oaten ſtrawes,
And merrie Larkes are Ploughmens clockes:
When Turtles tread, and Rookes and Dawes,
And Maidens bleach their ſummer ſmockes:
The Cuckow then on euerie tree
Mockes married men; for thus ſings he,
Cuckow.
Cuckow, Cuckow: O word of feare.
Vnpleaſing to a married eare.

Winter.

When Iſicles hang by the wall,
And Dicke the Shephеard blowes his nailе:
And Tom beares Logges into the hall,
And Milke comes frozen home in paile:
When blood is nipt, and waies be foule,
Then nightly ſings the ſtaring Owle
Tu-whit to-who.
A merrie note,
While greaſie Ione doth keele the pot.

When all aloud the winde doth blow,
And coffing drownes the Parſons ſaw:
And birds ſit brooding in the ſnow,
And Marians noſe lookes red and raw:
When roaſted Crabs hiſſe in the bowle,
Then nightly ſings the ſtaring Owle,
Tu-whit to who:
A merrie note,
While greaſie Ione doth keele the pot.

Brag. The Words of Mercurie,
Are harſh after the ſongs of Apollo:
You that way; we this way.

Exeunt omnes

FINIS.

A IDSOMMER
Nights Dreame.

Actus primus.

Theſeus, Hippolita, with others

Theſeus.

re Hippolita, our nuptiall houre es on apace: foure happy daies bring in her Moon: but oh,me thinkes,how ſlow old Moon wanes! She lingers my deſires ame,or a Dowager,
out a yong mans reuennew.
ies wil quickly ſteep theſelues in nights quickly dreame away the time:
poone, like to a ſiluer bow,
uen, that behold the night
es.
Egeus,
emian youth to mertiments,
and nimble ſpirit of mirth,
ly forth to Funerals:
nion is not for our pompe,
d thee with my ſword,
loue, doing thee iniuries.
ee in another key,
ith triumph, and with reuelling.

and his daughter Hermia, Lyſander, and Demetrius
be Theſeus, our renowned Duke good Egeus: what's the news with thee?
eſsation, come I, with complaint
le, my daughter Hermia.
Stand forth Demetrius.
y conſent to marrie her.
Stand forth Lyſander
Duke,
ewitch'd the boſome of my childe
nder, thou haſt giuen her rimes, d loue-tokens with my childe:
oone-light at her window ſung,
ce, verſes of ſwaining loue,
preſſion of her fantaſie,
thy haire, rings, gawdes, conceits, ſhie-graces, ſweet meats (meſſengers ment in vnhardned youth)
With cunning haſt thou filch'd my daughters heart,
Turn'd her obedience (which is due to me)
To ſtubborne harſhneſſe. And my gracious Duke,
Be it ſo ſhe will not heere before your Grace,
Conſent to marrie with Demetrius,
I beg the ancient priuiledge of Athens;
As ſhe is mine, I may diſpoſe of her;
Which ſhall be either to this Gentleman,
Or to her death, according to our Law,
Immediately prouided in that caſe.
The. What ſay you Hermia? be aduis'd faire Maide
To you your Father ſhould be as a God;
One that compos'd your beauties; yea and one
To whom you are but as a forme in waxe
By him imprinted: and within his power,
To leaue the figure, or diſfigure it:
Demetrius is a worthy Gentleman.
Her. So is Lyſander.
The. In himſelfe he is.
But in this kinde, wanting your fathers voyce.
The other muſt be held the worthier.
Her. I would my father look'd but with my eyes
The. Rather your eies muſt with his iudgment looke.
Her. I do entreat your Grace to pardon me
I know not by what power I am made bold,
Nor how it may concerne my modeſtie
In ſuch a preſence heere to pleade my thoughts:
But I beſeech your Grace, that I may know
The worſt that may befall me in this caſe,
If I refuſe to wed Demetrius.
The. Either to dye the death, or to abiure
For euer the ſociery of men.
Therefore faire Hermia queſtion your deſires,
Know of your youth, examine well your blood,
Whether (if you yeeld not to your fathers choice)
You can endure the liuerie of a Nunne,
For aye to be in ſhady Cloiſter mew'd,
To liue a barren ſiſter all your life,
Chanting faint hymnes to the cold fruitleſſe Moone,
Thrice bleſſed they that maſter ſo their blood,
To vndergo ſuch maiden pilgrimage,
But earthlier happie is the Roſe diſtil'd,
Then that which withering on the virgin thorne,
Grower, liues, and dies, in ſingle bleſſednes.

Her So will I grow, ſo liue, ſo die my Lord,
Ere I will yeeld my virgin Patent vp
Vnto his Lordſhip, whoſe vnwiſhed yoake,
My ſoule conſents not to giue ſouereignty.
The Take time to pauſe, and by the next new Moone
The ſealing day betwixt my loue and me,
For euerlaſting bond of fellowſhip:
Vpon that day either prepare to dye,
For diſobedience to your fathers will,
Or elſe to wed Demetrius as hee would,
Or on Diannas Altar to proteſt
For aie, auſterity, and ſingle life.
Dem. Relent ſweet Hermia, and Lyſander, yeelde
Thy crazed title to my certaine right.
Lyſ. You haue her fathers loue, Demetrius:
Let me haue Hermias: do you marry him.
Egeus. Scornfull Lyſander, true, he hath my Loue;
And what is mine, my loue ſhall render him.
And ſhe is mine, and all my right of her,
I do eſtate vnto Demetrius.
Lyſ. I am my Lord, as well deriu'd as he,
As well poſſeſt: my loue is more then his:
My fortunes euery way as fairely ranck'd
(If not with vantage) as Demetrius:
And (which is more then all theſe boaſts can be)
I am belou'd of beauteous Hermia.
Why ſhould not I then proſecute my right?
Demetrius, Ile auouch it to his head,
Made loue to Nedars daughter, Helena,
And won her ſoule: and ſhe (ſweet Ladie) dotes,
Deuoutly dotes, dotes in Idolatry,
Vpon this ſpotted and inconſtant man.
The. I muſt confeſſe, that I haue heard ſo much,
And with Demetrius thought to haue ſpoke thereof:
But being ouer-full of ſelfe-affaires,
My minde did loſe it. But Demetrius come,
And come Egeus, you ſhall go with me,
I haue ſome priuate ſchooling for you both.
For you faire Hermia, looke you arme your ſelfe,
To fit your fancies to your Fathers will;
Or elſe the Law of Athens yeelds you vp
(Which by no meanes we may extenuate)
To death, or to a vow of ſingle life.
Come my Hippolita, what cheare my loue?
Demetrius and Egeus go along:
I muſt imploy you in ſome buſineſſe
Againſt our nuptiall, and conferre with you
Of ſomething, nearely that concernes your ſelues.
Ege. With duetie and deſire we follow you. Exeunt
Manet Lyſander and Hermia.
Lyſ. How now my loue? Why is your cheek ſo pale?
How chance the Roſes there do fade ſo faſt?
Her. Belike for want of raine, which I could well
Beteeme them, from the tempeſt of mine eyes
Lyſ. For ought that euer I could reade,
Could euer heare by tale or hiſtorie,
The courſe of true loue neuer did run ſmooth,
But either it was different in blood.
Her. O croſſe! too high to be enthral'd to loue.
Lyſ. Or elſe miſgraffed, in reſpect of yeares
Her. O ſpight! too old to be engag'd to yong
Lyſ. Or elſe it ſtood vpon the choiſe of merit.
Her. O hell! to chooſe loue by another's eie.
Lyſ. Or if there were a ſimpathie in choiſe,
Warre, death, or ſickneſſe, did lay ſiege to it;
Making it momentarie, as a ſounde:
Swift as a ſhadow, ſhort as any dreame,
Briefe as the lightning in the collied night,
That (in a ſpleene) vnfolds both heauen and earth:
And ere a man hath power to ſay, behold,
The iawes of darkneſſe do deuoure it vp:
So quicke bright things come to confuſion
Her. If then true Louers haue beene euer croſt,
It ſtands as an edict in deſtinie:
Then let vs teach our triall patience,
Becauſe it is a cuſtomarie croſſe,
As due to loue, as thoughts, and dreames, and ſighes,
Wiſhes and teares; poore Fancies followers.
Lyſ. A good perſwaſion; therefore heare me Hermia,
I haue a Widdow Aunt, a dowager,
Of great reuennow, and ſhe hath no childe,
From Athens is her houſe remou'd ſeuen leagues,
And ſhe reſpects me, as her onely ſonne:
There gentle Hermia, may I marrie thee,
And to that place, the ſharpe Athenian Law
Cannot purſue vs. If thou lou'ſt me, then Steale forth thy fathers houſe to morrow night
And in the wood, a league without the towne,
(Where I did meete thee once with Helena,
To do obſeruance for a morne of May)
There will I ſtay for thee
Her. My good Lyſander,
I ſweare to thee, by Cupids ſtrongeſt bow,
By his beſt arrow with the golden head,
By the ſimplicitie of Venus Doues,
By that which knitteth ſoules, and proſpers loue,
And by that fire which burn'd the Carthage Queene,
When the falſe Troyan vnder ſaile was ſeene,
By all the vowes that euer men haue broke,
(In number more then euer women ſpoke)
In that ſame place thou haſt appointed me,
To morrow truly will I meete with thee.
Lyſ. Keepe promiſe loue. looke here comes Helena.

Enter Helena.

Her. God ſpeede faire Helena, whither away?
Hel. Cal you me faire? that faire againe vnſay,
Demetrius loues you faire: O happie faire!
Your eyes are loadſtarres, and your tongues ſweet ayre
More tuneable then Larke to ſhepheards eare,
When wheate is greene, when hauthorne buds appeare.
Sickneſſe is catching: O were fauour ſo,
Your words I catch, faire Hermia ere I go,
My eare ſhould catch your voice, my eye your eye,
My tongue ſhould catch your tongues ſweet melodie,
Were the world mine, Demetrius being baited,
The reſt Ile giue to be to you tranſlated
O teach me how you looke, and with what art
you ſway the motion of Demetrius hart.
Her. I frowne vpon him, yet he loues me ſtill.
Hel. O that your frownes would teach my ſmiles ſuch skil.
Her. I giue him curſes, yet he giues me loue.
Hel. O that my prayers could ſuch affection moue.
Her. The more I hate, the more he followes me
Hel. The more I loue, the more he hateth me.
Her. His folly Helena is none of mine
Hel. None but your beauty, would that fault were mine
Her. Take comfort; he no more ſhall ſee my face,
Lyſander and my ſelfe will flie this place.
Before the time I did Lyſander ſee,
Seem'd Athens like a Paradiſe to mee.

graces in my Loue do dwell,
turn'd a heauen into hell.
,to you our mindes we will vnfold, ight,when Phoebe doth behold
ge,in the watry glaſſe,
h liquid pearle,the bladed graſſe Louers flights doth ſtill conceale) ime gates,haue we deuis'd to ſtraie.
in the wood,where often you and I,
rimroſe beds,were wont to lye,
r boſomes,of their counſell ſweld:
ander,and my ſelfe ſhall meete,
om Athens turne away our eyes friends and ſtrange companions, play-fellow, pray thou for vs,
ke grant thee thy Demetrius.
yſander we muſt ſtarue our ſight,
oode, till morrow deepe midnight.
Exit Hermia.
my Hermia. Helena adieu,
n, Demetrius doates on you. Exit Lyſander.
w happy ſome,ore otherſome can be?
ens I am thought as faire as ſhe.
ut? Demetrius thinkes not ſo:
ove,what all,but he doth know.
ret,doting on Hermias eyes;
of his qualities:
nd vilde, holding no quantity.
ſpoſe to forme and dignity,
ot with the eyes,but with the minde,
: is wing'd Cupid painted blinde.
s mindle of any iudgements taſte:
eyes, figure, vnheedy haſte.
is Loue ſaid to be a childe,
nſe he is often beguil'd,
oyes in game themſelues forſweare;
ne is periur'd euery where.
ena looke on Hermias eyne,
me oathes that he was onely mine.
s Haile ſome heat from Hermia felt,
,and ſhowres of oathes did melt,
him of faire Hermias flight:
ood will he,to morrow night
id for his intelligence, ces, it is a deere expence:
eaſe I to enrich my paine.
ght thither,and backe againe. Exit.

he Carpenter, Snug the Ioyner, Bottome the e the bellowes-mender, Snout the Tinker, and he Taylor.

ll our company heere?
were beſt to call them generally, man by g to the ſcrip.
is the ſcrowle of euery mans name,which through all Athens, to play in our Enter-e Duke and the Dutcheſſe, on his wedding

ood Peter Quince,ſay what the play treats the names of the Actors: and ſo grow on ry our play is the moſt lamentable Come-cruell death of Pyramus and Thisbie.

y good peece of worke I aſſure you, and a merry. Now good Peter Quince, call forth your Actors by the ſcrowle. Maſters ſpread your ſelues.

Quince. Anſwere-as I call you. Nick Bottome the Weauer.

Bottome. Ready; name what part I am for, and proceed.

Quince. You Nicke Bottome are fet downe for Pyramus.

Bot. What is Pyramus, a louer, or a tyrant?

Quin. A Louer that kills himſelfe moſt gallantly for loue.

Bot. That will aske ſome teares in the true performing of it: if I do it, let the audience looke to their eies: I will mooue ſtormes; I will condole in ſome meaſure. To the reſt yet, my chiefe humour is for a tyrant. I could play Ercles rarely, or a part to teare a Cat in, to make all ſplit the raging Rocks; and ſhiuering ſhocks ſhall breake the locks of priſon gates, and Phibbus carre ſhall ſhine from farre, and make and marre the foolish Fates. This was lofty. Now name the reſt of the Players. This is Ercles vaine, a tyrants vaine: a louer is more condoling.

Quin. Francis Flute the Bellowes-mender.

Flu. Heere Peter Quince.

Quin. You muſt take Thisbie on you.

Flut. What is Thisbie, a wandring Knight?

Quin. It is the Lady that Pyramus muſt loue.

Flut. Nay faith, let not mee play a woman, I haue a beard comming.

Qui. That's all one, you ſhall play it in a Maske, and you may ſpeake as ſmall as you will.

Bot. And I may hide my face, let me play Thisbie too: Ile ſpeake in a monſtrous little voyce; Thiſne, Thiſne, ah Pyramus my louer deare, thy Thisbie deare, and Lady deare.

Quin. No no, you muſt play Pyramus, and Flute, you Thisby.

Bot. Well, proceed.

Qu. Robin Starueling the Taylor.

Star. Heere Peter Quince.

Quince. Robin Starueling, you muſt play Thisbies mother?

Tom Snout, the Tinker.

Snout. Heere Peter Quince.

Quin. You, Pyramus father; my ſelf, Thisbies father; Snugge the Ioyner, you the Lyons part: and I hope there is a play fitted.

Snug. Haue you the Lions part written? pray you if be, giue it me, for I am ſlow of ſtudie.

Quin. You may doe it extemporie, for it is nothing but roaring.

Bot. Let mee play the Lyon too, I will roare that I will doe any mans heart good to heere me. I will roare, that I will make the Duke ſay, Let him roare againe, let him roare againe.

Quin. If you ſhould doe it too terribly, you would fright the Dutcheſſe and the Ladies, that they would ſhrike, and that were enough to hang vs all.

All. That would hang vs every mothers ſonne.

Bottome. I graunt you friends, if that you ſhould fright the Ladies out of their Wittes, they would haue no more diſcretion but to hang vs: but I will aggrauate my voyce ſo, that I will roare you as gently as any ſucking Doue; I will roare and 'twere any Nightingale.

Quin. You can play no part but Pyramus, for Pyra- man is a ſweet-fac'd man, a proper man as one ſhall ſee in a ſummers day; a moſt louely Gentleman-like man, therfore you muſt needs play Pyramus.

Bot. Well, I will vndertake it. What beard were I beſt to play it in?

Quin. Why, what you will.

Bot. I will diſcharge it, in either your ſtraw-colour beard, your orange tawnie beard, your purple in graine beard, or your French-crowne colour'd beard, your perfect yellow.

Quin. Some of your French Crownes haue no hairs at all, and then you will play bare-fac'd. But maſters here are your parts, and I am to intreat you, requeſt you, and deſire you, to con them by to morrow night: and meet me in the palace wood, a mile without the Towne, by Moone-light, there we will rehearſe: for if we meete in the Citie, we ſhalbe dog'd with company, and our deuiſes knowne. In the meane time, I will draw a bil of properties, ſuch as our play wants. I pray you faile me not.

Bottom. We will meete, and there we may rehearſe more obſcenely and courageouſly. Take paines, be perfect, adieu.

Quin. At the Dukes oake we meete.

Bot. Enough, hold or cut bow-ſtrings. Exeunt

Actus Secundus.

Enter a Fairie at one doore, and Robin good-fellow at another.

Rob. How now ſpirit, whether wander you?

Fai. Ouer hil, ouer dale, through buſh, through briar,
Ouer parke, ouer pale, through flood, through fire,
I do wander euerie where, ſwifter then ſ Moons ſphere;
And I ſerue the Fairy Queene, to dew her orbs vpon the green.
The Cowſlips tall, her penſioners bee,
In their gold coats, ſpots you ſee,
Thoſe be Rubies, Fairie fauors,
In thoſe freckles, liue their fauors,
I muſt go ſeeke ſome dew drops heere,
And hang a pearle in euery cowſlips eare.
Farewell thou Lob of ſpirits, Ile be gon,
Our Queene and all her Elues come heere anon.

Rob. The King doth keepe his Reuels here to night,
Take heed the Queene come not within his ſight,
For Oberon is paſſing fell and wrath,
Becauſe that ſhe, as her attendant, hath
A louely boy ſtolne from an Indian King,
She neuer had ſo ſweet a changeling,
And iealous Oberon would haue the childe
Knight of his traine, to trace the Forreſts wilde.
But ſhe (perforce) with holds the loued boy,
Crownes him with flowers, and makes him all her ioy.
And now they neuer meete in groue, or greene,
By fountaine cleere, or ſpangled ſtar-light ſheene,
But they do ſquare, that all their Elues for feare
Creepe into Acorne cups and hide them there.

Fai. Either I miſtake your ſhape and makmg quite,
Or elſe you are that ſhrew'd and knauiſh ſpirit
Cal'd Robin Good-fellow. Are you not hee,
That frights the maidens of the Villagree,
Skim milke, and ſometimes labour in the querne,
And bootleſſe make the breathleſſe huſwife cherne,
And ſometime make the drinke to beare no barme,
Miſleade night-wanderers, laughing at their harme,
Thoſe that Hobgoblin call you, and ſweet Pucke,
You do their worke, and they ſhall haue good lucke.
Are not you he?

Rob. Thou ſpeak'ſt aright;
I am that merrie wanderer of the night:
I ieſt to Oberon, and make him ſmile,
When I a fat and beane-fed horſe beguile,
Neighing in likeneſſe of a ſilly foale,
And ſometime lurke I in a Goſſips bole,
In very likeneſſe of a roaſted crab:
And when ſhe drinkes, againſt her lips I bob,
And on her withered dewlop poure the Ale.
The wiſeſt Aunt telling the ſaddeſt tale,
Sometime for three-foot ſtoole, miſtaketh me,
Then ſlip I from her bum, downe topples ſhe,
And tailour cries, and falls into a coffe.
And then the whole quire hold their hips, and loffe,
And waxen in their mirth, and neeze, and ſweare,
A merrier houre vvas neuer waſted there.
But roome Fairy, heere comes Oberon

Fair. And heere my Miſtris:
Would that he vvere gone.

Enter the King of Fairies at one doore with his traine, and the Queene at another with hers.

Ob. Ill met by Moone-light,
Proud Tytania.

Qu. What, iealous Oberon? Fairy ſkip hence.
I haue forſworne his bed and companie.

Ob. Tarrie raſh Wanton; am not I thy Lord?

Qu. Then I muſt be thy Lady: but I know
When thou vvaſt ſtolne away from Fairy Land,
And in the ſhape of Corin, ſate all day,
Playing on pipes of Corne, and verſing loue
To amorous Phillida. Why art thou heere
Come from the fartheſt ſteepe of India?
But that forſooth the bouncing Amazon
Your buskin'd Miſtreſſe, and your Warrior loue,
To Theſeus muſt be Wedded; and you come,
To giue their bed ioy and proſperitie.

Ob. How canſt thou thus for ſhame Tytania,
Glance at my credite, vvith Hippolita?
Knowing I know thy loue to Theſeus?
Didſt thou not leade him through the glimmering night
From Perigenia, whom he raviſhed?
And make him vvith faire Eagles breake his faith
With Ariadne, and Antiopa?

Qu. Theſe are the forgeries of iealouſie,
And neuer ſince the middle Summers ſpring
Met vve on hil, in dale, forreſt, or mead,
By paued fountaine, or by ruſhie brooke,
Or in the beached margent of the ſea,
To dance our ringlets to the whiſtling Winde.
But vvith thy braules thou haſt diſturb'd our ſport.
Therefore the Windes, piping to vs in vaine,
As in reuenge, haue ſuck'd vp from the ſea
Contagious fogges: Which falling in the Land,
Hath euerie petty Riuer made ſo proud,
That they haue ouer-borne their Continents
The Oxe hath therefore ſtretch'd his yoake in vaine,
The Ploughman loſt his ſweat, and the greene Corne
Hath rotted, ere his youth attain'd a beard:
The fold ſtands empty in the drowned field,
And Crowes are fatted vvith the murrion flocke,

The

ortis is fild vp with mud, leezes in the wanton greene,
lare vndistinguishable.
tals want their winter heere,
with hymne or caroll blest;
soone (the gouernesse of floods)
,washes all the sire;
e diseases doe abound.
distemperature, we see hoared headed frosts
p of the crimson Rose,
e chinne and Icie crowne,
ples of sweet Sommer buds
t. The Spring, the Sommer, umne, angry Winter change
eries, and the mazed world, now knowes not which is which:
ogeny of euills,
debate, from our dissention,
nts and originall.
amend it then, it lies in you,
was crosse her Oberon?
ie changeling boy,
man
neare as rest.
eyes not the childe of me,
Votresse of my Order,
Indian aire, by night
e gossipt by my side,
an Neptunes yellow sands,
sked traders on the flood,
ught to see the sailes conceiue,
lied with the wanton winde:
rretty and with swimming gate,
oombe then rich with my yong squire,
nd saile vpon the Land,
s, and returne againe,
, rich with merchandize,
rtall, of that boy did die,
I doe reare vp her boy,
will not part with him.
g within this wood intend you stay
e till after Theseus wedding day.
ly dance in our Round,
ne-light reuels, goe with vs:
d I will share your haunts that boy and I will goe with thee.
by Fairy Kingdome Fairies away
owne night, if I longer stay. Exeunt
y way, thou shalt not from this groue,
e for this iniury.
ome hither; thou remembrest pon a promontory
re-maide on a Dolphins backe ces and harmonious breath,
grew stiffe at her song,
es shot madly from their Spheares,
mards mou'd.
ber.
time I spy (but thou couldst not) the cold Moone and the earth, certaine time he tooke
throned by the West,
an-shaft smartly from his bow
e a hundred thousand hearts,
ung Cupids fiery shaft
Quenchi in the chaste beames of the watry Moone;
And the imperiall Votresse passed on,
In maiden meditation, fancy free.
Yet markt I where the bolt of Cupid fell.
It fell vpon a little westerne flower;
Before, milke-white; now purple with loues wound,
And maidens call it, Loue in idlenesse.
Fetch me that flower; the herb I shew'd thee once,
The iuyce of it, on sleeping eye-lids laid,
Will make or man or woman madly dote
Vpon the next liue creature that it sees.
Fetch me this herbe, and be thou heere againe,
Ere the Leuiathan can swim a league.

Puck. Ile put a girdle about the earth, in forty minutes.

Ober. Hauing once this iuyce,
Ile watch Titania, when she is asleepe,
And drop the liquor of it in her eyes
The next thing when she waking lookes vpon,
(Be it on Lyon, Beare, or Wolfe or Bull,
On medling Monkey, or on busie Ape)
Shee shall pursue it, with the soule of loue.
And ere I take this charme off from her sight,
(As I can take it with another herbe)
Ile make her render vp her Page to me.
But who comes heere? I am inuisible,
And I will ouer-heare their conference.

Enter Demetrius, Helena following him

Demet. I loue thee not, therefore pursue me not.
Where is Lysander, and faire Hermia?
The one Ile slay, the other slayeth me.
Thou told'st me they were stolne into this wood;
And heere am I, and wood within this wood,
Because I cannot meet my Hermia.
Hence, get thee gone, and follow me no more.

Hel. You draw me, you hard-hearted Adamant,
But yet you draw not Iron, for my heart
Is true as steele. Leaue you your power to draw,
And I shall haue no power to follow you.

Demet. Do I entice you? do I speake you faire?
Or rather doe I not in plainest truth,
Tell you I doe not, nor I cannot loue you?

Hel. And euen for that doe I loue thee the more;
I am your spaniell, and Demetrius,
The more you beat me, I will fawne on you.
Vse me but as your spaniell; spurne me, strike me,
Neglect me, lose me; only giue me leaue
(Vnworthy as I am) to follow you.
What worser place can I beg in your loue,
(And yet a place of high respect with me)
Then to be vsed as you doe your dogge.

Dem. Tempt not too much the hatred of my spirit,
For I am sicke when I do looke on thee.

Hel. And I am sicke when I looke not on you.

Dem. You doe impeach your modestie too much,
To leaue the Citty, and commit your selfe
Into the hands of one that loues you not,
To trust the opportunity of night,
And the implacable counsell of a desert place,
With the rich worth of your virginity.

Hel. Your vertue is my priuiledge: for that
It is not night when I doe see your face,
Therefore I thinke I am not in the night,
Nor doth this wood lacke worlds of company,

For you in my reſpect are all the world.
Then how can it be ſaid I am alone,
When all the world is heere to looke on me?

Dem. Ile run from thee, and hide me in the brakes,
And leaue thee to the mercy of wilde beaſts.

Hel. The wildeſt hath not ſuch a heart as you;
Runne when you will, the ſtory ſhall be chang'd:
Apollo flies, and Daphne holds the chaſe;
The Doue purſues the Griffin, the milde Hinde
Makes ſpeed to catch the Tyger. Bootleſſe ſpeede,
When cowardiſe purſues, and valour flies.

Demet. I will not ſtay thy queſtions, let me go;
Or if thou follow me, doe not beleeue,
But I ſhall doe thee miſchiefe in the wood.

Hel. I, in the Temple in the Towne, and Field
You doe me miſchiefe. Fye Demetrius,
Your wrongs doe ſet a ſcandall on my ſexe:
We cannot fight for loue, as men may doe;
We ſhould be woo'd, and were not made to woo.
I follow thee, and make a heauen of hell,
To die vpon the hand I loue ſo well. Exit.

Ob. Fare thee well Nymph, ere he do leaue this groue,
Thou ſhalt flie him, and he ſhall ſeeke thy loue.
Haſt thou the flower there? Welcome wanderer.

Enter Pucke.

Puck, I, there it is

Ob. I pray thee giue it me.
I know a banke where the wilde time blowes,
Where Oxſlips and the nodding Violet growes,
Quite ouer-cannoped with luſcious woodbine,
With ſweet muske roſes, and with Eglantine;
There ſleepes Tytania, ſometime of the night,
Lul'd in theſe flowers, with dances and delight.
And there the ſnake throwes her enammel'd skinne,
Weed wide enough to rap a Fairy in.
And with the iuyce of this Ile ſtreake her eyes,
And make her full of hateſull fantaſies.
Take thou ſome of it, and ſeek through this groue;
A ſweet Athenian Lady is in loue
With a diſdainefull youth: annoint his eyes,
But doe it when the next thing he eſpies,
May be the Lady. Thou ſhalt know the man,
By the Athenian garments he hath on.
Effect it with ſome care, that he may proue
More fond on her, then ſhe vpon her loue;
And looke thou meet me ere the firſt Cocke crow.

Puc. Feare not my Lord, your ſeruant ſhall do ſo. Exit.

Enter Queene of Fairies, with her traine

Queen. Come, now a Roundell, and a Fairy ſong;
Then for the third part of a minute hence,
Some to kill Cankers in the muſke roſe buds,
Some warre with Reremiſe, for their leathern wings,
To make my ſmall Elues coates, and ſome keepe backe
The clamorous Owle that nightly hoots and wonders
At our quaint ſpirits. Sing me now aſleepe.
Then to your offices, and let me reſt.

Fairies Sing.

You ſpotted Snakes with double tongue,
Thorny Hedgehogges be not ſeene,
Newts and blinde wormes do no wrong,
Come not neere our Fairy Queene.
Philomele with melodie,
Sing in your ſweet Lullaby.
Lulla, lulla, lullaby, lulla, lulla lullaby,
Neuer harme, nor ſpell, nor charme,
Come our louely Lady nye.
So good night with Lullaby.

2. Fairy. Weauing Spiders come not heere,
Hence you long leg'd Spinners, hence.
Beetles blacke approach not neere;
Worme nor Snayle doe no offence.
Philomele with melody, &c.

1. Fairy. Hence away, now all is well:
One aloofe, ſtand Centinell. Shee ſleepes

Enter Oberon.

Ober. What thou ſeeſt when thou doſt wake,
Doe it for thy true Loue take:
Loue and languiſh for his ſake.
Be it Ounce, or Cattie, or Beare,
Pard, or Boare with briſtled haire,
In thy eye that ſhall appeare,
When thou wak'ſt, it is thy deare,
Wake when ſome vile thing is neere.

Enter Liſander and Hermia.

Liſ. Faire loue, you faint with wandring in the woods
And to ſpeake troth I haue forgot our way:
We'll reſt vs Hermia, if you thinke it good,
And tarry for the comfort of the day.

Her. Be it ſo Lyſander; finde you out a bed,
For I vpon this banke will reſt my head.

Lyſ. One curſe ſhall ſerue as pillow for vs both,
One heart, one bed, two boſomes, and one troth.

Her. Nay good Lyſander, for my ſake my deere
Lie further off yet, doe not lie ſo neere.

Lyſ. O take the ſence ſweet, of my innocence,
Loue takes the meaning, in loues conference,
I meane that my heart vnto yours is knit,
So that but one heart can you make of it.
Two boſomes interchanged with an oath,
So then two boſomes, and a ſingle troth.
Then by your ſide, no bed-roome me deny.
For lying ſo, Hermia, I doe not lye.

Her. Liſander riddles very prettily;
Now much beſhrew my manners and my pride,
If Hermia meant to ſay, Lyſander lied.
But gentle friend, for loue and courteſie
Lie further off, in humane modeſty,
Such ſeparation, as may well be ſaid,
Becomes a vertuous batchelour, and a maide,
So farre be diſtant, and good night ſweet friend:
Thy loue ne're alter, till thy ſweet life end.

Lyſ. Amen, amen, to that faire prayer, ſay I,
And then end life, when I end loyalty:
Heere is my bed, ſleepe giue thee all his reſt

Her. With halfe that wiſh, the wiſhers eyes be preſt

Enter Pucke They ſleepe.

Puck. Through the Forreſt haue I gone,
But Athenian finde I none,
One whoſe eyes I might approue
This flowers force in ſtirring loue.
Night and ſilence: who is heere?
Weedes of Athens he doth weare:
This is he (my maſter ſaid)
Deſpiſed the Athenian maide:
And heere the maiden ſleeping ſound,

On

nd durty ground
e durſt not lye
e-loue, this kill-curteſie.
y eyes I throw
his charme doth owe:
k'ſt, let loue forbid
on thy eye-lid
I am gone:
to Oberon. Exit.

Demetrius and Helena running.

ough thou kill me, ſweete Demetrius thee hence, and do not haunt me thus.
thou darkling leaue me? do not ſo.
thy perill, I alone will go. Exit Demetrius out of breath, in this fond chace, ayer, the leſſer is my grace,
, whereſoere ſhe lies;
ſtard and attractiue eyes.
eyes ſo bright? Not with ſalt teares.
e oftner waſht then hers.
gly as a Beare;
meete me, runne away for feare, atuaile, though Demetrius
er, flie my preſence thus.
nd diſſembling glaſſe of mine,
ate with Hermias ſphery eyne?
? Lyſander on the ground;
e? I ſee no bloud, no wound,
liue, good ſir awake.
n through fire I will for thy ſweet ſake.
lena, nature her ſhewes art,
hy boſome makes me ſee thy heart.
rius? oh how fit a word
e, to periſh on my ſword!
ſay ſo Lyſander, ſay not ſo:
e loue your Hermia? Lord, what though?
loues you; then be content.
t with Hermia? No, I do repent nates I with her haue ſpent.
t Helena now I loue;
hange a Rauen for a Doue?
is by his reaſon ſway'd:
you are the worthier Maide.
g are not ripe vntill their ſeaſon;
, till now ripe not to reaſon,
ow the point of humane skill,
n the Marſhall to my will,
o your eyes, where I ore-looke ritten in Loues richeſt booke.
fore was I to this keene mockery borne?
ands did I deſerue this ſcorne?
ſt not enough, yong man,
, no nor never can,
e looke from Demetrius eye,
but my inſufficiency?
do me wrong (good-ſooth you do)
full manner, me to woo.
ll; perforce I muſt confeſſe,
Lord of more true gentleneſſe.
of one man refus'd,
en therefore be abus'd Exit.
not Hermia; Hermia ſleepe thou there,
ſt thou come Lyſander neere;
For as a ſurfeit of the ſweeteſt things
The deepeſt loathing to the ſtomacke brings
Or as the hereſies that men do leaue,
Are hated moſt of thoſe that did deceiue:
So thou, my ſurfeit, and my hereſie,
Of all be hated; but the moſt of me;
And all my powers addreſſe your loue and might,
To honour Helen, and to be her Knight. Exit
Her. Helpe me Lyſander, helpe me; do thy beſt
To plucke this crawling ſerpent from my breſt.
Aye me, for pitty; what a dreame was here?
Lyſander looke, how I do quake with feare:
Me-thought a ſerpent eate my heart away,
And yet ſat ſmiling at his cruell prey.
Lyſander, what remoou'd? Lyſander, Lord,
What, out of hearing, gone? No ſound, no word?
Alacke where are you? ſpeake and if you hear;
Speake of all loues; I ſound almoſt with feare.
No, then I well perceiue you are not nye,
Either death or you Ile finde immediately. Exit.

Actus Tertius.

Enter the Clownes.

Bot. Are we all met?

Quin. Pat, pat, and here's a marualious conuenient place for our rehearſall. This greene plot ſhall be our ſtage, this hauthorne brake our tyring houſe, and we will do it in action, as we will do it before the Duke.

Bot. Peter quince?

Peter. What ſaſt thou, bully Bottome?

Bot. There are things in this Comedy of Pyramus and Thisby, that will neuer pleaſe. Firſt Pyramus muſt draw a ſword to kill himſelfe; which the Ladies cannot abide. How anſwere you that?

Snout. Berlaken, a parlous feare.

Star. I beleeue we muſt leaue the killing out, when all is done.

Bot. Not a whit, I haue a deuice to make all well. Write me a Prologue, and let the Prologue ſeeme to ſay, we will do no harme with our ſwords, and that Pyramus is not kill'd indeede: and for the more better aſſurance, tell them, that I Pyramus am not Pyramus, but Bottome the Weauer; this will put them out of feare.

Quin. Well, we will haue ſuch a Prologue, and it ſhall be written in eight and ſixe.

Bot. No, make it two more, let it be written in eight and eight.

Snout. Will not the Ladies be afear'd of the Lyon?

Star. I feare it, I promiſe you.

Bot. Maſters, you ought to conſider with your ſelues, to bring in (God ſhield vs) a Lyon among Ladies, is a moſt dreadfull thing. For there is not a more fearefull wilde foule then your Lyon liuing: and wee ought to looke to it.

Snout. Therefore another Prologue muſt tell he is not a Lyon.

Bot. Nay, you muſt name his name, and halfe his face muſt be ſeene through the Lyons necke, and he himſelfe muſt ſpeake through, ſaying thus, or to the ſame defect; Ladies, or faire Ladies, I would wiſh you, or I would requeſt requeſt you,or I would entreat you, not to feare, not to tremble: my life for yours. If you thinke I come hither as a Lyon, it were pitty of my life. No, I am no ſuch thing, I am a man as other men are; and there indeed let him name his name, and tell him plainly hee is Snug the ioyner.

Quin. Well, it ſhall be ſo; but there is two hard things, that is, to bring the Moone-light into a chamber: for you know, Piramus and Thisby meete by Moone-light.

Sn. Doth the Moone ſhine that night we play our play?

Bot. A Calender, a Calender, looke in the Almanack, finde out Moone-ſhine, finde out Moone-ſhine.

Enter Pucke.

Quin. Yes, it doth ſhine that night.

Bot. Why then may you leaue a caſement of the great chamber window (where we play) open, and the Moone may ſhine in at the caſement.

Quin. I, or elſe one muſt come in with a buſh of thorns and a lanthorne, and ſay he comes to diſfigure, or to preſent the perſon of Moone-ſhine. Then there is another thing, we muſt haue a wall in the great Chamber; for Piramus and Thisby (ſaies the ſtory) did talke through the chinke of a wall.

Sn. You can neuer bring in a wall. What ſay you Bottome?

Bot. Some man or other muſt preſent wall, and let him haue ſome Plaſter, or ſome Lome, or ſome rough caſt about him, to ſignifie wall; or let him hold his fingers thus; and through that cranny, ſhall Piramus and Thisby whiſper.

Quin. If that may be, then all is well. Come, ſit downe euery mothers ſonne, and rehearſe your parts. Piramus, you begin; when you haue ſpoken your ſpeech, enter into that Brake, and ſo euery one according to his cue.

Enter Robin.

Rob. What hempen home-ſpuns haue we ſwaggering here,
So neere the Cradle of the Faierie Queene?
What, a Play toward? Ile be an auditor,
An Actor too perhaps, if I ſee cauſe.

Quin. Speake Piramus. Thisby ſtand forth.

Pir. Thisby, the flowers of odious ſauors ſweete.

Quin. Odours, odours.

Pir. Odours ſauours ſweete,
So hath thy breath, my deareſt Thisby deare.
But harke, a voyce: ſtay thou but here a while,
And by and by I will to thee appeare. Exit, Pir.

Puck. A ſtranger Piramus, then ere plaid here.

Thiſ. Muſt I ſpeake now?

Pet. I marry muſt you. For you muſt vnderſtand, goes but to ſee a noyſe that he heard, and is to come againe

Thiſ. Moſt radiant Piramus, moſt Lilly white of hue,
Of colour like the red roſe on triumphant bryer,
Moſt briskly Iuuenall, and eke moſt louely Iew,
As true as trueſt horſe, that yet would neuer tyre,
Ile meete thee Piramus, at Ninnies toombe.

Pet. Ninus toombe man: why, you muſt not ſpeake that yet; that you anſwere to Piramus: you ſpeake all your part at once, cues and all. Piramus enter, your cue is paſt; it is neuer tyre.

Thiſ. O, as true as trueſt horſe, that yet would neuer tyre:

Pir. If I were faire, Thisby I were only thine.

Pet. O monſtrous. O ſtrange. We are haunted; pray maſters, flye maſters, helpe.

The Clowners all Exit.

Puck. Ile follow you, Ile leade you about a Round,
Through bogge, through buſh, through briake, through bryer,
Sometime a horſe Ile be, ſometime a hound: (fire,
A hogge, a headleſſe beare, ſometime a
And neigh, and barke, and grunt, and roare, and burne,
Like horſe, hound, hog, beare, fire, at euery turne. Exit.

Enter Piramus with the Aſſe head.

Bot. Why do they run away? This is a knauery of them to make me afeard. Enter Snout.

Sn. O Bottome, thou art chang'd; What doe I ſee on thee?

Bot. What do you ſee? You ſee an Aſſe-head of your owne, do you?

Enter Peter Quince.

Pet. Bleſſe thee Bottome, bleſſe thee; thou art tranſlated. Exit.

Bot. I ſee their knauery; this is to make an aſſe of me, to fright me if they could; but I will not ſtirre from this place, do what they can. I will walke vp and downe here, and I will ſing that they ſhall heare I am not afraid.

The Wooſell cocke, ſo blacke of hew,
With Orenge-tawny bill.
The Throſtle, with his note ſo true,
The Wren and little quill.

Tyta. What Angell wakes me from my flowery bed?

Bot. The Finch, the Sparrow, and the Larke,
The plainſong Cuckow gray;
Whoſe note full many a man doth marke,
And dares not anſwere, nay.
For indeede, who would ſet his wit to ſo foolliſh a bird? Who would giue a bird the lye, though he cry Cuckow, neuer ſo?

Tyta. I pray thee gentle mortall, ſing againe.
Mine eare is much enamored of thy note;
On the firſt view to ſay, to ſweare I loue thee.
So is mine eye enthralled to thy ſhape.
And thy faire vertues force (perforce) doth moue me.

Bot. Me-thinkes miſtreſſe, you ſhould haue little reaſon for that: and yet to ſay the truth, reaſon and loue keepe little company together, now-adayes. The more the pittie, that ſome honeſt neighbours will not make them friends. Nay, I can gleeke vpon occaſion.

Tyta. Thou art as wiſe, as thou art beautifull.

Bot. Not ſo neither: but if I had wit enough to get out of this wood, I haue enough to ſerue mine owne turne.

Tyta. Out of this wood, do not deſire to goe.
Thou ſhalt remaine here, whether thou wilt or no
I am a ſpirit of no common rate:
The Summer ſtill doth tend vpon my ſtate,
And I doe loue thee; therefore goe with me,
Ile giue thee Fairies to attend on thee;
And they ſhall fetch thee Iewels from the deepe,
And ſing, while thou on preſſed flowers doſt ſleepe
And I will purge thy mortall groſſeneſſe ſo,
That thou ſhalt like an airie ſpirit go.

Enter Peaſe-bloſſome, Cobweb, Moth, Muſtard-ſeede, and foure Fairies.

Fai. Ready; and I, and I, and I. Where ſhall we go?

Tita. Be

ide and curteous to this Gentleman,
kes, and gambole in his eies,
Apricocks, and Dewberries, rapes, greene Figs, and Mulberries, ſteale from the humble Bees,
apers crop their waxen thighes,
as the fierie-Glow-wormes eyes,
e to bed, and to arise.
wings from painted Butterflies,
one-beames from his ſleeping eies
es, and doe him curteſies.
moſtall, haile.
s.
our worſhips mercy hartily: I beſeech
name.
leſire you of more acquaintance, good if I cut my finger, I ſhall make bold ell Gentleman?
Bloſſome.
ou commend mee to miſtreſſe Squaſh,
d to maſter Peaſcod your father. Good ſome, I ſhal deſire of you more acquain-name I beſeech you ſir?
ard-ſeede.
Bloſſome.
aſter Muſtard ſeede, I know your patiſacke cowardly gyant-like Oxe beefe many a gentleman of your houſe. I pro-kindred hath made my eyes water ere you more acquaintance, good Maſter waite vpon him, lead him to my bower.
thinks, looker with a warrie eie, weepes, weepe euerie little flower,
e enforced chaſtitie.
es tongue, bring him ſilently. Exit.
ter King of Pharies, ſolus.
er if Titania be awak'n;
as that next came in her eye,
l dote-on, in extremitie.
Enter Pucke.
meſſenger? how now mad ſpirit,
ie now about the gaunted groue
lleis with a monſter is in loue, ole and conſecrated bower,
in her dull and ſleeping hower,
ues, rude Mechanicals,
bread vpon Athenian ſtalls,
ther to rehearſe a Play,
ene Theſeus nuptiall day:
thick-skin of that barren ſort,
preſented, in their ſport,
ene, and entred in a brake,
n ac this aduantage take,
fixed on his head.
he muſt be anſwered,
d mimmick comes: when they him ſpie,
le, that the creeping Fowler eye, d choughes, mayny in ſort wing as the guns report)
ies, and madly sweepe the skye:
So at his ſight, away his fellowes flye,
And at our ſtampe, here ore and ore one falls;
He murther cries, and helpe from Athens calls.
Their ſenſe thus weake, loſt with their feares thus ſtrong,
Made ſenſeleſſe things begin to do them wrong.
For briars and thornes at their apparell ſnatch,
Some ſleeues, ſome hats, from yeelders all things catch.
I led them on in this diſtracted feare,
And left ſweete Pyramus tranſlated there:
When in that moment (ſo it came to paſſe)
Titania waked, and ſtraightway lou'd an Aſſe.
Ob. This falls out better then I could deuiſe:
But haſt thou yet latcht the Athenians eyes,
With the loue iuyce, as I did bid thee doe?
Puck. I tooke him ſleeping (that is finiſht
And the Athenian woman by his ſide,
That when he wak'n, of force ſhe muſt be eyde.

Enter Demetrius and Hermia.

Ob. Stand cloſe, this is the ſame Athenian.
Rob. This is the woman, but not this the man.
Dem. O why rebuke you him that loues you ſo?
Lay breath ſo bitter on your bitter foe.
Her. Now I but chide, but I ſhould vſe thee worſe.
For thou (I feare) haſt giuen me cauſe to curſe,
If thou haſt ſlaine Lyſander in his ſleepe,
Being ore ſhoes in bloud, plunge in the deepe, and kill me too:
The Sunne was not ſo true vnto the day,
As he to me. Would he haue ſtollen away,
From ſleeping Hermia? Ile beleeue as ſoone
This whole earth may be bord, and that the Moone
May through the Center creepe, and ſo diſpleaſe
Her brothers noontide, with th' Antipodes.
It cannot be but thou haſt murdred him,
So ſhould a murtherer looke, ſo dead, ſo grim.
Dem. So ſhould the murderer looke, and ſo ſhould I,
Pierſt through the heart with your ſtearne cruelty.
Yet you the murderer looks as bright as cleare,
As yonder Venus in her glimmering ſpheare.
Her. What's this to my Lyſander? where is he?
Ah good Demetrius, wilt thou giue him me?
Dem. I'de rather giue his carkaſſe to my hounds.
Her. Out dog, out cur thou driu'ſt me paſt the bounds
Of maidens patience. Haſt thou ſlaine him then?
Henceforth be neuer numbred among men.
Oh, once tell true, euen for my ſake,
Durſt thou a looke vpon him, being awake?
And haſt thou kill'd him ſleeping? O braue tutch:
Could not a worme, an Adder do ſo much?
An Adder did it: for with doubler tongue
Then thine (thou ſerpent) neuer Adder ſtung.
Dem. You ſpend your paſſion on a miſpri'd mood,
I am not guiltie of Lyſanders bloud:
Nor is he dead for ought that I can tell.
Her. I pray thee tell me then that he is well.
Dem. And if I could, what ſhould I get therefore?
Her. A priuiledge, neuer to ſee me more:
And from thy hated preſence part I: ſee me no more
Whether he be dead or no. Exit.
Dem. There is no following her in this fierce vaine,
Here therefore for a while I will remaine.
So ſorrowes heauineſſe doth heauier grow
For debt that bankrout ſlip doth ſorrow owe,
Which now in ſome ſlight meaſure it will pay,

If

If for his tender here I make ſome ſtay. Lie downe.

Ob. What haſt thou done? Thou haſt miſtaken quite
And laid the loue iuyce on ſome true loues ſight:
Of thy miſpriſion, muſt perforce enſue
Some true loue turn'd, and not a falſe turn'd true.

Rob. Then fate o're-rules, that one man holding troth,
A million faile, confounding oath on oath.

Ob. About the wood, goe ſwifter then the winde,
And Helena of Athens looke thou finde.
All fancy ſicke ſhe is, and pale of cheere,
With ſighes of loue, that coſts the freſh bloud deare.
By ſome illuſion ſee thou bring her heere,
Ile charme his eyes againſt ſhe doth appeare.

Robin. I go, I go, looke how I goe,
Swifter then arrow from the Tartars bowe. Exit.

Ob. Flower of this purple die,
Hit with Cupids archery,
Sinke in apple of his eye,
When his loue he doth eſpie,
Let her ſhine as gloriouſly
As the Venus of the ſky,
When thou wak'ſt if ſhe be by,
Beg of her for remedy.

Enter Pucke.

Puck. Captaine of our Fairy band,
Helena is heere at hand,
And the youth, miſtooke by me,
Pleading for a Louers fee.
Shall we their fond Pageant ſee?
Lord, what fooles theſe mortals be!

Ob. Stand aſide: the noyſe they make,
Will cauſe Demetrius to awake.

Puck. Then will two at once woo one,
That muſt needs be ſport alone:
And thoſe things doe bee pleaſe me,
That befall prepoſterouſly

Enter Lyſander and Helena.

Lyſ. Why ſhould you think I ſhould woo in ſcorn?
Scorne and deriſion neuer comes in teares:
Looke when I vow I weepe; and vowes ſo borne,
In their nativity all truth appeares.
How can theſe things in me, ſeeme ſcorne to you?
Bearing the badge of faith to proue them true.

Hel. You doe aduance your cunning more & more,
When truth kils truth, O deuliſh holy fray!
Theſe vowes are Hermias. Will you giue her o're?
Weigh oath with oath, and you will nothing weigh.
Your vowes to her, and me, (put in two ſcales)
Will euen weigh, and both as light as tales.

Lyſ. I had no iudgement, when to her I ſwore.

Hel. Nor none in my minde, now you giue her o're.

Lyſ. Demetrius loues her, and he loues not you. Aside.

Dem. O Helen, goddeſſe, nimph, perfect, diuine,
To what my loue, ſhall I compare thine eyne.
Chriſtall is muddy. O how ripe in ſhow,
Thy lips, thoſe kiſſing cherries, tempting grow!
That pure congealed white, high Taurus ſnow,
Fan'd with the Eaſterne winde, turnes to a crow,
When thou holdſt vp thy hand. O let me kiſſe
This Princeſſe of pure white, this ſeale of bliſſe.

Hel. O ſpight! O hell! I ſee you are all bent
To ſet againſt me, for your merriment:
If you were ciuill, and knew curteſie,
You would not doe me thus much iniury.
Can you not hate me, as I know you doe,
But you muſt ioyne in ſoules to mocke me too?
If you are men, as men you are in ſhow,
You would not vſe a gentle Lady ſo;
To vow, and ſweare, and ſuperpraiſe my parts,
When I am ſure you hate me with your hearts.
You both are Riuals, and loue Hermia;
And now both Riuals to mocke Helena.
A trim exploit, a manly enterprize,
To conſure teares vp in a poore maids eyes,
With your deriſion; none of noble ſort,
Would ſo offend a Virgin, and extort
A poore ſoules patience, all to make you ſport.

Lyſa. You are vnkind Demetrius; be not ſo,
For you loue Hermia; this you know I know:
And here with all good will, with all my heart,
In Hermias loue I yeeld you vp my part;
And yours of Helena, to me bequeath,
Whom I do loue, and will do to my death.

Hel. Neuer did mockers waſt more idle breth.

Dem. Lyſander, keep thy Hermia, I will none:
If ere I lou'd her, all that loue is gone.
My heart to her, but as gueſt-wiſe ſoiourn'd,
And now to Helen it is home return'd,
There to remaine.

Lyſ. It is not ſo.

De. Diſparage not the faith thou doſt not know,
Leſt to thy peril thou abide it deare.
Looke where thy Loue comes, yonder is thy deare.

Enter Hermia.

Her. Dark night, that from the eye his function takes,
The eare more quicke of apprehenſion makes
Wherein it doth impaire the ſeeing ſenſe,
It paies the hearing double recompence.
Thou art not by mine eye, Lyſander found,
Mine eare (I thanke it) brought me to that ſound.
But why vnkindly didſt thou leaue me ſo? (ſo go?

Lyſan. Why ſhould hee ſtay whom Loue doth preſſe

Her. What loue could preſſe Lyſander from my ſide?

Lyſ. Lyſanders loue (that would not let him bide)
Faire Helena; who more engilds the night,
Then all yon fierie oes, and eies of light.
Why ſeek'ſt thou me? Could not this make thee know,
The hate I bare thee, made me leaue thee ſo?

Her. You ſpeake not as you thinke; it cannot be.

Hel. Loe, ſhe is one of this confederacy,
Now I perceiue they haue conioyn'd all three,
To faſhion this falſe ſport in ſpight of me.
Iniurious Hermia, moſt vngratefull maid,
Haue you conſpir'd, haue you with theſe contriu'd
To baite me, with this foule deriſion?
Is all the counſell that we two haue ſhar'd,
The ſiſters vowes, the houres that we haue ſpent,
When wee haue chid the haſty footed time,
For parting vs? O, is all forgot?
All ſchooledaies friendſhip, child-hood innocence?
We Hermia, like two Artificiall gods,
Haue with our needles, created both one flower,
Both on one ſampler, ſitting on one cuſhion,
Both warbling of one ſong, both in one key,
As if our hands, our ſides, voices, and minder
Had beene incorporate. So we grew together,
Like to a double cherry, ſeeming parted,
But yet a vnion in partition,

Two

louely berries molded on one ſtem,
th two ſeeming bodies, but one heart,
of the firſt life coats in Heraldry,
but to one and crowned with one creſt.
will you rent our ancient loue aſunder,
yne with men in ſcorning your poore friend?
ot friendly, 'tis not maidenly.
ame as well as I, may chide you for it,
gh I alone doe feele the iniurie.
r. I am amazed at your paſſionate words,
ne you not; It ſeemes that you ſcorne me.
l. Haue you not ſet Lyſander, as in ſcorne llow me, and praiſe my eies and face?
nade your other loue, Demetrius
even but now did ſpurne me with his foote) ll me goddeſſe, nimph, diuine, and rare, ous, celeſtiall? Wherefore ſpeakes he this e he hates? And wherefore doth Lyſander your loue, (ſo rich within his ſoule)
ander me (forſooth) affection,
r your ſetting on, by your conſent?
though I be not ſo in grace as you,
g vpon with loue ſo fortunate?
ifer able moſt, to loue vnlou'd,
ou ſhould pittie, rather then deſpiſe.
r. I vnderſtand not what you meane by this.
l. I, doe, perſeuer, counterfeit ſad lookes, monthes v pon me when I turne my backe,
e each at other, hold the ſweete ieſt vp:
port well carried, ſhall be chronicled.
haue any pittie, grace, or manners,
ould not make me ſuch an argument:
re ye well, 'tis partly mine owne fault,
h death or abſence ſoone ſhall remedie.
. Stay gentle Helena, heare my excuſe, ar, my life, my ſoule, faire Helena.
l. O excellent!
. Sweete, do not ſcorn her ſo.
m. If ſhe cannot entreate, I can compell.
. Thou canſt compell, no more then ſhe entreate.
reats haue no more ſtrength then her weak praiſe.
I loue thee, by my life I doe;
re by that which I will loſe for thee.
oue him falſe, that ſwies I loue thee not.
m. I ſay, I loue thee more then he can do.
. If thou ſay ſo, with-draw and proue it too.
m. Quick, come.
r. Lyſander, whereto tends all this?
. Away, you Ethiope.
m. No, no, Sir, ſeeme to breake looſe;
nt as you would follow,
t come not: you are a tame man, go.
. Hang off thou cat, thou burr: vile thing let looſe, ill ſhake thee from me like a ſerpent.
r. Why are you growne ſo rude?
change is this ſweete Loue?
. Thy loue? out tawny Tartar, out;
uthed medicine; O hated poiſon hence.
r. Do you not ieſt?
l. Yes ſooth, and ſo do you.
. Demetrius, I will keepe my word with thee.
m. I would I had your bond: for I perceiue ke bond holds you; Ile not truſt your word.
. What, ſhould I hurt her, ſtrike her, kill her dead?
ugh I hate her, Ile not harme her ſo.
r. What, can you do me greater harme then hate?
Hate me, wherefore? O me, what newes my Loue?
Am not I Hermia? Are not you Lyſander?
I am as faire now, as I was ere while.
Since night you lou'd me; yet ſince night you left me.
Why then you left me (O the gods forbid
In earneſt, ſhall I ſay?
Lyſ. I, by my life;
And never did deſire to ſee thee more.
Therefore be out of hope, of queſtion, of doubt:
Be certaine, nothing truer: 'tis no ieſt,
That I doe hate thee, and loue Helena.
Her. O me, you iugler, you canker bloſſome,
You theefe of loue; What, haue you come by night,
And ſtolne my loues heart from him?
Hel. Fine yfaith:
Haue you no modeſty, no maiden ſhame,
No touch of baſhfulneſſe? What, will you teare
Impatient anſwers from my gentle tongue?
Fie, fie, you counterfeit, you puppet, you.
Her Puppet? why ſo? I, that way goes the game.
Now I perceiue that ſhe hath made compare
Betweene our ſtatures, ſhe hath vrg'd her height,
And with her perſonage, her tall perſonage,
Her height (forſooth) ſhe hath preuail'd with him.
And are you growne ſo high in his eſteeme,
Becauſe I am ſo dwarfiſh, and ſo low?
How low am I, thou painted May-pole? Speake,
How low am I? I am not yet ſo low,
But that my nailes can reach vnto thine eyes.
Hel. I pray you though you mocke me, gentlemen,
Let her not hurt me; I was neuer curſt:
I haue no gift at all in ſhrewiſhneſſe;
I am a right maide for my cowardize;
Let her not ſtrike me: you perhaps may thinke,
Becauſe ſhe is ſomething lower then my ſelfe,
That I can match her.
Her. Lower? harke againe.
Hel. Good Hermia, do not be ſo bitter with me,
I euermore did loue you Hermia,
Did euer keepe your counſels, neuer wronged you,
Saue that in loue vnto Demetrius,
I told him of your ſtealth vnto this wood.
He followed you, for loue I followed him,
But he hath chid me hence, and threatned me
To ſtrike me, ſpurne me, nay to kill me too;
And now, ſo you will let me quiet go,
To Athens will I beare my folly backe,
And follow you no further. Let me go,
You ſee how ſimple, and how fond I am.
Her. Why get you gone: who iſt that hinders you?
Hel. A fooliſh heart, that I leaue here behinde.
Her. What, with Lyſander?
Her. With Demetrius.
Lyſ. Be not afraid, ſhe ſhall not harme thee Helena.
Dem. No ſir, ſhe ſhall not, though you take her part.
Hel. O when ſhe's angry, ſhe is keene and ſhrewd,
She was a vixen when ſhe went to ſchoole,
And though ſhe be but little, ſhe is fierce.
Her. Little againe? Nothing but low and little?
Why will you ſuffer her to flout me thus?
Let me come to her.
Lyſ. Get you gone you dwarfe,
You minimus, of hindring knot-graſſe made,
You bead, you acorne.
Dem. You are too officious,
In her behalfe that ſcornes your ſeruices.

Let

Let her alone, ſpeake not of Helena,
Take not her part. For if thou doſt intend Neuer ſo little ſhew of loue to her,
Thou ſhalt abide it.
Lyſ. Now ſhe holds me not,
Now follow if thou dar'ſt, to try whoſe right,
Of thine or mine is moſt in Helena.
Dem. Follow? Nay, Ile goe with thee cheeke by iowle Exit Lyſander and Demetrius.
Her. You Miſtris, all this coyle is long of you.
Nay, goe not backe.
Hel. I will not truſt you I,
Nor longer ſtay in your curſt companie.
Your hands then mine, are quicker for a fray,
My legs are longer though to runne away.

Enter Oberon and Pucke.

Ob. This is thy negligence, ſtill thou miſtak'ſt,
Or elſe committ'ſt thy knaueries willingly.
Puck. Beleeue me, King of Shadowes, I miſtooke,
Did not you tell me, I ſhould know the man,
By the Athenian garments he hath on?
And ſo farre blameleſſe proues my enterprize,
That I haue nointed an Athenians eies,
And ſo farre am I glad, it ſo did ſort,
As this their iangling I eſteeme a ſport
Ob. Thou ſeeſt theſe Louers ſeeke a place to fight,
Hie therefore Robin, ouercaſt the night,
The ſtarrie Welkin couer thou anon,
With drooping fogge as blacke as Acheron,
And lead theſe teſtie Riuals ſo aſtray,
As one come not within anothers way.
Like to Lyſander, ſometime frame thy tongue,
Then ſtirre Demetrius vp with bitter wrong;
And ſometime raile thou like Demetrius;
And from each other looke thou lead them thus,
Till ore their browes, death-counterfeiting, ſleepe
With leaden legs, and Battie-wings doth creepe;
Then crush this hearbe into Lyſanders eie,
Whoſe liquor hath this vertuous propertie,
To take from thence all error, with his might,
And make his eie-balls role with wonted ſight.
When they neat wake, all this deriſion
Shall ſeeme a dreame, and fruitleſſe viſion,
And backe to Athens ſhall the Louers wend
With league, whoſe date till death ſhall neuer end.
Whiles I in this affaire do thee imply.
Ile to my Queene, and beg her Indian Boy;
And then I will her charmed eie releaſe
From monſters view, and all things ſhall be peace.
Puck. My Fairie Lord, this muſt be done with haſte,
For night-ſwift Dragons cut the Clouds full faſt,
And yonder ſhines Aurora harbinger
At whoſe approach Ghoſts wandring here and there,
Troope home to Church-yards; damned ſpirits all,
That in croſſe-waies and flouds haue burriall,
Already to their wormie beds are gone;
For feare leaſt day ſhould looke their ſhames vpon,
They wilfully themſelues exile from light,
And muſt for aye conſort with blacke browd night.
Ob. But we are ſpirits of another ſort:
I, with the mornings loue haue oft made ſport,
And like a Forreſter, the groues may tread,
Euen till the Eaſterne gate all fierie red,
Opening on Neptune, with faire bleſſed beames,
Turnes into yellow gold, his ſalt greene ſtreames.
But notwithſtanding haſte, make no delay
We may effect this buſineſſe, yet ere day.
Puck. Vp and downe, vp and downe, I will leade them vp and downe: I am fear'd in field and towne.
Goblin, lead them vp and downe: here comes one.

Enter Lyſander.

Lyſ. Where art thou, proud Demetrius?
Speake thou now.
Rob. Here villaine, drawne & readie. Where art thou?
Lyſ. I will be with thee ſtraight.
Rob. Follow me then to plainer ground.

Enter Demetrius.

Dem. Lyſander, ſpeake againe;
Thou runnaway, thou coward, art thou fled?
Speake in ſome buſh: Where doſt thou hide thy head?
Rob. Thou coward, art thou bragging to the ſtars,
Telling the buſhes that thou look'ſt for wars,
And wilt not come? Come recreant, come thou childe,
Ile whip thee with a rod. He is defil'd
That drawes a ſword on thee.
Dem. Yea, art thou there?
Ro. Follow my voice, we'l try no manhood here. Exit.
Lyſ. He goes before me, and ſtill dares me on,
When I come where he calls, then he's gone.
The villaine is much lighter heel'd then I:
I followed faſt, but faſter he did flye; Stiffing places.
That fallen am I in darke vneuen way,
And here will reſt me. Come thou gentle day: Lye down.
For if but once thou ſhew me thy gray light,
Ile finde Demetrius, and reuenge this ſpight.

Enter Robin and Demetrius.

Rob. Ho, ho, ho; coward, why com'ſt thou not?
Dem. Abide me, if thou dar'ſt. For well I wot,
Thou runſt before me, ſhifting every place,
And dar'ſt not ſtand, nor looke me in the face
Where art thou?
Rob. Come hither, I am here.
Dem. Nay then thou mock'ſt me; thou ſhalt buy this deere.
If euer I thy face by day-light ſee.
Now goe thy way: faintneſſe conſtraineth me,
To meaſure out my length on this cold bed,
By daies approach looke to be viſited.

Enter Helena.

Hel. O weary night, O long and tedious night,
Abate thy houres, ſhine comforts from the Eaſt,
That I may backe to Athens by day-light,
From theſe that my poore companie deteſt;
And ſleepe that ſometime ſhuts vp ſorrowes eie,
Steale me a while from mine owne companie. Sleepe.
Rob. Yet but three? Come one more.
Two of both kinder makes vp foure.
Here ſhe comes, curſt and ſad,
Cupid is a knauiſh lad,

Enter Hermia.

Thus to make poore females mad.
Her. Neuer ſo wearie, neuer ſo in woe,
Bedabbled with the dew, and torne with briars,
I can no further crawle, no further goe;
My legs can keepe no pace with my deſires.
Here will I reſt me till the breake of day.
Heauens ſhield Lyſander, if they meane a fray.
Rob. On the ground ſleepe ſound,
Ile apply your eie gentle louer, remedy.
When thou wak'ſt, thou tak'ſt
True delight in the ſight of thy former Ladies eye,

And

e Country Prouerb knowne, ery man ſhould take his owne.
r waking ſhall be ſhowne.
all haue All, nought ſhall goe ill,
an ſhall haue his Mare againe, and all ſhall bee

They ſtampe all the All.

Actus Quartus.

Queene of Fairies, and Clowne, and Fairies, and the Attendants them.

. Come, ſit thee downe vpon this flowry bed,
I thy amiable cheekes doe coy,
cke muſke roſes in thy ſleeke ſmoothe head,
ſe thy faire large eares, my gentle ioy.
. Where s Peaſe-bloſſome?
Ready
. Scratch my head, Peaſe-bloſſome. Wher s Moun-ſeed.
Ready.
. Mounſieur Cobweb, good Mounſier get your s in your hand, & kill me a red hipt humble-Bee, op of s thiſtle; and good Mounſieur bring mee
y bag. Doe not fret your ſelfe too much in the Mounſieur: and good Mounſieur haue a care the g breake not, I would be loth to haue you ouerwith a hony-bag ſignieur. Where s Mounſieur ſeed?
Ready.
Giue me your neaſe, Mounſieur Muſtardſeed.
u leaue your courteſie good Mounſieur.
What's your will?
Nothing good Mounſieur, but to help Cauallery to ſcratch. I muſt to the Barbers Mounſieur, for nkes I am maruellous hairy about the face. And I s a tender aſſe, if my haire do but tickle me, I muſt
.
What, wilt thou heare ſome muſicke, my ſweet
.
. I haue a reaſonable good eare in muſicke. Let the tongs and the bones.

Muſicke Tongs, Rurall Muſicke.

. Or ſay ſweete Loue, what thou deſireſt to eat.
me. Truly a pecke of Prouender; I could munch ood dry Oates. Me-thinkes I haue a great deſire ottle of hay: good hay, ſweete hay hath no fel-
.
e, I haue a venturous Fairy,
hall ſeeke the Squirrels board,
tch thee new Nuts.
me. I had rather haue a handfull or two of dried
But I pray you let none of your people ſtirre me, I a expoſition of ſleepe come vpon me.
. Sleepe thou, and I will winde thee in my armes, be gone, and be alwaies away.
s the woodbine, the ſweet Honiſuckle, entwiſt; the female Iuy ſo
s the barky fingers of the Elme.
O how I loue thee! how I dote on thee!

Enter Robin goodfellow and Oberon.

Ob. Welcome good Robin:
Seeſt thou this ſweet ſight?
Her dotage now I doe begin to pitty.
For meeting her of late behinde the wood,
Seeking ſweet ſauors for this hatefull foole,
I did vpbraid her, and fall out with her.
For ſhe his hairy temples then had rounded,
With coronet of freſh and fragrant flowers,
And that ſame dew which ſomtime on the buds,
Was wont to ſwell like round and orient pearles;
Stood now within the pretty flouriets eyes,
Like teares that did their owne diſgrace bewaile.
When I had at my pleaſure taunted her,
And ſhe in milde termes beg'd my patience,
I then did aske of her, her changeling childe,
Which ſtraight ſhe gaue me, and her Fairy ſent
To beare him to my Bower in Fairy Land.
And now I haue the Boy, I will vndoe
This hatefull imperfection of her eyes.
And gentle Puck take this transformed ſcalpe,
From off the head of this Athenian ſwaine;
That he awaking when the other doe,
May all to Athens backe againe repaire,
And thinke no more of this nights accidents,
But as the fierce vexation of a dreame.
But firſt I will releaſe the Fairy Queene.

Be thou as thou waſt wont to be;
See as thou waſt wont to ſee.
Dians bud, or Cupids flower,
Hath ſuch force and bleſſed power

Now my Titania wake you my ſweet Queene.
Tita. My Oberon, what viſions haue I ſeene!
Me-thought I was enamoured of an Aſſe.
Ob. There lies your loue.
Tita. How came theſe things to paſſe?
Oh, how mine eyes doth loath this viſage now!
Ob. Silence a while. Robin take off his head:
Titania muſick call, and ſtrike more dead
Then common ſleepe; of all theſe, fine the ſenſe
Tita. Muſicke, ho muſicke, ſuch as charmeth ſleepe.
Muſick ſtill.
Rob. When thou wak'ſt, with thine owne fooles eyes peepe. ſme
Ob Sound muſick; come my Queen, take hands with
And rocke the ground whereon theſe ſleepers be
Now thou and I are new in amity,
And will to morrow midnight, ſolemnly
Dance in Duke Theſeus houſe triumphantly,
And bleſſe it to all faire poſterity.
There ſhall the paires of faithfull Louers be Wedded, with Theſeus, all in iollity.
Rob. Faire King attend, and marke,
I doe heare the morning Larke.
Ob. Then my Queene in ſilence ſad,
Trip we after the nights ſhade;
We the Globe can compaſſe ſoone,
Swifter then the wandring Moone
Tita. Come my Lord, and in our flight,
Tell me how it came this night,
That I ſleeping heere was found,
Sleepers Lye ſtill.

With theſe mortals on the ground. Exeunt.

Winde Hornes.

Enter Theſeus, Egeus, Hippolita and all his traine.

Theſ. Goe one of you, finde out the Forreſter,
For now our obſeruation is perform'd;
And ſince we haue the vaward of the day,
My Loue ſhall heare the muſicke of my hounds.
Vncouple in the Weſterne valley, let them goe;
Diſpatch I ſay, and finde the Forreſter.
We will faire Queene, vp to the Mountaines top.
And marke the muſicall confuſion
Of hounds and eccho in coniunction.

Hip. I was with Hercules and Cadmus once,
When in a wood of Creete they bayed the Beare
With hounds of Sparta; neuer did I heare
Such gallant chiding. For beſides the groues,
The ſkies, the fountaines, euery region neere,
Seeme all one mutuall cry. I neuer heard
So muſicall a diſcord, ſuch ſweet thunder.

Theſ. My hounds are bred out of the Spartan kinde,
So flew'd, ſo ſanded, and their heads are hung
With eares that ſweepe away the morning dew,
Crooke kneed, and dew-lapt, like Theſſalian Buls,
Slow in purſuit, but match'd in mouth like bels,
Each vnder each. A cry more tuneable
Was neuer hallowed to, nor cheer'd with horne,
In Creete, in Sparta, nor in Theſſaly;
Iudge when you heare. But ſoft, what nimphs are theſe?

Egeus. My Lord, this is my daughter heere aſleepe,
And this Lyſander, this Demetrius is,
This Helena, olde Nedars Helena,
I wonder of this being heere together.

Theſ. No doubt they roſe vp early, to obſerue
The right of May; and hearing our intent,
Came heere in grace of our ſolemnity.
But ſpeake Egeus, is not this the day
That Hermia ſhould giue anſwer of her choice?

Egeus. It is, my Lord.

Theſ. Goe bid the huntſmen wake them with their hornes.

Hornes and they wake.

Shout within, they all ſtart vp.

Theſ. Good morrow friends: Saint Valentine is paſt,
Begin theſe wood birds but to couple now?

Lyſ. Pardon my Lord.

Theſ. I pray you all ſtand vp.
I know you two are Riuall enemies.
How comes this gentle concord in the world,
That hatred is is to farre from iealouſie,
To ſleepe by hate, and feare no enmity.

Lyſ. My Lord, I ſhall reply amazedly,
Halfe ſleepe, halfe waking. But as yet, I ſweare,
I cannot truly ſay how I came heere.
But as I thinke (for truly would I ſpeake)
And now I doe bethinke me, ſo it is;
I came with Hermia hither. Our intent
Was to be gone from Athens, where we might be Without the peril of the Athenian Law.

Ege. Enough, enough, my Lord; you haue enough;
I beg the Law, the Law, vpon his head.
They would haue ſtolne away, they would Demetrius,
Thereby to haue defeated you and me:
You of your wife, and me of my conſent;
Of my conſent, that ſhe ſhould be your wife.

Dem. My Lord, faire Helen told me of their ſtealth,
Of this their purpoſe hither, to this wood,
And I in furie hither followed them;
Faire Helena, in fancy followed me.
But my good Lord, I wot not by what power,
(But by ſome power it is) my loue
To Hermia (melted as the ſnow)
Seems to me now as the remembrance of an idle gaude,
Which in my childehood I did dote vpon:
And all the faith, the vertue of my heart,
The obiect and the pleaſure of mine eye,
Is only Helena. To her, my Lord,
Was I betroth'd, ere I ſaw Hermia,
But like a ſickneſſe did I loath this food,
But as in health, come to my naturall taſte,
Now doe I wiſh it, loue it, long for it,
And will for euermore be true to it.

Theſ. Faire Louers, you are fortunately met;
Of this diſcourſe we ſhall heare more anon.
Egeus, I will ouer-beare your will;
For in the Temple, by and by with vs,
Theſe couples ſhall eternally be knit.
And for the morning now is ſomething worne,
Our purpoſ'd hunting ſhall be ſet aſide.
Away, with vs to Athens; three and three,
We'll hold a feaſt in great ſolemnitie.
Come Hippolita. Exit Duke and Lords.

Dem. Theſe things ſeeme ſmall & vndiſtinguiſhable,
Like farre off mountaines turned into Clouds.

Her. Me-thinks I ſee theſe things with parted eye,
When euery things ſeemes double.

Hel. So me-thinkes:
And I haue found Demetrius, like a iewell,
Mine owne, and not mine owne.

Dem. It ſeemes to mee,
That yet we ſleepe, we dreame. Do not you thinke,
The Duke was heere, and bid vs follow him?

Her. Yea, and my Father.

Hel. And Hippolita.

Lyſ. And he bid vs follow to the Temple.

Dem. Why then we are awake; lets follow him, and by the way let vs recount our dreames.

Bottome wakes. Exit Louers.

Clo. When my cue comes, call me, and I will anſwer.
My next is, moſt faire Pyramus. Hey ho Peter Quince? Flute the bellowes-mender? Snout the tinker? Starueling? Gods my life! Stolne hence, and left me aſleepe: I haue had a moſt rare viſion. I had a dreame, paſt the wit of man, to ſay, what dreame it was. Man is but an Aſſe, if he goe about to expound this dreame. Me-thought I was, there is no man can tell what. Me-thought I was, and me-thought I had. But man is but a patch'd foole, if he will offer to ſay, what me-thought I had. The eye of man hath not heard, the eare of man hath not ſeen, mans hand is not able to taſte, his tongue to conceiue, nor his heart to report, what my dreame was. I will get Peter Quince to write a ballet of this dreame, it ſhall be called Bottomes Dream, becauſe it hath no bottome; and I will ſing it in the latter end of a play, before the Duke. Peraduenture, to make it the more gracious, I ſhall ſing it at her death. Exit.

Enter Quince, Flute, Thisbie, Snout, and Starueling.

Quin. Haue you ſent to Bottomes houſe? Is he come home yet?

Starv. He cannot be heard of. Out of doubt he is tranſported.

Theſ. If

Thiſ. If he come not, then the play is mar'd. It goes not forward, doth it?

Quin. It is not poſſible: you haue not a man in all Athens, able to diſcharge Piramus but he.

Thiſ. No he hath ſimply the beſt wit of any handy-craft man in Athens.

Quin. Yea, and the beſt perſon too, and he is a very Paramour, for a ſweet voyce.

Thiſ. You muſt ſay, Paragon. A Paramour is (God bleſſe vs) a thing of nought.

Enter Sonne the Ioyner.

Sonn. Maſters, the Duke is comming from the Temple, and there is two or three Lords & Ladies more married: If our ſport had gone forward, we had all bin made men.

Thiſ. O ſweet bully Bottome: thus hath he loſt ſixpence a day, during his life; he could not haue ſcaped ſixpence a day: and the Duke had not giuen him ſixpence a day for playing Piramus, Ile be hang'd. He would haue deſerued it. Sixpence a day in Piramus, or nothing.

Enter Bottome.

Bot. Where are theſe Lads? Where are theſe hearts?

Quin. Bottome, ô moſt courageous day! O moſt happie houre!

Bot. Maſters, I am to diſcourſe wonders; but aſk me not what. For if I tell you, I am no true Athenian. I will tell you euery thing as it fell out.

Quin. Let vs heare, ſweet Bottome.

Bot. Not a word of me: all that I will tell you, is, that the Duke hath dined. Get your apparell together, good ſtrings to your beards, new ribbands to your pumps, meete preſently at the Palace, euery man looke o're his part: for the ſhort and the long is, our play is preferred: In any caſe let Thiſby haue cleane linnen: and let not him that playes the Lion, paire his nailes, for they ſhall hang out for the Lions clawes. And moſt deare Actors, eate no Onions, nor Garlicke; for we are to vtter ſweete breath, and I doe not doubt but to heare them ſay, it is a ſweet Comedy. No more words: away, go away.

Exeunt.

Actus Quintus.

Enter Theſeus, Hippolita, Egeus and his Lords.

Hip. 'Tis ſtrange my Theſeus, that theſe louers ſpeake of.

The. More ſtrange then true. I neuer may beleeue Theſe antricke fables, nor theſe Fairy toyes. Louers and mad men haue ſuch ſeething braines, Such ſhaping phantaſies, that apprehend more Then coole reaſon euer comprehends. The Lunaticke, the Louer, and the Poet, Are of imagination all compact. One ſees more diuels then vaſte hell can hold; That is the mad man. The Louer, all as franticke, Sees Helens beauty in a brow of Egipt. The Poets eye in a fine frenzy rolling, doth glance From heauen to earth, from earth to heauen. And as imagination bodies forth the forms of things Vnknowne; the Poets pen turnes them to ſhapes, And giues to aire nothing, a locall habitation, And a name. Such tricks hath ſtrong Imagination, That if it would but apprehend ſome ioy, It comprehends ſome bringer of that ioy. Or in the night, imagining ſome feare, How eaſie is a buſh ſuppoſ'd a Beare?

Hip. But all the ſtorie of the night told ouer, And all their minds tranſfigur'd ſo together, More witneſſeth than fancies images, And growes to ſomething of great conſtancie; But howſoeuer, ſtrange, and admirable.

Enter louers, Lyſander, Demetrius, Hermia, and Helena.

The. Heere come the louers, full of ioy and mirth: Ioy, gentle friends, ioy and freſh dayes Of loue accompany your hearts.

Lyſ. More then to vs, waite in your royall walkes, your boord, your bed.

The. Come now, what maskes, what dances ſhall we haue, To weare away this long age of three houres, Between our after ſupper, and bed-time? Where is our vſuall manager of mirth? What Reuels are in hand? Is there no play, To eaſe the anguiſh of a torturing houre? Call Egeus.

Ege. Heere mighty Theſeus.

The. Say, what abridgement haue you for this euening? What maske? What muſicke? How ſhall we beguile The lazie time, if not with ſome delight?

Ege. There is a breefe how many ſports are rifer Make choiſe of which your Highneſſe will ſee firſt.

Lyſ. The battell with the Centaurs to be ſung By an Athenian Eunuch, to the Harpe.

The. We'l none of that. That haue I told my Loue In glory of my kinſman Hercules.

Lyſ. The riot of the tipſie Bachanals, Tearing the Thracian ſinger, in their rage?

The. That is an old deuice, and it was plaid When I from Thebes came laſt a Conqueror.

Lyſ. The thrice three Muſes, mourning for the death of learning, late deceaſt in beggerie.

The. That is ſome Satire keene and critticall, Not ſorting with a nuptiall ceremonie.

Lyſ. A tedious breefe Scene of yong Piramus, And his loue Thiſby; very tragicall mirth.

The. Merry and tragicall? Tedious, and briefe? That is, hot ice, and wondrous ſtrange ſnow. How ſhall wee finde the concord of this diſcord?

Ege. A play there is, my Lord, ſome ten words long, Which is as breefe, as I haue knowne a play; But by ten words, my Lord, it is too long; Which makes it tedious. For in all the play, There is not one word apt, one Player fitted. And tragicall my noble Lord it is: for Piramus Therein doth kill himſelfe. Which when I ſaw Rehearſt, I muſt confeſſe, made mine eyes water: But more merrie teares, the paſſion of loud laughter Neuer ſhed.

Thiſ. What are they that do play it?

Ege. Hard handed men, that worke in Athens heere, Which neuer labour'd in their mindes till now; And now haue toyled their vnbreathed memories With this ſame play, againſt your nuptiall.

The. And we will heare it.

Phi. No, my noble Lord, it is not for you. I haue heard
It ouer, and it is nothing, nothing in the world;
Vnleſſe you can finde ſport in their intents,
Extreamely ſtretcht, and cond with cruell paine,
To doe you ſeruice.

Theſ. I will heare that play. For neuer any thing
Can be amiſſe, when ſimpleneſſe and duty tender it.
Goe bring them in, and take your places, Ladies.

Hip. I loue not to ſee wretchednesſe orecharged;
And duty in his ſeruice periſhing.

Theſ. Why gentle ſweet, you ſhall ſee no ſuch thing.

Hip. He ſaies, they can doe nothing in this kinde.

Theſ. The kinder we, to giue them thanks for nothing
Our ſport ſhall be, to take what they miſtake;
And what poore duty cannot doe, noble reſpect
Takes it in might, not merit.
Where I haue come, great Clearkes haue purpoſed
To greete me with premeditated welcomes;
Where I haue ſeene them ſhiuer and looke pale,
Make periods in the midſt of ſentences,
Throttle their practiz'd accent in their feares,
And in concluſion, dumbly haue broke off,
Not paying me a welcome. Truſt me ſweete,
Out of this ſilence yet, I pickt a welcome:
And in the modeſty of fearefull duty,
I read as much, as from the ratling tongue
Of ſaucy and audacious eloquence.
Loue therefore, and tongue-tide ſimpleirty,
In leaſt, ſpeake moſt, to my capacity.

Egeus. So pleaſe your Grace, the Prologue is addreſt.

Duke. Let him approach. Flor. Trum.

Enter the Prologue. Quince.

Pro. If we offend, it is with our good will.
That you ſhould thinke, we come not to offend,
But with good will. To ſhew our ſimple skill
That is the true beginning of our end.
Conſider then, we come but in deſpight.
We do not come, as minding to contents you
Our true intent is. All for your delight,
We are not heere. That you ſhould here repent you,
The Actors are at hand; and by their ſhow,
You ſhall know all, that you are like to know.

Theſ. This fellow doth not ſtand vpon points.

Lyſ. He hath rid his Prologue, like a rough Colt: he knowes not the ſtop. A good morall my Lord. It is not enough to ſpeake, but to ſpeake true.

Hip. Indeed he hath plaid on his Prologue, like a childe on a Recorder, a ſound, but not in gouernment.

Theſ. His ſpeech was like a tangled chaine: nothing impaired, but all diſordered. Who is next?

Tawyer with a Trumpet before them.

Enter Pyramus and Thisby, Wall, Moone-ſhine, and Lyon.

Prol. Gentles, perchance you wonder at this ſhow,
But wonder on, till truth make all things plaine.
This man is Pyramus, if you would know;
This beauteous Lady, Thisby is certaine.
This man, with lyme and rough-caſt, doth preſent
Wall, that vile wall, which did theſe louers ſunder:
And through walls chink (poor ſoules) they are content
To whiſper. At the which, let no man wonder.
This man, with Lanthorne, dog, and buſh of thorne,
Preſenteth moone-ſhine. For if you will know,
By moone-ſhine did theſe Louers thinke no ſcorne
To meet at Ninus toombe, there, there to woo:
This grizy beaſt (which Lyon hight by name)
The truſty Thisby, comming firſt by night,
Did ſcarre away, or rather did affright:
And as ſhe fled, her mantle ſhe did fall;
Which Lyon vile with bloody mouth did ſtaine.
Anon comes Pyramus, ſweet youth and tall,
And findes his Thisbies Mantle ſlaine;
Wherest, with blade, with bloody blameſull blade,
He brauely broacht his boiling bloudy breaſt.
And Thisby, tarrying in Mulberry ſhade,
His dagger drew, and died. For all the reſt,
Let Lyon, Moone-ſhine, Wall, and Louers twaine,
At large diſcourſe, while here they doe remaine.

Exit all but Wall.

Theſ. I wonder if the Lion be to ſpeake.

Demet. No wonder, my Lord: one Lion may, when many Aſſes doe.

Exit Lyon, Thisbie, and Moonſhine.

Wall. In this ſame interlude, it doth befall,
That I, one Snowt (by name) preſent a wall:
And ſuch a wall, as I would haue you thinke,
That had in it a crannied hole or chinke:
Through which the Louers, Piramus and Thisbie
Did whiſper often, very ſecretly.
This loame, this rough-caſt, and this ſtone doth ſhew,
That I am that ſame Wall; the truth is ſo,
And this the cranny is, right and ſiniſter,
Through which the fearefull Louers are to whiſper.

Theſ. Would you deſire Lime and Haire to ſpeake better?

Demet. It is the wittieſt partition, that euer I heard diſcourſe, my Lord.

Theſ. Pyramus drawes neere the Wall. Silence.

Enter Pyramus.

Pyr. O grim looket night, O night with hue ſo blacke,
O night, which euer art, when day is not:
O night, O night, alacke, alacke, alacke,
I feare my Thisbies promiſe is forgot.
And thou O wall, thou ſweet and louely wall,
That ſtands betweene her fathers ground and mine,
Thou wall, O wall, O ſweet and louely wall,
Shew me thy chinke, to blinke through with mine eine.
Thankes courteous wall. Ioue ſhield thee well for this.
But what ſee I? No Thisbie doe I ſee.
O vnkicked wall, through vvhom I ſee no bliſſe,
Curſt be thy ſtones for thus deceiuing mee.

Theſ. The wall me-thinkes being ſenſible, ſhould curſe againe.

Pyr. No in truth ſir, he ſhould not. Deceiuing me, Is Thisbies cue; ſhe is to enter, and I am to ſpy Her through the wall. You ſhall ſee it will fall.

Enter Thisbie.

Pat as I told you: yonder ſhe comes.

Thiſ. O wall, full often haſt thou heard my mones,
For parting my faire Piramus, and me.
My cherry lips haue often kiſt thy ſtones;
Thy ſtones vvith Lime and Haire knit vp in thee.

Pyra. I ſee a voyce; now will I to the chinke,
To ſpy and I can heare my Thisbies face. Thisbie?

Thiſ. My Loue thou art, my Loue I thinke.

Pir. Thinke vvhat thou vvilt, I am thy Louers grace,
And like Limander am I truſty ſtill.

Thiſ. And like Helen till the Fates me kill.

Pir. Not Shafalus to Procrus, was ſo true.

Thiſ. As Shafalus to Procrus, I ſo you.

Pir. O

me through the hole of this vile wall.
: the wals hole, not your lips at all.
ou at Ninnies tombe meete me ſtraight

ſe, tide death, I come without delay.
haue I Wall, my part diſcharged ſo;
, thus Wall away doth go. Exit Clow.
the morall downe betweene the two roedie my Lord, when Wals are ſo wilithout ſwearing.

the fulleſt ſtuffe that ere I heard.
ſſe in this kind are but ſhadowes, and the orſe, if imagination amend them.
t be your imagination then, & not theirs.
imagine no worſe of them then they of y may paſſe for excellent men. Here com is, in a man and a Lion.

ter Lyon and Moone-ſhine.

Ladies, you (whoſe gentle harts do feare ſmirous mouſe that creepes on floore) ance, both quake and tremble heere, gh in wildeſt rage doth roare.
: I, one Snug the ioyner am elſe no Lions dam:
s Lion come in ſtrife
, 'twere pitie of my life.
gentle beaſt, and of a good conſcience.
erie beſt as a beaſt, my Lord, ſ ere I ſaw.
ion is a verie Fox for his valor.
nd s Gooſe for his diſcretion.
o my Lord: for his valor cannot carrie nd the Fox carries the Gooſe.
cretion I am ſure cannot carrie his valor: arries not the Fox. It is well; leaue it to nd let vs hearken to the Moone.
Lanthorne doth the horned Moone preld haue worne the hornes on his head.

no creſcent, and his hornes are inuiſible,
nſerence.
s lanthorne doth the horned Moone pre-the man i'th Moone doth ſeeme to be.
: the greateſt error of all the reſt; the man
nto the Lanthorne. How is it els the man res not come there for the candle.

s already in ſnuffe.
verie of this Moone; vvould he would rues by his ſmal light of diſcretion, that e: but yet in courteſie, in all reaſon, vve me.

d Moone.
that I haue to ſay, is to tell you, that the e Moone; I, the man in the Moone; this y thorne buſh; and this dog, my dog.
all theſe ſhould be in the Lanthorne: for Moone. But ſilence, heere comes Thisby.

Enter Thisby.

s old Ninnies tombe: where is my loue?

The Lion roares, Thisby runs off.
roar'd Lion.

Du. Well run Thisby.
Dut. Well ſhone Moone.
Truly the Moone ſhines with a good grace.
Du. Wel mouz'd Lion.
Dem. And then came Piramus.
Lyſ. And ſo the Lion vaniſht.

Enter Piramus.

Pyr. Sweet Moone, I thank thee for thy ſunny beames,
I thanke thee Moone, for ſhining now ſo bright:
For by thy gracious, golden, glittering beames,
I truſt to taſte of truelt Thisbies ſight.
But ſtay: O ſpight! but marke, poore Knight,
What dreadful dole is heere?
Eyes do you ſee! How can it be.
O dainty Ducke: O Deere:
Thy mantle good; what ſtaind with blood!
Approch you Furies fell:
O Fates! come, come: Cut thred and thrum,
Quaile, cruſh, conclude, and quell.
Du. This paſſion, and the death of a deare friend,
Would go neere to make a man looke ſad.
Dut. Beſhrew my heart, but I pittie the man.
Pir. O wherefore Nature, did'ſt thou Lions frame?
Since Lion vilde hath heere deflour'd my deere:
Which is: no, no, which was the faireſt Dame
That liu'd, that lou'd, that lik'd, that look'd with cheere.
Come teares, confound: Out ſword, and wound
The pap of Piramus:
I, that left pap, where heart doth hop:
Thus dye I, thus, thus, thus.
Now am I dead, now am I fled, my ſoule is in the ſky,
Tongue loſe thy light, Moone take thy flight,
Now dye, dye, dye, dye, dye.
Dem. No Die, but an ace for him; for he is but one.
Lyſ. Leſſe then an ace man. For he is dead, he is nothing.
Du. With the helpe of a Surgeon, he might yet recouer, and proue an Aſſe.
Dut. How chance Moone-ſhine is gone before?
Thisby comes backe, and findes her Louer.

Enter Thisby.

Duke. She wil finde him by ſtarre-light.
Heere ſhe comes, and her paſſion ends the play.
Dut. Me thinkes ſhee ſhould not vſe a long one for ſuch a Piramus: I hope ſhe will be breefe.
Dem. A Moth wil turne the ballance, which Piramus which Thisby is the better. (eyes.
Lyſ. She hath ſpyed him already, with thoſe ſweete
Dem. And thus ſhe meanes, videlicet,
This. Aſleepe my Loue? What, dead my Doue?
O Piramus ariſe:
Speake, Speake. Quite dumbe? Dead, dead? A tombe
Muſt couer thy ſweet eyes.
Theſe Lilly Lips, this cherry noſe,
Theſe yellow Cowſlip cheekes
Are gone, are gone: Louers make mone:
His eyes were greene as Leekes.
O ſiſters three, come, come to mee,
With hands as pale as Milke,
Lay them in gore, ſince you haue ſhore
With ſheeres, his thred of ſilke.
Tongue not a word: Come truſty ſword:
Come blade, my breſt imbrue:

And farwell friends, thus Thisbie ends;
Adieu, adieu, adieu.

Duke. Moon-ſhine & Lion are left to burie the dead.

Dem. I, and Wall too.

Bot. No, I aſſure you, the wall is downe, that parted their Fathers. Will it pleaſe you to ſee the Epilogue, or to heare a Bergomask dance, betweene two of our company?

Duke. No Epilogue, I pray you; for your play needs no excuſe. Neuer excuſe; for when the players are all dead, there need none to be blamed. Marry, if hee that writ it had plaid Pyramus, and hung himſelfe in Thisbies garter, it would haue beene a fine Tragedy: and ſo it is truely, and very notably diſcharg'd. But come, your Burgomaske; let your Epilogue alone.

The iron tongue of midnight hath old twelue.
Louers to bed, 'tis almoſt Fairy time.
I feare we ſhall out-ſleepe the comming morne,
As much as we this night haue ouer-watcht.
This palpable groſſe play hath well beguil'd
The heauy gate of night. Sweet friends to bed.
A fortnight hold we this ſolemnity.
In nightly Reuels; and new iollitie. Exeunt.

Enter Puck.

Puck. Now the hungry Lyons rores,
And the Wolfe beholds the Moone:
Whileſt the heauy ploughman ſnores,
All with weary taske fore-done.
Now the waſted brands doe glow,
Whil'ſt the ſcritch-owle, ſcritching loud,
Puts the wretch that lies in woe,
In remembrance of a ſhrowd.
Now it is the time of night,
That the graues, all gaping wide,
Euery one lets forth his ſpright,
In the Church-way paths to glide.
And we Fairies, that do runne,
By the triple Hecates teame,
From the preſence of the Sunne,
Following darkeneſſe like a dreame,
Now are frolicke; not a Mouſe
Shall diſturbe this hallowed houſe.
I am ſent with broome before,
To ſweep the duſt behinde the doore.

Enter King and Queene of Fairies, with their traine.

Ob. Through the houſe giue glimmering light,
By the dead and drowſie fier,
Euerie Elſe and Fairie ſpright,
Hop as light as bird from brier,
And this Ditty after me, ſing and dance it trippingly.

Tita. First rehearſe this ſong by roate,
To each word a warbling note.
Hand in hand, with Fairie grace,
Will we ſing and bleſſe this place.

The Song.

Now vntill the breake of day,
Through this houſe each Fairy ſtray.
To the beſt Bride-bed will we,
Which by vs ſhall bleſſed be:
And the iſſue there create,
Euer ſhall be fortunate:
So ſhall all the couples three,
Euer true in louing be:
And the blotted Natures hand,
Shall not in their iſſue ſtand
Neuer mole, hare lip, nor ſcarre,
Nor marke prodigious, ſuch as are Deſpiſed in Nature,
Shall vpon their children be.
With this field dew conſecrate,
Euery Fairy take his gate,
And each ſeuerall chamber bleſſe,
Through this Pallace with ſweet peace,
Euer ſhall in ſafety reſt,
And the owner of it bleſt.
Trip away, make no ſtay;
Meet me all by breake of day.

Robin. If we ſhadowes haue offended,
Thinke but this (and all is mended)
That you haue but ſlumbred heere,
While theſe viſions did appeare.
And this weake and idle theame,
No more yeelding but a dreame,
Gentles, doe not reprehend.
If you pardon, we will mend.
And as I am an honeſt Puck,
If we haue vnearned luck,
Now to ſcape the Serpents tongue,
We will make amends ere long:
Elſe the Puck a lyar call.
So good night vnto you all.
Giue me your hands, if we be friends,
And Robin ſhall reſtore amends.

FINIS.

The Merchant of Venice.

Actus primus.

Enter Anthonio, Salarino, and Salanio.

Anthonio.

IN footh I know not why I am so sad,
It wearies me: you say it wearies you;
But how I caught it, found it, or came by it,
What stuffe 'tis made of, whereof it is borne,
I am to learne: and such a Want-wit sadnesse makes of me,
That I haue much ado to know my selfe.

Sal. Your minde is tossing on the Ocean
There where your Argosies with portly saile
Like Signiors and rich Burgers on the flood,
Or as it were the Pageants of the sea,
Do ouer-peere the petie Traffiquers
That curtsie to them, do them reuerence
As they flye by them with their woouen wings.

Salan. Beleeue me sir, had I such venture forth,
The better part of my affections, would
Be with my hopes abroad. I should be still Plucking the grasse to know where sits the winde,
Peering in Maps for ports, and peers, and roades:
And euery obiect that might make me feare
Misfortune to my ventures, out of doubt
Would make me sad.

Sal. My winde cooling my broth,
Would blow me to an Ague, when I thought
What harme a winde too great might doe at sea.
I should not see the sandie houre-glasse runne,
But I should thinke of shallowes, and of flats,
And see my wealthy Andrew docks in sand,
Vailing her high top lower then her ribs
To kisse her buriall; should I goe to Church
And see the holy edifice of stone,
And not bethinke me straight of dangerous rocks,
Which touching but my gentle Vessels side
Would scatter all her spices on the streame,
Enrobe the roring waters with my silkes,
And in a word, but euen now worth this,
And now worth nothing. Shall I haue the thought
To thinke on this, and shall I lacke the thought
That such a thing bechaunc'd would make me sad?
But tell not me, I know Anthonio
Is sad to thinke vpon his merchandize

Anth. Beleeue me no, I thanke my fortune for it,
My ventures are not in one bottome trusted,
Nor to one place; nor is my whole estate
Vpon the fortune of this present yeere:
Therefore my merchandize makes me not sad.

Sola. Why then you are in loue.

Anth. Fie, fie.

Sola. Not in loue neither: then let vs say you are sad
Because you are not merry; and 'twere as easie
For you to laugh and leape, and say you are merry
Because you are not sad. Now by two-headed Ianus,
Nature hath fram'd strange fellowes in her time:
Some that will euermore peepe through their eyes,
And laugh like Parrats at a bag-piper,
And other of such vineger aspect,
That they'll not shew their teeth in way of smile,
Though Nestor sweare the iest be laughable.

Enter Bassanio, Lorenso, and Gratiano.

Sola. Heere comes Bassanio,
Your most noble Kinsman,
Gratiano, and Lorenso. Faryewell,
We leaue you now with better company.

Sala. I would haue stai'd till I had made you merry,
If worthier friends had not preuented me.

Anth. Your worth is very deere in my regard.
I take it your owne busines calls on you,
And you embrace th'occasion to depart.

Sal. Good morrow my good Lords. (when?
Bass. Good signiors both, when shall we laugh? say,
You grow exceeding strange: must it be so?

Sal. We'll make our leysures to attend on yours.

Exeunt Salarino, and Salanio.

Lor. My Lord Bassanio, since you haue found Anthonio
We two will leaue you, but at dinner time
I pray you haue in minde where we must meete.

Bass. I will not faile you.

Gra. You looke not well signior Anthonio,
You haue too much respect vpon the world:
They loose it that doe buy it with much care,
Beleeue me you are marueilously chang'd.

Ant. I hold the world but as the world Gratiano,
A stage, where euery man must play a part,
And mine a sad one.

Grat. Let me play the foole,
With mirth and laughter let old wrinckles come,
And let my Liuer rather heate with wine,
Then my heart coole with mortifying grones
Why should a man whose bloud is warme within,
Sit like his Grandsire, cut in Alablaster?
Sleepe when he wakes? and creep into the Iundice

By

By being peeuish? I tell thee what Anthonio,
I loue thee, and it is my loue that ſpeakes:
There are a ſort of men, whoſe viſages
Do creame and mantle like a ſtanding pond,
And do a willfull ſtillneſſe entertaine,
With purpoſe to be dreſt in an opinion
Of wiſedome, grauity, profound conceit,
As who ſhould ſay, I am ſir an Oracle,
And when I ope my lips, let no dogge barke.
O my Anthonio, I do know of theſe
That therefore onely are reputed wiſe,
For ſaying nothing; when I am verie ſure
If they ſhould ſpeake, would almoſt dam thoſe eares
Which hearing them would call their brothers fooles:
Ile tell thee more of this another time.
But fiſh not with this melancholly baite
For this foole Gudgin, this opinion:
Come good Lorenzo, fare ywell a while,
Ile end my exhortation after dinner.

Lor. Well, we will leaue you then till dinner time.
I muſt be one of theſe ſame dumbe wiſe men,
For Gratiano never let's me ſpeake.

Gra. Well, keepe me company but two yeares mo,
Thou ſhalt not know the ſound of thine owne tongue.

Ant. Fat you well, Ile grow a talker for this geare.

Gra. Thankes ifaith, for ſilence is onely commendable
In a neats tongue dri'd, and a maid not vendible. Exit.

Ant. Is it ſo that any thing now.

Baſ. Gratiano ſpeakes an infinite deale of nothing, more then any man in all Venice, his reaſons are two graines of wheate hid in two buſhels of chaffe, you ſhall ſeeke all day ere you finde them, & when you haue them they are not worth the ſearch.

An. Well: tel me now, what Lady is the ſame
To whom you ſwore a ſecret Pilgrimage
That you to day promis'd to tel me of?

Baſ. Tis not vnknowne to you Anthonio
How much I haue diſabled mine eſtate,
By ſomething ſhewing a more ſwelling port,
Then my faint meanes would grant continuance:
Nor do I now make mone to be abridg'd
From ſuch a noble rate, but my cheefe care
Is to come fairely off from the great debts
Wherein my time ſomething too prodigall
Hath left me gag'd: to you Anthonio
I owe the moſt in money, and in loue,
And from your loue I haue a warrantie
To vnburthen all my plots and purpoſes,
How to get cleere of all the debts I owe.

An. I pray you good Baſſanio let me know it,
And if it ſtand as you your ſelfe ſtill do,
Within the eye of honour, be aſſur'd
My purſe, my perſon, my extreameſt meanes
Lye all vnlock'd to your occaſions.

Baſ. In my ſchoole dayes, when I had loſt one ſhaft
I ſhot his fellow of the ſelfeſame flight
The ſelfeſame way, with more aduiſed watch
To finde the other forth, and by aduenturing both,
I oft found both. I vrge this child-hoode proofe,
Becauſe what followes is pure innocence.
I owe you much, and like a willfull youth,
That which I owe is loſt: but if you pleaſe
To ſhoote another arrow that ſelfe way
Which you did ſhoot the firſt, I do not doubt,
As I will watch the ayme: Or to finde both,
Or bring your latter hazard backe againe,
And thankfully reſt debter for the firſt.

An. You know me well, and herein ſpend but time
To winde about my loue with circumſtance,
And out of doubt you doe more wrong
In making queſtion of my vttermoſt
Then if you had made waſte of all I haue:
Then doe but ſay to me what I ſhould doe
That in your knowledge may by me be done,
And I am preſt vnto it: therefore ſpeake.

Baſ. In Belmont is a Lady richly left,
And ſhe is faire, and fairer then that word,
Of wondrous vertues, ſometimes from her eyes
I did receiue faire ſpeechleſſe meſſages:
Her name is Portia, nothing vnderualleed
To Cato's daughter, Brutus Portia,
Nor is the wide world ignorant of her worth,
For the foure windes blow in from euery coaſt
Renowned ſutors, and her ſunny locks
Hang on her temples like a golden fleece,
Which makes her ſeat of Belmont Colchos ſtrond,
And many Iaſons come in queſt of her.
O my Anthonio, had I but the meanes
To hold a riuall place with one of them,
I haue a minde preſages me ſuch thriſe,
That I ſhould queſtionleſſe be fortunate.

Anth. Thou knowſt that all my fortunes are at ſea,
Neither haue I money, nor commodity
To raiſe a preſent ſumme, therefore goe forth
Try what my credit can in Venice doe,
That ſhall be rackt euen to the vttermoſt,
To furniſh thee to Belmont to faire Portia.
Goe preſently enquire, and ſo will I
Where money is, and I no queſtion make
To haue it of my truſt, or for my ſake. Exeunt.

Enter Portia with her waiting woman Neriſſa.

Portia. By my troth Neriſſa, my little body is a weary of this great world.

Ner. You would be ſweet Madam, if your miſeries were in the ſame abundance as your good fortunes are: and yet for ought I ſee, they are as ſicke that ſurfet with too much, as they that ſtarue with nothing; it is no ſmal happineſſe therefore to be ſeated in the meane, ſuperfluitie comes ſooner by white haires, but competence liues longer.

Portia. Good ſentences, and well pronoun'd.

Ner. They would be better if well followed.

Portia. If to doe were as eaſie as to know what were good to doe, Chappels had beene Churches, and poore mens cottages Princes Pallaces: it is a good Diuine that followes his owne inſtructions; I can eaſier teach twentie what were good to be done, then be one of the twentie to follow mine owne teaching: the braine may deuiſe lawes for the blood, but a hot temper leapes ore a colde decree, ſuch a haze is madneſſe the youth, to ſkip ore the meſhes of good counſaile the cripple; but this reaſon is not in faſhion to chooſe me a husband: O me, the word chooſe, I may neither chooſe whom I would, nor refuſe whom I diſlike, ſo is the will of a liuing daughter curb'd by the will of a dead father: it is not hard Neriſſa, that I cannot chooſe one, nor refuſe none.

Ner. Your father was euer vertuous, and holy men at their death haue good inſpirations, therefore the lotterie that he hath deuiſed in theſe three cheſts of gold, ſiluer, and leade, whereof who chooſes his meaning,

chooſes

…loo doubt neuer be chosen by any right-
…you shall highly loue: but what warmth
… affection towards any of these Princely
…dready come?
…thee ouer-name them, and as thou nameſt
…cribe them, and according to my deſcrip-
…y affection.
…here is the Neopolitane Prince.
… a colt indeede, for he doth nothing but
…ſe, and bee makes it a great appropria-
…e good parts that he can ſhoo him him-
…ch afraid my Ladie his mother plaid falſe

…s there the Countie Palentine.
…ch nothing but frowne (as who ſhould
…ll not haue the, chooſe: he heares merrie
… oor, I feare hee will proue the weeping
…hen he growes old, being ſo full of vn-
…ſe in his youth.) I had rather to be marri-
…ead with a bone in his mouth, then to ei-
…od defend me from theſe two.
…ſay you by the French Lord, Mounſier

…ade him, and therefore lets him paſſe for a
… know it is a ſinne to be a mocker, but he,
…orſe better then the Neopolitane, a bet-
… of frowning then the Count Palentine, he
… no man, if a Traſſell ſing he fals ſtraight
…ill fence with his own ſhadow. If I ſhould
…ſhould marry twentie husbands: if her
…me, I would forgiue him, for if he loue me
…hould neuer requite him.
…s ſay you then to Faconbridge, the yong
…nd?
…now I ſay nothing to him, for hee vnder-
…nor I him: he hath neither Latine, French,
…d you will come into the Court & ſweare
…oore pennie-worth in the Engliſh. hee is a
…ellow, but alas who can converſe with a
…how odly he is ſuited, I thinke he bought
…Dutch, his round hoſe in France, his bonnet
…nd his behauiour euery where.
…s thinke you of the other Lord his neigh-

…he hath a neighbourly charitie in him, for
… boxe of the eare of the Engliſhman, and
…d pay him againe when hee was able: I
…rkman becauſe his ſuretie, and ſeald vnder

… like you the yong Germaine, the Duke of
…ony?
…ildeſh in the morning when hee is ſober,
…y in the afternoone when hee is drunke:
… he is a little worſe then a man, and when
…s little better then a beaſt: and the worſt
…ell, I hope I ſhall make ſhift to goe with-

…uld offer to chooſe, and chooſe the right
…uld refuſe to performe your Fathers will,
…ſuſe to accept him.
…fore loe feare of the worſt, I pray thee ſet
…of Reinish wine on the contrary Casket,
… be within, and that temptation without,
… chooſe it. I will doe any thing Nerriſſa
…arried to a ſponge.
…eede not feare Lady the hauing any of

theſe Lords, they haue acquainted me with their determinations, which is indeede to returne to their home, and to trouble you with no more ſuite, vnleſſe you may be won by ſome other ſort then your Fathers impoſition, depending on the Caskets.

Por. If I liue to be as olde as Sibilla, I will dye as chaſte as Diana, vnleſſe I be obtained by the manner of my Fathers will: I am glad this parcell of wooers are ſo reaſonable, for there is not one among them but I doate on his verie abſence: and I wiſh them a faire departure.

Ner. Doe you not remember Ladie in your Fathers time, a Venecian, a Scholler and a Souldior that came hither in compaſſe of the Marqueſſe of Mountferrat?

Por. Yes yes, it was Baſſanio, as I thinke, ſo was hee call'd.

Ner. True Madam, hee of all the men that euer my foolish eyes look'd vpon, was the beſt deſeruing a faire Lady.

Por. I remember him well, and I remember him worthy of thy praiſe.

Enter a Seruingman.

Ser. The foure Strangers ſeeke you Madam to take their leaue: and there is a fore-runner come from a fift, the Prince of Morocco, who brings word the Prince his Maiſter will be here to night.

Por. If I could bid the fift welcome with ſo good heart as I can bid the other foure farewell; I ſhould be glad of his approach: if he haue the condition of a Saint, and the complexion of a diuell, I had rather hee ſhould ſhriue me then wiue me. Come Nerriſſa, ſirra go before; whiles wee ſhut the gate vpon one wooer, another knocks at the doore. Exeunt.

Enter Baſſanio with Shylocke the Iew.

Shy. Three thouſand ducates, well.

Baſſ. I ſir, for three months.

Shy. For three months, well.

Baſſ. For the which, as I told you, Anthonio ſhall be bound.

Shy. Anthonio ſhall become bound, well.

Baſſ. May you ſtead me? Will you pleaſure me? Shall I know your anſwere?

Shy. Three thouſand ducats for three months, and Anthonio bound.

Baſſ. Your anſwere to that.

Shy. Anthonio is a good man.

Baſſ. Haue you heard any imputation to the contrary.

Shy. Ho no, no, no, no: my meaning in ſaying he is a good man, is to haue you vnderſtand me that he is ſufficient, yet his meanes are in ſuppoſition: he hath an Argoſie bound to Tripolis, another to the Indies, I vnderſtand moreouer vpon the Rialto, he hath a third at Mexico, a fourth for England, and other ventures he hath ſquandred abroad, but ſhips are but boords, Saylers but men, there be land rats, and water rats, water theeues, and land theeues, I meane Pyrats, and then there is the perrill of waters, windes, and rocks: the man is notwithſtanding ſufficient, three thouſand ducats, I thinke I may take his bond.

Baſſ. Be aſſured you may.

Iew. I will be aſſured I may: and that I may be aſſured, I will bethinke mee, may I ſpeake with Anthonio?

Baſſ. If it pleaſe you to dine with vs.

Iew. Yes, to ſmell porke, to eate of the habitation which your Prophet the Nazarite conioured the diuell into? I will buy with you, ſell with you, talke with you, walke with you, and ſo following: but I will not eate with you, drinke with you, nor pray with you. What newes on the Ryalta, who is he comes here?

Enter Anthonio

Baſſ. This is ſignior Anthonio.

Iew. How like a fawning publican he lookes. I hate him for he is a Chriſtian: But more, for that in low ſimplicitie He lends out money gratis, and brings downe The rate of vſance here with vs in Venice. If I can catch him once vpon the hip, I will feede fat the ancient grudge I beare him. He hates our ſacred Nation, and he railes Euen there where Merchants moſt doe congregate On me, my bargaines, and my well-worne thrift, Which he cals intereſt: Curſed be my Trybe If I forgiue him.

Baſſ. Shylock, doe you heare.

Shy. I am debating of my preſent ſtore, And by the neere geſſe of my memorie I cannot inſtantly raiſe vp the groſſe Of full three thouſand ducats: what of that? Tubal a wealthy Hebrew of my Tribe Will furniſh me, but ſoft, how many months Doe you deſire? Reſt you faire good ſignior, Your worſhip was the laſt man in our mouthes.

Ant. Shylocke, albeit I neither lend nor borrow By taking, nor by giuing of exceſſe, Yet to ſupply the ripe wants of my friend, Ile breake a cuſtome: is he yet poſſeſt How much he would?

Shy. I, I, three thouſand ducats.

Ant. And for three months.

Shy. I had forgot, three months, you told me ſo. Well then, your bond: and let me ſee, but heare you, Me thoughts you ſaid, you neither lend nor borrow Vpon aduantage.

Ant. I doe neuer vſe it.

Shy. When Iacob graz'd his Vncle Labans ſheepe, This Iacob from our holy Abram was (As his wiſe mother wrought in his behalfe) The third poſſeſſer; I, he was the third.

Ant. And what of him, did he take intereſt?

Shy. No, not take intereſt, not as you would ſay Directly intereſt, marke what Iacob did. When Laban and himſelfe were compremyz'd That all the eanelings which were ſtreakt and pied Should fall as Iacobs hier, the Ewes being rancke, In end of Autumne turned to the Rammes, And when the worke of generation was Betweene theſe woolly breeders in the act, The ſkilfull ſhepheard pil'd me certaine wands, And in the dooing of the deede of kinde, He ſtucke them vp before the fulſome Ewes, Who then conceiuing, did in eaning time Fall party-colour'd lambs, and thoſe were Iacobs. This was a way to thriue, and he was bleſt: And thrift is bleſſing if men ſteale it not.

Ant. This was a venture ſir that Iacob ſerv'd for, A thing not in his power to bring to paſſe, But ſway'd and faſhion'd by the hand of heauen. Was this inſerted to make intereſt good? Or is your gold and ſiluer Ewes and Rams?

Shy. I cannot tell, I make it breede as faſt, But note me ſignior.

Ant. Marke you this Baſſanio, The diuell can cite Scripture for his purpoſe, An euill ſoule producing holy witneſſe, Is like a villaine with a ſmiling cheeke, A goodly apple rotten at the heart. O what a goodly outſide falſehood hath.

Shy. Three thouſand ducats, 'tis a good round ſum. Three months from twelue, then let me ſee the rate.

Ant. Well Shylocke, ſhall we be beholding to you?

Shy. Signior Anthonio, many a time and oft In the Ryalto you haue rated me About my monies and my vſances: Still haue I borne it with a patient ſhrug, (For ſuffrance is the badge of all our Tribe.) You call me miſbeleeuer, cut-throate dog, And ſpet vpon my Iewiſh gaberdine, And all for vſe of that which is mine owne. Well then, it now appeares you neede my helpe: Goe to then, you come to me, and you ſay, Shylocke, we would haue monyes, you ſay ſo: You that did voide your rume vpon my beard, And foote me as you ſpurne a ſtranger curre Ouer your threſhold, moneyes is your ſuite. What ſhould I ſay to you? Should I not ſay, Hath a dog money? Is it poſſible A curre ſhould lend three thouſand ducats? or Shall I bend low, and in a bond-mans key With bated breath, and whiſpring humbleneſſe, Say this: Faire ſir, you ſpet on me on Wedneſday laſt; You ſpurn'd me ſuch a day; another time You cald me dog: and for theſe curteſies Ile lend you thus much moneyes.

Ant. I am as like to call thee ſo againe, To ſpet on thee againe, to ſpurne thee too. If thou wilt lend this money, lend it not As to thy friends, for when did friendſhip take A breede of barraine mettall of his friend? But lend it rather to thine enemie, Who if he breake, thou maiſt with better face Exact the penalties.

Shy. Why looke you how you ſtorme, I would be friends with you, and haue your loue, Forget the ſhames that you haue ſtaind me with, Supplie your preſent wants, and take no doite Of vſance for my moneyes, and youle not heare me, This is kinde I offer.

Baſſ. This were kindneſſe.

Shy. This kindneſſe will I ſhowe, Goe with me to a Notarie, ſeale me there Your ſingle bond, and in a merrie ſport If you repaie me not on ſuch a day, In ſuch a place, ſuch ſum or ſums as are Expreſt in the condition, let the forfeite Be nominated for an equall pound Of your faire fleſh, to be cut off and taken In what part of your bodie it pleaſeth me.

Ant. Content in faith, Ile ſeale to ſuch a bond, And ſay there is much kindneſſe in the Iew.

Baſſ. You

You ſhall not ſeale to ſuch a bond for me, dwell in my neceſſitie.
Why feare not man, I will not forfaite it, theſe two months, that's a month before
d expires, I doe expect retorne three times the value of this bond.
father Abram, what theſe Chriſtians are,
wne hard dealings teaches them ſuſpect ghts of others: Praie you tell me this, uld breake his daie, what ſhould I gaine action of the forfeiture?
of mans fleſh taken from a man, eſtimable, profitable neither of Mutrons, Beeſes, or Goates, I ſay is ſauour, I extend this friendſhip, take it, for if not adiew,
my loue I praie you wrong me not.
Yes Shylocke, I will ſeale vnto this bond.
hen meete me forthwith at the Notaries,
direction for this merrie bond,
goe and purſe the ducats ſtraite.
houſe left in the fearefull gard chriſtie knaue: and preſentlie
th you. Exit.
Hie thee gentle Iew. This Hebrew will turne
he growes kinde.
like not faire teames, and a villaines minde.
Come on, in this there can be no diſmaie,
pes come home a month before the daie.
Exeunt.

Actus Secundus.

erchus a Tawnie Moore all in white, and three or re followers accordingly, with Portia, Nerriſſa, and their traine.
Flo. Cornets.

Miſlike me not for my complexion,
lowed lueries of the burniſht ſunne,
m I am a neighbour, and neere bred.
the faireſt creature North-ward borne,
Phebus fire ſcarce thawes the yſicles,
make inciſion for your loue,
whoſe blood is reddeſt, his or mine.
Ladie this aſpect of mine
d the valiant, (by my loue I ſweare) regarded Virgins of our Clyme
'd it to: I would not change this hue,
ſteale your thoughts my gentle Queene.
In tearmes of choiſe I am not ſolie led irection of a maidens eies:
he lottrie of my deſtenie
he right of voluntarie chooſing:
Father had not ſcanted me,
g'd me by his wit to yeelde my ſelfe who wins me by that meanes I told you, (renowned Prince) than ſtood as faire ommer I haue look'd on yet
fections.
Euen for that I thanke you,
I pray you leade me to the Caskets
y fortune: By this Symitare
That ſlew the Sophie, and a Perſian Prince
That won three fields of Sultan Solyman,
I would out-ſtare the ſternſt eies that looke:
Out-braue the heart moſt daring on the earth:
Plucke the yong ſucking Cubs from the ſhe Beare,
Yea, mocke the Lion when he rores for pray
To win the Ladie. But alas, the while
If Hercules and Lychas plaie at dice
Which is the better man, the greater throw
May turne by fortune from the weaker hand:
So is Alcides beaten by his rage,
And ſo may I, blinde fortune leading me
Miſſe that which one vnworthier may attaine,
And die with grieving.
Por. You muſt take your chance,
And either not attempt to chooſe at all,
Or ſweare before you chooſe, if you chooſe wrong
Neuer to ſpeake to Ladie afterward
In way of marriage, therefore be aduis'd.
Mor. Nor will not, come bring me vnto my chance.
Por. Firſt forward to the temple, after dinner
Your hazard ſhall be made.
Mor. Good fortune then, Cornets.
To make me bleſt or curſed'ſt among men. Exeunt.

Enter the Clowne alone.

Clo. Certainely, my conſcience will ſerue me to run from this Iew my Maiſter: the fiend is at mine elbow, and tempts me, ſaying to me, Iobbe, Launcelet Iobbe, good Launcelet, or good Iobbe, or good Launcelet Iobbe, vſe your legs, take the ſtart, run awaie: my conſcience ſaies no; take heede honeſt Launcelet, take heed honeſt Iobbe, or as afore-ſaid honeſt Launcelet Iobbe, doe not runne, ſcorne running with thy heeles; well, the moſt coragious fiend bids me packe, fia ſaies the fiend, away ſaies the fiend, for the heauens rouſe vp a braue minde ſaies the fiend, and run; well, my conſcience hanging about the necke of my heart, ſaies verie wiſely to me: my honeſt friend Launcelet, being an honeſt mans ſonne, or rather an honeſt womans ſonne, for indeede my Father did ſomething ſmack, ſomething grow too; he had a kinde of taſte, wel, my conſcience ſaies Launcelet bouge not, bouge ſaies the fiend, bouge not ſaies my conſcience, conſcience ſay I you counſaile well, fiend ſay I you counſaile well, to be rul'd by my conſcience I ſhould ſtay with the Iew my Maiſter, (who God bleſſe the marke) is a kinde of diuell; and to run away from the Iew I ſhould be ruled by the fiend, who ſauing your reuerence is the diuell himſelfe: certainely the Iew is the verie diuell incarnation, and in my conſcience, my conſcience is a kinde of hard conſcience, to offer to counſaile me to ſtay with the Iew; the fiend giues the more friendly counſaile: I will runne fiend, my heeles are at your commandement, I will runne.

Enter old Gobbo with a Baſket.

Gob. Maiſter yong-man, you I praie you, which is the waie to Maiſter Iewes?

Laun. O heauens, this is my true begotten Father, who being more then ſand-blinde, high graueł blinde, knows me not, I will trie confuſions with him.

Gob. Maiſter yong Gentleman, I praie you which is the waie to Maiſter Iewes.

Laun. Turne vpon your right hand at the next turning ning, but at the next turning of all on your left; marrie at the verie next turning, turne of no hand, but turn down indirectlie to the Iewes house.

Gob. Be Gods sonnes 'twill be a hard waie to hit, can you tell me whether one Launcelet that dwels with him, dwell with him or no.

Laun. Talke you of yong Maister Launcelet, marke me now, now will I raise the waters; talke you of yong Maister Launcelet?

Gob. No Maister sir, but a poore mans sonne, his Father though I say't is an honest exceeding poore man, and God be thanked well to liue.

Laun. Well, let his Father be what a will, wee talke of yong Maister Launcelet

Gob. Your worships friend and Launcelet

Laun. But I praie you ergo old man, ergo I beseech you, talke you of yong Maister Launcelet

Gob. Of Launcelet, an't please your maistership.

Laun. Ergo Maister Launcelet talke not of maister Launcelet Father, for the young gentleman according to fates and destinies, and such odde sayings, the sisters three, & such branches of learning, is indeede deceased, or as you would say in plaine termes, gone to heauen.

Gob. Marrie God forbid, the boy was the verie staffe of my age, my verie prop.

Laun Do I look like a cudgell or a houell-post, a staffe or a prop? doe you know me Father.

Gob Alacke the day, I know you not yong Gentleman, but I praie you tell me, is my boy God rest his soule aliue or dead.

Laun. Doe you not know me Father.

Gob. Alacke sir I am sand blinde, I know you not.

Laun. Nay, indeede if you had your eies you might faile of the knowing me: it is a wise Father that knowes his owne childe. Well, old man, I will tell you newes of your son, giue me your blessing, truth will come to light, murder cannot be hid long, a mans sonne may, but in the end truth will out.

Gob. Praie you sir stand vp, I am sure you are not Launcelet my boy.

Laun. Praie you let's haue no more fooling about it, but giue mee your blessing: I am Launcelet your boy that was, your sonne that is, your childe that shall be.

Gob. I cannot thinke you are my sonne.

Laun. I know not what I shall thinke of that: but I am Launcelet the Iewes man, and I am sure Margerie your wife is my mother.

Gob. Her name is Margerie indeede. He be sworne if thou be Launcelet, thou art mine owne flesh and blood: Lord worshipt might he be, what a beard hast thou got; thou hast got more haire on thy chin, then Dobbin my philhorse has on his taile Laun. It should seeme then that Dobbins taile growes backeward. I am sure he had more haire of his taile then I haue of my face when I last saw him.

Gob. Lord how art thou chang'd: how doost thou and thy Master agree, I haue brought him a present, how gree you now?

Laun. Well, well, but for mine owne part, as I haue set vp my rest to run away, so I will not rest till I haue run some ground: my Maister's a verie Iew, giue him a present, giue him a halter, I am famisht in his seruice. You may tell euerie finger I haue with my ribs: Father I am glad you are come, giue me your present to one Maister Bassanio, who indeede giues rare new Liueries, if I serue not him, I will run as fast as God has anie ground. O rare fortune, here comes the man. to him Father, for I am a Iew if I serue the Iew anie longer.

Enter Bassanio with a follower or two

Bass. You may doe so, but let it be so hasted that supper be readie at the farthest by fiue of the clocke: see these Letters deliuered, put the Liueries to making, and desire Gratiano to come anone to my lodging.

Laun. To him Father.

Gob. God blesse your worship

Bass. Gramercie, would'st thou ought with me.

Gob. Here's my sonne sir, a poore boy.

Laun. Not a poore boy sir, but the rich Iewes man that would sir as my Father shall specifie.

Gob. He hath a great infection sir, as one would say to serue.

Laun. Indeede the short and the long is, I serue the Iew, and haue a desire as my Father shall specifie

Gob. His Maister and he (saving your worships reuerence) are scarce cater-cousins.

Laun. To be briefe, the verie truth is, that the Iew hauing done me wrong, doth cause me as my Father being I hope an old man shall frutifie vnto you.

Gob. I haue here a dish of Doues that I would bestow vpon your worship, and my suite is.

Laun. In verie briefe, the suite is impertinent to my selfe, as your worship shall know by this honest old man, and though I say it, though old man, yet poore man my Father

Bass. One speake for both, what would you?

Laun Serue you sir.

Gob That is the verie defect of the matter sir.

Bass. I know thee well, thou hast obtain'd thy suite. Shylocke thy Maister spoke with me this day,
And hath prefer'd thee, if it be preferment
To leaue a rich Iewes seruice, to become
The follower of so poore a Gentleman.

Clo. The old prouerbe is verie well parted betweene my Maister Shylocke and you sir, you haue the grace of God sir, and he hath enough.

Bass. Thou speak'st it well; go Father with thy Son,
Take leaue of thy old Maister, and enquire
My lodging out, giue him a Liuerie
More garded then his fellowes: see it done.

Clo. Father in, I cannot get a seruice, no, I haue ne're a tongue in my head, well: if anie man in Italie haue a fairer table which doth offer to sweare vpon a booke, I shall haue good fortune; goe too, here's a simple line of life, here's a small trifle of wiues, alas, fifteene wiues is nothing, a leuen widdowes and nine maides is a simple comming in for one man, and then to scape drowning thrice, and to be in perill of my life with the edge of a featherbed, here are simple scapes: well, if Fortune be a woman, she's a good wench for this gere: Father come, Ile take my leaue of the Iew in the twinkling.

Exit Clowne.

Bass. I praie thee good Leonardo thinke on this.
These things being bought and orderly bestowed
Returne in haste, for I do feast to night
My best esteemd acquaintance, hie thee goe.

Leon. My best endeuors shall be done herein. Exit Leo.

Enter Gratiano.

Gra. Where's your Maister.

Leon. Yonder

ſit he walkes, Baſſanio.
ſuite to you.
ee obtain'd it.
ill not denie me, I muſt goe with you to im you muſt: but heare thee Gratiano, le, to rude, and bold of voyce,
ne thee happily enough,
as ours appeare not faults;
re not knowne, why there they ſhow iberall, pray thee take paine me cold drops of modeſtie
int, leaſt through thy wilde behaviour in the place I goe to,
ppes.
Baſſanio, heare me, n a ſober habite,
eſh, and ſweare but now and then,
ookes in my pocket, looke demurely, graue as ſaying hood mine eyes
at, and ſigh and ſay Amen:
ſtance of ſtillitie
udied in a ſad oſtent andam, never truſt me more e ſhall ſee your bearing
I barre to night, you ſhall not gage me to night.
were pittie,
you rather to put on te of mirth, for we haue friends ertiment: but fare you well, ueſſe.
aſt to Lorenſo and the reſt,
e you at ſupper time. Exeunt.

ter Iessica and the Clowne
y thou wilt leaue my Father ſo,
And thou a merrie diuell
ome caſke of tedioufneſſe,
there is a diuice for thee,
one at ſupper ſhalt thou ſee thy new Maſters gueſt.
etter, doe it ſecretly,
I would not haue my Father
h thee.
ares exhibit my tongue, moſt beautifull eete Iew, if a Chriſtian doe not play the ice, I am much deceiued, but adue, theſe
e ſomewhat drowne my manly ſpirit
Exit
l good Lancelet
mous ſinne is in me
o be my Fathers childe,
a daughter to his blood,
nanners: O Lorenzo,
omiſe I ſhall end this ſtriſe,
ſon, and thy louing wife Exit
ter Lorenzo, Gratiano and Salerio will ſlinke away in ſupper time, y lodging, and returne all in an houre
t not made good preparation.
not ſpoke as yet of Torch-bearers.

Sal. 'Tis vile vnleſſe it may be quaintly ordered,
And better in my minde not vndertooke.
Lor. 'Tis now but foure of clock, we haue two houres
To furniſh vs; friend Lancelet what's the newes.
Enter Lancelet with a Letter.
Lan. And it ſhall pleaſe you to breake vp this, ſhall it ſeeme to ſignifie
Lor. I know the hand, in faith 'tis a faire hand
And whiter then the paper it writ on,
I the faire hand that writ.
Gra. Loue newes in faith
Lan. By your leaue ſir
Lor. Whither goeſt thou?
Lan. Marry ſir to bid my old Maſter the Iew to ſup to night with my new Maſter the Chriſtian
Lor. Hold here, take this, tell gentle Ieſſica
I will not faile her, ſpeake it priuately a Go Gentlemen, will you prepare you for this Maske to night,
I am prouided of a Torch-bearer. Exit. Clowne.
Sal. I marry, ile be gone about it ſtrait.
Sol. And ſo will I.
Lor. Meete me and Gratiano at Gratianos lodging
Some houre hence.
Sal. 'Tis good we do ſo. Exit
Gra. Was not that Letter from faire Ieſſica?
Lor. I muſt needes tell thee all, ſhe hath directed
How I ſhall take her from her Fathers houſe,
What gold and iewels ſhe is furniſht with,
What Pages ſuite ſhe hath in readineſſe
If ere the Iew her Father come to heauen,
It will be for his gentle daughters ſake;
And neuer dare miſfortune croſſe her foote,
Vnleſſe ſhe doe it vnder this excuſe,
That ſhe is iſſue to a faithleſſe Iew:
Come goe with me, peruſe this as thou goeſt,
Faire Ieſſica ſhall be my Torch bearer Exit.

Enter Iew, and his man that was the Clowne.

Iew. Well, thou ſhalt ſee, thy eyes ſhall be thy iudge,
The difference of old Shylocke and Baſſanio;
What Ieſſica, thou ſhalt not gurmandize
As thou haſt done with me: what Ieſſica?
And ſleepe, and snore, and rend apparrell out.
Why Ieſſica I ſay
Clo. Why Ieſſica.
Shy. Who bids thee call? I do not bid thee call.
Clo. Your worſhip was wont to tell me
I could doe nothing without bidding.
Enter Ieſſica.
Ief. Call you? what is your will?
Shy. I am bid forth to ſupper Ieſſica,
There are my Keyes: but wherefore ſhould I go?
I am not bid for loue, they flatter me.
But yet Ile goe in hate, to feede vpon
The prodigall Chriſtian. Ieſſica my girle,
Looke to my houſe, I am right loath to goe,
There is ſome ill a brewing towards my reſt,
For I did dreame of money bags to night
Clo. I beſeech you ſir goe, my yong Maſter
Doth expect your reproach.
Shy. So doe I his.
Clo. And they haue conſpired together. I will not ſay you ſhall ſee a Maske, but if you doe, then it was not for nothing that my noſe fell a bleeding on blacke monday laſt, at ſix a clocke ich morning, falling out that yeere on aſhwenſday was foure yeere in th'afternoone

Shy. What are their maskes? heare you me Ieſſica,
Lock vp my doores, and when you heare the drum
And the vile ſqueaking of the wry-neckt Fife,
Clamber not you vp to the caſements then,
Nor thruſt your head into the publique ſtreete
To gaze on Chriſtian fooles with varniſht faces:
But ſtop my houſes eares, I meane my caſements,
Let not the ſound of ſhallow fopperie enter
My ſober houſe. By Iacobs ſtaffe I ſweare,
I haue no minde of feaſting forth to night:
But I will goe: goe you before me ſirra,
Say I will come.
Clo. I will goe before ſir
Miſtris looke out at window for all this;
There will come a Chriſtian by,
Will be worth a Iewes eye.
Shy. What ſaies that foole of Hagars off-ſpring? ha.
Ieſ. His words were farewell miſtris, nothing elſe.
Shy. The patch is kinde enough, but a huge feeder:
Snaile-ſlow in profit, but he ſleepes by day
More then the wilde-cat: drones hiue not with me,
Therefore I part with him, and part with him
To one that I would haue him helpe to waſte
His borrowed purſe. Well Ieſſica goe in,
Perhaps I will returne immediately;
Doe as I bid you, ſhut doores after you, faſt binde, faſt
finde,
A prouerbe neuer ſtale in thriftie minde. Exit.
Ieſ. Farewell, and if my fortune be not croſt,
I haue a Father, you a daughter loſt. Exit.

Enter the Maskers, Gratiano and Salino.

Gra. This is the penthouſe vnder which Lorenzo
Deſired vs to make a ſtand.
Sal. His houre is almoſt paſt.
Gra. And it is meruaile he out-dwels his houre,
For louers euer run before the clocke.
Sal. O tenne times faſter Venus Pidgions flye
To ſteal, loues bonds new made, then they are wont
To keepe obliged faith vnforfaited.
Gra. That euer holds, who riſeth from a feaſt
With that keene appetite that he ſits downe?
Where is the horſe that doth vntread againe
His tedious meaſures with the vnbated fire,
That he did pace them firſt: all things that are,
Are with more ſpirit chaſed then enioy'd.
How like a yonger or a prodigall
The ſkarfed barke puts from her native bay,
Hudg'd and embraced by the ſtrumpet winde:
How like a prodigall doth ſhe returne
With ouer-wither'd ribs and ragged ſailes,
Leane, rent, and begger'd by the ſtrumpet winde?

Enter Lorenzo.

Salino. Heere comes Lorenzo, more of this hereafter.
Lor. Sweete friends, your patience for my long abode,
Not I, but my affaires haue made you wait:
When you ſhall pleaſe to play the theeues for wiues
Ile watch as long for you then: approach
Here dwels my father Iew. Hoa, who's within?

Ieſſica aboue.

Ieſſ. Who are you? tell me for more certainty,
Albeit Ile ſweare that I do know your tongue.
Lor. Lorenzo, and thy Loue.
Ieſ. Lorenzo certaine, and my loue indeed,
For who loue I ſo much? and now who knowes
But you Lorenzo, whether I am yours?
Lor. Heauen and thy thoughts are witneſs that thou art.
Ieſ. Heere, catch this caſket, it is worth the paines,
I am glad 'tis night, you do not looke on me,
For I am much aſham'd of my exchange:
But loue is blinde, and louers cannot ſee
The pretty follies that themſelues commit,
For if they could, Cupid himſelfe would bluſh
To ſee me thus transformed to a boy.
Lor. Deſcend, for you muſt be my torch-bearer
Ieſ. What, muſt I hold a Candle to my ſhames?
They in themſelues good ſooth are too too light.
Why, 'tis an office of diſcouery Loue,
And I ſhould be obſcur'd.
Lor. So you are ſweet,
Euen in the louely garniſh of a boy: but come at once,
For the cloſe night doth play the run-away,
And we are ſtaid for at Baſſanio's feaſt.
Ieſ. I will make faſt the doores and guild my ſelfe
With ſome more ducats, and be with you ſtraight.
Gra. Now by my hood, a gentle, and no Iew.
Lor. Beſtrew me but I loue her heartily.
For ſhe is wiſe, if I can iudge of her,
And faire ſhe is, if that mine eyes be true,
And true ſhe is, as ſhe hath prou'd her ſelfe:
And therefore like her ſelfe, wiſe, faire, and true,
Shall ſhe be placed in my conſtant ſoule.

Enter Ieſſica.

What, art thou come? on gentlemen, away,
Our maſking mates by this time for vs ſtay. Exit.

Enter Anthonio.

Ant. Who's there?
Gra. Signior Anthonio?
Ant. Fie, fie, Gratiano, where are all the reſt?
'Tis nine a clocke, our friends all ſtay for you,
No maske to night, the winde is come about,
Baſſanio preſently will goe aboord,
I haue ſent twenty out to ſeeke for you.
Gra. I am glad on't, I deſire no more delight
Then to be vnder ſaile, and gone to night. Exeunt.

Enter Portia with Morrocho, and both their traines.

Por. Goe, draw aſide the curtaines, and diſcouer
The ſeuerall Caskets to this noble Prince:
Now make your choyſe.
Mor. The firſt of gold, who this inſcription bearers,
Who chooſeth me, ſhall gaine what men deſire.
The ſecond ſiluer, which this promiſe carries
Who chooſeth me, ſhall get as much as he deſerues.
This third, dull lead, with warning all as blunt,
Who chooſeth me, muſt giue and hazard all he hath.
How ſhall I know if I doe chooſe the right?

Por. The

know if I doe choose the right.
one of them containes my picture Prince,
e that, then I am yours withall.
me God direct my iudgement, let me see,
the inscriptions, backe againe:
his leaden caskes?
sh me, must giue and hazard all he hath.
e what? for lead, hazard for lead?
threatens men that hazard all pe of faire aduantages.
nde stoopes not to shoures of drosse,
giue not hazard ought for lead.
he Siluer with her virgin hue?
sh me, shall get as much as he deserues.
e deserues; pause there Morocho,
hy value with an euen hand,
rased by thy estimation
deserue enough, and yet enough ood so farre as to the Ladie:
e afeard of my deserning.
weake disabling of my selfe.
I deserue, why that's the Lady.
h deserue her, and in fortunes,
d in qualities of breeding:
en these, in loue I doe deserue.
ld I no farther, but chose here?
e more that saying grau'd in gold.
sh me shall gaine what many men desire:
the Lady, all the world desires her:
ure comers of the earth they come shrine, this mortall breathing Saint.
ion deserts, and the vaste wildes bia are as throughfares now to come view faire Portia.
Kingdome, whose ambitious head face of heauen, is no barre lorraine spirites, but they come ake to see faire Portia.
three containes her heauenly picture.
Lead containes her? twere damnation base a thought, it were too grosse rarecloath in the obscure graue:
ake in Siluer she's immur'd
mes vnder-valued to tride gold;
ught, neuer so rich a lem rse then gold! They haue in England beares the figure of an Angell old, but that's insculpt vpon:
Angell in a golden bed
in. Deliuer me the key:
hoose, and thriue I as I may.
e take it Prince, and if my forme lye there
ours:
ell! what haue we here, a carrion death,
e empty eye there is a written scroule;
writing.

All that glisters is not gold,
Often haue you heard that told,
Many a man his life hath sold
But my outside to behold;
Gilded timber doe worme mens infold:
Had you beene as wise as bold,
Young in limbes, in iudgement old,
Your answere had not been inscrold,
Fayre thou art, your faire is gold,

Mor. Cold indeede, and labour loft,
Then farewell heate, and welcome froft:
Portia adew, I haue too grieu'd a heart
To take a tedious leaue: thus loofers part. Exit.
Por. A gentle riddance: draw the curtaines, go:
Let all of his complexion choose me so. Exeunt.

Enter Salarino and Solanio.

Flo. Cornets.

Sal. Why man I saw Bassanio vnder saile,
With him is Gratiano gone along;
And in their ship I am sure Lorenzo is not.
Sol. The villaine Iew with outeries raisd the Duke.
Who went with him to search Bassanios ship.
Sal. He comes too late, the ship was vnderfaile;
But there the Duke was giuen to vnderstand
That in a Gondilo were seene together
Lorenzo and his amorous Iessica.
Besides, Anthonio certified the Duke
They were not with Bassanio in his ship.
Sol. I neuer heard a passion so confusd,
So strange, outragious, and so variable,
As the dogge Iew did vtter in the streets;
My daughter, O my ducats, O my daughter,
Fled with a Christian, O my Christian ducats
Iustice, the law, my ducats, and my daughter;
A sealed bag, two sealed bags of ducats,
Of double ducats, stolne from me by my daughter,
And iewels, two stones, two rich and precious stones,
Stolne by my daughter: iustice, finde the girle,
She hath the stones vpon her, and the ducats.
Sal. Why all the boyes in Venice follow him,
Crying his stones, his daughter, and his ducats.
Sol. Let good Anthonio looke he keepe his day
Or he shall pay for this
Sal. Marry well remembred,
I reason'd with a Frenchman yesterday,
Who told me, in the narrow seas that part
The French and English, there miscarried
A vessell of our country richly fraught:
I thought vpon Anthonio when he told me,
And wisht in silence that it were not his.
Sol. Yo were best to tell Anthonio what you heare.
Yet doe not suddainely, for it may grieue him.
Sal. A kinder Gentleman treads not the earth,
I saw Bassanio and Anthonio part,
Bassanio told him he would make some speede
Of his returne: he answered, doe not so,
Slubber not businesse for my sake Bassanio,
But stay the very riping of the time,
And for the Iewes bond which he hath of me,
Let it not enter in your minde of loue:
Be merry, and imploy your chiefest thoughts
To courtship, and such faire ostents of loue
As shall conueniently become you there:
And euen there his eye being big with teares,
Turning his face, he put his hand behinde him,
And with affection wondrous sencible
He wrung Bassanios hand, and so they parted.
Sol. I thinke he only loues the world for him,
I pray thee let vs goe and finde him out
And quicken his embraced heauinesse
With some delight or other.
Sal. Doe we so. Exeunt.

Enter Nerissa and a Seruiture.

Ner. Quick, quick I pray thee, draw the curtsin strait,

The Prince of Arragon hath tane his oath,
And comes to his election presently.

Enter Arragon, his traine, and Portia. Flor. Cornets.

Por. Behold, there stand the caskets noble Prince,
If you choose that wherein I am contain'd,
Straight shall our nuptiall rights be solemniz'd:
But if thou faile, without more speech my Lord,
You must be gone from hence immediately.

Ar. I am enioynd by oath to obserue three things;
First, neuer to vnfold to any one
Which casket 'twas I chose; next, if I faile
Of the right casket, neuer in my life
To woo a maide in way of marriage:
Lastly, if I doe faile in fortune of my choyse,
Immediately to leaue you, and be gone.

Por. To these iniunctions euery one doth sweare
That comes to hazard for my worthlesse selfe.

Ar. And so haue I addrest me, fortune now
To my hearts hope: gold, siluer, and base lead.
Who chooseth me must giue and hazard all he hath.
You shall looke fairer ere I giue or hazard.
What saies the golden chest, ha, let me see:
Who chooseth me, shall gaine what many men desire:
What many men desire, that many may be meant
By the foole multitude that choose by show,
Not learning more then the fond eye doth teach,
Which pries not to th'interior, but like the Martlet
Builds in the weather on the outward wall,
Euen in the force and road of casualtie.
I will not choose what many men desire,
Because I will not iumpe with common spirits,
And ranke me with the barbarous multitudes.
Why then to thee thou Siluer treasure house,
Tell me once more, what title thou doost beare;
Who chooseth me shall get as much as he deserues:
And well said too; for who shall goe about
To coson Fortune, and be honourable
Without the stampe of merrit, let none presume
To weare an vndeserued dignitie:
O that estates, degrees, and offices,
Were not deriu'd corruptly, and that cleare honour
Were purchast by the merrit of the wearer;
How many then should couer that stand bare?
How many be commanded that command?
How much low pleasantry would then be gleaned
From the true seede of honor? And how much honor
Pickt from the chaffe and ruine of the times,
To be new varnisht: Well, but to my choise.
Who chooseth me shall get as much as he deserues.
I will assume desert; giue me a key for this,
And instantly vnlocke my fortunes here.

Por. Too long a pause for that which you finde there.

Ar. What's here, the portrait of a blinking idiot
Presenting me a scedule, I will reade it:
How much vnlike art thou to Portia?
How much vnlike my hopes and my deseruings?
Who chooseth me, shall haue as much as he deserues.
Did I deserue no more then a fooles head,
Is that my prize, are my deserts no better?

Por. To offend and iudge are distinct offices,
And of opposed natures.

Ar. What is here?

The fier seauen times tried this,
Seauen times tried that iudgement is,
That did neuer chuse amis,
Some there be that shadowes kisse,
Such haue but a shadowes blisse:
There be fooles alive I wis
Siluer'd o're, and so was this:
Take what wife you will to bed,
I will euer be your head:
So be gone, you are sped.

Ar. Still more foole I shall appeare
By the time I linger here,
With one fooles head I came to woo,
But I goe away with two.
Sweet adue, Ile keepe my oath,
Patiently to beare my wroath.

Por. Thus hath the candle sing'd the moath:
O these deliberate fooles when they doe choose,
They haue the wisdome by their wit to loose.

Ner. The ancient saying is no heresie,
Hanging and wiuing goes by destinie.

Por. Come draw the curtaine Nerrissa.

Enter Messenger.

Mes. Where is thy Lady?

Por. Here, what would my Lord?

Mes. Madam, there is alighted at your gate
A young Venetian, one that comes before
To signifie th'approaching of his Lord,
From whom he bringeth sensible regreets;
To wit (besides commends and courteous breath)
Gifts of rich value; yet I haue not seene
So likely an Embassador of loue.
A day in Aprill neuer came so sweete
To show how costly Sommer was at hand,
As this fore-spurrer comes before his Lord.

Por. No more I pray thee, I am halfe a-feard
Thou wilt say anone he is some kin to thee,
Thou spend'st such high-day wit in praising him:
Come, come Nerrissa, for I long to see
Quicke Cupids Post, that comes so mannerly.

Ner. Bassanio Lord, loue if thy will it be. Exeunt.

Actus Tertius

Enter Solanio and Salarino.

Sol. Now, what newes on the Rialto?

Sal. Why yet it lies there vncheckt, that Anthonio hath a ship of rich lading wracke on the narrow Seas, the Goodwins I thinke they call the place, a very dangerous flat, and fatall, where the carcasses of many a tall ship lye buried, as they say, if my gossips report be an honest woman of her word.

Sol. I would she were as lying a gossip in that, as euer knapt Ginger, or made her neighbours beleeue she wept for the death of a third husband: but it is true, without any slips of prolixity, or crossing the plaine high-way of talke, that the good Anthonio, the honest Anthonio, O that I had a title good enough to keepe his name company!

Sol. Come, the full stop.

Sal. Ha, what sayest thou, why the end is, he hath lost a ship.

uld it might proue the end of his losses.
e say Amen betimes, leaſt the diuell croſſe here he comes in the likenes of a Iew. How what newes among the Merchants?

Enter Shylocke.

knew none ſo well, none ſo well as you, of s flight.
's certaine, I for my part knew the Tailor
e wings he flew withall.
Shylocke for his own part knew the bird was ben it is the complexion of them al to leaue

s damn'd for it.
's certaine, if the diuell may be her Iudge.
wne fleſh and blood to rebell.
pon it old cannon, rebels it at theſe yeeres.
my daughter is my fleſh and bloud.
e is more difference betweene thy fleſh and tweene Iet and Iuorie, more betweene your there is betweene red wine and rennish: but ou heare whether Anthonio haue had any
no?
e I haue another bad match, a bankrout, a
o dare ſcarce ſhew his head on the Ryalto,
e was vſd to come ſo fawning vpon the Mart:
o his bond, he was wont to call me Vſurer,
e to his bond, he was wont to lend money
n curtſie, let him looke to his bond.
y I am ſure if he forfeite, thou wilt not take at's thee good for?
baite fiſh withall, if it will feede nothing ede my reuenge: he hath diſgrac'd me, and raſde a million, laught at my loſſes, mockt at cooled my Nation, thwarted my bargaines, iends, heated mine enemies, and what's the s a Iew: Hath not a Iew eyes? hath not a rgans, dementions, ſenſes, affections, paſſis the ſame foode, hurt with the ſame weat to the ſame diſeaſes, healed by the ſame mmed and cooled by the ſame Winter and s a Chriſtian is: if you prick vs doe we not u tickle vs, doe we not laugh? if you poiſon ot die? and if you wrong vs ſhall we not re-are like you in the reſt, we will reſemble you
Iew wrong a Chriſtian, what is his humility, Chriſtian wrong a Iew, what ſhould his ſufy Chriſtian example, why reuenge? The vilch me I will execute, and it ſhall goe hard ceed the inſtruction.

Enter a man from Anthonio en, my maiſter Anthonio is at his houſe, and ake with you both.

haue beene vp and downe to ſeeke him.

Enter Tubell.

e comes another of the Tribe, a third cannot leſſe the diuell himſelfe turne Iew.

Exeunt Gentlemen.

e now Tubell, what newes from Genowa? haſt
my daughter?
thou came where I did heare of her, but can-
.
y there, there, there, there, a diamond gone
thouſand ducats in Franckford, the curſe nei ere Nation till now, I never felt it till now,
ed ducats in that, and other precious, precious iewels: I would my daughter were dead at my foot, and the iewels in her eare: would ſhe were hearſt at my foote, and the duckets in her coffin: no newes of them, why ſo? and I know not how much is ſpent in the ſearch: why thou loſſe vpon loſſe; the theefe gone with ſo much, and ſo much to finde the theefe, and no ſatisfaction, no reuenge, nor no ill luck ſtirring but what lights a my ſhoulders, no ſighes but a my breathing, no teares but a my ſhedding.

Tub. Yes, other men haue ill lucke too, Anthonio as I heard in Genowa?

Shy. What, what, what, ill lucke, ill lucke.

Tub. Hath an Argoſie caſt away comming from Tripolis.

Shy. I thanke God, I thanke God, Is it true, is it true?

Tub. I ſpoke with ſome of the Saylers that eſcaped the wracke.

Shy. I thanke thee good Tubell, good newes, good newes: ha, his, here in Genowa.

Tub. Your daughter ſpent in Genowa, as I heard, one night fourteſcore ducats.

Shy. Thou ſtick'ſt a dagger in me, I ſhall never ſee my gold againe, fourteſcore ducats at a ſitting, fourteſcore ducats.

Tub. There came diuers of Anthonios creditors in my company to Venice, that ſweare he cannot chooſe but breake.

Shy. I am very glad of it, ile plague him, ile torture him, I am glad of it.

Tub. One of them ſhewed me a ring that hee had of your daughter for a Monkie.

Shy. Out vpon her, thou torturſt me Tubell, it was my Turkies, I had it of Leah when I was a Batcheler: I would not haue giuen it for a wildernes of Monkies.

Tub. But Anthonio is certainely vndone.

Shy. Nay, that's true, that's very true, goe Tubell, fee me an Officer, beſpeake him a fortnight before, I will haue the heart of him if he forfeit, for were he out of Venice, I can make what merchandize I will: goe Tubell, and meete me at our Sinagogue, goe good Tubell, at our Sinagogue Tubell. Exeunt.

Enter Baſſanio, Portia, Gratiano, and all their traine.

Por. I pray you tarrie, pauſe a day or two Before you hazard, for in chooſing wrong
I looſe your compaine; therefore forbeare a while,
There's ſomething tels me (but it is not loue)
I would not looſe you, and you know your ſelfe,
Hate counſailes not in ſuche quallities;
But leaſt you ſhould not vnderſtand me well,
And yet a maiden hath no tongue, but thought,
I would deraine you here ſome month or two Before you venture for me. I could teach you
How to chooſe right, but then I am forſworne,
So will I neuer be, ſo may you miſſe me,
But if you doe, youle make me wiſh a ſinne,
That I had beene forſwome: Beſhrow your eyes,
They haue ore-looke me and deuided me,
One halfe of me is yours, the other halfe yours,
Mine owne I would ſay: but of mine then yours,
And ſo all yours; O theſe naughtie times
Puts bars betweene the owners and their rights,
And ſo though yours, not yours (proue it ſo)
Let Fortune goe to hell for it, not I.
I ſpeake too long, but 'tis to peize the time,
To ich it, and to draw it out in length,
To ſtay you from election.

Baſſ. Let me chooſe,
For as I am, I liue vpon the racke.
Por. Vpon the racke Baſſanio, then confeſſe
What treaſon there is mingled with your loue.
Baſſ. None but that vglie treaſon of miſtruſt,
Which makes me feare the enioying of my loue:
There may as well be amitie and life,
'Tweene ſnow and fire, as treaſon and my loue.
Por. I, but I feare you ſpeake vpon the racke,
Where men enforced doth ſpeake any thing.
Baſſ. Promiſe me life, and ile confeſſe the truth.
Por. Well then, confeſſe and liue.
Baſſ. Confeſſe and loue
Had beene the verie ſum of my confeſſion:
O happie torment, when my torturer
Doth teach me anſwers for deliuerance:
But let me to my fortune and the caskets.
Por. Away then, I am lockt in one of them,
If you doe loue me, you will finde me out.
Nerriſſa and the reſt, ſtand all aloofe,
Let muſicke ſound while he doth make his choiſe,
Then if he looſe he makes a Swan-like end,
Fading in muſique. That the compariſon
May ſtand more proper, my eye ſhall be the ſtreame
And watrie death-bed for him: he may win,
And what is muſique than? Than muſique is Euen as the flouriſh, when true ſubiects bowe
To a new crowned Monarch: Such it is,
As are thoſe dulcet ſounds in breake of day,
That creepe into the dreaming bride-groomes eare,
And ſummon him to marriage. Now he goes
With no leſſe preſence, but with much more loue
Then yong Alcides, when he did redeeme
The virgine tribute, paied by howling Troy
To the Sea-monſter: I ſtand for ſacrifice,
The reſt aloofe are the Dardanian wiues:
With bleared viſages come forth to view
The iſſue of th'exploit: Goe Hercules,
Liue thou, I liue with much more diſmay
I view the fight, then thou that mak'ſt the fray.

Here Muſicke.

A Song the whilſt Baſſanio comments on the Caskets to himſelfe.

Tell me where is fancie bred,
Or in the heart, or in the head:
How begot, how nourſhed. Replie, replie.
It is engendred in the eyes,
With gazing fed, and Fancie dies,
In the cradle where it lies:
Let vs all ring Fancies knell.
Ile begin it.
Ding dong bell.
All. Ding, dong, bell.

Baſſ. So may the outward ſhowes be leſt themſelues
The world is ſtill deceiu'd with ornament.
In Law, what Plea ſo tainted and corrupt,
But being ſeaſon'd with a gracious voice,
Obſcures the ſhow of euill? In Religion,
What damned error, but ſome ſober brow
Will bleſſe it, and approue it with a text.
Hiding the groſſeneſſe with faire ornament:
There is no voice ſo ſimple, but aſſumes
Some marke of vertue on his outward parts;
How manie cowards, whoſe hearts are all as falſe
As ſtayers of ſand, weare yet vpon their chins
The beards of Hercules and frowning Mars,
Who inward ſearcht, haue lyuers white as milke,
And theſe aſſume but valors excrement,
To render them redoubted. Looke on beautie,
And you ſhall ſee 'tis purchaſt by the weight,
Which therein workes a miracle in nature,
Making them lightеſt that weare moſt of it:
So are thoſe criſped ſnakie golden locks
Which makes ſuch wanton gambols with the winde
Vpon ſuppoſed faireneſſe, often knowne
To be the dowrie of a ſecond head,
The ſcull that bred them in the Sepulcher.
Thus ornament is but the guiled ſhore
To a moſt dangerous ſea: the beautious ſcarfe
Vailing an Indian beautie; In a word,
The ſeeming truth which cunning times put on
To intrap the wiſeſt. Therefore thou gaudie gold,
Hard food for Midas, I will none of thee,
Nor none of thee thou pale and common drudge
'Tweene man and man: but thou, thou meager lead
Which rather threatneſt then doſt promiſe ought,
Thy paleneſſe moues me more then eloquence,
And here chooſe I, ioy be the conſequence.
Por. How all the other paſſions fleet to ayre,
As doubtfull thoughts, and rash imbrac'd deſpaire:
And ſhuddring feare, and greene-eyed iealouſie.
O loue be moderate, allay thy extaſie,
In meaſure raine thy ioy, ſcant this exceſſe,
I feele too much thy bleſſing, make it leſſe,
For feare I ſurfeit.
Baſſ. What finde I here?
Faire Portias counterfeit. What demie God
Hath come ſo neere creation? moue theſe eies?
Or whether riding on the bals of mine
Seeme they in motion? Here are ſeuer'd lips
Parted with ſugar breath, ſo ſweet a barre
Should ſunder ſuch ſweet friends: here in her haires
The Painter plaies the Spider, and hath wouen
A golden meſh t'intrap the hearts of men
Faſter then gnats in cobwebs: but her eies,
How could he ſee to doe them? having made one,
Me thinkes it ſhould haue power to ſteale both his
And leaue it ſelfe vnfurniſht: Yet looke how farre
The ſubſtance of my praiſe doth wrong this ſhadow
In vnderpriſing it, ſo farre this ſhadow
Doth limpe behinde the ſubſtance. Here's the ſcroule,
The continent, and ſummarie of my fortune.

You that chooſe not by the view
Chance as faire, and chooſe as true:
Since this fortune falls to you,
Be content, and ſeeke no new.
If you be well pleaſd with this,
And hold your fortune for your bliſſe,
Turne you where your Lady is,
And claime her with a louing kiſſe.

Baſſ. A gentle ſcroule: Faire Lady, by your leaue,
I come by note to giue, and to receiue,
Like one of two contending in a prize
That thinks he hath done well in peoples eies:
Hearing applauſe and vniuerſall ſhout,
Giddie in ſpirit, ſtill gazing in a doubt
Whether thoſe peales of praiſe be his or no.

So

Lady ſtand I even ſo, whether what I ſee be true,
ſ'd, ſign'd, ratified by you.
ſee my Lord Baſſiano where I ſtand, though for my ſelfe alone
e ambitious in my wiſh, elſe much better, yet for you,
bled twenty times my ſelfe,
mes more faire, ten thouſand times
e onely to ſtand high in your account, nes, beauties, liuings, friends,
re: but the full ſumme of me
ung: which to terme in groſſe, ed girle, vnſchool'd, vnpractiz'd,
, ſhe is not yet ſo old
arne: happier then this,
d ſo dull but ſhe can learne;
, is that her gentle ſpirit lfe to yours to be directed, ord, her Gouernour, her King.
what is mine, to you and yours reed. But now I was the Lord anſion, maiſter of my ſeruants,
y ſelfe: and even now, but now,
eſe ſeruants, and this ſame my ſelfe
Lord, I giue them with this ring, you part from, looſe, or giue away,
the ruine of your loue,
nuage to exclaime on you dam, you haue bereft me of all words, ud ſpeakes to you in my vaines,
ach confuſion in my powers,
oration fairely ſpoke
Prince, there doth appeare ez'ing pleaſed multitude,
ſomething being blent together,
ilde of nothing, ſaue of ioy ot expreſſe: but when this ring ſinger, then parts life from hence,
d to ſay Baſſanio's dead.
ord and Lady, it is now our time
ed by and ſeeme our wiſhes proſper, oy, good ioy my Lord and Lady.
nd Baſſanio, and my gentle Lady,
the ioy that you can wiſh:
you can wiſh none from me:
or Honours meane to ſolemnize of your faith: I doe beſeech you me I may be married too.
hall my heart, ſo thou canſt get a wife.
ike your Lordſhip, you gaue me one.
ord can looke as ſwift as yours:
miſtreſs, I beheld the maid:
ou'd for intermiſſion,
aines to me my Lord then you;
ſtood vpon the caskets there,
ne too, as the matter falls:
eere vntill I ſwet againe,
till my very rough was dry of loue, at laſt, if promiſe laſt,
e of this faire one heere ue: prouided that your fortune miſtreſſe.
e true Nerriſſa?
am it is ſo, ſo you ſtand pleas'd withall.
doe you Gratiano meane good faith?

Gra. Yes faith my Lord.

Baſſ. Our feaſt ſhall be much honored in your marriage.

Gra. Weele play with them the firſt boy for a thouſand ducats.

Ner. What and ſtake downe?

Gra. No, we ſhal nere win at that ſport, and ſtake downe.
But who comes heere? Lorenzo and his Infidell?
What and my old Venetian friend Salerio?

Enter Lorenzo, Ieſſica, and Salerio.

Baſſ. Lorenzo and Salerio, welcome hether,
If that the youth of my new intereſt heere
Haue power to bid you welcome: by your leaue
I bid my verie friends and Countrimen
Sweet Portia welcome.

Por. So do I my Lord, they are intirely welcome.

Lor. I thanke your honer; for my part my Lord,
My purpoſe was not to haue ſeene you heere,
But meeting with Salerio by the way,
He did intreate me paſt all ſaying nay
To come with him along.

Sal. I did my Lord,
And I haue reaſon for it, Signior Antonio
Commends him to you.

Baſſ. Ere I ope his Letter
I pray you tell me how my good friend doth.

Sal. Not ſicke my Lord, vnleſſe it be in minde,
Nor well, vnleſſe in minde: his Letter there
Will ſhew you his eſtate.

Opens the Letter.

Gra. Nerriſſa, cheere yond ſtranger, bid her welcom.
Your hand Salerio, what's the newes from Venice?
How doth that royal Merchant good Antonio,
I know he will be glad of our ſucceſſe,
We are the Iaſons, we haue won the fleece.

Sal. I would you had won the fleece that he hath loſt.

Por. There are ſome ſhrewd contents in yond ſame Paper,
That ſteales the colour from Baſſanios cheeke,
Some deere friend dead, elſe nothing in the world
Could turne ſo much the conſtitution
Of any conſtant man. What, worſe and worſe?
With leaue Baſſanio I am halfe your ſelfe,
And I muſt freely haue the halfe of any thing
That this ſame paper brings you.

Baſſ. O ſweet Portia,
Heere are a few of the vnpleaſant'ſt words
That euer blotted paper. Gentle Ladie
When I did firſt impart my loue to you,
I freely told you all the wealth I had
Ran in my vaines: I was a Gentleman,
And then I told you true: and yet deere Ladie,
Rating my ſelfe at nothing, you ſhall ſee
How much I was a Braggart, when I told you
My ſtate was nothing, I ſhould then haue told you
That I was worſe then nothing: for indeede
I haue ingag'd my ſelfe to a deere friend,
Ingag'd my friend to his meere enemie
To feede my meanes. Heere is a Letter Ladie,
The paper as the bodie of my friend,
And euerie word in it a gaping wound
Iſſuing life blood. But is it true Salerio,

Hath

Hath all his ventures faild, what not one hit,
From Tripolis, from Mexico and England,
From Lisbon, Barbary, and India,
And not one veſſell ſcape the dreadfull touch
Of Merchant-marring rocks?
Sal. Not one my Lord.
Beſides, it ſhould appeare, that if he had
The preſent money to diſcharge the Iew,
He would not take it: neuer did I know
A creature that did beare the ſhape of man
So keene and greedy to confound a man.
He plyes the Duke at morning and at night,
And doth impeach the freedome of the ſtate
If they deny him iuſtice. Twenty Merchants,
The Duke himſelfe, and the Magnificoes
Of greateſt port haue all perſwaded with him,
But none can driue him from the enuious plea
Of forfeiture, of iuſtice, and his bond.
Ieſſ. When I was with him, I haue heard him ſweare
To Tubball and to Chus, his Countri-men,
That he would rather haue Anthonio's fleſh,
Then twenty times the value of the ſumme
That he did owe him: and I know my Lord,
If law, authoritie, and power denie not,
It will go hard with poore Anthonio.
Por. Is it your deere friend that is thus in trouble?
Baſſ. The deereſt friend to me, the kindeſt man,
The beſt condition'd, and vnwearied ſpirit
In doing curteſies: and one in whom
The ancient Romane honour more appeares
Then any that drawes breath in Italie.
Por. What ſumme owes he the Iew?
Baſſ. For me three thouſand ducats.
Por. What, no more?
Pay him ſixe thouſand, and deface the bond:
Double ſixe thouſand, and then treble that,
Before a friend of this deſcription
Shall loſe a haire through Baſſanio's fault.
Firſt go with me to Church, and call me wife,
And then away to Venice to your friend:
For neuer ſhall you lie by Portias ſide
With an vnquiet ſoule. You ſhall haue gold
To pay the petty debt twenty times ouer.
When it is payd, bring your true friend along,
My maid Nerriſſa, and my ſelfe meane time
Will liue as maids and widdowes; come away,
For you ſhall hence vpon your wedding day:
Bid your friends welcome, ſhow a merry cheere,
Since you are deere bought, I will loue you deere.
But let me heare the letter of your friend.

Sweet Baſſanio, my ſhips haue all miſcarried, my Creditors grow cruell, my eſtate is very low, my bond to the Iew is forfeit, and ſince in paying it, it is impoſſible I ſhould liue, all debts are cleerd betweene you and I, if I might ſee you at my death: notwithſtanding, uſe your pleaſure, if your loue doe not perſwade you to come, let not my letter.

Por. O loue! diſpach all buſines and be gone.
Baſſ. Since I haue your good leaue to goe away,
I will make haſt; but till I come againe,
No bed ſhall ere be guilty of my ſtay,
Nor reſt be interpoſer twixt vs twaine. Exeunt.

Enter the Iew, and Solanio, and Anthonio, and the Iaylor.

Iew. Iaylor, looke to him, tell not me of mercy,
This is the foole that lends out money gratis.
Iaylor, looke to him.
Ant. Heare me yet good Shylok.
Iew. Ile haue my bond, ſpeake not againſt my bond,
I haue ſworne an oath that I will haue my bond:
Thou call'dſt me dog before thou hadſt a cauſe,
But ſince I am a dog, beware my phangs,
The Duke ſhall grant me iuſtice, I do wonder Thou naughty Iaylor, that thou art ſo fond
To come abroad with him at his requeſt.
Ant. I pray thee heare me ſpeake.
Iew. Ile haue my bond, I will not heare thee ſpeake.
Ile haue my bond, and therefore ſpeake no more.
Ile not be made a ſoft and dull ey'd foole,
To ſhake the head, relent, and ſigh, and yeeld
To Chriſtian interceſſors: follow not,
Ile haue no ſpeaking, I will haue my bond Exit Iew
Sol. It is the moſt impenetrable curre
That euer kept with men.
Ant. Let him alone,
Ile follow him no more with bootleſſe prayers:
He ſeekes my life, his reaſon well I know;
I oft deliuer'd from his forfeitures
Many that haue at times made moane to me,
Therefore he hates me.
Sol. I am ſure the Duke will neuer grant
this forfeiture to hold.
An. The Duke cannot deny the courſe of law
For the commoditie that ſtrangers haue
With vs in Venice, if it be denied,
Will much impeach the iuſtice of the State,
Since that the trade and profit of the citty
Conſiſteth of all Nations. Therefore goe,
Theſe greefes and loſſes haue ſo bated mee,
That I ſhall hardly ſpare a pound of fleſh
To morrow, to my bloudy Creditor.
Well Iaylor, on, pray God Baſſanio come
To ſee me pay his debt, and then I care not. Exeunt.

Enter Portia, Nerriſſa, Lorenzo, Ieſſica, and a man of Portias.

Lor. Madam, although I ſpeake it in your preſence,
You haue a noble and a true conceit
Of god-like amity, which appeares moſt ſtrongly
In bearing thus the abſence of your Lord.
But if you knew to whom you ſhew this honour,
How true a Gentleman you ſend releeſe,
How deere a louer of my Lord your husband,
I know you would be prouder of the worke
Then cuſtomary bounty can enforce you.
Por. I neuer did repent for doing good,
Nor ſhall not now: for in companions
That do conuerſe and waſte the time together,
Whoſe ſoules doe beare an egal yoke of loue,
There muſt be needs a like proportion
Of lyniaments, of manners, and of ſpirit;
Which makes me thinke that this Anthonio
Being the boſome louer of my Lord,
Muſt needs be like my Lord. If it be ſo,
How little is the coſt I haue beſtowed
In purchaſing the ſemblance of my ſoule:
From out the ſtate of hellish cruelty,
This comes too neere the praiſing of my ſelfe,
Therefore no more of it: heere other things
Lorenzo I commit into your hands.

The

bandry and mannage of my house,
y Lords returne; for mine owne part ward heauen breath'd a secret vow,
n prayer and contemplation,
tended by Nerrissa heere, er husband and my Lords returne:
a monastery too miles off,
re we will abide. I doe desire you deme this imposition, ch my loue and some necessity
yes vpon you.
f. Madame, with all my heart,
bey you in all faire commands.
My people doe already know my minde, ll acknowledge you and Iessica of Lord Bassanio and my selfe.
ou well till we shall meete againe.
Faire thoughts & happy houres attend on you.
I wish your Ladiship all hearts content.
I thanke you for your wish, and am well pleas'd
n it backe on you: fare you well Iessica. Exeunt.
whatsoere, as I haue euer found thee honest true,
e finde thee still: take this same letter,
thou all the indeauor of a man,
d to Mantua, see thou render this
y cosins hand, Doctor Bellario, ake what notes and garments he doth giue thee,
hem I pray thee with imagin'd speed
e Traiect, to the common Ferrie
trades to Venice; waste no time in words, there gone. I shall be there before thee.
f. Madam, I goe with all conuenient speed.
Come on Nerrissa, I haue worke in hand ou yet know not of; we'll see our husbands hey thinke of vs?
rissa. Shall they see vs?
n. They shall Nerrissa: but in such a habit, ey shall thinke we are accomplished hat we lacke; ile hold thee any wager
we are both accoutered like yong men, e the prettier fellow of the two,
eare my dagger with the braver grace,
eake betweene the change of man and boy,
reede voyce, and turne two mincing steps manly stride; and speake of frayes ine bragging youths: and tell quaint lyes nourable Ladies sought my loue,
I denying, they fell sicke and died.
not doe withall: then Ile repent,
ith for all that, that I had not kil'd them;
emie of these puny lies Ile tell,
en shall sweare I haue discontinued schoole
twelue moneth: I haue within my minde fand raw tricks of these bragging Iacks,
I will practise.
rissa. Why, shall wee turne to men?
n. Fie, what a questions that?
weet neece a lewd interpreter:
n. Ile tell thee all my whole deuice
I am in my coach, which stayes for vs
Parke gate; and therefore haste away, must measure twentie miles to day. Exeunt.

Enter Clowne and Iessica.

n. Yes truly; for looke you, the sinner of the Father are to be laid vpon the children, therefore I promise you, I feare you, I was alwaies plaine with you, and so now I speake my agitation of the matter: therfore be of good cheere, for truly I thinke you are damn'd, there is but one hope in it that can doe you any good, and that is but a kinde of bastard hope neither.

Iessica. And what hope is that I pray thee?

Clow. Marrie you may partlie hope that your father got you not, that you are not the Iewes daughter.

Ies. That were a kinde of bastard hope indeed, so the sins of my mother should be visited vpon me.

Clow. Truly then I feare you are damned both by father and mother: thus when I shun Scilla your father, I fall into Charibdis your mother; well, you are gone both waies.

Ies. I shall be sau'd by my husband, he hath made me a Christian.

Clow. Truly the more to blame he, we were Christians enow before, e'ne as many as could well liue one by another: this making of Christians will raise the price of Hogs, if wee grow all to be porke-eaters, wee shall not shortlie haue a rasher on the coales for money.

Enter Lorenzo.

Ies. Ile tell my husband Lancelet what you say, heere he comes.

Loren. I shall grow iealous of you shortly Lancelet, if you thus get my wife into corners?

Ies. Nay, you need not feare vs Lorenzo, Lancelet and I are out, he tells me flatly there is no mercy for mee in heauen, because I am a Iewes daughter: and her saies you are no good member of the common wealth, for in conuerting Iewes to Christians, you raise the price of Porke.

Loren. I shall answere that better to the Common-wealth, than you can the getting vp of the Negroes belly: the Moore is with childe by you Lancelet?

Clow. It is much that the Moore should be more then reason: but if she be lesse then an honest woman, shee is indeed more then I tooke her for.

Loren. How euerie foole can play vpon the word. I thinke the best grace of witte will shortly turne into silence, and discourse grow commendable in none onely but Parrats: goe in sirra, bid them prepare for dinner.

Clow. That is done sir, they haue all stomachs?

Loren. Goodly Lord, what a witte-snapper are you, then bid them prepare dinner.

Clow. That is done too sir, onely couer is the word.

Loren. Will you couer than sir?

Clow. Not so sir neither, I know my dutie.

Loren. Yet more quarrelling with occasion, wilt thou shew the whole wealth of thy wit in an instant? I pray thee vnderstand a plaine man in his plaine meaning: goe to thy fellowes, bid them couer the table, serue in the meat, and we will come in to dinner.

Clow. For the table sir, it shall be seru'd in, for the meat sir, it shall bee couered, for your comming in to dinner sir, why let it be as humors and conceits shall gouerne. Exit Clowne.

Lor. O deare discretion, how his words are suted,
The foole hath planted in his memory
An Armie of good words, and I doe know
A many fooles that stand in better place,
Garnisht like him, that for a tricksie word
Defie the matter: how cheer'st thou Iessica,
And now good sweet say thy opinion,

How

How doſt thou like the Lord Baſſanio's wife?

Ieſſ. Paſt all expreſſing, it is very meete
The Lord Baſſanio liue an vpright life
For having ſuch a bleſſing in his Lady,
He findes the ioyes of heauen heere on earth,
And if on earth he doe not meane it, it
Is reaſon he ſhould neuer come to heauen?
Why, if two gods ſhould play ſome heauenly match,
And on the wager lay two earthly women,
And Portia one: there muſt be ſomething elſe
Pawnd with the other, for the poore rude world
Hath not her fellow.

Loren. Euen ſuch a husband
Haſt thou of me, as ſhe is for a wife.

Ieſſ. Nay, but aske my opinion too of that?

Lor. I will anone, firſt let vs goe to dinner?

Ieſſ. Nay, let me praiſe you while I haue a ſtomache?

Lor. No pray thee, let it ſerue for table talke,
Then how ſom ere thou ſpeakſt 'mong other things,
I ſhall digeſt it?

Ieſſ. Well, Ile ſet you forth. Exeunt

Actus Quartus.

Enter the Duke, the Magnificoes, Anthonio, Baſſanio, and Gratiano.

Duke. What, is Anthonio heere?

Ant. Ready, ſo pleaſe your grace?

Duke. I am ſorry for thee, thou art come to anſwere
A ſtonie aduerſary, an inhumane wretch,
Vncapable of pitty, voyd, and empty
From any dram of mercie.

Ant. I haue heard
Your Grace hath tane great paines to qualifie
His rigorous courſe: but ſince he ſtands obdurate,
And that no lawful meanes can carrie me
Out of his enuies reach, I do oppoſe
My patience to his fury, and am arm'd
To ſuffer with a quietneſſe of ſpirit,
The very tirranny and rage of his.

Du. Go one and cal the Iew into the Court.

Sal. He is ready at the doore, he comes my Lord.

Enter Shylocke.

Du. Make roome, and let him ſtand before our face.
Shylocke the world thinkes, and I thinke ſo to
That thou but leadeſt this faſhion of thy malice
To the laſt houre of act, and then 'tis thought
Thou'lt ſhew thy mercy and remorſe more ſtrange,
Than is thy ſtrange apparant cruelty;
And where thou now exact'ſt the penalty,
Which is a pound of this poore Merchants fleſh,
Thou wilt not onely looſe the forfeiture,
But touch'd with humane gentleneſſe and loue:
Forgiue a moytie of the principall,
Glancing an eye of pitty on his loſſes
That haue of late ſo huddled on his backe,
Enow to preſſe a royall Merchant downe;
And pluckе commiſeration of his ſtate
From braſſie boſomes, and rough hearts of flinte,
From ſtubborne Turkes and Tartars neuer trained
To offices of tender curteſie,
We all expect a gentle anſwer Iew?

Iew. I haue poſſeſt your grace of what I purpoſe,
And by our holy Sabbath haue I ſworne
To haue the due and forfeit of my bond.
If you denie it, let the danger light
Vpon your Charter, and your Cities freedome.
You'l aske me why I rather chooſe to haue
A weight of carrion fleſh, then to receiue
Three thouſand Ducats? Ile not anſwer that:
But ſay it is my humor; Is it anſwered?
What if my houſe be troubled with a Rat,
And I be pleas'd to giue ten thouſand Ducates
To haue it bain'd? What, are you anſwer'd yet?
Some men there are loue not a gaping Pigge:
Some that are mad, if they behold a Cat:
And others, when the bag-pipe ſings i'th noſe,
Cannot containe their Vrine for affection.
Maſters of paſſion ſwayes it to the moode
Of what it likes or loaths, now for your anſwer:
As there is no firme reaſon to be rendred
Why he cannot abide a gaping Pigge?
Why he a harmleſſe neceſſarie Cat?
Why he a woollen bag-pipe: but of force
Muſt yeeld to ſuch inueitable ſhame,
As to offend himſelfe being offended:
So can I giue no reaſon, nor I will not,
More then a lodg'd hate, and a certaine loathing
I beare Anthonio, that I follow thus
A looſing ſuite againſt him? Are you anſwered?

Baſſ. This is no anſwer thou vnfeeling man,
To excuſe the current of thy cruelty.

Iew. I am not bound to pleaſe thee with my anſwer.

Baſſ. Do all men kil the things they do not loue?

Iew. Hates any man the thing he would not kill?

Baſſ. Euerie offence is not a hate at firſt.

Iew. What wouldſt thou haue a Serpent ſting thee twice?

Ant. I pray you thinke you queſtion with the Iew:
You may as well go ſtand vpon the beach,
And bid the maine flood baite his vſuall height,
Or euen as well vſe queſtion with the Wolfe,
The Ewe bleate for the Lambe:
You may as well forbid the Mountaine Pines
To wagge their high tops, and to make no noiſe
When they are fretted with the guſts of heauen:
You may as well do any thing moſt hard,
As ſeeke to ſoften that, then which what harder?
His Iewiſh heart. Therefore I do beſeech you
Make no more offers, vſe no farther meanes,
But with all briefe and plaine conueniencie
Let me haue iudgement, and the Iew his will.

Baſſ. For thy three thouſand Ducates heereis ſix.

Iew. If euerie Ducat in ſixe thouſand Ducates
Were in ſixe parts, and euery part a Ducate,
I would not draw them, I would haue my bond?

Du. How ſhalt thou hope for mercie, rendring none?

Iew. What iudgement ſhall I dread doing no wrong?
You haue among you many a purchaſt ſlaue,
Which like your Aſſes, and your Dogs and Mules,
You vſe in abiect and in ſlauiſh parts,
Becauſe you bought them. Shall I ſay to you,
Let them be free, marrie them to your heires?
Why ſweate they vnder burthens? Let their beds
Be made as ſoft as yours: and let their pallats
Be ſeaſon'd with ſuch Viands: you will anſwer

The

are ours. So do I answer you.
d of flesh which I demand of him bought, 'tis mine, and I will have it.
y me; fie vpon your Law,
o force in the decrees of Venice;
judgement, answer, Shall I have it?
pon my power I may dismisse this Court,
Bellario a learned Doctor,
aue sent for to determine this,
re to day.
y Lord, here stayes without er with Letters from the Doctor,
e from Padua.
ring vs the Letters, Call the Messengers.
Good cheere Anthonio. What man, corage yet:
hall have my flesh, blood, bones, and all,
halt loose for me one drop of blood.
I am a tainted Wether of the flocke, re death, the weakest kinde of fruite
liest to the ground, and so let me;
ot better be employ'd Bassanio,
ue still, and write mine Epitaph.

Enter Nerrissa.

ame you from Padua from Bellario?
From both.
Bellario greets your Grace.
Why dost thou whet thy knife so earnestly?
o cut the forfeiture from that bankrout there.
Not on thy sole: but on thy soule harsh Iew h'll thy knife keene: but no mettall can,
he hangmans Axe beare halfe the keennesse ape envy. Can no prayers pierce thee?
No, none that thou hast wit enough to make.
) be thou damn'd, inexecrable dogge,
by life let mee be accus'd:
oost mak'st me waver in my faith;
pinion with Pythagoras,
ls of Animals infuse themselues trunkes of men. Thy currish spirit
d a Wolfe, who hang'd for humane slaughter,
n the gallowes did his fell soule fleet;
'ft thou layest in thy vnhallowed dam,
selfe in thee: For thy desires uish, bloody, flesh'd, and rauenous.
Till thou canst raile the seale from off my bond
offend'st thy Lungs to speake so loud:
by wit good youth, or it will fall
fle ruine. I stand here for Law.
his Letter from Bellario doth commend nd Learned Doctor in our Court;
he?
He attendeth here hard by r your answer, whether you'l admit him.
With all my heart. Some three or four of you him curteous conduct to this place, me the Court shall heare Bellarios Letter.

*Grace shall vnderstand, that at the receite of your
I am very sicke: but in the instant that your mesme, an learned youth, was with me a young Dome, his name is Balthasar: I acquainted him with e Controuersie, betweene the Iew and* Anthonio
Venice: he turn'd o're many Bookes together: he is with my opinion, which better'd with his owne learn-ge (the which he cannot enough commend) comes with him at my importunity, to fill vp your Graces request in my stead. I beseech you, let his lacke of years be no impediment to let him lacke a reverend estimation: for I never knew so yong a body, with so old a head. I leave him to your gracious acceptance, whose triall shall better publish his commendation.

Enter Portia for Balthazar

Duke. You heare the learn'd Bellario what he writes,
And here (I take it) is the Doctor come.
Giue me your hand: Came you from old Bellario?
Por. I did my Lord
Du. You are welcome: take your place;
Are you acquainted with the difference
That holds this present question in the Court.
Por. I am enformed throughly of the cause
Which is the Merchant here? and which the Iew?
Du. Anthonio and old Shylocke, both stand forth.
Por. Is your name Shylocke?
Iew. Shylocke is my name.
Por. Of a strange nature is the sute you follow,
Yet in such rule, that the Venetian Law
Cannot impugne you as you do proceed.
You stand within his danger, do you not?
Ant. I, so he sayes.
Por. Do you confesse the bond?
Ant. I do.
Por. Then must the Iew be mercifull.
Iew. On what compulsion must I? Tell me that.
Por The quality of mercy is not strain'd,
It droppeth as the gentle raine from heauen
Vpon the place beneath. It is twice blest,
It blesseth him that giues, and him that takes,
Tis mightiest in the mightiest, it becomes
The throned Monarch better then his Crowne.
His Scepter shewes the force of temporall power,
The attribute to awe and Maiestie,
Wherein doth sit the dread and feare of Kings:
But mercy is aboue this sceptred sway,
It is enthroned in the hearts of Kings,
It is an attribute to God himselfe;
And earthly power doth then shew likest Gods
When mercie seasons Iustice. Therefore Iew,
Though Iustice be thy plea, consider this.
That in the course of Iustice, none of vs
Should see saluation: we do pray for mercie,
And that same prayer, doth teach vs all to render
The deeds of mercie. I haue spoke thus much
To mittigate the iustice of thy plea:
Which if thou follow, this strict course of Venice
Must needes giue sentence 'gainst the Merchant there.
Shy. My deeds vpon my head, I craue the Law,
The penalrie and forfeite of my bond.
Por. Is he not able to discharge the money
Bas. Yes, here I tender it for him in the Court
Yea, twice the summe, if that will not suffice,
I will be bound to pay it ten times ore,
On forfeit of my hands, my head, my heart
If this will not suffice, it must appeare
That malice beares downe truth. And I beseech you
Wrest once the Law to your authority,
To do a great right, do a little wrong,
And curbe this cruell diuell of his will.
Por. It must not be, there is no power in Venice
Can alter a decree established:
'Twill be recorded for a President,

And

And many an error by the ſame example,
Will ruſh into the ſtate: It cannot be.
Iew. A Daniel come to iudgement, yea a Daniel.
O wiſe young Iudge, how do I honour thee.
Por. I pray you let me looke vpon the bond.
Iew. Heere 'tis moſt reuerend Doctor, heere it is.
Por. Shylocke, there's thrice thy monie offered thee.
Shy An oath, an oath, I haue an oath in heauen
Shall I lay periurie vpon my ſoule?
No not for Venice
Por. Why this bond is forfeit.
And lawfully by this the Iew may claime
A pound of fleſh, to be by him cut off
Neereſt the Merchants heart; be mercifull,
Take thrice thy money, bid me teare the bond
Iew When it is paid according to the tenure.
It doth appeare you are a worthy Iudge
you know the Law, your expoſition
Hath beene moſt ſound. I charge you by the Law,
Whereof you are a well-deſeruing pillar,
Proceede to iudgement: By my ſoule I ſweare,
There is no power in the tongue of man
To alter me: I ſtay heere on my bond.
An. Moſt heartily I do beſeech the Court
To giue the iudgement.
Por. Why then thus it is:
you muſt prepare your boſome for his knife
Iew O noble Iudge, O excellent yong man.
Por. For the intent and purpoſe of the Law
Hath full relation to the penaltie,
Which heere appeareth due vpon the bond.
Iew. 'Tis very true: O wiſe and vpright Iudge,
How much more elder art thou then thy lookes?
Por. Therefore lay bare your boſome.
Iew I, his breſt,
So ſayes the bond, doth it not noble Iudge?
Neereſt his heart, thoſe are the very words.
Por It is ſo: Are there ballance heere to weigh the fleſh?
Iew. I haue them ready
Por. Haue by ſome Surgeon Shylock on your charge
To ſtop his wounds, leaſt he ſhould bleede to death.
Iew It is not nominated in the bond?
Por. It is not ſo expreſt: but what of that?
T'were good you do ſo much for charitie.
Iew. I cannot finde it, 'tis not in the bond.
Por. Come Merchant, haue you any thing to ſay?
Ant. But little: I am arm'd and well prepar'd.
Giue me your hand Baſſanio, liue you well.
Greeue not that I am falne to this for you:
For heerein fortune ſhewes her ſelfe more kinde
Then is her cuſtome. It is ſtill her vſe
To let the wretched man out-liue his wealth,
To view with hollow eye, and wrinkled brow
An age of pouerty. From which lingring penance
Of ſuch miſerie, doth ſhe cut me off:
Commend me to your honourable Wife,
Tell her the proceſſe of Anthonio's end:
Say how I lou'd you; ſpeake me faire in death:
And when the tale is told, bid her be iudge,
Whether Baſſanio had not once a Loue:
Repent not you that you ſhall looſe your friend,
And he repents not that he payes your debt.
For if the Iew do cut but deepe enough,
Ile pay it inſtantly, with all my heart.
Baſ. Anthonio, I am married to a wife,
Which is as deare to me as life is ſelfe,
But life it ſelfe, my wife, and all the world,
Are not with me eſteem'd aboue thy life.
I would looſe all, I ſacrifice them all
Heere to this deuill, to deliuer you
Por Your wife would giue you little thanks for this
If ſhe were by to heare you make the offer.
Gra. I haue a wife whom I proteſt I loue,
I would ſhe were in heauen, ſo ſhe could
Intreat ſome power to change this currſh Iew.
Ner 'Tis well you offer it behinde her backe,
The wiſh would make elſe an vnquiet houſe. (out
Iew. Theſe be the Chriſtian husbands: I haue a daugh-
Would any of the ſtocke of Barrabas
Had beene her husband, rather then a Chriſtian.
We triſle time, I pray thee purſue ſentence
Por. A pound of that ſame marchants fleſh is thine,
The Court awards it, and the law doth giue it.
Iew Moſt rightfull Iudge.
Por. And you muſt cut this fleſh from off his breſt.
The Law allowes it, and the Court awards it.
Iew. Moſt learned Iudge, a ſentence, come prepare.
Por. Tarry a little, there is ſomething elſe,
This bond doth giue thee heere no iot of blood,
The words expreſly are a pound of fleſh:
Then take thy bond, take thou thy pound of fleſh,
But in the cutting it, if thou doſt ſhed
One drop of Chriſtian bloud, thy lands and goods
Are by the Lawes of Venice confiſcate
Vnto the ſtate of Venice.
Gra O vpright Iudge,
Marke Iew, o learned Iudge.
Shy Is that the law
Por. Thy ſelfe ſhall ſee the Act:
For as thou vrgeſt iuſtice, be aſſur'd
Thou ſhalt haue iuſtice more then thou deſireſt.
Gra O learned Iudge, mark Iew, a learned Iudge.
Iew. I take this offer then, pay the bond thrice,
And let the Chriſtian goe
Baſſ. Heere is the money.
Por. Soft, the Iew ſhall haue all iuſtice, ſoft, no haſte,
He ſhall haue nothing but the penalty.
Gra. O Iew, an vpright Iudge, a learned Iudge.
Por. Therefore prepare thee to cut off the fleſh,
Shed thou no blood, nor cut thou leſſe nor more
But iuſt a pound of fleſh: if thou tak'ſt more
Or leſſe then a iuſt pound, be it ſo much
As makes it light or heauy in the ſubſtance,
Or the deuiſion of the twentieth part
Of one poore ſcruple, nay if the ſcale doe turne
But in the eſtimation of a hayre,
Thou dieſt, and all thy goods are confiſcate.
Gra A ſecond Daniel, a Daniel Iew,
Now infidell I haue thee on the hip.
Por. Why doth the Iew pauſe, take thy forfeiture.
Shy. Giue me my principall, and let me goe.
Baſſ. I haue it ready for thee, heere it is.
Por. He hath refus'd it in the open Court,
He ſhall haue merely iuſtice and his bond.
Gra. A Daniel ſtill ſay I, a ſecond Daniel,
I thanke thee Iew for teaching me that word.
Shy Shall I not haue merely my principall?
Por. Thou ſhalt haue nothing but the forfeiture,
To be taken ſo at thy perill Iew.
Shy. Why then the Deuill giue him good of it
Ile ſtay no longer queſtion.

Por. Tarry

Iury Iew,
hath yet another hold on you.
ed in the Lawes of Venice,
ouer'd against an Alien,
rect, or indirect attempts
the life of any Citizen,
gainst the which he doth contriue,
e one halfe his goods, the other halfe
the priuie coffer of the State, offenders life lies in the mercy
ke onely, gainst all other voice.
predicament I fay thou ſtandſt:
eares by manifeſt proceeding,
reſtly, and directly to:
contriu'd against the very life
fendant: and thou haſt incur'd es formerly by me rehearſt.
herefore, and beg mercy of the Duke.
g that thou maiſt haue leaue to hang thy ſelfe,
hy wealth being forfeit to the ſtate,
not left the value of a cord,
e thou muſt be hang'd at the ſtates charge.
That thou ſhalt ſee the difference of our ſpirit, thee thy life before thou aske it:
thy wealth, it is Anthonio's,
e he ſe comes to the generall ſtate,
mblenesſe may driue vnto a fine.
I for the ſtate, not for Anthonio.
Nay, take my life and all, pardon not that,
my houſe, when you do take the prop
ſuſtaine my houſe: you take my life
doe take the meanes whereby I liue.
What mercy can you render him Anthonio?
A halter gratis, nothing elſe for Gods ſake
So pleaſe my Lord the Duke, and all the Court
he fine for one halfe of his goods, ent: ſo he will let me haue halfe in vſe, to render it death, vnto the Gentleman
ly ſtole his daughter.
ngs prouided more, that for this fauour
only become a Chriſtian:
re, that he doe record a gift
the Court of all he dies poſſeſt ſonne Lorenzo, and his daughter.
He ſhall doe this, or elſe I do recant
don that I late pronounced heere.
Art thou contented Iew? what doſt thou ſay?
I am content.
Clarke, draw a deed of gift.
I pray you giue me leaue to go from hence,
well, ſend the deed after me,
ll ſigne it.
Get thee gone, but doe it.
In chriſtning thou ſhalt haue two godfathers, ou iudge, thou ſhouldſt haue had ten more,
g that to the gallowes, not to the font. Exit.
Sir I intreat you with me home to dinner.
I humbly doe deſire your Grace of pardon,
way this night toward Padua,
meere I preſently ſet forth.
I am ſorry that your leyſure ſerues you not:
gratifie this gentleman,
minde you are much bound to him.
Exit Duke and his traine.
Moſt worthy gentleman, I and my friend
Haue by your wiſedome beene this day acquitted
Of grieuous penalties, in lieu whereof,
Three thouſand Ducats due vnto the Iew
We freely cope your courteous paines withall.
An. And ſtand indebted ouer and aboue
In loue and ſeruice to you euermore.
Por. He is well paid that is well ſatisfied,
And I deliuering you, am ſatisfied,
And therein doe account my ſelfe well paid,
My minde was neuer yet more mercinarie.
I pray you know me when we meete againe,
I wish you well, and ſo I take my leaue.
Baſſ. Deare ſir, of force I muſt attempt you further,
Take ſome remembrance of vs as a tribute,
Not as fee: grant me two things, I pray you
Not to denie me, and to pardon me.
Por. You preſſe mee ſtreet, and therefore I will yeeld,
Giue me your gloues, Ile weare them for your ſake,
And for your loue Ile take this ring from you,
Doe not draw backe your hand, Ile take no more,
And you in loue ſhall not deny me this?
Baſſ. This ring good ſir, alas it is a trifle,
I will not ſhame my ſelfe to giue you this.
Por. I wil haue nothing elſe but onely this,
And now methinkes I haue a minde to it.
Baſſ There's more depends on this then on the valew,
The deereſt ring in Venice will I giue you,
And finde it out by proclamation,
Onely for this I pray you pardon me.
Por. I ſee ſir you are liberall in offers,
You taught me firſt to beg, and now me thinkes
You teach me how a beggar ſhould be anſwer'd,
Baſſ. Good ſir, this ring was giuen me by my wife,
And when ſhe put it on, ſhe made me vow
That I ſhould neither ſell, nor giue, nor loſe it.
Por. That cauſe ſerues many men to ſaue their gifts,
And if your wife be not a mad woman,
And know how well I haue deſeru'd this ring,
Shee would not hold out enemy for euer
For giuing it to me: well, peace be with you. Exeunt.
Ant. My L. Baſſanio, let him haue the ring,
Let his deſeruings and my loue withall
Be valued againſt your wiues commandement.
Baſſ. Goe Gratiano, run and ouer-take him,
Giue him the ring, and bring him if thou canſt
Vnto Anthonies houſe, away, make haſte. Exit Grati.
Come, you and I will thither preſently,
And in the morning early will we both Flie toward Belmont, come Anthonio. Exeunt.

Enter Portia and Nerriſſa.

Por. Enquire the Iewes houſe out, giue him this deed,
And let him ſigne it, we'll away to night,
And be a day before our husbands home:
This deed will be well welcome to Lorenzo.
Enter Gratiano.
Gra. Faire ſir, you are well ore-taen:
My L. Baſſanio vpon more aduice,
Hath ſent you heere this ring, and doth intreat
Your company at dinner.
Por. That cannot be;
His ring I doe accept moſt thankfully
And ſo I pray you tell him: furthermore,
I pray you ſhew my youth old Shylockes houſe.
Gra. That will I doe.
Ner. Sir, I would ſpeake with you:

Ile see if I can get my husbands ring
Which I did make him sweare to keepe for euer.
Por. Thou maist I warrant, we shal haue old swearing
That they did giue the rings away to men;
But weele out-face them, and out-sweare them too:
Away, make haste, thou know st where I will tarry.
Ner. Come good sir, will you shew me to this house.
Exeunt.

Actus Quintus.

Enter Lorenzo and Iessica.

Lor. The moone shines bright: In such a night as this,
When the sweet winde did gently kisse the trees,
And they did make no noyse, in such a night
Troylus me thinkes mounted the Troian walls,
And sigh'd his soule toward the Grecian tents
Where Cressed lay that night.
Ies. In such a night
Did Thisbie fearefully ore-trip the dewe,
And saw the Lyons shadow ere himselfe,
And ranne dismayed away.
Loren. In such a night
Stood Dido with a Willow in her hand
Vpon the wilde sea bankes, and waft her Loue
To come againe to Carthage
Ies. In such a night
Medea gathered the inchanted hearbs
That did renew old Eson.
Loren. In such a night
Did Iessica steale from the wealthy Iewe,
And with an Vnthrift Loue did runne from Venice,
As farre as Belmont.
Ies. In such a night
Did young Lorenzo sweare he lou'd her well,
Stealing her soule with many vowes of faith
And nere a true one.
Loren. In such a night
Did pretty Iessica (like a little shrow)
Slander her Loue, and he forgaue it her.
Ies. I would out-night you did no body come:
But harke, I heare the footing of a man.

Enter Messenger.

Lor. Who comes so fast in silence of the night?
Mes. A friend. (friend?
Loren. A friend, what friend? your name I pray you
Mes. Stephano is my name, and I bring word
My Mistresse will before the breake of day
Be heere at Belmont, she doth stray about
By holy crosses where she kneeles and prayes
For happy wedlocke houres.
Loren. Who comes with her?
Mes. None but a holy Hermit and her maid:
I pray you is my Master yet return'd?
Loren. He is not, nor we haue not heard from him,
But goe we in I pray thee Iessica,
And ceremoniously let vs prepare
Some welcome for the Mistresse of the house,

Enter Clowne.

Clo. Sola, sola: wo ha ho, sola, sola.

Loren. Who calls?
Clo. Sola, did you see M. Lorenzo, & M. Lorenzo sola
Lor. Leaue hollowing man, heere. (sola
Clo. Sola, where, where?
Lor. Heere?
Clo. Tel him ther's a Post come from my Master, with his horne full of good newes, my Master will be here ere morning sweet soule.
Loren. Let's in, and there expect their comming.
And yet no matter: why should we goe in?
My friend Stephen, signifie pray you
Within the house, your Mistresse is at hand,
And bring your musique foorth into the ayre.
How sweet the moone-light sleepes vpon this banke,
Heere will we sit, and let the sounds of musicke
Creepe in our eares soft stilnes, and the night
Become the rutches of sweet harmonie:
Sit Iessica, looke how the floore of heauen
Is thicke inlayed with patterns of bright gold,
There's not the smallest orbe which thou behold'st
But in his motion like an Angell sings,
Still quiring to the young eyed Cherubins;
Such harmonie is in immortall soules,
But whilst this muddy vesture of decay
Doth grossly close in it, we cannot heare it:
Come hoe, and wake Diana with a hymne,
With sweetest touches pearce your Mistresse eare,
And draw her home with musicke.
Iessi. I am never merry when I heare sweet musique
Play musicke.
Lor. The reason is, your spirits are attentiue:
For doe but note a wilde and wanton heard
Or race of youthful and vnhandled colts,
Fetching mad bounds, bellowing and neighing loud,
Which is the hot condition of their blood,
If they but heare perchance a trumpet sound,
Or any ayre of musicke touch their eares,
You shall perceiue them make a mutuall stand,
Their sauage eyes turn'd to a modest gaze,
By the sweet power of musicke: therefore the Poet
Did faine that Orpheus drew trees, stones, and floods.
Since naught so stockish, hard, and full of rage,
But musicke for time doth change his nature,
The man that hath no musicke in himselfe,
Nor is not moued with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoyles,
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections darke as Erebus.
Let no such man be trusted: marke the musicke

Enter Portia and Nerrissa

Por. That light we see is burning in my hall:
How farre that little candell throwes his beames,
So shines a good deed in a naughty world. (can
Ner. When the moone shone we did not see the
Por. So doth the greater glory dim the lesse,
A substitute shines brightly as a King
Vntill a King be by, and then his state
Empties it selfe, as doth an inland brooke
Into the maine of waters: musique, harke. Musicke
Ner. It is your musicke Madame of the house
Por Nothing is good I see without respect,
Methinkes it sounds much sweeter then by day?
Ner. Silence bestowes that vertue on it Madam
Por. The Crow doth sing as sweetly as the larke
When

ert I attended: and I thinke
ngale if she should sing by day
Goose is cackling, would be thought Musitian then the Wren things by season, season'd are ht praise, and true perfection:
the Moone sleepes with Endimion,
not be awak'd
Musicke ceases.
at is the voice,
ch deceiu'd of Portia.
knowes me as the blinde man knowes the
the bad voice?
ere Lady welcome home:
haue bene praying for our health welfare
d we hope the better for our words, turn'd?
dam, they are not yet:
come a Messenger before their comming.
in Nerrissa.
to my seruants, that they take all of our being absent hence,
Iessica not you.
A Tucket sounds.
ur husband is at hand, I heare his Trumpet,
tell-tales Madam, feare you not.
a night me thinkes is but the daylight sicke,
little paler, 'tis a day,
day is, when the Sun is hid.

Bassanio, Antonio, Gratiano, and their Followers.

e should hold day with the Antipodes,
d walke in absence of the sunne.
me giue light, but let me not be light,
wise doth make a heauie husband,
e Bassanio so for me,
rt all: you are welcome home my Lord.
make you Madam, giue welcom to my friend
nan, this is Anthonio, am so infinitely bound.
u should in all sence be much bound to him,
e he was much bound for you.
o more then I am wel acquitted of.
you are verie welcome to our house:
tare in other waies then words,
scant this breathing curtesie.
yonder Moone I sweare you do me wrong,
ue it to the Iudges Clearke, were gelt that had it for my part,
o take it Loue so much at hart.
quarrel hoe already, what's the matter?
bout a hoope of Gold, a paltry Ring
d giue me, whose Posie was vorld like Cutlers Poetry
e, Loue me, and leaue me not.
hat talke you of the Posie or the valew:
to me when I did giue it you,
ould weare it til the houre of death,
should lye with you in your graue,
for me, yet for your vehement oathes,
haue beene respective and haue kept it.
dges Clearke: but wel I know
a wil nere weare haire on's face that had it.

Gra. He will, and if he liue to be a man.
Nerrissa. I, if a woman liue to be a man.
Gra. Now by this hand I gaue it to a youth,
A kinde of boy, a little scrubbed boy,
No higher then thy selfe, the Iudges Clearke,
A prating boy that begg'd it as a Fee,
I could not for my heart deny it him.
Por. You were too blame, I must be plaine with you
To part so slightly with your wiues first gift,
A thing stucke on with oathes vpon your finger,
And so riueted with faith vnto your flesh.
I gaue my Loue a Ring, and made him sweare
Neuer to part with it, and here he stands:
I dare be sworne for him, he would not leaue it,
Nor plucke it from his finger, for the wealth
That the world masters. Now in faith Gratiano,
You giue your wife too vnkinde a cause of greefe,
And 'twere to me I should be mad at it.
Bass. Why I were best to cut my left hand off,
And sweare I lost the Ring defending it.
Gra. My Lord Bassanio gaue his Ring away
Vnto the Iudge that begg'd it, and indeede
Deseru'd it too: and then the Boy his Clearke
That tooke some paines in writing, he begg'd mine,
And neyther man nor master would take ought
But the two Rings.
Por. What Ring gaue you my Lord?
Not that I hope which you receiu'd of me.
Bass. If I could adde a lie vnto a fault,
I would deny it: but you see my finger
Hath not the Ring vpon it, it is gone.
Por. Euen so voide is your false heart of truth.
By heauen I wil nere come in your bed
Vntil I see the Ring.
Ner. Nor I in yours, til I againe see mine.
Bass. Sweet Portia,
If you did know to whom I gaue the Ring,
If you did know for whom I gaue the Ring,
And would conceiue for what I gaue the Ring,
And how vnwillingly I left the Ring,
When nought would be accepted but the Ring,
You would abate the strength of your displeasure?
Por. If you had knowne the vertue of the Ring,
Or halfe her worthinesse that gaue the Ring,
Or your owne honour to containe the Ring,
You would not then haue parted with the Ring:
What man is there so much vnreasonable,
If you had pleas'd to haue defended it
With any termes of Zeale: wanted the modestie
To vrge the thing held as a ceremonie:
Nerrissa teaches me what to beleeue,
Ile die for't, but some Woman had the Ring?
Bass. No by mine honor Madam, by my soule
No Woman had it, but a ciuill Doctor,
Which did refuse three thousand Ducates of me,
And beg'd the Ring; the which I did denie him,
And suffer'd him to go displeas'd away:
Euen he that had held vp the verie life
Of my deere friend. What should I say sweete Lady?
I was inforc'd to send it after him,
I was beset with shame and curtesie,
My honor would not let ingratitude
So much besmeare it. Pardon me good Lady,
And by these blessed Candles of the night,
Had you bene there, I thinke you would haue beg'd
The Ring of me, to giue the worthie Doctor?

Por. Let not that Doctor ere come neere my house,
Since he hath got the iewell that I loued,
And that which you did sweare to keepe for me,
I will become as liberall as you,
Ile not deny him any thing I haue,
No, not my body, nor my husbands bed:
Know him I shall, I am well sure of it.
Lie not a night from home. Watch me like Argos,
If you doe not, if I be left alone,
Now by mine honour which is yet mine owne,
Ile haue the Doctor for my bedfellow.

Nerrissa. And I his Clarke: therefore be well aduis'd
How you doe leaue me to mine owne protection.

Gra. Well, doe you so: let not me take him then,
For if I doe, ile mar the yong Clarks pen.

Ant. I am th'vnhappy subiect of these quarrels.

Por. Sir, grieue not you,
You are welcome notwithstanding.

Bass. Portia, forgiue me this enforced wrong,
And in the hearing of these many friends
I sweare to thee, euen by thine owne faire eyes
Wherein I see my selfe

Por. Marke you but that?
In both my eyes he doubly sees himselfe:
In each eye one, sweare by your double selfe,
And there's an oath of credit

Bass. Nay, but heare me.
Pardon this fault, and by my soule I sweare
I neuer more will breake an oath with thee.

Anth. I once did lend my bodie for thy wealth,
Which but for him that had your husbands ring
Had quite miscarried. I dare be bound againe,
My soule vpon the forfeit, that your Lord
Will neuer more breake faith aduisedlie

Por. Then you shall be his suretie: giue him this,
And bid him keepe it better than the other.

Ant. Heere Lord Bassanio, sweare to keep this ring.

Bass. By heauen it is the same I gaue the Doctor

Por. I had it of him: pardon Bassanio,
For by this ring the Doctor lay with me.

Ner. And pardon me my gentle Gratiano,
For that same scrubbed boy the Doctors Clarke
In lieu of this, last night did lye with me

Gra. Why this is like the mending of high waies
In Sommer, where the waies are faire enough.
What, are we Cuckolds ere we haue deseru'd it.

Por. Speake not so grossely, you are all amaz'd:
Heere is a letter, reade it at your leysure,
It comes from Padua from Bellario,
There you shall finde that Portia was the Doctor,
Nerrissa there her Clarke. Lorenzo heere
Shall witnesse I set forth as soone as you,
And but ev'n now return'd: I haue not yet
Entred my house. Antonio you are welcome,
And I haue better newes in store for you
Then you expect: vnseale this letter soone,
There you shall finde three of your Argosies
Are richly come to harbour suddainlie.
You shall not know by what strange accident
I chanced on this letter.

Anth. I am dumbe.

Bass. Were you the Doctor, and I knew you not?

Gra. Were you the Clark that is to make me cuckold.

Ner. I, but the Clark that neuer meanes to doe it,
Vnlesse he liue vntill he be a man

Bass. (Sweet Doctor) you shall be my bedfellow.
When I am absent, then lie with my wife.

Ant. (Sweet Ladie) you haue giuen me life & liuing;
For heere I reade for certaine that my Ships
Are safelie come to Rode.

Por. How now Lorenzo?
My Clarke hath some good comforts too for you

Ner. I, and Ile giue them him without a fee
There doe I giue to you and Iessica
From the rich Iewe, a speciall deed of gift
After his death, of all he dies possest'd of.

Lor. Faire Ladies you drop Manna in the way
Of starued people.

Por. It is almost morning,
And yet I am sure you are not satisfied
Of these euents at full. Let vs goe in,
And charge vs there vpon inter'gatories,
And we will answer all things faithfully.

Gra. Let it be so, the first interrogatory
That my Nerrissa shall be sworne on, is,
Whether till the next night she had rather stay,
Or goe to bed, now being two houres to day.
But were the day come, I should wish it darke,
Till I were couching with the Doctors Clarke.
Well, while I liue, Ile feare no other thing
So sore, as keeping safe Nerrissa ring.

Exeunt.

FINIS.

As you Like it.

Actus primus. Scœna Prima.

Enter Orlando and Adam.

Orlando.

AS I remember Adam, it was vpon this fashion bequeathed me by will, but poore a thousand Crownes, and as thou saist, charged my brother on his blessing to breed mee well: and there begins my sadnesse: My brother Iaques he keepes at schoole, and reports speakes goldenly of his profit: for my part, he keepes me rustically at home, or (to speak more properly) staies me heere at home vnkept: for call you that keeping for a gentleman of my birth, that differs not from the stalling of an Oxe? his horses are bred better, for besides that they are faire with their feeding, they are taught their manage, and to that end Riders dearely hir'd: but I (his brother) gaine nothing vnder him but growth, for the which his Animals on his dunghils are as much bound to him as I: besides this nothing that he so plentifully giues me, the something that nature gaue mee, his countenance seemes to take from me: he lets mee feede with his Hinds, barres mee the place of a brother, and as much as in him lies, mines my gentility with my education. This is it Adam that grieues me, and the spirit of my Father, which I thinke is within mee, begins to mutinie against this seruitude. I will no longer endure it, though yet I know no wise remedy how to auoid it.

Enter Oliuer.

Adam. Yonder comes my Master, your brother.

Orlan. Go apart Adam, and thou shalt heare how he will shake me vp.

Oli. Now Sir, what make you heere?

Orl. Nothing: I am not taught to make any thing.

Oli. What marr you then sir?

Orl. Marry sir, I am helping you to mar that which God made, a poore vnworthy brother of yours with idlenesse.

Oliuer. Marry sir be better employed, and be naught awhile.

Orlan. Shall I keepe your hogs, and eat huskes with them? what prodigall portion haue I spent, that I should come to such penury?

Oli. Know you where you are sir?

Orl. O sir, very well: heere in your Orchard.

Oli. Know you before whom sir?

Orl. I, better then him I am before knowes mee: I know you are my eldest brother, and in the gentle condition of blood you should so know me: the courtesie of nations allowes you my better, in that you are the first borne, but the same tradition takes not away my blood, were there twenty brothers betwixt vs: I haue as much of my father in mee, as you, albeit I confesse your coming before me is neerer to his reuerence.

Oli. What Boy. (this.

Orl. Come, come elder brother, you are too young in

Oli. Wilt thou lay hands on me villaine?

Orl. I am no villaine: I am the youngest sonne of Sir Rowland de Boys, he was my father, and he is thrice a villaine that saies such a father begot villaines: were thou not my brother, I would not take this hand from thy throat, till this other had pull'd out thy tongue for saying so, thou hast rail'd on thy selfe.

Adam. Sweet Masters bee patient, for your Fathers remembrance, be at accord.

Oli. Let me goe I say.

Orl. I will not till I please: you shall heare mee: my father charg'd you in his will to giue me good education: you haue train'd me like a peazant, obscuring and hiding from me all gentleman-like qualities: the spirit of my father growes strong in mee, and I will no longer endure it: therefore allow me such exercises as may become a gentleman, or giue mee the poore allottery my father left me by testament, with that I will goe buy my fortunes.

Oli. And what wilt thou do? beg when that is spent? Well sir, get you in. I will not long be troubled with you: you shall haue some part of your will, I pray you leaue me.

Orl. I will no further offend you, then becomes mee for my good.

Oli. Get you with him, you olde dogge

Adam. Is old dogge my reward: most true, I haue lost my teeth in your seruice: God be with my olde master, he would not haue spoke such a word. Ex. Orl. Ad.

Oli. Is it euen so, begin you to grow vpon me? I will physicke your rankenesse, and yet giue no thousand crownes neyther: holla Dennis.

Enter Dennis.

Den. Calls your worship?

Oli. Was not Charles the Dukes Wrastler heere to speake with me?

Den. So please you, he is heere at the doore, and importunes accesse to you.

Oli. Call him in: 'twill be a good way: and to morrow the wrastling is.

Enter Charles.

Cha. Good morrow to your worship.

Oli. Good Mounsier Charles: what's the new newes at the new Court?

Charles. There's no newes at the Court Sir, but the olde newes: that is, the old Duke is banished by his younger brother the new Duke, and three or foure louing

Lords, haue put themselues into voluntary exile with him, whose lands and reuenues enrich the new Duke, therefore he giues them good leaue to wander

Oli. Can you tell if Rosalind the Dukes daughter bee banished with her Father?

Cha. O no; for the Dukes daughter her Cosen so loues her, being euer from their Cradles bred together, that hee would haue followed her exile, or haue died to stay behind her; she is at the Court, and no lesse beloued of her Vncle, then his owne daughter, and neuer two Ladies loued as they doe.

Oli. Where will the old Duke liue?

Cha. They say hee is already in the Forrest of Arden, and a many merry men with him; and there they liue like the old Robin Hood of England: they say many yong Gentlemen flocke to him every day, and fleet the time carelesly as they did in the golden world.

Oli. What, you wrastle to morrow before the new Duke.

Cha. Marry doe I sir: and I came to acquaint you with a matter: I am giuen sir secretly to vnderstand, that your yonger brother Orlando hath a disposition to come in disguis'd against mee to try a fall: to morrow sir I wrastle for my credit, and hee that escapes me without some broken limbe, shall acquit him well: your brother is but young and tender, and for your loue I would bee loth to foyle him, as I must for my owne honour if hee come in: therefore out of my loue to you, I came hither to acquaint you withall, that either you might stay him from his intendment, or brooke such disgrace well as he shall runne into, in that it is a thing of his owne search, and altogether against my will.

Oli. Charles, I thanke thee for thy loue to me, which thou shalt finde I will most kindly requite: I had my selfe notice of my Brothers purpose herein, and haue by vnder-hand meanes laboured to dissuade him from it; but he is resolute. Ile tell thee Charles, it is the stubbornest yong fellow of France, full of ambition, an enuious emulator of euery mans good parts, a secret & villanous contriuer against mee his naturall brother: therefore vse thy discretion, I had as liefe thou didst breake his neck as his finger. And thou wert best looke to't; for if thou dost him any slight disgrace, or if hee doe not mightilie grace himselfe on thee, hee will practise against thee by poyson, entrap thee by some treacherous deuise, and neuer leaue thee till he hath tane thy life by some indirect meanes or other: for I assure thee, (and almost with teares I speake it) there is not one so young, and so villanous this day liuing. I speake but brotherly of him, but should I anathomize him to thee, as hee is, I must blush, and weepe, and thou must looke pale and wonder.

Cha. I am heartily glad I came hither to you: if hee come to morrow, Ile giue him his payment: if euer hee goe alone againe, Ile neuer wrastle for prize more: and so God keepe your worship. Exit.

Farewell good Charles. Now will I stirre this Gamester: I hope I shall see an end of him; for my soule (yet I know not why) hates nothing more then he: yet hee's gentle, neuer school'd, and yet learned, full of noble deuise, of all sorts enchantingly beloued, and indeed so much in the heart of the world, and especially of my owne people, who best know him, that I am altogether misprised: but it shall not be so long, this wrastler shall cleare all: nothing remaines, but that I kindle the boy thither, which now Ile goe about. Exit.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Rosalind, and Celia.

Cel. I pray thee Rosalind, sweet my Coz, be merry.

Ros. Deere Celia; I show more mirth then I am mistresse of, and would you yet were merrier: vnlesse you could teach me to forget a banished father, you must not learne mee how to remember any extraordinary pleasure.

Cel. Herein I see thou lou'st mee not with the full weight that I loue thee; if my Vncle thy banished father had banished thy Vncle the Duke my Father, so thou hadst beene still with mee, I could haue taught my loue to take thy father for mine; so wouldst thou, if the truth of thy loue to me were so righteously temper'd, as mine is to thee

Ros. Well, I will forget the condition of my estate, to reioyce in yours

Cel. You know my Father hath no childe, but I, nor none is like to haue; and truely when he dies, thou shalt be his heire; for what he hath taken away from thy father perforce, I will render thee againe in affection: by mine honor I will, and when I breake that oath, let me turne monster: therefore my sweet Rose, my deare Rose, be merry

Ros. From henceforth I will Coz, and deuise sports: let me see, what thinke you of falling in Loue?

Cel. Marry I prethee doe, to make sport withall: but loue no man in good earnest, nor no further in sport neyther, then with safety of a pure blush, thou maist in honor come off againe.

Ros. What shall be our sport then?

Cel. Let vs sit and mocke the good housewife Fortune from her wheele, that her gifts may henceforth bee bestowed equally.

Ros. I would wee could doe so: for her benefits are mightily misplaced, and the bountifull blinde woman doth most mistake in her gifts to women.

Cel. 'Tis true, for those that she makes faire, she scarce makes honest, & those that she makes honest, she makes very illfauouredly

Ros. Nay now thou goest from Fortunes office to Natures: Fortune reignes in gifts of the world, not in the lineaments of Nature.

Enter Clowne

Cel. No; when Nature hath made a faire creature, may she not by Fortune fall into the fire? though nature hath giuen vs wit to flout at Fortune, hath not Fortune sent in this foole to cut off the argument?

Ros. Indeed there is fortune too hard for nature, when fortune makes natures naturall, the cutter off of natures witte.

Cel. Peraduenture this is not Fortunes worke neither, but Natures, who perceiueth our naturall wits too dull to reason of such goddesses, hath sent this Naturall for our whetstone. for alwaies the dulnesse of the foole, is the whetstone of the wits. How now Witte, whether wander you?

Clow. Mistresse, you must come away to your father.

Cel. Were you made the messenger?

Clo. No by mine honor, but I was bid to come for you

Ros.

e learned you that oath ſoole?
rtaine Knight, that ſwore by his Honour
d Pan-cakes, and ſwore by his Honor the aught: Now ile ſtand to it, the Pancakes nd the Muſtard was good, and yet was t forſworne.
roue you that in the great heape of your

y, now vnmuzzle your wiſedome.
you both forth now: ſtroke your chinnes,
your beards that I am a knaue.
t beards (if we had them) thou art.
knauerie (if I had it) then I were: but if that that is not, you are not forſworn: no
knight ſwearing by his Honor, for he ner if he had, he had ſworne it away, before ſe Pancakes, or that Muſtard.
e, who is't that thou meanſt?
at old Fredericke your Father loues.
hers loue is enough to honor him enough;
e of him, you'l be whipt for taxation one ore pittie that fooles may not ſpeak wiſemen do foolliſhly.

troth thou ſaieſt true: For, ſince the little have was ſilenced, the little foolerie that makes a great ſhew, Heere comes Mon-

Enter le Beau.

his mouth full of newes.
h he will put on vs, as Pigeons feed their ſhall we be newes-cram'd.

e better: we ſhalbe the more Marketable.
ſieur le Beu, what's the newes?
aire Princeſſe,
much good ſport.
: of what colour?
What colour Madame? How ſhall I aunt and fortune will s the definites decrees.

ſaid, that was laid on with a trowell.
if I keepe not my ranke.
looſell thy old ſmell.
ou amaze me Ladies: I would haue told
wraſtling, which you haue loſt the ſight of.
ell vs the manner of the Wraſtling.
will tell you the beginning: and if it pleaſe
ps, you may ſee the end, for the beſt is yet
heere where you are, they are comming to

, the beginning that is dead and buried.
here comes an old man, and his three ſons.
d match this beginning with an old tale.
ree proper yong men, of excellent growth

bils on their neckes: Be it knowne vnto ſe preſents.
e eldeſt of the three, wraſtled with Charles raſtler, which Charles in a moment threw e three of his ribbes, that there is little him: So he ſerv'd the ſecond, and ſo the they lie, the poore old man their Father
pittiful dole ouer them, that all the beholders take his part with weeping.

Roſ. Alas

Cle. But what is the ſport Monſieur, that the Ladies haue loſt?

Le Beu. Why this that I ſpeake of

Cle. Thus men may grow wiſer euery day. It is the firſt time that euer I heard breaking of ribbes was ſport for Ladies.

Cel. Or I, I promiſe thee.

Roſ. But is there any elſe longs to ſee this broken Muſicke in his ſides? Is there yet another dotes vpon rib-breaking? Shall we ſee this wraſtling Coſin?

Le Beu. You muſt if you ſtay heere, for heere is the place appointed for the wraſtling, and they are ready to performe it.

Cel. Yonder ſure they are comming. Let vs now ſtay and ſee it.

Flouriſh. Enter Duke, Lords, Orlando, Charles, and Attendants.

Duke Come on, ſince the youth will not be intreated His owne perill on his forwardneſſe.

Roſ. Is yonder the man?

Le Beu. Euen he, Madam.

Cel. Alas, he is too yong: yet he looks ſucceſſefully

Du. How now daughter, and Couſin. Are you crept hither to ſee the wraſtling?

Roſ. I my Liege, ſo pleaſe you giue vs leaue

Du. You will take little delight in it, I can tell you there is ſuch oddes in the man: In pitie of the challengers youth, I would faine diſſwade him, but he will not bee entreated. Speake to him Ladies, ſee if you can mooue him.

Cel. Call him hether good Monſieuer Le Beu

Duke. Do ſo. Ile not be by.

Le Beu. Monſieur the Challenger, the Princeſſe cals for you.

Orl. I attend them with all reſpect and dutie

Roſ. Young man, haue you challeng'd Charles the Wraſtler?

Orl. No faire Princeſſe: he is the generall challenger, I come but in as others do, to try with him the ſtrength of my youth

Cel. Yong Gentleman, your ſpirits are too bold for your yeares: you haue ſeene cruell proofe of this mans ſtrength, if you ſaw your ſelfe with your eies, or knew your ſelfe with your iudgment, the feare of your aduenture would counſel you to a more equall enterpriſe. We pray you for your owne ſake to embrace your own ſafetie, and giue ouer this attempt.

Roſ. Do yong Sir, your reputation ſhall not therefore be miſprizd: we will make it our ſuite to the Duke, that the wraſtling might not go forward.

Orl. I beſeech you, puniſh mee not with your harde thoughts, wherein I confeſſe me much guiltie to denie ſo faire and excellent Ladies anie thing. But let your faire eies, and gentle wiſhes go with mee to my triall; wherein if I bee foil'd, there is but one ſham'd that was neuer gracious: if kil'd, but one dead that is willing to be ſo. I ſhall do my friends no wrong, for I haue none to lament me: the world no iniurie, for in it I haue nothing: onely in the world I fil vp a place, which may bee better ſupplied, when I haue made it emptie.

Roſ. The little ſtrength that I haue, I would it were with you.

Cel

Cel. And mine to eeke out hers.

Ros. Fare you well: praie heauen I be deceiu'd in you.

Cel. Your hearts desires be with you.

Cha. Come, where is this yong gallant, that is so desirous to lie with his mother earth?

Orl. Readie Sir, but his will hath in it a more modest working.

Duk. You shall trie but one fall.

Cha. No, I warrant your Grace you shall not entreat him to a second, that haue so mightilie perswaded him from a first.

Orl. You meane to mocke me after: you should not haue mockt me before: but come your waies.

Ros. Now Hercules, be thy speede yong man.

Cel. I would I were inuisible, to catch the strong fellow by the legge. Wrastle

Ros. Oh excellent yong man.

Cel. If I had a thunderbolt in mine eie, I can tell who should downe. Shout

Duk. No more, no more.

Orl. Yes I beseech your Grace, I am not yet well breath'd.

Duk. How do'st thou Charles?

Le Beu. He cannot speake my Lord.

Duk. Beare him awaie:
What is thy name yong man?

Orl. Orlando my Liege, the yongest sonne of Sir Roland de Boys.

Duk. I would thou hadst beene son to some man else,
The world esteem'd thy father honourable,
But I did finde him still mine enemie:
Thou should'st haue better pleas'd me with this deede,
Hadst thou descended from another house
But fare thee well, thou art a gallant youth,
I would thou had'st told me of another Father.
Exit Duke.

Cel. Were I my Father (Coze) would I do this?

Orl. I am more proud to be Sir Roland. sonne,
His yongest sonne, and would not change that calling
To be adopted heire to Frederick.

Ros. My Father lou'd Sir Roland as his soule,
And all the world was of my Fathers minde.
Had I before knowne this yong man his sonne,
I should haue giuen him teares vnto entreaties,
Ere he should thus haue ventur'd.

Cel. Gentle Cosen,
Let vs goe thanke him, and encourage him.
My Fathers rough and enuious disposition
Sticks me at heart: Sir, you haue well deseru'd,
If you do keepe your promises in loue;
But iustly, as you haue exceeded all promise,
Your Mistris shall be happie.

Ros. Gentleman,
Weare this for me: one out of suites with fortune
That could giue more, but that her hand lacks meanes.
Shall we goe Coze?

Cel. I: fare you well faire Gentleman.

Orl. Can I not say, I thanke you? My better parts
Are all throwne downe, and that which here stands vp
Is but a quintine, a meere liueleſſe blocke.

Ros. He calls vs back: my pride fell with my fortunes,
Ile aske him what he would: Did you call Sir?
Sir, you haue wrastled well and ouerthrowne
More then your enemies.

Cel. Will you goe Coze?

Ros. Haue with you: fare you well. Exit.

Orl. What passion hangs these weights vpō my tongue?
I cannot speake to her, yet she vrg'd conference.

Enter Le Beu.

O poore Orlando! thou art ouerthrowne
Or Charles, or something weaker masters thee.

Le Beu. Good Sir, I do in friendship counsaile you
To leaue this place; Albeit you haue deseru'd
High commendation, true applause, and loue;
Yet such is now the Dukes condition,
That he misconsters all that you haue done:
The Duke is humorous, what he is indeede
More suites you to conceiue, then I to speake of.

Orl. I thanke you Sir; and pray you tell me this,
Which of the two was daughter of the Duke,
That here was at the Wrastling?

Le Beu. Neither his daughter, if we iudge by manners,
But yet indeede the taller is his daughter.
The other is daughter to the banish'd Duke,
And here detain'd by her vsurping Vncle
To keepe his daughter companie, whose loues
Are deerer then the naturall bond of Sisters.
But I can tell you, that of late this Duke
Hath tane displeasure 'gainst his gentle Neece,
Grounded vpon no other argument,
But that the people praise her for her vertues,
And pittie her, for her good Fathers sake:
And on my life his malice 'gainst the Lady
Will sodainly breake forth: Sir, fare you well,
Hereafter in a better world then this,
I shall desire more loue and knowledge of you.

Orl. I rest much bounden to you: fare you well.
Thus must I from the smoake into the smother,
From tyrant Duke, vnto a tyrant Brother.
But heauenly Rosaline. Exit

Scena Tertius.

Enter Celia and Rosaline

Cel. Why Cosen why Rosaline: Cupid haue mercie,
Not a word?

Ros. Not one to throw at a dog.

Cel. No, thy words are too precious to be cast away vpon curs, throw some of them at me; come lame me with reasons.

Ros. Then there were two Cosens laid vp, when the one should be lam'd with reasons, and the other mad without any.

Cel. But is all this for your Father?

Ros. No, some of it is for my childes Father: Oh how full of briers is this working day world.

Cel. They are but burs, Cosen, throwne vpon thee in holiday foolerie, if we walke not in the trodden paths our very petty-coates will catch them.

Ros. I could shake them off my coate, these burs are in my heart.

Cel. Hem them away.

Ros. I would try if I could cry hem, and haue him.

Cel. Come, come, wrastle with thy affections.

Ros. O they take the part of a better wrastler then my selfe.

Cel. O, a good wish vpon you: you will trie in time
in

but turning theſe iells out of ſeruice,
d earneſt. Is it poſſible on ſuch a ſofall into ſo ſtrong a liking with old Sir anne?
e my Father lou'd his Father deerelie.
erefore enſue that you ſhould loue his y this kinde of chaſe, I ſhould hate hated his father deerely; yes I hate me him not for my ſake.

ld I not? doth he not deſerue well?

Duke with Lords.
e him for that, and do you loue him
oke, here comes the Duke.
ies full of anger.
diſpatch you with your ſafeſt haſte,
our Court.

ſen,
laies it that thou beeſt found ike Court as twentie miles,

ech your Grace
edge of my fault beare with me:
bold intelligence,
nce with mine owne deſires,
reame, or be not franticke,
m not) thou deere Vncle,
in a thought vnborne,
highneſſe.
e all Traitors,
did conſiſt in words,
ene as grace it ſelfe;
thus I truſt thee not miſtruſt cannot make me a Traitor;
the likelihoods depends?
t thy Fathers daughter, there's enough.
when your highnes took his Dukedome, ur highneſſe baniſht him;
ented my Lord,
e it from our friends,
e, my Father was no Traitor, eige, miſtake me not ſo much,
ertie is treacherous.
uerzigne heare me ſpeake.
we ſtaid her for your ſake,
her Father rang'd along.
then intreat to haue her ſtay.
are, and your owne remorſe,
nat time to value her,
her: if ſhe be a Traitor,
ſtill haue ſlept together,
learn'd, plaid, eate together,
we went, like Iunos Swans,
pled and inſeperable.
o ſubtile for thee, and her ſmoothnes;
, and per patience,
ople, and they pitie her:
ſhe robs thee of thy name,
ow more bright, & faire more vertuous:
e: then open not thy lips
ecable is my doombe.
ſt vpon her, ſhe is baniſh'd.
oe that ſentence then on me my Leige,
of her companie.

Duke. You are a foole: you Neice prouide your ſelfe,
If you out-ſtay the time, vpon mine honor,
And in the greeneſſe of my word you die.
Exit Duke &c.

Cel. O my poore Roſaline, whether wilt thou goe?
Wilt thou change Fathers? I will giue thee mine:
I charge thee be not thou more griev'd then I am.

Roſ. I haue more cauſe.

Cel. Thou haſt not Coſen,
Prethee be cheerefull; know'ſt thou not the Duke
Hath baniſh'd me his daughter?

Roſ. That he hath not

Cel. No, hath not? Roſaline lacks then the loue
Which teacheth thee that thou and I am one,
Shall we be ſundred? ſhall we part ſweete girle?
No, let my Father ſeeke another heire:
Therefore deuiſe with me how we may flie
Whether to goe, and what to beare with vs,
And doe not ſeeke to take your change vpon you,
To beare your griefes your ſelfe, and leaue me out
For by this heauen, now at our ſorrowes pale;
Say what thou canſt, Ile goe along with thee.

Roſ. Why, whether ſhall we goe?

Cel. To ſeeke my Vncle in the Forreſt of Arden

Roſ. Alas, what danger will it be to vs,
(Maides as we are) to trauell forth ſo farre?
Beautie prouoketh theeues ſooner then gold.

Cel. Ile put my ſelfe in poore and meane attire,
And with a kinde of vmber ſmirch my face,
The like doe you, ſo ſhall we paſſe along,
And neuer ſtir aſſailants.

Roſ. Were it not better,
Becauſe that I am more then common tall,
That I did ſuite me all points like a man,
A gallant curtelax vpon my thigh,
A boare-ſpeare in my hand, and in my heart
Lye thoſe what hidden womans feare there will,
Weele haue a ſwaſhing and a martiall outſide,
As manie other mannish cowards haue,
That doe outface it with their ſemblances.

Cel. What ſhall I call thee when thou art a man?

Roſ. Ile haue no worſe a name then Ioues owne Page,
And therefore looke you call me Ganimed.
But what will you be call'd?

Cel. Something that hath a reference to my ſtate:
No longer Celia, but Aliena.

Roſ. But Coſen, what if we aſſaid to ſteale
The clownish Foole out of your Fathers Court:
Would he not be a comfort to our trauaile?

Cel. Heele goe along ore the wide world with me,
Leaue me alone to woe him; Let's away
And get our Iewels and our wealth together,
Deuiſe the fitteſt time, and ſafeſt way
To hide vs from purſuite that will be made
After my flight: now goe in we content
To liberty, and not to baniſhment. Exeunt.

Actus Secundus. Scœna Prima.

Enter Duke Senior, Amyens, and two or three Lords like Forreſters.

Duke Sen. Now my Co-mates, and brothers in exile;
Hath not old cuſtome made this life more ſweete
Then

Ile see if I can get my husbands ring
Which I did make him sweare to keepe for euer
Por. Thou maist I warrant, we shal haue old swearing
That they did giue the rings away to men;
But weele out-face them, and out-sweare them too:
Away, make haste, thou know st where I will tarry.
Ner. Come good sir, will you shew me to this house.
Exeunt.

Actus Quintus.

Enter Lorenzo and Iessica.

Lor. The moone shines bright: In such a night as this,
When the sweet winde did gently kisse the trees,
And they did make no noyse, in such a night
Troylus me thinkes mounted the Troian walls,
And sigh'd his soule toward the Grecian tents
Where Cressed lay that night.
Ies. In such a night
Did Thisbie fearefully ore-trip the dewe,
And saw the Lyons shadow ere himselfe,
And ranne dismayed away.
Loren. In such a night
Stood Dido with a Willow in her hand
Vpon the wilde sea bankes, and waft her Loue
To come againe to Carthage.
Ies. In such a night
Medea gathered the inchanted hearbs
That did renew old Eson.
Loren. In such a night
Did Iessica steale from the wealthy Iewe,
And with an Vnthrift Loue did ruone from Venice,
As farre as Belmont.
Ies. In such a night
Did young Lorenzo sweare he lou'd her well,
Stealing her soule with many vowes of faith
And nere a true one.
Loren. In such a night
Did pretty Iessica (like a little shrow)
Slander her Loue, and he forgaue it her.
Iessi. I would out-night you did no body come:
But harke, I heare the footing of a man.

Enter Messenger.

Lor. Who comes so fast in silence of the night?
Mes. A friend. (friend?)
Loren. A friend, what friend? your name I pray you
Mes. Stephano is my name, and I bring word
My Mistresse will before the breake of day
Be heere at Belmont, she doth stray about
By holy crosses where she kneeles and prayes
For happy wedlocke houres.
Loren. Who comes with her?
Mes. None but a holy Hermit and her maid:
I pray you is my Master yet return'd?
Loren. He is not, nor we haue not heard from him,
But goe we in I pray thee Iessica,
And ceremoniously let vs prepare
Some welcome for the Mistresse of the house,

Enter Clowne.

Clo. Sola, sola: wo ha ho, sola, sola.

Loren. Who calls?
Clo. Sola, did you see M. Lorenzo, & M. Lorenzo, sola
Lor. Leaue hollowing man, heare. (sola
Clo. Sola, where, where?
Lor. Heere?
Clo. Tel him ther's a Post come from my Master, with his horne full of good newes, my Master will be here ere morning sweet soule.
Loren. Let's in, and there expect their comming.
And yet no matter: why should we goe in?
My friend Stephen, signifie pray you
Within the house, your Mistresse is at hand,
And bring your musique foo th into the ayre.
How sweet the moone-light sleepes vpon this banke,
Heere will we sit, and let the sounds of musicke
Creepe in our eares soft stilnes, and the night
Become the tutches of sweet harmonie:
Sit Iessica, looke how the floore of heauen
Is thicke inlayed with patterns of bright gold,
There's not the smallest orbe which thou behold'st
But in his motion like an Angell sings,
Still quiring to the young eyed Cherubins:
Such harmonie is in immortall soules,
But whilst this muddy vesture of decay
Doth grosly close in it, we cannot heare it:
Come hoe, and wake Diana with a hymne,
With sweetest tutches pearce your Mistresse eare,
And draw her home with musicke.
Iessi. I am neuer merry when I heare sweet musique
Play musicke.
Lor. The reason is, your spirites are attentiue:
For doe but note a wilde and wanton heard
Or race of youthful and vnbandled colts,
Fetching mad bounds, bellowing and neighing loud,
Which is the hot condition of their blood,
If they but heare perchance a trumpet sound,
Or any ayre of musicke touch their eares,
You shall perceiue them make a mutuall stand,
Their sauage eyes turn'd to a modest gaze,
By the sweet power of musicke: therefore the Poet
Did faine that Orpheus drew trees, stones, and floods.
Since naught so stockish, hard, and full of rage,
But musicke for time doth change his nature,
The man that hath no musicke in himselfe,
Nor is not moued with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoyles,
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections darke as Erebus,
Let no such man be trusted: marke the musicke

Enter Portia and Nerrissa

Por. That light we see is burning in my hall:
How farre that little candell throwes his beames.
So shines a good deed in a naughty world. (can
Ner. When the moone shone we did not see the can
Por. So doth the greater glory dim the lesse,
A substitute shines brightly as a King
Vntill a King be by, and then his state
Empties it selfe, as doth an inland brooke
Into the maine of waters: musique, harke. Musicke
Ner. It is your musicke Madame of the house
Por Nothing is good I see without respect,
Methinkes it sounds much sweeter then by day?
Ner. Silence bestowes that vertue on it Madam
Por. The Crow doth sing as sweetly as the larke
When

eisher's attended: and I thinke gbringale if she should sing by day uery Goose is cackling, would be thought er a Musician then the Wren ny things by season, season'd are right praise, and true perfection:
ow the Moone sleepes with Endimion, uld not be awak'd
Musicke ceases.
That is the voice,
much degenerate of Portia.
He knowes me as the blinde man knowes the
by the bad voice?
Deere Lady welcome home?
We haue bene praying for our husbands welfare speed we hope the better for our words,
y returned?
Madam, they are not yet:
re is come a Messenger before sse their comming.
Go in Nerrissa,
der to my seruants, that they take
e all of our being absent hence,
Lorenzo, Iessica not you.
A Tucket sounds.
Your husband is at hand, I heare his Trumpet,
no tell-tales Madam, feare you not.
This night methinkes is but the daylight sicke,
es a little pale, 'tis a day,
the day is, when the Sun is hid.

Enter Bassanio, Anthonio, Gratiano, and their Followers.

We should hold day with the Antipodes,
would walke in absence of the sunne.
Let me giue light, but let me not be light,
ght wife doth make a heauie husband,
ust be Bassanio so for me,
d sort all: you are welcome home my Lord.
I thanke you Madam, giue welcom to my friend
this man, this is Anthonio, om I am so infinitely bound.
You should in all sence be much bound to him,
heare he was much bound for you.
. No more then I am well acquitted of.
Sir, you are verie welcome to our house:
ppeare in other wayes then words,
are I scant this breathing curtesie.
By yonder Moone I sweare you do me wrong,
I gaue it to the Iudges Clearke,
he were gelt that had it for my part,
ou do take it Loue so much at hart.
A quarrel hoe already, what's the matter?
About a hoope of Gold, a paltry Ring e did giue me, whose Poesie was he world like Cutlers Poetry knife? Loue me, and leaue me not.
What talke you of the Poesie or the valew:
ore to me when I did giue it you,
u would weare it till the houre of death,
t it should lye with you in your graue,
not for me, yet for your vehement oathes,
uld haue bene respective and haue kept it.
Iudges Clearke: but well I know
arke will neere weare haire on's face that had it.

Gra. He will, and if he liue to be a man.
Nerrissa. I, if a woman liue to be a man.
Gra. Now by this hand I gaue it to a youth,
A kinde of boy, a little scrubbed boy,
No higher then thy selfe, the Iudges Clearke,
A prating boy that begg'd it as a Fee,
I could not for my heart deny it him.
Por. You were too blame, I must be plaine with you
To part so slightly with your wiues first gift,
A thing stucke on with oathes vpon your finger,
And so riuetted with faith vnto your flesh.
I gaue my Loue a Ring, and made him sweare
Neuer to part with it, and here he stands:
I dare be sworne for him, he would not leaue it,
Nor plucke it from his finger, for the wealth
That the world masters. Now in faith Gratiano,
You giue your wife too vnkinde a cause of greefe,
And 'twere to me I should be mad at it.
Bass. Why I were best to cut my left hand off,
And sweare I lost the Ring defending it.
Gra. My Lord Bassanio gaue his Ring away
Vnto the Iudge that begg'd it, and indeede
Deseru'd it too: and then the Boy his Clearke
That tooke some paines in writing, he begg'd mine,
And neyther man nor master would take ought
But the two Rings.
Por. What Ring gaue you my Lord?
Not that I hope which you receiu'd of me.
Bass. If I could adde a lie vnto a fault,
I would deny it: but you see my finger
Hath not the Ring vpon it, it is gone.
Por. Euen so voide is your false heart of truth.
By heauen I will ne're come in your bed
Vntil I see the Ring.
Ner. Nor I in yours, til I againe see mine.
Bass. Sweet Portia,
If you did know to whom I gaue the Ring,
If you did know for whom I gaue the Ring,
And would conceiue for what I gaue the Ring,
And how vnwillingly I left the Ring,
When nought would be accepted but the Ring,
You would abate the strength of your displeasure?
Por. If you had knowne the vertue of the Ring,
Or halfe her worthinesse that gaue the Ring,
Or your owne honour to containe the Ring,
You would not then haue parted with the Ring:
What man is there so much vnreasonable,
If you had pleas'd to haue defended it
With any termes of Zeale: wanted the modestie
To vrge the thing held as a ceremonie:
Nerrissa teaches me what to beleeue,
Ile die for't, but some Woman had the Ring?
Bass. No by mine honor Madam, by my soule
No Woman had it, but a ciuill Doctor,
Which did refuse three thousand Ducates of me,
And begg'd the Ring; the which I did denie him,
And suffer'd him to go displeas'd away:
Euen he that had held vp the verie life
Of my deere friend. What should I say sweete Lady?
I was inforc'd to send it after him,
I was beset with shame and curtesie,
My honor would not let ingratitude
So much besmeare it. Pardon me good Lady,
And by these blessed Candles of the night,
Had you bene there, I thinke you would haue beg'd
The Ring of me, to giue the worthie Doctor?

Por. Let not that Doctor ere come neere my house,
Since he hath got the iewell that I loued,
And that which you did sweare to keepe for me,
I will become as liberall as you,
Ile not deny him any thing I haue,
No, not my body, nor my husbands bed:
Know him I shall, I am well sure of it.
Lie not a nights from home. Watch me like Argos,
If you doe not, if I be left alone,
Now by mine honour which is yet mine owne,
Ile haue the Doctor for my bedfellow.

Nerrissa. And I his Clarke: therefore be well aduis'd
How you doe leaue me to mine owne protection.

Gra. Well, doe you so: let not me take him then,
For if I doe, ile mar the yong Clarks pen.

Ant. I am th'vnhappy subiect of these quarrels.

Por. Sir, grieue not you,
You are welcome notwithstanding.

Bass. Portia, forgiue me this enforced wrong,
And in the hearing of these many friends
I sweare to thee, euen by thine owne faire eyes
Wherein I see my selfe

Por. Marke you but that?
In both my eyes he doubly sees himselfe:
In each eye one, sweare by your double selfe,
And there's an oath of credit.

Bass. Nay, but heare me.
Pardon this fault, and by my soule I sweare
I neuer more will breake an oath with thee.

Anth. I once did lend my bodie for thy wealth,
Which but for him that had your husbands ring
Had quite miscarried. I dare be bound againe,
My soule vpon the forfeit, that your Lord
Will neuer more breake faith aduisedlie

Por. Then you shall be his suretie: giue him this,
And bid him keepe it better than the other.

Ant. Heere Lord Bassanio, swear to keep this ring.

Bass. By heauen it is the same I gaue the Doctor

Por. I had it of him: pardon Bassanio,
For by this ring the Doctor lay with me.

Ner. And pardon me my gentle Gratiano,
For that same scrubbed boy the Doctors Clarke
In lieu of this, last night did lye with me

Gra. Why this is like the mending of high waies
In Sommer, where the waies are faire enough.
What, are we Cuckolds ere we haue deserv'd it.

Por. Speake not so grossely, you are all amaz'd:
Heere is a letter, reade it at your leysure,
It comes from Padua from Bellario,
There you shall finde that Portia was the Doctor,
Nerrissa there her Clarke. Lorenzo heere
Shall witnesse I set forth as soone as you,
And but ev'n now return'd: I haue not yet
Entred my house. Antonio you are welcome,
And I haue better newes in store for you
Then you expect: vnseale this letter soone,
There you shall finde three of your Argosies
Are richly come to harbour suddainlie.
You shall not know by what strange accident
I chanced on this letter.

Anth. I am dumbe.

Bass. Were you the Doctor, and I knew you not?

Gra. Were you the Clark that is to make me cuckold.

Ner. I, but the Clark that neuer meanes to doe it,
Vnlesse he liue vntill he be a man.

Bass. (Sweet Doctor) you shall be my bedfellow.
When I am absent, then lie with my wife.

Ant. (Sweet Ladie) you haue giuen me life & liuing:
For heere I reade for certaine that my ships
Are safelie come to Rode.

Por. How now Lorenzo?
My Clarke hath some good comforts too for you

Ner. I, and ile giue them him without a fee
There doe I giue to you and Iessica
From the rich Iewe, a speciall deed of gift
After his death, of all he dies possess'd of.

Lorn. Faire Ladies you drop Manna in the way
Of starued people.

Por. It is almost morning,
And yet I am sure you are not satisfied
Of these euents at full. Let vs goe in,
And charge vs there vpon interrogatories,
And we will answer all things faithfully.

Gra. Let it be so, the first interrogatory
That my Nerrissa shall be sworne on, is,
Whether till the next night she had rather stay,
Or goe to bed, now being two houres to day.
But were the day come, I should wish it darke,
Till I were couching with the Doctors Clarke.
Well, while I liue, Ile feare no other thing
So sore, as keeping safe Nerrissas ring.

Exeunt.

FINIS.

As you Like it.

Actus primus. Scœna Prima.

Enter Orlando and Adam.

Orlando.

AS I remember Adam, it was vpon this fashion bequeathed me by will, but poore a thousand Crownes, and as thou saist, charged my brother on his blessing to breed mee well: and there begins my sadnesse: My brother Iaques he keepes at schoole, and reports speakes goldenly of his profit: for my part, he keepes me rustically at home, or (to speak more properly) staies me heere at home vnkept: for call you that keeping for a gentleman of my birth, that differs not from the stalling of an Oxe? his horses are bred better, for besides that they are faire with their feeding, they are taught their manage, and to that end Riders dearely hir'd: but I (his brother) gaine nothing vnder him but growth, for the which his Animals on his dunghills are as much bound to him as I: besides this nothing that he so plentifully giues me, the something that nature gaue mee, his countenance seemes to take from me: he lets me feede with his Hindes, barres me the place of a brother, and as much as in him lies, mines my gentry with my education. This is it Adam that grieues me, and the spirit of my Father, which I thinke within mee, begins to mutinie against this seruitude. I will no longer endure it, though yet I know no wise remedy how to auoid it.

Enter Oliuer.

Adam. Yonder comes my Master, your brother.

Orlan. Goe a-part Adam, and thou shalt heare how he will shake me vp.

Oli. Now Sir, what make you heere?

Orl. Nothing: I am not taught to make any thing.

Oli. What mar you then sir?

Orl. Marry sir, I am helping you to mar that which God made, a poore vnworthy brother of yours with idlenesse.

Oliuer. Marry sir be better employed, and be naught awhile.

Orlan. Shall I keepe your hogs, and eat huskes with them? what prodigall portion haue I spent, that I should come to such penury?

Oli. Know you where you are sir?

Orl. O sir, very well: heere in your Orchard.

Oli. Know you before whom sir?

Orl. I, better then him I am before knowes mee: know you are my eldest brother, and in the gentle condition of blood you should so know me: the courtesie of nations allowes you my better, in that you are the first borne, but the same tradition takes not away my blood, were there twenty brothers betwixt vs: I haue as much of my father in mee, as you, albeit I confesse your coming before me is neerer to his reuerence.

Oli. What Boy. (this.

Orl. Come, come elder brother, you are too yong in

Oli. Wilt thou lay hands on me villaine?

Orl. I am no villaine: I am the youngest sonne of Sir Rowland de Boys, he was my father, and he is thrice a villaine that saies such a father begot villaines: were thou not my brother, I would not take this hand from thy throat, till this other had pull'd out thy tongue for saying so, thou hast rail'd on thy selfe.

Adam. Sweet Masters bee patient, for your Fathers remembrance, be at accord.

Oli. Let me goe I say.

Orl. I will not till I please: you shall heare mee: my father charg'd you in his will to giue me good education: you haue train'd me like a peazant, obscuring and hiding from me all gentleman-like qualities: the spirit of my father growes strong in mee, and I will no longer endure it: therefore allow me such exercises as may become a gentleman, or giue mee the poore allottery my father left me by testament, with that I will goe buy my fortunes.

Oli. And what wilt thou do? beg when that is spent? Well sir, get you in. I will not long be troubled with you: you shall haue some part of your will, I pray you leaue me.

Orl. I will no further offend you, than becomes mee for my good.

Oli. Get you with him, you olde dogge.

Adam. Is old dogge my reward: most true, I haue lost my teeth in your seruice: God be with my olde master, he would not haue spoke such a word. Ex. Orl. Ad.

Oli. Is it euen so, begin you to grow vpon me? I will physicke your rankenesse, and yet giue no thousand crownes neyther: holla Dennis.

Enter Dennis.

Den. Calls your worship?

Oli. Was not Charles the Dukes Wrastler heere to speake with me?

Den. So please you, he is heere at the doore, and importunes accesse to you.

Oli. Call him in: 'twill be a good way: and to morrow the wrastling is.

Enter Charles.

Cha. Good morrow to your worship.

Oli. Good Mounsier Charles: what's the new newes at the new Court?

Charles. There's no newes at the Court Sir, but the olde newes: that is, the old Duke is banished by his yonger brother the new Duke, and three or foure louing

Lords haue put themſelues into voluntary exile with him, whoſe lands and reuenues enrich the new Duke, therefore he giues them good leaue to wander

Ol. Can you tell if Roſalind the Dukes daughter bee baniſhed with her Father?

Cha. O no; for the Dukes daughter her Coſen ſo loues her, being euer from their Cradles bred together, that hee would haue followed her exile, or haue died to ſtay behind her; ſhe is at the Court, and no leſſe beloued of her Vncle, then his owne daughter, and neuer two Ladies loued as they doe.

Ol. Where will the old Duke liue?

Cha. They ſay hee is already in the Forreſt of Ardan, and a many merry men with him; and there they liue like the old Robin Hood of England: they ſay many yong Gentlemen flocke to him every day, and fleet the time carelelſly as they did in the golden world.

Ol. What, you wraſtle to morrow before the new Duke.

Cha. Marry doe I ſir: and I came to acquaint you with a matter: I am giuen ſir ſecretly to vnderſtand, that your yonger brother Orlando hath a diſpoſition to come in diſguis'd againſt mee to try a fall: to morrow ſir I wraſtle for my credit, and hee that eſcapes me without ſome broken limbe, ſhall acquit him well: your brother is but young and tender, and for your loue I would bee loth to foyle him, as I muſt for my owne honour if hee come in: therefore out of my loue to you, I came hither to acquaint you withall, that either you might ſtay him from his intendment, or brooke ſuch diſgrace well as he ſhall runne into, in that it is a thing of his owne ſearch, and altogether againſt my will.

Ol. Charles, I thanke thee for thy loue to me, which thou ſhalt finde I will moſt kindly requite: I had my ſelfe notice of my Brothers purpoſe heerein, and haue by vnder-hand meanes laboured to diſſwade him from it; but he is reſolute. Ile tell thee Charles, it is the ſtubbornſt yong fellow of France, full of ambition, an enuious emulator of euery mans good parts, a ſecret & villanous contriuer againſt mee his naturall brother: therefore vſe thy diſcretion, I had as liefe thou didſt breake his necke as his finger. And thou wert beſt looke to't; for if thou doſt him any ſlight diſgrace, or if hee doe not mightilie grace himſelfe on thee, hee will practiſe againſt thee by poyſon, entrap thee by ſome treacherous deuiſe, and neuer leaue thee till he hath tane thy life by ſome indirect meanes or other: for I aſſure thee, (and almoſt with teares I ſpeake it) there is not one ſo young, and ſo villanous this day liuing. I ſpeake but brotherly of him, but ſhould I anathomize him to thee, as hee is, I muſt bluſh, and weepe, and thou muſt looke pale and wonder.

Cha. I am heartily glad I came hither to you: if hee come to morrow, Ile giue him his payment: if euer hee goe alone againe, Ile neuer wraſtle for prize more: and ſo God keepe your worſhip. Exit.

Farewell good Charles. Now will I ſtirre this Gameſter: I hope I ſhall ſee an end of him; for my ſoule (yet I know not why) hates nothing more then he: yet hee's gentle, neuer ſchool'd, and yet learned, full of noble deuiſe, of all ſorts enchantingly beloued, and indeed ſo much in the heart of the world, and eſpecially of my owne people, who beſt know him, that I am altogether miſprized: but it ſhall not be ſo long, this wraſtler ſhall cleare all: nothing remaines, but that I kindle the boy thither, which now Ile goe about. Exit.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Roſaliod, and Celia.

Cel. I pray thee Roſalind, ſweet my Coz, be merry.

Roſ. Deere Celia; I ſhow more mirth then I am miſtreſſe of, and would you yet were merrier: vnleſſe you could teach me to forget a baniſhed father, you muſt not learne me how to remember any extraordinary pleaſure.

Cel. Heerein I ſee thou lou'ſt mee not with the full waight that I loue thee; if my Vncle thy baniſhed father had baniſhed thy Vncle the Duke my Father, ſo thou hadſt beene ſtill with mee, I could haue taught my loue to take thy father for mine; ſo wouldſt thou, if the truth of thy loue to me were ſo righteouſly temper'd, as mine is to thee

Roſ. Well, I will forget the condition of my eſtate, to reioyce in yours

Cel. You know my Father hath no childe, but I, nor none is like to haue; and truely when he dies, thou ſhalt be his heire; for what hee hath taken away from thy father perforce, I will render thee againe in affection: by mine honor I will, and when I breake that oath, let me turne monſter: therefore my ſweet Roſe, my deare Roſe, be merry

Roſ. From henceforth I will Coz, and deuiſe ſports: let me ſee, what thinke you of falling in Loue?

Cel. Marry I prethee doe, to make ſport withall: but loue no man in good earneſt, nor no further in ſport neyther, then with ſafety of a pure bluſh, thou muſt in honor come off againe.

Roſ. What ſhall be our ſport then?

Cel. Let vs ſit and mocke the good houſwife Fortune from her wheele, that her gifts may henceforth be beſtowed equally.

Roſ. I would wee could doe ſo: for her benefits are mightily miſplaced, and the bountifull blinde woman doth moſt miſtake in her gifts to women.

Cel. 'Tis true, for thoſe that ſhe makes faire, ſhe ſcarce makes honeſt, & thoſe that ſhe makes honeſt, ſhe makes very illfauouredly

Roſ. Nay now thou goeſt from Fortunes office to Natures: Fortune reignes in gifts of the world, not in the lineaments of Nature.

Enter Clowne

Cel. No; when Nature hath made a faire creature, may ſhe not by Fortune fall into the fire? though nature hath giuen vs wit to flout at Fortune, hath not Fortune ſent in this foole to cut off the argument?

Roſ. Indeed there is fortune too hard for nature, when fortune makes natures naturall, the cutter off of natures witte.

Cel. Peraduenture this is not Fortunes work neither, but Natures, who perceiueth our naturall wits too dull to reaſon of ſuch goddeſſes, hath ſent this Naturall for our whetſtone. for alwaies the dulneſſe of the foole, is the whetſtone of the wits. How now Witte, whether wander you?

Clow. Miſtreſſe, you muſt come away to your father.

Cel. Were you made the meſſenger?

Clo. No by mine honor, but I was bid to come for you

Roſ.

te learned you that oath ſoole?
ertaine Knight, that ſwore by his Honour
d Pan-cakes, and ſwore by his Honor the aught: Now Ile ſtand to it, the Pancakes and the Muſtard was good, and yet was t for worne.
proue you that in the great heape of your

ry, now vnmuzzle your wiſedome.
you both forth now: ſtroke your chinnes,
your beards that I am a knaue.
r beards (if we had them) thou art.
y knauerie (if I had it) then I were: but if
that that is not, you are not for ſworn: no
knight ſweating by his Honor, for he ne-or if he had, he had ſworne it away, before oſe Pancakes, or that Muſtard.
ee, who is't that thou meanſt?
hat old Fredericke your Father loues.
thers loue is enough to honor him enough;
re of him, you'l be whipt for taxation one more pittie that fooles may not ſpeak wiſemen do foolifhly.

y troth thou ſaieſt true: For, ſince the little s haue was ſilenced, the little fooleries that e makes a great ſhew: Heere comes Mon-

Enter le Beau.

h his mouth full of newes.
ich he vvill put on vs, as Pigeons feed their ſhal we be newes-cram'd.

e better: we ſhalbe the more Marketable.
ſieur le Beau, what's the newes?
Faire Princeſſe,
merth good ſport.
t of what colour?
What colour Madame? How ſhall I ſun-ut and fortune will is ſhe definites decrees.

ll ſaid, that was laid on with a trowell.
of I keepe not my ranke.
o looſeſt thy old ſmell.
You amaze me Ladies: I would haue told
wraſtling, which you haue loſt the ſight of.
tell vs the manner of the Wraſtling.
wil tell you the beginning: and if it pleaſe
ps, you may ſee the end, for the beſt is yet
heere where you are, they are comming to ll, the beginning that is dead and buried.

There comes an old man, and his three ſons.
ld match this beginning with an old tale.
three proper yong men, of excellent growth

h bils on their neckes: Be it knowne vnto eſe preſents.
he eldeſt of the three, wraſtled with Charles Wraſtler, which Charles in a moment threw ke three of his ribbes, that there is little him: So he ſerv'd the ſecond, and ſo the e they lie, the poore old man their Father,
pittiful dole ouer them, that all the behol-
ders take his part with weeping.

Roſ. Alas

Cle. But what is the ſport Monſieur, that the Ladies haue loſt?

Le Beu. Why this that I ſpeake of

Cle. Thus men may grow wiſer euery day. It is the firſt time that euer I heard breaking of ribbes was ſport for Ladies.

Cel. Or I, I promiſe thee.

Roſ. But is there any elſe longs to ſee this broken Muſicke in his ſides? Is there yet another dotes vpon rib-breaking? Shall we ſee this wraſtling Coſin?

Le Beu. You muſt if you ſtay heere, for heere is the place appointed for the wraſtling, and they are ready to performe it.

Cel. Yonder ſure they are comming. Let vs now ſtay and ſee it.

Flouriſh. Enter Duke, Lords, Orlando, Charles, and Attendants.

Duke. Come on, ſince the youth will not be intreated His owne perill on his forwardneſſe.

Roſ. Is yonder the man?

Le Beu. Euen he, Madam.

Cel. Alas, he is too yong: yet he looks ſucceſſefully

Du. How now daughter, and Coſin.
Are you crept hither to ſee the wraſtling?

Roſ. I my Liege, ſo pleaſe you giue vs leaue

Du. You wil take little delight in it, I can tell you there is ſuch oddes in the man: In pitie of the challengers youth, I would faine diſſwade him, but he will not bee entreated. Speake to him Ladies, ſee if you can moouue him.

Cel. Call him hether good Monſieuer Le Beu.

Duke. Do ſo. Ile not be by.

Le Beu. Monſieur the Challenger, the Princeſſe cals for you.

Orl. I attend them with all reſpect and dutie

Roſ. Young man, haue you challeng'd Charles the Wraſtler?

Orl. No faire Princeſſe: he is the generall challenger, I come but in as others do, to try with him the ſtrength of my youth

Cel. Yong Gentleman, your ſpirits are too bold for your yeares: you haue ſeene cruell proofe of this mans ſtrength, if you ſaw your ſelfe with your eies, or knew your ſelfe with your iudgment, the feare of your aduenture would counſel you to a more equall enterpriſe. We pray you for your owne ſake to embrace your own ſafetie, and giue ouer this attempt.

Roſ. Do yong Sir, your reputation ſhall not therefore be miſpriſed: we wil make it our ſuite to the Duke, that the wraſtling might not go forward.

Orl. I beſeech you, puniſh mee not with your harde thoughts, wherein I confeſſe me much guiltie to denie ſo faire and excellent Ladies anie thing. But let your faire eies, and gentle wiſhes go with mee to my triall; wherein if I bee foil'd, there is but one ſham'd that was neuer gracious: if kil'd, but one dead that is willing to be ſo: I ſhall do my friends no wrong, for I haue none to lament me: the world no iniurie, for in it I haue nothing: onely in the world I fil vp a place, which may bee better ſupplied, when I haue made it emptie.

Roſ. The little ſtrength that I haue, I would it were with you.

Cel

Cel. And mine to eeke out hers.

Ros. Fare you well: praie heauen I be deceiu'd in you.

Cel. Your hearts desires be with you.

Cha. Come, where is this yong gallant, that is so desirous to lie with his mother earth?

Orl. Readie Sir, but his will hath in it a more modest working.

Duke. You shall trie but one fall.

Cha. No, I warrant your Grace you shall not entreat him to a second, that haue so mightilie perswaded him from a first.

Orl. You meane to mocke me after: you should not haue mockt me before: but come your waies.

Ros. Now Hercules, be thy speede yong man.

Cel. I would I were inuisible, to catch the strong fellow by the legge wrastle

Ros. Oh excellent yong man.

Cel. If I had a thunderbolt in mine eie, I can tell who should downe. Shout

Duke. No more, no more.

Orl. Yes I beseech your Grace, I am not yet well breath'd.

Duke. How do'st thou Charles?

Le Beu. He cannot speake my Lord.

Duke. Beare him awaie:
What is thy name yong man?

Orl. Orlando my Liege, the yongest sonne of Sir Roland de Boys.

Duke. I would thou hadst beene son to some man else,
The world esteem'd thy father honourable,
But I did finde him still mine enemie:
Thou should'st haue better pleas'd me with this deede,
Hadst thou descended from another house
But fare thee well, thou art a gallant youth,
I would thou had'st told me of another Father.

Exit Duke.

Cel. Were I my Father (Coze) would I do this?

Orl. I am more proud to be Sir Roland sonne,
His yongest sonne, and would not change that calling
To be adopted heire to Fredericke

Ros. My Father lou'd Sir Roland as his soule,
And all the world was of my Fathers minde.
Had I before knowne this yong man his sonne,
I should haue giuen him teares vnto entreaties,
Ere he should thus haue ventur'd.

Cel. Gentle Cosen,
Let vs goe thanke him, and encourage him.
My Fathers rough and enuious disposition
Sticks me at heart: Sir, you haue well deseru'd,
If you doe keepe your promises in loue:
But iustly, as you haue exceeded all promise,
Your Mistris shall be happie

Ros. Gentleman,
Weare this for me: one out of suites with fortune
That could giue more, but that her hand lacks meanes.
Shall we goe Coze?

Cel. I: fare you well faire Gentleman.

Orl. Can I not say, I thanke you? My better parts
Are all throwne downe, and that which here stands vp
Is but a quintine, a meere liueleſſe blocke.

Ros. He calls vs back: my pride fell with my fortunes,
Ile aske him what he would: Did you call Sir?
Sir, you haue wrastled well and ouerthrowne
More then your enemies

Cel. Will you goe Coze?

Ros. Haue with you: fare you well Exit.

Orl. What passion hangs these weights vpō my toong?
I cannot speake to her, yet she vrg'd conference.

Enter Le Beu.

O poore Orlando! thou art ouerthrowne
Or Charles, or something weaker masters thee.

Le Beu. Good Sir, I do in friendship counsaile you
To leaue this place; Albeit you haue deseru'd
High commendation, true applause, and loue;
Yet such is now the Dukes condition,
That he misconsters all that you haue done:
The Duke is humorous, what he is indeede
More suites you to conceiue, then I to speake of.

Orl. I thanke you Sir; and pray you tell me this,
Which of the two was daughter of the Duke,
That here was at the Wrastling?

Le Beu. Neither his daughter, if we iudge by manners,
But yet indeede the taller is his daughter,
The other is daughter to the banish'd Duke,
And here detain'd by her vsurping Vncle
To keepe his daughter companie, whose loues
Are deerer then the naturall bond of Sisters:
But I can tell you, that of late this Duke
Hath tane displeasure 'gainst his gentle Neece,
Grounded vpon no other argument,
But that the people praise her for her vertues,
And pittie her, for her good Fathers sake:
And on my life his malice 'gainst the Lady
Will suddainly breake forth: Sir, fare you well,
Hereafter in a better world then this,
I shall desire more loue and knowledge of you.

Orl. I rest much bounden to you: fare you well.
Thus must I from the smoake into the smother,
From tyrant Duke, vnto a tyrant Brother.
But heauenly Rosaline. Exit

Scena Tertius.

Enter Celia and Rosaline

Cel. Why Cosen why Rosaline: Cupid haue mercie,
Not a word?

Ros. Not one to throw at a dog.

Cel. No, thy words are too precious to be cast away vpon curs, throw some of them at me; come lame me with reasons.

Ros. Then there were two Cosens laid vp, when the one should be lam'd with reasons, and the other mad without any.

Cel. But is all this for your Father?

Ros. No, some of it is for my childes Father: Oh how full of briers is this working day world.

Cel. They are but burs, Cosen, throwne vpon thee in holiday foolerie, if we walke not in the trodden paths our very petty-coates will catch them.

Ros. I could shake them off my coate, these burs are in my heart.

Cel. Hem them away.

Ros. I would try if I could cry hem, and haue him.

Cel. Come, come, wrastle with thy affections.

Ros. O they take the part of a better wrastler then my selfe.

Cel. O, a good wish vpon you: you will trie in time

in

ght of at all: but turning these rells out of ſeruice, like in good earneſt? Is it poſſible on ſuch a ſo- you ſhould fall into ſo ſtrong a liking with old Sir de googeſt ſonne?

The Duke my Father lou'd his Father deerelie.

Doth it therefore enſue that you ſhould loue his deerelie? By this kinde of chaſe, I ſhould hate r my father hated his father deerely; yet I hate

No faith, hate him not for my ſake.

Why ſhould I not? doth he not deſerue well?

Enter Duke with Lords.

Let me loue him for that, and do you loue him e I doe. Looke, here comes the Duke.

With his eies full of anger.

Miſtris, diſpatch you with your ſafeſt haſte, you from our Court.

Me Vncle.

You Coſen,
theſe ten dayes it that thou beeſt found re our publike Court as ſwcete rules, dreſt for it.

I doe beſeech your Grace
the knowledge of my fault beare with me:
my ſelfe I hold intelligence,
e acquaintance with mine owne deſires,
I doe not dreame, or be not frantick, doe truſt I am not) then deere Vncle, ſo much as in a thought vnborne,
offend your highneſſe.

Thus doe all Traitors,
r purgation did conſiſt in words,
are as innocent as grace it ſelfe;
ſuffice thee that I truſt thee not

Yet your miſtruſt cannot make me a Traitor:
we wherein the likelihoods depends?

Thou art thy Fathers daughter, there's enough.

So was I when your highnes took his Dukedome,
o I when your highneſſe baniſht him;
on is not inherited my Lord,
we did deriue it from our friends,
a that to me, my Father was no Traitor,
good my Leige, miſtake me not ſo much,
ake my poſſeſſie is treacherous

Deere Soueraigne heare me ſpeake.

I Coſen, we ſtaid her for your ſake, ad ſhe with her Father rang'd along.

I did not then intreat to haue her ſtay,
your pleaſure, and your owne remorſe,
oo yong that time to value her,
ow I know her: if ſhe be a Traitor,
ſo am I: we ſtill haue ſlept together,
at an inſtant, learn'd, plaid, eate together,
wherefoere we went, like Iunos Swans,
re weare coupled and inſeperable.

She is too ſubtile for thee, and her ſmoothneſs erie ſilence, and per patience,
e to the people, and they pitie her:
art a foole, ſhe robs thee of thy name,
how wilt ſhow more bright, & ſeem more vertuous
n ſhe is gone: then open not thy lips
, and irreuocable is my doombe.
th I haue paſt vpon her, ſhe is baniſh'd.

Pronounce that ſentence then on me my Leige,
not liue out of her companie.

Duke. You are a foole: you Neice prouide your ſelfe,
If you out-ſtay the time, vpon mine honor,
And in the greatneſſe of my word you die.

Exit Duke, &c.

Cel. O my poore Roſaline, whether wilt thou goe?
Wilt thou change Fathers? I will giue thee mine:
I charge thee be not thou more grieu'd then I am.

Roſ. I haue more cauſe.

Cel. Thou haſt not Coſen,
Prethee be cheereſull; know'ſt thou not the Duke
Hath baniſh'd me his daughter?

Roſ. That he hath not

Cel. No, hath not? Roſaline lacks then the loue
Which teacheth thee that thou and I am one,
Shall we be ſundred? ſhall we part ſweete girle?
No, let my Father ſeeke another heire:
Therefore deuiſe with me how we may flie
Whether to goe, and what to beare with vs,
And doe not ſeeke to take your change vpon you,
To beare your griefes your ſelfe, and leaue me out
For by this heauen, now at our ſorrowes pale;
Say what thou canſt, Ile goe along with thee.

Roſ. Why, whether ſhall we goe?

Cel. To ſeeke my Vncle in the Forreſt of Arden

Roſ. Alas, what danger will it be to vs,
(Maides as we are) to trauell forth ſo faire?
Beautie prouoketh theeues ſooner then gold.

Cel. Ile put my ſelfe in poore and meane attire,
And with a kinde of vmber ſmirch my face,
The like doe you, ſo ſhall we paſſe along,
And neuer ſtir aſſailants.

Roſ. Were it not better,
Becauſe that I am more then common tall,
That I did ſuite me all points like a man,
A gallant curtelax vpon my thigh,
A boare-ſpeare in my hand, and in my heart
Lye there what hidden womans feare there will,
Weele haue a ſwaſhing and a marſhall outſide,
As manie other mannish cowards haue,
That doe outface it with their ſemblances.

Cel. What ſhall I call thee when thou art a man?

Roſ. Ile haue no worſe a name then Ioues owne Page,
And therefore looke you call me Ganimed.
But what will you be call'd?

Cel. Something that hath a reference to my ſtate
No longer Celia, but Aliena.

Roſ. But Coſen, what if we aſſaid to ſteale
The clownish Foole out of your Fathers Court:
Would he not be a comfort to our trauaile?

Cel. Heele goe along ore the wide world with me,
Leaue me alone to woe him; Let's away
And get our Iewels and our wealth together,
Deuiſe the fitteſt time, and ſafeſt way
To hide vs from purſuite that will be made
After my flight: now goe in we content
To liberty, and not to baniſhment. Exeunt.

Actus Secundus. Scena Prima.

Enter Duke Senior, Amyens, and two or three Lords like Forresters.

Duke Sen. Now my Coe-mates, and brothers in exile:
Hath not old cuſtome made this life more ſweete

Then

Then that of painted pompe? Are not these woods
More free from perill then the enuious Court?
Heere feele we not the penaltie of Adam,
The seasons difference, as the Icie phange
And churlish chiding of the winters winde,
Which when it bites and blowes vpon my body
Euen till I shrinke with cold, I smile, and say
This is no flattery: these are counsellors
That feelingly perswade me what I am:
Sweet are the vses of aduersitie
Which like the toad, ougly and venemous,
Weares yet a precious Iewell in his head:
And this our life exempt from publike haunt,
Findes tongues in trees, bookes in the running brookes,
Sermons in stones, and good in euery thing.

Amien. I would not change it, happy is your Grace
That can translate the stubbornesse of fortune
Into so quiet and so sweet a stile.

Du. Sen. Come, shall we goe and kill vs venison?
And yet it irkes me the poore dapled fooles
Being native Burgers of this desert City,
Should in their owne confines with forked heads
Haue their round haunches goard.

1. Lord. Indeed my Lord
The melancholy Iaques grieues at that,
And in that kinde sweares you doe more vsurpe
Then doth your brother that hath banish'd you
To day my Lord of Amiens, and my selfe,
Did steale behinde him as he lay along
Vnder an oake, whose antick roote peepes out
Vpon the brooke that brawles along this wood,
To the which place a poore sequestred Stag
That from the Hunters aime had tane a hurt,
Did come to languish; and indeed my Lord
The wretched annimall heau'd forth such groanes
That their discharge did stretch his leatherne coat
Almost to bursting, and the big round teares
Cours'd one another downe his innocent nose
In piteous chase: and thus the hairie foole,
Much marked of the melancholie Iaques,
Stood on th' extremest verge of the swift brooke,
Augmenting it with teares.

Du. Sen. But what said Iaques?
Did he not moralize this spectacle?

1. Lord. O yes, into a thousand similies.
First, for his weeping into the needlesse streame;
Poore Deere quoth he, thou mak'st a testament
As worldlings doe giuing thy sum of more
To that which had too much: then being there alone,
Left and abandoned of his veluet friend;
'Tis right quoth he, thus misorie doth part
The Flixe of companie: anon a careleese Heard
Full of the pasture, iumps along by him
And neuer stayes to greet him: I quoth Iaques, Sweepe on you fat and greazie Citizens,
'Tis iust the fashion: wherefore doe you looke
Vpon that poore and broken bankrupt there?
Thus most inuectiuely he pierceth through
The body of Country, Citie, Court.
Yea, and of this our life, swearing that we
Are meere vsurpers, tyrants, and what's worse
To fright the Animals, and to kill them vp
In their assign'd and native dwelling place.

D. Sen. And did you leaue him in this contemplation?

2. Lord. We did my Lord, weeping and commenting Vpon the sobbing Deere.

Du. Sen. Show me the place,
I loue to cope him in these sullen fits,
For then he's full of matter.

1 Lor. Ile bring you to him strait. Exeunt.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Duke, with Lords.

Duk. Can it be possible that no man saw them?
It cannot be, some villaines of my Court
Are of consent and sufferance in this

1. Lo. I cannot heare of any that did see her.
The Ladies her attendants of her chamber
Saw her a bed, and in the morning early,
They found the bed vntreasur'd of their Mistris

2. Lor. My Lord, the roynish Clown, at whom so
Your Grace was wont to laugh is also miſſing,
Hisperia the Princesse Centlewoman
Confesses that she secretly ore-heard
Your daughter and her Cosen much commend
The parts and graces of the Wrastler
That did but lately foile the sinowie Charles,
And she beleeues where euer they are gone
That youth is surely in their companie

Duk. Send to his brother, fetch that gallant hither,
If he be absent, bring his Brother to me,
Ile make him finde him: do this suddainly,
And let not search and inquisition quaile,
To bring againe these foolish runawaies. Exeunt.

Scena Tertia.

Enter Orlando and Adam.

Orl. Who's there?

Ad. What my yong Master, oh my gentle master,
Oh my sweet master, O you memorie
Of old Sir Rowland; why, what make you here?
Why are you vertuous? Why do people loue you?
And wherefore are you gentle, strong, and valiant?
Why would you be so fond to ouercome
The bonnie priser of the humorous Duke?
Your praise is come too swiftly home before you.
Know you not Master, to seeme kinde of men,
Their graces serue them but as enemies,
No more doe yours: your vertues gentle Master
Are sanctified and holy traitors to you
Oh what a world is this, when what is comely
Enuenoms him that beares it?
Why, what's the matter?

Ad. O vnhappie youth,
Come not within these doores: within this roofe
The enemie of all your graces liues
Your brother, no, no brother, yet the sonne
(Yet not the son, I will not call him son)
Of him I was about to call his Father,
Hath heard your praises, and this night he meanes,
To burne the lodging where you vse to lye,
And you within it: if he faile of that

He

her meanes to cut you off,
: and his practiſes:
, this houſe is but a butchetie,
t it, doe not enter it.
hether Adam would'ſt thou haue me got tter whether, ſo you come not here.
ould'ſt thou haue me goe beg my food,
nd boiſtrous Sword enforce
g on the common rode?
or know not what to do:
not do, do how I can,
ieſt me to the malice
lood, and bloudie brother,
not ſo: I haue fiue hundred Crownes,
t I ſaued vnder your Father,
ore to be my noſter Nurſe, ſhould in my old limbs lie lame,
d age in corners throwne,
he that doth the Rauens feede,
y caters for the Sparrow,
my age: here is the gold,
ou, let me be your ſeruant,
e old, yet I am ſtrong and luſtie:
h I neuer did apply
ious liquors in my bloud, ith vnbaſhfull forehead woe,
weakneſſe and debilitie,
ge is as a luſtie winter,
idely; let me goe with you,
ice of a younger man
neſſe and neceſſities.
od old man, how well in thee appeares
eruice of the antique world, ſweate for dutie, not for meede:
t the faſhion of theſe times,
ill ſweate, but for promotion,
t do ehoake their ſeruice vp.
hauing, it is not ſo with thee:
man, thou prun'ſt a rotten tree,
much as a bloſſome yeelde,
y paines and husbandrie,
weet, weede goe along together,
e thy youthfull wages ſpent,
on ſome ſetled low content.
goe on, and I will follow thee
e with truth and loyaltie, yeeres, till now almoſt fourteſcore
t now liue here no more yeeres, many their fortunes ſeeke ore, it is too late a weeke, noſt recompence me better
ll, and not my Maſters debter. Exeunt.

Scena Quarta.

ine for Cominell, Celia for Aliena, and Clowne, alias Touchſtone.

ue, how merry are my ſpirits?
not for my ſpirits, if my legges were not

d finde in my heart to diſgrace my mans
o cry like a woman: but I muſt comfort

the weaker veſſell, as doublet and hoſe ought to ſhow it ſelfe courgious to petty-coate; therefore courage, good Aliena.

Cel. I pray you beare with me, I cannot goe no further.

Clo. For my part, I had rather beare with you, then beare you: yet I ſhould beare no croſſe if I did beare you, for I thinke you haue no money in your purſe.

Roſ. Well, this is the Forreſt of Arden.

Clo. I, now am I in Arden, the more foole I, when I was at home I was in a better place, but Trauellers muſt be content.

Enter Corin and Silvius.

Roſ. I, be ſo good Touchſtone: Look you, who comes here, a yong man and an old in ſolemne talke.

Cor. That is the way to make her ſcorne you ſtill.

Sil. Oh Corin, that thou knew'ſt how I do loue her.

Cor. I partly gueſſe: for I haue lou'd ere now.

Sil. No Corin, being old, thou canſt not gueſſe,
Though in thy youth thou waſt as true a louer
As euer ſigh'd vpon a midnight pillow:
But if thy loue were euer like to mine,
As ſure I thinke did neuer man loue ſo:
How many actions moſt ridiculous,
Haſt thou beene drawne to by thy fantaſie?

Cor. Into a thouſand that I haue forgotten.

Sil. Oh thou didſt then neuer loue ſo hartily
If thou remembreſt not the ſlighteſt folly,
That euer loue did make thee run into,
Thou haſt not lou'd.
Or if thou haſt not ſat as I doe now,
Wearing thy hearer in thy Miſtris praiſe.
Thou haſt not lou'd.
Or if thou haſt not broke from companie,
Abruptly as my paſſion now makes me,
Thou haſt not lou'd.
O Phebe, Phebe, Phebe Exit.

Roſ. Alas poore Shepheard ſearching of they would, I haue by hard aduenture found mine owne.

Clo. And I mine: I remember when I was in loue, I broke my ſword vpon a ſtone, and bid him take that for comming a night to Iane Smile, and I remember the kiſſing of her batler, and the Cowes dugs that her prettie chopt hands had milk'd; and I remember the wooing of a peaſcod inſtead of her, from whom I tooke two cods, and giuing her them againe, ſaid with weeping teares, weare theſe for my ſake: wee that are true Louers, runne into ſtrange capers; but as all is mortall in nature, ſo is all nature in loue, mortall in folly.

Roſ. Thou ſpeak'ſt wiſer then thou art ware of.

Clo. Nay, I ſhall nere be ware of mine owne wit, till I breake my ſhins againſt it.

Roſ. Ioue, Ioue, this Shepherds paſſion,
Is much vpon my faſhion.

Clo. And mine, but it growes ſomething ſtale with mee.

Cel. I pray you, one of you queſtion yon'd man,
If he for gold will giue vs any foode,
I faint almoſt to death.

Clo. Holla; you Clowne.

Roſ. Peace foole, he's not thy kinſman.

Cor. Who cals?

Clo. Your betters Sir.

Cor. Elſe are they very wretched.

Roſ. Peace

Ros. Peace I say; good euen to your friend.
Cor. And to you gentle Sir, and to you all.
Ros. I prethee Shepheard, if that loue or gold
Can in this desert place buy entertainment,
Bring vs where we may rest our selues, and feed.
Here's a yong maid with trauaile much oppressed,
And faints for succour.
Cor. Faire Sir, I pittie her,
And wish for her sake more then for mine owne,
My fortunes were more able to releeue her:
But I am shepheard to another man,
And do not sheere the Fleeces that I graze:
My master is of churlish disposition,
And little weakes to finde the way to heauen
By doing deeds of hospitalitie.
Besides his Coate, his Flocker, and bounds of feede
Are now on sale, and at our sheep-coat now
By reason of his absence there is nothing
That you will feed on: but what is, come see,
And in my voice most welcome shall you be
Ros. What is he that shall buy his flocke and pasture?
Cor. That yong Swaine that you saw heere but erewhile,
That little cares for buying any thing.
Ros. I pray thee, if it stand with honestie,
Buy thou the Cottage, pasture, and the flocke,
And thou shalt haue to pay for it of vs.
Cel. And we will mend thy wages:
I like this place, and willingly could
Waste my time in it.
Cor. Assuredly the thing is to be sold:
Go with me, if you like vpon report,
The soile, the profit, and this kinde of life,
I will your very faithfull Feeder be.
And buy it with your Gold right sodainly. Exeunt.

Scena Quinta.

Enter, Amyens, Iaques, & others.

Song.

Vnder the greene wood tree,
who loues to lye with mee,
And turne his merrie Note,
vnto the sweet Birds throte
Come hither, come hither, come hither:
Heere shall he see no enemie,
But Winter and rough Weather.

Iaq. More, more, I prethee more.
Amy. It will make you melancholly Monsieur Iaques
Iaq. I thanke it: More, I prethee more,
I can sucke melancholly out of a song,
As a Weazel suckes eggs: More, I prethee more.
Amy. My voice is ragged, I know I cannot please you.
Iaq. I do not desire you to please me,
I do desire you to sing:
Come, more, another stanzo: Cal you'em stanzo's.
Amy. What you wil Monsieur Iaques.
Iaq. Nay, I care not for their names, they owe me nothing. Wil you sing?
Amy. More at your request, then to please my selfe.
Iaq. Well then, if euer I thanke any man, Ile thanke you: but that they cal complement is like th'encounter of two dog-Apes. And when a man thankes me hartily, me thinkes I haue giuen him a penie, and he renders me the beggerly thankes. Come sing; and you that will not hold your tongues.
Amy. Wel, Ile end the song. Sirs, couer the while, the Duke wil drinke vnder this tree; he hath bin all this day to looke you.
Iaq. And I haue bin all this day to auoid him:
He is too disputeable for my companie:
I thanke of as many matters as he, but I giue
Heauen thankes, and make no boast of them.
Come, warble, come

Song. All together heere.
Who doth ambition shunne,
and loues to liue i'th Sunne
Seeking the food he eates, and pleas'd with what he gets:
Come hither, come hither, come hither,
Heere shall he see, &c.

Iaq. Ile giue you a verse to this note,
That I made yesterday in despight of my Inuention.
Amy. And Ile sing it.
Amy. Thus it goes.
If it do come to passe, that any man turne Asse:
Leauing his wealth and ease,
A stubborne will to please,
Ducdame ducdame, ducdame:
Heere shall he see grosse fooles as he,
And if he will come to me.
Amy. What's that Ducdame?
Iaq. 'Tis a Greeke inuocation to call fooles into a circle. Ile go sleepe if I can: if I cannot, Ile raile against all the first borne of Egypt.
Amy. And Ile go seeke the Duke,
His banket is prepar'd. Exeunt

Scena Sexta.

Enter Orlando, & Adam.

Adam. Deere Master, I can go no further:
O I die for food. Heere lie I downe,
And measure out my graue. Farewel kinde master.
Orl. Why how now Adam? No greater heart in thee:
Liue a little, comfort a little, cheere thy selfe a little.
If this vncouth Forrest yeeld any thing sauage,
I will either be food for it, or bring it for foode to thee
Thy conceite is nearer death, then thy powers.
For my sake be comfortable, hold death a while
At the armes end: I will heere be with thee presently,
And if I bring thee not something to eate,
I will giue thee leaue to die: but if thou diest
Before I come, thou art a mocker of my labor.
Well said, thou look'st cheerely,
And Ile be with thee quickly: yet thou liest
In the bleake aire. Come, I will beare thee
To some shelter, and thou shalt not die
For lacke of a dinner,
If there liue any thing in this Desert.
Cheerely good Adam. Exeunt
Seruus

Du. Sen. True is it, that we haue seene better dayes
And haue with holy bell bin knowld to Church,
And sat at good mens feasts, and wip'd our eies
Of drops, that sacred pity hath engendred:
And therefore sit you downe in gentlenesse,
And take vpon command, what helpe we haue
That to your wanting may be ministred.

Orl. Then but forbeare your food a little while:
Whiles (like a Doe) I go to finde my Fawne,
And giue it food. There is an old poore man,
Who after me, hath many a weary steppe
Limpt in pure loue: till he be first suffic'd,
Oppresst with two weake euils, age, and hunger,
I will not touch a bit.

Duke Sen. Go finde him out.
And we will nothing waste till you returne.

Orl. I thanke ye, and be blest for your good comfort.

Du Sen. Thou seest, we are not all alone vnhappie:
This wide and vniuersall Theater
Presents more wofull Pageants then the Scenne
Wherein we play in.

Ia. All the worlde's a stage,
And all the men and women, meerely Players;
They haue their Exits and their Entrances,
And one man in his time playes many parts,
His Acts being seuen ages. At first the Infant,
Mewling, and puking in the Nurses armes
Then, the whining Schoole-boy with his Satchell
And shining morning face, creeping like snaile
Vnwillingly to schoole. And then the Louer,
Sighing like Furnace, with a wofull ballad
Made to his Mistresse eye-brow. Then, a Soldier,
Full of strange oaths, and bearded like the Pard,
Iealous in honor, sodaine, and quicke in quarrell,
Seeking the bubble Reputation
Euen in the Cannons mouth: And then, the Iustice,
In faire round belly, with good Capon lin'd,
With eyes seuere, and beard of formall cut,
Full of wise sawes, and moderne instances,
And so he playes his part. The fift age shifts
Into the leane and slipper'd Pantaloone,
With spectacles on nose, and pouch on side,
His youthfull hose well sau'd, a world too wide,
For his shrunke shanke, and his big manly voice,
Turning againe toward childish treble pipes,
And whistles in his sound. Last Scene of all,
That ends this strange euentfull historie,
Is second childishnesse, and meere obliuion,
Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans euery thing.

Enter Orlando with Adam.

Du Sen. Welcome: set downe your venerable burthen, and let him feede.

Orl. I thanke you most for him

Ad. So had you neede,
I scarce can speake to thanke you for my selfe.

Du. Sen. Welcome, fall too: I will not trouble you,
As yet to question you about your fortunes:
Giue vs some Musicke, and good Cozen, sing.

Song.

'Blow, blow, thou winter winde,
Thou art not so vnkinde, as mans ingratitude
Thy tooth is not so keene, because thou art not seene, although thy breath be rude.
Heigh ho, sing heigh ho, vnto the greene holly,
Most friendship, is feyning: most louing, meere folly:
Then heigh ho, the holly,
This Life is most holly.

Freize, freize, thou bitter skie that dost not bight so nigh
as benefits forgot:
Though thou the waters warpe, thy sting is not so sharpe, as friend remembred not
Heigh ho sing &c.

Duke Sen. If that you were the good Sir Rowlands sonne,
As you haue whisper'd faithfully you were,
And as mine eye doth his effigies witnesse,
Most truly limn'd, and liuing in your face,
Be truly welcome hither: I am the Duke
That lou'd your Father, the residue of your fortune,
Go to my Cane, and tell me. Good old man,
Thou art right welcome, as thy master is:
Support him by the arme: giue me your hand,
And let me all your fortunes vnderstand. Exeunt.

Actus Tertius. Scena Prima.

Enter Duke, Lords, & Oliuer.

Du. Not see him since? Sir, sir, that cannot be:
But were I not the better part made mercie,
I should not seeke an absent argument
Of my reuenge, thou present: but looke to it,
Finde out thy brother wheresoere he is,
Seeke him with Candle: bring him dead, or liuing
Within this twelue month, or turne thou no more
To seeke a liuing in our Territorie.
Thy Lands and all things that thou dost call thine,
Worth seizure, do we seize into our hands,
Till thou canst quit thee by thy brothers mouth,
Of what we thinke against thee.

Oli. Oh that your Highnesse knew my heart in this:
I neuer lou'd my brother in my life.

Duke. More villaine thou. Well push him out of doors
And let my officers of such a nature
Make an extent vpon his house and Landes:
Do this expediently, and turne him going. Exeunt

Scena Secunda.

Enter Orlando.

Orl. Hang there my verse, in witnesse of my loue,
And thou thrice crowned Queene of night survey
With thy chaste eye, from thy pale sphearc above
Thy Huntresse name, that my full life doth sway.
O Rosalind, these Trees shall be my Bookes,
And in their barkes my thoughts Ile charracter,
That euerie eye, which in this Forrest lookes,
Shall see thy vertue witnesse euery where
Run, run Orlando, carue on euery Tree,
The faire, the chaste, and vnexpressiue shee. Exit

Enter Corin & Clowne.

Co. And how like you this shepherds life M^r^ Touchstone?

Clo.

Clow. Truely Shepheard, in respect of it selfe, it is a good life; but in respect that it is a Shepheards life, it is naught. In respect that it is solitary, I like it verie well: but in respect that it is priuate, it is a very vild life. Now in respect it is in the fields, it pleaseth mee well: but in respect it is not in the Court, it is tedious. As it is a spare life (looke you) it fits my humor well: but as there is no more plentie in it, it goes much against my stomacke. Hast any Philosophie in thee shepheard?

Cor. No more, but that I know the more one sickens, the worse at ease he is: and that hee that wants money, meanes, and content, is without three good friends. That the propertie of raine is to wet, and fire to burne: That good pasture makes fat sheepe: and that a great cause of the night, is lacke of the Sunne: That hee that hath learned no wit by Nature, nor Art, may complaine of good breeding, or comes of a very dull kindred.

Clo. Such a one is a naturall Philosopher Wast ever in Court, Shepheard?

Cor. No truly.

Clo. Then thou art damn'd.

Cor. Nay, I hope.

Clo. Truly thou art damn'd, like an ill roasted Egge, all on one side.

Cor. For not being at Court? your reason.

Clo. Why, if thou never wast at Court, thou never saw'st good manners: if thou never saw'st good maners, then thy manners must be wicked, and wickednes is sin, and sinne is damnation. Thou art in a parlous state shepheard.

Cor. Not a whit Touchstone, those that are good maners at the Court, are as ridiculous in the Countrey, as the behauiour of the Countrie is most mockeable at the Court. You told me, you salute not at the Court, but you kisse your hands; that courtesie would be vncleanlie if Courtiers were shepheards.

Clo. Instance, briefly: come, instance.

Cor. Why we are still handling our Ewes, and their Fels you know are greasie.

Clo. Why do not your Courtiers hands sweate? and is not the greasie of a Mutton, as wholesome as the sweat of a man? Shallow, shallow: A better instance I say: Come.

Cor. Besides, our hands are hard.

Clo. Your lips will feele them the sooner. Shallow again: a more sounder instance, come.

Cor. And they are often tarr'd ouer, with the surgery of our sheepe: and would you haue vs kisse Tarre? The Courtiers hands are perfum'd with Ciuet.

Clo. Most shallow man: Thou wormes meate in respect of a good peece of flesh indeed: learne of the wise and perpend: Ciuet is of a baser birth then Tarre, the verie vncleanly flirt of a Cat. Mend the instance Shepheard.

Cor. You haue too Courtly a wit, for me, Ile rest.

Clo. Wilt thou rest damn'd? God helpe thee shallow man: God make incision in thee, thou art raw.

Cor. Sir, I am a true Labourer, I earne that I eate: get that I weare; owe no man hate, enuie no mans happinesse: glad of other mens good content with my harme: and the greatest of my pride, is to see my Ewes graze, & my Lambes sucke.

Clo. That is another simple sinne in you, to bring the Ewes and the Rammes together, and to offer to get your liuing, by the copulation of Cattle, to be bawd to a Bell-weather, and to betray a shee-Lambe of a twelue-month to a crooked-pated olde Cuckoldly Ramme, out of all reasonable match. If thou bee'st not damn'd for this, the diuell himselfe will haue no shepherds, I cannot see else how thou shouldst scape.

Cor. Here comes yong Mr Ganimed, my new Mistris's Brother.

Enter Rosalind.

Ros. From the east to westerne Inde,
no iewel is like Rosalinde,
Her worth being mounted on the winde,
through all the world beares Rosalinde.
All the pictures fairest lin'de,
are but blacke to Rosalinde:
Let no face be kept in mind,
but the faire of Rosalinde.

Cle. Ile time you so, eight yeares together; dinners, and suppers, and sleeping houres excepted: it is the right Butter-womens ranke to Market.

Ros. Out Foole.

Cle. For a taste.

If a Hart doe lacke a Hinde,
Let him seeke out Rosalinde:
If the Cat will after kinde,
so be sure will Rosalinde:
Wintred garments must be linde,
so must slender Rosalinde:
They that reap must sheafe and binde,
then to cart with Rosalinde.
Sweetest nut, hath sowrest rinde,
such a nut is Rosalinde.
He that sweetest rose will finde, must finde Loues pricke, & Rosalinde.

This is the verie false gallop of Verses, why doe you infect your selfe with them?

Ros. Peace you dull foole, I found them on a tree.

Clo. Truely the tree yeelds bad fruit.

Ros. Ile graffe it with you, and then I shall graffe it with a Medler: then it will be the earliest fruit i'th country: for you'l be rotten ere you bee halfe ripe, and that's the right vertue of the Medler.

Clo. You haue said: but whether wisely or no, let the Forrest iudge.

Enter Celia with a writing.

Ros. Peace, here comes my sister reading, stand aside.

Cel. why should this Desert bee,
for it is vnpeopled? No:
Tongues Ile hang on euerie tree,
that shall ciuill sayings show.
Some, how briefe the Life of man runs his erring pilgrimage,
That the stretching of a span, buckles in his summe of age
Some of violated vowes,
twixt the soules of friend, and friends
But vpon the fairest boughes, or at euerie sentence end;
Will I Rosalinda write,
teaching all that reade, to know
The quintessence of euerie sprite, heauen would in little show.
Therefore heauen Nature charg'd, that one bodie should be fill'd
With all Graces wide-enlarg'd, nature presently distill'd

Helens cheeke, but not his heart,
Cleopatra's Maieſtie:
Attalanta's better part,
ſad Lucretia's Modeſtie.
Thus Roſalinde of many parts,
by Heauenly Synode was deuis'd,
Of many faces, eyes, and hearts,
to haue the touches deereſt priz'd.
Heauen would that ſhee theſe gifts ſhould haue,
and I to liue and die her ſlaue.

Roſ. O moſt gentle Iupiter, what tedious homilie of Loue haue you wearied your pariſhioners withall, and neuer cri'de, haue patience good people.

Cel. How now backe friends: Shepheard, go off a little: go with him ſirrah.

Clo. Come Shepheard, let vs make an honorable retrait, though not with bagge and baggage, yet with ſcrip and ſcrippage. Exeunt.

Cel. Didſt thou heare theſe verſes?

Roſ. O yes, I heard them all, and more too, for ſome of them had in them more feete then the Verſes would beare.

Cel. That's no matter: the feet might beare y verſes.

Roſ. I, but the feet were lame, and could not beare themſelues without the verſe, and therefore ſtood lamely in the verſe.

Cel. But didſt thou heare without wondering, how thy name ſhould be hang'd and carued vpon theſe trees?

Roſ. I was ſeuen of the nine daies out of the wonder, before you came: for looke heere what I found on a Palme tree; I was neuer ſo berim'd ſince Pythagoras time that I was an Iriſh Rat, which I can hardly remember.

Cel. Tro you, who hath done this?

Roſ. Is it a man?

Cel. And a chaine that you once wore about his neck: change you colour?

Roſ. I pre'thee who?

Cel. O Lord, Lord, it is a hard matter for friends to meete; but Mountaines may bee remoou'd with Earthquakes, and ſo encounter.

Roſ. Nay, but who is it?

Cel. Is it poſſible?

Roſ. Nay, I pre'thee now, with moſt petitionary vehemence, tell me who it is.

Cel. O wonderfull, wonderfull, and moſt wonderfull wonderfull, and yet againe wonderfull, and after that out of all hooping.

Roſ. Good my complection, doſt thou think though I am capariſon'd like a man, I haue a doublet and hoſe in my diſpoſition? One inch of delay more, is a South-ſea of diſcouerie. I pre'thee tell me, who is it quickely, and ſpeake apace: I would thou couldſt ſtammer, that thou might ſt powre this conceal'd man out of thy mouth, as Wine comes out of a narrow-mouth'd bottle: either too much at once, or none at all. I pre'thee take the Corke out of thy mouth, that I may drinke thy tydings.

Cel. So you may put a man in your belly.

Roſ. Is he of Gods making? What manner of man? Is his head worth a hat? Or his chin worth a beard?

Cel. Nay, he hath but a little beard.

Roſ. Why God will ſend more, if the man will bee thankful: let me ſtay the growth of his beard, if thou delay me not the knowledge of his chin.

Cel. It is yong Orlando, that tript vp the Wraſtlers heeles, and your heart, both in an inſtant.

Roſ. Nay, but the diuell take mocking: ſpeake ſadde brow, and true maid

Cel. I'faith (Coz) tis he.

Roſ. Orlando?

Cel. Orlando.

Roſ. Alas the day, what ſhall I do with my doublet & hoſe? What did he when thou ſaw'ſt him? What ſayde he? How look'd he? Wherein went he? What makes him heere? Did he aske for me? Where remaines he? How parted he with thee? And when ſhalt thou ſee him againe? Anſwer me in one vvord.

Cel. You muſt borrow me Garganteas mouth firſt: 'tis a Word too great for any mouth of this Ages ſize, to ſay I and no, to theſe particulars, is more then to anſwer in a Catechiſme.

Roſ. But doth he know that I am in this Forreſt, and in mans apparrell? Looks he as freſhly, as he did the day he Wraſtled?

Cel. It is as eaſie to count Atomies as to reſolue the propoſitions of a Louer: but take a taſte of my finding him, and reliſh it with good obſeruance. I found him vnder a tree like a drop'd Acorne.

Roſ. It may vvel be cal'd Ioues tree, when it droppes forth fruite.

Cel. Giue me audience, good Madam.

Roſ. Proceed.

Cel. There lay hee ſtretch'd along like a Wounded knight.

Roſ. Though it be pittie to ſee ſuch a ſight, it vvell becomes the ground.

Cel. Cry holla, to the tongue, I pre'thee: it curuetties vnſeaſonably. He was furniſh'd like a Hunter.

Roſ. O ominous, he comes to kill my Hart.

Cel. I would ſing my ſong without a burthen, thou bring'ſt me out of tune.

Roſ. Do you not know I am a woman, when I thinke, I muſt ſpeake: ſweet, ſay on.

Enter Orlando & Iaques.

Cel. You bring me out. Soft, comes he not heere?

Roſ. 'Tis he, ſlinke by, and note him.

Iaq I thanke you for your company, but good faith I had as liefe haue beene my ſelfe alone.

Orl. And ſo had I: but yet for faſhion ſake I thanke you too, for your ſocietie.

Iaq. God buy you, let's meet as little as we can.

Orl. I do deſire we may be better ſtrangers.

Iaq. I pray you marre no more trees vvith Writing Loue-ſongs in their barkes.

Orl. I pray you marre no moe of my verſes with reading them ill-fauouredly.

Iaq. Roſalinde is your loues name? Orl. Yes, Iuſt.

Iaq. I do not like her name.

Orl. There was no thought of pleaſing you when ſhe was chriſten'd.

Iaq. What ſtature is ſhe of?

Orl. Iuſt as high as my heart.

Iaq. You are ful of pretty anſwers: haue you not bin acquainted with goldſmiths wiues, & cond the out of rings?

Orl. Not ſo: but I anſwer you right painted cloth, from whence you haue ſtudied your queſtions.

Iaq. You haue a nimble wit; I thinke twas made of Attalanta's heeles. Will you ſitte downe with me, and wee two, will raile againſt our Miſtris the world, and all our miſerie.

Orl. I wil chide no breather in the world but my ſelfe

m I know moſt faults.
worſt fault you haue, is to be in loue.
a fault I will not change, for your beſt ver-tuous of you.
my troth, I was ſeeking for a Foole, when I is drown'd in the brooke, looke but in, and him.

re I ſhal ſee mine owne figure hich I take to be either a foole, or a Cipher.
tarrie no longer with you, farewell good fig-n glad of your departure: Adieu good Moncholly.

ll ſpeake to him like a ſawcie Lacky. and vn-bit play the knaue with him, do you heat For-rie wel, what would you? (reſter.
ray you, what i'ſt a clocke?
u ſhould aske me what time o'day: there's no e Forreſt.
en there is no true Louer in the Forreſt, elſe
ſtie minute and groaning ouerie houre wold lazie foot of time, as wel as a clocke nd why not the ſwift foote of time? Had not proper?
no meanes ſir; Time trauels in diuers paces, perſons: Ile tel you who Time ambles with-ime trots withal, who Time gallops withal, e ſtands ſtil withall.
reether, who doth he trot withal?
larry he trots hard with a yong maid, between t of her marriage, and the day it is ſolemnized:
im be but a ſennight, Times pace is ſo hard,
nes the length of ſeuen yeare.
Who ambles Time withal?
With a Prieſt that lacks Latine, and a rich man not the Gowt: for the one ſleepes eaſily beinnot ſtudy, and the other liues merrily beeles no paine: the one lacking the burthen of waſteful Learnings the other knowing no bur-ame tedious penurie. Theſe Time ambles

Who doth he gallop withal?
With a theefe to the gallowes: for though hee
a foot can fall, he thinkes himſelfe too ſoon

Who ſtaies it ſtil withal?
With Lawiers in the vacation: for they ſleepe Terme and Terme, and then they perceiue not-moues.
Where dwel you prettie youth?
With that Shepheardeſſe my ſiſter: heere in e Forreſt, like fringe vpon a petticoat.
Are you native of this place?
a the Conie that you ſee dwell where ſhee is our accent is ſomething finer, then you could ſo remoued a dwelling

haue bin told ſo of many: but indeed, an olde Wickle of mine taught me to ſpeake, who was h an inland man, one that knew Courtſhip too there he fel in loue. I haue heard him read maa gainſt it, and I thanke God, I am not a Wo-touch'd with ſo many giddie offences as hee rally tax'd their whole ſex withal.
Can you remember any of the principall euils,

that he laid to the charge of women?

Roſ. There were none principal, they were all like one another, as halfe pence are, euerie one fault ſeeming monſtrous, til his fellow-fault came to match it.

Orl. I prethee recount ſome of them.

Roſ. No: I wil not caſt away my phyſick, but on thoſe that are ſicke. There is a man haunts the Forreſt, that abuſes our yong plants with caruing Roſalinde on their barkes; hangs Oades vpon Hauthornes, and Elegies on brambles; all (forſooth) defying the name of Roſalinde. If I could meet that Fancie-monger, I would giue him ſome good counſel, for he ſeemes to haue the Quotidian of Loue vpon him.

Orl. I am he that is ſo Loue-ſhak'd, I pray you tel me your remedie.

Roſ. There is none of my Vncles markes vpon you: he taught me how to know a man in loue: in which cage of rufhes, I am ſure you are not priſoner.

Orl. What were his markes?

Roſ. A leane cheeke, which you haue not: a blew eie and ſunken, which you haue not: an vnqueſtionable ſpirit, which you haue not: a beard neglected, which you haue not: (but I pardon you for that, for ſimply your hauing in beard, is a yonger brothers reuennew) then your hoſe ſhould be vngarter'd, your bonnet vnbanded, your ſleeue vnbutton'd, your ſhoo vnti'de, and euerie thing about you, demonſtrating a careleſſe deſolation: but you are no ſuch man; you are rather point deuice in your accouſtrements, as louing your ſelfe, then ſeeming the Louer of any other. (I Loue.

Orl. Faire youth, I would I could make thee beleeue

Roſ. Me beleeue it? You may aſſoone make her that you Loue beleeue it, which I warrant ſhe is apter to do then to confeſſe ſhe do's: that is one of the points, in the which women ſtil giue the lie to their conſciences. But in good ſooth, are you he that hangs the verſes on the Trees, wherein Roſalind is ſo admired?

Orl. I ſweare to thee youth, by the white hand of Roſalind, I am that he, that vnfortunate he.

Roſ. But are you ſo much in loue, as your rimes ſpeak?

Orl. Neither rime nor reaſon can expreſſe how much.

Roſ. Loue is meerely a madneſſe, and I tel you, deſerues as wel a darke houſe, and a whip, as madmen do: and the reaſon why they are not ſo puniſh'd and cured, is that the Lunacie is ſo ordinatie, that the whippers are in loue too: yet I profeſſe curing it by counſel.

Orl. Did you euer cure any ſo?

Roſ. Yes one, and in this manner. Hee was to imagine me his Loue, his Miſtris: and I ſet him euerie day to woe me. At which time would I, being but a moonish youth, grieue, be effeminate, changeable, longing, and liking, proud, fantaſtical, apiſh, ſhallow, inconſtant, ful of teares, full of ſmiles; for euerie paſſion ſomething, and for no paſſion truly any thing, as boyes and women are for the moſt part, cattle of this colour: would now like him, now loath him: then entertaine him, then forſweare him: now weepe for him, then ſpit at him; that I driue my Suitor from his mad humor of loue, to a liuing humor of madneſſe, & was to forſweare the ful ſtream of y world, and to liue in a nooke merely Monaſtick: and thus I cur'd him, and this way wil I take vpon mee to waſh your Liuer as cleane as a ſound ſheepes heart, that there ſhal not be one ſpot of Loue in't.

Orl. I would not be cured, youth.

Roſ. I would cure you, if you would but call me Roſalind, and come euerie day to my Cote, and woe me.

Orlan. Now by the faith of my loue, I will ; Tel me where it is.

Ros. Go with me to it, and Ile shew it you: and by the way, you shal tell me where in the Forrest you liue: Wil you go?

Orl. With all my heart, good youth.

Ros. Nay, you must call mee Rosalind: Come sister, will you go? Exeunt.

Scœna Tertia.

Enter Clowne, Audrey, & Iaques.

Clo Come apace good Audrey, I wil fetch vp your Goates, Audrey: and how Audrey am I the man yet? Doth my simple feature content you?

Aud. Your features, Lord warrant vs: what features?

Clo. I am heere with thee, and thy Goats, as the most capricious Poet honest Ouid was among the Gothes.

Iaq. O knowledge ill inhabited, worse then Ioue in a thatch'd house.

Clo. When a mans verses cannot be vnderstood, nor a mans good wit seconded with the forward childe, vnderstandings it strikes a man more dead then a great reckoning in a little roome: truly, I would the Gods hadde made thee poeticall.

Aud. I do not know what Poetical is: is it honest in deed and word: is it a true thing?

Clo. No truly: for the truest poetrie is the most faining, and Louers are giuen to Poetrie: and what they sweare in Poetrie, may be said as Louers, they do feigne.

Aud. Do you wish then that the Gods had made me Poeticall?

Clow. I do truly: for thou swear'st to me thou art honest: Now if thou wert a Poet, I might haue some hope thou didst feigne.

Aud. Would you not haue me honest?

Clo. No truly, vnlesse thou wert hard fauour'd: for honestie coupled to beautie, is to haue Honie a sawce to Sugar.

A materiall foole.

Aud. Well, I am not faire, and therefore I pray the Gods make me honest.

Clo. Truly, and to cast away honestie vppon a foule slut, were to put good meate into an vncleane dish.

Aud. I am not a slut, though I thanke the Goddes I am foule.

Clo. Well, praised be the Gods, for thy foulnesse, sluttishnesse may come hereafter. But be it, as it may bee, I will marrie thee: and to that end, I haue bin with Sir Oliuer Mar-text, the Vicar of the next village, who hath promis'd to meete me in this place of the Forrest, and to couple vs.

Iaq. I would faine see this meeting.

Aud. Wel, the Gods giue vs ioy.

Clo. Amen. A man may if he were of a fearful heart stagger in this attempt: for heere wee haue no Temple but the wood, no assembly but horne-beasts. But what though? Courage. As hornes are odious, they are necessarie. It is said, many a man knowes no end of his goods; right: Many a man has good Hornes, and knowes no end of them. Well, that is the dowrie of his wife, 'tis none of his owne getting; hornes, euen so poore men alone? No, no, the noblest Deere hath them as huge as the Rascall: Is the single man therefore blessed? No, as a walled Towne is more worthier then a village, so is the forehead of a married man, more honourable then the bare brow of a Batchellor: and by how much defence is better then no skill, by so much is a horne more precious then to want.

Enter Sir Oliuer Mar-text.

Heere comes Sir Oliuer: Sir Oliuer Mar-text you are wel met. Will you dispatch vs heere vnder this tree, or shal we go with you to your Chappell?

Ol. Is there none heere to giue the woman?

Clo. I wil not take her on guift of any man.

Ol. Truly she must be giuen, or the marriage is not lawfull.

Iaq. Proceed, proceede: Ile giue her.

Clo. Good euen good M^r^ what ye cal't: how do you Sir, you are verie well met: goddild you for your last companie, I am verie glad to see you, euen a toy in hand heere Sir: Nay, pray be couer'd.

Iaq. Wil you be married, Motley?

Clo. As the Oxe hath his bow sir, the horse his curb, and the Falcon her bels, so man hath his desires, and as Pigeons bill, so wedlocke would be nibling.

Iaq. And wil you (being a man of your breeding) be married vnder a bush like a beggar? Get you to church, and haue a good Priest that can tel you what marriage is, this fellow wil but ioyne you together, as they ioyne Wainscot, then one of you wil proue a shrenke pannell, and like greene timber, warpe, warpe.

Clo. I am not in the minde, but I were better to be married of him then of another, for he is not like to marrie me well: and not being wel married, it wil be a good excuse for me hereafter, to leaue my wife.

Iaq. Go thou with mee,
And let me counsel thee.

Ol. Come sweete Audrey,
We must be married, or we must liue in bawdrey:
Farewel good Mr Oliuer: Not O sweet Oliuer, O braue Oliuer leaue me not behind thee: But winde away, bee gone I say, I wil not to wedding with thee.

Ol. 'Tis no matter; Ne're a fantasticall knaue of them all shal flout me out of my calling. Exeunt

Scœna Quarta.

Enter Rosalind & Celia.

Ros. Neuer talke to me, I wil weepe.

Cel. Do I prethee, but yet haue the grace to consider, that teares do not become a man.

Ros. But haue I not cause to weepe?

Cel. As good cause as one would desire,
Therefore weepe.

Ros. His very haire
Is of the dissembling colour.

Cel. Something browner then Iudasses:
Marrie his kisses are Iudasses owne children.

Ros. I'faith his haire is of a good colour.

Cel. An excellent colour:
Your Chessenut was euer the onely colour:

Ros. And his kissing is as full of sanctitie,
As the touch of holy bread.

Cel.

bought a paire of caſt lips of Diana: a herhood kiſſes not more religiouſlie, ſtity is in them
did hee ſweare hee would come this es not?
inly there is no truth in him.
hinke ſo?
ke he is not a picke purſe, nor a horſe-s verity in loue, I doe thinke him as vd goblet, or a Worme-eaten nut.
n loue?
he is in, but I thinke he is not in.
heard him ſweare downright he was.
t is: beſides, the oath of Louer is no word of a Tapſter, they are both the reckonings, he attends here in the for-our father.
Duke yeſterday, and had much quet aske me of what parentage I was; I d as he, ſo he laugh'd and let mee goe.
c of Fathers, when there is ſuch a man

braue man, hee writes braue verſes, ds, ſweares braue oathes, and breakes te trauers athwart the heart of his lover, y ſpoes his horſe but on one ſide, ke a noble gooſe; but all's braue that
I folly guides: who comes heere?

Enter Corin.
e and Maſter, you haue oft enquired
ed that complain'd of loue,
ing by me on the Turph,
I diſdainfull Shepherdeſſe
reſſe.
I what of him?
ll ſee a pageant truely plaid
complexion of true Loue,
t of ſcorne and prowd diſdaine,
and I ſhall conduct you
t.
et vs remoue,
s feedeth thoſe in loue:
ght, and you ſhall ſay
ctor in their play. Exeunt.

Scena Quinta.

ter Siluius and Phebe.

he doe not ſcorne me, do not Phebe
ne not, but ſay not ſo
common executioner cuſtom'd ſight of death makes hard pon the humbled neck, on: will you eyther be
and liues by bloody drops?

Roſalind, Celia, and Corin.
oe be thy executioner,
ould not iniure thee:
re is murder in mine eye,
very probable,

That eyes that are the frailſt, and ſoftſt things,
Who ſhut their coward gates on atomyes,
Should be called tyrants, butchers, murtherers.
Now I doe frowne on thee with all my heart,
And if mine eyes can wound, now let them kill thee:
Now counterfeit to ſwound, why now fall downe,
Or if thou canſt not: oh for ſhame, for ſhame,
Lye not, to ſay mine eyes are murtherers:
Now ſhew the wound mine eye hath made in thee,
Scratch thee but with a pin, and there remaines
Some ſcarre of it: Leane vpon a ruſh
The Cicatrice and capable impreſſure
Thy palme ſome moment keepes: but now mine eyes
Which I haue darted at thee, hurt thee not,
Nor I am ſure there is no force in eyes
That can doe hurt.

Sil. O deere Phebe,
If euer (as that euer may be neere)
You meet in ſome freſh cheeke the power of fancie,
Then ſhall you know the wounds inuiſible
That Loues keene arrows make.

Phe. But till that time
Come not thou neere me: and when that time comes,
Afflict me with thy mockes, pitty me not,
As till that time I ſhall not pitty thee.

Roſ. And why I pray you? who might be your mother
That you inſult, exult, and all at once
Ouer the wretched? what though you haue no beauty
As by my faith, I ſee no more in you
Then without Candle may goe darke to bed:
Muſt you be therefore prowd and pittileſſe?
Why what meanes this? why do you looke on me?
I ſee no more in you then in the ordinary
Of Natures ſale-worke? 'ods my little life,
I thinke ſhe meanes to tangle my eies too:
No faith proud Miſtreſſe, hope not after it,
'Tis not your inkie browes, your blacke ſilke haire,
Your bugle eye-balls, nor your cheeke of creame
That can entame my ſpirits to your worſhip:
You fooliſh Shepheard, wherefore do you follow her
Like foggy South, puffing with winde and raine,
You are a thouſand times a properer man
Then ſhe a woman. 'Tis ſuch fooles as you
That makes the world full of ill-fauourd children:
'Tis not her glaſſe, but you that flatters her,
And out of you ſhe ſees her ſelfe more proper
Then any of her lineaments can ſhow her:
But Miſtris, know your ſelfe, downe on your knees
And thanke heauen, faſting, for a good mans loue;
For I muſt tell you friendly in your eare,
Sell when you can, you are not for all markets:
Cry the man mercy, loue him, take his offer,
Foule is moſt foule, being foule to be a ſcoffer
So take her to thee Shepheard, fare you well.

Phe. Sweet youth, I pray you chide a yere together,
I had rather here you chide, then this man wooe.

Roſ. Hees ſalne in loue with your foulneſſe, & ſhee'll
Fall in loue with my anger. If it be ſo, as faſt
As ſhe anſweres thee with frowning lookes, ile ſauce
Her with bitter words: why looke you ſo vpon me?

Phe. For no ill will I beare you.

Roſ. I pray you do not fall in loue with mee,
For I am falſer then vowes made in wine:
Beſides, I like you not: if you will know my houſe,
'Tis at the tuft of Oliues, here hard by:
Will you goe Sifter? Shepheard ply her hard:

Come

Come Sister: Shepherdesse, looke on him better
And be not proud, though all the world could see,
None could be so abus'd in sight as hee.
Come, to our flocke. Exit.

Phe. Dead Shepheard, now I find thy saw of might,
Who ever lov'd, that lou'd not at first sight?

Sil. Sweet Phebe.

Phe. Hah: what saist thou Silvius?

Sil. Sweet Phebe pitty me.

Phe. Why I am sorry for thee gentle Silvius.

Sil. Where ever sorrow is, reliefe would be:
If you doe sorrow at my griefe in loue,
By giuing loue your sorrow, and my griefe
Were both extermin'd.

Phe. Thou hast my loue, is not that neighbourly?

Sil. I would haue you.

Phe. Why that were courtousnesse:
Silvius; the time was, that I hated thee;
And yet it is not, that I beare thee loue,
But since that thou canst talke of loue so well,
Thy company, which erst was irkesome to me
I will endure; and lle employ thee too:
But doe not looke for further recompence
Then thine owne gladnesse, that thou art employd.

Sil. So holy, and so perfect is my loue,
And I in such a pouerty of grace,
That I shall thinke it a most plenteous crop
To gleane the broken eares after the man
That the maine harueſt reapes: loose now and then
A scattred smile, and that lle liue vpon. (while?

Phe. Knowst thou the youth that spoke to mee yere-

Sil. Not very well, but I haue met him oft,
And he hath bought the Cottage and the bounds
That the old Carlot once was Master of.

Phe. Thinke not I loue him, though I ask for him,
'Tis but a peeuish boy, yet he talkes well,
But what care I for words? yet words do well
When he that speakes them pleases those that heare:
It is a pretty youth, not very prettie,
But sure hee's proud, and yet his pride becomes him;
Hee'll make a proper man: the best thing in him
Is his complexion: and faster then his tongue
Did make offence, his eye did heale it vp:
He is not very tall, yet for his yeeres hee's tall:
His leg is but so so, and yet 'tis well:
There was a pretty redneſſe in his lip
A little riper, and more lustie red
Then that mixt in his checke: 'twas iust the difference
Betwixt the constant red, and mingled Damaske.
There be some women Silvius, had they markt him
In parcells as I did, would haue gone neere.
To fall in loue with him: but for my part
I loue him not, nor hate him not: and yet,
Haue more cause to hate him then to loue him.
For what had he to doe to chide at me?
He said mine eyes were black, and my haire blacke,
And now I am remembred, scorn'd at me a
I marueil why I answer'd not againe,
But that's all one: omittance is no quittance:
Ile write to him a very tanting Letter,
And thou shalt beare it, wilt thou Silvius?

Sil. Phebe, with all my heart.

Phe. Ile write it strait:
The matter's in my head, and in my heart,
I will be bitter with him, and passing short;
Goe with me Silvius. Exeunt

Actus Quartus: Scena Prima.

Enter Rosalind, and Celia, and Iaques.

Iaq. I prethee, pretty youth, let me better acquainted with thee.

Ros They say you are a melancholly fellow.

Iaq. I am so: I doe loue it better then laughing.

Ros. Those that are in extremity of either, are abhominable fellowes, and betray themselues to every moderne censure, worse then drunkards.

Iaq. Why, 'tis good to be sad and say nothing.

Ros. Why then 'tis good to be a poste.

Iaq. I haue neither the Schollers melancholy, which is emulation: nor the Musitians, which is fantasticall: nor the Courtiers, which is proud: nor the Souldiers, which is ambitious: nor the Lawiers, which is politicke: nor the Ladies, which is nice, nor the Louers, which is all these: but it is a melancholy of mine owne, compounded of many simples extracted from many obiects, and indeed the sundrie contemplation of my trauells, in which by often rumination, wraps me in a most humorous sadnesse.

Ros. A Traueller: by my faith you haue great reason to be sad; I feare you haue sold your owne Lands, to see other mens; then to haue seene much, and to haue nothing, is to haue rich eyes and poore hands.

Iaq. Yes, I haue gain'd my experience.

Enter Orlando.

Ros. And your experience makes you sad: I had rather haue a foole to make me merrie, then experience to make me sad, and to trauaile for it too.

Orl. Good day, and happinesse, deere Rosalind.

Iaq. Nay then God buy you, and you talke in blanke verse.

Ros. Farewell Monsieur Traueller: look you lispe, and weare strange suites; disable all the benefits of your owne Countrie: be out of loue with your natiuitie, and almost chide God for making you that countenance you are; or I will scarce thinke you haue swam in a Gundello. Why how now Orlando, where haue you bin all this while? you a louer? and you serue me such another tricke, neuer come in my sight more.

Orl. My faire Rosalind, I come within an houre of my promise.

Ros. Breake an houres promise in loue? hee that will diuide a minute into a thousand parts, and breake but a part of the thousand part of a minute in the affaires of loue, it may be said of him that Cupid hath clapt him o'th' shoulder, but lle warrant him heart hole.

Orl. Pardon me deere Rosalind.

Ros. Nay, and you be so tardie, come no more in my sight, I had as liefe be woo'd of a Snaile.

Orl. Of a Snaile?

Ros. I, of a Snaile: for though he comes slowly, hee carries his house on his head; a better iointure I thinke then you make a woman: besides, he brings his destinie with him

Orl. What's that?

Ros. Why hornes: which such as you are faine to be beholding to your wiues for: but he comes armed in his fortune, and preuents the slander of his wife.

Orl. Vertue

Orl. Verse is no horne-maker: and my Rosalind is vertuous.

Ros. And I am your Rosalind.

Cel. It pleases him to call you so: but he hath a Rosalind of a better leere then you.

Ros. Come, woo me, woo me: for now I am in a holy-day humor, and like enough to consent: What would you say to me now, and I were your verie, verie Rosalind?

Orl. I would kisse before I spoke.

Ros. Nay, you were better speake first, and when you were gravel'd, for lacke of matter, you might take occasion to kisse: verie good Orators when they are out, they will spit, and for lovers, lacking (God warne vs) matter, the cleanliest shift is to kisse.

Orl. How if the kisse be denide?

Ros. Then she puts you to entreatie, and there begins new matter.

Orl. Who could be out, being before his beloued Mistris?

Ros. Marrie that should you if I were your Mistris, or should thinke my honestie ranker then my wit.

Orl. What, of my suite?

Ros. Not out of your apparrell, and yet out of your suite: Am not I your Rosalind?

Orl. I take some ioy to say you are, because I would be talking of her.

Ros. Well, in her person, I say I will not have you.

Orl. Then in mine owne person, I die.

Ros. No faith, die by Attorney: the poore world is almost six thousand yeeres old, and in all this time there was not any man died in his owne person (videlicet) in a loue cause: Troylus had his braines dasht'd out with a Grecian club, yet he did what hee could to die before, and he is one of the patternes of loue. Leander, he would haue liu'd manie a faire yeere though Hero had turn'd Nun; if it had not bin for a hot Midsomer-night, for (good youth) he went but forth to wash him in the Hellespont, and being taken with the crampe, was droun'd, and the foolish Chronoclers of that age, found it was Hero of Cestus. But these are all lies, men have died from time to time, and worms have eaten them, but not for loue.

Orl. I would not have my right Rosalind of this mind, for I protest her frowne might kill me.

Ros. By this hand, it will not kill a flie: but come, now I will be your Rosalind in a more comming-on disposition: and ask me what you will, I will grant it.

Orl. Then loue me Rosalind.

Ros. Yes faith will I, fridaies and saterdaies, and all.

Orl. And wilt thou have me?

Ros. I, and twentie such.

Orl. What saiest thou?

Ros. Are you not good?

Orl. I hope so

Rosalind. Why then, can one desire too much of a good thing: Come sister, you shall be the Priest, and marrie vs: give me your hand Orlando: What doe you say sister?

Orl. Pray thee marrie vs.

Cel. I cannot say the words.

Ros. You must begin, will you Orlando.

Cel. Goe too. will you Orlando, haue to wife this Rosalind:

Orl. I will.

Ros. I, but when?

Orl. Why now, as fast as she can marrie vs.

Ros. Then you must say, I take thee Rosalind for wife.

Orl. I take thee Rosalind for wife.

Ros. I might aske you for your Commission, But I doe take thee Orlando for my husband: there's a girle goes before the Priest, and certainely a Womans thought runs before her actions.

Orl. So do all thoughts, they are wing'd.

Ros. Now tell me how long you would have her, after you have possest her?

Orl. For ever, and a day.

Ros. Say a day, without the ever: no, no Orlando, men are Aprill when they woe, December when they wed: Maides are May when they are maides, but the sky changes when they are wiues: I will be more iealous of thee, then a Barbary cocke-pidgeon over his hen, more clamorous then a Parrot against raine, more new-fangled then an ape, more giddy in my desires, then a monkey: I will weepe for nothing, like Diana in the Fountaine, & I wil do that when you are dispos'd to be merry: I will laugh like a Hyen, and that when thou art inclin'd to sleepe.

Orl. But will my Rosalind doe so?

Ros. By my life, she will doe as I doe.

Orl. O but she is wise.

Ros. Or else shee could not have the wit to doe this: the wiser, the waywarder: make the doores vpon a womans wit, and it will out at the casement: shut that, and 'twill out at the key-hole: stop that, 'twill flie with the smoake out at the chimney.

Orl. A man that had a wife with such a wit, he might say, wit whether wilt?

Ros. Nay, you might keepe that check for it, till you met your wives wit going to your neighbours bed.

Orl. And what wit could wit have, to excuse that?

Ros. Marry to say, she came to seeke you there: you shall never take her without her answer, vnlesse you take her without her tongue: O that woman that cannot make her fault her husbands occasion, let her never nurse her childe her selfe, for she will breed it like a foole.

Orl. For these two houres Rosalinde, I will leave thee.

Ros. Alas, deere loue, I cannot lacke thee two houres.

Orl. I must attend the Duke at dinner, by two a clock I will be with thee againe.

Ros. I, goe your waies, goe your waies: I knew what you would prove, my friends told mee as much, and I thought no lesse: that flattering tongue of yours wonne me: 'tis but one cast away, and so come death: two o'clocke is your howre.

Orl. I, sweet Rosalind.

Ros. By my troth, and in good earnest, and so God mend mee, and by all pretty oathes that are not dangerous, if you breake one iot of your promise, or come one minute behinde your houre, I will thinke you the most patheticall breake-promise, and the most hollow lover, and the most vnworthy of her you call Rosalinde, that may bee chosen out of the grosse band of the vnfaithfull: therefore beware my censure, and keep your promise.

Orl With no lesse religion, then if thou wert indeed my Rosalind: so adieu.

Ros. Well, Time is the olde Iustice that examines all such offenders, and let time try: adieu. Exit.

Cel. You have simply misus'd our sexe in your loue-prate:

preste: we muſt haue your doublet and hoſe pluckt ouer your head, and ſhew the world what the bird hath done to her owne neaſt.

Roſ. O coz, coz, coz: my pretty little coz, that thou didſt know how many fathome deepe I am in loue: but it cannot bee ſounded: my affection hath an vnknowne bottome, like the Bay of Portugall.

Cel. Or rather bottomleſſe, that as faſt as you poure affection in, it runs out.

Roſ. No, that ſame wicked baſtard of Venus, that was begot of thought, conceiu'd of ſpleene, and borne of madneſſe, that blinde raſcally boy, that abuſes euery ones eyes, becauſe his owne are out, let him bee iudge, how deepe I am in loue: ile tell thee Aliena, I cannot be out of the ſight of Orlando: Ile goe finde a ſhadow, and ſigh till he come.

Cel. And Ile ſleepe Exeunt.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Iaques and Lords, Forreſters.

Iaq. Which is he that killed the Deare?

Lord. Sir, it was I.

Iaq. Let's preſent him to the Duke like a Romane Conquerour, and it would doe well to ſet the Deares horns vpon his head, for a branch of victory; haue you no ſong Forreſter for this purpoſe?

Lord. Yes Sir.

Iaq. Sing it: 'tis no matter how it bee in tune, ſo it make noyſe enough.

Muſicke, Song

What ſhall he haue that kild the Deare?
His Leather skin, and hornes to weare:
Then ſing him home, the reſt ſhall beare this burthen;
Take thou no ſcorne to weare the horne,
It was a creſt ere thou waſt borne,
Thy fathers father wore it,
And thy father bore it.
The horne, the horne, the luſty horne,
Is not a thing to laugh to ſcorne. Exeunt

Scena Tertia.

Enter Roſalind and Celia.

Roſ. How ſay you now, is it not paſt two a clock? And heere much Orlando.

Cel. I warrant you, with pure loue, & troubled brain,

Enter Siluius.

He hath t'ane his bow and arrowes, and is gone forth To ſleepe: looke who comes heere.

Sil. My errand is to you, faire youth,
My gentle Phebe, did bid me giue you this:
I know not the contents, but as I gueſſe
By the ſterne brow, and waſpiſh action
Which ſhe did vſe, as ſhe was writing of it,
It beares an angry tenure; pardon me,
I am but as a guiltleſſe meſſenger.

Roſ Patience her ſelfe would ſtartle at this letter,
And play the ſwaggerer, beare this, beare all:
Shee ſaies I am not faire, that I lacke manners,
She calls me proud, and that ſhe could not loue me
Were man as rare as Phenix: od's my will,
Her loue is not the Hare that I doe hunt,
Why writes ſhe ſo to me? well Shepheard well,
This is a Letter of your owne deuice.

Sil. No, I proteſt, I know not the contents,
Phebe did write it.

Roſ Come, come, you are a foole,
And turn'd into the extremity of loue
I ſaw her hand, ſhe has a leatherne hand,
A freeſtone coloured hand: I verily did thinke
That her old gloues were on, but 'twas her hands:
She has a huſwifes hand, but that's no matter:
I ſay ſhe neuer did inuent this letter,
This is a mans inuention, and his hand.

Sil. Sure it is hers.

Roſ. Why, 'tis a boyſterous and a cruell ſtile,
A ſtile for challengers: why, ſhe defies me,
Like Turke to Chriſtian: women's gentle braine
Could not drop forth ſuch giant rude inuention,
Such Ethiop words, blacker in their effect
Then in their countenance: will you heare the letter?

Sil. So pleaſe you, for I neuer heard it yet:
Yet heard too much of Phebes cruelty.

Roſ. She Phebes me: marke how the tyrant writes.
Read. Art thou god, to Shepherd turn'd?
That a maidens heart hath burn'd
Can a woman raile thus?

Sil. Call you this railing?

Roſ. Read. Why, thy godhead laid apart,
Warſt thou with a woman's heart?
Did you euer heare ſuch railing?
Whiles the eye of man did woe me,
That could do no vengeance to me.
Meaning me a beaſt.
If the ſcorne of your bright eine
Haue power to raiſe ſuch loue in mine,
Alacke, in me, what ſtrange effect
Would they worke in milde aſpect?
Whiles you chid me, I did loue,
How then might your praiers moue?
He that brings this loue to thee,
Little knowes this Loue in me:
And by him ſeale vp thy mind,
Whether that thy youth and kinde
Will the faithfull offer take
Of me, and all that I can make,
Or elſe by him my loue deny,
And then Ile ſtudie how to die.

Sil. Call you this chiding?

Cel. Alas poore Shepheard.

Roſ. Doe you pitty him? No, he deſerues no pitty: wilt thou loue ſuch a woman? what to make thee an inſtrument, and play falſe ſtraines vpon thee? not to be endur'd. Well, goe your way to her; (for I ſee Loue hath made thee a tame ſnake) and ſay this to her; That if ſhe loue me, I charge her to loue thee: if ſhe will not, I will neuer haue her, vnleſſe thou intreat for her: if you be a true louer hence, and not a word; for here comes more company. Exit Sil.

Enter Oliuer. know)

Oliu. Good morrow, faire ones: pray you, (if you
Where is the Purlews of this Forreſt, ſtands

'd about with Olive-trees.
place, down in the neighbor bottom rt, by the murmuring ſtreame hand, brings you to the place?
the houſe doth keepe it ſelfe,
in.
ye may profit by a tongue,
ow you by deſcription,
d ſuch yeeres: the boy is faire,
and beſtowes himſelfe
the woman low
her brother: are not you houſe I did enquire for?
laſt, being aſk'd, to ſay we are.
oth commend him to you both,
hee calls his Roſalind, dy napkin; are you he?
at muſt we vnderſtand by this?
ny ſhame, if you will know of me nd how, and why, and where was ſtain'd.
u tell it.
ſt the yong Orlando parted from you,
to returne againe
nod pacing through the Forreſt,
l of ſweet and bitter fancie,
he threw his eye aſide, obiect did preſent it ſelfe
e, whoſe bowes were moſs'd with age d with drie antiquitie:
d man, ore-growne with haire is back; about his necke
ded ſnake had wreath'd it ſelfe, ad, nimble in threats approach'd is mouth: but ſodainly
vnlink'd it ſelfe,
d glides, did ſlip away
e which buſhes ſhade
h vdders all drawne drie,
ted on ground, with catlike watch eping man ſhould ſtirre; for 'tis ition of their beaſt
ng, that doth ſeeme as dead:
do did approach the man,
his brother, his elder brother.
heard him ſpeake of their tame brother,
him the moſt vnnaturall
ſt men,
he might ſo doe,
he was vnnaturall
rlando: did he leaue him there
'd and hungry Lyonneſſe?
d he turne his backe, and purpoſ'd ſo
bler euer then reuenge, ger then his moſt occaſion,
ttell to the Lyonneſſe:
before him, in which hurtling
lumber I awaked.
his brother?
ou he reſcu'd?
ou that did ſo oft contriue to kill him?
: but 'tis not I: I doe not ſhame
I was, ſince my converſion
e, being the thing I am.
he bloody napkin?
ry:
When from the firſt to laſt betwixt vs two,
Teares our recountments had moſt kindely bath'd,
As how I came into that Deſert place.
I briefe, he led me to the gentle Duke,
Who gaue me freſh ſray, and entertainment,
Committing me vnto my brothers loue,
Who led me inſtantly vnto his Caue,
There ſtript himſelfe, and heere vpon his arme
The Lyonneſſe had torne ſome fleſh away,
Which all this while had bled; and now he fainted,
And cride in fainting vpon Roſalinde.
Briefe, I recouer'd him, bound vp his wound,
And after ſome ſmall ſpace, being ſtrong at heart,
He ſent me hither, ſtranger as I am
To tell this ſtory, that you might excuſe
His broken promiſe, and to giue this napkin
Died in this bloud, vnto the Shepheard youth,
That he in ſport doth call his Roſalind
Cel. Why how now Ganimed, ſweet Ganimed.
Oli. Many will ſwoon when they do look on bloud.
Cel. There is more in it: Coſen Ganimed.
Oli. Looke, he recouers.
Roſ. I would I were at home.
Cel. We'l lead you thither:
I pray you will you take him by the arme.
Oli. Be of good cheere youth: you a man?
You lacke a mans heart.
Roſ. I doe ſo, I confeſſe it:
Ah, ſirra, a body would thinke this was well counterfeited. I pray you tell your brother how well I counterfeited: heigh-ho.
Oli. This was not counterfeit, there is too great teſtimony in your complexion, that it was a paſſion of earneſt.
Roſ. Counterfeit, I aſſure you.
Oli. Well then, take a good heart, and counterfeit to be a man.
Roſ. So I doe: but yfaith, I ſhould haue beene a woman by right
Cel. Come, you looke paler and paler: pray you draw homewards: good ſir, goe with vs.
Oli. That will I: for I muſt beare anſwere backe
How you excuſe my brother, Roſalind.
Roſ. I ſhall deuiſe ſomething: but I pray you commend my counterfeiting to him: will you goe?

Exeunt.

Actus Quintus. Scena Prima.

Enter Clowne and Audrie

Clow. We ſhall finde a time Audrie, patience gentle Audrie.
Aud. Faith the Prieſt was good enough, for all the olde gentlemans ſaying.
Clow. A moſt wicked Sir Oliver, Audrie, a moſt vile Martext. But Audrie, there is a youth heere in the Forreſt layes claime to you.
Aud. I, I know who 'tis: he hath no intereſt in mee in the world: here comes the man you meane

Enter William.

Clo. It is meat and drinke to me to ſee a Clowne, by my my troth, we that haue good wits, haue much to answer for: we shall be flouting: we cannot hold.

Will. Good eu'n Audrey.

Aud. God ye good eu'n William.

Will. And good eu'n to you Sir.

Clo. Good eu'n gentle friend. Couer thy head, couer thy head: Nay prethee bee couer'd. How olde are you Friend?

Will. Fiue and twentie Sir.

Clo. A ripe age: Is thy name William?

Will. William, sir.

Clo. A faire name. Was't borne i'th Forrest heere?

Will. I sir, I thanke God.

Clo. Thanke God: A good answer: Art rich?

Will. Faith sir, so, so.

Clo. So, so, is good, very good, very excellent good: and yet it is not, it is but so, so: Art thou wise?

Will. I sir, I haue a prettie wit.

Clo. Why, thou saist well. I do now remember a saying: The Foole doth thinke he is wise, but the wiseman knowes himselfe to be a Foole. The Heathen Philosopher, when he had a desire to eate a Grape, would open his lips when he put it into his mouth, meaning thereby, that Grapes were made to eate, and lippes to open. You do loue this maid?

Will. I do sir.

Clo. Giue me your hand: Art thou Learned?

Will. No sir.

Clo. Then learne this of me, To haue, is to haue. For it is a figure in Rhetoricke, that drink being powr'd out of a cup into a glasse, by filling the one, doth empty the other. For all your Writers do consent, that ipse is hee: now you are not ipse, for I am he.

Will. Which he sir?

Clo. He sir, that must marrie this woman: Therefore you Clowne, abandon: which is in the vulgar, leaue the societie: which in the boorish, is companie, of this female: which in the common, is woman: which together, is, abandon the society of this Female, or Clowne thou perishest: or to thy better vnderstanding, dyest; or (to wit) I kill thee, make thee away, translate thy life into death, thy libertie into bondage: I will deale in poyson with thee, or in bastinado, or in steele: I will bandy with thee in faction, I will ore-run thee with policie: I will kill thee a hundred and fifty wayes, therefore tremble and depart.

Aud. Do good William.

Will. God rest you merry sir. Exit

Enter Corin.

Cor. Our Master and Mistresse seekes you: come away, away.

Clo. Trip Audry, trip Audry, I attend, I attend. Exeunt

Scœna Secunda.

Enter Orlando & Oliuer.

Orl. Is't possible, that on so little acquaintance you should like her? that, but seeing, you should loue her? And louing woo? and wooing, she should grant? And will you perseuer to enioy her?

Ol. Neither call the giddinesse of it in question, the pouertie of her, the small acquaintance, my sodaine wooing, nor sodaine consenting: but say with mee, I loue Aliena: say with her, that she loues mee; consent with both, that we may enioy each other: it shall be to your good: for my fathers house, and all the reuennew, that was old Sir Rowlands will I estate vpon you, and heere liue and die a Shepherd.

Enter Rosalind.

Orl. You haue my consent.
Let your Wedding be to morrow: thither will I
Inuite the Duke, and all's contented followers:
Go you, and prepare Aliena; for looke you,
Heere comes my Rosalinde.

Ros. God saue you brother.

Ol. And you faire sister.

Ros. Oh my deere Orlando, how it grieues me to see thee weare thy heart in a scarfe.

Orl. It is my arme.

Ros. I thought thy heart had beene wounded with the clawes of a Lion.

Orl. Wounded it is, but with the eyes of a Lady.

Ros. Did your brother tell you how I counterfeyted to sound, when he shew'd me your handkercher?

Orl. I, and greater wonders then that.

Ros. O, I know where you are: nay, 'tis true: there was neuer any thing so sodaine, but the fight of two Rammes, and Cæsars Thrasonicall bragge of I came, saw, and ouercame. For your brother, and my sister no sooner met, but they look'd: no sooner look'd, but they lou'd; no sooner lou'd, but they sigh'd: no sooner sigh'd but they ask'd one another the reason: no sooner knew the reason, but they sought the remedie: and in these degrees, haue they made a paire of sleeues to marriage, which they will climbe incontinent, or else be incontinent before marriage; they are in the verie wrath of loue, and they will together. Clubbes cannot part them.

Orl. They shall be married to morrow: and I will bid the Duke to the Nuptiall. But O, how bitter a thing it is, to looke into happines through another mans eies: by so much the more shall I to morrow be at the height of heart heauinesse, by how much I shall thinke my brother happie, in hauing what he wishes for.

Ros. Why then to morrow, I cannot serue your turne for Rosalinde?

Orl. I can liue no longer by thinking.

Ros. I will weary you then no longer with idle talking. Know of me then (for now I speake to some purpose) that I know you are a Gentleman of good conceit: I speake not this, that you should beare a good opinion of my knowledge: insomuch (I say) I know you are: neither do I labor for a greater esteeme then may in some little measure draw a beleefe from you, to do your selfe good, and not to grace me. Beleeue then, if you please, that I can do strange things: I haue since I was three yeare old conuerst with a Magitian, most profound in his Art, and yet not damnable. If you do loue Rosalinde so neere the hart, as your gesture cries it out: when your brother marries Aliena, shall you marrie her. I know into what straights of Fortune she is driuen, and it is not impossible to me, if it appeare not inconuenient to you,

to

…r your eyes to morrow humane as she is,
…y danger.
…t thou in sober meanings?
…life I do, which I tender deerly, though
…ge as. Therefore pat you in your best a-
…ends: for if you will be married to mor-
… and to Rosalind if you will.
Enter Silvius & Phebe.
…mes a Louer of mine, and a louer of hers.
…you haue done me much vngentlenesse,
…ter that I wrte to you.
…ot if I haue: it is my studie
…ghtfull and vngentle to you?
…llowed by a faithful shepheard,
…m, loue him: he worships you.
…hepheard, tell this youth what 'tis to loue
…be all made of sighes and teares,
… Phebe.
…for Ganimed.
…for Rosalind.
…or no woman.
…be all made of faith and service,
… Phebe
…for Ganimed.
… for Rosalind.
…for no woman.
…e all made of fantasie,
…ssion, and all made of wishes,
…duitie, and obseruance,
…e, all patience, and impatience.
…reall, all obseruance?
… Phebe.
… am I for Ganimed.
… am I for Rosalind.
… am I for no woman.
…be so, why blame you me to loue you?
…e so, why blame you me to loue you?
…ba so, why blame you me to loue you?
…lo you speake too, Why blame you mee

…, that is not heere, nor doth not heare
…ou no more of this, 'tis like the howling
…s against the Moone: I will helpe you
…d loue you if I could: To morrow meet
…: I wil marrie you, if euer I marrie Wo-
…e married to morrow: I will satisfie you,
…d Rosalin, and you shall bee married to mor-
…ntent you, if what pleases you contents
…hal be married to morrow: As you loue
…as you loue Phebe meet, and as I loue no
…et: so fare you wel: I haue left you com-
… faile, if I liue.

Exeunt.

Scena Tertia.

Enter Clowne and Audrey.

…rrow is the ioyfull day Audrey, to morow
…ried.
…desire it with all my heart: and I hope it is
…esire, to desire to be a woman of y world?

Heere come two of the banish'd Dukes Pages.

Enter two Pages.

1. Pa. Wel met honest Gentleman.

Clo. By my troth well met: come, sit, sit, and a song.

2. Pa. We are for you, sit i'th middle.

1. Pa. Shal we clap into't roundly, without hauking, or spitting, or saying we are hoarse, which are the only prologues to a bad voice.

2. Pa. I faith, y faith, and both in a tune like two gipsies on a horse.

Song.

It was a Louer, and his lasse,
With a hey, and a ho, and a hey nonino,
That o're the greene corne feild did passe,
In the spring time, the only pretty ring time,
When Birds do sing, hey ding a ding, ding.
Sweet Louers loue the spring,
And therefore take the present time,
With a hey, & a ho, and a hey nonino,
For loue is crowned with the prime,
In spring time, &c.

Betweene the acres of the Rie,
With a hey, and a ho, & a hey nonino:
These pretie Country folkes would lie,
In spring time, &c.

This Carroll they began that houre,
With a hey and a ho, & a hey nonino:
How that a life was but a Flower,
In spring time, &c.

Clo. Truly yong Gentlemen, though there was no great matter in the ditti, yet y note was very vntunable

1. Pa. you are deceiu'd Sir, we kept time, we lost not our time.

Clo. By my troth yes: I count it but time lost to heare such a foolish song. God buy you, and God mend your voices. Come Audrie. Exeunt.

Scena Quarta.

Enter Duke Senior, Amyens, Iaques, Orlando, Oliver, Celia.

Du. Sen. Dost thou beleeue Orlando, that the boy Can do all this that he hath promised?

Orl. I sometimes do beleeue, and sometimes do not, As those that feare they hope, and know they feare.

Enter Rosalinde, Siluius, & Phebe.

Ros. Patience once more, whiles our cõpact is vrg'd: You say, if I bring in your Rosalinde,
You will bestow her on Orlando heere?

Du. Se. That would I, had I kingdoms to giue with her.

Ros. And you say you will haue her, when I bring her?

Orl. That would I, were I of all kingdomes King.

Ros. You say, you'l marrie me, if I be willing.

Phe. That will I, should I die the houre after.

Ros. But if you do refuse to marrie me,
You'l giue your selfe to this most faithfull Shepheard.

Phe. So is the bargaine.

Ros. You say that you'l haue Phebe if she will.

Sil. Though to haue her and death, were both one thing.

Ros. I haue promis'd to make all this matter euen:
Keepe you your word, O Duke, to giue your daughter,
You yours Orlando, to receiue his daughter:
Keepe your word Siluius, that you'l marrie her
If she refuse me, and from hence I go
To make these doubts all euen. Exit Ros. and Celia.

Du.Sen. I do remember in this shepheard boy,
Some liuely touches of my daughters fauour.

Orl. My Lord, the first time that I euer saw him,
Me thought he was a brother to your daughter:
But my good Lord, this Boy is Forrest borne,
And hath bin tutor'd in the rudiments
Of many desperate studies, by his vncle,
Whom he reports to be a great Magitian.

Enter Clowne and Audrey.

Obscured in the circle of this Forrest.

Iaq. There is sure another flood toward, and these couples are comming to the Arke. Here comes a payre of verie strange beasts, which in all tongues, are call'd Fooles.

Clo. Salutation and greeting to you all.

Iaq. Good my Lord, bid him welcome: This is the Motley-minded Gentleman, that I haue so often met in the Forrest: he hath bin a Courtier he sweares.

Clo. If any man doubt that, let him put me to my purgation, I haue trod a measure, I haue flattred a Lady, I haue bin politicke with my friend, smooth with mine enemie, I haue vndone three Tailors, I haue had foure quarrels, and like to haue fought one.

Iaq. And how was that tane vp?

Clo. Faith we met, and found the quarrell was vpon the seuenth cause.

Iaq. How seuenth cause? Good my Lord, like this fellow.

Du.Se. I like him very well.

Clo. God'ild you sir, I desire you of the like: I presse in heere sir, amongst the rest of the Country copulatiues to sweare, and to forswear, according as marriage binds and blood breakes: a poore virgin sir, an il-fauor'd thing sir, but mine owne, a poore humour of mine sir, to take that that no man else will: rich honestie dwels like a miser sir, in a poore house, as your Pearle in your foule oyster.

Du.Se. By my faith, he is very swift, and sententious

Clo. According to the fooles bolt sir, and such dulcet diseases.

Iaq. But for the seuenth cause. How did you finde the quarrell on the seuenth cause?

Clo. Vpon a lye, seuen times removed: (beare your bodie more seeming Audrey) as thus sir: I did dislike the cut of a certaine Courtiers beard: he sent me word, if I said his beard was not cut well, hee was in the minde it was: this is call'd the retort courteous. If I sent him word againe, it was not well cut, he wold send me word he cut it to please himselfe: this is call'd the quip modest. If againe, it was not well cut, he disabled my iudgment: this is called, the reply churlish. If againe it was not well cut, he would answer I spake not true: this is call'd the reproofe valiant. If againe, it was not well cut, he wold say, I lie: this is call'd the counter-checke quarrelsome: and so to lye circumstantiall, and the lye direct.

Iaq. And how oft did you say his beard was not well cut?

Clo. I durst go no further then the lye circumstantiall nor he durst not giue me the lye direct: and so we mea-sur'd swords, and parted.

Iaq. Can you nominate in order now, the degrees of the lye.

Clo. O sir, we quarrel in print, by the booke: as you haue bookes for good manners: I will name you the degrees. The first, the Retort courteous: the second, the Quip-modest: the third, the reply Churlish: the fourth, the Reproofe valiant: the fift, the Counterchecke quarrelsome: the sist, the Lye with circumstance: the seuenth, the Lye direct: all these you may auoyd, but the Lye direct: and you may auoide that too, with an If. I knew when seuen Iustices could not take vp a Quarrell, but when the parties were met themselues, one of them thought but of an If; as if you saide so: and they shooke hands, and swore brothers. Your If, is the onely peace-maker: much vertue in if.

Iaq. Is not this a rare fellow my Lord? He's as good at any thing, and yet a foole.

Du.Se. He vses his folly like a stalking-horse, and vnder the presentation of that he shoots his wit.

Enter Hymen, Rosalind, and Celia.
Still Musicke.

Hymen. Then is there mirth in heauen,
When earthly things made euen
Attone together.
Good Duke receiue thy daughter,
Hymen from Heauen brought her,
Yea brought her hither.
That thou might ioyne her hand with her,
Whose heart within his bosome is.

Ros. To you I giue my selfe, for I am yours.
To you I giue my selfe, for I am yours.

Du.Se If there be truth in sight, you are my daughter.

Orl. If there be truth in sight, you are my Rosalind.

Phe. If sight & shape be true, why then my loue adieu

Ros. Ile haue no Father, if you be not he:
Ile haue no Husband, if you be not he:
Nor ne're wed woman, if you be not shee.

Hy. Peace hoa: I barre confusion,
'Tis I must make conclusion
Of these most strange euents:
Here's eight that must take hands,
To ioyne in Hymens bands,
If truth holds true contents.
You and you, no crosse shall part:
You and you, are hart in hart:
You, to his loue must accord,
Or haue a Woman to your Lord.
You and you, are sure together,
As the Winter to fowle Weather:
Whiles a Wedlocke Hymne we sing,
Feede your selues with questioning.
That reason, wonder may diminish
How thus we met, and these things finish.

Song.

Wedding is great Iunos crowne,
O blessed bond of board and bed:
'Tis Hymen peoples euery towne,
High wedlock then be honored:
Honor, high honor and renowne
To Hymen, God of euery Towne.

Du.Se. O my deere Neece, welcome thou art to me,
Euen daughter welcome, in no lesse degree.

Phe.

Ber. I wil not eate my word, now thou art mine,
Thy faith, my fancie to thee doth combine.

Enter Second Brother.

2. Bro. Let me haue audience for a word or two:
I am the second sonne of old Sir Rowland,
That bring these tidings to this faire assembly.
Duke Frederick hearing how that euerie day
Men of great worth resorted to this forrest,
Addrest a mightie power, which were on foote
In his owne conduct, purposely to take
His brother heere, and put him to the sword:
And to the skirts of this wilde Wood he came;
Where, meeting with an old Religious man,
After some question with him, was conuerted
Both from his enterprize, and from the world:
His crowne bequeathing to his banish'd Brother,
And all their Lands restor'd to him againe
That were with him exil'd. This to be true,
I do engage my life.

Duke Se. Welcome yong man:
Thou offer'st fairely to thy brothers wedding:
To one his lands with-held, and to the other
A land it selfe at large, a potent Dukedome.
First, in this Forrest, let vs do those ends
That heere were well begun, and well begot:
And after, euery of this happie number
That haue endur'd shrew'd daies, and nights with vs,
Shal share the good of our returned fortune,
According to the measure of their states.
Meane time, forget this new-falne dignitie,
And fall into our Rusticke Reuelrie:
Play Musicke, and you Brides and Bride-groomes all,
With measure heap'd in ioy, to'th Measures fall.

Iaq. Sir, by your patience: if I heard you rightly,
The Duke hath put on a Religious life,
And throwne into neglect the pompous Court.

2. Bro. He hath.

Iaq. To him will I: out of these conuertites,
There is much matter to be heard, and learn'd:
you to your former Honor, I bequeath
your patience, and your vertue, well deserues it.
you to a loue, that your true faith doth merit:
you to your land, and loue, and great allies:
you to a long, and well-deserued bed:
And you to wrangling, for thy louing voyage
Is but for two monethe victuall'd: So to your pleasures,
I am for other, then for dancing measures.

Duke Se. Stay, Iaques, stay.

Iaq. To see no pastime, I: what you would haue,
Ile stay to know, at your abandon'd cause. Exit

Duke Se. Proceed, proceed: we'l begin these rights,
As we do trust, they'l end in true delights. Exit

Ros. It is not the fashion to see the Ladie the Epilogue: but it is no more vnhandsome, then to see the Lord the Prologue. If it be true, that good wine needs no bush, 'tis true, that a good play needes no Epilogue. Yet to good wine they do vse good bushes: and good playes proue the better by the helpe of good Epilogues: What a case am I in then, that am neither a good Epilogue, nor cannot insinuate with you in the behalfe of a good play? I am not furnish'd like a Begger, therefore to begge will not become mee: My way is to coniure you, and Ile begin with the Women. I charge you (O women) for the loue you beare to men, to like as much of this Play, as please you: And I charge you (O men) for the loue you beare to women (as I perceiue by your simpring, none of you hates them) that betweene you, and the women, the play may please. If I were a Woman, I would kisse as many of you as had beards that pleas'd me, complexions that lik'd me, and breaths that I defi'de not: And I am sure, as many as haue good beards, or good faces, or sweet breaths, will for my kind offer, when I make curt'sie, bid me farewell. Exit.

FINIS.

THE Taming of the Shrew.

Actus primus. Scæna Prima.

Enter Beggar and Hostes, Christophero Sly.

Beggar.

IL pheeze you infaith.

Host. A paire of stockes you rogue.

Beg. Y'are a baggage, the Slies are no Rogues. Looke in the Chronicles, we came in with Richard Conqueror: therefore Panca pallabris, let the world slide: Sessa.

Host. You will not pay for the glasses you haue burst?

Beg. No, not a denier: go by S. Ieronimie, goe to thy cold bed, and warme thee.

Host. I know my remedie, I must go fetch the Headborough.

Beg. Third, or fourth, or fift Borough, Ile answere him by Law. Ile not budge an inch boy: Let him come, and kindly. Falles asleepe.

Winde hornes. Enter a Lord from hunting, with his traine.

Lo. Huntsman I charge thee, tender well my hounds,
Brach Merriman, the poore Curre is imbost,
And couple Clowder with the deepe-mouth'd brach,
Saw'st thou not boy how Siluer made it good
At the hedge corner, in the coulдest fault,
I would not loose the dogge for twentie pound.

Hunts. Why Belman is as good as he my Lord.
He cried vpon it at the meerest losse,
And twice to day pick'd out the dullest sent,
Trust me, I take him for the better dogge.

Lord. Thou art a Foole, if Eccho were as fleete,
I would esteeme him worth a dozen such.
But sup them well, and looke vnto them all,
To morrow I intend to hunt againe.

Hunts. I will my Lord.

Lord. What's heere? One dead, or drunke? See doth he breath?

2. Hun. He breath's my Lord. Were he not warm'd with Ale, this were a bed but cold to sleep so soundly.

Lord. Oh monstrous beast, how like a swine he lyes.
Grim death, how foule and loathsome is thine image:
Sirs, I will practise on this drunken man.
What thinke you, if he were conuey'd to bed,
Wrap'd in sweet cloathes: Rings put vpon his fingers:
A most delicious banquet by his bed,
And braue attendants neere him when he wakes,
Would not the begger then forget himselfe?

1. Hun. Beleeue me Lord, I thinke he cannot chuse.

2. H. It would seem strange vnto him when he wak'd

Lord. Euen as a flatt'ring dreame, or worthles fancie.
Then take him vp, and manage well the iest:
Carrie him gently to my fairest Chamber,
And hang it round with all my wanton pictures:
Balme his foule head in warme distilled waters,
And burne sweet Wood to make the Lodging sweete:
Procure me Musicke readie when he wakes,
To make a dulcet and a heauenly sound:
And if he chance to speake, be readie straight
(And with a low submissiue reuerence)
Say, what is it your Honor will command:
Let one attend him with a siluer Bason
Full of Rose-water, and bestrew'd with Flowers
Another beare the Ewer: the third a Disper,
And say wilt please your Lordship coole your hands.
Some one be readie with a costly suite,
And aske him what apparrel he will weare:
Another tell him of his Hounds and Horse,
And that his Ladie mournes at his disease,
Perswade him that he hath bin Lunaticke,
And when he sayes he is, say that he dreames,
For he is nothing but a mightie Lord:
This do, and do it kindly, gentle sirs,
It will be pastime passing excellent,
If it be husbanded with modestie.

1. Hunts. My Lord I warrant you we will play our part
As he shall thinke by our true diligence
He is no lesse then what we say he is.

Lord. Take him vp gently, and to bed with him,
And each one to his office when he wakes.
Sound trumpets.
Sirrah, go see what Trumpet 'tis that sounds.
Belike some Noble Gentleman that meanes
(Trauelling some iourney) to repose him heere.
Enter Seruingman.
How now? who is it?

Ser. An't please your Honor, Players
That offer seruice to your Lordship.

Enter Players.

Lord. Bid them come neere:
Now fellowes, you are welcome.

Players. We thanke your Honor

Lord. Do you intend to stay with me to night?

2. Player. So please your Lordshippe to accept our duetie.

Lord With all my heart. This fellow I remember,
Since once he plaide a Farmers eldest sonne,
'Twas where you woo'd the Gentlewoman so well:
I haue forgot your name: but sure that part

Was

What apely hatred, and naturally perform'd.

Sincklo. I thinke 'twas Soto that your honor means.

Lord. 'Tis verie true, thou didſt it excellent:
Well you are come to me in happie time,
The rather for I haue ſome ſport in hand,
Wherein your cunning can aſſiſt me much.
There is a Lord will heare you play to night;
But I am doubtfull of your modeſties,
Leaſt (ouer-eying of his odde behauiour,
For yet his honor neuer heard a play)
You breake into ſome merrie paſſion,
And ſo offend him: for I tell you firſt,
If you ſhould ſmile, he growes impatient.

Play. Feare not my Lord, we can contain our ſelues,
Were he the veriеſt antickе in the world.

Lord. Go ſirra, take them to the Buttrie,
And giue them friendly welcome euerie one.
Let them want nothing that my houſe affoords.
Exit one with the Players.
Sirra go you to Bartholmew my Page,
And ſee him dreſt in all ſuites like a Ladie:
That done, conduct him to the drunkards chamber,
And call him Madam, do him obeiſance:
Tell him from me (as he will win my loue)
He beare himſelfe with honourable action,
Such as he hath obſeru'd in noble Ladies
Vnto their Lords, by them accomplished,
Such duetie to the drunkard let him do:
With ſoft low tongue, and lowly curteſie,
And ſay: What is't your Honor will command,
Wherein your Ladie, and your humble wife,
May ſhew her dutie, and make knowne her loue.
And then with kinde embracements, tempting kiſſes.
And with declining head into his boſome
Bid him ſhed teares, as being ouer-ioyed
To ſee her noble Lord reſtor'd to health.
Who for this ſeuen yeares hath eſteemed him
No better then a poore and loathſome begger:
And if the boy haue not a womans guiſt
To raine a ſhower of commanded teares,
An Onion will do well for ſuch a ſhift.
Which in a Napkin (being cloſe conuei'd)
Shall in deſpight enforce a watery eie:
See this diſpatch'd with all the haſt thou canſt,
Anon Ile giue thee more inſtructions.
Exit a ſeruingman.
I know the boy will well vſurpe the grace,
Voice, gate, and action of a Gentlewoman:
I long to heare him call the drunkard husband,
And how my men will ſtay themſelues from laughter,
When they do homage to this ſimple peaſant,
Ile in to counſell them: haply my preſence
May well abate the ouer-merrie ſpleene,
Which otherwiſe would grow into extremes.

Enter aloft the drunkard with attendants, ſome with apparel, Baſon and Ewer, & other appurtenances, & Lord.

Beg. For Gods ſake a pot of ſmall Ale

1 Ser. Wilt pleaſe your Lord drink a cup of ſacke?

2 Ser. Wilt pleaſe your Honor taſte of theſe Conſerues?

3 Ser. What raiment wil your honor weare to day.

Beg. I am Chriſtopher Sly, call not mee Honour nor Lordſhip: I ne're drank ſacke in my life: and if you giue me any Conſerues, giue me conſerues of Beefe: nere aſk me what raiment Ile weare, for I haue no more doublets then backes: no more ſtockings then legges: nor no more ſhooes then feet, nay ſometime more feete then ſhooes, or ſuch ſhooes as my toes look through the ouer leather.

Lord. Heauen ceaſe this idle humor in your Honor.
Oh that a mightie man of ſuch diſcent,
Of ſuch poſſeſſions, and ſo high eſtreme
Should be infuſed with ſo foule a ſpirit.

Beg. What would you make me mad? Am not I Chriſtopher Sly, old Sies ſonne of Burton-heath, by byrth a Pedler, by education a Cardmaker, by tranſmutation a Beare-herd, and now by preſent profeſſion a Tinker. Aske Marrian Hacket the fat Alewife of Wincot, if ſhee know me not: if ſhe ſay I am not xiiii.d. on the ſcore for ſheere Ale, ſcore me vp for the lyingeſt knaue in Chriſten dome. What I am not beſtraught: heere:——

3 Man. Oh this it is that makes your ſeruants droop.

Lord. Hence comes it, that your kindred ſhuns your houſe
As beaten hence by your ſtrange Lunacie.
Oh Noble Lord, bethinke thee of thy birth,
Call home thy ancient thoughts from baniſhment,
And baniſh hence theſe abiect lowlie dreames:
Looke how thy ſeruants do attend on thee,
Each in his office readie at thy becke.
Wilt thou haue Muſicke? Harke Apollo plaies, Muſick
And twentie caged Nightingales do ſing.
Or wilt thou ſleepe? We'l haue thee to a Couch,
Softer and ſweeter then the luſtfull bed
On purpoſe trim'd vp for Semiramis.
Say thou wilt walke: we will beſtrow the ground.
Or wilt thou ride? Thy horſes ſhal be trap'd,
Their harneſſe ſtudded all with Gold and Pearle.
Doſt thou loue hawking? Thou haſt hawkes will ſoare
Aboue the morning Larke. Or wilt thou hunt,
Thy hounds ſhall make the Welkin anſwer them
And fetch ſhrill echoes from the hollow earth.

1 Man. Say thou wilt courſe, thy gray-hounds are as
As breathed Stags I fleeter then the Roe. (ſwift

2 M. Doſt thou loue pictures? we will fetch thee ſtrait
Adonis painted by a running brooke,
And Citherea all in ſedges hid,
Which ſeeme to moue and wanton with her breath,
Euen as the wauing ſedges play with winde.

Lord. We'l ſhew thee Io, as ſhe was a Maid,
And how ſhe was beguiled and ſurpriz'd,
As liuelie painted, as the deede was done.

3 Man. Or Daphne roming through a thornie wood,
Scratching her legs, that one ſhal ſweare ſhe bleeds,
And at that ſight ſhal ſad Apollo weepe,
So workmanlie the blood and teares are drawne.

Lord. Thou art a Lord, and nothing but a Lord:
Thou haſt a Ladie farre more Beautifull,
Then any woman in this waining age.

1 Man. And til the teares that ſhe hath ſhed for thee,
Like enuious floods ore-run her louely face,
She was the faireſt creature in the world,
And yet ſhee is inferiour to none.

Beg. Am I a Lord, and haue I ſuch a Ladie?
Or do I dreame? Or haue I dream'd till now?
I do not ſleepe: I ſee, I heare, I ſpeake:
I ſmel ſweet ſauours, and I feele ſoft things:
Vpon my life I am a Lord indeede,
And not a Tinker, nor Chriſtopher Sly.
Well, bring our Ladie hither to our ſight,
And once againe a pot o'th ſmalleſt Ale.

2. Man. Wilt pleaſe your mightineſſe to waſh your hands:
Oh how we ioy to ſee your wit reſtor'd,
Oh that once more you knew but what you are:
Theſe fifteene yeeres you haue bin in a dreame,
Or when you wak'd, ſo wak'd as if you ſlept.
Beg. Theſe fifteene yeeres, by my fay, a goodly nap,
But did I neuer ſpeake of all that time
1 Man. Oh yes my Lord, but very idle words,
For though you lay heere in this goodlie chamber,
Yet would you ſay, ye were beaten out of doore,
And raile vpon the Hoſteſſe of the houſe,
And ſay you would preſent her at the Leete,
Becauſe ſhe brought ſtone-Iugs, and no ſeal'd quarts:
Sometimes you would call out for Cicely Hacket.
Beg. I, the woman maide of the houſe.
3 man. Why ſir you know no houſe, nor no ſuch maid
Nor no ſuch men as you haue reckon'd vp,
As Stephen Sly, and old Iohn Naps of Greece,
And Peter Turph, and Henry Pimpernell,
And twentie more ſuch names and men as theſe,
Which neuer were, nor no man euer ſaw.
Beg. Now Lord be thanked for my good amends.
All. Amen.

Enter Lady with Attendants.

Beg. I thanke thee, thou ſhalt not loſe by it.
Lady. How fares my noble Lord?
Beg. Marrie I fare well, for heere is cheere enough
Where is my wife?
La. Heere noble Lord, what is thy will with her?
Beg. Are you my wife, and will not cal me husband?
My men ſhould call me Lord, I am your good-man.
La. My husband and my Lord, my Lord and husband
I am your wife in all obedience.
Beg. I know it well, what muſt I call her?
Lord. Madam.
Beg. Alce Madam, or Ione Madam?
Lord. Madam, and nothing elſe, ſo Lords cal Ladies
Beg. Madame wife, they ſay that I haue dream'd,
And ſlept aboue ſome fifteene yeare or more.
Lady. I, and the time ſeeme's thirty vnto me,
Being all this time abandon'd from your bed.
Beg. 'Tis much, ſeruants leaue me and her alone:
Madam vndreſſe you, and come now to bed.
La. Thrice noble Lord, let me intreat of you
To pardon me yet for a night or two:
Or if not ſo, vntill the Sun be ſet.
For your Phyſitians haue expreſſely charg'd,
In perill to incurre your former malady,
That I ſhould yet abſent me from your bed
I hope this reaſon ſtands for my excuſe.
Beg. I, it ſtands ſo that I may hardly tarry ſo long:
But I would be loth to fall into my dreames againe: I wil therefore tarrie in deſpight of the fleſh & the blood

Enter a Meſſenger.

Meſ. Your Honors Players hearing your amendment,
Are come to play a pleaſant Comedie,
For ſo your doctors hold it very meete,
Seeing too much ſadneſſe hath congeal'd your blood,
And melancholly is the Nurſe of frenzie,
Therefore they thought it good you heare a play,
And frame your minde to mirth and merriment,
Which barres a thouſand harmes, and lengthens life.
Beg. Marrie I will let them play, it is not a Comon-tie, a Chriſtmas gambold, or a tumbling wicke?
Lady. No my good Lord, it is more pleaſing ſtuffe.
Beg. What, houſhold ſtuffe.
Lady It is a a kinde of hiſtory.
Beg. Well, we'l ſee't:
Come Madam wife ſit by my ſide,
And let the world ſlip, we ſhall neere be younger.

Flouriſh. Enter Lucentio, and his man Tranio.

Luc. Tranio, ſince for the great deſire I had
To ſee faire Padua, nurſerie of Arts,
I am arriu'd for fruitfull Lumbardie,
The pleaſant garden of great Italy,
And by my fathers loue and leaue am arm'd
With his good will, and thy good companie.
My truſtie ſeruant well approu'd in all,
Heere let vs breath, and haply inſtitute
A courſe of Learning, and ingenious ſtudies.
Piſa renowned for graue Citizens
Gaue me my being, and my father firſt
A Merchant of great Trafficke through the world:
Vincentio come of the Bentiuolij.
Vincentio's ſonne, brought vp in Florence,
It ſhall become to ſerue all hopes conceiu'd
To deeke his fortune with his vertuous deedes:
And therefore Tranio, for the time I ſtudie,
Vertue and that part of Philoſophie
Will I applie, that treats of happineſſe,
By vertue ſpecially to be atchiev'd.
Tell me thy minde, for I haue Piſa left,
And am to Padua come, as he that leaues
A ſhallow plaſh, to plunge him in the deepe,
And with ſatietie ſeekes to quench his thirſt.
Tra. Mee Pardonato, gentle maſter mine
I am in all affected as your ſelfe,
Glad that you thus continue your reſolue,
To ſucke the ſweets of ſweete Philoſophie.
Onely (good maſter) while we do admire
This vertue, and this morall diſcipline,
Let's be no Stoickes, nor no ſtockes I pray,
Or ſo deuote to Ariſtotles checkes
As Ouids be an out-caſt quite abiur'd:
Balke Logicke with acquaintance that you haue,
And practiſe Rhetorike in your common talke,
Muſicke and Poeſie vſe, to quicken you,
The Mathematickes, and the Metaphyſicke
Fall to them as you finde your ſtomache ſerues you
No profit growes, where is no pleaſure tane:
In briefe ſir, ſtudie what you moſt affect.
Luc. Gramercies Tranio, well doſt thou aduiſe,
If Biondello thou wert come aſhore,
We could at once put vs in readineſſe,
And take a Lodging fit to entertaine
Such friends (as time) in Padua ſhall beget.
But ſtay a while, what companie is this?
Tra. Maſter ſome ſhew to welcome vs to Towne.

Enter Baptiſta with his two daughters, Katerina & Bianca, Gremio a Pantelowne. Hortenſio ſuter to Bianca. Lucen. Tranio ſtandby

Bap. Gentlemen, importune me no farther,
For how I firmly am reſolu'd you know:
That is, not to beſtow my youngeſt daughter,
Before I haue a husband for the elder:
If either of you both loue Katherina,

Becauſe

Becauſe I know you well, and loue you well,
Leaue ſhall you haue to court her at your pleaſure.
Gre. To cart her rather. She's too rough for mee.
There, there Hortenſio. will you any Wife?
Kate. I pray you ſir, is it your will
To make a ſtale of me amongſt theſe mates?
Hor. Mates maid, how meane you that?.
No mates for you,
Vnleſſe you were of gentler milder mould.
Kate. Ifaith ſir, you ſhall neuer needs to feare,
I wis it is not halfe way to her heart:
But if it were, doubt not, her care ſhould be,
To combe your noddle with a three-legg'd ſtoole,
And paint your face, and vſe you like a foole.
Hor. From all ſuch diuels, good Lord deliuer vs.
Gre. And me too good Lord.
Tra. Huſht maſter, here's ſome good paſtime toward:
That wench is ſtarke mad, or wonderfull froward
Luc. But in the others ſilence do I ſee,
Maids milde behauiour and ſobrietie.
Peace Tranio.
Tra. Well ſaid Mr. mum, and gaze your fill.
Bap. Gentlemen, that I may ſoone make good
What I haue ſaid, Bianca get you in.
And let it not diſpleaſe thee good Bianca,
For I will loue thee ne're the leſſe my girle.
Kate. A pretty peate, it is beſt put finger in the eye,
and ſhe knew why.
Bian. Siſter content you in my diſcontent.
Sir, to your pleaſure humbly I ſubſcribe:
My bookes and inſtruments ſhall be my companie,
On them to looke, and practiſe by my ſelfe.
Luc. Harke Tranio, thou maiſt heare Minerua ſpeak.
Hor. Signior Baptiſta, will you be ſo ſtrange,
Sorrie am I that our good will effects
Bianca's greefe.
Gre. Why will you mew her vp
(Signior Baptiſta) for this fiend of hell,
And make her beare the penaunce of her tongue.
Bap. Gentlemen content ye: I am reſolu'd:
Go in Bianca.
And for I know ſhe taketh moſt delight
In Muſicke, Inſtruments, and Poetry,
Schoolemaſters will I keepe within my houſe,
Fit to inſtruct her youth. If you Hortenſio,
Or ſignior Gremio you know any ſuch,
Preferre them hither: for to cunning men,
I will be very kinde and liberall
To mine owne children, in good bringing vp,
And ſo farewell: Katherina you may ſtay,
For I haue more to commune with Bianca. Exit.
Kate. Why, and I truſt I may go too, may I not?
What ſhall I be appointed houres, as though
(Belike) I knew not what to take,
And what to leaue? Ha Exit
Gre. You may go to the diuels dam: your guifts are ſo good here's none will holde you: Their loue is not ſo great Hortenſio, but we may blow our nails together, and faſt it fairely out. Our cakes dough on both ſides.
Farewell: yet for the loue I beare my ſweet Bianca, if I can by any meanes light on a fit man to teach her that wherein ſhe delights, I will wiſh him to her father.
Hor. So will I ſigniour Gremio: but a word I pray:
Though the nature of our quarrell yet neuer brook'd parle, know now vpon aduice, it toucheth vs both: that we may yet againe haue acceſſe to our faire Miſtris, and be happie riuals in Bianca's loue, to labour and effect
one thing ſpecially.
Gre. What's that I pray?
Hor. Marrie ſir to get a husband for her Siſter.
Gre. A husband: a diuell.
Hor. I ſay a husband.
Gre. I ſay, a diuell: Think'ſt thou Hortenſio, though her father be verie rich, any man is ſo verie a foole to be married to hell?
Hor. Tuſh Gremio: though it paſſe your patience &
mine to endure her lowd alarums, why man there bee
good fellowes in the world, and a man could light on them, would take her with all faults, and mony enough.
Gre. I cannot tell: but I had as lief take her dowrie with this condition; To be whipt at the hie croſſe euerie
morning
Hor. Faith (as you ſay) there's ſmall choiſe in rotten apples: but come, ſince this bar in law makes vs friends,
it ſhall be ſo farre forth friendly maintain'd, till by help-ping Baptiſta eldeſt daughter to a husband, wee ſee his yongeſt free for a husband, and then haue to't afreſh:
Sweet Bianca, happy man be his dole: he that runnes
faſteſt, gets the Ring: How ſay you ſignior Gremio?
Gre I am agreed, and would I had giuen him the beſt horſe in Padua to begin his woing that would tho roughly woe her, wed her, and bed her, and ridde the houſe of her. Come on.
Exeunt ambo. Manet Tranio and Lucentio
Tra. I pray ſir tel me, is it poſſible
That loue ſhould of a ſodaine take ſuch hold.
Luc. Oh Tranio, till I found it to be true,
I neuer thought it poſſible or likely.
But ſee, while idely I ſtood looking on,
I found the effect of Loue in idleneſſe,
And now in plainneſſe do confeſſe to thee
That art to me as ſecret and as deere
As Anna to the Queene of Carthage was
Tranio I burne, I pine, I periſh Tranio,
If I atchieue not this yong modeſt gyrle:
Counſaile me Tranio, for I know thou canſt:
Aſſiſt me Tranio, for I know thou wilt.
Tra. Maſter, it is no time to chide you now,
Affection is not rated from the heart:
If loue haue touch'd you, naught remaines but ſo,
Redime te captum quam queas minimo.
Luc Gramercies Lad: Go forward, this contents,
The reſt wil comfort, for thy counſels ſound.
Tra. Maſter, you look'd ſo longly on the maide.
Perhaps you mark'd not what's the pith of all.
Luc. Oh yes, I ſaw ſweet beautie in her face,
Such as the daughter of Agenor had,
That made great Ioue to humble him to her hand,
When with his knees he kiſt the Cretan ſtrond.
Tra. Saw you no more? Mark'd you not how her ſiſter
Began to ſcold, and raiſe vp ſuch a ſtorme,
That mortall eares might hardly indure the din.
Luc. Tranio, I ſaw her corrall lips to moue,
And with her breath ſhe did perfume the ayre,
Sacred and ſweet was all I ſaw in her.
Tra. Nay, then 'tis time to ſtirre him from his trance:
I pray awake ſir: if you loue the Maide,
Bend thoughts and wits to atcheeue her. Thus it ſtands:
Her elder ſiſter is ſo curſt and ſhrew'd,
That til the Father rid his hands of her,
Maſter, your Loue muſt liue a maide at home,
And therefore has he cloſely mew'd her vp,

Becauſe

Becauſe ſhe will not be annoy'd with ſuters.
Luc. Ah Tranio, what a cruell Fathers he:
But art thou not aduis'd, he tooke ſome care
To get her cunning Schoolemaſters to inſtruct her.
Tra. I marry am I ſir, and now 'tis plotted.
Luc. I haue it Tranio.
Tra. Maſter, for my hand
Both our inuentions meet and iumpe in one.
Luc. Tell me thine firſt
Tra. You will be ſchoole-maſter,
And vndertake the teaching of the maid:
That's your deuice.
Luc. It is: May it be done?
Tra. Not poſſible: for who ſhall beare your part,
And be in Padua heere Vincentio's ſonne,
Keepe houſe, and ply his booke, welcome his friends,
Viſit his Countrimen, and banquet them?
Luc. Baſta, content thee: for I haue it full.
We haue not yet bin ſeene in any houſe,
Nor can we be diſtinguiſh'd by our faces,
For man or maſter: then it followes thus;
Thou ſhalt be maſter, Tranio in my ſted:
Keepe houſe, and port, and ſeruants, as I ſhould,
I will ſome other be, ſome Florentine,
Some Neapolitan, or meaner man of Piſa.
'Tis hatch'd, and ſhall be ſo: Tranio at once
Vncaſe thee: take my Conlord hat and cloake,
When Biondello comes, he waites on thee,
But I will charme him firſt to keepe his tongue.
Tra. So had you needs:
In breefe Sir, ſith it your pleaſure is,
And I am tyed to be obedient,
For ſo your father charg'd me at our parting:
Be ſeruiceable to my ſonne (quoth he)
Although I thinke 'twas in another ſence,
I am content to bee Lucentio,
Becauſe ſo well I loue Lucentio.
Luc. Tranio be ſo, becauſe Lucentio loues.
And let me be a ſlaue, t'atchieue that maide,
Whoſe ſodaine ſight hath thral'd my wounded eye.

Enter Biondello.

Heere comes the rogue. Sirra, where haue you bin?
Bion. Where haue I beene? Nay how now, where are you? Maſter, he's my fellow Tranio ſtolne your cloathes, or you ſtolne his, or both? Pray what's the newes
Luc. Sirra come hither, 'tis no time to ieſt,
And therefore frame your manners to the time
Your fellow Tranio heere to ſaue my life,
Puts my apparrell, and my countinance on,
And I for my eſcape haue put on his:
For in a quarrell ſince I came a ſhore,
I kil'd a man, and feare I was deſcride:
Waite you on him, I charge you, as becomes:
While I make way from hence to ſaue my life:
You vnderſtand me?
Bion. I ſir, ne're a whit.
Luc. And not a iot of Tranio in your mouth,
Tranio is chang'd into Lucentio.
Bion. The better for him, would I were ſo too.
Tra. So could I faith boy, to haue the next wiſh after, that Lucentio indeede had Baptiſta's yongeſt daughter. But ſirra, not for my ſake, but your maſters, I aduiſe you vſe your manners diſcreetly in all kind of companies: When I am alone, why then I am Tranio: but in all places elſe, you maſter Lucentio.
Luc. Tranio let's go:
One thing more reſts, that thy ſelfe execute,
To make one among theſe wooers: if thou aſk me why,
Sufficeth my reaſons are both good and waighty.
Exeunt. The Preſenters aboue ſpeake.
1. Man. My Lord you nod, you do not minde the play
Beg. Yes by Saint Anne do I, a good matter ſurely: Comes there any more of it?
Lady My Lord, 'tis but begun
Beg. 'Tis a verie excellent peece of worke, Madame Ladie: would 'twere done. They ſit and marke

Enter Petruchio, and his man Grumio

Petr. Verona, for a while I take my leaue,
To ſee my friends in Padua; but of all
My beſt beloued and approued friend
Hortenſio: & I trow this is his houſe:
Heere ſirra Grumio, knocke I ſay.
Gru. Knocke ſir? whom ſhould I knocke? Is there any man has rebus'd your worſhip?
Petr. Villaine I ſay, knocke me at this gate,
And rap me well, or Ile knocke your knaues pate
Gru. My Maſter is growne quarrelſome:
I ſhould knocke you firſt,
And then I know after who comes by the worſt.
Petr. Will it not be?
'Faith ſirrah, and you'l not knocke, Ile ring it,
Ile trie how you can Sol, Fa, and ſing it.
He wrings him by the eare
Gru. Helpe maſters helpe, my maſter is mad.
Petr. Now knocke when I bid you: ſirrah villaine.

Enter Hortenſio.

Hor. How now, what's the matter? My olde friend Grumio, and my good friend Petruchio? How do you all at Verona?
Petr. Signior Hortenſio, comes you to part the fray? Contutto le cose bene verona molto honorata ſignior mio Petruchio.
Riſe Grumio riſe, we will compound this quarrell
Gru. Nay 'tis no matter ſir, what he leges in Latine If this be not a lawfull cauſe for me to leaue his ſeruice, looke you ſir. He bid me knocke him, & rap him ſoundly ſir Well, was it fit for a ſeruant to vſe his maſter ſo, being perhaps (for ought I ſee) two or three yeares older then he?
Petr. A ſenceleſſe villaine: good Hortenſio, I bad the raſcall knocke vpon your gate, And could not get him for my heart to do it.
Gru. Knocke at the gate? O heauens: ſpake you not theſe words plaine? Sirra, Knocke me heere: rappe me heere: knocke me well, and knocke me ſoundly? And come you now with knocking at the gate?
Petr. Sirra be gone, or talke not I aduiſe you.
Hor. Petruchio patience, I am Grumio's pledge
Why this a heauie chance twixt him and you,
Your ancient truſtie pleaſant ſeruant Grumio.
And tell me now (ſweet friend) what happie gale
Blowes you to Padua heere, from old Verona?
Petr. Such wind as ſcatters yoūgmen through the world

To

To ſeeke their fortunes farther then at home,
Where ſmall experience growes but in a few.
Signior Hortenſio, thus it ſtands with me,
Antonio my father is deceaſt,
And I haue thruſt my ſelfe into this maze,
Happily to wiue and thriue, as beſt I may:
Crownes in my purſe I haue, and goods at home,
And ſo am come abroad to ſee the world.
Hor. Petruchio, ſhall I then come roundly to thee,
And wiſh thee to a ſhrew'd ill-fauour'd wife?
Thou'dſt thanke me but a little for my counſell:
And yet Ile promiſe thee ſhe ſhall be rich,
And very rich: but th'art too much my friend,
And Ile not wiſh thee to her.
Pet. Signior Hortenſio, 'twixt ſuch friends as wee,
Few words ſuffice: and therefore, if thou know
One rich enough to be Petruchio's wife:
(As wealth is burthen of my woing dance)
Be ſhe as foule as was Florentius Loue,
As old as Sibell, and as curſt and ſhrew'd
As Socrates Zentippe, or a worſe:
She moues me not, or not remoues at leaſt
Affections edge in me. Were ſhe as rough
As are the ſwelling Adriatick ſeas.
I come to wiue it wealthily in Padua:
If wealthily, then happily in Padua.
Gru. Nay looke you ſir, hee tels you flatly what his minde is: why giue him Gold enough, and marrie him to a Puppet or an Aglet babie, or an old trot with ne're a tooth in her head, though ſhe haue as manie diſeaſes as two and fiftie horſes. Why nothing comes amiſſe, ſo monie comes withall.
Hor. Petruchio, ſince we are ſtept thus farre in,
I will continue that I broach'd in teſt,
I can Petruchio helpe thee to a wife
With wealth enough and yong and beautious,
Brought vp as beſt becomes a Gentlewoman.
Her onely fault, and that is faults enough,
Is, that ſhe is intollerable curſt,
And ſhrow'd, and froward, ſo beyond all meaſure,
That were my ſtate farre worſer then it is,
I would not wed her for a mine of Gold.
Pet. Hortenſio peace: thou know'ſt not golds effect,
Tell me her fathers name, and 'tis enough:
For I will boord her, though ſhe chide as loud
As thunder, when the clouds in Autumne cracke.
Hor. Her father is Baptiſta Minola,
An affable and courteous Gentleman,
Her name is Katherina Minola,
Renown'd in Padua for her ſcolding tongue.
Pet. I know her father, though I know not her,
And he knew my deceaſed father well:
I will not ſleepe Hortenſio til I ſee her,
And therefore let me be thus bold with you,
To giue you ouer at this firſt encounter,
Vnleſſe you will accompanie me thither.
Gru. I pray you Sir let him go while the humor laſts. A my word, and ſhe knew him as well as I do, ſhe would thinke ſcolding would doe little good vpon him. Shee may perhaps call him halfe a ſcore Knaues, or ſo: Why that's nothing; and he begin once, hee'l raile in his rope tricks. Ile tell you what ſir, and ſhe ſtand him but a little, he will throw a figure in her face, and ſo diſfigure her with it, that ſhee ſhall haue no more eies to ſee withall then a Cat: you know him not ſir.
Hor. Tarrie Petruchio, I muſt go with thee,
For in Baptiſta keepe my treaſure is:
He hath the Iewel of my life in hold,
His yongeſt daughter, beautiful Bianca,
And her with-holds from me. Other more
Suters to her, and riuals in my Loue:
Suppoſing it a thing impoſſible,
For thoſe defects I haue before rehearſt,
That euer Katherina will be woo'd:
Therefore this order hath Baptiſta tane,
That none ſhal haue acceſſe vnto Bianca,
Til Katherine the Curſt, haue got a husband.
Gru. Katherine the curſt,
A title for a maide, of all titles the worſt.
Hor. Now ſhal my friend Petruchio do me grace,
And offer me diſguis'd in ſober robes,
To old Baptiſta as a ſchoole-maſter
Well ſeene in Muſicke, to inſtruct Bianca,
That ſo I may by this deuice at leaſt
Haue leaue and leiſure to make loue to her,
And vnſuſpected court her by her ſelfe.

Enter Gremio and Lucentio diſguiſed.

Gru. Heere's no knauerie. See, to beguile the olde-folkes, how the young folkes lay their heads together. Maſter, maſter, looke about you: Who goes there? ha.
Hor. Peace Grumio, it is the riuall of my Loue. Petruchio ſtand by a while.
Grumio. A proper ſtripling, and an amorous.
Gremio. O very well, I haue perus'd the note: Hearke you ſir, Ile haue them verie fairely bound, All bookes of Loue, ſee that at any hand, And ſee you reade no other Lectures to her: You vnderſtand me. Ouer and beſide Signior Baptiſta liberalitie, Ile mend it with a Largeſſe. Take your paper too, And let me haue them verie wel perfum'd; For ſhe is ſweeter then perfume it ſelfe To whom they go to: what will you reade to her.
Luc. What ere I reade to her, Ile pleade for you, As for my patron, ſtand you ſo aſſur'd, As firmely as your ſelfe were ſtill in place, Yea and perhaps with more ſucceſſefull words Then you; vnleſſe you were a ſcholler ſir.
Gre. Oh this learning, what a thing it is.
Gru. Oh this Woodcocke, what an Aſſe it is.
Petru. Peace ſirra.
Hor. Grumio mum: God ſaue you ſignior Gremio.
Gre. And you are wel met, Signior Hortenſio. Trow you whither I am going? To Baptiſta Minola, I promiſt to enquire carefully About a ſchoolemaſter for the faire Bianca, And by good fortune I haue lighted well On this yong man: For learning and behauiour Fit for her turne, well read in Poetrie And other bookes, good ones, I warrant ye.
Hor. 'Tis well: and I haue met a Gentleman Hath promiſt me to helpe one to another, A fine Muſitian to inſtruct our Miſtris, So ſhal I no whit be behinde in dutie To faire Bianca, ſo beloued of me.
Gre. Beloued of me, and that my deeds ſhal proue.
Gru. And that his bags ſhal proue.
Hor. Gremio, 'tis now no time to vent our loue, Liſten to me, and if you ſpeake me faire, Ile tel you newes indifferent good for either. Heere is a Gentleman whom by chance I met

Vpon

Ros. I haue promis'd to make all this matter euen:
Keepe you your word, O Duke, to giue your daughter,
You yours Orlando, to receiue his daughter:
Keepe you your word Phebe, that you'l marrie me,
Or else refusing me to wed this shepheard:
Keepe your word Siluius, that you'l marrie her
If she refuse me, and from hence I go
To make these doubts all euen. Exit Ros. and Celia.

Du.Sen. I do remember in this shepheard boy,
Some liuely touches of my daughters fauour.

Orl. My Lord, the first time that I euer saw him,
Me thought he was a brother to your daughter:
But my good Lord, this Boy is Forrest borne,
And hath bin tutor'd in the rudiments
Of many desperate studies, by his vncle,
Whom he reports to be a great Magitian.

Enter Clowne and Audrey.

Obscured in the circle of this Forrest.

Iaq. There is sure another flood toward, and these couples are comming to the Arke. Here comes a payre of verie strange beasts, which in all tongues, are call'd Fooles.

Clo. Salutation and greeting to you all.

Iaq. Good my Lord, bid him welcome: This is the Motley-minded Gentleman, that I haue so often met in the Forrest: he hath bin a Courtier he sweares.

Clo. If any man doubt that, let him put me to my purgation, I haue trod a measure, I haue flattred a Lady, I haue bin politicke with my friend, smooth with mine enemie, I haue vndone three Tailors, I haue had foure quarrels, and like to haue fought one.

Iaq. And how was that tane vp?

Clo. Faith we met, and found the quarrell was vpon the seuenth cause.

Iaq. How seuenth cause? Good my Lord, like this fellow.

Du.Se. I like him very well.

Clo. God'ild you sir, I desire you of the like: I presse in heere sir, amongst the rest of the Country copulatiues to sweare, and to forsweare, according as marriage binds and blood breakes: a poore virgin sir, an il-fauor'd thing sir, but mine owne, a poore humour of mine sir, to take that that no man else will: rich honestie dwels like a miser sir, in a poore house, as your Pearle in your foule oyster.

Du.Se. By my faith, he is very swift, and sententious

Clo. According to the fooles bolt sir, and such dulcet diseases.

Iaq. But for the seuenth cause. How did you finde the quarrell on the seuenth cause?

Clo. Vpon a lye, seuen times remoued: (beare your bodie more seeming Audrey) as thus sir: I did dislike the cut of a certaine Courtiers beard: he sent me word, if I said his beard was not cut well, hee was in the minde it was: this is call'd the retort courteous. If I sent him word againe, it was not well cut, he wold send me word he cut it to please himselfe: this is call'd the quip modest. If againe, it was not well cut, he disabled my iudgment: this is called, the reply churlish. If againe it was not well cut, he would answer I spake not true: this is call'd the reproofe valiant. If againe, it was not well cut, he wold say, I lie: this is call'd the counter-checke quarrelsome: and so to lye circumstantiall, and the lye direct.

Iaq. And how oft did you say his beard was not well cut?

Clo. I durst go no further then the lye circumstantiall nor he durst not giue me the lye direct: and so we mest sur'd swords, and parted.

Iaq. Can you nominate in order now, the degrees of the lye.

Clo. O sir, we quarrel in print, by the booke: as you haue bookes for good manners: I will name you the degrees. The first, the Retort courteous: the second, the Quip-modest: the third, the reply Churlish: the fourth, the Reproofe valiant: the fift, the Counterchecke quarrelsome: the sixt, the Lye with circumstance: the seuenth, the Lye direct: all these you may auoyd, but the Lye direct: and you may auoide that too, with an If. I knew when seuen Iustices could not take vp a Quarrell, but when the parties were met themselues, one of them thought but of an If; as if you saide so, then I saide so: and they shooke hands, and swore brothers. Your If, is the onely peace-maker: much vertue in if.

Iaq. Is not this a rare fellow my Lord? He's as good at any thing, and yet a foole.

Du.Se. He vses his folly like a stalking-horse, and vnder the presentation of that he shoots his wit.

Enter Hymen, Rosalind, and Celia.
Still Musicke.

Hymen. Then is there mirth in heauen,
When earthly things made euen
Atone together.
Good Duke receiue thy daughter,
Hymen from Heauen brought her,
Yea brought her hether,
That thou might ioyne his hand with his,
Whose heart within his bosome is.

Ros. To you I giue my selfe, for I am yours.
To you I giue my selfe, for I am yours.

Du.Se If there be truth in sight, you are my daughter.

Orl. If there be truth in sight, you are my Rosalind.

Phe. If sight & shape be true, why then my loue adieu

Ros. Ile haue no Father, if you be not he:
Ile haue no Husband, if you be not he:
Nor ne're wed woman, if you be not shee.

Hy. Peace hoa: I barre confusion,
'Tis I must make conclusion
Of these most strange euents:
Here's eight that must take hands,
To ioyne in Hymens bands,
If truth holds true contents.
You and you, no crosse shall part:
You and you, are hart in hart:
You, to his loue must accord,
Or haue a Woman to your Lord.
You and you, are sure together,
As the Winter to fowle Weather:
Whiles a Wedlocke Hymne we sing,
Feede your selues with questioning.
That reason, wonder may diminish
How this we met, and these things finish.

Song.

Wedding is great Iunos crowne,
O blessed bond of board and bed:
'Tis Hymen peoples euery towne,
High wedlock then be honored:
Honor, high honor and renowne
To Hymen, God of euery Towne.

Du.Se. O my deere Neece, welcome
Euen daughter welcome, in no lesse

Phe. I will not eate my word, now thou art mine,
Thy faith, my fancie to thee doth combine.

Enter Second Brother.

2. Bro. Let me haue audience for a word or two:
I am the second sonne of old Sir Rowland,
That bring these tidings to this faire assembly.
Duke Frederick hearing how that euerie day
Men of great worth resorted to this forrest.
Addrest a mightie power, which were on foote
In his owne conduct, purposely to take
His brother heere, and put him to the sword.
And to the skirts of this wilde Wood he came,
Where, meeting with an old Religious man,
After some question with him, was conuerted
Both from his enterprize, and from the world:
His crowne bequeathing to his banish'd Brother,
And all their Lands restor'd to him againe
That were with him exil'd. This to be true,
I do engage my life.

Duke. Welcome yong man:
Thou offer'st fairely to thy brothers wedding:
To one his lands with-held, and to the other
A land itself at large, a potent Dukedome
First, in this Forrest, let vs do those ends
That heere were well begun, and well begot:
And after, euery of this happie number
That haue endur'd shrew'd daies, and nights with vs,
Shal share the good of our returned fortune,
According to the measure of their states.
Meane time, forget this new-falne dignitie,
And fall into our Rusticke Reuelrie:
Play Musicke, and you Brides and Bride-groomes all,
With measure heap'd in ioy, to'th Measures fall.

Iaq. Sir, by your patience: if I heard you rightly,
The Duke hath put on a Religious life,
And throwne into neglect the pompous Court.

2. Bro. He hath.

Iaq. To him will I: out of these conuertites,
There is much matter to be heard, and learn'd:
you to your former Honor, I bequeath
your patience, and your vertue, well deserues it.
you to a loue, that your true faith doth merit:
you to your land, and loue, and great allies:
you to a long, and well-deserued bed:
And you to wrangling, for thy loning voyage
Is but for two monethe victuall'd: So to your pleasures,
I am for other, then for dancing measures.

Duke.Se. Stay, Iaques, stay.

Iaq. To see no pastime, I: what you would haue,
Ile stay to know, at your abandon'd cause. Exit

Duke.Se. Proceed, proceed: we'l begin these rights,
As we do trust, they'l end in true delights. Exit

Ros. It is not the fashion to see the Ladie the Epilogue: but it is no more vnhandsome, then to see the Lord the Prologue. If it be true, that good wine needs no bush, 'tis true, that a good play needes no Epilogue. Yet to good wine they do vse good bushes: and good playes proue the better by the helpe of good Epilogues: What a case am I in then, that am neither a good Epilogue, nor cannot insinuate with you in the behalfe of a good play? I am not furnish'd like a Begger, therefore to begge will not become mee. My way is to conjure you, and Ile begin with the Women. I charge you (O women) for the loue you beare to men, to like as much of this Play, as please you: And I charge you (O men) for the loue you beare to women (as I perceiue by your simpring, none of you hates them) that betweene you, and the women, the play may please. If I were a Woman, I would kisse as many of you as had beards that pleas'd me, complexions that lik'd me, and breaths that I defi'de not: And I am sure, as many as haue good beards, or good faces, or sweet breaths, will for my kind offer, when I make curt'sie, bid me farewell. Exit.

FINIS.

THE Taming of the Shrew.

Actus primus. Scœna Prima.

Enter Beggar and Hoſteſs Chriſtophero Sly.

Beggar.

IL pheeze you infaith.

Hoſt. A paire of ſtockes you rogue.

Beg. Y'are a baggage, the Slies are no Rogues. Looke in the Chronicles, we came in with Richard Conqueror: therefore Pamca pallabris, let the world ſlide: Seſſa.

Hoſt. You will not pay for the glaſſes you haue burſt?

Beg. No, not a denier: go by S. Ieronimie, goe to thy cold bed, and warme thee.

Hoſt. I know my remedie, I muſt go fetch the Headborough.

Beg. Third, or fourth, or fift Borough, Ile anſwere him by Law. Ile not budge an inch boy: Let him come, and kindly. Falles aſleepe.

Winde hornes. Enter a Lord from hunting, with his traine.

Lo. Huntſman I charge thee, tender well my hounds,
Brach Merriman, the poore Curre is imboſt,
And couple Clowder with the deepe-mouth'd brach,
Saw'ſt thou not boy how Siluer made it good
At the hedge corner, in the couldeſt fault,
I would not loſe the dogge for twentie pound.

Hunſ. Why Belman is as good as he my Lord.
He cried vpon it at the meereſt loſſe,
And twice to day pick'd out the dulleſt ſent,
Truſt me, I take him for the better dogge.

Lord. Thou art a Foole, if Eccho were as fleete,
I would eſteeme him worth a dozen ſuch
But ſup them well, and looke vnto them all,
To morrow I intend to hunt againe.

Hunſ. I will my Lord.

Lord. What's heere? One dead, or drunke? See doth he breath?

2. Hun. He breath's my Lord. Were he not warm'd with Ale, this were a bed but cold to ſleep ſo ſoundly.

Lord. Oh monſtrous beaſt, how like a ſwine he lyes.
Grim death, how ſoule and loathſome is thine image:
Sirs, I will practiſe on this drunken man.
What thinke you, if he were conuey'd to bed,
Wrap'd in ſweet cloathes: Rings put vpon his fingers:
A moſt delicious banquet by his bed,
And braue attendants neere him when he wakes,
Would not the begger then forget himſelfe?

1. Hun. Beleeue me Lord, I thinke he cannot chooſe.

2. H. It would ſeem ſtrange vnto him when he wak'd

Lord. Euen as a flatt'ring dreame, or worthles fancie.
Then take him vp, and manage well the ieſt:
Carrie him gently to my faireſt Chamber,
And hang it round with all my wanton pictures:
Balme his foule head in warme diſtilled waters,
And burne ſweet Wood to make the Lodging ſweete:
Procure me Muſicke readie when he wakes,
To make a dulcet and a heauenly ſound:
And if he chance to ſpeake, be readie ſtraight
(And with a lowe ſubmiſſiue reuerence)
Say, what is it your Honor will command:
Let one attend him with a ſiluer Baſon
Full of Roſe-water, and beſtrew'd with Flowers.
Another beare the Ewer: the third a Diaper,
And ſay will pleaſe your Lordſhip coole your hands.
Some one be readie with a coſtly ſuite,
And aſke him what apparrel he will weare:
Another tell him of his Hounds and Horſe,
And that his Ladie mourns at his diſeaſe,
Perſwade him that he hath bin Lunaticke,
And when he ſayes he is, ſay that he dreames,
For he is nothing but a mightie Lord:
This do, and do it kindly, gentle ſirs,
It will be paſtime paſſing excellent,
If it be huſbanded with modeſtie.

1. Hunſ. My Lord I warrant you we will play our part
As he ſhall thinke by our true diligence
He is no leſſe then what we ſay he is.

Lord. Take him vp gently, and to bed with him,
And each one to his office when he wakes.
Sound trumpets.
Sirrah, go ſee what Trompet 'tis that ſounds.
Belike ſome Noble Gentleman that meanes
(Trauelling ſome iourney) to repoſe him heere.

Enter Seruingman.

How now? who is it?

Ser. An't pleaſe your Honor, Players
That offer ſeruice to your Lordſhip.

Enter Players.

Lord. Bid them come neere:
Now fellowes, you are welcome.

Players. We thanke your Honor

Lord. Do you intend to ſtay with me to night?

2. Player. So pleaſe your Lordſhippe to accept our dutie.

Lord. With all my heart. This fellow I remember,
Since once he plaide a Farmers eldeſt ſonne,
'Twas where you woo'd the Gentlewoman ſo well:
I haue forgot your name: but ſure that part

Was

Was aptly fitted, and naturally perform'd.

Sincklo. I think 'twas Soto that your honor means.

Lord. 'Tis verie true, thou didst it excellent:
Well you are come to me in happie time,
The rather for I haue some sport in hand,
Wherein your cunning can assist me much.
There is a Lord will heare you play to night;
But I am doubtfull of your modesties,
Least (ouer-eying of his odde behauiour,
For yet his honor neuer heard a play)
You breake into some merrie passion,
And so offend him: for I tell you firs,
If you should smile, he growes impatient.

Plai. Feare not my Lord, we can contain our selues,
Were he the veriest anticke in the world.

Lord. Go sirs, take them to the Buttrie,
And giue them friendly welcome euerie one.
Let them want nothing that my house affoords.

Exit one with the Players.

Sirra go you to Bartholmew my Page,
And see him dresst in all suites like a Ladie:
That done, conduct him to the drunkards chamber,
And call him Madam, do him obeisance:
Tell him from me (as he will win my loue)
He beare himselfe with honourable action,
Such as he hath obserud in noble Ladies
Vnto their Lords, by them accomplished,
Such dutie to the drunkard let him do:
With soft low tongue, and lowly curtesie,
And say: What is't your Honor will command,
Wherein your Ladie, and your humble wife,
May shew her dutie, and make knowne her loue.
And then with kinde embracements, tempting kisses,
And with declining head into his bosome
Bid him shed teares, as being ouer-ioyed
To see her noble Lord restor'd to health.
Who for this seuen yeares hath esteemed him
No better then a poore and loathsome beggar:
And if the boy haue not a womans guift
To raine a shower of commanded teares,
An Onion will do well for such a shift,
Which in a Napkin (being close conuei'd)
Shall in despight enforce a watrie eie:
See this dispatch'd with all the haste thou canst,
Anon Ile giue thee more instructions.

Exit a seruingman.

I know the boy will well vsurpe the grace,
Voice, gate, and action of a Gentlewoman:
I long to heare him call the drunkard husband,
And how my men will stay themselues from laughter,
When they do homage to this simple peasant,
Ile in to counsell them: haply my presence
May well abate the ouer-merrie spleene,
Which otherwise would grow into extreames.

Enter aloft the drunkard with attendants, some with apparel, Basen and Ewer, & other appurtenances, & Lord.

Beg. For Gods sake a pot of small Ale

1 Ser. Wilt please your Lord drink a cup of sacke?

2 Ser. Wilt please your Honor taste of these Conserues?

3 Ser. What raiment wil your honor weare to day.

Beg. I am Christophero Sly, call not mee Honour nor Lordship: I ne're drank sacke in my life: and if you giue me any Conserues, giue me conserues of Beefe: nere ask me what raiment Ile weare, for I haue no more doublets then backes: no more stockings then legges: nor no more shooes then feet, nay sometime more feete then shooes, or such shooes as my toes look through the ouer-leather.

Lord. Heauen cease this idle humor in your Honor.
Oh that a mightie man of such discent,
Of such possessions, and so high esteeme
Should be infused with so foule a spirit.

Beg. What would you make me mad? Am not I Christopher Sly, old Sies sonne of Burton-heath, by byrth a Pedler, by education a Cardmaker, by transmutation a Beare-herd, and now by present profession a Tinker. Aske Marrian Hacket the fat Alewife of Wincot, if shee know me not: if she say I am not xiiii.d. on the score for sheere Ale, score me vp for the lyingst knaue in Christen dome. What I am not bestraught: here's——

3. Man. Oh this it is that makes your Ladie mourne.

2 Man. Oh this is it that makes your seruants droop.

Lord. Hence comes it, that your kindred shuns your house
As beaten hence by your strange Lunacie.
Oh Noble Lord, bethinke thee of thy birth,
Call home thy ancient thoughts from banishment,
And banish hence these abiect lowlie dreames:
Looke how thy seruants do attend on thee,
Each in his office readie at thy becke.
Wilt thou haue Musicke? Harke Apollo plaies, Musick
And twentie caged Nightingales do sing.
Or wilt thou sleepe? We'l haue thee to a Couch,
Softer and sweeter then the lustfull bed
On purpose trim'd vp for Semiramis.
Say thou wilt walke: we will bestrow the ground.
Or wilt thou ride? Thy horses shal be trap'd,
Their harnesse studded all with Gold and Pearle.
Dost thou loue hawking? Thou hast hawkes will soare
Aboue the morning Larke. Or wilt thou hunt,
Thy hounds shall make the Welkin answer them
And fetch shrill echoes from the hollow earth.

1 Man. Say thou wilt course, thy grey-hounds are as
As breathed Stags I fleeter then the Roe. (swift

2 M. Dost thou loue pictures? we will fetch thee straite
Adonis painted by a running brooke,
And Cytherea all in sedges hid,
Which seeme to moue and wanton with her breath,
Euen as the wauing sedges play with winde.

Lord. We'l shew thee Io, as she was a Maid,
And how she was beguiled and surpriz'd,
As liuelie painted, as the deede was done.

3. Man. Or Daphne roming through a thornie wood,
Scratching her legs, that one shal sweare she bleeds,
And at that sight shal sad Apollo weepe,
So workmanlie the blood and teares are drawne.

Lord. Thou art a Lord, and nothing but a Lord:
Thou hast a Ladie farre more Beautifull,
Then any woman in this waining age.

1 Man. And til the teares that she hath shed for thee,
Like enuious floods ore-run her louely face,
She was the fairest creature in the world,
And yet shee is inferiour to none.

Beg. Am I a Lord, and haue I such a Ladie?
Or do I dreame? Or haue I dream'd till now?
I do not sleepe: I see, I heare, I speake:
I smel sweet sauours, and I feele soft things:
Vpon my life I am a Lord indeede,
And not a Tinker, nor Christopher Sly.
Well, bring our Ladie hither to our sight,
And once againe a pot o'th smallest Ale.

2. Man. Wilt pleaſe your mightineſſe to waſh your hands:
Oh how we ioy to ſee your wit reſtor'd,
Oh that once more you knew but what you are:
Theſe fifteene yeeres you haue bin in a dreame,
Or when you wak'd, ſo wak'd as if you ſlept.
Beg. Theſe fifteene yeeres, by my fay, a goodly nap.
But did I neuer ſpeake of all that time
1 Man. Oh yes my Lord, but very idle words,
For though you lay heere in this goodlie chamber,
Yet would you ſay, ye were beaten out of doore,
And raile vpon the Hoſteſſe of the houſe,
And ſay you would preſent her at the Leete,
Becauſe ſhe brought ſtone-Iugs, and no ſeal'd quarts:
Sometimes you would call out for Cicely Hacket
Beg. I, the womans maide of the houſe.
3 Man. Why ſir you know no houſe, nor no ſuch maid
Nor no ſuch men as you haue reckon'd vp,
As Stephen Sly, and old Iohn Naps of Greece,
And Peter Turph, and Henry Pimpernell,
And twenty more ſuch names and men as theſe,
Which neuer were, nor no man euer ſaw.
Beg. Now Lord be thanked for my good amends.
All. Amen.

Enter Lady with Attendants.

Beg. I thanke thee, thou ſhalt not looſe by it.
Lady. How fares my noble Lord?
Beg. Marrie I fare well, for heere is cheere enough
Where is my wife?
La. Heere noble Lord, what is thy will with her?
Beg. Are you my wife, and will not cal me husband?
My men ſhould call me Lord, I am your good-man.
La. My husband and my Lord, my Lord and husband
I am your wife in all obedience.
Beg. I know it well, what muſt I call her?
Lord. Madam.
Beg. Alce Madam, or Ione Madam?
Lord. Madam, and nothing elſe, ſo Lords cal Ladies
Beg. Madame wife, they ſay that I haue dream'd,
And ſlept aboue ſome fifteene yeare or more.
Lady. I, and the time ſeeme's thirty vnto me,
Being all this time abandon'd from your bed.
Beg. 'Tis much, ſeruants leaue me and her alone:
Madam vndreſſe you, and come now to bed.
La. Thrice noble Lord, let me intreat of you
To pardon me yet for a night or two,
Or if not ſo, vntill the Sun be ſet.
For your Phyſitians haue expreſſely charg'd,
In perill to incurre your former malady,
That I ſhould yet abſent me from your bed
I hope this reaſon ſtands for my excuſe
Beg. I, it ſtands ſo that I may hardly tarry ſo long:
But I would be loth to fall into my dreames againe: I will therefore tarrie in deſpight of the fleſh & the blood

Enter a Meſſenger.

Meſ. Your Honors Players hearing your amendment,
Are come to play a pleaſant Comedie,
For ſo your doctors hold it very meete,
Seeing too much ſadneſſe hath congeal'd your blood,
And melancholly is the Nurſe of frenzie,
Therefore they thought it good you heare a play,
And frame your minde to mirth and merriment,
Which barres a thouſand harmes, and lengthens life.
Beg. Marrie I will let them play, it is not a Comon-tie, a Chriſtmas gambold, or a tumbling tricke?
Lady. No my good Lord, it is more pleaſing ſtuffe.
Beg. What, houſhold ſtuffe.
Lady It is a a kinde of hiſtory.
Beg. Well, we'l ſee't:
Come Madam wife ſit by my ſide,
And let the world ſlip, we ſhall neere be younger.

Flouriſh. Enter Lucentio, and his man Tranio.

Luc. Tranio, ſince for the great deſire I had
To ſee faire Padua, nurſerie of Arts,
I am arriu'd for fruitfull Lombardie,
The pleaſant garden of great Italy,
And by my fathers loue and leaue am arm'd
With his good will, and thy good companie.
My truſtie ſeruant well approu'd in all,
Heere let vs breath, and haply inſtitute
A courſe of Learning, and ingenious ſtudies.
Piſa renowned for graue Citizens
Gaue me my being, and my father firſt
A Merchant of great Traffick through the world:
Vincentio come of the Bentiuolij.
Vincentio's ſonne, brought vp in Florence,
It ſhall be come to ſerue all hopes conceiu'd
To decke his fortune with his vertuous deedes:
And therefore Tranio, for the time I ſtudie,
Vertue and that part of Philoſophie
Will I applie, that treats of happineſſe,
By vertue ſpecially to be atchiu'd.
Tell me thy minde, for I haue Piſa left,
And am to Padua come, as he that leaues
A ſhallow plaſh, to plunge him in the deepe,
And with ſatietie ſeekes to quench his thirſt.
Tra. Mee Pardonato, gentle maſter mine
I am in all affected as your ſelfe,
Glad that you thus continue your reſolue,
To ſucke the ſweets of ſweete Philoſophie.
Onely (good maſter) while we do admire
This vertue, and this morall diſcipline,
Let's be no Stoickes, nor no ſtockes I pray,
Or ſo deuote to Ariſtotles checkes
As Ouid; be an out-caſt quite abiur'd:
Balke Logicke with acquaintance that you haue,
And practiſe Rhetoricke in your common talke,
Muſicke and Poeſie vſe, to quicken you,
The Mathematickes, and the Metaphyſickes
Fall to them as you finde your ſtomacke ſerues you
No profit growes, where is no pleaſure tane:
In briefe ſir, ſtudie what you moſt affect.
Luc. Gramercies Tranio, well doſt thou aduiſe,
If Baptiſta be wel were come aſhore,
We could at once put vs in readineſſe,
And take a Lodging fit to entertaine
Such friends (as time) in Padua ſhall beget.
But ſtay a while, what companie is this?
Tra. Maſter ſome ſhew to welcome vs to Towne.

Enter Baptiſta with his two daughters, Katherina & Bianca, Gremio a Pantelowne. Hortenſio ſuitor to Bianca. Lucen. Tranio ſtand by.

Bap. Gentlemen, importune me no farther,
For how I firmly am reſolu'd you know:
That is, not to beſtow my youngeſt daughter,
Before I haue a husband for the elder:
If either of you both loue Katherina,

Beare

Becauſe I know you well, and loue you well,
Leaue ſhall you haue to court her at your pleaſure.
Gre. To cart her rather. She's too rough for mee.
There, there Hortenſio. will you any Wife?
Kate. I pray you ſir, is it your will
To make a ſtale of me amongſt theſe mates?
Hor. Mates maid, how meane you that? no mates for you,
Vnleſſe you were of gentler milder mould.
Kate. Faith ſir, you ſhall neuer needs to feare,
I wis it is not halfe way to her heart:
But if it were, doubt not, her care ſhould be,
To combe your noddle with a three-legg'd ſtoole,
And paint your face, and vſe you like a foole.
Hor. From all ſuch diuels, good Lord deliuer vs.
Gre. And me too good Lord.
Tra. Huſht maſter, here's ſome good paſtime toward;
That wench is ſtarke mad, or wonderfull froward
Luc. But in the other's ſilence do I ſee,
Maids milde behauiour and ſobrietie.
Peace Tranio.
Tra. Well ſaid Mr. mum, and gaze your fill
Bap. Gentlemen, that I may ſoone make good
What I haue ſaid, Bianca get you in.
And let it not diſpleaſe thee good Bianca,
For I will loue thee ne're the leſſe my girle.
Kate. A pretty peate, it is beſt put finger in the eye,
and ſhe knew why.
Bian. Siſter content you in my diſcontent.
Sir, to your pleaſure humbly I ſubſcribe:
My bookes and inſtruments ſhall be my companie,
On them to looke, and practiſe by my ſelfe.
Luc. Harke Tranio, thou maiſt heare Minerua ſpeak.
Hor. Signior Baptiſta, will you be ſo ſtrange,
Sorrie am I that our good will effects
Bianca's greefe.
Gre. Why will you mew her vp
(Signior Baptiſta) for this fiend of hell,
And make her beare the penance of her tongue.
Bap. Gentlemen content ye: I am reſolu'd:
Go in Bianca.
And for I know ſhe taketh moſt delight
In Muſicke, Inſtruments, and Poetry,
Schoolemaſters will I keepe within my houſe,
Fit to inſtruct her youth. If you Hortenſio,
Or ſignior Gremio you know any ſuch,
Preferre them hither: for to cunning men,
I will be very kinde and liberall
To mine owne children, in good bringing vp,
And ſo farewell: Katherina you may ſtay,
For I haue more to commune with Bianca. Exit.
Kate. Why, and I truſt I may go too, may I not?
What ſhall I be appointed houres, as though
(Belike) I knew not what to take,
And what to leaue? Ha Exit
Gre. You may go to the diuels dam: your guifts are ſo good here's none will holde you: Their loue is not
ſo great Hortenſio, but we may blow our nails together, and faſt it faireely out. Our cakes dough on both ſides.
Farewell: yet for the loue I beare my ſweet Bianca, if I can by any meanes light on a fit man to teach her that wherein ſhe delights, I will wiſh him to her father.
Hor. So will I ſignior Gremio: but a word I pray:
Though the nature of our quarrell yet neuer brook'd
parle, know now vpon aduice, it toucheth vs both: that we may yet againe haue acceſſe to our faire Miſtris, and
be happie riuals in Bianca's loue, to labour and effect
one thing ſpecially.
Gre. What's that I pray?
Hor. Marrie ſir to get a husband for her Siſter.
Gre. A husband: a diuell.
Hor. I ſay a husband.
Gre. I ſay, a diuell: Think'ſt thou Hortenſio, though her father be verie rich, any man is ſo verie a foole to be married to hell?
Hor. Tuſh Gremio: though it paſſe your patience &
mine to endure her lowd alarums, why man there bee
good fellowes in the world, and a man could light on them, would take her with all faults, and mony enough.
Gre. I cannot tell: but I had as lief take her dowrie with this condition; To be whipt at the hie croſſe euerie
morning.
Hor. Faith (as you ſay) there's ſmall choiſe in rotten apples: but come, ſince this bar in law makes vs friends,
it ſhall be ſo farre forth friendly maintain'd till by help-ping Baptiſta eldeſt daughter to a husband, we ſee his
yongeſt free for a husband, and then haue to't afreſh:
Sweet Bianca, happy man be his dole: he that runnes
faſteſt, gets the Ring: How ſay you ſignior Gremio?
Gre. I am agreed, and would I had giuen him the beſt horſe in Padua to begin his woing that would tho roughly woe her, wed her, and bed her, and ridde the houſe of her. Come on.
Exeunt ambo. Manet Tranio and Lucentio
Tra. I pray ſir tell me, is it poſſible
That loue ſhould of a ſodaine take ſuch hold.
Luc. Oh Tranio, till I found it to be true,
I neuer thought it poſſible or likely.
But ſee, while idely I ſtood looking on,
I found the effect of Loue in idleneſſe,
And now in plainneſſe do confeſſe to thee
That art to me as ſecret and as deere
As Anna to the Queene of Carthage was
Tranio I burne, I pine, I periſh Tranio,
If I atchieue not this yong modeſt gyrle:
Counſaile me Tranio, for I know thou canſt:
Aſſiſt me Tranio, for I know thou wilt.
Tra. Maſter, it is no time to chide you now,
Affection is not rated from the heart:
If loue haue touch'd you, naught remaines but ſo,
Redime te captum quam queas minimo.
Luc Gramercies Lad: Go forward, this contents,
The reſt wil comfort, for thy counſels ſound.
Tra. Maſter, you look'd ſo longly on the maide.
Perhaps you mark'd not what's the pith of all.
Luc. Oh yes, I ſaw ſweet beautie in her face,
Such as the daughter of Agenor had,
That made great Ioue to humble him to her hand,
When with his knees he kiſt the Cretan ſtrond.
Tra. Saw you no more? Mark'd you not how her ſiſter
Began to ſcold, and raiſe vp ſuch a ſtorme,
That mortall eares might hardly indure the din.
Luc. Tranio, I ſaw her corrall lips to moue,
And with her breath ſhe did perfume the ayre,
Sacred and ſweet was all I ſaw in her.
Tra. Nay, then tis time to ſtirre him from his trance:
I pray awake ſir: if you loue the Maide,
Bend thoughts and wits to atcheeue her. Thus it ſtands:
Her elder ſiſter is ſo curſt and ſhrew'd,
That til the Father rid his hands of her,
Maſter, your Loue muſt liue a maide at home,
And therefore has he cloſely mew'd her vp,

Becauſe

Becauſe ſhe will not be annoy'd with ſuters.
Luc. Ah Tranio, what a cruell Fathers he:
But art thou not aduis'd, he tooke ſome care
To get her cunning Schoolemaſters to inſtruct her.
Tra. I marry am I ſir, and now 'tis plotted.
Luc. I haue it Tranio.
Tra Maſter, for my hand
Both our inuentions meet and iumpe in one.
Luc. Tell me thine firſt
Tra. You will be ſchoole-maſter,
And vndertake the teaching of the maid:
That's your deuice.
Luc. It is: May it be done?
Tra. Not poſſible: for who ſhall beare your part,
And be in Padua heere Vincentio's ſonne,
Keepe houſe, and ply his booke, welcome his friends,
Viſit his Countrimen, and banquet them?
Luc. Baſta, content thee: for I haue it full.
We haue not yet bin ſeene in any houſe,
Nor can we be diſtinguiſh'd by our faces,
For man or maſter: then it followes thus;
Thou ſhalt be maſter, Tranio in my ſted.
Keepe houſe, and port, and ſeruants, as I ſhould,
I will ſome other be, ſome Florentine,
Some Neapolitan, or meaner man of Piſa.
'Tis hatch'd, and ſhall be ſo: Tranio at once
Vncaſe thee: take my Conlord hat and cloake,
When Biondello comes, he waites on thee,
But I will charme him firſt to keepe his tongue.
Tra. So had you needs:
In breefe Sir, ſith it your pleaſure is,
And I am tyed to be obedient,
For ſo your father charg'd me at our parting:
Be ſeruiceable to my ſonne (quoth he)
Although I thinke 'twas in another ſence,
I am content to bee Lucentio,
Becauſe ſo well I loue Lucentio.
Luc. Tranio be ſo, becauſe Lucentio loues.
And let me be a ſlaue, t'atchieue that maide,
Whoſe ſodaine ſight hath thral'd my wounded eye.

Enter Biondello.

Heere comes the rogue. Sirra, where haue you bin?
Bion. Where haue I beene? Nay how now, where are you? Maiſter, ha's my fellow Tranio ſtolne your clothes, or you ſtolne his, or both? Pray what's the newes
Luc. Sirra come hither, 'tis no time to ieſt,
And therefore frame your manners to the time
Your fellow Tranio heere to ſaue my life,
Puts my apparrell, and my counſtance on,
And I for my eſcape haue put on his:
For in a quarrell ſince I came a ſhore,
I kil'd a man, and feare I was deſcride:
Waite you on him, I charge you, as becomes:
While I make way from hence to ſaue my life:
You vnderſtand me?
Bion. I ſir, ne're a whit.
Luc. And not a iot of Tranio in your mouth,
Tranio is chang'd into Lucentio.
Bion. The better for him, would I were ſo too.
Tra. So could I 'faith boy, to haue the next wiſh after, that Lucentio indeede had Baptiſtas yongeſt daughter. But ſirra, not for my ſake, but your maſters, I aduiſe you vſe your manners diſcreetly in all kind of companies: When I am alone, why then I am Tranio: but in all places elſe, you maſter Lucentio.
Luc. Tranio let's go:
One thing more reſts, that thy ſelfe execute,
To make one among theſe wooers: if thou aſk me why,
Sufficeth my reaſons are both good and waighty.
Exeunt. The Preſenters aboue ſpeakes.
1. Man. My Lord you nod, you do not minde the play
Beg. Yes by Saint Anne do I, a good matter ſurely:
Comes there any more of it?
Lady My Lord, 'tis but begun
Beg. 'Tis a verie excellent peece of worke, Madame Ladie: would 'twere done. They ſit and marke

Enter Petruchio, and his man Grumio

Petr. Verona, for a while I take my leaue,
To ſee my friends in Padua; but of all
My beſt beloued and approued friend
Hortenſio: & I trow this is his houſe:
Heere ſirra Grumio, knocke I ſay.
Gru. Knocke ſir? whom ſhould I knocke? Is there any man has rebus'd your worſhip?
Petr. Villaine I ſay, knocke me heere ſoundly.
Gru. Knocke you heere ſir? Why ſir, what am I ſir, that I ſhould knocke you heere ſir
Petr. Villaine I ſay, knocke me at this gate,
And rap me well, or Ile knocke your knaues pate
Gru. My Maſter is growne quarrelſome:
I ſhould knocke you firſt,
And then I know after who comes by the worſt.
Petr. Will it not be?
'Faith ſirrah, and you I not knocke, Ile ring it,
Ile trie how you can Sol, Fa, and ſing it.
He rings him by the eares
Gru. Helpe miſtris helpe, my maſter is mad.
Petr. Now knocke when I bid you: ſirrah villaine.

Enter Hortenſio.

Hor. How now, what's the matter? My olde friend Grumio, and my good friend Petruchio? How do you all at Verona?
Petr. Signior Hortenſio, come you to part the fray? Contutto le ſpe bene trobato, may I ſay.
Hor. Alla noſtra caſa bene venuto molto honorato ſignor mio Petruchio.
Riſe Grumio riſe, we will compound this quarrell
Gru. Nay 'tis no matter ſir, what he leges in Latine If this be not a lawfull cauſe for me to leaue his ſeruice, looke you ſir: He bid me knocke him, & rap him ſoundly ſir Well, was it fit for a ſeruant to vſe his maſter ſo, being perhaps (for ought I ſee) two and thirty, a pepper out? Whom would to God I had well knockt at firſt, then had not Grumio come by the worſt
Petr. A ſencelleſſe villaine: good Hortenſio, I bad the raſcall knocke vpon your gate, And could not get him for my heart to do it.
Gru. Knocke at the gate? O heavens: ſpake you not theſe words plaine? Sirra, Knocke me heere: rappe me heere: knocke me well, and knocke me ſoundly? And come you now with knocking at the gate?
Petr. Sirra be gone, or talke not I aduiſe you.
Hor. Petruchio patience, I am Grumio's pledge
Why this a heauie chance twixt him and you,
Your ancient truſtie pleaſant ſeruant Grumio.
And tell me now (ſweet friend) what happie gale
Blowes you to Padua heere, from old Verona?
Petr. Such wind as ſcatters yougmen through your world

To

To ſeeke their fortunes farther then at home,
Where ſmall experience growes but in a few.
Signior Hortenſio, thus it ſtands with me,
Antonio my father is deceaſt,
And I haue thruſt my ſelfe into this maze,
Happily to wiue and thriue, as beſt I may:
Crownes in my purſe I haue, and goods at home,
And ſo am come abroad to ſee the world.
Hor. Petruchio, ſhall I then come roundly to thee,
And wiſh thee to a ſhrew'd ill-fauour'd wife?
Thou'dſt thanke me but a little for my counſell:
And yet Ile promiſe thee ſhe ſhall be rich,
And very rich: but th'art too much my friend,
And Ile not wiſh thee to her.
Pet. Signior Hortenſio, 'twixt ſuch friends as wee,
Few words ſuffice: and therefore, if thou know
One rich enough to be Petruchio s wife:
(As wealth is burthen of my wooing dance)
Be ſhe as foule as was Florentius Loue,
As old as Sibell, and as curſt and ſhrow'd
As Socrates Zentippe, or a worſe:
She moues me not, or not remoues at leaſt
Affections edge in me. Were ſhe is as rough
As are the ſwelling Adriaticke ſeas.
I come to wiue it wealthily in Padua:
If wealthily, then happily in Padua.
Gru. Nay looke you ſir, hee tels you flatly what his minde is: why giue him Gold enough, and marrie him to a Puppet or an Aglet babie, or an old trot with ne're a tooth in her head, though ſhe haue as manie diſeaſes as two and fiftie horſes. Why nothing comes amiſſe, ſo monie comes withall.
Hor. Petruchio, ſince we are ſtept thus farre in,
I will continue that I broach'd in ieſt,
I can Petruchio helpe thee to a wife
With wealth enough and yong and beautious,
Brought vp as beſt becomes a Gentlewoman.
Her onely fault, and that is faults enough,
Is, that ſhe is intollerable curſt,
And ſhrow'd, and froward, ſo beyond all meaſure,
That were my ſtate farre worſes then it is,
I would not wed her for a mine of Gold.
Pet. Hortenſio peace: thou knowſt not golds effect,
Tell me her fathers name, and 'tis enough:
For I will boord her, though ſhe chide as loud
As thunder, when the clouds in Autumne cracke
Hor. Her father is Baptiſta Minola,
An affable and courteous Gentleman,
Her name is Katherina Minola,
Renown'd in Padua for her ſcolding tongue.
Pet. I know her father, though I know not her,
And he knew my deceaſed father well:
I will not ſleepe Hortenſio til I ſee her,
And therefore let me be thus bold with you,
To giue you ouer at this firſt encounter,
Vnleſſe you will accompanie me thither.
Gru. I pray you Sir let him go while the humor laſts. A my word, and ſhe knew him as well as I do, ſhe would thinke ſcolding would doe little good vpon him. Shee may perhaps call him halfe a ſcore Knaues, or ſo: Why that's nothing; and he begin once, hee'l raile in his rope tricks. Ile tell you what ſir, and ſhe ſtand him but a little, he will throw a figure in her face, and ſo diſfigure her with it, that ſhee ſhall haue no more eies to ſee withall then a Cat: you know him not ſir.
Hor. Tarrie Petruchio, I muſt go with thee,
For in Baptiſta keepe my treaſure is:
He hath the Iewel of my life in hold,
His yongeſt daughter, beautiful Bianca,
And her with-holds from me. Other more
Suters to her, and riuals in my Loue:
Suppoſing it a thing impoſſible,
For thoſe defects I haue before rehearſt,
That euer Katherina will be woo'd:
Therefore this order hath Baptiſta tane,
That none ſhal haue acceſſe vnto Bianca,
Til Katherine the Curſt, haue got a husband.
Gru. Katherine the curſt,
A title for a maide, of all titles the worſt.
Hor. Now ſhal my friend Petruchio do me grace,
And offer me diſguis'd in ſober robes,
To old Baptiſta as a ſchoole-maſter
Well ſeene in Muſicke, to inſtruct Bianca,
That ſo I may by this deuice at leaſt
Haue leaue and leiſure to make loue to her,
And vnſuſpected court her by her ſelfe.

Enter Gremio and Lucentio diſguiſed.

Gru. Heere's no knauerie. See, to beguile the olde folkes, how the young folkes lay their heads together. Maſter, maſter, looke about you: Who goes there? ha.
Hor. Peace Grumio, it is the riuall of my Loue. Petruchio ſtand by a while.
Grumio. A proper ſtripling, and an amorous.
Gremio. O very well, I haue perus'd the note: Hearke you ſir, Ile haue them verie fairely bound, All bookes of Loue, ſee that at any hand, And ſee you reade no other Lectures to her: You vnderſtand me. Ouer and beſide Signior Baptiſta liberalitie, Ile mend it with a Largeſſe. Take your paper too, And let me haue them verie wel perfum'd; For ſhe is ſweeter then perfume it ſelfe To whom they go to: what wil you reade to her.
Luc. What ere I reade to her, Ile pleade for you, As for my patron, ſtand you ſo aſſur'd, As firmely as your ſelfe were ſtill in place, Yea and perhaps with more ſucceſſefull words Then you; vnleſſe you were a ſcholler ſir.
Gre. Oh this learning, what a thing it is.
Gru. Oh this Woodcocke, what an Aſſe it is.
Petru. Peace ſirra.
Hor. Grumio mum: God ſaue you ſignior Gremio.
Gre. And you are wel met, Signior Hortenſio. Trow you whither I am going? To Baptiſta Minola, I promiſe to enquire carefully About a ſchoolemaſter for the faire Bianca, And by good fortune I haue lighted well On this yong man: For learning and behauiour Fit for her turne, well read in Poetrie And other bookes, good ones, I warrant ye.
Hor. 'Tis well: and I haue met a Gentleman Hath promiſt me to helpe one to another, A fine Muſician to inſtruct our Miſtris, So ſhal I no whit be behinde in dutie To faire Bianca, ſo beloued of me.
Gre. Beloued of me and that my deeds ſhal proue.
Gru. And that his bags ſhal proue.
Hor. Gremio, 'tis now no time to vent our loue, Liſten to me, and if you ſpeake me faire, Ile tel you newes indifferent good for either. Heere is a Gentleman whom by chance I met

Vpon

Vpon agreement from vs to his liking,
Will vndertake to woo curſt Katherine,
Yea, and to marrie her, if her dowrie pleaſe.
Gre. So ſaid, ſo done, is well:
Hortenſio, haue you told him all her faults?
Petr. I know ſhe is an irkeſome brawling ſcold:
If that be all Maſters, I heare no harme.
Gre. No, ſayſt me ſo, friend? What Countreyman?
Petr. Borne in Verona, old Butonios ſonne:
My father dead, my fortune liues for me,
And I do hope, good dayes and long, to ſee.
Gre. Oh ſir, ſuch a liſe with ſuch a wife, were ſtrange:
But if you haue a ſtomacke, too't a Gods name,
You ſhal haue me aſſiſting you in all.
But will you woo this Wilde-cat?
Petr. Will I liue?
Gru. Will he woo her? I: or Ile hang her.
Petr. Why came I hither, but to that intent?
Thinke you, a little dinne can daunt mine eares?
Haue I not in my time heard Lions rore?
Haue I not heard the ſea, puft vp with windes,
Rage like an angry Boare, chafed with ſweat?
Haue I not heard great Ordnance in the field?
And heauens Artillerie thunder in the skies?
Haue I not in a pitched battell heard
Loud larums, neighing ſteeds, & trumpets clangue?
And do you tell me of a womans tongue?
That giues not halfe ſo great a blow to heare,
As will a Cheſſe-nut in a Farmers fire.
Tuſh, tuſh, feare boyes with bugs.
Gru. For he feares none.
Grem. Hortenſio hearke:
This Gentleman is happily arriu'd,
My minde preſumes for his owne good, and yours.
Hor. I promiſt we would be Contributors,
And beare his charge of wooing whatſoere.
Gremio. And ſo we wil, prouided that he win her.
Gru. I would I were as ſure of a good dinner.

Enter Trauio braue, and Biondello.

Tra. Gentlemen God ſaue you. If I may be bold
Tell me I beſeech you, which is the readieſt way
To the houſe of Signior Baptiſta Minola?
Bion. He that has the two faire daughters: iſt he you meane?
Tra. Euen he Biondello.
Gre. Hearke you ſir, you meane not her to——
Tra. Perhaps him and her ſir, what haue you to do?
Petr. Not her that chides ſir, at any hand I pray.
Tranio. I loue no chiders ſir: Biondello, let's away.
Luc Well begun Tranio.
Hor. Sir, a word ere you go:
Are you a ſutor to the Maid you talke of, yea or no?
Tra. And if I be ſir, is it any offence?
Gremio. No: if without more words you will get you hence.
Tra. Why ſir, I pray are not the ſtreets as free
For me, as for you?
Gre. But ſo is not ſhe.
Tra. For what reaſon I beſeech you.
Gre. For this reaſon if you'l kno,
That ſhe's the choiſe loue of Signior Gremio.
Hor. That ſhe's the choſen of ſignior Hortenſio.
Tra. Softly my Maſters: If you be Gentlemen
Do me this right, heare me with patience.
Baptiſta is a noble Gentleman,
To whom my Father is not all vnknowne,
And were his daughter fairer then ſhe is,
She may more ſutors haue, and me for one.
Faire Ladaes daughter had a thouſand wooers,
Then well one more may faire Bianca haue,
And ſo ſhe ſhall: Lucentio ſhal make one,
Though Paris came, in hope to ſpeed alone.
Gre. What, this Gentleman will out-talke vs all.
Luc. Sir giue him head, I know he'l proue a Iade.
Petr. Hortenſio, to what end are all theſe words?
Hor. Sir, let me be ſo bold as aske you,
Did you yet euer ſee Baptiſtas daughter?
Tra. No ſir, but heare I do that he hath two:
The one, as famous for a ſcolding tongue,
As is the other, for beauteous modeſtie.
Petr. Sir, ſir, the firſt's for me, let her go by
Gre. Yea, leaue that labour to great Hercules,
And let it be more then Alcides twelue.
Petr. Sir vnderſtand you this of me (inſooth)
The yongeſt daughter whom you hearken for,
Her father keepes from all acceſſe of ſutors
And will not promiſe her to any man,
Vntill the elder ſiſter firſt be wed
The yonger then is free, and not before.
Tranio. If it be ſo ſir, that you are the man
Muſt ſteed vs all, and me amongſt the reſt:
And if you breake the ice, and do this ſeeke,
Atchieue the elder: ſet the yonger free,
For our acceſſe, whoſe hap ſhall be to haue her,
Wil not ſo graceleſſe be, to be ingrate.
Hor. Sir you ſay wel, and wel you do conceiue.
And ſince you do profeſſe to be a ſutor,
You muſt as we do, gratifie this Gentleman,
To whom we all reſt generally beholding.
Tranio. Sir, I ſhal not be ſlacke, in ſigne whereof,
Pleaſe ye we may contriue this afternoone,
And quaffe carowſes to our Miſtreſſe health,
And do as aduerſaries do in law,
Striue mightily, but eate and drinke as friends.
Gru. Bion. Oh excellent motion: fellowes let's be gon
Hor. The motions good indeed, and be it ſo, Petruchio, I ſhal be your Ben venuto. Exeunt

Enter Katherina and Bianca.

Bian. Good ſiſter wrong me not, nor wrong your ſelf,
To make a bondmaide and a ſlaue of me,
That I diſdaine: but for theſe other goods,
Vnbinde my hands, Ile pull them off my ſelfe,
Yea all my raiment, to my petticoate,
Or what you will command me, will I do,
So well I know my dutie to my elders.
Kate. Of all thy ſutors heere I charge tel
Whom thou lou'ſt beſt: ſee thou diſſemble not.
Bianca. Beleeue me ſiſter, of all the men aliue,
I neuer yet beheld that ſpeciall face,
Which I could fancie, more then any other.
Kate. Minion thou lyeſt: Is't not Hortenſio?
Bian. If you affect him ſiſter, heere I ſweare
Ile plede for you my ſelfe, but you ſhal haue him.
Kate. Oh then belike you fancie riches more,
You wil haue Gremio to keepe you faire.
Bian. Is it for him you do enuie me ſo?
Nay then you ieſt, and now I wel perceiue
You haue but ieſted with me all this while:
I prethee ſiſter Kate, vntie my hands.
Ka. If that be ieſt, then all the reſt was ſo. Strikes her
Exeunt

Enter Baptiſta.

Why how now Dame, whence growes this in-ſolence?
nd aſide, poore gyrle ſhe weepes:
r Needle, meddle not with her thou Hilding of a diuelliſh ſpirit, thou wrong her, that did ere wrong thee?
ſhe croſſe thee with a bitter word?
Her ſilence flouts me, and Ile be reueng'd.
Flies after Bianca.
What in my ſight? Bianca get thee in. Exit.
What will you not ſuffer me: Nay now I ſee
r treaſure, ſhe muſt haue a husband, ee bare-foot on her wedding day,
our loue to her, leade Apes in hell.
to me, I will go ſit and weepe,
finde occaſion of reuenge.
Was euer Gentleman thus greeu'd as I comes heere.

Gremio, Lucentio, in the habit of a meane man.
Petruchio with Trania, with bis boy bearing a Lute and Bookes.

Good morrow neighbour Baptiſta.
Good morrow neighbour Gremio: God ſaue llemen.
nd you good ſir: pray haue you not a daugh-Katerina, faire and vertuous.
haue a daughter ſir, call'd Katerina.
You are too blunt, go to it orderly.
You wrong me ſignior Gremio, giue me leaue.
ntleman of Verona ſir,
ing of her beauty, and her wit,
ſtary and baſhfull modeſtie:
drous qualities, and milde behauiour oo ſhew my ſelfe a forward gueſt
our houſe, to make mine eye the witneſſe ſport, which I ſo oft haue heard, n entrance to my entertainment,
ot you with a man of mine
in Muſicke, and the Mathematickes, ft her ſkilly in thoſe ſciences,
I know ſhe is not ignorant,
Them, or elſe you do me wrong.
is Luce, borne in Mantua.
You are welcome ſir, and he for your good ſake.
y daughter Katerina, this I know,
for your turne, the more my greefe.
I ſee you do not meane to part with her,
ou like not of my compaine.
Miſtake me not, I ſpeake but as I finde, are you ſir? What may I call your name.
Petruchio is my name, Antonio's ſonne,
ell knowne throughout all Italy
I know him well: you are welcome for his ſake.
ioning your ſale Petruchio, I pray let vs that are ſuitors ſpeake too: Baccare, you are meruayard.
Ob. Pardon me ſignior Gremio, I would faine be

I doubt it not ſir. But you will curſe oing neighbors: this is a gueſt ateſull, I am ſure of it, to expreſſe kindneſſe my ſelfe, that haue beene ndely beholding to you then any:
Freely giue vnto this yong Scholler, that hath Beene long ſtudying at Rhemes, as cunning
In Greeke, Latine, and other Languages,
As the other in Muſicke and Mathematickes:
His name is Cambio: pray accept his ſeruice
Bap. A thouſand thankes ſignior Gremio:
Welcome good Cambio. But gentle ſir,
Me thinkes you walke like a ſtranger,
May I be ſo bold, to know the cauſe of your comming
Tra. Pardon me ſir, the boldneſſe is mine owne,
That being a ſtranger in this Citie heere,
Do make my ſelfe a ſuter to your daughter,
Vnto Bianca, faire and vertuous:
Nor is your firme reſolue vnknowne to me,
In the preferment of the eldeſt ſiſter.
This liberty is all that I requeſt,
That vpon knowledge of my Parentage,
I may haue welcome amongſt the reſt that woo,
And free acceſſe and fauour as the reſt.
And toward the education of your daughters:
I heere beſtow a ſimple inſtrument,
And this ſmall packet of Greeke and Latine bookes:
If you accept them, then their worth is great.
Bap. Lucentio is your name, of whence I pray.
Tra. Of Piſa ſir, ſonne to Vincentio.
Bap. A mighty man of Piſa by report,
I know him well: you are very welcome ſir.
Take you the Lute, and you the ſet of bookes,
You ſhall go ſee your Pupils preſently.
Holla, within.

Enter a Seruant.

Sirrah, leade theſe Gentlemen
To my daughters, and tell them both
Theſe are their Tutors, bid them vſe them well,
We will go walke a little in the Orchard,
And then to dinner: you are paſſing welcome,
And ſo I pray you all to thinke your ſelues.
Pet. Signior Baptiſta, my buſineſſe asketh haſte,
And euerie day I cannot come to woo,
You knew my father well, and in him me,
Left ſolie heire to all his Lands and goods,
Which I haue bettered rather then decreaſt,
Then tell me, if I get your daughters loue,
What dowrie ſhall I haue with her to wife.
Bap. After my death, the one halfe of my Lands,
And in poſſeſſion twentie thouſand Crownes.
Pet. And for that dowrie, Ile aſſure her of Her widdow-hood, be it that ſhe ſuruiue me
In all my Lands and Leaſes whatſoeuer,
Let ſpecialties be therefore drawne betweene vs,
That couenants may be kept on either hand.
Bap. I, when the ſpeciall thing is well obtain'd,
That is her loue: for that is all in all.
Pet. Why that is nothing: for I tell you father,
I am as peremptorie as ſhe proud minded:
And where two raging fires meete together,
They do conſume the thing that feedes their furie.
Though little fire growes great with little winde,
yet extreme guſts will blow out fire and all:
So I to her, and ſo ſhe yeelds to me,
For I am rough, and woo not like a babe.
Bap. Well maiſt thou woo, and happy be thy ſpeed:
But be thou arm'd for ſome vnhappie words.
Pet. I to the proofe, as Mountaines are for windes,
That ſhakes not, though they blow perpetually

Enter Hortenſio with his head broke.

Bap. How now my friend, why doſt thou looke ſo pale?

Hor. For feare I promiſe you, if I looke pale.

Bap. What, will my daughter proue a good Muſitian?

Hor. I thinke ſhe'l ſooner proue a ſouldier, Iron may hold with her, but neuer Lutes.

Bap. Why then thou canſt not breake her to the Lute?

Hor. Why no, for ſhe hath broke the Lute to me: I did but tell her ſhe miſtooke her frets, And bow'd her hand to teach her fingering, When (with a moſt impatient diuelliſh ſpirit) Frets call you theſe? (quoth ſhe) Ile fume with them: And with that word ſhe ſtroke me on the head, And through the inſtrument my pate made way, And there I ſtood amazed for a while, As on a Pillorie, looking through the Lute, While ſhe did call me Raſcall, Fidler; And twangling Iacke, with twentie ſuch vilde teannes; As had ſhe ſtudied to miſvſe me ſo.

Pet. Now by the world, it is a luſtie Wench, I loue her ten times more then ere I did, Oh how I long to haue ſome chat with her.

Bap. Wel go with me, and be not ſo diſcomfited. Proceed in practiſe with my yongee daughter, She's apt to learne, and thankefull for good turnes: Signior Petruchio, will you go with vs, Or ſhall I ſend my daughter Kate to you.

Exit. Manet Petruchio.

Pet. I pray you do. Ile attend her heere, And woo her with ſome ſpirit when ſhe comes, Say that ſhe raile, why then Ile tell her plaine, She ſings as ſweetly as a Nightinghale: Say that ſhe frowne, Ile ſay ſhe lookes as cleere As morning Roſes newly waſht with dew: Say ſhe be mute, and will not ſpeake a word, Then Ile commend her volubility. And ſay ſhe vttereth piercing eloquence If ſhe do bid me packe, Ile giue her thankes, As though ſhe bid me ſtay by her a weeke: If ſhe denie to wed, Ile craue the day When I ſhall aſke the banes, and when be married. But heere ſhe comes, and now Petruchio ſpeake.

Enter Katerina.

Good morrow Kate, for thats your name I heare.

Kate. Well haue you heard, but ſomething hard of hearing: They call me Katerine, that do talke of me.

Pet. You lye in faith, for you are call'd plaine Kate, And bony Kate, and ſometimes Kate the curſt: But Kate, the prettieſt Kate in Chriſtendome, Kate of Kate-hall, my ſuper-dainties Kate, For dainties are all Kates, and therefore Kate Take this of me, Kate of my conſolation, Hearing thy mildneſſe prais'd in euery Towne, Thy vertues ſpoke of, and thy beautie ſounded, Yet not ſo deepely as to thee belongs, My ſelfe am mou'd to woo thee for my wife.

Kate. Mou'd, in good time, let him that mou'd you hether Remoue you hence: I knew you at the firſt You were a mouable.

Pet. Why, what's a mouable?

Kat. A ioyn'd ſtoole.

Pet. Thou haſt hit it: come ſit on me.

Kate. Aſſes are made to beare, and ſo are you.

Pet. Women are made to beare, and ſo are you.

Kate. No ſuch Iade as you, if me you meane.

Pet. Alas good Kate, I will not burthen thee, For knowing thee to be but yong and light.

Kate. Too light for ſuch a ſwaine as you to catch, And yet as heauie as my waight ſhould be.

Pet. Should be, ſhould: buzze.

Kate. Well tane, and like a buzzard.

Pet. Oh ſlow wing'd Turtle, ſhal a buzzard take thee?

Kat. I for a Turtle, as he takes a buzzard.

Pet. Come, come you Waſpe, y'faith you are too angrie.

Kate. If I be waſpiſh, beſt beware my ſting.

Pet. My remedy is then to plucke it out.

Kate. I, if the foole could finde it where it lies.

Pet. Who knowes not where a Waſpe does weare his ſting? In his taile.

Kate. In his tongue?

Pet. Whoſe tongue.

Kate. Yours if you talke of tales, and ſo farewell.

Pet. What with my tongue in your taile. Nay, come againe, good Kate, I am a Gentleman,

Kate. That Ile trie. She ſtrikes him

Pet. I ſweare Ile cuffe you, if you ſtrike againe.

Kate. So may you looſe your armes. If you ſtrike me, you are no Gentleman, And if no Gentleman, why then no armes.

Pet. A Herald Kate? Oh put me in thy bookes.

Kate. What is your Creſt, a Coxcombe?

Pet. A combleſſe Cocke, ſo Kate will be my Hen.

Kate. No Cocke of mine, you crow too like a crauen

Pet. Nay come Kate, come: you muſt not looke ſo ſowre.

Kate. It is my faſhion when I ſee a Crab.

Pet Why heere's no crab, and therefore looke not ſowre.

Kate. There is, there is.

Pet. Then ſhew it me.

Kate. Had I a glaſſe, I would.

Pet. What, you meane my face.

Kate. Well aym'd of ſuch a yong one.

Pet. Now by S. George I am too yong for you.

Kate. Yet you are wither'd.

Pet. 'Tis with cares.

Kate. I care not.

Pet. Nay heare you Kate. Inſooth you ſcape not ſo.

Kate. I chafe you if I tarrie. Let me go.

Pet. No, not a whit, I finde you paſſing gentle: 'Twas told me you were rough, and coy, and ſullen, And now I finde report a very liar: For thou art pleaſant, gameſome, paſſing courteous, But ſlow in ſpeech: yet ſweet as ſpring-time flowers. Thou canſt not frowne, thou canſt not looke a ſcance, Nor bite the lip, as angry wenches will, Nor haſt thou pleaſure to be croſſe in talke: But thou with mildneſſe entertain'ſt thy wooers, With gentle conference, ſoft, and affable. Why does the world report that Kate doth limpe? Oh ſland'rous world: Kate like the hazle twig Is ſtraight, and ſlender, and as browne in hue As hazle nuts, and ſweeter then the kernels: Oh let me ſee thee walke: thou doſt not halt.

Kate. Go foole, and whom thou keep'ſt command.

Pet. Did euer Dian ſo become a Groue As Kate this chamber with her princely gate: O be thou Dian, and let her be Kate, Kate be chaſte, and Dian ſportfull.

here did you ſtudy all this goodly ſpeech?
extempore, from my mother wit.
nty mother, witleſſe elſe her ſonne.
I not wiſe?
keepe you warme.
ſo I meane ſweet Katherine in my bed:
e leaſing all this chat aſide,
e termes: your fathers hath conſented ll be my wife; your dowry greed on,
, will you, I will marry you.
am a husband for your turne,
ght, whereby I ſee thy beauty,
hat doth make me like thee well,
: married to no man but me.

ter Baptiſta, Gremio, Tranio.

n home to tame you Kate,
u from a wilde Kate to a Kate
: as other houſhold Kates:
your father, never make deniall, ll haue Katherine to my wife. (daughter?
: Signior Petruchio, how ſpeed you with my but well if how but well?
ſſible I ſhould ſpeed amiſſe. (dumps?
how now daughter Katherine, in your you me daughter? now I promiſe you wd a tender fatherly regard, eed to one halfe Lunaticke,
uffian, and a ſwearing Iacke,
with oathes to face the matter out.
er, 'tis thus, your ſelfe and all the world
ther, haue talk'd amiſſe of her:
, it is for pollicie,
a ſtow'rd, but modeſt as the Doue,
ot, but temperate as the morne,
ſhee will proue a ſecond Groſſell,
: Lucrece for her chaſtitie:
ude, we haue greed ſo well together,
nday is the wedding day.
ee thee hang'd on ſoonday firſt. (firſt.
: Petruchio, ſhe ſaies ſhee'll ſee thee hang'd your ſpeeding, nay the godnight our part.
ntient gentlemen, I chooſe her for my ſelfe,
e pleas'd, what's that to you?
d twixt us twaine being alone,
ſhall be curſt in company.
ncredible to beleeue
ſe loues me: oh the kindeſt Kate, out my necke, and kiſſe on kiſſe
eſt, proteſting oath on oath, nke ſhe won me to her loue.
ptaices, 'tis a world to ſee hen men and women are alone, wretch can make the curſteſt ſhrew:
hand Kate, I will vnto Venice
rell 'gainſt the wedding day:
caſt father, and bid the gueſts,
my Katherine ſhall be fine.
w not what to ſay, but giue me your hads.
ioy, Petruchio, 'tis a match.
emen ſay me, we will be witneſſes.
r, and wife, and gentlemen adieu,
r, ſonday comes apace,
: rings, and things, and fine array.
And kiſſe me Kate, we will be married a ſonday.

Exit Petruchio and Katherine.

Gre. Was euer match clapt vp ſo ſodainly?
Bap. Faith Gentlemen now I play a marchants part,
And venture madly on a deſperate Mart.
Tra. 'Twas a commodity lay fretting by you,
'Twill bring you gaine, or periſh on the ſeas.
Bap. The gaine I ſeeke, is quiet me the match.
Gre. No doubt but he hath got a quiet catch:
But now Baptiſta, to your yonger daughter,
Now is the day we long haue looked for,
I am your neighbour, and was ſuter firſt.
Tra. And I am one that loue Bianca more
Then words can witneſſe, or your thoughts can gueſſe.
Gre. Yongling thou canſt not loue ſo deare as I.
Tra. Gray-beard thy loue doth freeze.
Gre. But thine doth frie,
Skipper ſtand backe, 'tis age that nourſiſheth.
Tra. But youth in Ladies eyes that flouriſheth.
Bap. Content you gentlemen, I will compound this ſtrife
'Tis deeds muſt win the prize, and he of both
That can aſſure my daughter greateſt dower,
Shall haue my Bianca loue.
Say ſignior Gremio, what can you aſſure her?
Gre. Firſt, as you know, my houſe within the City
Is richly furniſhed with plate and gold,
Baſons and ewers to laue her dainty hands:
My hangings all of Tirian tapeſtry:
In Iuory coffers I haue ſtuft my crownes:
In Cypres cheſts my arras counterpoints,
Coſtly apparell, tents, and Canopies,
Fine Linnen, Turky cuſhions boſt with pearle,
Valiens of Venice gold, in needle worke:
Pewter and braſſe, and all things that belongs
To houſe or houſe-keeping: then at my farme
I haue a hundred milch-kine to the pale,
Sixe-ſcore fat Oxen ſtanding in my ſtalls,
And all things anſwerable to this portion.
My ſelfe am ſtrooke in yeeres I muſt confeſſe,
And if I die to morrow this is hers,
If whil'ſt I liue ſhe will be onely mine.
Tra. That only came well in: ſir, liſt to me,
I am my fathers heyre and onely ſonne,
If I may haue your daughter to my wife,
Ile leaue her houſes three or foure as good
Within rich Piſa walls, as any one
Old Signior Gremio has in Padua,
Beſides, two thouſand Duckets by the yeere
Of fruitfull land, all which ſhall be her ioynter.
What, haue I pincht you Signior Gremio?
Gre. Two thouſand Duckets by the yeere of land,
My Land amounts not to ſo much in all:
That ſhe ſhall haue, beſides an Argoſie
That now is lying in Marcellus roade:
What, haue I choakt you with an Argoſie?
Tra. Gremio, 'tis knowne my father hath no leſſe
Then three great Argoſies, beſides two Galliaſſes
And twelue tite Gallies, theſe I will aſſure her,
And twice as much what ere thou offreſt next.
Gre. Nay, I haue offred all, I haue no more,
And ſhe can haue no more then all I haue,
If you like me, ſhe ſhall haue me and mine.
Tra. Why then the maid is mine from all the world
By your firme promiſe, Gremio is out vied.
Bap. I muſt confeſſe your offer is the beſt,
And let your father make her the aſſurance,

Shee is your owne, elſe you muſt pardon me:
If you ſhould die before him, where's her dower?
Tra. That's but a cauill: he is olde, I young.
Gre. And may not yong men die as well as old?
Bap. Well gentlemen, I am thus reſolu'd,
On ſonday next, you know
My daughter Katherine is to be married:
Now on the ſonday following, ſhall Bianca
Be Bride to you, if you make this aſſurance:
If not, to Signior Gremio:
And ſo I take my leaue, and thanke you both. Exit.
Gre. Adieu good neighbour: now I feare thee not:
Sirra, yong gameſter, your father were a foole
To giue thee all, and in his wayning age
Set foot vnder thy table: tut, a toy,
An olde Italian foxe is not ſo kinde my boy. Exit.
Tra. A vengeance on your crafty withered hide,
Yet I haue fac'd it with a card of ten:
'Tis in my head to doe my maſter good:
I ſee no reaſon but ſuppos'd Lucentio
Muſt get a father, call'd ſuppos'd Vincentio,
And that's a wonder: fathers commonly
Doe get their children: but in this caſe of woing,
A childe ſhall get a ſire, if I faile not of my cunning. Exit

Actus Tertia.

Enter Lucentio, Hortensio, and Bianca.

Luc. Fidler forbeare you grow too forward Sir,
Haue you ſo ſoone forgot the entertainment
Her ſiſter Katherine welcom'd you withall.
Hort But wrangling pedant, this is
The patroneſſe of heauenly harmony:
Then giue me leaue to haue prerogatiue,
And when in Muſicke we haue ſpent an houre,
Your Lecture ſhall haue leiſure for as much.
Luc. Prepoſterous Aſſe that neuer read ſo farre,
To know the cauſe why muſicke was ordain'd:
Was it not to refreſh the minde of man
After his ſtudies, or his vſuall paine?
Then giue me leaue to read Philoſophy,
And while I paule, ſerue in your harmony.
Hort. Sirra, I will not beare theſe braues of thine.
Bianc. Why gentlemen, you doe me double wrong,
To ſtriue for that which reſteth in my choice:
I am no breeching ſcholler in the ſchooles,
Ile not be tied to howres, nor pointed times,
But learne my Leſſons as I pleaſe my ſelfe,
And to cut off all ſtrifes heere ſit we downe,
Take you your inſtrument, play you the whiles,
His Lecture will be done ere you haue tun'd.
Hort You'll leaue his Lecture when I am in tune?
Luc That will be neuer, tune your inſtrument.
Bian. Where left we laſt?
Luc. Heere Madam: Hic Ibat Simois, hic eſt ſigeria tellus, hic ſteterat Priami regia Celſa ſenis.
Bian. Conſter them.
Luc. Hic Ibat, as I told you before, Simois, I am Lucentio, hic eſt, ſonne vnto Vincentio of Piſa, Sigeria tellus, diſguiſed thus to get your loue, hic ſtetera, and that Lucentio that comes a wooing, priami, is my man Tranio, regia, bearing my port, celſa ſenis that we might beguile the old Pantalowne.
Hort. Madam, my Inſtrument's in tune.
Bian. Let's heare, oh fie, the treble iarres.
Luc. Spit in the hole man, and tune againe.
Bian. Now let mee ſee if I can conſter it. Hic ibat ſimois, I know you not, hic eſt ſigeria tellus, I truſt you not, hic ſtetterat priami, take heede he heare vs not, regia preſume not, Celſa ſenis, deſpaire not.
Hort. Madam, tis now in tune.
Luc. All but the baſe.
Hort. The baſe is right, 'tis the baſe knaue that iars.
Luc. How fiery and forward our Pedant is,
Now for my life the knaue doth court my loue,
Pedaſcule, Ile watch you better yet:
In time I may beleeue, yet I miſtruſt.
Bian. Miſtruſt it not, for ſure Aeacides
Was Ayax cald ſo from his grandfather.
Hort. I muſt beleeue my maſter, elſe I promiſe you,
I ſhould be arguing ſtill vpon that doubt,
But let it reſt, now Latio to you:
Good maſter take it not vnkindly pray
That I haue beene thus pleaſant with you both.
Hort. You may go walk, and giue me leaue a while,
My Leſſons make no muſicke in three parts.
Luc. Are you ſo formall ſir, well I muſt waite
And watch withall, for but I be deceiu'd,
Our fine Muſitian groweth amorous.
Hor. Madam, before you touch the inſtrument,
To learne the order of my fingering,
I muſt begin with rudiments of Art,
To teach you gamoth in a briefer ſort,
More pleaſant, pithy, and effectuall,
Then hath beene taught by any of my trade,
And there it is in writing fairely drawne
Bian. Why, I am paſt my gamouth long agoe.
Hor. Yet read the gamouth of Hortensio.
Bian. Gamouth I am, the ground of all accord:
Are, to plead Hortenſio's paſſion
Beemi, Bianca take him for thy Lord
Cfaut, that loues with all affection:
D ſolre, one Clifte, two notes haue I,
Elami, ſhow pitty or I die.
Call you this gamouth? tut I like it not,
Old faſhions pleaſe me beſt, I am not ſo nice
To charge true rules for old inuentions.

Enter a Meſſenger.

Nicky. Miſtreſſe, your father prayes you leaue your (books,
And helpe to dreſſe your ſiſters chamber vp,
You know to morrow is the wedding day.
Bian. Farewell ſweet maſters both, I muſt be gone.
Luc. Faith Miſtreſſe then I haue no cauſe to ſtay
Hor But I haue cauſe to pry into this pedant,
Methinkes he lookes as though he were in loue:
Yet if thy thoughts Bianca be ſo humble
To caſt thy wandring eyes on euery ſtale:
Seize thee that liſt, if once I finde thee ranging,
Hortenſio will be quit with thee by changing. Exit.

Enter Baptiſta, Gremio, Tranio, Katherine, Bianca, and others, attendants.

Bap. Signior Lucentio, this is the pointed day
That Katherine and Petruchio ſhould be married,
And yet we heare not of our ſonne in Law:
What will be ſaid, what mockery will it be?
To want the Bride-groome when the Prieſt attends
To ſpeake the ceremoniall rites of marriage?
What ſaies Lucentio to this ſhame of ours?

No

…e but mine, I muſt forſooth be forſt
…oppoſ'd againſt my heart
…e rudeſby, full of ſpleene,
…ſle and meanes to wed at leyſure:
…as ſtanticke foole,
…efts in blunt behauiour,
…or a merry man;
…uſand, point the day of marriage,
…ire, and proclaime the banes,
…to wed where he hath woo'd:
…rld point at poore Katherine,
…e is mad Petruchio's wife
…him come and marry her.
…good Katherine and Baptiſta too,
…uchio meanes but well,
…e ſtayes him from his word,
…nt, I know him paſſing wiſe
…rey, yet withall he's honeſt.
Katherine had neuer ſeen him though.
Exit weeping.
…r, I cannot blame thee now to weepe,
…would vexe a very ſaint,
…w of impatient humour.
…nter Biondello.
…ſter, newes, and ſuch newes as you
…and olde too? how may that be?
…s it not newes to heard of Petruchio's
…e? (comming?
…ſir.
…n?
…oming.
…ll he be heere?
…ſtands where I am, and ſees you there.
…hat to thine olde newes?
…uchio is comming, in a new hat and
…aire of olde breeches thrice turn'd; a
…e haue beene candle-cafes, one buck-
…: an olde ruſty ſword tane out of the
…with a broken hilt, and chapeleſſe: with
…s: his horſe hip'd with an olde mo-
…ſtrops of no kindred: beſides poſſeſt
…, and like to moſe in the chine, trou-
…paſſe, infected with the ſaſhions, full
…ed with Spaniſh, raied with the Yel-
…of the Fiues, ſtarke ſpoyl'd with the
…ne with the Bots, Waid in the backe,
…ſen, neere leg'd before, and with a
…ſe a headſtall of ſheepes leather, which
…keepe him from ſtumbling, hath been
…w repaired with knots: one girth ſixe
…a womans Crupper of veluet, which
…e her name, ſtirrely ſet downe in ſtuds,
…peec'd with packthred.
…nes with him?
…his Lackey, for all the world Capari-
…ſon with a linnen ſtock on one leg, and
…on the other, gartred with a red and
…, & the humor of forty fancies pricke
…monſter, a very monſter in apparell,
…an foot-boy, or a gentlemans Lacky.
…od humor pricks him to this faſhion,
…goes but meane apparel'd.
…he's come howſoere he comes.
…he comes not.
…ſnot ſay hee comes?

Bion. Who, that Petruchio came?

Bap. I, that Petruchio came. (backe.

Bion. No ſir, I ſay his horſe comes with him on his

Bap. Why that's all one.

Bion. Nay by S. Iamy, I hold you a penny a horſe and a man is more then one, and yet not many.

Enter Petruchio and Grumio.

Pet. Come, where be theſe gallants? who's at home

Bap. You are welcome ſir.

Petr. And yet I come not well.

Bap. And yet you halt not.

Tra. Not ſo well apparell'd as I wiſh you were.

Petr. Were it better I ſhould ruſh in thus:
But where is Kate? where is my louely Bride?
How does my father gentles methinkes you frowne,
And wherefore gaze this goodly company,
As if they ſaw ſome wondrous monument,
Some Comet, or vnuſuall prodigie?

Bap. Why ſir, you know this is your wedding day
Firſt were we ſad, fearing you would not come,
Now ſadder that you come ſo vnprouided:
Fie, doff this habit, ſhame to your eſtate,
An eye-ſore to our ſolemne feſtiuall.

Tra. And tell vs what occaſion of import
Hath all ſo long detain'd you from your wife,
And ſent you hither ſo vnlike your ſelfe?

Petr. Tedious it were to tell, and harſh to heare, Sufficeth I am come to keepe my word.
Though in ſome part inforced to digreſſe,
Which at more leyſure I will ſo excuſe,
As you ſhall well be ſatisfied with all.
But where is Kate? I ſtay too long from her.
The morning weares, 'tis time we were at Church.

Tra. See not your Bride in theſe vnreuerent robes,
Goe to my chamber, put on clothes of mine.

Pet. Not I, beleeue me, thus Ile viſit her.

Bap. But thus I truſt you will not marry her. (words,

Pet. Good ſooth euen thus: therefore ha done with
To me ſhe's married, not vnto my clothes:
Could I repaire what ſhe will weare in me,
As I can change theſe poore accoutrements,
Twere well for Kate, and better for my ſelfe.
But what a foole am I to chat with you,
When I ſhould bid good morrow to my Bride?
And ſeale the title with a louely kiſſe. Exit.

Tra. He hath ſome meaning in his mad attire,
We will perſwade him be it poſſible,
To put on better ere he goe to Church.

Bap. Ile after him, and ſee the euent of this. Exit.

Tra. But ſir, Loue concerneth vs to adde
Her fathers liking, which to bring to paſſe
As before imparted to your worſhip,
I am to get a man what ere he be,
It ſkills not much, weele fit him to our turne,
And he ſhall be Vincentio of Piſa,
And make aſſurance heere in Padua
Of greater ſummes then I haue promiſed,
So ſhall you quietly enioy your hope,
And marry ſweet Bianca with conſent.

Luc. Were it not that my fellow ſchoolemaſter
Doth watch Bianca's ſteps ſo narrowly:
'Twere good me-thinkes to ſteale our marriage,
Which once perform'd, let all the world ſay no,
Ile keepe mine owne deſpite of all the world.

Tra. That by degrees we meane to looke into,

And watch our vantage in this buſineſſe,
We'll outreach the grey-beard Gremio,
The narrow prying father Minola,
The quaint Muſician, amorous Lucio,
All for my Maſters ſake Lucentio.

Enter Gremio.

Signior Gremio, came you from the Church?
Gre. As willingly as ere I came from ſchoole.
Tra. And is the Bride & Bridegroom coming home?
Gre. A bridegroome ſay you? 'tis a groome indeed,
A grumbling groome, and that the girle ſhall finde.
Tra. Curſſer then ſhe, why 'tis impoſſible.
Gre. Why hee's a deuill, a deuill, a very fiend.
Tra. Why ſhe's a deuill, a deuill, the deuils damme.
Gre. Tut, ſhe's a Lambe, a Doue, a foole to him:
Ile tell you ſir Lucentio; when the Prieſt
Should aske if Katherine ſhould be his wife,
I, by gogs wooones quoth he, and ſwore ſo loud,
That all amaz'd the Prieſt let fall the booke,
And as he ſtoop'd againe to take it vp,
This mad-braind bridegroome tooke him ſuch a cuffe,
That downe fell Prieſt and booke, and booke and Prieſt,
Now take them vp quoth he, if any lift.
Tra. What ſaid the wench when he roſe againe?
Gre. Trembled and ſhooke: for why, he ſtamp'd and ſwore, as if the Vicar meant to cozen him: but after many ceremonies done, hee calls for wine, a health quoth he, as if he had beene aboord carowſing to his Mates after a ſtorme, quaft off the Muſcadell, and threw the ſops all in the Sextons face: having no other reaſon, but that his beard grew thinne and hungerly, and ſeem'd to aske him ſops as hee was drinking: This done, hee tooke the Bride about the necke, and kiſt her lips with ſuch a clamorous ſmacke, that at the parting all the Church did eccho: and I ſeeing this, came thence for very ſhame, and after mee I know the rout is comming, ſuch a mad marryage neuer was before: harke, harke, I heare the minſtrels play. Muſicke playes.

Enter Petruchio, Kate, Bianca, Hortenſio, Baptiſta.

Petr. Gentlemen & friends, I thank you for your pains,
I know you thinke to dine with me to day,
And haue prepar'd great ſtore of wedding cheere,
But ſo it is, my haſte doth call me hence,
And therefore heere I meane to take my leaue.
Bap. Is't poſſible you will away to night?
Pet. I muſt away to day before night come,
Make it no wonder: if you knew my buſineſſe,
You would intreat me rather goe then ſtay:
And honeſt company, I thanke you all,
That haue beheld me giue away my ſelfe
To this moſt patient, ſweet, and vertuous wife.
Dine with my father, drinke a health to me,
For I muſt hence, and farewell to you all.
Tra. Let vs intreat you ſtay till after dinner.
Pet. It may not be.
Gra. Let me intreat you.
Pet. It cannot be.
Kat. Let me intreat you.
Pet. I am content.
Kat. Are you content to ſtay?
Pet. I am content you ſhall entreat me ſtay,
But yet not ſtay, entreat me how you can.
Kat. Now if you loue me ſtay.
Pet. Grumio, my horſe.
Gru. I ſir, they be ready, the Oates haue eaten the horſes.
Kate. Nay then,
Doe what thou canſt, I will not goe to day,
No, nor to morrow, not till I pleaſe my ſelfe,
The dore is open ſir, there lies your
You may be iogging whiles your boots are greene:
For me, Ile not be gone till I pleaſe my ſelfe
'Tis like you'll proue a iolly ſurly groome,
That take it on you at the firſt ſo roundly.
Pet. O Kate content thee, prethee be not angry.
Kat. I will be angry, what haſt thou to doe?
Father, be quiet, he ſhall ſtay my leiſure.
Gre. I marry ſir, now it begins to worke.
Kat. Gentlemen, forward to the bridall dinner,
I ſee a woman may be made a foole
If ſhe had not a ſpirit to reſiſt.
Pet. They ſhall goe forward Kate at thy command
Obey the Bride you that attend on her.
Goe to the feaſt, reuell and domineere,
Carowſe full meaſure to her maiden-head,
Be madde and merry, or goe hang your ſelues:
But for my bonny Kate, ſhe muſt with me.
Nay, looke not big, nor ſtampe, nor ſtare, nor fret,
I will be maſter of what is mine owne.
Shee is my goods, my chattels, ſhe is my houſe,
My houſhold-ſtuffe, my field, my barne,
My horſe, my oxe, my aſſe, my any thing,
And heere ſhe ſtands, touch her whoe euer dare,
Ile bring mine action on the proudeſt he
That ſtops my way in Padua: Grumio
Draw forth thy weapon, we are beſet with theeues,
Reſcue thy Miſtreſſe if thou be a man:
Feare not ſweet wench, they ſhall not touch thee Kate, Ile buckler thee againſt a Million. Exeunt. Pet. Kat.
Bap. Nay, let them goe, a couple of quiet ones. (ing
Gre. Went they not quickly, I ſhould die with laugh-
Tra. Of all mad matches neuer was the like.
Luc. Miſtreſſe, what's your opinion of your ſiſter?
Bian. That being mad her ſelfe, ſhe's madly mated.
Gre. I warrant him Petruchio is Kated.
Bap. Neighbours and friends, though Bride & Bride-
For to ſupply the places at the table, (groom wants
You know there wants no iunkets at the feaſt:
Lucentio, you ſhall ſupply the Bridegroomes place,
And let Bianca take her ſiſters roome.
Tra. Shall ſweet Bianca practiſe how to bride it?
Bap. She ſhall Lucentio: come gentlemen lets goe.
Enter Grumio Exeunt.
Gru: Fie, fie on all tired Iades, on all mad Maſters, & all foule waies: was euer man ſo beaten? was euer man ſo raide? was euer man ſo weary? I am ſent before to make a fire, and they are comming after to warme them. now were not I a little pot, & ſoone hot; my very lippes might freeze to my teeth, my tongue to the roofe of my mouth, my heart in my belly, ere I ſhould come by a fire to thaw me, but I with blowing the fire ſhall warme my ſelfe: for conſidering the weather, a taller man then I will take cold: Holla, hoa Curtis.

Enter Curtis.

Curt. Who is that calls ſo coldly?
Gru. A piece of Ice: if thou doubt it, thou maiſt ſlide from my ſhoulder to my heele, with no greater greater a run but my head and my necke. A fire good Curtis.

Cur. Is my maſter and his wife comming Grumio?

Gru. Oh I Curtis I, and therefore fire, fire, caſt on no water.

Cur. Is ſhe ſo hot a ſhrew as ſhe's reported.

Gru. She was good Curtis before this froſt: but thou know'ſt winter tames man, woman, and beaſt: for it hath tam'd my old maſter, and my new miſtris, and my ſelfe fellow Curtis.

Gru. Away you three inch ſoole, I am no beaſt.

Gru. Am I but three inches? Why thy horne is a foot and ſo long am I at the leaſt. But wilt thou make a fire or ſhall I complaine on thee to our miſtris, whoſe hand (ſhe being now at hand) thou ſhalt ſoone feele, to thy cold comfort, for being ſlow in thy hot office.

Cur. I prethee good Grumio, tell me, how goes the world?

Gru. A cold world Curtis in every office but thine, & therefore fire: do thy duty, and haue thy dutie, for my Maſter and miſtris are almoſt frozen to death.

Cur. There's fire readie, and therefore good Grumio the newes.

Gru. Why Iacke boy, ho boy, and as much newes as wilt thou.

Cur. Come, you are ſo full of conicatching.

Gru. Why therefore fire, for I haue caught extreme cold. Where's the Cooke, is ſupper ready, the houſe trim'd, ruſhes ſtrew'd, cobwebs ſwept, the ſeruingmen in their new fuſtian, the white ſtockings, and every officer his wedding garment on? Be the Iackes faire within, the Gils faire without, the Carpets laide, and everie thing in order?

Cur. All readie: and therefore I pray thee newes.

Gru. Firſt know my horſe is tired, my maſter & miſtris falne out. Cur. How?

Gru. Out of their ſaddles into the durt, and thereby hangs a tale.

Cur. Let's ha't good Grumio.

Gru. Lend thine eare.

Cur. Heere.

Gru. There.

Cur. This 'tis to feele a tale, not to heare a tale.

Gru. And therefore 'tis cal'd a ſenſible tale: and this Cuffe was but to knocke at your eare, and beſeech liſtning: now I begin, Inprimis we came downe a fowle hill, my Maſter riding behinde my Miſtris.

Cur. Both of one horſe?

Gru. What's that to thee?

Cur. Why a horſe.

Gru. Tell thou the tale: but hadſt thou not croſt me, thou ſhouldſt haue heard how her horſe fel, and ſhe vnder her horſe: thou ſhouldſt haue heard in how miery a place, how ſhe was bemoil'd, how hee left her with the horſe vpon her, how he beat me becauſe her horſe ſtumbled, how ſhe waded through the durt to pluckе him off me: how he ſwore, how ſhe prai'd, that neuer prai'd before: how I cried, how the horſes ranne away, how her bridle was burſt: how I loſt my crupper, with manie things of worthy memorie, which now ſhall die in oblition, and thou return vnexperienc'd to thy graue.

Cur. By this reckning he is more ſhrew than ſhe.

Gru. I, and that thou and the proudeſt of you all ſhall finde when he comes home. But what talke I of this? Call forth Nathaniel, Ioſeph, Nicholas, Philip, Walter, Sugerſop and the reſt: let their heads bee ſlickely comb'd, their blew coats bruſh'd, and their garters of an indifferent knit, let them curtſie with their left legges, and not preſume to touch a haire of my Maſters horſe-taile, till they kiſſe their hands. Are they all readie?

Cur. They are.

Gru. Call them forth.

Cur. Do you heare ho? you muſt meete my maiſter to countenance my miſtris.

Gru. Why ſhe hath a face of her owne.

Cur. Who knowes not that?

Gru. Thou it ſeemes, that cals for company to countenance her.

Cur. I call them forth to credit her.

Enter foure or five ſeruingmen.

Gru. Why ſhe comes to borrow nothing of them.

Nat. Welcome home Grumio.

Phil. How now Grumio.

Ioſ. What Grumio.

Nick. Fellow Grumio.

Nat. How now old lad.

Gru. Welcome you: how now you: what you: fellow you: and thus much for greeting. Now my ſpruce companions, is all readie, and all things neate?

Nat. All things is readie, how neere is our maſter?

Gru. E'ne at hand, alighted by this: and therefore be not——Cockes paſſion, ſilence, I heare my maſter.

Enter Petruchio and Kate.

Pet. Where be theſe knaues? What no man at doore
To hold my ſtirrop, nor to take my horſe?
Where is Nathaniel, Gregory, Philip.

All ſer. Heere, heere ſir, heere ſir.

Pet. Heere ſir, heere ſir, heere ſir, heere ſir.
You logger-headed and vnpoliſht groomes:
What? no attendance? no regard? no dutie?
Where is the fooliſh knaue I ſent before?

Gru. Heere ſir, as fooliſh as I was before.

Pet. You peaſant, ſwain, you horſon malt-horſe drudge
Did I not bid thee meete me in the Parke,
And bring along theſe raſcal knaues with thee?

Grumio. Nathaniels coate ſir was not fully made,
And Gabriels pumpes were all vnpinkt i'th heele:
There was no Linke to colour Peters hat,
And Walters dagger was not come from ſheathing:
There were none fine, but Adam, Raſe, and Gregory,
The reſt were ragged, old, and beggerly,
Yet as they are, heere are they come to meete you.

Pet. Go raſcals, go, and fetch my ſupper in. Ex. Ser.
Where is the life that late I led?
Where are thoſe? Sit downe Kate,
And welcome. Soud, ſoud, ſoud, ſoud.

Enter ſeruants with ſupper.

Why when I ſay? Nay good ſweete Kate be merrie.
Off with my boots, you rogues: you villaines, when?
It was the Friar of Orders grey,
As he forth walked on his way.
Out you rogue, you plucke my foote awrie,
Take that, and mend the plucking of the other.
Be merrie Kate: Some water heere: what hoa.

Enter one with water.

Where's my Spaniel Troilus? Sirra, get you hence,
And bid my cozen Ferdinand come hither:
One Kate that you muſt kiſſe, and be acquainted with.
Where are my Slippers? Shall I haue ſome water?
Come Kate and waſh, & welcome heartily:
you horſon villaine, will you let it fall?

Kate. Patience I pray you, 'twas a fault vnwilling.
Pet. A horſon beetle-headed flap-ear'd knaue:
Come Kate ſit downe, I know you haue a ſtomacke,
Will you giue thankes, ſweete Kate, or elſe ſhall I?
What's this, Mutton?
1. Ser. I.
Pet. Who brought it?
Peter. I.
Pet. 'Tis burnt, and ſo is all the meate:
What dogges are theſe? Where is the raſcall Cooke?
How durſt you villaines bring it from the dreſſer
And ſerue it thus to me that loue it not?
There, take it to you, trenchers, cups, and all:
You heedleſſe ioult-heads, and vnmanner'd ſlaues.
What, do you grumble? Ile be with you ſtraight
Kate. I pray you husband be not ſo diſquiet,
The meate was well, if you were ſo contented.
Pet. I tell thee Kate, 'twas burnt and dried away,
And I expreſſely am forbid to touch it:
For it engenders choller, planteth anger,
And better 'twere that both of vs did faſt
Since of our ſelues, our ſelues are choller ike.
Then feede it with ſuch ouer-roſted fleſh:
Be patient, to morrow't ſhalbe mended,
And for this night we'l faſt for company.
Come I will bring thee to thy Bridall chamber. Exeunt.
Enter Seruants ſeuerally.
Nath. Peter didſt euer ſee the like.
Peter. He kils her in her owne humor.
Grumio. Where is he?
Enter Curtis a Seruant.
Cur. In her chamber, making a ſermon of continencie to her, and railes, and ſweares, and rates, that ſhee (poore ſoule) knowes not which way to ſtand, to looke, to ſpeake, and ſits as one new-riſen from a dreame. Away, away, for he is comming hither.
Enter Petruchio.
Pet. Thus haue I politickely begun my reigne,
And 'tis my hope to end ſucceſſefully:
My Falcon now is ſharpe, and paſſing emptie,
And til ſhe ſtoope, ſhe muſt not be full gorg'd,
For then ſhe neuer lookes vpon her lure.
Another way I haue to man my Haggard,
To make her come, and know her Keepers call:
That is, to watch her, as we watch theſe Kites,
That baite, and beate, and will not be obedient
She eate no meate to day, nor none ſhall eate.
Laſt night ſhe ſlept not, nor to night ſhe ſhall not:
As with the meate, ſome vndeſerued fault
Ile finde about the making of the bed,
And heere Ile fling the pillow, there the boulſter
This way the Couerlet, another way the ſheets:
I, and amid this hurlie I intend,
That all is done in reuerend care of her,
And in concluſion, ſhe ſhal watch all night,
And if ſhe chance to nod Ile raile and brawle,
And with the clamor keepe her ſtil awake:
This is a way to kil a Wife with kindneſſe,
And thus Ile curbe her mad and headſtrong humor:
He that knowes better how to tame a ſhrew,
Now let him ſpeake, 'tis charity to ſhew. Exit
Enter Tranio and Hortenſio.
Tra. Is't poſſible friend Liſio, that miſtris Bianca
Doth fancie any other but Lucentio,
I tel you ſir, ſhe beares me faire in hand.
Luc. Sir, to ſatisfie you in what I haue ſaid,
Stand by, and marke the manner of his teaching.
Enter Bianca.
Hor. Now Miſtris, profit you in what you reade?
Bian. What Maſter reade you firſt, reſolue me that?
Hor. I reade, that I profeſſe the Art to loue.
Bian And may you proue ſir Maſter of your Art.
Luc. While you ſweet deere prooue Miſtreſſe of my heart.
Hor. Quicke proceeders marry, now tel me I pray, you that durſt ſweare that your miſtris Bianca Lou'd me in the World ſo wel as Lucentio.
Tra. Oh deſpightful Loue, vnconſtant womankind, I tel thee Liſio this is wonderfull.
Hor. Miſtake no more, I am not Liſio,
Nor a Muſitian as I ſeeme to bee,
But one that ſcorne to liue in this diſguiſe,
For ſuch a one as leaues a Gentleman,
And makes a God of ſuch a Cullion;
Know ſir, that I am cal'd Hortenſio.
Tra. Signior Hortenſio, I haue often heard
Of your entire affection to Bianca,
And ſince mine eyes are witneſſe of her lightneſſe,
I wil with you, if you be ſo contented,
Forſweare Bianca, and her loue for euer.
Hor. See how they kiſſe and court: Signior Lucentio Heere is my hand, and heere I firmly vow
Neuer to woo her more, but do forſweare her
As one vnworthie all the former fauours
That I haue fondly flatter'd them withall.
Tra. And heere I take the like vnfained oath,
Neuer to marrie with her, though ſhe would intreat,
Fie on her, ſee how beaſtly ſhe doth court him.
Hor. Would all the world but he had quite forſworn
For me, that I may ſurely keepe mine oath
I will be married to a wealthy Widdow,
Ere three dayes paſſe, which hath as long lou'd me,
As I haue lou'd this proud diſdainful Haggard,
And ſo farewel ſignior Lucentio,
Kindneſſe in women, not their beauteous lookes
Shal win my loue, and ſo I take my leaue,
In reſolution, as I ſwore before.
Tra. Miſtris Bianca, bleſſe you with ſuch grace,
As longeth to a Louers bleſſed caſe:
Nay, I haue tane you napping gentle Loue,
And haue forſworne you with Hortenſio.
Bian. Tranio you ieſt, but haue you both forſworne mee?
Tra. Miſtris we haue.
Luc. Then we are rid of Liſio.
Tra. I'faith hee'l haue a luſtie Widdow now,
That ſhalbe woo'd, and wedded in a day.
Bian. God giue him ioy.
Tra. I and hee'l tame her.
Bianca. He ſayes ſo Tranio.
Tra. Faith he is gone vnto the taming ſchoole.
Bian. The taming ſchoole: what is there ſuch a place?
Tra. I miſtris, and Petruchio is the maſter,
That teacheth trickes eleuen and twentie long,
To tame a ſhrew, and charme her chattering tongue.
Enter Biondello.
Bion. Oh Maſter, maſter I haue watcht ſo long,
That I am dogge-weary, but at laſt I eſpied
An ancient Angel comming downe the hill,
Will ſerue the turne.
Tra. What is he Biondello?
Bio. Maſter, a Mercantant, or a pedant,

I

ot what, but formall in apparrell, nd countenance ſurely like a Father.
And what of him Tranio?
If ſhe be credulous, and truſt my tale,
him glad to ſeeme Vincentio, aſſurance to Baptiſta Minola, were the right Vincentio.
Take me your loue, and then let me alone.
Enter a Pedant.
God ſaue you ſir.
And you ſir, you are welcome.
you farre on, or are you at the fartheſt?
it at the fartheſt for a weeke or two,
vp farther, and as farre as Rome, o Tripolie, if God lend me life.
What Countreyman I pray?
Of Mantua.
Of Mantua Sir, marrie God forbid,
ne to Padua carelesse of your life.
My life ſir? how I pray? for that goes hard.
'Tis death for any one in Mantua
e to Padua, know you not the cauſe?
ips are ſtaid at Venice, and the Duke ate quarrell 'twixt your Duke and him, bliſh'd and proclaim'd it openly:
uaile, but that you are but newly come,
ht haue heard it elſe proclaim'd about.
Alas ſir, it is worſe for me then ſo, ne bils for monie by exchange
orence, and muſt heere deliuer them.
Well ſir, to do you courteſie,
I do, and this I will aduiſe you,
me, haue you euer beene at Piſa?
I ſir, in Piſa haue I often bin,
wned for graue Citizens.
Among them know you one Vincentio?
I know him not, but I haue heard of him:
ent of incomparable wealth.
He is my father ſir, and ſooth to ſay,
'nance ſomewhat doth reſemble you.
As much as an apple doth an oyſter, & all one.
To ſaue your life in this extremitie,
ne will I do you for his ſake,
ake it not the worſt of all your fortunes,
u are like to Sir Vincentio.
e and credite ſhal you vndertake,
ny houſe you ſhal be friendly lodg'd,
hat you take vpon you as you ſhould,
erſtand me ſir: ſo ſhal you ſtay
haue done your buſineſſe in the Citie:
courteſie ſir, accept of it.
Oh ſir I do, and will repute you euer on of my life and libertie.
Then go with me, to make the matter good,
the way I let you vnderſtand,
it is heere look'd for euerie day,
aſſurance of a dowre in marriage
ne, and one Baptiſta daughter heere:
ſe circumſtances Ile inſtruct you,
me to cloath you as becomes you. Exeunt.

Actus Quartus. Scena Prima.

Enter Katherina and Grumio.

Gru. No, no forſooth I dare not for my life.
Ka. The more my wrong, the more his ſpite appeares.
What, did he marrie me to famiſh me?
Beggers that come vnto my fathers doore,
Vpon intreatie haue a preſent almes,
If not, elſewhere they meete with charitie:
But I, who neuer knew how to intreat,
Nor neuer needed that I ſhould intreate,
Am ſtaru'd for meate, giddie for lacke of ſleepe:
With oathes kept waking, and with brawling fed,
And that which ſpights me more then all theſe wants,
He does it vnder name of perfect loue:
As who ſhould ſay, if I ſhould ſleepe or eate.
'Twere deadly ſickneſſe, or elſe preſent death.
I prethee go, and get me ſome repaſt,
I care not what, ſo it be holſome foode.
Gru. What ſay you to a Neats foote?
Kate. 'Tis paſſing good, I prethee let me haue it.
Gru. I feare it is too chollericke a meate.
How ſay you to a fat Tripe finely broyl'd?
Kate. I like it well good Grumio fetch it me.
Gru. I cannot tell I feare 'tis chollericke.
What ſay you to a peece of Beefe and Muſtard?
Kate. A diſh that I do loue to feede vpon.
Gru. I, but the Muſtard is too hot a little.
Kate. Why then the Beefe, and let the Muſtard reſt.
Gru. Nay then I will not, you ſhal haue the Muſtard
Or elſe you get no beefe of Grumio.
Kate. Then both or one, or any thing thou wilt.
Gru. Why then the Muſtard without the beefe.
Kate. Go get thee gone, thou falſe deluding ſlaue, Beats him.
That feed'ſt me with the verie name of meate.
Sorrow on thee, and all the packe of you
That triumph thus vpon my miſery:
Go get thee gone, I ſay.

Enter Petruchio and Hortenſio with meate.

Petr. How fares my Kate, what ſweeting all a-mort?
Hor. Miſtris what cheere?
Kate. Faith as cold as can be.
Pet. Pluck vp thy ſpirits, looke cheerfully vpon me.
Heere Loue, thou ſeeſt how diligent I am,
To dreſſe thy meate my ſelfe, and bring it thee.
I am ſure ſweet Kate, this kindneſſe merites thankes.
What, not a word? Nay then, thou lou'ſt it not:
And all my paines is ſorted to no proofe.
Heere take away this diſh.
Kate. I pray you let it ſtand.
Pet. The pooreſt ſeruice is repaide with thankes,
And ſo ſhall mine before you touch the meate.
Kate. I thanke you ſir.
Hor. Signior Petruchio, fie you are too blame:
Come Miſtris Kate, Ile beare you companie.
Petr. Eate it vp all Hortenſio, if thou loueſt mee:
Much good do it vnto thy gentle heart:
Kate eate apace: and now my honie Loue,
Will we returne vnto thy Fathers houſe,
And reuell it as brauely as the beſt,
With ſilken coats and caps, and golden Rings,
With Ruffes and Cuffes, and Fardingales, and things:
With Scarfes, and Fannes, & double change of brau'ry,
With Amber Bracelets, Beades, and all this knau'ry.
What haſt thou din'd? The Tailor ſtaies thy leaſure,
To decke thy bodie with his ruffling treaſure.
Enter Tailor.

Come

Come Tailor, let vs see these ornaments.

Enter Haberdasher.

Lay forth the gowne. What newes with you sir?

Hab. Heere is the cap your Worship did bespeake.

Pet. Why this was moulded on a porringer,
A Velure dish: fie, fie, 'tis lewd and filthy,
Why 'tis a cockle or a walnut-shell,
A knacke, a toy, a tricke, a babies cap:
Away with it, come let me haue a bigger.

Kate. Ile haue no bigger, this doth fit the time,
And Gentlewomen weare such caps as these.

Pet. When you are gentle, you shall haue one too,
And not till then.

Hor. That will not be in hast.

Kate. Why sir I trust I may haue leaue to speake,
And speake I will. I am no childe, no babe,
Your betters haue indur'd me say my minde,
And if you cannot, best you stop your eares.
My tongue will tell the anger of my heart,
Or else my heart concealing it will breake,
And rather then it shall, I will be free,
Euen to the vttermost as I please in words.

Pet. Why thou saist true, it is paltrie cap,
A custard coffen, a bauble, a silken pie,
I loue thee well in that thou lik'st it not.

Kate. Loue me, or loue me not, I like the cap,
And it I will haue, or I will haue none.

Pet. Thy gowne, why I: come Tailor let vs see't.
Oh mercie God, what masking stuffe is heere?
Whats this? a sleeue? 'tis like demi cannon,
What, vp and downe carv'd like an apple Tart?
Heers snip, and nip, and cut, and slish and slash,
Like to a Censor in a barbers shoppe:
Why what a deuils name Tailor cal'st thou this?

Hor. I see shees like to haue neither cap nor gowne.

Tai. You bid me make it orderlie and well,
According to the fashion, and the time.

Pet. Marrie and did: but if you be remembred,
I did not bid you marre it to the time.
Go hop me ouer every kennell home,
For you shall hop without my custome sir:
Ile none of it; hence, make your best of it.

Kate. I neuer saw a better fashion'd gowne,
More quient, more pleasing, nor more commendable:
Belike you meane to make a puppet of me.

Pet. Why true, he meanes to make a puppet of thee.

Tai. She tales your Worship meanes to make a puppet of her.

Pet. Oh monstrous arrogance!
Thou lyest, thou thred, thou thimble,
Thou yard three quarters, halfe yard, quarter, naile,
Thou Flea, thou Nit, thou winter cricket thou:
Brau'd in mine owne house with a skeine of thred?
Away thou Ragge, thou quantitie, thou remnant,
Or I shall so be-mete thee with thy yard,
As thou shalt thinke on prating whil'st thou liu'st:
I tell thee I, that thou hast marr'd her gowne.

Tai. Your worship is deceiu'd, the gowne is made
Iust as my master had direction.
Grumio gaue order how it should be done.

Gru. I gaue him no order, I gaue him the stuffe.

Tai. But how did you desire it should be made?

Gru. Marrie sir with needle and thred.

Tai. But did you not request to haue it cut?

Gru. Thou hast fac'd many things.

Tai. I haue.

Gru. Face not me: thou hast brau'd many men braue not me; I will neither be fac'd nor brau'd. I say vnto thee, I bid thy Master cut out the gowne, but I did not bid him cut it to peeces. Ergo thou lyest.

Tai. Why heere is the note of the fashion to testifie.

Pet. Reade it.

Gru. The note lies in's throate if he say I said so.

Tai. Imprimis, a loose bodied gowne.

Gru. Master, if euer I said loose-bodied gowne, sow me in the skirts of it, and beate me to death with a bot-tome of browne thred: I said a gowne.

Pet. Proceede.

Tai. With a small compast cape.

Gru. I confesse the cape.

Tai. With a trunke sleeue.

Gru. I confesse two sleeues.

Tai. The sleeues curiously cut.

Pet. I there's the villanie.

Gru. Error i'th bill sir, error i'th bill? I commanded the sleeues should be cut out, and sow'd vp againe, and that Ile proue vpon thee, though thy little finger be armed in a thimble.

Tai. This is true that I say, and I had thee in place where thou shouldst know it.

Gru. I am for thee straight: take thou the bill, giue me thy mete-yard, and spare not me.

Hor. God-a-mercie Grumio, then he shall haue no odds.

Pet. Well sir in breefe the gowne is not for me.

Gru. You are i'th right sir, 'tis for my mistris.

Pet. Go take it vp vnto thy masters vse.

Gru. Villaine, not for thy life: Take vp my Mistresse gowne for thy masters vse.

Pet. Why sir, what's your conceit in that?

Gru. Oh sir, the conceit is deeper then you think for:
Take vp my Mistris gowne to his masters vse.
Oh fie, fie, fie.

Pet. Hortensio, say thou wilt see the Tailor paide.
Go take it hence, be gone, and say no more.

Hor. Tailor, Ile pay thee for thy gowne to morrow,
Take no vnkindnesse of his hastie words:
Away I say, commend me to thy master. Exit Tai.

Pet. Well, come my Kate, we will vnto your fathers,
Euen in these honest meane habiliments:
Our purses shall be proud, our garments poore:
For 'tis the minde that makes the bodie rich.
And as the Sunne breakes through the darkest clouds,
So honor peereth in the meanest habit.
What is the Iay more precious then the Larke?
Because his feathers are more beautifull.
Or is the Adder better then the Eele,
Because his painted skin contents the eye.
Oh no good Kate: neither art thou the worse
For this poore furniture, and meane array.
If thou accountedst it shame, lay it on me,
And therefore frolicke, we will hence forthwith,
To feast and sport vs at thy fathers house.
Go call my men, and let vs straight to him,
And bring our horses vnto Long-lane end,
There will we mount, and thither walke on foote,
Let's see, I thinke 'tis now some seuen a clocke,
And well we may come there by dinner time.

Kate. I dare assure you sir, 'tis almost two,
And 'twill be supper time ere you come there.

Pet. It shall be seuen ere I go to horse:
Looke what I speake, or do, or thinke to doe,

You

ing it, firs let's alone,
day, and ere I doe,
clock I say it is.
this gallant will command the same.

and the Pedant drest like Vincentio.
s in the house, please if you that I call.
lse, and but I be deceiued,
may remember me
ares a goe in Greece.
ue were lodgers, at the Pegasus,
d your owne in any case
tie as lengeth so a father.

Enter Biondello.
t you: but sir here comes your boy,
were schoold.
ou not him: sirra Biondello,
etie throughlie I aduise you:
the right Vincentio.
are not me.
thou done thy errand to Baptista
im that your father was at Venice, ke't for him this day in Padua.
rall fellow, hold thee that to drinke.
ista: see your countenance sir.

ista and Lucentio: Pedant booted and bare headed.
Baptista you are happilie met:
nleman I told you of,
good father to me now,
for my patrimony.
: sir by your leaue, hauing come to Padua
ne debtes, my son Lucentio
inted with a waighty cause
e your daughter and dimselfe:
d report I heare of you,
he beareth to your daughter,
ue stay him not too long.
a good fathers care ethe, and if you please to like l, vpon some agreement de readie and willing nt to haue her so bestowed:
annot be with you
, of whom I heare so well.
don me in what I haue to say,
and your shortnesse please me well.
your sonne Lucentio here daughter, and she loueth him, le deepely their affections:
you say no more then this,
er you will deale with him.
aughter a sufficient dower,
ide, and all is done,
I haue my daughter with consent.
e you sir, where then doe you know best
l such assurance tane, ther parts agreement stand.
my house Lucentio, for you know ures, and I haue manie seruants, ue is harkning still,
e might be interrupted.
r my lodging, and it like you,
father lie: and there this night

Weele passe the businesse priuately and well:
Send for your daughter by your seruant here,
My Boy shall fetch the Scriuener presentlie,
The worst is this that at so slender warning,
You are like to haue a thin and slender pittance.
Bap. It likes me well:
Cambio hie you home, and bid Bianca make her readie straight:
And if you will tell what hath hapned,
Lucentios Father is arriued in Padua,
And how she's like to be Lucentios wife.
Biond. I praie the gods she may withall my heart. Exit
Tran. Dallie not with the gods, but get thee gone.

Enter Peter.
Signior Baptista, shall I leade the way,
Welcome, one messe is like to be your cheere,
Come sir, we will better it in Pisa.
Bap. I follow you. Exeunt.

Enter Lucentio and Biondello.
Bion. Cambio.
Luc. What saist thou Biondello.
Biond. You saw my Master winke and laugh vpon you?
Luc. Biondello, what of that?
Biond. Faith nothing: but has left mee here behinde to expound the meaning or morrall of his signes and tokens.
Luc. I pray thee moralize them.
Biond. Then thus: Baptista is safe talking with the deceiuing Father of a deceitfull sonne.
Luc. And what of him?
Biond. His daughter is to be brought by you to the supper.
Luc. And then.
Bion. The old Priest at Saint Lukes Church is at your command at all houres.
Luc. And what of all this.
Bion. I cannot tell, expect they are busied about a counterfeit assurance: take you assurance of her, Cum priuilegio ad imprimendum solem, to th' Church take the Priest, Clarke, and some sufficient honest witnesses:
If this be not that you looke for, I haue no more to say,
But bid Bianca farewell for euer and a day.
Luc. Hear'st thou Biondello.
Biond. I cannot tarry: I knew a wench maried in an afternoone as shee went to the Garden for Parseley to stuffe a Rabit, and so may you sir: and so adew sir, my Master hath appointed me to goe to Saint Lukes to bid the Priest be readie to come against you come with your appendix. Exit.
Luc. I may and will, if she be so contented:
She will be pleas'd, then wherefore should I doubt:
Hap what hap may, Ile roundly goe about her:
It shall goe hard if Cambio goe without her. Exit.

Enter Petruchio, Kate, Hortensio
Pet. Come on a Gods name, once more toward our fathers:
Good Lord how bright and goodly shines the Moone.
Kate. The Moone, the Sunne: it is not Moonelight now.
Pet. I say it is the Moone that shines so bright.
Kate. I know it is the Sunne that shines so bright.
Pet. Now by my mothers sonne, and that's my selfe,

It

It ſhall be moone, or ſtarre, or what I liſt,
Or ere I iourney to your Fathers houſe:
Goe on, and fetch our horſes backe againe.
Euermore croſt and croſt, nothing but croſt.
Hort. Say as he ſaies, or we ſhall neuer goe.
Kate. Forward I pray, ſince we haue come ſo farre,
And be it moone, or ſunne, or what you pleaſe:
And if you pleaſe to call it a ruſh Candle,
Henceforth I vow it ſhall be ſo for me.
Petr. I ſay it is the Moone.
Kate. I know it is the Moone.
Petr. Nay then you lye: it is the bleſſed Sunne.
Kate. Then God be bleſt, it is the bleſſed ſun,
But ſunne it is not, when you ſay it is not
And the Moone changes euen as your minde:
What you will haue it nam'd, euen that it is,
And ſo it ſhall be ſo for Katherine.
Hort. Petruchio, goe thy waies, the field is won Petr. Well, forward, forward, thus the bowle ſhould run,
And not vnluckily againſt the Bias.
But ſoft, Company is comming here

Enter Vincentio

Good morrow gentle Miſtris, where away?
Tell me ſweete Kate, and tell me truely too,
Haſt thou beheld a freſher Gentlewoman
Such warre of white and red within her cheekes:
What ſtars do ſpangle heauen with ſuch beautie,
As thoſe two eyes become that heauenly face?
Faire louely Maide, once more good day to thee:
Sweete Kate embrace her for her beauties ſake.
Hort. A will make the man mad to make the woman of him.
Kate. Yong budding Virgin, faire, and freſh, & ſweet,
Whether away, or whether is thy aboade?
Happy the Parents of ſo faire a childe,
Happier the man whom fauourable ſtars
Allots thee for his louely bedfellow.
Petr. Why how now Kate, I hope thou art not mad,
This is a man old, wrinckled, faded, withered,
And not a Maiden, as thou ſaſt he is.
Kate. Pardon old father my miſtaking eies,
That haue bin ſo bedazled with the ſunne,
That euery thing I looke on ſeemeth greene:
Now I perceiue thou art a reuerent Father:
Pardon I pray thee for my mad miſtaking.
Petr. Do good old grandſire, & withall make known
Which way thou trauelleſt, if along with vs,
We ſhall be ioyfull of thy companie.
Vin. Faire Sir, and you my merry Miſtris,
That with your ſtrange encounter much amaſde me:
My name is call'd Vincentio, my dwelling Piſa,
And bound I am to Padua, there to viſite
A ſonne of mine, which long I haue not ſeene.
Petr. What is his name?
Vinc. Lucentio gentle Sir.
Petr. Happily met, the happier for thy ſonne:
And now by Law, as well as reuerent age,
I may intitle thee my louing Father,
The ſiſter to my wife, this Gentlewoman,
Thy Sonne by this hath married: wonder not,
Nor be not grieued, ſhe is of good eſteeme.
Her dowrie wealthie, and of worthie birth,
Beſide, ſo qualified, as may beſeeme
The Spouſe of any noble Gentleman.
Let me imbrace with old Vincentio,
And wander we to ſee thy honeſt ſonne,
Who will of thy arriuall be full ioyous.
Vinc. But is this true, or is it elſe your pleaſure
Like pleaſant trauilors to breake a ieſt
Vpon the companie you ouertake?
Hort. I doe aſſure thee father ſo it is.
Petr. Come goe along and ſee the truth hereof,
For our firſt merriment hath made thee iealous. Exeunt.
Hor. Well Petruchio, this has put me in heart,
Haue to my Widdow, and if ſhe froward
Then haſt thou taught Hortensio to be vntoward. Exit.

Enter Biondello, Lucentio and Bianca, Gremio is out before.

Biond. Softly and ſwiftly Sir, for the Prieſt is ready.
Luc. I flie Biondello, but they may chance to neede thee at home, therefore leaue vs. Exit.
Biond. Nay faith, Ile ſee the Church a your backe, and then come backe to my miſtris as ſoone as I can.
Gre. I marualle Cambio comes not all this while.

Enter Petruchio, Kate, Vincentio, Grumio with Attendants.

Petr. Sir heres the doore, this is Lucentios houſe,
My Fathers beares more toward the Market place,
Thither muſt I, and here I leaue you ſir.
Vin. You ſhall not chooſe but drinke before you go,
I thinke I ſhall command your welcome here,
And by all likelihood ſome cheere is toward. Knock.
Grum. They're buſie within, you were beſt knocke lowder.

Pedant lookes out of the window.

Ped. What's he that knockes as he would beat downe the gate?
Vin. Is Signior Lucentio within ſir?
Ped. He's within ſir, but not to be ſpoken withall.
Vinc. What if a man bring him a hundred pound or two to make merrie withall.
Ped. Keepe your hundred pounds to your ſelfe, hee ſhall neede none ſo long as I liue.
Petr. Nay, I told you your ſonne was well beloued in Padua: doe you heare ſir, to leaue friuolous circumſtances, I pray you tell ſignior Lucentio that his Father is come from Piſa, and is here at the doore to ſpeake with him.
Ped. Thou lieſt his Father is come from Padua, and here looking out at the window.
Vin. Art thou his father?
Ped. I ſir, ſo his mother ſaies, if I may beleeue her.
Petr. Why how now gentleman: why this is flat knauerie to take vpon you another mans name.
Ped. Lay hands on the villaine, I beleeue a meanes to coſen ſome bodie in this Citie vnder my countenance.

Enter Biondello.

Bio. I haue ſeene them in the Church together, God ſend 'em good ſhipping: but who is here? mine old Maſter Vincentio: now we are vndone and brought to nothing.
Vin. Come hither crackhempe.
Bion. I hope I may chooſe Sir.
Vin. Come hither you rogue, what haue you forgot me?
Biond. Forgot you, no ſir: I could not forget you, for I never ſaw you before in all my life.
Vinc. What, you notorious villaine, didſt thou neuer ſee thy Miſtris father, Vincentio?

Bion. What

e my old worſhipfull old maſter? yes ere he looke out of the windowe.
indeede. He beates Boondello.
, helpe, helpe, here's a mad man will murpe ſoone, helpe ſignior Baptiſta.

the Kate let's ſtand aſide and ſee the end of ſe.

ndaunt with ſeruants, Baptiſta, Tranio.
what are you that offer to beate my ſer-

s am I ſir nay what are you ſir: oh immoroh fine villaine, a ſilken doublet, a vel-ſlet cloake, and a copataine hat: oh I am vndone: while I plaie the good husband oone and my ſeruant ſpend all at the ta-

now, what's the matter?
ſer is the man lunaticke?
ou ſeeme a ſober ancient Gentleman by ur your words ſhew you a mad man: why s it you, if I weare Pearle and gold: I thank er, I am able to maintaine it.
ather: oh villaine, he is a Saile-maker in miſtake ſir, you miſtake ſir, praie what do his name?

ame, as if I knew not his name: I haue rp euer ſince he was three yeeres old, and ome.
e, awaie mad aſſe, his name is Lucentio, and elie ſonne and heire to the Lands of me ſig-
.
nio: oh he hath murdred his Maſter; laie
I charge you in the Dukes name: oh my me; tell me thou villaine, where is my ſon forth an officer: Carrie this mad knaue to er Baptiſta, I charge you ſee that hee be g.

ne me to the Iaile?
officer, he ſhall not go to priſon.
e not ſignior Gremio: I ſaie he ſhall goe to heede ſignior Baptiſta, leaſt you be coni-buſineſſe: I dare ſweare this is the right

ure if thou dar'ſt.
I dare not ſweare it.
n thou wert beſt ſaie that I am not Lu-

I know thee to be ſignior Lucentio.
ie with the dotard, to the Iaile with him.
r Boondello, Lucentio and Bianca.
ſtrangers may be baild and abuſd: oh mon-
e.
we are ſpoil'd, and yonder he is, denie him,
n, or elſe we are all vndone.
hile, Tranio and Pedant as faſt as may be.
ion ſweete father. Kneele.
s my ſweete ſonne?
don deere father.
e haſt thou offended, where is Lucentio?
e's Lucentio, right ſonne to the right Vin-

That haue by marriage made thy daughter mine,
While counterfeit ſuppoſes bleer'd thine eine.
Gre. Here's packing with a witneſſe to deceiue vs all.
Vin. Where is that damned villaine Tranio,
That fac'd and braued me in this matter ſo?
Bap. Why, tell me is not this my Cambio?
Bian. Cambio is chang'd into Lucentio.
Luc. Loue wrought theſe miracles. Biancas loue
Made me exchange my ſtate with Tranio,
While he did beare my countenance in the towne,
And happilie I haue arriued at the laſt
Vnto the wiſhed hauen of my bliſſe:
What Tranio did, my ſelfe enforſt him to;
Then pardon him ſweete Father for my ſake.
Vin. Ile ſlit the villaines noſe that would haue ſent me to the Iaile.
Bap. But doe you heare ſir, haue you married my daughter without aſking my good will?
Vin. Feare not Baptiſta, we will content you, goe to:
but I will in to be reueng'd for this villanie. Exit.
Bap. And I to ſound the depth of this knauerie. Exit.
Luc. Looke not pale Bianca, thy father will not frown.
Exeunt.

Gre. My cake is doug, hbut Ile in amoog the reſt,
Out of hope of all, but my ſhare of the feaſt.
Kate. Husband let's follow, to ſee the end of this adoe.
Petr. Firſt kiſſe me Kate, and we will.
Kate. What in the midſt of the ſtreete?
Petr. What art thou aſham'd of me?
Kate. No ſir, God forbid, but aſham'd to kiſſe.
Petr. Why then let's home againe: Come Sirra let's awaie.
Kate. Nay, I will giue thee a kiſſe, now praie thee
Loue ſtaie.
Petr. Is not this well? come my ſweete Kate,
Better once then neuer, for neuer too late. Exeunt.

Actus Quintus.

Enter Baptiſta, Vincentio, Gremio, the Pedant, Lucentio, and Bianca, Tranio, Boondello Grumio, and Widdow: The Seruingmen with Tranio bringing in a Banquet.

Luc. At laſt, though long, our iarring notes agree,
And time it is when raging warre is come,
To ſmile at ſcapes and perils ouerblowne:
My faire Bianca bid my father welcome,
While I with ſelfeſame kindneſſe welcome thine:
Brother Petruchio, ſiſter Katerina,
And thou Hortentio with thy louing Widdow:
Feaſt with the beſt, and welcome to my houſe,
My Banket is to cloſe our ſtomakes vp
After our great good cheere: praie you ſit downe,
For now we ſit to chat as well as eate.
Petr. Nothing but ſit and ſit, and eate and eate.
Bap. Padua affords this kindneſſe, ſonne Petruchio.
Petr. Padua affords nothing but what is kinde.
Hor. For both our ſakes I would that word were true.
Petr. Now for my life Hortentio feares his Widow.
Wid. Then neuer truſt me if I be afeard Petr. You are verie ſenſible, and yet you miſſe my ſence:
I meane Hortentio is afeard of you.

Wid. He

Wid. He that is giddie thinks the world turns round.
Petr. Roundlie replied.
Kat. Mistris, how meane you that?
Wid. Thus I conceiue by him.
Petr. Conceiues by me, how likes Hortensio that?
Hor. My Widdow sayes, thus she conceiues her tale.
Petr. Verie well mended: kisse him for that good Widdow.
Kat. He that is giddie thinkes the world turnes round, I praie you tell me what you meant by that.
Wid. Your husband being troubled with a shrew, Measures my husbands sorrow by his woe:
And now you know my meaning.
Kate. A verie meane meaning.
Wid. Right, I meane you
Kat. And I am meane indeede, respecting you.
Petr. To her Kate
Hor. To her Widdow.
Petr. A hundred marks, my Kate does put her down
Hor. That's my office
Petr. Spoke like an Officer: ha'to the lad.
Drinkes to Hortensio.
Bap. How likes Gremio these quicke witted folkes?
Gre. Believue me sir, they But together well.
Bian. Head, and but an haſtie witted bodie,
Would say your Head and But were head and horne.
Vin. I Mistris Bride, hath that awakened you?
Bian. I, but not frighted me, therefore Ile sleepe againe.
Petr. Nay that you shall not since you haue begun:
Haue at you for a better iest or too.
Bian. Am I your Bird, I meane to shift my bush,
And then pursue me as you draw your bow.
You are welcome all. Exit Bianca.
Petr She hath preuented me, here signior Tranio,
This bird you aim'd at, though you hit her not,
Therefore a health to all that shot and miſt.
Tri. Oh sir, Lucentio slipt me like his Grey-hound,
Which runs himselfe, and catches for his Master.
Petr. A good swift simile, but something currish.
Tra. 'Tis well sir that you hunted for your selfe:
'Tis thought your Deere does hold you at a baie.
Bap. Oh, oh Petruchio, Tranio hits you now.
Luc. I thanke thee for that gird good Tranio.
Hor. Confesse, confesse, hath he not hit you here?
Petr. A has a little gald me I confesse:
And as the Iest did glaunce a waie from me.
'Tis ten to one it maim'd you too our right.
Bap. Now in good sadnesse sonne Petruchio,
I thinke thou hast the veriest shrew of all.
Petr. Well, I say no: and therefore sir assurance,
Let's each one send vnto his wife,
And he whose wife is most obedient,
To come at first when he doth send for her,
Shall win the wager which we will propose.
Hort. Content, what's the wager?
Luc. Twentie crownes.
Petr. Twentie crownes.
Ile venture so much of my Hawke or Hound,
But twentie times so much vpon my Wife.
Luc. A hundred then.
Hor. Content.
Petr. A match, 'tis done.
Hor. Who shall begin?
Luc. That will I.
Goe Biondello, bid your Mistris come to me.
Bio. Igoe.
Bap. Sonne, Ile be your halfe, Bianca com
Luc. Ile haue no halues: Ile beare it all
Enter Biondello.
How now, what newes?
Bio. Sir, my Mistris sends you word
That she is busie, and she cannot come.
Petr. How? she's busie, and she cannot an answere?
Gre. I, and a kinde one too:
Praie God sir your wife send you not a wor
Petr. I hope better.
Hor. Sirra Biondello, goe and intreate come to me forthwith.
Pet. Oh ho, intreate her, nay then shee
come.
Hor. I am afraid sir, doe what you can
Enter Biondello.
Yours will not be entreated: Now, where's
Bion. She saies you haue some goodly
She will not come: she bids you come to h
Petr. Worse and worse, she will not co
Oh vilde, intollerable, not to be indur'd:
Sirra Grumio, goe to your Mistris,
Say I command her come to me
Hor. I know her answere.
Pet. What?
Hor. She will not.
Petr. The fouler fortune mine, and there
Enter Katerina.
Bap. Now by my holidam here comes
Kat. What is your will sir, that you send Petr. Where is your sister, and Hortensio
Kate. They sit conferring by the Parler
Petr. Goe fetch them hither, if they den
Swinge me them soundly forth vnto their h
Away I say, and bring them hither straight.
Luc. Here is a wonder, if you talke of a w
Hor. And so it is: I wonder what it bood
Petr. Marrie peace it boods, and loue, an
An vnfell rule, and right supremicie:
And to be short, what not, that's sweete and
Bap. Now faire befall thee good Petruch
The wager thou hast won, and I will adde
Vnto their losses twentie thousand crownes,
Another dowrie to another daughter.
For she is chang'd as she had never bin.
Petr. Nay I will win my wager better ye
And shew more signe of her obedience
Her new built vertue and obedience.
Enter Kate, Bianca, and Widdow.
See where she comes, and brings your froward
As prisoners to her womanlie perswasion
Katerine, that Cap of yours becomes you no
Off with that bable, throw it vnderfoote.
Wid. Lord let me neuer haue a cause to sig
Till I be brought to such a sillie passe
Bian. Fie what a foolish dutie call you th
Luc. I would your dutie were as foolish t
The wildome of your dutie faire Bianca
Hath cost me five hundred crownes since Sup
Bian. The more foole you for laying on m
Pet. Katherine I charge thee tell these h women, what dutie they doe owe their Lord bands.

Come, come, you mocking: we will haue no
ome on I ſay, and firſt begin with her.
he ſhall not.
ſay ſhe ſhall, and firſt begin with her.
Fie, fie, vnknit that threatning vnkinde brow,
not ſcorneſull glances from thoſe eies,
l thy Lord, thy King, thy Gouernour.
y beautie, as froſts doe bite the Meads,
e thy fame, as whirlewinds ſhake faire budds,
ſcence is meere or amiable.
mou'd, is like a fountaine troubled,
ll ſeeming, thicke, bereft of beautie,
e it is ſo, none ſo dry or thirſtie
ne to ſip, or touch one drop of it.
nd is thy Lord, thy life, thy keeper,
thy ſoueraigne: One that cares for thee,
y maintenance. Commits his body ll labour, both by ſea and land:
the night in ſtormes, the day in cold.
ou ly'ſt warme at home, ſecure and ſafe.
s no other tribute at thy hands,
faire lookes, and true obedience;
payment for ſo great a debt.
e as the ſobieſt owes the Prince,
a woman oweth to her husband:
ſhe is froward, peeuiſh, ſullen, ſowre, obedient to his honeſt will,
he but a ſoule contending Rebell, deſſe Traitor to her louing Lord?
n'd that women are ſo ſimple,
To offer warre, where they ſhould kneele for peace:
Or ſeeke for rule, ſupremacie, and ſway,
When they are bound to ſerue, loue, and obay.
Why are our bodies ſoft, and weake, and ſmooth.
Vnapt to toyle and trouble in the world,
But that our ſoft conditions, and our harts,
Should well agree with our externall parts?
Come, come, you froward and vnable wormes,
My minde hath bin as bigge as one of yours,
My heart as great, my reaſon haplie more,
To bandie word for word, and frowne for frowne;
But now I ſee our Launces are but ſtrawes:
Our ſtrength as weake, our weakeneſſe paſt compare,
That ſeeming to be moſt, which we indeed leaſt are.
Then vale your ſtomackes, for it is no boote,
And place your hands below your husbands foote:
In token of which dutie, if he pleaſe,
My hand is readie, may it do him eaſe.

Pet. Why there's a wench: Come on, and kiſſe mee Kate.

Luc. Well go thy waies olde Lad for thou ſhalt ha'r.

Vin. Tis a good hearing, when children are toward.

Luc. But a harſh hearing, when women are froward.

Pet. Come Kate, weele to bed,
We three are married, but you two are ſped.
Twas I wonne the wager, though you hit the white,
And being a winner, God giue you good night.

Exit Petruchio

Horten. Now go thy wayes, thou haſt tam'd a curſt Shrow.

Luc. Tis a wonder, by your leaue, ſhe will be tam'd ſo.

FINIS.

ALL'S Well, that Ends Well.

Actus primus. Scœna Prima.

Enter yong Bertram Count of Roſſillion, his Mother, and Helena, Lord Laſew, all in blacke.

Mother

IN deliuering my ſonne from me, I burie a ſecond husband.

Ros. And I in going Madam, weep ore my fathers death anew; but I muſt attend his maieſties command, to whom I am now in Ward, euermore in ſubiection.

Laf. You ſhall find of the King a husband Madame, you ſir a father. He that ſo generally is at all times good, muſt of neceſſitie hold his vertue to you, whoſe worthineſſe would ſtirre it vp where it wanted rather then lack it where there is ſuch abundance.

Mo. What hope is there of his Maieſties amendment?

Laf. He hath abandon'd his Phiſitions Madam, vnder whoſe practiſes he hath perſecuted time with hope, and finds no other aduantage in the proceſſe, but only the looſing of hope by time.

Mo. This yong Gentlewoman had a father, O that had, how ſad a paſſage tis, whoſe ſkill was almoſt as great as his honeſtie, had it ſtretch'd ſo far, would haue made nature immortall, and death ſhould haue play for lacke of worke. Would for the Kings ſake hee were liuing, I thinke it would be the death of the Kings diſeaſe.

Laf. How call'd you the man you ſpeake of Madam?

Mo. He was famous fir in his profeſſion, and it was his great right to be ſo Gerard de Narbon.

Laf. He was excellent indeed Madam, the King very lately ſpoke of him admiringly, and mourningly: hee was skilfull enough to haue liu'd ſtill, if knowledge could be ſet vp againſt mortalitie.

Ros. What is it (my good Lord) the King languiſhes of?

Laf. A Fiſtula my Lord

Ros. I heard not of it before

Laf. I would it were not notorious. Was this Gentlewoman the Daughter of Gerard de Narbon?

Mo. His ſole childe my Lord, and bequeathed to my ouer looking. I haue thoſe hopes of her good, that her education promiſes her diſpoſitions ſhee inherits, which makes faire gifts fairer: for where an vncleane mind carries vertuous qualities, there commendations go with pitty, they are vertues and traitors too: in her they are the better for their ſimpleneſſe; ſhe deriues her honeſtie, and atcheeues her goodneſſe.

Laſew. Your commendations Madam get from her teares.

Mo. 'Tis the beſt brine a Maiden can ſeaſon her praiſe in. The remembrance of her father neuer approches her heart, but the tirranny of her ſorrowes takes all liuelihood from her cheeke. No more of this Helena, go too, no more leaſt it be rather thought you affect a ſorrow, then to haue.

Hell. I doe affect a ſorrow indeed, but I haue it too.

Laf. Moderate lamentation is the right of the dead, exceſſiue greefe the enemie to the liuing.

Mo. If the liuing be enemie to the greefe, the exceſſe makes it ſoone mortall.

Ros. Maddam I deſire your holie wiſhes

Laf. How vnderſtand we that?

Mo. Be thou bleſt Bertram, and ſucceed thy father in manners as in ſhape: thy blood and vertue Contend for Empire in thee, and thy goodneſſe Share with thy birth-right. Loue all, truſt a few, Doe wrong to none: be able for thine enemie Rather in power then vſe: and keepe thy friend Vnder thy owne liues key. Be checke for ſilence, But neuer tax'd for ſpeech. What heauen more will, That thee may furniſh, and my prayers plucke downe, Fall on thy head. Farwell my Lord,
'Tis an vnſeaſon'd Courtier, good my Lord
Aduiſe him.

Laf. He cannot want the beſt
That ſhall attend his loue.

Mo. Heauen bleſſe him: Farwell Bertram.

Ro. The beſt wiſhes that can be forg'd in your thoughts be ſeruants to you: be comfortable to my mother, your Miſtris, and make much of her.

Laf. Farewell prettie Lady, you muſt hold the credit of your father.

Hell. O were that all, I thinke not on my father,
And theſe great teares grace his remembrance more
Then thoſe I ſhed for him. What was he like?
I haue forgot him. My imagination
Carries no fauour in't but Bertrams.
I am vndone, there is no liuing, none,
If Bertram be away. 'Twere all one,
That I ſhould loue a bright particuler ſtarre,
And think to wed it, he is ſo aboue me
In his bright radience and collateriall light.

Must

Muſt I be comforted, not in his ſphere;
Th'ambition in my loue thus plagues it ſelfe.
The hind that would be mated by the Lion
Muſt die for loue. 'Twas prettie, though a plague
To ſee him euerie houre to ſit and draw
His arched browes, his hawking eie, his curles
In our hearts table: heart too capeable
Of euerie line and trickе of his ſweet ſauour.
But now he's gone, and my idolatrous fancie
Muſt ſanctifie his Reliques. Who comes heere?

Enter Parrolles.

One that goes with him: I loue him for his ſake,
And yet I know him a notorious Liar,
Thinke him a great way foole, ſolne a coward,
Yet theſe fixt euills ſit ſo fit in him,
That they take place, when Vertues ſteely bones
Looker bleake i'th cold wind: withall full oft we ſee
Cold wiſedome waighting on ſuperfluous follie.

Par. Saue you faire Queene.

Hel. And you Monarch.

Par. No.

Hel. And no.

Par. Are you meditating on virginitie?

Hel. I: you haue ſome ſtraine of ſouldier in you: Let meе aske you a queſtion. Man is enemie to virginitie, how may we barracado it againſt him?

Par. Keepe him out.

Hel. But he aſſailes, and our virginitie though valiant, in the defence yet is weak: vnfold to vs ſome warlike reſiſtance.

Par. There is none. Man ſetting downe before you, will vndermine you, and blow you vp.

Hel. Bleſſe our poore Virginity from vnderminers and blowers vp. Is there no Military policy how Virgins might blow vp men?

Par. Virginity being blowne downe, Man will quickliеr be blowne vp: marry in blowing him downe againe, with the breach your ſelues made, you loſe your City. It is not politicke, in the Common-wealth of Nature, to preſerue virginity. Loſſe of Virginitie, is rationall encreaſe, and there was neuer Virgin got, till virginitie was firſt loſt. That you were made of, is metall to make Virgins. Virginitie, by being once loſt, may be ten times found: by being euer kept, it is euer loſt: 'tis too cold a companion: Away with't.

Hel. I will ſtand for't a little, though therefore I die a Virgin.

Par. There's little can be ſaide in't, 'tis againſt the rule of Nature. To ſpeake on the part of virginitie, is to accuſe your Mothers; which is moſt infallible diſobedience. He that hangs himſelfe is a Virgin: Virginitie murthers it ſelfe, and ſhould be buried in highwayes out of all ſanctified limit, as a deſperate Offendreſſe againſt Nature. Virginitie breedes mites, much like a Cheeſe, conſumes it ſelfe to the very paring, and ſo dies with feeding his owne ſtomacke. Beſides, Virginitie is peeuiſh, proud, idle, made of ſelfe-loue, which is the moſt inhibited ſinne in the Canon. Keepe it not, you cannot chooſe but looſe by't. Out with't: within ten yeare it will make it ſelfe two, which is a goodly increaſe, and the principall it ſelfe not much the worſe. Away with't.

Hel. How might one do ſir, to loaſe it to her owne liking?

Par. Let meе ſee. Marry ill, to like him that ne're it likes. 'Tis a commodity will loſe the gloſſe with lying: The longer kept, the leſſe worth: Off with't while 'tis vendible. Anſwer the time of requeſt, Virginitie like an olde Courtier, weares her cap out of faſhion, richly ſuited, but vnſuteable, juſt like the brooch & the toothpick, which were not now: your Date is better in your Pye and your Porredge, then in your cheeke: and your virginity, your old virginity, is like one of our French wither'd peares, it lookes ill, it eates drily, marry 'tis a wither'd peare: it was formerly better, marry yet 'tis a wither'd peare. Will you any thing with it?

Hel. Not my virginity yet:
There ſhall your Maſter haue a thouſand loues,
A Mother, and a Miſtreſſe, and a friend,
A Phenix, Captaine, and an enemy,
A guide, a Goddeſſe, and a Soueraigne,
A Counſellor a Traiteroreſſe, and a Deare:
His humble ambition, proud humility:
His iarring, concord: and his diſcord, dulcet:
His faith, his ſweet diſaſter: with a world
Of preety fond adoptious chriſtendomes
That blinking Cupid goſſips. Now ſhall he:
I know not what he ſhall, God ſend him well,
The Courts a learning place, and he is one.

Par. What one ifaith?

Hel. That I wiſh well. 'tis pitty,

Par. What's pitty?

Hel. That wiſhing well had not a body in't,
Which might be felt, that we the poorer borne,
Whoſe baſer ſtarres do ſhut vs vp in wiſhes,
Might with effects of them follow our friends,
And ſhew what we alone muſt thinke, which neuer
Returne vs thankes.

Enter Page.

Pag. Monſieur Parrolles,
My Lord cals for you.

Par. Little Helen farewell, if I can remember thee, I will thinke of thee at Court.

Hel. Monſieur Parrolles, you were borne vnder a charitable ſtarre.

Par. Vnder Mars I.

Hel. I eſpecially thinke, vnder Mars.

Par Why vnder Mars?

Hel. The warres hath ſo kept you vnder, that you muſt needes be borne vnder Mars.

Par. When he was predominant.

Hel. When he was retrograde I thinke rather.

Par. Why thinke you ſo?

Hel. You go ſo much backward when you fight.

Par. That's for aduantage.

Hel. So is running away,
When feare propoſes the ſafetie:
But the compoſition that your valour and feare makes in you, is a vertue of a good wing, and I like the weare well.

Parol. I am ſo full of buſineſſes, I cannot anſwere thee acutely: I will returne perfect Courtier, in the which my inſtruction ſhall ſerue to naturalize thee, ſo thou wilt be capeable of a Courtiers counſell, and vnderſtand what aduice ſhall thruſt vppon thee, elſe thou dieſt in thine vnthankfulnes, and thine ignorance makes thee away, farewell: When thou haſt leyſure, ſay thy prayers: when thou haſt none, remember thy Friends:

Get thee a good husband, and vſe him as he vſes thee:
So farewell.

Hel. Our remedies oft in our ſelues do lye,
Which we aſcribe to heauen: the fated skye
Giues vs free ſcope, onely doth backward poll
Our ſlow deſignes, when we our ſelues are dull.
What power is it, which mounts my loue ſo hye,
That makes me ſee, and cannot feede mine eye?
The mightieſt ſpace in fortune, Nature brings
To ioyne like, likes; and kiſſe like native things.
Impoſſible be ſtrange attempts to thoſe
That weigh their paines in ſence, and do ſuppoſe
What hath beene, cannot be. Who euer ſtroue
To ſhew her merit, that did miſſe her loue?
(The Kings diſeaſe) my project may deceiue me,
But my intents are fixt, and will not leaue me. Exit

Flouriſh Cornets.
Enter the King of France with Letters, and diuers Attendants.

King. The Florentines and Senoys are by th'eares,
Haue fought with equall fortune, and continue
A brauing warre.

1. Lo. G. So tis reported ſir.

King. Nay tis moſt credible, we heere receiue it,
A certaintie vouch'd from our Coſin Auſtria,
With caution, that the Florentine will moue vs
For ſpeedie aydes, wherein our dearеſt friend
Prejudicates the buſineſſe, and would ſeeme
To haue vs make deniall.

1. Lo. G. His loue and wiſedome
Approu'd ſo to your Maieſty, may pleade
For ampleſt credence.

King. He hath arm'd our anſwer,
And Florence is denu'de before he comes:
Yet for our Gentlemen that meane to ſee
The Tuſcan ſeruice, freely haue they leaue
To ſtand on either part.

2. Lo. E. It well may ſerue
A nurſſerie to our Gentrie, who are ſicke
For breathing, and exploit.

King. What's he comes heere.

Enter Bertram, Lafew, and Parolles.

1 Lor G. It is the Count Roſſyllion my good Lord, Yong Bertram.

King. Youth, thou bear'ſt thy Fathers face,
Franke Nature rather curious then in haſt
Hath well compos'd thee. Thy Fathers morall parts
Maiſt thou inherit too: Welcome to Paris.

Ber. My thankes and duties are your Maieſties.

King. I would I had that corporall ſoundneſſe now,
As when thy father, and my ſelfe, in friendſhip
Firſt tride our ſouldierſhip: he did looke farre
Into the ſeruice of the time, and was Diſcipled of the braueſt. He laſted long,
But on vs both did haggiſh Age ſteale on,
And wore vs out of act: It much repaires me,
To talke of your good father; in his youth
He had the wit, which I can well obſerue
To day in our yong Lords: but they may ieſt
Till their owne ſcorne returne to them vnnoted
Ere they can hide their leuitie in honour:
So like a Courtier, contempt nor bitterneſſe
Were in his pride, or ſharpneſſe; if they were,
His equall had awak'd them, and his honour
Clocke to it ſelfe, knew the true minute when Exception bid him ſpeake: and at this time
His tongue obey'd his hand. Who were below him,
He vs'd as creatures of another place,
And bow'd his eminent top to their low ranke,
Making them proud of his humilitie,
In their poore praiſe he humbled: Such a man
Might be a copie to theſe yonger times;
Which followed well, would demonſtrate them now
But goers backward.

Ber. His good remembrance ſir
Lies richer in your thoughts, then on his tombe:
So in approoſe liues not his Epitaph,
As in your royall ſpeech.

King. Would I were with him he would alwaies ſay,
(Me thinkes I heare him now) his plauſiue words
He ſcatter'd not in eares, but grafted them
To grow there and to beare: Let me not liue,
This his good melancholly oft began
On the Cataſtrophe and heele of paſtime
When it was out: Let me not liue (quoth he)
After my flame lackes oyle, to be the ſnuffe
Of younger ſpirits, whoſe apprehenſiue ſenſes
All but new things diſdaine; whoſe iudgements are Meere fathers of their garments: whoſe conſtancies
Expire before their faſhions: this he wiſh'd
I after him, do after him wiſh too:
Since I nor wax nor honie can bring home,
I quickly were diſſolued from my hiue
To giue ſome Labourers roome.

L. 2. E. You'r loued Sir,
They that leaſt lend it you, ſhall lacke you firſt.

King. I fill a place I know't: how long iſt Count
Since the Phyſitian at your fathers died?
He was much fam'd.

Ber. Some ſix moneths ſince my Lord.

King. If he were liuing, I would try him yet.
Lend me an arme: the reſt haue worne me out
With ſeuerall applications: Nature and ſickneſſe Debate it at their leiſure. Welcome Count,
My ſonne's no deerer.

Ber. Thanke your Maieſty. Exit

Flouriſh

Enter Countteſſe, Steward, and Clowne.

Count. I will now heare, what ſay you of this gentlewoman.

Ste. Maddam the care I haue had to euen your content, I wiſh might be found in the Kalender of my paſt endeuours, for then we wound our Modeſtie, and make ſoule the clearneſſe of our deſeruings, whereof our ſelues we publiſh them.

Count. What doe's this knaue heere? Get you gone ſirra: the complaints I haue heard of you I do not all beleeue, 'tis my ſlowneſſe that I doe not. For I know you lacke not folly to commit them, & haue abilitie enough to make ſuch knaueries yours.

Clo. 'Tis not vnknown to you Madam, I am a poore fellow.

Count. Well ſir.

Clo. No maddam,
'Tis not ſo well that I am poore, though manie
of

are damn'd, but if I may haue your Ladiſhips to goe to the world, Iſbell the woman and w e we may.
Wilt thou needes be a begger?
ſhoe beg your good will in this caſe.
t what caſe?
Iſbels caſe and mine owne: ſeruice is no herithinke I ſhall neuer haue the bleſſing of God, iſſue a my bodie: for they ſay barnes are bleſ-ell me thy reaſon why thou wilt marrie?

ly poore bodie Madam requires it, I am driuen fleſh, and hee muſt needes goe that the diuell

s this all your worſhips reaſon?
uch Madam I haue other holie reaſons, ſuch as ay the world know them?

haue beene Madam a wicked creature, as you ſh and blood are, and indeede I doe marrie that ent.
thy marriage ſooner then thy wickednesſe am out a friends Madam, and I hope to haue r my wiues ſake.
uch friends are thine enemies knaue.
'are ſhallow Madam in great friends, for the wne to doe that for me which I am a weary of:
es my Land, ſpares my teame, and giues mee ane the crop. if I be his cuckold hee's my he that comforts my wife, is the cheriſher of nd blood; hee that cheriſhes my fleſh and ee my fleſh and blood; he that loues my fleſh d is my friend: ergo, he that kiſſes my wife is my men could be contented to be what they are, e no ſeeke in marriage, for yong Charbon the nd old Poyſam the Papiſt, how ſomere their ſeuer'd in Religion, their heads are both one,
oule horne together like any Deere i'th Herd.
Wilt thou euer be a foule mouth'd and calum-
me?
a Prophet I Madam, and I ſpeake the truth the
, for I the Ballad will repeate, which men full finde, your marriage comes by deſtinie, your ſings by kinde.
ſet you gone ſir, Ile talke with you more anon.
May it pleaſe you Madam, that hee bid Helen you, of her I am to ſpeake.
ſirra tell my gentlewoman I would ſpeake with e I meane.
Was this faire face the cauſe, quoth ſhe,
Grecians ſacked Troy,
e, done, fond was this King Priams ioy,
e ſhe ſighed as ſhe ſtood, &c.
r this ſentence then, among nine bad if one be ong nine bad if one be good, there's yet one en.
What, one good in tenne? you corrupt the ſong

our good woman in ten Madam, which is a pun' ſong: would God would ſerue the world ſo ere, weed finde no faults with the tithe woman the Parſon, one in ten quoth a? and wee might od woman borne but ere euerie blazing ſtarre, arthquake, 'twould mend the Lotterie well, a draw his heart out ere a plucke one.
Youle begone ſir knaue, and doe as I command

Clo. That man ſhould be at womens command, and yet no hurt done, though honeſtie be no Puritan, yet it will doe no hurt, it will weare the Surplis of humilitie ouer the blacke-Gowne of a bigge heart: I am going forſooth, the buſineſſe is for Helen to come hither. Exit.

Cou. Well now.

Stew. I know Madam you loue your Gentlewoman intirely.

Cou. Faith I doe: her Father bequeath'd her to mee, and ſhe her ſelfe without other aduantage, may lawfullie make title to as much loue as ſhee findes, there is more owing her then is paid, and more ſhall be paid her then ſheele demand.

Stew. Madam, I was verie late more neere her then I thinke ſhee wiſht mee, alone ſhee was, and did communicate to her ſelfe her owne words to her owne eares, ſhee thought. I dare vowe for her, they toucht not any ſtranger ſence, her matter was, ſhee loued your Sonne; Fortune ſhee ſaid was no goddeſſe, that had put ſuch difference betwixt their two eſtates: I oue no god, that would not extend his might onelie, where qualities were leuell, Queene of Virgins, that would ſuffer her poore Knight ſurpriſ'd without reſcue in the firſt aſſault or ranſome afterward: This ſhee deliuer'd in the moſt bitter touch of ſorrow that ere I heard Virgin exclaime in, which I held my dutie ſpeedily to acquaint you withall, ſithence in the loſſe that may happen, it concernes you ſomething to know it.

Cou. You haue diſcharg'd this honeſtlie, keepe it to your ſelfe, many likelihoods inform'd mee of this before, which hung ſo tottring in the ballance, that I could neither beleeue nor miſdoubt: praie you leaue mee, ſtall this in your boſome, and I thanke you for your honeſt care: I will ſpeake with you further anon. Exit Steward.

Enter Helen.

Old.Cou. Euen ſo it vvas vvith me when I was yong:
If euer vve are natures, theſe are ours, this thorne
Doth to our Roſe of youth rightlie belong
Our bloud to vs, this to our bloud is borne.
It is the ſhow, and ſeale of natures truth,
Where loues ſtrong paſſion is impreſt in youth,
By our remembrances of daies forgon,
Such were our faults, or then we thought them none,
Her eie is ſicke on't, I obſerue her now.

Hel. What is your pleaſure Madam?

Ol.Cou. You know Helen I am a mother to you.

Hel. Mine honorable Miſtris

Ol.Cou. Nay a mother, why not a mother? when I ſed a mother
Me thought you ſaw a ſerpent, what's in mother,
That you ſtart at it? I ſay I am your mother,
And put you in the Catalogue of thoſe
That were enwombed mine, 'tis often ſeene
Adoption ſtriues vvith nature, and choiſe breedes
A natiue ſlip to vs from forraine ſeedes:
You nere oppreſt me vvith a mothers groane,
Yet I expreſſe to you a mothers care,
(Gods mercie maiden) doe it curd thy blood
To ſay I am thy mother? vvhat's the matter,
That this diſtempered meſſenger of wet?

ne manie colour'd Iris rounds thine eye?
——— Why, that you are my daughter?
Hel. That I am not.
Old.Cou. I say I am your Mother.
Hell Pardon Madam.
The Count Rosillion cannot be my brother
I am from humble, he from honored name:
No note upon my Parents, his all noble,
My Master, my deere Lord he is: and I
His seruant liue, and will his vassall die:
He must not be my brother.
Ol.Cou. Nor I your Mother.
Hell. You are my mother Madam, would you were
So that my Lord your sonne were not my brother,
Indeede my mother, or were you both our mothers,
I care no more for, then I dote for heauen,
So I were not his sister, care no other,
But I your daughter, he must be my brother.
Old.Cou Yes Hellen, you might be my daughter in law,
God shield you meane it not, daughter and mother
So striue vpon your pulse; what pale agen?
My feare hath catcht your fondnesse! now I see
The mistrie of your loueliness, and finde
Your salt teares head, now to all sence 'tis grosse
You loue my sonne, inuention is asham'd
Against the proclamation of thy passion
To say thou doost not: therefore tell me true,
But tell me then 'tis so, for looke, thy cheekes
Confesse it 'tw'ixt tooth to th'other, and thine eies
See it so grosely showne in thy behauiours,
That in their kinde they speake it, onely sinne
And hellish obstinacie tye thy tongue
That truth should be suspected, speake, is't so?
If it be so, you haue wound a goodly clewe:
If it be not, forsweare't how e're I charge thee,
As heauen shall worke in me for thine auaile
To tell me truelie.
Hell. Good Madam pardon me.
Cou Do you loue my Sonne?
Hell. Your pardon noble Mistris
Cou. Loue you my Sonne?
Hell. Doe not you loue him Madam?
Cou. Goe not about; my loue hath in't a bond
Whereof the world takes note: Come, come, disclose
The state of your affection, for your passions
Haue to the full appeach'd.
Hell Then I confesse
Here on my knee, before high heauen and you,
That before you, and next vnto high heauen, I loue your Sonne:
My friends were poore but honest, so's my loue:
Be not offended, for it hurts not him
That he is lou'd of me; I follow him not
By any token of presumptuous suite,
Nor would I haue him, till I doe deserue him,
Yet neuer know how that desert should be:
I know I loue in vaine, striue against hope
Yet in this captious, and intemible Siue.
I still poure in the waters of my loue
And lacke not to loose still; thus Indian like Religious in mine error, I adore
The Sunne that lookes vpon his worshipper,
But knowes of him no more. My deerest Madam,
Let not your hate incounter with my loue,
For louing where you doe; but if your selfe,
Whose aged honor cites a vertuous youth,
Did euer, in so true a flame of liking,
With chastly, and loue dearely, that your Dian
Was both her selfe and loue, O then giue pitie
To her whose state is such, that cannot choose
But lend and giue where she is sure on loose;
That seekes not to finde that, her search implies,
But riddle like, lines sweetely where she dies.
Cou Had you not lately an intent, speake truely,
To goe to Paris?
Hell Madam I had.
Cou Wherefore tell true.
Hell. I will tell truth by grace it selfe I sweare
You know my Father left me some prescriptions
Of rare and prou'd effects, such as his reading
And manifest experience, had collected
For general soueraignitie: and that he will'd me
In heedefull'st reseruation to bestow them,
As notes, whose faculties inclusiue were,
More then they were in note: Amongst the rest,
There is a remedie, approu'd, set downe,
To cure the desperate languishings whereof
The King is render'd lost.
Cou This was your motiue for Paris, was it, speake?
Hell My Lord, your sonne, made me to think of this,
Else Paris, and the medicine, and the King,
Had from the conuersation of my thoughts,
Happily beene absent then.
Cou But thinke you Hellen,
If you should tender your supposed aide,
He would receiue it? He and his Physitions
Are of a minde, he, that they cannot helpe him:
They, that they cannot helpe, how shall they credit
A poore vnlearned Virgin, when the Schooles
Embowel'd of their doctrine, haue left off
The danger to it selfe.
Hell. There's something in't
More then my Fathers skill, which was the great'st
Of his profession, that his good receipt,
Shall for my legacie be sanctified
Bvth luckiest stars in heauen, and would your honor
But giue me leaue to trie successe, I'de venture
The well lost life of mine, on his Graces cure,
By such a day, an houre.
Cou. Doo'st thou beleeue't?
Hell. I Madam knowingly.
Cou Why Hellen thou shalt haue my leaue and loue,
Meanes and attendants, and my louing greetings
To those of mine in Court, Ile stake at home
And praie Gods blessing into thy attempt:
Begon to morrow, and be sure of this,
What I can helpe thee to, thou shalt not misse Exeunt.

Actus Secundus.

Enter the King with diuers yong Lords, taking leaue for the Florentine warre: Count, Rosse, and Parrolles. Florish Cornets.

King. Farewell yong Lords, these warlike principles
Doe not throw from you, and you my Lords farewell:
Share the aduice betwixt you, if both gaine, all
The guift doth stirre it selfe as 'tis receiu'd,
And is enough for both.
Lord.G. 'Tis our hope sir,

After

vell entred ſouldiers, to returne ide your grace in health.
. No, no it cannot be; and yet my heart
ot confeſſe he owes the malladv oth my life beſiege: farwell yong Lords, rs I liue or die, be you the ſonnes thy French men: let higher Italy
bated that inherit but the fall laſt Monarchy) ſee that you come woose honour, but to wed it, when ueſt queſtant ſhrinkes: finde what you ſeeke, ime may cry you loud: I ſay farewell.
. Health at your bidding ſerue your Maieſty.
g. Thoſe girles of Italy, take heed of them,
y our French lacke language to deny demand: be wary of being Captiues you ſerue.
Our hearts receiue your warnings.
g. Farewell, come hether to me.
aG. Oh my ſweet Lord, y you will ſtay behind vs.
r. 'Tis not his fault the ſpark
aE. Oh 'tis braue warres.
r. Moſt admirable, I haue ſeene thoſe warres.
il. I am commanded here, and kept a coyle with,
oung, and the neat yeere, and 'tis too early.
r. And thy minde ſtand too't boy, away brauely.
il. I ſhal ſtay here the for-horſe to a ſmocke,
ing my ſhooes on the plaine Maſonry,
mount be bought vp, and no ſword worne
e to dance withs: by heauen, Ile ſteale away.
aG. There's honour in the theft.
r. Commit it Count.
aE. I am your acceſſary, and ſo farewell.
f. I grow to you, & our parting is a tortur'd body.
aG. Farewell Captaine.
aE. Sweet Mounſier Parolles.
r. Noble Heroes; my ſword and yours are kinne.
ſparkes and luſtrous, a word good metrals. You inde in the Regiment of the Spinij, one Captaine his ſcatrice, with an Emblеme of warre heere on ſiſter cheeke; it was this very ſword entrench'd it:
him I liue, and obſerue his reports for me.
G. We ſhall noble Captaine.
r. Mars dotte on you for his nouices, what will
e?
f. Stay the King.
r. Vſe a more ſpacious ceremonie to the Noble
, you haue reſtrain'd your ſelfe within the Liſt of id an adieu: be more expreſſiue to them; for they themſelues in the cap of the time, there do muſter nes; eat, ſpeake, and moue vnder the influence of moſt receiu'd ſtarre, and though the deuill leade the re, ſuch are to be followed: after them, and take a diſtaind farewell.
f. And I will doe ſo.
r. Worthy fellowes, and like to prooue moſt ſiſword-men. Exeunt.

Enter Laſeu.

Laſ. Pardon my Lord for mee and for my tidings
g. Ile ſee thee to ſtand vp. (pardon, Laſ. Then heres a man ſtands that has brought his did you had kneel'd my Lord to aske me mercy.
hat at my bidding you could ſo ſtand vp.
g. I would I had, ſo I had broke thy pate
And aſkt thee mercy for't.
Laſ. Goodfaith a-croſſe, but my good Lord 'tis thus,
Will you be cur'd of your infirmitie?
King. No.
Laſ. O will you eat no grapes my royall foxe?
Yes but you will, my noble grapes, and if
My royall foxe could reach them: I haue ſeen a medicine
That's able to breath life into a ſtone,
Quicken a rocke, and make you dance Canari
With ſprightly fire and motion, whoſe ſimple touch
Is powerfull to araiſe King Pippen, nay
To giue great Charlemaine a pen in's hand
And write to her a loue-line.
King. What her is this?
Laſ. Why doctor ſhe: my Lord, there's one arriu'd,
If you will ſee her: now by my faith and honour,
If ſeriouſly I may conuay my thoughts
In this my light deliuerance, I haue ſpoke
With one, that in her ſexe, her yeeres, profeſſion, Wiſedome and conſtancy, hath amaz'd mee more
Then I dare blame my weakeneſſe: will you ſee her?
For that is her demand, and know her buſineſſe?
That done, laugh well at me.
King. Now good Laſeu,
Bring in the admiration, that we with thee
May ſpend our wonder too, or take off thine
By wondring how thou took'ſt it.
Laſ. Nay, Ile fit you,
And not be all day neither.
King. Thus he his ſpeciall nothing euer prologues.
Laſ. Nay, come your waies.

Enter Helen.

King. This haſte hath wings indeed.
Laſ. Nay, come your waies,
This is his Maieſtie, ſay your minde to him,
A Traitor you doe looke like, but ſuch traitors
His Maieſty ſeldome feares, I am Croſſes Vncle,
That dare leaue two together, fare you well. Exit.
King. Now faire one, do's your buſines follow vs?
Hel. I my good Lord,
Gerard de Narbon was my father,
In what he did profeſſe, well found.
King. I knew him.
Hel. The rather will I ſpare my praiſes towards him,
Knowing him is enough: on's bed of death,
Many receits he gaue me, chieflie one,
Which as the deareſt iſſue of his practice
And of his olde experience, th'onlie darling,
He bad me ſtore vp, as a triple eye,
Safer then mine owne two: more deare I haue ſo,
And hearing your high Maieſtie is touch't
With that malignant cauſe, wherein the honour
Of my deare fathers gift, ſtands cheefe in power,
I come to tender it, and my appliance,
With all bound humbleneſſe.
King. We thanke you maiden,
But may not be ſo credulous of cure,
When our moſt learned Doctors leaue vs, and
The congregated Colledge haue concluded,
That labouring Art can neuer ranſome nature
From her inaydible eſtate: I ſay we muſt not
So ſtaine our iudgement, or corrupt our hope,
To proſtitute our paſt-cure malladie
To empericks, or to diſſeuer ſo
Our great ſelfe and our credit, to eſteeme
A ſenceleſſe helpe, when helpe paſt ſence we deeme.

Hel. My

Hel. My dutie then ſhall pay me for my paines:
I will no more enforce mine office on you,
Humbly intreating from your royall thoughts,
A modeſt one to bearе me backe againe.
King. I cannot giue thee leſſe to be cal'd gratefull:
Thou thoughtſt to helpe me, and ſuch thankes I giue,
As one neere death to thoſe that wiſh him liue:
But what at full I know, thou knowſt no part,
I knowing all my perill, thou no Art.
Hel. What I can doe, can doe no hurt to try,
Since you ſetvp your reſt gainſt remedie:
He that of greateſt workes is finiſher,
Oft does them by the weakeſt miniſters:
So holy Writ, in babes hath iudgement ſhowne,
When Iudges haue bin babes; great flouds haue flowne
From ſimple ſources: and great Seas haue dried
When Miracles haue by the great'ſt beene denied.
Oft expectation failes, and moſt oft there
Where moſt it promiſes: and oft it hits,
Where hope is coldeſt, and deſpaire moſt ſhifts.
King. I muſt not heare thee, fare thee wel kind maide
Thy paines not vs'd, muſt by thy ſelfe be paid,
Proffers not tooke, reape thanks for their reward.
Hel. Inſpired Merit ſo by breath is barrd,
It is not ſo with him that all things knowes
As 'tis with vs, that ſquare our gueſſe by ſhowes:
But moſt it is preſumption in vs, when
The help of heauen we count the act of men.
Deare ſir, to my endeauors giue conſent,
Of heauen, not me, make an experiment.
I am not an Impoſtrue, that proclaime
My ſelfe againſt the leuill of mine aime,
But know I thinke, and thinke I know moſt ſure,
My Art is not paſt power, nor you paſt cure
King. Art thou ſo confident? Within what ſpace Hop'ſt thou my cure?
Hel. The greateſt grace lending grace,
Ere twice the horſes of the ſunne ſhall bring
Their fiery torcher his diurnall ring,
Ere twice in murke and occidentall dampe
Moiſt Heſperus hath quench'd her ſleepy Lampe:
Or foure and twenty times the Pylots glaſſe
Hath told the theeuiſh minutes, how they paſſe:
What is infitme, from your ſound parts ſhall flie,
Health ſhall liue free, and ſickeneſſe freely dye.
King. Vpon thy certainty and confidence,
What dar'ſt thou venter?
Hel. Taxe of impudence,
A ſtrumpets boldneſſe, a diuulged ſhame
Traduc'd by odious ballads: my maidens name
Seard otherwiſe, ne worſe of worſt extended
With vildeſt torture, let my life be ended.
King. Methinks in thee ſome bleſſed ſpirit doth ſpeake
His powerfull ſound, within an organ weake:
And what impoſſibility would ſlay
In common ſence, ſence ſaues another way:
Thy life is deere, for all that life can rate
Worth name of life, in thee hath eſtimate
Youth, beauty, wiſedome, courage, all
That happines and prime, can happy call:
Thou this to hazard, needs muſt intimate
Skill infinite, or monſtrous deſperate.
Sweet practiſer, thy Phyſicke I will try,
That miniſters thine owne death if I die.
Hel. If I breake time, or ſlinch in property
Of what I ſpoke, vnpittied let me die,
And well deſeru'd. not helping, death's my fee,
But if I helpe, what doe you promiſe me.
King. Make thy demand.
Hel. But will you make it euen?
King. I by my Scepter, and my hopes of helpe.
Hel. Then ſhalt thou giue me with thy kingly hand
What husband in thy power I will command:
Exempted be from me the arrogance
To chooſe from forth the royall bloud of France,
My low and humble name to propagate
With any branch or image of thy ſtate:
But ſuch a one thy vaſſall, whom I know
Is free for me to aske, hee to beſtow.
King. Heere is my hand, the premiſes obſerv'd,
Thy will by my performance ſhall be ſerv'd:
So make the choice of thy owne time, for I
Thy reſolv'd Patient, on thee ſtill relye:
More ſhould I queſtion thee, and more I muſt,
Though more to know, could not be more to truſt:
From whence thou came'ſt, how tended on, but reſt
Vnqueſtion'd welcome, and vndoubted bleſt.
Giue me ſome helpe heere hoa, if thou proceed,
As high as word, my deed ſhall match thy deed.
Flouriſh. Exit.

Enter Countteſſe and Clowne.

Lady. Come on ſir, I ſhall now put you to the height of your breeding.
Clown. I will ſhow my ſelfe highly fed, and lowly taught, I know my buſineſſe is but to the Court.
Lady. To the Court, why what place make you ſpeciall, when you put off that with ſuch contempt, but to the Court?
Clo. Truly Madam, if God haue lent a man any manners, hee may eaſilie put it off at Court: hee that cannot make a legge, put off's cap, kiſſe his hand, and ſay nothing, has neither legge, hands, lippe, nor cap; and indeed ſuch a fellow, to ſay preciſely, were not for the Court, but for me, I haue an anſwere will ſerue all men.
Lady. Marry that's a bountifull anſwere that fits all queſtions.
Clo. It is like a Barbers chaire that fits all buttockes, the pin buttocke, the quatch-buttocke, the brawn buttocke, or any buttocke.
Lady. Will your anſwere ſerue fit to all queſtions?
Clo. As fit as ten groats is for the hand of an Attorney, as your French Crowne for your taffety punke, as Tibs ruſh for Toms fore-finger, as a pancake for Shroue-tueſday, a Morris for May-day, as the naile to his hole, the Cuckold to his horne, as a ſcolding queane to a wrangling knaue, as the Nuns lip to the Friers mouth, nay as the pudding to his skin.
Lady. Haue you, I ſay, an anſwere of ſuch fitneſſe for all queſtions?
Clo. From below your Duke, to beneath your Conſtable, it will fit any queſtion.
Lady. It muſt be an anſwere of moſt monſtrous ſize, that muſt fit all demands.
Clo. But a triſle neither in good faith, if the learned ſhould ſpeake truth of it: heere it is, and all that belongs to't. Aske mee if I am a Courtier, It ſhall doe you no harme to learne.
Lady. To be young againe if we could: I will bee a foole in queſtion, hoping to bee the wiſer by your anſwer.

Lady.

you ſir, are you a Courtier?
rd ſir there's a ſimple putting off more,
red of them.
m a poore freind of yours, that loues you.
ord ſir, thicke, thicke, ſpare not me.
ke ſir, you can eate none of this homely

'd ſir; nay put me too't, I warrant you.
were lately whipt ſir as I thinke rd ſir, ſpare not me.
ou crie O Lord ſir at your whipping, and Indeed your O Lord ſir, is very equent ning: you would anſwere very well to a ou were but bound too't.
had worſe lucke in my life in my O Lord
t may ſerue long, but not ſerue ever.
the noble huſwife with the time, to enter-rily with a foole.
rd ſir, why there's ſerues well again.
nd ſir to your buſineſſe: giue Helen this,
to a preſent anſwer backe.
ir to my kinſmen, and my ſonne,
uch.
much commendation to them.
uch imployement for you, you vnderſtuitfully, I am there, before my legegs.

you again. Exeunt

Enter Count, Lafew, and Parolles.

They ſay miracles are paſt, and we haue our ll perſons, to make moderne and familiar turall and canſleſſe. Hence is it, that we of terrours, enſconcing our ſelues into ſee-dge, when we ſhould ſubmit our ſelues to feare.
y 'tis the rareſt argument of wonder, that in our latter times.
ſo 'tis.
To be relinquiſht of the Artiſts.
ſay both of Galen and Paracelſus.
Of all the learned and authenticke fellowes.
ot ſo I ſay.
hat gaue him our incureable.
y there 'tis, ſo ſay I too
ot to be help'd.
he, as 'twere a man aſſur'd of a—— Vncertaine life, and ſure death.
you ſay well: ſo would I haue ſaid.
may truly ſay, it is a nouelty to the world.
indeede if you will haue it in ſhewing, you in what do ye call there.
a ſhewing of a heauenly effect in an earth-

'a it, I would haue ſaid, the verie ſame
Why your Dolphin is not luſtier: fore mee ſpeech——
'tis ſtrange, 'tis very ſtraunge, that is the e tedious of it, and he's of a moſt facineriit will not acknowledge it to be the—— very hand of heauen.
I ſay.
in a moſt weake——
debile miniſter great power, great tran-ich ſhould indeede giue vs a further vſe to be made, then alone the recouʼry of the king, as to bee
Old Laf. Generally thankfull.

Enter King, Helen, and attendants.

Par. I would haue ſaid it, you ſay well: heere comes the King.
Ol. Laf. Luſtique, as the Dutchman ſaies: Ile like a maide the Better whil'ſt I haue a tooth in my head: why he is able to leade her a Carranto.
Par. Mor du vinager, is not this Helen?
Ol. Laf. Fore God I thinke ſo.
King. Goe call before mee all the Lords in Court,
Sit my preſeruer by thy patients ſide,
And with this healthfull hand whoſe baniſht ſenſe
Thou haſt repeal'd, a ſecond time receyue
The confirmation of my promiſ'd guift,
Which but attends thy naming.

Enter 3 or 4 Lords.

Faire Maide ſend forth thine eye, this youthfull parcell
Of Noble Batchellors, ſtand at my beſtowing,
Ore whom both Soueraigne power, and fathers voice
I haue to vſe; thy franke election make,
Thou haſt power to chooſe, and they none to forſake.
Hel. To each of you, one faire and vertuous Miſtris;
Fall when loue pleaſe, marry to each but one.
Old Laf. I'de giue bay curtall, and his furniture
My mouth no more were broken then theſe boyes,
And writ as little beard
King. Peruſe them well:
Nor one of thoſe, but had a Noble father
She addreſſes her to a Lord.
Hel. Gentlemen, heauen hath through me, reſtor'd
the king to health.
All We vnderſtand it, and thanke heauen for you.
Hel. I am a ſimple Maide, and therein wealthieſt
That I proteſt, I ſimply am a Maide:
Pleaſe it your Maieſtie, I haue done already:
The bluſhes in my cheekes thus whiſper mee,
We bluſh that thou ſhouldſt chooſe, but be refuſed;
Let the white death ſit on thy cheeke for euer.
We'l neere come there againe.
King Make choiſe and ſee,
Who ſhuns thy loue, ſhuns all his loue in mee
Hel. Now Dian from thy Alter do I fly,
And to imperiall loue, that God moſt high
Do my ſighes ſtreame: Sir, will you heare my ſuite?
1. Lo And grant it.
Hel. Thankes ſir, all the reſt is mute
Ol. Laf. I had rather be in this choiſe, then throw Ames-ace for my life.
Hel The honor ſir that flames in your faire eyes,
Before I ſpeake too threatningly replies:
Loue make your fortunes twentie times aboue
Her that ſo wiſhes, and her humble loue.
2. Lo. No better if you pleaſe
Hel. My wiſh receiue,
Which great loue grant, and ſo I take my leaue.
Ol. Laf. Do all they deny her? And they were ſons of mine, I'de haue them whip'd, or I would ſend them to'th Turke to make Eunuches of.
Hel Be not afraid that I your hand ſhould take,
Ile neuer do you wrong for your owne ſake:
Bleſſing vpon your vowes, and in your bed
Finde fairer fortune, if you euer wed.
Old Laf. Theſe boyes are boyes of Ice, they'le none haue haue heere: ſure they are baſtards to the Engliſh, the French nere got em.

La. You are too young, too happie, and too good To make your ſelfe a ſonne out of my blood.

4. Lord. Faire one, I thinke not ſo.

Ol. Lord There's one grape yet, I am ſure thy father drunke wine. But if thou be'ſt not an aſſe, I am a youth of fourteene: I haue knowne thee already.

Hel. I dare not ſay I take you, but I giue Me and my ſeruice, ever whilſt I liue Into your guiding power: This is the man.

King. Why then young Bertram take her ſhee's thy wife.

Ber. My wife my Leige? I ſhal beſeech your highneſs In ſuch a buſines, giue me leaue to vſe The helpe of mine owne eies.

King. Know'ſt thou not Bertram what ſhee ha's done for mee?

Ber. Yes my good Lord, but neuer hope to know why I ſhould marrie her.

King. Thou know'ſt ſhee ha's rais'd me from my ſickly bed.

Ber. But followes it my Lord, to bring me downe Muſt anſwer for your raiſing? I knowe her well: Shee had her breeding at my fathers charge: A poore Phyſitians daughter my wife? Diſdaine Rather corrupt me euer.

King. Tis onely title thou diſdoin'ſt in her, the which I can build vp: ſtrange is it that our bloods Of colour, waight, and heat, pour'd all together, Would quite confound diſtinction: yet ſtands off In differences ſo mightie. If ſhe bee All that is vertuous (ſaue what thou diſlik'ſt) A poore Phyſitians daughter, thou diſlik'ſt Of vertue for the name: but doe not ſo: From loweſt place, whence vertuous things proceed, The place is dignified by th' doers deede. Where great additions ſwell's, and vertue none, It is a dropſied honour. Good alone, Is good without a name: Vileneſſe is ſo: The propertie by what is is, ſhould go, Not by the title. Shee is young, wiſe, faire, In theſe, to Nature ſhee's immediate heire: And theſe breed honour: that is honours ſcorne, Which challenges it ſelfe as honours borne, And is not like the ſire: Honours thriue, When rather from our acts we them deriue Then our fore-goers: the meere words, a ſlaue Deboſh'd on euerie tombe, on euerie graue: A lying Trophee, and as oft is dumbe, Where duſt, and damn'd oblivion is the Tombe. Of honour'd bones indeed, what ſhould be ſaide? If thou canſt like this creature, as a maide, I can create the reſt: Vertue, and ſhee Is her owne dower: Honour and wealth, from mee.

Ber. I cannot loue her, nor will ſtriue to doo't.

King. Thou wrong'ſt thy ſelfe, if thou ſhould'ſt ſtriue to chooſe.

Hel. That you are well reſtor'd my Lord, I'me glad: Let the reſt go.

King. My Honor's at the ſtake, which to defeate I muſt produce my powre. Heere, take her hand, Proud ſcornfull boy, vnworthie this good gift, That doſt in vile miſpriſion ſhackle vp My loue, and her deſert: that canſt not dreame, We poizing vs in her defectiue ſcale, Shall weigh thee to the beame: That wilt not know, It is in Vs to plant thine Honour, where We pleaſe to haue it grow. Checke thy contempt: Obey Our will, which trauailes in thy good: Beleeue not thy diſdaine, but preſentlie Do thine owne fortunes that obedient right Which both thy dutie owes, and Our power claimes, Or I will throw thee from my care for euer Into the ſtaggers, and the careleſſe lapſe Of youth and ignorance: both my reuenge and hate Looſing vpon thee, in the name of iuſtice, Without all termes of pittie. Speake, thine anſwer.

Ber. Pardon my gracious Lord: for I ſubmit My fancie to your eies, when I conſider What great creation, and what dole of honour Flies where you bid it: I finde that ſhe which late Was in my Nobler thoughts, moſt baſe: is now The praiſed of the King, who ſo ennobled, Is as 'twere borne ſo.

King. Take her by the hand, And tell her ſhe is thine: to whom I promiſe A counterpoize: If not to thy eſtate, A ballance more replete.

Ber. I take her hand.

King. Good fortune, and the fauour of the King Smile vpon this Contract: whoſe Ceremonie Shall ſeeme expedient on the now borne briefe, And be perform'd to night: the ſolemne Feaſt Shall more attend vpon the coming ſpace, Expecting abſent friends. As thou lou'ſt her, Thy loue's to me Religious: elſe, do's erre. Exeunt

Parolles and Lafew ſtay behind, commenting of this wedding.

Laf. Do you heare Monſieur? A word with you.

Par. Your pleaſure ſir.

Laf. Your Lord and Maſter did well to make his recantation.

Par. Recantation? My Lord? my Maſter?

Laf. Ia is it not a Language I ſpeake?

Par. A moſt harſh one, and not to be vnderſtood without bloudie ſucceeding. My Maſter?

Laf. Are you Companion to the Count Roſſillion?

Par. To any Count, to all Counts: to what is man.

Laf. To what is Counts man: Counts maiſter is of another ſtile.

Par. You are too old ſir: Let it ſatisfie you, you are too old.

Laf. I muſt tell thee ſirrah, I write Man; to which title age cannot bring thee.

Par. What I dare too well do, I dare not do.

Laf. I did thinke thee for two ordinaries: to be a prettie wiſe fellow, thou didſt make tollerable vent of thy trauell, it might paſſe: yet the ſcarfes and the bannerets about thee, did manifeſtlie diſſwade me from believing thee a veſſell of too great a burthen. I haue now ſound thee, when I loſe thee againe, I care not: yet am thou good for nothing but taking vp, and that th' out ſcarce worth.

Par. Hadſt thou not the priuiledge of Antiquity vpon thee.

Laf. Do not plundge thy ſelfe too farre in anger, leſt thou haſten thy triall: which if, Lord haue mercie on thee for a hen, ſo my good window of Lettice fare thee well, thy caſement I needs not open, for I looke through thee. Giue me thy hand.

Par. My Lord, you giue me moſt egregious indignity.

Laf.

rith all my heart, and thou art worthy of it.
aue not my Lord deſerv'd it.
good faith, ev'ry dramme of it, and I will ee a ſcruple.
ell, I ſhall be wiſer.
as ſoone as thou can'ſt, for thou haſt to pull a'th contrarie. If euer thou bee'ſt bound ſe and beaten, thou ſhalt finde what it is to be y bondage, I haue a deſire to holde my ac-with thee, or rather my knowledge, that I the default, be it a man I know.
y Lord you do me moſt inſupportable vexati-ould it were hell paines for thy ſake, and my g eternall: for doing I am paſt, as I will by ue motion age will giue me leaue. Exit.

ell, thou haſt a ſonne ſhall take this diſgrace way, old, filthy, ſcuruy Lord: Well, I muſt
, there is no fettering of authority. Ile beate
y life) if I can meete him with any conuenie were double and double a Lord. Ile haue ieue of his age then I would haue of——Ile
, and if I could but meet him agen.

Enter Lafeu.

rra, your Lord and maſters married, there's you: you haue a new Miſtris.
moſt vnfainedly beſeech your Lordſhippe to e reſeruation of your wrongs. He is my good om I ſerue aboue is my maſter.
Who? God.
ſir.
The deuill it is, that's thy maſter. Why doeſt es vp thy armes a this faſhion? Doſt make hoſe ues? Do other ſeruants ſo? Thou wert beſt ſet t part where thy noſe ſtands. By mine Honor, but two houres yonger, I'de beate thee: me-how art a generall offence, and euery man ſhold
e: I thinke thou waſt created for men to breath es vpon thee.
I his is hard and vnderſerued meaſure my Lord.
Go too ſir, you were beaten in Italy for picking oute of a Pomgranat, you are a vagabond, and rauailer: you are more ſawcie with Lordes and ble perſonages, then the Commiſſion of your t vertue giues you Heraldry. You are not worth word, elſe I'de call you knaue. I leaue you.
Exit

Enter Count Roſſillion.

Good, very good, it is ſo then: good, very t it be conceal'd awhile.
Vndone, and forfeited to cares for euer.
What's the matter ſweet-heart?
I. Although before the ſolemne Prieſt I haue
I will not bed her.
What? what ſweet heart?
O my Parrolles, they haue married me:
e Toſcane warres, and neuer bed her France is a dog-hole, and it no more merits, ad of a mans foot: too'th warres.
There's letters from my mother: What th'im-
I know not yet.
I that would be knowne: too'th warres my boy,
warres:
He weares his honor in a boxe vnſeene,
That hugges his kickie wickie heare at home,
Spending his manlie marrow in her armes
Which ſhould ſuſtaine the bound and high curuet
Of Marſes fierie ſteed: to other Regions,
France is a ſtable, wee that dwell in't Iades,
Therefore too'th warre.
Ros. It ſhall be ſo, Ile ſend her to my houſe,
Acquaint my mother with my hate to her,
And wherefore I am fled: Write to the King
That which I durſt not ſpeake. His preſent gift
Shall furniſh me to thoſe Italian fields
Where noble fellowes ſtrike: Warres is no ſtrife
To the darke houſe, and the detected wife.
Par. Will this Capritchio hold in thee, art ſure?
Ros. Go with me to my chamber, and aduiſe me.
Ile ſend her ſtraight away: To morrow,
Ile to the warres, ſhe to her ſingle ſorrow.
Par. Why theſe balls bound, there's noiſe in it. Tis hard
A yong man married, is a man that's mard:
Therefore away, and leaue her bravely: go,
The King has done you wrong: but hush'tis ſo. Exit

Enter Helena and Clowne.

Hel. My mother greets me kindly, is ſhe well?
Clo. She is not well, but yet ſhe has her health, ſhe's very merrie, but yet ſhe is not well: but thankes be giuen ſhe's very well, and wants nothing i'th world: but yet ſhe is not well.
Hel. If ſhe be verie wel, what do's ſhe ayle, that ſhe's not verie well?
Clo. Truly ſhe's very well indeed, but for two things.
Hel. What two things?
Clo. One, that ſhe's not in heauen, whether God ſend her quickly: the other, that ſhe's in earth, from whence God ſend her quickly.

Enter Parolles.

Par. Bleſſe you my fortunate Ladie.
Hel. I hope ſir I haue your good will to haue mine owne good fortune.
Par. You had my prayers to leade them on, and to keepe them on, haue them ſtill. O my knaue, how do's my old Ladie?
Clo. So that you had her wrinkles, and I her money, I would ſhe did as you ſay.
Par. Why I ſay nothing.
Clo. Marry you are the wiſer man: for many a mans tongue ſhakes out his maſters vndoing: to ſay nothing, to do nothing, to know nothing, and to haue nothing, is to be a great part of your title, which is within a verie little of nothing.
Par. Away, th'art a knaue.
Clo. You ſhould haue ſaid ſir before a knaue, th'art a knaue, that's before me th'art a knaue: this had beene truth ſir.
Par. Go too, thou art a wittie foole, I haue found thee.
Clo. Did you finde me in your ſelfe ſir, or were you taught to finde me?
Clo. The ſearch ſir was profitable, and much Foole may you find in you, euen to the worlds pleaſure, and the encreaſe of laughter.
Par. A good knaue i'faith, and well fed.
Madam, my Lord will go awaie to night,

A verie serrious busines call's on him:
The great prerogatiue and rite of loue,
Which as your due time claimes, he do's acknowledge
But puts it off to a compell'd restraint:
Whose want, and whose delay, is strew'd with sweets
Which they distill now in the curbed time,
To make the comming houre oreflow with ioy,
And pleasure drowne the brim.
Fol. What's his will else?
Par. That you will take your instant leaue o'th king,
And make this haste as your owne good proceeding,
Strengthned with what Apologie you thinke
May make it probable neede.
Hel. What more commands hee?
Par. That hauing this obtain'd, you presentlie
Attend his further pleasure.
Hel. In euery thing I waite vpon his will.
Par. I shall report it so. Exit Par.
Hell. I pray you come sirrah. Exit

Enter Lafew and Bertram.

Laf. But I hope your Lordshippe thinkes not him a souldier.
Ber. Yes my Lord and of verie valiant approofe.
Laf. You haue it from his owne deliuerance.
Ber. And by other warranted testimonie.
Laf. Then my Diall goes not true, I tooke this Lake for's bunting.
Ber. I do assure you my Lord he is very great in knowledge, and accordinglie valiant.
Laf. I haue then sinn'd against his experience, and transgrest against his valour, and my state that way is dangerous, since I cannot yet find in my heart to repent: Heere he comes, I pray you make vs freinds, I will pursue the amitie.

Enter Parolles.

Par. These things shall be done sir.
Laf. Pray you sir whose his Tailor?
Par. Sir?
Laf. O I know him well, I sir, hee sirs a good workeman, a verie good Tailor.
Ber. Is shee gone to the king?
Par. Shee is.
Ber. Will shee away to night?
Par. As you'le haue her.
Ber. I haue writ my letters, casketted my treasure, Giuen order for our horses, and to night,
When I should take possession of the Bride,
And ere I doe begin.
Laf. A good Traueller is something at the latter end of a dinner, but one that lies three thirds, and vses a known truth to passe a thousand nothings with, should bee once hard, and thrice beaten. God saue you Captaine.
Ber. Is there any vnkindnes betweene my Lord and you Monsieur?
Par. I know not how I haue deserued to run into my Lords displeasure.
Laf. You haue made shift to run into't, boottes and sporres and all: like him that leapt into the Custard, and out of it you'le runne againe, rather then suffer question for your residence.
Ber. It may bee you haue mistaken him my Lord.
Laf. And shall doe so euer, though I tooke him at's prayers. Fare you well my Lord, and beleeue this of me, there can be no kernell in this light Nut: the soule of this man is his cloathes: Trust him not in matter of heauie consequence: I haue kept of them tame, & know their natures. Farewell Mon Seur, I haue spoken better of you, then you haue or will to deserue at my hand, but we must do good against euill.
Par. An idle Lord, I sweare.
Ber. I thinke so.
Par. Why do you not know him?
Ber. Yes, I do know him well, and common speech Giues him a worthy passe. Heere comes my clog

Enter Helena.

Hel. I haue sir as I was commanded from you
Spoke with the King, and haue procur'd his leaue
For present parting, onely he desires
Some priuate speech with you.
Ber. I shall obey his will.
You must not meruaile Helen at my course,
Which holds not colour with the time, nor does
The ministration, and required office
On my particular. Prepar'd I was not
For such a businesse, therefore am I found
So much vnfeteled: This drines me to intreate you,
That presently you take your way for home,
And rather muse then aske why I intreate you,
For my respects are better then they seeme,
And my appointments haue in them a neede
Greater then shewes it selfe at the first view,
To you that know them not. This to my mother,
'Twill be two dsies ere I shall see you, so
I leaue you to your wisedome.
Hel. Sir, I can nothing say,
But that I am your most obedient seruant.
Ber. Come, come, no more of that.
Hel. And euer shall
With true obseruance seeke to eeke out that Wherein toward me my homely starres haue fail'd
To equall my great fortune.
Ber. Let that go: my haste is verie great. Farwell: Hie home.
Hel. Pray sir your pardon.
Ber. Well, what would you say?
Hel. I am not worthie of the wealth I owe,
Nor dare I say 'tis mine: and yet it is,
But like a timorous theefe, most faine would steale
What law does vouch mine owne.
Ber. What would you haue?
Hel. Something, and scarse so much: nothing indeed,
I would not tell you what I would my Lord: Faith yet,
Strangers and foes do sunder, and not kisse.
Ber. I pray you stay not, but in haste to horse.
Hel. I shall not breake your bidding, good my Lord.
Where are my other men? Monsieur, farwell. Exit
Ber. Go thou toward home, where I will neuer come,
Whilst I can shake my sword, or heare the drumme:
Away, and for our flight.
Par. Brauely, Coragio.

Actus Tertius.

Flourish. Enter the Duke of Florence, the two Frenchmen, with a troope of Souldiers.

Duke. So that from point to point, now haue you heard

The

…mmentall reaſons of this warre,
…reat deciſion hath much blood let forth
…e thirſts after.
… Holy ſeemes the quarrell
…r Graces part: blacke and fearefull
…poſer.
Therefore we meruaile much our Cofin France
…s ſo iuſt a buſineſſe, ſhut his boſome
…our borrowing prayers.
… E. Good my Lord,
…ons of our ſtate I cannot yeelde,
…e common and an outward man,
… great figure of a Counſaile frames,
…eable motion, therefore dare not
…, I thinke of it, ſince I haue found
…n my incercaine grounds to faile,
…at I gueſt.
… Be it his pleaſure.
…. But I am ſure the yonger of our nature,
…ſet on their eaſe, will day by day
…eere for Phyſicke.
… Welcome ſhall they bee:
…the honors that can flye from vs,
… them ſettle: you know your places well,
…etter fall, for your auailes they fell,
…orw to'th the field. Flouriſh.

Enter Counteſſe and Clowne.

…It hath happen'd all, as I would haue had it, ſaue
…comes not along with her.
… By my troth I take my young Lord to be a ve…ry melly man.
…r. By what obſeruance I pray you.
… Why he will looke vppon his boote, and ſing:
…ue Ruffe and ſing, aske queſtions and ſing, picke
…h, and ſing: I know a man that had this tricke of
…melly bold a goodly Manour for a ſong.
… Let me ſee what he writes, and when he meanes
…e.
…. I haue no minde to Iſbell ſince I was at Court.
… Lings, and our Iſbels a'th Country, are nothing
…ur old Ling and your Iſbels a'th Court: the braines
…Cupid's knock'd out, and I beginne to loue, as an
…n louer may, with no ſtomacke.
… What haue we heere?
In that you haue there. exit

A Letter.

…ue you a daughter-in-Law, ſhee hath recouered the …g, and vndone me: I haue wedded her, not bedded her, …ourne to make the not eternall. You ſhall heare I am …y away, know it before the report come. If there bee …h enough in the world, I will hold a long diſtance. My …e to you. Your vnfortunate ſonne, Bertram.

…s not well raſh and vnbridled boy,
…e the fauours of ſo good a King,
…ck his indignation on thy head,
…miniſhing of a Maide too vertuous
…e contempt of Empire.

Enter Clowne.

…. O Madam, yonder is heauie newes within be-
…e two ſouldiers, and my yong Ladie.
… What is the matter.
… Nay there is ſome comfort in the newes, ſome
…rt, your ſonne will not be kild ſo ſoone as I thoght
…uld.

La. Why ſhould he be kil'd?

Clo. So ſay I Madame, if he runne away, as I heare he does, the danger is in ſtanding too't, that's the loſſe of men, though it be the getting of children. Heere they come will tell you more. For my part I only heare your ſonne was run away.

Enter Helen and two Gentlemen.

French E. Saue you good Madam.

Hel. Madam, my Lord is gone, for euer gone.

French G. Do not ſay ſo.

La. Thinke vpon patience, pray you Gentlemen,
I haue felt ſo many quirkes of ioy and greefe,
That the firſt face of neither on the ſtare
Can woman me vnto't. Where is my ſonne I pray you

Fren. G. Madam he's gone to ſerue the Duke of Florence,
We met him thitherward, for thence we came:
And after ſome diſpatch in hand at Court,
Thither we bend againe.

Hel. Looke on his Letter Madam, here's my Paſport.

When thou canſt get the Ring vpon my finger, which neuer ſhall come off, and ſhew me a childe begotten of thy bodie, that I am father too, then call me husband: but in ſuch a(then) I write a Neuer.

This is a dreadfull ſentence.

La. Brought you this Letter Gentlemen?

1. G. I Madam, and for the Contents ſake are ſorrie for our paines.

Old La. I prethee Ladie haue a better cheere,
If thou engroſſeſt, all the greefes are thine,
Thou robſt me of a moity: He was my ſonne,
But I do waſh his name out of my blood,
And thou art all my childe. Towards Florence is he?

Fren. G. I Madam.

La. And to be a ſouldier.

Fren. G. Such is his noble purpoſe, and beleeu't
The Duke will lay vpon him all the honor
That good conuenience claimes.

La. Returne you thither.

Fren. E. I Madam, with the ſwifteſt wing of ſpeed.

Hel. Till I haue no wife, I haue nothing in France,
Tis bitter.

La. Finde you that there?

Hel. I Madame.

Fren. E. 'Tis but the boldneſſe of his hand haply, which is heart was not conſenting too.

Lad. Nothing in France, vntill he haue no wife:
There's nothing heere that is too good for him
But onely ſhe, and ſhe deſerues a Lord
That twenty ſuch rude boyes might tend vpon,
And call her hourely Miſtris. Who was with him?

Fren. E. A ſeruant onely, and a Gentleman: which I haue ſometime knowne.

La. Parolles was it not?

Fren. E. I my good Ladie, hee.

La. A verie tainted fellow, and full of wickednes,
My ſonne corrupts a well deriued nature
With his inducement.

Fren. E. Indeed good Ladie the fellow has a deale of that, too much, which holds him much to haue.

La. Y'are welcome Gentlemen, I will intreate you when you ſee my ſonne, to tell him that his ſword can neuer winne the honor that he looſes: more I'le intreate

you

you written to beare along.

Fren.G. We ſerue you Madam in that and all your worthieſt affaires.

La. Not ſo, but as we change our courteſies, Will you draw neere? Exit.

Hel. Till I haue no wife I haue nothing in France. Nothing in France vntill he has no wife: Thou ſhalt haue none Roſſillion, none in France, Then haſt thou all againe: poore Lord, is't I That chaſe thee from thy Countrie, and expoſe Thoſe tender limbes of thine, to the euent Of the none-ſparing warre? And is it I, That driue thee from the ſportiue Court, where thou Was't ſhot at with faire eyes, to be the marke Of ſmoakie Muskets? O you leaden meſſengers, That ride vpon the violent ſpeede of fire. Fly with falſe aymе, moue the ſtill-peering aire That ſings with piercing, do not touch my Lord: Who euer ſhoots at him, I ſet him there. Who euer charges on his forward breſt I am the Caitiffe that do hold him too't, And though I kill him not, I am the cauſe His death was ſo effected: Better 'twere I met the rauine Lyon when he roar'd With ſharpe conſtrainе of hunger: better 'twere, That all the miſeries which nature owes Were mine at once. No come thou home Roſſillion, Whence honor but of danger winnes a ſcarre, As oft it looſes all. I will be gone: My being heere it is, that holds thee hence, Shall I ſtay heere to doo't? No, no, although The ayre of Paradiſe did fan the houſe, And Angles offic'd all: I will be gone, That pittifull rumour may report my flight To conſolate thine eare. Come night, end day, For with the darke (poore theefe) Ile ſteale away. Exit.

Flouriſh. Enter the Duke of Florence, Roſſillion, drum and trumpets, ſoldiers, Parrolles.

Duke. The Generall of our horſe thou art, and we Great in our hope, lay our beſt loue and credence Vpon thy promiſing fortune.

Ber. Sir it is A charge too heauy for my ſtrength, but yet We'l ſtriue to beare it for your worthy ſake, To th'extreme edge of hazard.

Duke. Then go thou forth, And fortune play vpon thy proſperous helme As thy auſpicious miſtris.

Ber. This very day Great Mars I put my ſelfe into thy file, Make me but like my thoughts, and I ſhall proue A louer of thy drumme, hater of loue. Exeunt omnes

Enter Countеſſe & Steward.

La. Alas! and would you take the letter of her: Might you not know ſhe would do, as ſhe has done, By ſending me a Letter. Reade it agen.

Letter.

I am S. Iaques Pylgrim, thither gone:
Ambition loue hath ſo in me offended,
That bare-foot plod I the cold ground vpon
With ſainted vow my faults to haue amended.
Write, write, that from the bloodie courſe of warre
My deareſt Maſter your deare ſonne, may hie,
Bleſſe him at home in peace. Whilſt I from farre,
His name with zealous fervour ſanctifie:
His taken labours bid him me forgiue:
I his deſpightfull Ioue ſent him forth,
From Courtly friends, with Camping foes to liue,
Where death and danger dogs the heeles of worth.
He is too good and faire for death, and me,
Whom I my ſelfe embrace to ſet him free.

Ah what ſharpe ſtings are in her mildeſt words? Rynaldo, you did neuer lacke aduice ſo much, As letting her paſſe ſo: had I ſpoke with her, I could haue well diuerted her intents, Which thus ſhe hath preuented.

Ste. Pardon me Madam, If I had giuen you this at ouer-night, She might haue beene ore-tane: and yet ſhe writes Purſuite would be but vaine.

La. What Angell ſhall Bleſſe this vnworthy husband, he cannot thriue, Vnleſſe her prayers, whom heauen delights to heare And loues to grant, repreeue him from the wrath Of greateſt Iuſtice. Write, write Rynaldo, To this vnworthy husband of his wife, Let euerie word weigh heauie of her worth, That he does weigh too light: my greateſt greefe, Though little he do feele it, ſet downe ſharpely. Diſpatch the moſt conuenient meſſenger, When haply he ſhall heare that ſhe is gone, He will returne, and hope I may that ſhee Hearing ſo much, will ſpeede her foote againe, Led hither by pure loue: which of them both Is deereſt to me, I haue no skill in ſence To make diſtinction. prouide this Meſſenger: My heart is heauie, and mine age is weake, Greefe would haue teares, and ſorrow bids me ſpeake. Exeunt.

A Tucket afarre off

Enter old Widdow of Florence, her daughter, Violenta and Mariana, with other Citizens.

Widdow. Nay come, For if they do approach the City. We ſhall looſe all the ſight.

Diana. They ſay, the French Count has done Moſt honourable ſeruice.

Wid. It is reported, That he has taken their great'ſt Commander. And that with his owne hand he ſlew The Dukes brother: we haue loſt our labour, They are gone a contrarie way: harke, you may know by their Trumpets.

Maria. Come lets returne againe, And ſuffice our ſelues with the report of it Well Diana, take heed of this French Earle, The honor of a Maide is her name, And no Legacie is ſo rich As honeſtie.

Widdow I haue told my neighbour How you haue beene ſolicited by a Gentleman His Companion.

Mar.

Mord. I know that knaue, hang him, one Parolles, a filthy Officer he is in thoſe ſuggeſtions for the young Earle, beware of them Diana; their promiſes, enticements, oathes, tokens, and all theſe engines of luſt, are not the things they go vnder: many a maide hath beene ſeduced by them, and the miſerie is example, that ſo terrible ſhewes in the wracke of maiden-hood, cannot for all that diſſwade ſucceſſion, but that they are limed with the twigges that threatens them. I hope I needs not to aduiſe you further, but I hope your owne grace will keepe you where you are, though there were no further danger knowne, but the modeſtie which is ſo loſt.

Dia. You ſhall not needs to feare me.

Enter Helen.

Wid. I hope ſo: looke here comes a pilgrim, I know ſhe will lye at my houſe, thither they ſend one another, Ile queſtion her. God ſaue you pilgrim, whether are bound?

Hel. To S. Iaques le grand.
Where do the Palmers lodge, I do beſeech you?

Wid. At the S. Frances heere beſide the Port.

Hel. Is this the way? A march afarre.

Wid. I marrie ift. Harke you, they come this way: If you will tarrie holy Pilgrime
But till the troopes come by,
I will conduct you where you ſhall be lodg'd,
The rather for I thinke I know your hoſteſſe
As ample as my ſelfe.

Hel. Is it your ſelfe?

Wid. If you ſhall pleaſe ſo Pilgrime.

Hel. I thanke you, and will ſtay vpon your leiſure.

Wid. you came I thinke from France?

Hel. I did ſo.

Wid. Heere you ſhall ſee a Countriman of yours That has done worthy ſeruice.

Hel. His name I pray you?

Dia. The Count Roſſilion: know you ſuch a one?

Hel. But by the eare that heares moſt nobly of him: His face I know not.

Dia. What ſomere he is
He's brauely taken heere. He ſtole from France
As 'tis reported: for the King had married him
Againſt his liking. Thinke you it is ſo?

Hel. I ſurely meane the truth, I know his Lady.

Dia. There is a Gentleman that ſerues the Count, Reports but coorſely of her.

Hel. What's his name?

Dia. Monſieur Parrolles.

Hel. Oh I beleeue with him,
In argument of praiſe, or to the worth
Of the great Count himſelfe, ſhe is too meane
To haue her name repeated, all her deſeruing
Is a reſerued honeſtie, and that I haue not heard examin'd.

Dian. Alas poore Ladie,
'Tis a hard bondage to become the wife
Of a deteſting Lord.

Wid. I write good creature, whereſoere ſhe is,
Her hart weighes ſadly: this yong maid might do her
A ſhrewd turne if ſhe pleas'd.

Hel. How do you meane?
May be the amorous Count ſolicites her
In the vnlawfull purpoſe.

Wid. He does indeede,
And broakes with all that can in ſuch a ſuite
Corrupt the tender honour of a Maide:
But ſhe is arm'd for him, and keepes her guard
In honeſteſt defence.

Drumme and Colours.
Enter Count Roſſilion, Parrolles, and the whole Armie.

Mar. The goddes forbid elſe.

Wid. So, now they come:
That is Antonio the Dukes eldeſt ſonne,
That Eſtalus.

Hel. Which is the Frenchman?

Dia. Hee,
That with the plume, 'tis a moſt gallant fellow,
I would he lou'd his wife: if he were honeſter
He were much goodlier. Is't not a handſom Gentleman

Hel. I like him well.

Di 'Tis pitty he is not honeſt: yonds that ſame knaue
That leades him to theſe places: were I his Ladie,
I would poiſon that vile Raſcall.

Hel. Which is he?

Dia. That Iacke an-apes with ſcarfes. Why is hee melancholly?

Hel. Perchance he's hurt i'th battaile.

Par. Looſe our drum? Well.

Mar. He's ſhrewdly vext at ſomething. Looke he has ſpyed vs.

Wid. Marrie hang you.

Mar. And your curteſie, for a ring-carrier. Exit.

Wid. The troope is paſt: Come pilgrim, I will bring you, Where you ſhall hoſt: Of inioyn'd penitents
There's foure or fiue, to great S. Iaques bound,
Alreadie at my houſe.

Hel. I humbly thanke you:
Pleaſe it this Matron, and this gentle Maide
To eate with vs to night, the charge and thanking Shall be for me, and to requite you further,
I will beſtow ſome precepts of this Virgin.
Worthy the note.

Both. We'l take your offer kindly. Exeunt.

Enter Count Roſſilion and the Frenchmen, as at firſt.

Cap.E. Nay good my Lord put him too't: let him haue his way.

Cap.G. If your Lordſhippe finde him not a Hilding, hold me no more in your reſpect.

Cap.E. On my life my Lord a bubble.

Ber. Do you thinke I am ſo farre
Deceiued in him.

Cap.E. Beleeue it my Lord, in mine owne direct knowledge, without any malice, but to ſpeake of him as my kinſman, hee's a moſt notable Coward, an infinite and endleſſe Lyar, an hourely promiſe-breaker, the owner of no one good qualitie worthy your Lordſhips entertainment.

Cap G. It were fit you knew him, leaſt repoſing too farre in his vertue which he hath not, he might at ſome great and truſtie buſineſſe, in a maine daunger, fayle you.

Ber. I would I knew in what particular action to try him.

Cap. G. None better then to let him fetch off his drumme, which you heare him ſo confidently vndertake to do.

C.E. I with a troop of Florentines wil ſodainly ſurprize prize him; such I will haue whom I am sure he knowes not from the enemie: wee will binde and hoodwinke him so, that he shall suppose no other but that he is carried into the Leager of the aduersaries, when we bring him to our owne tents: be but your Lordship present at his examination, if he do not for the promise of his life, and in the highest compulsion of base feare, offer to betray you, and deliuer all the intelligence in his power against you, and that with the diuine forfeite of his soule vpon oath, neuer trust my iudgement in anie thing.

Cap.G. O for the loue of laughter, let him fetch his drumme, he sayes he has a stratagem for't: when your Lordship sees the bottome of this successe in't, and to what mettle this counterfeyt lump of ours will be melted if you giue him not Iohn drummes entertainement, your inclining cannot be removed. Heere he comes.

Enter Parrolles.

Cap.E. O for the loue of laughter hinder not the honor of his design, let him fetch off his drumme in any hand.

Ber. How now Monsieur? This drumme sticks sorely in your disposition.

Cap.G. A pox on't, let it go, 'tis but a drumme.

Par. But a drumme: Is but a drumme? A drum so lost. There was excellent command, to charge in with our horse vpon our owne wings, and to rend our owne soulditers.

Cap.G. That was not to be blam'd in the command of the seruice: it was a disaster of warre that Cæsar him selfe could not haue preuented, if he had beene there to command.

Ber. Well, wee cannot greatly condemne our successe: some dishonor we had in the losse of that drum, but it is not to be recouered.

Par. It might haue beene recouered.

Ber. It might, but it is not now.

Par. It is to be recouered, but that the merit of seruice is seldome attributed to the true and exact performer, I would haue that drumme or another, or hic iacet.

Ber. Why if you haue a stomacke, too't Monsieur: if you thinke your mysterie in stratagem, can bring this instrument of honour againe into his native quarter, be magnanimious in the enterprize and go on, I wil grace the attempt for a worthy exploit: if you speede well in it, the Duke shall both speake of it, and extend to you what further becomes his greatnesse, euen to the vtmost syllable of your worthinesse.

Par. By the hand of a souldier I will vndertake it.

Ber. But you must not now slumber in it.

Par. Ile about it this euening, and I will presently pen downe my dilemma's, encourage my selfe in my certaintie, put my selfe into my mortall preparation and by midnight looke to heare further from me.

Ber. May I bee bold to acquaint his grace you are gone about it.

Par. I know not what the successe wil be my Lord, but the attempt I vow.

Ber. I know th'art valiant,
And to the possibility of thy souldiership,
Will subscribe for thee: Farewell.

Par. I loue not many words. Exit

Cap.E. No more then a fish loues water. Is not this a strange fellow my Lord, that so confidently seemes to vndertake this businesse, which he knowes is not to be done, damnes himselfe to do, & dares better be damn'd then to doo't.

Cap.G. You do not know him my Lord as we doe, certaine it is that he will steale himselfe into a mans fauour, and for a weeke escape a great deale of discouries, but when you finde him out, you haue him euer after.

Ber. Why do you thinke he will make no deede at all of this that so seriously he doores addresse himselfe vnto?

Cap.E. None in the world, but returne with an inuention, and clap vpon you two or three probable lies: but we haue almost imbost him, you shall see his fall to night; for indeede he is not for your Lordshippes respect.

Cap.G. Weele make you some sport with the Fox ere we case him. He was first smoak'd by the old Lord Lafew, when his disguise and he is parted, tell me what a sprat you shall finde him, which you shall see this very night.

Cap.E. I must go looke my twigges,
He shall be caught.

Ber Your brother he shall go along with me.

Cap.G. As't please your Lordship, Ile leaue you.

Ber. Now will I lead you to the house, and shew you The Lasse I spoke of.

Cap.E. But you say she's honest.

Ber. That's all the fault: I spoke with her but once, And found her wondrous cold, but I sent to her By this same Coxcombe that we haue i'th winde Tokens and Letters, which she did reseud, And this is all I haue done: She's a faire creature, Will you go see her?

Cap.E. With all my heart my Lord. Exeunt

Enter Helen, and Widdow.

Hel. If you misdoubt me that I am not she,
I know not how I shall assure you further,
But I shall loose the grounds I worke vpon.

Wid. Though my estate be falne, I was well borne,
Nothing acquainted with these businesses,
And would not put my reputation now
In any staining act.

Hel. Nor would I wish you.
First giue me trust, the Count he is my husband,
And what to your sworne counsaile I haue spoken,
Is so from word to word: and then you cannot
By the good ayde that I of you shall borrow,
Erre in bestowing it.

Wid. I should beleeue you,
For you haue shew'd me that which well approues
Y'are great in fortune.

Hel. Take this purse of Gold,
And let me buy your friendly helpe thus farre,
Which I will ouer-pay, and pay againe
When I haue found it. The Count he woes your daughter,
Layes downe his wanton siedge before her beautie,
Resolues to carrie her: let her in fine consent
As we'l direct her how 'tis best to beare it:
Now his important blood will naught denie,
That she'l demand: a ring the Countie weares,
That downward hath succeeded in his house

From

to ſonne, ſome foure or fiue diſcents, t father wore it. This Ring he holds choice: yet in his idle fire, vill, it would not ſeeme too deere,
enred after
w I ſee the bottome of your purpoſe.
u ſee it lawfull then, it is no more,
r daughter ere ſhe ſeemes as wonne,
Ring; appoints him an encounter;
ers me to fill the time,
ſt chaſtly abſent. after t, Ile adde three thouſand Crownes paſt already.
ue yeelded.
daughter how ſhe ſhall perſeuer, nd plant with this decerte ſo lawfull coherent. Euery night he comes ches of all ſorts, and ſongs compos'd orthineſſe: It nothing ſteeds vs
m from our eeues, for he perſiſts lay on't.
hy then to night
our plot, which if it ſpeed, eaning in a lawfull deede;
meaning in a lawfull act,
h not ſinne, and yet a ſinfull fact.
ons it.

Actus Quartus.

ue of the Frenchmen, with ſixe or ſeuen other ſouldiers in ambuſh.

He can come no other way but by this hedge hen you ſallie vpon him, ſpeake what terrible you will: though you vnderſtand it not your ſelues: for we muſt not ſeeme to vnderſtand
e ſeeme one among vs, whom wee muſt pro-Interpreter.
ood Captaine, let me be th'Interpreter.
rt not acquainted with him? knowes he not

Ne ſir I warrant you.
ut what linſie wolſy haſt thou to ſpeake to vs

n ſuch as you ſpeake to me.
e muſt thinke vs ſome band of ſtrangers, i'th entertainment. Now he hath a ſmacke of all ng Languages: therefore we muſt euery one his owne fancie, not to know what we ſpeak him: for we ſeeme to know, is to know ſtraight
: Choughs language, gabble enough, and
gh. As for you interpreter, you muſt ſeeme
ke. But couch hoa, heere hee comes, to be-ours in a ſleepe, and then to returne & ſweare ges.

Enter Parrolles.

ne clocke: Within theſe three houres 'twill ough to goe home. What ſhall I ſay I haue ne bore a very plauſiue inuention that carries e giuen to ſmoake mee, and diſgraces haue of
'd too often at my doore: I finde my tongue
e-hardie, but my heart hath the feare of Mars before it, and of his creatures, not daring the reporn of my tongue.

Lo.E. This is the firſt truth that ere thine own tongue was guiltie of.

Par. What the diuell ſhould moue mee to vndertake the recouerie of this drumme, being not ignorant of the impoſſibility, and knowing I had no ſuch purpoſe? I muſt giue my ſelfe ſome hurts, and ſay I got them in exploit: yet ſlight ones will not carrie it. They will ſay, came you off with ſo little? And great ones I dare not giue, wherefore what's the inſtance. Tongue, I muſt put you into a Butter-womans mouth, and buy my ſelfe another of Baiazeths Mule, if you prattle mee into theſe perilles.

Lo.E. Is it poſſible he ſhould know what hee is, and be that he is.

Par. I would the cutting of my garments would ſerue the turne, or the breaking of my Spaniſh ſword.

Lo.E. We cannot afoord you ſo.

Par. Or the baring of my beard, and to ſay it was in ſtratagem.

Lo.E. 'Twould not do.

Par. Or to drowne my cloathes, and ſay I was ſtript.

Lo.E. Hardly ſerue.

Par Though I ſwore I leapt from the window of the Citadell.

Lo.E. How deepe?

Par. Thirty fadome.

Lo.E. Three great oathes would ſcarſe make that be beleeued.

Par I would I had any drumme of the enemies, I would ſweare I recouer'd it.

Lo.E. You ſhall heare one anon.

Par. A drumme now of the enemies.

Alarum within.

Lo E. Throca movoſus, cargo, cargo, cargo.

All. Cargo, cargo, cargo, villiando par corbo, cargo.

Par. O ranſome, ranſome,
Do not hide mine eyes.

Inter. Boskos thromuldo boskos.

Par I know you are the Muſkos Regiment,
And I ſhall looſe my life for want of language.
If there be heere German or Dane, Low Dutch,
Italian, or French, let him ſpeake to me,
Ile diſcouer that, which ſhal vndo the Florentine.

Int Boskos vauvado, I vnderſtand thee, & can ſpeake thy tongue. Kerelybonto ſir, betake thee to thy faith, for ſeuenteene ponyards are at thy boſome.

Par. Oh.

Inter. Oh pray, pray, pray,
Manka reuania dulche.

Lo.E. Oſcorbidulchos volivorco.

Int. The Generall is content to ſpare thee yet,
And hoodwinke as thou art, will leade thee on
To gather from thee. Haply thou mayſt informe
Something to ſaue thy life.

Par. O let me liue,
And all the ſecrets of our campe Ile ſhew,
Their force, their purpoſes: Nay, Ile ſpeake that,
Which you will wonder at.

Inter. But wilt thou faithfully?

Par If I do not, damne me.

Inter. Acordo linta.
Come on, thou are granted ſpace. Exit

A ſhort Alarum within.

L.E. Go tell the Count Roſſillion and my brother, We haue caught the woodcocke, and will keepe him Till we do heare from them. (muſled

Sol. Captaine I will.

L.E. A will betray vs all vnto our ſelues, Informe on that.

Sol. So I will ſir.

L.E. Till then Ile keepe him darke and ſafely lockt. Exit

Enter Bertram, and the Maide called Diana.

Ber. They told me that your name was Fontybell.

Dia. No my good Lord, Diana.

Ber. Titled Goddeſſe,
And worth it with addition: but faire ſoule,
In your fine frame hath loue no qualitie?
If the quicke fire of youth light not your minde,
You are no Maiden but a monument
When you are dead you ſhould be ſuch a one
As you are now: for you are cold and ſterne,
And now you ſhould be as your mother was
When your ſweet ſelfe was got.

Dia. She then was honeſt.

Ber. So ſhould you be.

Dia. No:
My mother did but dutie, ſuch (my Lord)
As you owe to your wife.

Ber. No more a'that:
I prethee do not ſtriue againſt my vowes:
I was compell'd to her, but I loue thee
By loues owne ſweet conſtraint, and will for euer
Do thee all rights of ſeruice.

Dia. So you ſerue vs
Till we ſerue you: But when you haue our Roſes,
You barely leaue our thornes to pricke our ſelues,
And mocke vs with our barenesſe.

Ber. How haue I ſworne.

Dia. 'Tis not the many oathes that makes the truth
But the plaine ſingle vow, that is vow'd true:
What is not holie, that we ſweare not by,
But take the high'ſt to witneſſe: then pray you tell me.
If I ſhould ſweare by Ioues great attributes,
I lou'd you deerely, would you beleeue my oathes,
When I did loue you ill? This has no holding
To ſweare by him whom I proteſt to loue
That I will worke againſt him. Therefore your oathes
Are words and poore conditions, but vnſeal'd
At leſt in my opinion.

Ber. Change it, change it:
Be not ſo holy cruell: Loue is holie,
And my integritie ne're, knew the craftes
That you do charge men with: Stand no more off,
But giue thy ſelfe vnto my ſicke deſires,
Who then recouers. Say thou art mine, and euer
My loue as it beginnes, ſhall ſo perſeuer.

Dia. I ſee that men make ropes in ſuch a ſcarre,
That we'l forſake our ſelues. Giue me that Ring.

Ber. Ile lend it thee my deere; but haue no power
To giue it from me.

Dia. Will you not my Lord?

Ber. It is an honour longing to our houſe,
Bequeathed downe from many Anceſtors,
Which were the greateſt obloquie i'th world,
In me to looſe. Thus your owne proper wiſedome
Brings in the Champion honor on my part,
Againſt your vaine aſſault.

Ber. Heere, take my Ring,
My houſe, mine honor, yes my life be thine,
And Ile be bid by thee.

Dia. When midnight comes, knocke at my chamber window:
Ile order take, my mother ſhall not heare.
Now will I charge you in the band of truth,
When you haue conquer'd my yet maiden-bed,
Remaine there but an houre, nor ſpeake to mee:
My reaſons are moſt ſtrong, and you ſhall know them,
When backe againe this Ring ſhall be deliuer'd:
And on your finger in the night, Ile put
Another Ring, that what in time proceeds,
May token to the future, our paſt deeds.
Adieu till then, then faile not: you haue wonne
A wife of me, though there my hope be done.

Ber. A heauen on earth I haue won by wooing thee.

Dia. For which, liue long to thank both heauen & me,
You may ſo in the end.
My mother told me iuſt how he would woo,
As if ſhe ſate in's heart. She ſayes, all men
Haue the like oathes: He had ſworne to marrie me
When his wife's dead: therfore Ile lye with him
When I am buried. Since Frenchmen are ſo braide, Marry that will, I liue and die a Maid:
Onely in this diſguiſe, I think't no ſinne,
To coſen him that would vniuſtly winne. Exit

Enter the two French Captaines, and ſome two or three Seruitours.

Cap.G. You haue not giuen him his mothers letter.

Cap.E. I haue deliu'red it an houre ſince, there is ſome thing in't that ſtings his nature: for on the reading it, he chang'd almoſt into another man.

Cap.G. He has much worthy blame laid vpon him, for ſhaking off ſo good a wife, and ſo ſweet a Lady.

Cap.E. Eſpecially, hee hath incurred the everlaſting diſpleaſure of the King, who had euen tun'd his bounty to ſing happineſſe to him. I will tell you a thing, but you ſhall let it dwell darkly with you.

Cap.G. When you haue ſpoken it 'tis dead, and I am the graue of it.

Cap.E. Hee hath peruerted a young Gentlewoman heere in Florence, of a moſt chaſte renown, & this night he fleſhes his will in the ſpoyle of her honour: hee hath giuen her his monumentall Ring, and thinkes himſelfe made in the vnchaſte compoſition.

Cap.G. Now God delay our rebellion as we are our ſelues, what things are we.

Cap.E. Meerely our owne traitours. And as in the common courſe of all treaſons, we ſtill ſee them reueale themſelues, till they attaine to their abhorr'd ends: ſo he that in this action contriues againſt his owne Nobility in his proper ſtreame, ore-flowes himſelfe.

Cap.G. Is it not meant damnable in vs, to be Trumpeters of our vnlawfull intents? We ſhall not then haue his company to night?

Cap.E. Not till after midnight: for hee is dieted to his houre

Cap.G. That approaches apace: I would gladly haue him ſee his company anathomiz'd, that hee might take

e of his owne iudgements, wherein ſo curiouſly
t this counterfeit.
E. We will not meddle with him till he come;
reſence muſt be the whip of the other.
C. In the meane time, what heare you of theſe
?
L. I heare there is an ouerture of peace.
. Nay, I aſſure you a peace concluded.
L. What will Count Roſſillion do then? Will he higher, or returne againe into France?
C. I perceiue by this demand, you are not alto-this councell.
L. Let it be forbid ſir, ſo ſhould I bee a great his act.
. Sir, his wife ſome two months ſince fledde houſe, her pretence is a pilgrimage to Saint Ia- ues; which holy vndertaking, with moſt au-Ceremonie ſhe accompliſht: and there reſiding, lemeſſe of her Nature, became as a prey to her in fine, made a groane of her laſt breath, & now in heauen.
L. How is this iuſtified?
S. The ſtronger part of it by her owne Letters, makes her ſtorie true, euen to the poynt of her er death it ſelfe, which could not be her office come: was faithfully confirm'd by the Rector lace.
E. Hath the Count all this intelligence?
G. I, and the particular confirmations, point nto, to the full arming of the verity.
L. I am heartily ſorrie that bee'l bee gladde of . How mightily ſometimes, we make vs com-our loſſes.

L. And how mightily ſome other times, wee our gaine in teares, the great dignitie that his aith here acquir'd for him, ſhall at home be ened with a ſhame as ample.
G. The webbe of our life, is of a mingled yarne, nd ill together: our vertues would bee proud, if ir whips them not, and our crimes would diſchey were not cherish'd by our vertues.

Enter a Meſſenger.

ow? Where's your maſter?
He met the Duke in the ſtreet ſir, of whom hee kes a ſolemne leaue: his Lordſhippe will next g for France. The Duke hath offered him Letcommendations to the King.
E. They ſhall bee no more then needfull there, were more then they can commend.

Enter Count Roſſillion.

They cannot be too ſweete for the Kings tarerre's his Lordſhip now. How now my Lord, aſſect midnight?
I haue to night diſpatch'd ſixteene buſineſſes, a his length a peece, by an abſtract of ſucceſſe: I ogied with the Duke, done my adieu with his buried a wife, mourn'd for her, writ to my Lather, I am returning, entertain'd my Conuoy, & me theſe maine parcels of diſpatch, affected mar needs: the laſt was the greateſt, but that I haue
ed yet.
E. If the buſineſſe bee of any difficulty, and this g your departure hence, it requires haſt of your Lordſhip.
Ber. I meane the buſineſſe is not ended, as fearing to heare of it hereafter: but ſhall we haue this dialogue betweene the Foole and the Soldiour. Come, bring forth this counterfet module, ha's deceiu'd mee, like a double-meaning Prophetier.
Cap.E. Bring him forth, ha's ſate i'th ſtockes all night
poore gallant knaue.
Ber. No matter, his heeles haue deſeru'd it, in vſur-ping his ſpurres ſo long. How does he carry himſelfe?
Cap.E. I haue told your Lordſhip alreadie: The ſtockes carrie him. But to anſwer you as you would be vnderſtood, hee weepes like a wench that had ſhed her milke, he hath confeſt himſelfe to Morgan, whom hee ſuppoſes to be a Friar, fro the time of his remembrance to this very inſtant diſaſter of his ſetting i'th ſtockes:
and what thinke you he hath confeſt?
Ber. Nothing of me, ha's a?
Cap.E. His confeſſion is taken, and it ſhall bee read to his face, if your Lordſhippe be in't, as I beleeue you are, you muſt haue the patience to heare it.

Enter Parolles with his Interpreter.

Ber. A plague vpon him, muffeld; he can ſay nothing of me: hush, hush.
Cap.G. Hoodman comes Portotartoſſa.
Inter. He calles for the tortures, what will you ſay without em.
Par. I will confeſſe what I know without conſtraint,
If ye pinch me like a Paſty, I can ſay no more.
Int. Bosko Chimurcho.
Cap. Boblibindo chicurmurco.
Int. You are a mercifull Generall: Our Generall bids you anſwer to what I ſhall aske you out of a Note.
Par. And truly, as I hope to liue.
Int. Firſt demand of him, how many horſe the Duke is ſtrong. What ſay you to that?
Par Fiue or ſixe thouſand, but very weake and vn-feruiceable: the troopes are all ſcattered, and the Commanders verie poore rogues, vpon my reputation and credit, and as I hope to liue.
Int. Shall I ſet downe your anſwer ſo?
Par. Do, Ile take the Sacrament on't, how & which way you will: all's one to him.
Ber. What a paſt-ſauing ſlaue is this?
Cap.G Y'are deceiu'd my Lord, this is Mounſieur
Parrolles the gallant militariſt, that was his owne phraſe that had the whole theoricke of warre in the knot of his ſcarfe, and the practiſe in the chape of his dagger.
Cap.E. I will neuer truſt a man againe, for keeping his ſword cleane, nor beleeue he can haue euerie thing in him, by wearing his apparrell neatly.
Int. Well, that's ſet downe.
Par. Fiue or ſix thouſand horſe I ſed, I will ſay true, or thereabouts ſet downe, for Ile ſpeake truth.
Cap.G He's very neere the truth in this.
Ber. But I con him no thankes for't in the nature he deliuers it.
Par. Poore rogues, I pray you ſay.
Int. Well, that's ſet downe.
Par. I humbly thanke you ſir, a truth's a truth, the Rogues are marualous poore.
Interp. Demand of him of what ſtrength they are a foot. What ſay you to that?
Par By my troth ſir, if I were to liue this preſent houre, I will tell true. Let me ſee, Spurio a hundred & fiftie

fifttie, Sebaſtian ſo many, Corambus ſo many, Iaques ſo many: Guiltian, Coſmo, Lodowicke, and Gratij, two hundred fifttie each: Mine owne Company, Chaſpher, Vaumond, Bentij, two hundred fifttie each: ſo that the muſter file, rotten and ſound, vppon my life amounts not to fifteene thouſand pole, halfe of the which, dare not ſhake the ſnow from off their Caſſockes, leaſt they ſhake themſelues to peeces.

Ber. What ſhall be done to him.

Cap.G. Nothing, but let him haue thankes. Demand of him my condition: and what credite I haue with the Duke.

Int. Well that's ſet downe: you ſhall demaund of him, whether one Captaine Dumaine bee i'th Campe, a Frenchman: what his reputation is with the Duke, what his valour, honeſtie, and expertneſſe in warres: or whether he thinkes it were not poſſible with well-waighing ſummes of gold to corrupt him to a reuolt. What ſay you to this? What do you know of it?

Par. I beſeech you let me anſwer to the particular of the intergatories. Demand them ſingly.

Int. Do you know this Captaine Dumaine?

Par. I know him, a was a Botchers Prentize in Paris, from whence he was whipt for getting the Shrieues fool with childe, a dumbe innocent that could not ſay him nay.

Ber. Nay, by your leaue hold your hands. though I know his braines are forfeite to the next tile that falls.

Int. Well, is this Captaine in the Duke of Florences campe?

Par. Vpon my knowledge he is, and lowſie.

Cap.G. Nay looke not ſo vpon me: we ſhall heare of your Lord anon.

Int. What is his reputation with the Duke?

Par. The Duke knowes him for no other, but a poore Officer of mine, and writ to mee this other day, to turne him out a'th band. I thinke I haue his Letter in my pocket.

Int. Marry we'll ſearch.

Par. In good ſadneſſe I do not know, either it is there, or it is vpon a file with the Dukes other Letters, in my Tent.

Int. Heere 'tis, heere's a paper, ſhall I reade it to you?

Par. I do not know if it be it or no.

Ber. Our Interpreter do's it well.

Cap.G. Excellently.

Int. Dian, the Counts a foole, and full of gold.

Par. That is not the Dukes letter ſir: that is an aduertiſement to a proper maide in Florence, one Diana, to take heede of the allurement of one Count Roſſillion, a fooliſh idle boy: but for all that very ruttiſh. I pray you. ſir put it vp againe.

Int. Nay, Ile reade it firſt by your fauour.

Par. My meaning in't, I proteſt was very honeſt in the behalfe of the maid: for I knew the young Count to be a dangerous and laſciuious boy, who is a whale to Virginity, and deuours vp all the fry it finds.

Ber. Damnable both-ſides rogue.

Int. Let. When he ſweares oathes, bid him drop gold, and take it:
After he ſcores, he neuer payes the ſcore:
Halfe won is match well made: match and well make it,
He ne're payes after-debts, take it before,
And ſay a ſouldier (Dian) told thee this:
Men are to mell with, boyes are not to kiſs.
For count of this, the Counts a Foole I know it,
hee payes before, but not when he does owe it.
Thine as he vow'd to thee in thine eare, Parolles.

Ber. He ſhall be whipt through the Armie with this rime in's forehead.

Cap.E. This is your deuoted friend ſir, the manifold Linguiſt, and the army-potent ſouldier

Ber. I could endure any thing before but a Cat, and now he's a Cat to me.

Int. I perceiue ſir by your Generals lookes, wee ſhall be faine to hang you.

Par. My life ſir in any caſe: Not that I am afraide to dye, but that my offences beeing many, I would repent out the remainder of Nature. Let me liue ſir in a dungeon, i'th ſtockes, or any where, ſo I may liue.

Int. Wee'le ſee what may bee done, ſo you confeſſe freely: therefore once more to this Captaine Dumaine: you haue anſwer'd to his reputation with the Duke, and to his valour. What is his honeſtie?

Par. He will ſteale ſir an Egge out of a Cloiſter: for rapes and raniſhments he paralels Neſſus. Hee profeſſes not keeping of oaths, in breaking 'em he is ſtronger then Hercules. He will lye ſir, with ſuch volubilitie, that you would thinke truth were a foole: drunkenneſſe is his beſt vertue, for he will be ſwine-drunke, and in his ſleepe he does little harme, ſaue to his bed-cloathes about him: but they know his conditions, and lay him in ſtraw. I haue but little more to ſay ſir of his honeſty, he has euerie thing that an honeſt man ſhould not haue; what an honeſt man ſhould haue, he has nothing.

Cap.G. I begin to loue him for this.

Ber. For this deſcription of thine honeſtie? A pox vpon him for me, he's more and more a Cat.

Int. What ſay you to his expertneſſe in warre?

Par. Faith ſir, he's led the drumme before the Engliſh Tragedians: to belye him I will not, and more of his ſouldierſhip I know not, except in that Country, he had the honour to be the Officer at a place there called Mile-end, to inſtruct for the doubling of files. I would doe the man what honour I can, but of this I am not certaine.

Cap.G. He hath out-villain'd villanie ſo farre, that the rarities redeemes him.

Ber. A pox on him, he's a Cat ſtill.

Int. His qualities being at this poore price, I need not to aſke you, if Gold will corrupt him to reuolt.

Par. Sir, for a Cardeeue he will ſell the fee-ſimple of his ſaluation, the inheritance of it, and cut th'intaile from all remainders, and a perpetuall ſucceſſion for it perpetually.

Int. What's his Brother, the other Captain Dumaine?

Cap.E. Why do's he aſke him of me?

Int. What's he?

Par. E'ne a Crow a'th ſame neſt: not altogether ſo great as the firſt in goodneſſe, but greater a great deale in euill. He excels his Brother for a coward, yet his Brother is reputed one of the beſt that is. In a retreate hee outrunnes any Lackey; marrie in comming on, hee has the Cramp.

Int. If your life be ſaued, will you vndertake to betray the Florentine.

Par. I, and the Captaine of his horſe, Count Roſſillion.

Int. Ile whiſper with the Generall, and knowe his pleaſure.

Par. Ile no more drumming, a plague of all drummes, onely to ſeeme to deſerue well, and to beguile the ſuppo-

ſition

'that lasciuious yong boy the Count, haue I run is danger: yet who would haue suspected an am-here I was taken?
There is no remedy sir, but you must dye: the ll sayes, you that haue so traitorously discouerd ets of your army, and made such pestiferous reof men very nobly held, can serue the world for est vse: therefore you must dye. Come headef-ff with his head.
. O Lord sir let me liue, or let me see my death.
. That shall you, and take your leaue of all your
.
oke about you, know you any heere?
er. Good morrow noble Captaine
E. God blesse you Captaine Parolles.
.G. God saue you noble Captaine.
.E. Captain, what greeting will you to my Lord
? I am for France.
.G. Good Captaine will you giue me a Copy of ster you writ to Diana in behalfe of the Count es, and I were not a verie Coward, I de compell ou, but farr you well Exeunt.
You are vndone Captaine all but your scarfe,
are a knot on't yet.
. Who cannot be crush'd with a plot?
er. If you could finde out a Countrie where but n were that had receiued so much shame, you begin an impudent Nation. Fare yee well sir, I t France too, we shall speake of you there. Exit
r. Yet am I thankfull: if my heart were great uld burst at this: Captaine Ile be no more, will eate, and drinke, and sleepe as soft ptaine shall. Simply the thing I am make me liue: who knowes himselfe a braggart im feare this; for it will come to passe, euery braggart shall be found an Asse.
Sword, coole blushes, and Parrolles liue
in shame: being fool'd, by foolrie thriue;
e's place and meanes for euery man aliue.
ier them Exit.

Enter Helen, Widdow, and Diana.

d. That you may well perceiue I haue not wrong'd you,
of the greatest in the Christian world be my suretie: for whose throne 'tis needfull can perfect mine intents, to kneele was, I did him a desired office
e almost as his life, which gratitude
ugh flintie Tartars bosome would peepe forth, answer thankes. I duly am inform'd, grace is at Marcelle, to which place
haue conuenient conuoy: you must know supposed dead, the Army breaking, husband hies him home, where heauen ayding,
by the leaue of my good Lord the King,
'l be before our welcome.
Wid. Gentle Madam,
neuer had a seruant to whose trust
r businesse was more welcome.
Hel. Nor your Mistris
a friend, whose thoughts more truly labour recompence your loue: Doubt not but heauen hath brought me vp to be your daughters dower,
As it hath fated her to be my motiue
And helper to a husband. But O strange men,
That can such sweet vse make of what they hate,
When sawcie trusting of the cosin'd thoughts
Defiles the pitchy night, so lust doth play
With what it loathes, for that which is away,
But more of this hereafter: you Diana,
Vnder my poore instructions yet must suffer
Something in my behalfe.
Dia. Let death and honestie
Go with your impositions, I am yours
Vpon your will to suffer.
Hel. Yet I pray you:
But with the word the time will bring on summer,
When Briars shall haue leaues as well as thornes,
And be as sweet as sharpe: we must away,
Our Wagon is prepar'd, and time reuiues vs,
All's well that ends well, still the fines the Crowne;
What ere the course, the end is the renowne. Exeunt

Enter Clowne, old Lady, and Lafew.

Laf. No, no, no, your sonne was misled with a snipt taffata fellow there, whose villanous saffron would haue made all the vnbak'd and dowy youth of a nation in his colour: your daughter-in-law had beene aliue at this houre, and your sonne heere at home, more aduanc'd by the King, then by that red-tail'd humble Bee I speak of.

La. I would I had not knowne him, it was the death of the most vertuous gentlewoman, that euer Nature had praise for creating. If she had partaken of my flesh and cost mee the dearest groanes of a mother, I could not haue owed her a more rooted loue.

Laf 'Twas a good Lady, 'twas a good Lady. Wee may picke a thousand sallets ere wee light on such another herbe.

Clo. Indeed sir she was the sweete Margerom of the sallet, or rather the herbe of grace.

Laf. They are not herbes you knaue, they are nose-herbes.

Clowne I am no great Nabuchadnezar sir, I haue not much skill in grace.

Laf. Whether doest thou professe thy selfe, a knaue or a foole?

Clo. A foole sir at a womans seruice, and a knaue at a mans.

Laf. Your distinction.

Clo. I would cousen the man of his wife, and do his seruice.

Laf. So you were a knaue at his seruice indeed.

Clo. And I would giue his wife my bauble sir to doe her seruice.

Laf. I will subscribe for thee, thou art both knaue and foole.

Clo. At your seruice.

Laf. No, no, no.

Clo. Why sir, if I cannot serue you, I can serue as great a prince as you are.

Laf. Whose that, a Frenchman?

Clo. Faith sir a has an English name, but his fisnomie is more hotter in France then there.

Laf. What prince is that?

Clo The blacke prince sir, alias the prince of darkenesse, alias the diuell.

Laf. Hold thee there's my purse, I giue thee not this to suggest thee from thy master thou talk'st off, serue him still.

Clow

Clo. I am a woodland fellow ſir, that alwaies loued a great fire, and the maſter I ſpeak of euer keeps a good fire, but ſure he is the Prince of the world, let his Nobilitie remaine in's Court. I am for the houſe with the narrow gate, which I take to be too little for pompe to enter: ſome that humble themſelues may, but the manie will be too chill and tender, and theyle bee for the flowrie way that leads to the broad gate, and the great fire.

Laf. Go thy waies, I begin to bee a wearie of thee, and I tell thee ſo before, becauſe I would not fall out with thee. Go thy wayes, let my horſes be wel look'd too without any tricks.

Clo. If I put any trickes vpon em ſir, they ſhall bee Iades trickes, which are their owne right by the law of Nature. exit

Laf. A ſhrewd knaue and an vnhappie.

Lady. So a is. My Lord that's gone made himſelfe much ſport out of him, by his authoritie hee remaines heere, which he thinkes is a patient for his ſawcineſſe, and indeede he has no pace, but runnes where he will.

Laf. I like him well, 'tis not amiſſe and I was about to tell you, ſince I heard of the good Ladies death, and that my Lord your ſonne was vpon his returne home. I moued the King my maſter to ſpeake in the behalfe of my daughter, which in the minoritie of them both, his Maieſtie out of a ſelfe gracious remembrance did firſt propoſe, his Highneſſe hath promis'd me to doe it, and to ſtoppe vp the diſpleaſure he hath conceiued againſt your ſonne, there is no fitter matter. How do's your Ladyſhip like it?

La. With verie much content my Lord, and I wiſh it happily effected.

Laf. His Highneſſe comes poſt from Marcellus, of as able bodie as when he number'd thirty, a will be heere to morrow, or I am deceiu'd by him that in ſuch intelligence hath ſeldome fail'd.

La It reioyces me, that I hope I ſhall ſee him ere I die. I haue letters that my ſonne will be heere to night: I ſhall beſeech your Lordſhip to remaine with mee, till they meete together.

Laf. Madam, I was thinking with what manners I might ſafely be admitted

Lad. You needs but pleade your honourable priuiledge.

Laf. Ladie, of that I haue made a bold charter, but I thanke my God, it holds yet.

Enter Clowne

Clo. O Madam, yonders my Lord your ſonne with a patch of veluet on's face, whether there bee a ſcar vnder't or no, the Veluet knowes, but 'tis a goodly patch of Veluet, his left cheeke is a cheeke of two pile and a halfe, but his right cheeke is worne bare.

Laf. A ſcarre nobly got,
Or a noble ſcarre, is a good liu'rie of honor.
So belike is that.

Clo. But it is your carbinado'd face

Laf. Let vs go ſee your ſonne I pray you, I long to talke
With the yong noble ſouldier.

Clowne. Faith there's a dozen of em, with delicate fine hats, and moſt courteous feathers, which bow the head, and nod at euerie man.

Exeunt

Actus Quintus.

Enter Helen, Widdow, and Diana, with two Attendants

Hel. But this exceeding poſting day and night
Muſt weare your ſpirits low, we cannot helpe it
But ſince you haue made the daies and nights as one,
To weare your gentle limbes in my affayres,
Be bold you do ſo grow in my requitall,
As nothing can vnroote you. In happie time,

Enter a gentle Aſtringer.

This man may helpe me to his Maieſties eare,
If ſhe would ſpend his power. God ſaue you ſir.

Gent. And you.

Hel. Sir, I haue ſeene you in the Court of France.

Gent. I haue beene ſometimes there.

Hel. I do preſume ſir, that you are not falne
From the report that goes vpon your goodneſſe,
And therefore goaded with moſt ſharpe occaſions,
Which lay nice manners by, I put you to
The vſe of your owne vertues, for the which
I ſhall continue thankefull.

Gent. What's your will?

Hel. That it will pleaſe you
To giue this poore petition to the King,
And ayde me with that ſtore of power you haue
To come into his preſence.

Gent. The Kings not heere.

Hel. Not heere ſir?

Gent. Not indeed,
He hence remou'd laſt night, and with more haſt
Then is his vſe.

Wid. Lord how we looſe our paines

Hel. All's well that ends well yet,
Though time ſeeme ſo aduerſe, and meanes vnfit:
I do beſeech you, whither is he gone?

Gent. Marrie as I take it to Roſſillion, Whither I am going.

Hel. I do beſeech you ſir
Since you are like to ſee the King before me,
Commend the paper to his gracious hand,
Which I preſume ſhall render you no blame,
But rather make you thanke your paines for it,
I will come after you with what good ſpeede
Our meanes will make vs meanes.

Gent. This Ile do for you

Hel. And you ſhall finde your ſelfe to be well thankt what e're falles more. We muſt to horſe againe, Go, go, prouide.

Enter Clowne and Parrolles.

Par. Good Mr Lauatch giue my Lord Lafew this letter, I haue ere now ſir beene better knowne to you, when I haue held familiaritie with freſher cloathes: but I am now ſir muddied in fortunes mood, and ſmell ſomewhat ſtrong of her ſtrong diſpleaſure.

Clo. Truely, Fortunes diſpleaſure is but ſluttiſh if a ſmell ſo ſtrongly as thou ſpeak'ſt of: I will henceforth eate no Fiſh of Fortunes butt'ring. Prethee allow the winde.

Par. Nay you needs not to ſtop your noſe ſir: I ſpake but by a Metaphor

Clo. Indeed ſir, if your Metaphor ſtinke, I will ſtop my noſe, or againſt any mans Metaphor. Prethee get thee further.

Par.

ray you ſir deliuer me this paper.
oh, prethee ſtand away: a paper from fortunes le, to giue to a Nobleman. Looke here he nſelfe.

Enter Laſeu.

eere it a purre of Fortunes ſir, or of Fortunes ot a Maſcat, that ha's falne into the vncleane of her diſpleaſure, and as he ſayes is muddied Pray you ſir, vſe the Carpe as you may, for he s a poore decayed, ingenious, fooliſh, raſcally loe pittie his diſtreſſe in my ſmiles of comfort, him to your Lordſhip.
dy Lord I am a man whom fortune hath cruel-
d.
nd what would you haue me to doe? 'Tis too re her nailes now. Wherein haue you played with fortune that ſhe ſhould ſcratch you, who e is a good Lady, and would not haue knaues g vnder? There's a Cardecue for you: Let the ake you and fortune friends; I am for other beſeech your honour to heare mee one ſingle ou begge a ſingle peny more: Come you ſhall your word.

dy name my good Lord is Parrolles.
ſou begge more then word then. Cox my paſ-me your hand: How does your drummes?
my good Lord, you were the firſt that ſound

Was I in ſooth? And I was the firſt that loſt chee. lies in you my Lord to bring me in ſome grace d bring me out.
but vpon thee knaue, doeſt thou put vpon mee
th the office of God and the diuel: one brings ace, and the other brings thee out. The Kings
I know by his Trumpets. Sirrah, inquire fur-me, I had talke of you laſt night, though you
: and a knaue, you ſhall eate, go too, follow.
praiſe God for you.

Enter King, old Lady, Laſeu, the two French Lords, with attendants.

We loſt a Iewell of her, and our eſteeme
e much poorer by it: but your ſonne, folly, lack'd the ſence to know
ation home.
'Tis paſt my Liege,
each your Maieſtie to make it
ebellion, done i'th blade of youth, le and fire, too ſtrong for reaſons force,
es it, and burnes on.
dy honour'd Lady,
gotten and forgotten all,
dy reuenges were high bent vpon him,
d the time to ſhoote.
his I muſt ſay,
begge my pardon: the yong Lord
Maieſty, his Mother, and his Ladie, mighty note; but to himſelfe.
eſt wrong of all. He loſt a wife, tuty did abboliſh the ſurney
cies: whoſe words all eares tooke captiue, ere perfection, hearts that ſcorn'd to ſerue,
Humbly call'd Miſtris.

Kin. Praiſing what is loſt,
Makes the remembrance deere. Well, call him hither,
We are reconcil'd, and the firſt view ſhall kill
All repetition: Let him not aske our pardon,
The nature of his great offence is dead,
And deeper then oblitiion, we do burie
Th'incenſing reliques of it. Let him approach
A ſtranger, no offender; and informe him
So 'tis our will he ſhould.

Gent. I ſhall my Liege.

Kin. What ſayes he to your daughter,
Haue you ſpoke?

Laf. All that he is, hath reference to your Highnes.

Kin. Then ſhall we haue a match. I haue letters ſent me, that ſets him high in fame.

Enter Count Bertram.

Laf. He lookes well on't

Kin. I am not a day of ſeaſon,
For thou maiſt ſee a ſun-ſhine, and a haile
In me at once: But to the brighteſt beames
Diſtracted clouds giue way, ſo ſtand thou forth,
The time is faire againe.

Ber. My high repented blames
Deere Soueraigne pardon to me.

Kin. All is whole,
Not one word more of the conſumed time,
Let's take the inſtant by the forward top:
For we are old, and on our quick'ſt decrees
Th'inaudible, and noiſeleſſe foot of time
Steales, ere we can effect them. You remember
The daughter of this Lord?

Ber. Admiringly my Liege, at firſt
I ſtucke my choice vpon her, ere my heart
Dar'ſt make too bold a herauld of my tongue:
Where the impreſſion of mine eye enfixing,
Contempt his ſcornfull Perſpectiue did lend me,
Which warpt the line, of euerie other fauour,
Scorn'd a faire colour, or expreſt it ſtolne,
Extended or contracted all proportions
To a moſt hideous obiect. Thence it came,
That ſhe whom all men prais'd, and whom my ſelfe,
Since I haue loſt, haue lou'd; was in mine eye
The duſt that did offend it.

Kin. Well eſcus'd:
That thou didſt loue her, ſtrikes ſome ſcores away
From the great compt: but loue that comes too late,
Like a remorſefull pardon ſlowly carried
To the great ſender, turnes a ſowre offence,
Crying, that's good that's gone: Our raſh faults,
Make triuiall price of ſerious things we haue,
Not knowing them, vntill we know their graue
Oft our diſpleaſures to our ſelues vniuſt,
Deſtroy our friends, and after weepe their duſt:
Our owne loue waking, cries to ſee what's don,e
While ſhamefull hate ſleepes out the afternoone.
Be this ſweet Helens knell, and now forget her.
Send forth your amorous token for faire Maudlin,
The maine conſents are had, and heere wee'l ſtay
To ſee our widdowers ſecond marriage day:
Which better then the firſt. O deere heauen bleſſe,
Or, ere they meete in me, O Nature ceſſe.

Laf. Come on my ſonne, in whom my houſes name
Muſt be digeſted: giue a fauour from you
To ſparkle in the ſpirits of my daughter,

That

That ſhe may quickly come. By my old beard,
And eu're haire that's on't, Helen that's dead
Was a ſweet creature: ſuch a ring as this,
The laſt that ere I tooke her leaue at Court,
I ſaw vpon her finger.
Ber. Hers it was not.
King. Now pray you let me ſee it. For mine eye,
While I was ſpeaking, oft was faſten'd too't:
This Ring was mine, and when I gaue it Helen.
I bad her if her fortunes euer ſtoode
Neceſſitied to helpe, that by this token
I would releeue her. Had you that craft to reaue her
Of what ſhould ſtead her moſt?
Ber. My gracious Soueraigne,
How ere it pleaſes you to take it ſo,
The ring was neuer hers.
Old La. Sonne, on my life
I haue ſeene her weare it, and ſhe reckon'd it
At her liues rate.
Laf. I am ſure I ſaw her weare it
Ber. You are deceiu'd my Lord, ſhe neuer ſaw it:
In Florence was it from a caſement throwne mee,
Wrap'd in a paper, which contain'd the name
Of her that threw it: Noble ſhe was, and thought
I ſtood ingag'd. but when I had ſubſcrib'd
To mine owne fortune, and inform'd her fully,
I could not anſwer in that courſe of Honour
As ſhe had made the ouerture, ſhe ceaſt
In heauie ſatisfaction, and would neuer
Receiue the Ring againe.
King. Plutus himſelfe,
That knowes the tinct and multiplying med'cine,
Hath not in natures myſterie more ſcience,
Then I haue in this Ring. Twas mine, 'twas Helens,
Who euer gaue it you: then if you know
That you are well acquainted with your ſelfe,
Confeſſe 'twas hers, and by what rough enforcement
You got it from her. She call'd the Saints to ſurceue,
That ſhe would neuer put it from her finger,
Vnleſſe ſhe gaue it to your ſelfe in bed,
Where you haue neuer come: or ſent it vs
Vpon her great diſaſter.
Ber. She neuer ſaw it.
King. Thou ſpeak'ſt it falſely: as I loue mine Honor,
And mak'ſt conſtruall feares to come into me,
Which I would faine ſh it out, if it ſhould proue
That thou are ſo inhumane, 'twill not proue ſo:
And yet I know not, thou didſt hate her deadly,
And ſhe is dead, which nothing but to cloſe
Her eyes my ſelfe, could win me to beleeue,
More then to ſee this Ring. Take him away,
My fore-paſt proofes, how ere the matter fall
Shall taze my feares of little vanitie,
Hauing vainly fear'd too little. Away with him,
We'l ſift this matter further.
Ber. If you ſhall proue
This Ring was euer hers, you ſhall as eaſie
Proue that I husbanded her bed in Florence,
Where yet ſhe neuer was

Enter a Gentleman.

King. I am wrap'd in diſmall thinkings.
Gen. Gracious Soueraigne,
Whether I haue beene too blame or no, I know not,
Here's a petition from a Florentine,
Who hath for foure or fiue removes come ſhort,
To tender it her ſelfe. I vndertooke it,
Vanquiſh'd thereto by the faire grace and ſpeech
Of the poore ſuppliant, who by this I know
Is heere attending: her buſineſſe lookes in her
With an importing viſage, and ſhe told me
In a ſweet verball breefe, it did concerne
Your Highneſſe with her ſelfe.

A Letter

Vpon his many proteſtations to marrie me when his wife was dead, I bluſh to ſay it, he won me. Now is the Count Roſſilion a Widdower, his vowes are forfeited to me, and my honors payed to him. Hee ſtole from Florence, taking no leaue, and I follow him to his Countrey for Iuſtice: Grant it me, O King, in you it beſt lies, otherwiſe a ſeduced Maid is vndone.

Diana Capilet.

Laf. I will buy me a ſonne in Law in a faire, and toule for this. Ile none of him.
King. The heauens haue thought well on thee Lafew,
To bring forth this diſcou'rie, ſeeke theſe ſuitors:
Go ſpeedily, and bring againe the Count.

Enter Bertram.

I am a-feard the life of Helen (Ladie)
Was ſowly ſnatcht.
Old La. Now iuſtice on the doers
King. I wonder ſir, ſir, wiues are monſters to you,
And that you flye them as you ſweare them Lordſhip,
Yet you deſire to marry. What woman's that?

Enter Widdow, Diana, and Parrokes.

Dia. I am my Lord a wretched Florentine,
Deriued from the ancient Capilet,
My ſuite as I do vnderſtand you know,
And therefore know how farre I may be pittied
Wid. I am her Mother ſir, whoſe age and honour
Both ſuffer vnder this complaint we bring,
And both ſhall ceaſe, without your remedie.
King. Come hether Count, do you know theſe Women?
Ber. My Lord, I neither can nor will denie,
But that I know them, do they charge me further?
Dia. Why do you looke ſo ſtrange vpon your wife?
Ber. She's none of mine my Lord.
Dia. If you ſhall marrie
You giue away this hand, and that is mine,
You giue away heauens vowes, and thoſe are mine
You giue away my ſelfe, which is knowne mine:
For I by vow am ſo embodied yours,
That ſhe which marries you, muſt marrie me,
Either both or none.
Laf. your reputation comes too ſhort for my daughter, you are no husband for her.
Ber. My Lord, this is a fond and deſp rate creature,
Whom ſometime I haue laugh'd with: Let your highneſs
Lay a more noble thought vpon mine honour,
Then for to thinke that I would ſinke it heere.
King. Sir for my thoughts, you haue them ill to friend,
Till your deeds gaine them fairer: proue your honor,
Then in my thought it lies.
Dian. Good my Lord,
Aske him vpon his oath, if hee do's thinke
He had not my virginity.
King. What ſaiſt thou to her?
Ber. She's impudent my Lord,
And was a common gameſter to the Campe.
Dia. He do's me wrong my Lord: If I were ſo,
He might haue bought me at a common price.

ceiue him. O behold this Ring,
h reſpect and ſuch validitie Paralell: yet for all that e a Commoner a'th Campe

le bluſhes, and 'tis hit:
ceding Anceſtors, that Iemme
r teſtament to th' ſequent iſſue ne owed and worne. This is his wife, s a thouſand proofes
ſe thought you ſaide
e heere in Court could witneſſe it.
lid my Lord, but loath am to produce nſtrument, his names Parrolles ew the man to day, if man he bee.
ide him, and bring him hether hat of him:
l for a moſt perfidious ſlaue
e ſpots a'th world, taxt and deboſh'd, are ſickens: but to ſpeake a truth,
at or this for what he'l vtter,
eake any thing.
hath that Ring of yours
unke ſhe has; certaine it is I lyk'd her,
ed her i'th wanton way of youth
er diſtance, and did angle for mee,
y eagernes with her reſtraint, diments of fancies courſe
s of more fancie, and in fine, comming with her moderne grace,
r to her rate, ſhe got the Ring, hat which any inferiour might price haue bought.
muſt be patient.
ue turn'd off a firſt ſo noble wife,
dyet me. I pray you yet lacke vertue, I will looſe a husband) ur Ring, I will returne it home,
e mine againe.
ue it not.
hat Ring was yours I pray you?
r much like the ſame vpon your finger ow you this Ring, this Ring was his of late d this was it I gaue him being a bed.
e ſtory then goes falſe, you threw it him ſtement.
ue ſpoke the truth Enter Parolles
Lord, I do confeſſe the ring was hers.
u boggle ſhrewdly, euery feather ſtarts you man you ſpeake of?
ny Lord.
ll me ſirrah, but tell me true I charge you,
the diſpleaſure of your maiſter.
your ſuſt proceeding, Ile keepe off.
by this woman heere, what know you?
pleaſe your Maieſty, my maſter hath bin an Gentleman. Tricks he hath had in him, lemen haue.
me, come, to'th' purpoſe. Did he loue this ith ſir he did loue her, but how.

ow I pray you?
did loue her ſir, as a Gent. loues a Woman
w is that?
lou'd her ſir, and lou'd her not.
thou art a knaue and no knaue, what an equi-uocall Companion is this?

Par. I am a poore man and at your Maieſties command.
Laf. Hee's a good drumme my Lord, but a naughtie Orator.
Dia. Do you know he promiſt me marriage?
Par. Faith I know more then Ile ſpeake.
Kin. But wilt thou not ſpeake all thou know'ſt?
Par. Yes ſo pleaſe your Maieſty: I did goe betweene them as I ſaid, but more then that he loued her, for indeede he was madde for her, and talkt of Sathan, and of Limbo, and of Furies, and I know not what: yet I was in that credit with them at that time, that I knewe of their going to bed, and of other motions, as promiſing her marriage, and things which would deriue mee ill will to ſpeake of, therefore I will not ſpeake what I know.
Kin. Thou haſt ſpoken all already, vnleſſe thou canſt ſay they are maried, but thou art too fine in thy euidence, therefore ſtand aſide. This Ring you ſay was yours.
Dia. I my good Lord.
Kin. Where did you buy it? Or who gaue it you?
Dia. It was not giuen me, nor I did not buy it.
Kin. Who lent it you?
Dia. It was not lent me neither.
Kin. Where did you finde it then?
Dia. I found it not.
Kin. If it were yours by none of all theſe wayes, How could you giue it him?
Dia. I neuer gaue it him.
Laf. This womans an eaſie gloue my Lord, ſhe goes off and on at pleaſure.
Kin. This Ring was mine, I gaue it his firſt wife.
Dia. It might be yours or hers for ought I know.
Kin. Take her away, I do not like her now,
To priſon with her: and away with him,
Vnleſſe thou tell'ſt me where thou hadſt this Ring,
Thou dieſt within this houre.
Dia. Ile neuer tell you.
Kin. Take her away.
Dia. Ile put in baile my liedge.
Kin. I thinke thee now ſome common Cuſtomer
Dia. By Ioue if euer I knew man 'twas you.
King. Wherefore haſt thou accuſde him all this while.
Dia. Becauſe he's guiltie, and he is not guilty:
He knowes I am no Maid, and hee'l ſweare too't:
Ile ſweare I am a Maid, and he knowes not.
Great King I am no ſtrumpet, by my life,
I am either Maid, or elſe this old mans wife.
Kin. She does abuſe our eares, to priſon with her.
Dia. Good mother fetch my bayle. Stay Royall ſir,
The Ieweller that owes the Ring is ſent for,
And he ſhall ſurety me. But for this Lord,
Who hath abus'd me as he knowes himſelfe,
Though yet he neuer harm'd me, heere I quit him.
He knowes himſelfe my bed he hath defil'd,
And at that time he got his wife with childe:
Dead though ſhe be, ſhe feeles her yong one kicke:
So there's my riddle, one that's dead is quicke,
And now behold the meaning.

Enter Helen and Widdow.

Kin. Is there no exorciſt
Beguiles the truer Office of mine eyes?
Is't reall that I ſee?
Hel. No my good Lord,

Tis but the ſhadow of a wiſe youſee,
The name, and not the thing.

Ber. Both, both, O pardon.

Hel. Oh my good Lord, when I was like this Maid,
I found you wondrous kinde, there is your Ring,
And looke you, heeres your letter: this it ſayes,
When from my finger you can get this Ring,
And is by me with childe, &c. This is done,
Will you be mine now you are doubly wonne?

Ber. If ſhe my Liege can make me know this clearly,
Ile loue her dearely, euer, euer dearly.

Hel. If it appeare not plaine, and proue vntrue,
Deadly diuorce ſtep betweene me and you.
O my deere mother do I ſee you liuing?

Laf. Mine eyes ſmell Onions, I ſhall weepe anon:
Good Tom Drumme lend me a handkercher.
So I thanke thee, waite on me home, Ile make ſport with thee: Let thy curtſies alone, they are ſcurvy ones.

King. Let vs from point to point this ſtorie know,
To make the euen truth in pleaſure flow:
If thou beeſt yet a freſh vncropped flower,
Chooſe thou thy husband, and Ile pay thy dower.
For I can gueſſe, that by thy honeſt ayde,
Thou keptſt a wife her ſelfe, thy ſelfe a Maide
Of that and all the progreſſe more and leſſe,
Reſolueduely more leaſure ſhall expreſſe:
All yet ſeemes well, and if it end ſo meete,
The bitter paſt, more welcome is the ſweet.

Flourish.

THe Kings a Beggar, now the Play is done,
All is well ended, if this ſuite be won,
That you expreſſe Content: which we will pay,
With ſtrifes to pleaſe you, day exceeding day:
Ours be your patience then, and yours our parts,
Your gentle hands lend vs, and take our hearts. Exeunt omn.

FINIS.

Twelfe Night, Or what you will.

Actus Primus, Scæna Prima.

...ter Orsino Duke of Illyria, Curio, and other Lords.

Duke.

...Musicke be the food of Loue, play on,
... Giue me excesse of it: that surfetting,
... The appetite may sicken, and so dye.
... That straine agen, it had a dying fall:
...e ore my eare, like the sweet sound
...thes vpon a banke of Violets;
... and giuing Odour. Enough, no more,
...o sweet now, as it was before.
...f Loue, how quicke and fresh art thou,
...withstanding thy capacitie,
...h as the Sea. Nought enters there,
...alidity, and pitch so ere,
... into abatement, and low price
... minute; so full of shapes is fancie,
...one, it selfe: for her all you are.
...ell you go hunt my Lord?
What Curio?
...he Hart.
Why so I do, the Noblest that I haue:
...ine eyes did see Olivia first,
...st she purg'd the ayre of pestilence;
...at was I turn'd into a Hart,
...esires like fell and cruell hounds,
...pursue me. How now what newes from her?

Enter Valentine.

...o please my Lord, I might not be admitted,
...her handmaid do returne this answer.
...ent it selfe, till seuen yeares heate,
...behold her face at ample view:
...Cloystresse she will walled walke,
...r once a day her Chamber round
...offending brine: all this to season
...a dead loue, which she would keepe fresh
...e, in her sad remembrance.
...O she that hath a heart of that fine frame
...to debt of loue but to a brother,
...she loue, when the rich golden shaft
...d the flocke of all affections else
...n her. When Liuer, Braine, and Heart,
...rsaigne thrones, are all supply'd and fill'd
...r perfections with one selfe king:
...ure me, to sweet beds of Flowres,
...ghts lye rich, when canopy'd with bowres.

Exeunt

Scena Secunda

Enter Viola, a Captaine and Saylors.

Vio. What Country (Friends) is this?
Cap. This is Illyria Ladie.
Vio. And what should I do in Illyria?
My brother he is in Elizium,
Perchance he is not drown'd: What thinke you saylors?
Cap. It is perchance that you your selfe were saued.
Vio. O my poore brother, and so perchance may he be.
Cap. True Madam, and to comfort you with chance,
Assure your selfe, after our ship did split,
When you, and those poore number saued with you,
Hung on our driuing boate: I saw your brother
Most prouident in peril, binde himselfe,
(Courage and hope both teaching him the practise)
To a strong Maste, that liu'd vpon the sea:
Where like Orion on the Dolphines backe,
I saw him hold acquaintance with the waues,
So long as I could see.
Vio. For saying so, there's Gold:
Mine owne escape vnfoldeth to my hope,
Whereto thy speech serues for authoritie
The like of him. Know'st thou this Countrey?
Cap. I Madam well, for I was bred and borne
Not three houres trauaile from this very place.
Vio. Who gouernes heere?
Cap. A noble Duke in nature, as in name.
Vio. What is his name?
Cap. Orsino.
Vio. Orsino: I haue heard my father name him.
He was a Batchellor then.
Cap. And so is now, or was so very late:
For but a month ago I went from hence,
And then 'twas fresh in murmure (as you know What great ones do, the lesse will prattle of)
That he did seeke the loue of faire Olivia.
Vio. What's shee?
Cap. A vertuous maid, the daughter of a Count
That dide some twelue month since, then leauing her
In the protection of his sonne, her brother,
Who shortly also dide: for whose deere loue
(They say) she hath abiur'd the sight
And company of men.
Vio. O that I serud that Lady,
And might not be delinered to the world

Till I had made mine owne occaſion mellow
What my eſtate is.
Cap. That were hard to compaſſe,
Becauſe ſhe will admit no kinde of ſuite,
No, not the Dukes.
Vio. There is a faire behauiour in thee Captaine,
And though that nature, with a beauteous wall
Doth oft cloſe in pollution: yet of thee
I will beleeue thou haſt a minde that ſuites
With this thy faire and outward charracter.
I prethee (and Ile pay thee bounteouſly)
Conceale me what I am, and be my ayde,
For ſuch diſguiſe as haply ſhall become
The forme of my intent. Ile ſerue this Duke,
Thou ſhalt preſent me as an Eunuch to him,
It may be worth thy paines: for I can ſing,
And ſpeake to him in many ſorts of Muſicke,
That will allow me very worth his ſeruice.
What elſe may hap, to time I will commit,
Onely ſhape thou thy ſilence to my wit.
Cap. Be you his Eunuch, and your Mute Ile bee,
When my tongue blabs, then let mine eyes not ſee.
Vio. I thanke thee: Lead me on. Exeunt.

Scæna Tertia.

Enter Sir Toby, and Maria.

Sir To. What a plague meanes my Neece to take the death of her brother thus? I am ſure care's an enemie to life

Mar. By my troth ſir Toby, you muſt come in earlyer a nights: your Coſin, my Lady, takes great exceptions to your ill houres.

To. Why let her except, before excepted

Ma. I, but you muſt confine your ſelfe within the modeſt limits of order.

To. Confine? Ile confine my ſelfe no finer then I am: theſe cloathes are good enough to drinke in, and ſo bee theſe boots too: and they be not, let them hang themſelues in their owne ſtraps.

Ma. That quaffing and drinking will vndoe you. I heard my Lady talke of it yeſterday: and of a fooliſh knight that you brought in one night here, to be her woer

To. Who, Sir Andrew Agu-cheeke?

Ma. I be.

To. He's as tall a man as any's in Illyria.

Ma. What's that to th'purpoſe?

To. Why he has three thouſand ducates a yeare.

Ma. I, but he'l haue but a yeare in all theſe ducates: He's a very foole, and a prodigall.

To. Fie, that you'l ſay ſo: he playes o'th Viol-de-gamboys, and ſpeaks three or four languages word for word without booke, & hath all the good gifts of nature.

Ma. He hath indeed, almoſt naturall: for beſides that he's a foole, he's a great quarreller: and but that hee hath the gift of a Coward, to allay the guſt he hath in quarrelling, 'tis thought among the prudent, he would quickely haue the gift of a graue.

Tob. By this hand they are ſcoundrels and ſubſtractors that ſay ſo of him. Who are they?

Ma. They that adde moreouer, hee's drunke nightly in your company.

To. With drinking healths to my Neece: Ile drinke to her as long as there is a paſſage in my throat, & drinke in Illyria: he's a Coward and a Coyſtrill that will not drinke to my Neece, till his braines turne o'th toe, like a pariſh top. What wench? Caſtiliano vulgo: for here comes Sir Andrew Agueface.

Enter Sir Andrew.

And. Sir Toby Belch. How now ſir Toby Belch?

To. Sweet ſir Andrew.

And. Bleſſe you faire Shrew.

Mar. And you too ſir.

Tob. Accoſt Sir Andrew, accoſt.

And. What's that?

To. My Neeces Chamber-maid.

And. Good Miſtris accoſt, I deſire better acquaintance

Ma. My name is Mary ſir.

And. Good miſtris Mary, accoſt.

To. You miſtake knight: Accoſt, is front her, boord her, woe her, aſſayle her.

And. By my troth I would not vndertake her in this company. Is that the meaning of Accoſt?

Ma. Fare you well Gentlemen

To. And thou let part ſo Sir Andrew, would thou mightſt neuer draw ſword agen

And. And you part ſo miſtris, I would I might neuer draw ſword agen: I fare Lady, doe you thinke you haue fooles in hand?

Ma. Sir, I haue not you by'th hand.

An. Marry but you ſhall haue, and heeres my hand.

Ma. Now ſir, thought is free: I pray you bring your hand to'th Buttry barre, and let it drinke.

An. Wherefore (ſweet-heart?) What's your Metaphor?

Ma. It's dry ſir.

And. Why I thinke ſo. I am not ſuch an aſſe, but I can keepe my hand dry. But what's your ieſt?

Ma. A dry ieſt Sir.

And. Are you full of them?

Ma. I Sir, I haue them at my fingers ends: marry now I let go your hand, I am barren. Exit Maria.

To. O knight, thou lack'ſt a cup of Canarie: when did I ſee thee ſo put downe?

An. Neuer in your life I thinke, vnleſſe you ſee Canarie put me downe: me thinkes ſometimes I haue no more wit then a Chriſtian, or an ordinary man has: but I am a great eater of beefe, and I beleeue that does harme to my wit.

To. No queſtion.

An. And I thought that, I'de forſweare it. Ile ride home to morrow ſir Toby.

To. Pur-quoy my deere knight?

An. What is purquoy? Do, or not do? I would I had beſtowed that time in the tongues, that I haue in fencing, dancing, and beare-bayting: O had I but followed the Arts.

To. Then hadſt thou had an excellent head of haire.

An. Why, would that haue mended my haire?

To. Paſt queſtion, for thou ſeeſt it will not coole my

An. But it becoms me wel enough, doſt not? (nature.

To. Excellent, it hangs like flax on a diſtaffe: & I hope to ſee a huſwife take thee between her legs, & ſpin it off.

An. Faith Ile home to morrow ſir Toby, your neece will not be ſeene, or if ſhe be it's four to one, ſhe'l none of me: the Count himſelfe here hard by, woos her.

To. She'l none o'th Count, ſhe'l not match aboue his degree, neither in eſtate, yeares, nor wit: I haue heard her ſweare't. Tut there's life in't man.

And

a monech longer. I am a fellow o'th th world: I delight in Maskes and Reritogether
good as thefe kicke-chawfes Knight?
man in Illyria, whatfoeuer he be, vnder betters, & yet I will not compare with thy excellence in a gallard, knight?

can cut a caper.
n cut the Mutton toe't.
thinke I haue the backe-tricke, fimply as n Illyria.
re are thefe things hid? Wherefore haue raine before 'em? Are they like to take Mal's pleaſure? Why doſt thou not goe ollard, and come home in a Carranto?
fhould be a Iigge: I would not ſo much t in a Sinke-a-pace: What doeſt thou eild to hide vertues in? I did thinke by ſtriction of thy legge, it was form'd vn-Gallard
rong, and it does indifferent well in a ocke. Shall we ſir abaut ſome Reuels?
all we do elſe: were we not borne vnder

? That ſides and heart.
is legge and thighes: let me ſee thee ca-ha, ha excellent. Exeunt

Scena Quarta.

Maria, and Viola in maner attire.

ake continue theſe fauours towards you ke to be much adu me'd, he hath known yes, and already you are no ſtranger.
er feare his humour, or my negligence, neſtion the continuance of his loue. Is in his fauours. Vio. No beleeue me.
Duke, Curio and Attendants.
you: heere comes the Count.
w Ceſario hoa?
ttendance my Lord heere.
a-while aſoofe. Ceſario, leſſe, but all: I haue enclaſp'd
e euen of my ſecret ſouls.
youth, addreſſe thy gate vnto her,
ceſſe, ſtand at her doores.
ere thy fixed foot ſhall grow
dience.
Noble Lord,
ſton'd to her ſorrow
never will admit me.
rous, and leape all ciuill bounds,
e vnprofited returne,
ſpeake with her (my Lord) what then?
nfold the paſſion of my loue,
diſcourſe of my deere faith;
hee well to act my woes.
better in thy youth,
's of more graue aſpect.
ot ſo, my Lord.
d, beleeue it;
For they ſhall yet belye thy happy yeeres,
That ſay thou art a man: Diana lip
Is not more ſmooth, and rubious: thy ſmall pipe
Is as the maidens organ, ſhrill, and ſound,
And all is ſemblatiue a womans part.
I know thy conſtellation is right apt
For this affayre: ſome foure or fiue attend him,
All if you will; for I my ſelfe am beſt
When leaſt in companie: proſper well in this,
And thou ſhalt liue as freely as thy Lord,
To call his fortunes thine.
Vio. Ile do my beſt
To woe your Lady: yet a barrefull ſtrife,
Who ere I woe, my ſelfe would be his wife. Exeunt.

Scena Quinta.

Enter Maria and Clowne.

Ma. Nay, either tell me where thou haſt bin, or I will not open my lippes ſo wide as a briſtle may enter, in way of thy excuſe: my Lady will hang thee for thy abſence.

Clo. Let her hang me: hee that is well hang'de in this world, needs to feare no colours.

Ma. Make that good.

Clo. He ſhall ſee none to feare.

Ma. A good lenton anſwer: I can tell thee where y^t ſaying was borne, of I feare no colours.

Clo. Where good miſtris Mary?

Ma. In the warres, & that may you be bolde to ſay in your foolerie.

Clo. Well, God giue them wiſedome that haue it: & thoſe that are fooles, let them vſe their talents.

Ma. Yet you will be hang'd for being ſo long abſent, or to be turn'd away: is not that as good as a hanging to you?

Clo. Many a good hanging, preuents a bad marriage: and for turning away, let ſummer beare it out.

Ma. You are reſolute then?

Clo Not ſo neyther, but I am reſolu'd on two points

Ma. That if one breake, the other will hold: or if both breake, your gaskins fall.

Clo. Apt in good faith, very apt: well go thy way, if ſir Toby would leaue drinking, thou wert as witty a piece of Eues fleſh, as any in Illyria

Ma. Peace you rogue, no more o'that: here comes my Lady: make your excuſe wiſely, you were beſt.

Enter Lady Olivia, with Malvolio.

Clo. Wit, and't be thy will, put me into good fooling: thoſe wits that thinke they haue thee, doe very oft proue fooles: and I that am ſure I lacke thee, may paſſe for a wiſe man. For what ſaies Quinapalus, Better a witty foole, then a fooliſh wit. God bleſſe thee Lady.

Ol. Take the foole away.

Clo. Do you not heare fellowes, take away the Ladie.

Ol. Go too, y'are a dry foole: Ile no more of you: beſides you grow diſ-honeſt.

Clo. Two faults Madona, that drinke & good counſell will amend: for giue the dry foole drink, then is the foole not dry: bid the diſhoneſt man mend himſelf, if he mend, he is no longer diſhoneſt; if hee cannot, let the Botcher mend him: any thing that's mended, is but patch'd: vertue that tranſgreſſes, is but patcht with ſinne, and ſin that amends, is but patcht with vertue. If that this ſimple Sillogiſme will ſerue, ſo: if it will not, what remedy?

As there is no true Cuckold but calamity, ſo beauties a flower: The Lady bad take away the foole, therefore I ſay againe, take her away.

Ol. Sir, I bad them take away you.

Clo. Miſpriſion in the higheſt degree. Lady, Cucullus non facit monachum: that's as much to ſay, as I weare not motley in my braine: good Madona, giue mee leaue to proue you a foole.

Ol. Can you do it?

Clo. Dexteriouſly, good Madona.

Ol. Make your proofe.

Clo. I muſt catechize you for it Madona, Good my Mouſe of vertue anſwer mee.

Ol. Well ſir, for want of other idleneſſe, Ile bide your proofe.

Clo. Good Madona, why mournſt thou?

Ol. Good foole, for my brothers death.

Clo. I thinke his ſoule is in hell, Madona.

Ol. I know his ſoule is in heauen, foole.

Clo The more foole (Madona) to mourne for your Brothers ſoules, being in heauen. Take away the Foole, Gentlemen.

Ol. What thinke you of this foole Maluolio, doth he not mend?

Mal. Yes, and ſhall do, till the pangs of death ſhake him: Infirmity that decaies the wiſe, doth euer make the better foole.

Clow. God ſend you ſir, a ſpeedie Infirmity, for the better increaſing your folly: Sir Toby will be ſworn that I am no Fox but he will not paſſe his word for two pence that you are no Foole.

Ol. How ſay you to that Maluolio?

Mal. I maruell your Ladyſhip takes delight in ſuch a barren raſcall: I ſaw him put down the other day, with an ordinary foole, that has no more braine then a ſtone. Looke you now, he's out of his gard already: vnles you laugh and miniſter occaſion to him, he is gag'd. I proteſt I take theſe, Wiſemen, that crow ſo at theſe ſet kinde of fooles, no better then the fooles Zanies.

Ol. O you are ſicke of ſelfe-loue Maluolio, and taſte with a diſtemper'd appetite. To be generous, guiltleſſe, and of free diſpoſition, is to take thoſe things for Bird-bolts, that you deeme Cannon bullets: There is no ſlander in an allow'd foole, though he do nothing but rayle; nor no rayling, in a know'n diſcreet man, though hee do nothing but reproue

Clo. Now Mercury indue thee with leaſing, for thou ſpeak'ſt well of fooles.

Enter Maria.

Mar. Madam, there is at the gate, a young Gentleman, much deſires to ſpeake with you

Ol. From the Count Orſino, is it?

Ma I know not (Madam) 'tis a faire young man, and well attended.

Ol Who of my people hold him in delay?

Ma Sir Toby Madam, your kinſman.

Ol. Fetch him off I pray you, he ſpeakes nothing but madman. Fie on him. Go you Maluolio; If it be as ſuit from the Count, I am ſicke, or not at home What you will, to diſmiſſe it. Exit Malo.

Now you ſee ſir, how your fooling growes old, & people diſlike it.

Clo Thou haſt ſpoke for vs (Madona) as if thy eldeſt ſonne ſhould be a foole: whoſe ſcull, Ioue cramme with braines, for heere he comes. Enter Sir Toby.

One of thy kin has a moſt weake Pia-mater.

Ol. By mine honor halfe drunke. What is he at the gate Coſin?

To. A Gentleman.

Ol. A Gentleman? What Gentleman?

To. 'Tis a Gentleman heere. A plague o'theſe pickle herring: How now Sot.

Clo. Good Sir Toby.

Ol. Coſin, Coſin, how haue you come ſo earely by this Lethargie?

To Letcherie, I defie Letchery there's one at the gate.

Ol I marry, what is he?

To. Let him be the diuell and he will, I care not: give me faith ſay I. Well, it's all one. Exit

Ol. What's a drunken man like, foole?

Clo. Like a drown'd man, a foole, and a madde man One draught aboue heate, makes him a foole, the ſecond maddes him, and a third drownes him.

Ol. Go thou and ſeeke the Crowner, and let him ſitte o'my Coz: for he is in the third degree of drinke: hee's drown'd: go looke after him.

Clo. He is but mad yet Madona, and the foole ſhall looke to the madman.

Enter Maluolio.

Mal Madam, yond young fellow ſweares hee will ſpeake with you. I told him you were ſicke, he takes on him to vnderſtand ſo much, and therefore comes to ſpeak with you. I told him you were aſleepe, he ſeems to haue a fore knowledge of that too, and therefore comes to ſpeake with you. What is to be ſaid to him Ladie, he's fortified againſt any denial!

Ol. Tell him, he ſhall not ſpeake with me.

Mal. He's beene told ſo: and he ſayes he'l ſtand at your doore like a Sheriffes poſt, and be the ſupporter to a bench, but hee'l ſpeake with you.

Ol. What kinde o'man is he?

Mal. Why of mankinde.

Ol What manner of man?

Mal. Of verie ill manner: hee'l ſpeake with you, will you, or no

Ol. Of what perſonage, and yeeres is he?

Mal. Not yet old enough for a man, nor yong enough for a boy: as a ſquaſh is before 'tis a peſcod, or a Codling when 'tis almoſt an Apple: 'Tis with him in ſtanding water, betweene boy and man. He is verie well-ſauour'd, and he ſpeakes verie ſhrewiſhly: One would thinke his mothers milke were ſcarſe out of him.

Ol Let him approach: Call in my Gentlewoman.

Mal. Gentlewoman, my Lady calles. Exit

Enter Maria.

Ol. Giue me my vaile: come throw it ore my face, We'l once more heare Orſinos Embaſſie.

Enter Violenta.

Vio. The honorable Ladie of the houſe, which is ſhe?

Ol. Speake to me, I ſhall anſwer for her. your will.

Vio. Moſt radiant, exquiſite, and vnmatchable beautie. I pray you tell me if this bee the Lady of the houſe, for I neuer ſaw her. I would bee ſauth to call away my ſpeech: for beſides that it is excellently well penn'd, I haue taken great paines to con it. Good Beauties, let me ſuſtaine no ſcorne; I am very comptible, euen to the leaſt finiſter vſage.

Ol. Whence came you ſir?

Vio. I can ſay little more then I haue ſtudied, & that queſtion's out of my part. Good gentle one, giue me modeſt aſſurance, if you be the Ladie of the houſe, that rede in my ſpeech.

I

you a Comedian?
my profound heart: and yet (by the verie malice I ſweare) I am not that I play. Are you the houſe?
do not vſurpe my ſelfe, I am.
oft certaine, if you are ſhe, you do vſurp your hat is yours to beſtowe, is, not yours to re-this is from my Commiſſion: I will on with your praiſe, and then ſhew you the heart of me to what is important in't: I forgiue you

, I tooke great paines to ſtudie it, and it the more like to be feigned, I pray you keep you were ſawcy at my gates, & allowed your ther to wonder at you, then to heare you. If ad, be gone: if you haue reaſon, be breefe:

time of Moone with me, to make one in ſo dialogue.
'll you hoyſt ſayle ſir, here lies your way.
good ſwabber, I am to hull here a little lonmollification for your Giant, ſweete Ladie;
minde, I am a meſſenger.
you haue ſome hiddeous matter to deliuer, reeſie of it is ſo fearefull. Speake your office.
done commes your ſpeech: I bring no ouer-
e, no taxation of homage; I hold the Olyffe my words are as full of peace, as matter you began rudely. What are you?
ll you?
rudeneſſe that hath appear'd in mee, haue I my entertainment. What I am, and what I as ſecret as maiden-head: to your eares, Diy others, prophanation.
e vs the place alone.
are this diuinitie. Now ſir, what is your text?
ll ſweet Ladie
mfortable doctrine, and much may bee ſaide
re lies your Text?
Deſmo. boſome
is boſome? In what chapter of his boſome?
anſwer by the method in the firſt of his hart.
haue read it: it is heereſie. Haue you no more od Madam, let me ſee your face.

e you any Commiſſion from your Lord, to with my face? you are now out of your Text:
draw the Curtain, and ſhew you the picture.
ſir, ſuch a one I was this preſent: Is't not well rcellently done, if God did all.

m graine ſir, 'twill endure winde and wea-beauty truly blent, whoſe red and white, ne ſweet, and cunning hand laid on ue the cruell ſt ſhee aliue, eade theſe graces to the graue,

he world no copie
, I will not be ſo hard-hearted. I will giue edules of my beautie. It ſhalbe Inuentoried rticle and exemplifie labell'd to my will. As, ppes indifferent redde. Item two grey eyes, them: Item, one necke, one chin, & ſo forth.
ent hither to praiſe me?

Vio. I ſee you what you are, you are too proud:
But if you were the diuell, you are faire.
My Lord, and maſter loues you: O ſuch loue
Could be but recompenc'd, though you were crown'd
The non-pareil of beautie.
Ol. How does he loue me?
Vio. With adorations, fertill teares,
With groanes that thunder loue, with ſighes of fire.
Ol. Your Lord does know my mind, I cannot loue him
Yet I ſuppoſe him vertuous, know him noble,
Of great eſtate, of freſh and ſtainleſſe youth;
In voyces well diuulg'd, free, learn'd, and valiant,
And in dimenſion, and the ſhape of nature,
A gracious perſon: But yet I cannot loue him:
He might haue tooke his anſwer long ago.
Vio. If I did loue you in my maſters flame,
With ſuch a ſuffring, ſuch a deadly life:
In your denyall, I would finde no ſence,
I would not vnderſtand it.
Ol. Why, what would you?
Vio. Make me a willow Cabine at your gate,
And call vpon my ſoule within the houſe,
Write loyall Cantons of contemned loue,
And ſing them lowd euen in the dead of night:
Hallow your name to the reuerberate hilles,
And make the babling Goſſip of the aire,
Cry out Oliuia: O you ſhould not reſt
Betweene the elements of ayre, and earth,
But you ſhould pittie me.
Ol. You might do much:
What is your Parentage?
Vio. Aboue my fortunes, yet my ſtate is well:
I am a Gentleman.
Ol Get you to your Lord:
I cannot loue him: let him ſend no more,
Vnleſſe (perchance) you come to me againe,
To tell me how he takes it. Fare you well:
I thanke you for your paines: ſpend this for mee.
Vio. I am no feede poſt, Lady; keepe your purſe,
My Maſter, not my ſelfe, lackes recompence.
Loue make his heart of flint, that you ſhal loue,
And let your feruour like my maſters be,
Plac'd in contempt: Farwell fayre cruelty. Exit
Ol. What is your Parentage?
Aboue my fortunes, yet my ſtate is well:
I am a Gentleman. Ile be ſworne thou art,
Thy tongue, thy face, thy limbes, actions, and ſpirit,
Do giue thee fiue-fold blazon: not too faſt: ſoft, ſoft,
Vnleſſe the Maſter were the man. How now?
Euen ſo quickly may one catch the plague?
Me thinkes I feele this youths perfections
With an inuiſible, and ſubtle ſtealth
To creepe in at mine eyes. Well, let it be.
What hoa, Maluolio.

Enter Maluolio.

Mal Heere Madam, at your ſeruice.
Ol Run after that ſame peeuiſh Meſſenger
The Counteſſe man: he left this Ring behinde him
Would I, or not: tell him, Ile none of it.
Deſire him not to flatter with his Lord.
Nor hold him vp with hopes, I am not for him:
If that the youth will come this way to morrow,
Ile giue him reaſons for't: hie thee Maluolio.
Mal Madam, I will. Exit.
Ol I do I know not what, and feare to finde
Mine eye too great a flatterer for my minde:

Fate

Fate, shew thy force, our selues we do not owe,
What is decreed, must be: and be this so.
Finis, Actus primus.

Actus Secundus, Scæna prima.

Enter Antonio & Sebastian.

Ant. Will you stay no longer: nor will you not that I go with you.

Seb. By your patience, no: my starres shine darkely ouer me; the malignancie of my fate, might perhaps distemper yours; therefore I shall craue of you your leaue, that I may beare my euils alone. It were a bad recompence for your loue, to lay any of them on you.

An. Let me yet know of you, whither you are bound.

Seb. No sooth sir: my determinate voyage is meere extrauagancie. But I perceiue in you so excellent a touch of modestie, that you will not extort from me, what I am willing to keepe in: therefore it charges me in manners, the rather to expresse my selfe: you must know of mee then Antonio, my name is Sebastian (which I call'd Rodorigo) my father was that Sebastian of Messaline, whom I know you haue heard of. He left behinde him, my selfe, and a sister, both borne in an houre: if the Heauens had beene pleas'd, would we had so ended. But you sir, alter'd that, for some houre before you tooke me from the breach of the sea, was my sister drown'd.

Ant. Alas the day.

Seb. A Lady sir, though it was said shee much resembled me, was yet of many accounted beautiful: but though I could not with such estimable wonder ouer-farre beleeue that, yet thus farre I will boldly publish her, shee bore a minde that enuy could not but call faire: Shee is drown'd already sir with salt water, though I seeme to drowne her remembrance againe with more.

Ant. Pardon me sir, your bad entertainment.

Seb. O good Antonio, forgiue me your trouble.

Ant. If you will not murther me for my loue, let me be your seruant.

Seb. If you will not vndo what you haue done, that is kill him, whom you haue recouer'd, desire it not. Fare ye well at once, my bosome is full of kindnesse, and I am yet so neere the manners of my mother, that vpon the least occasion more, mine eyes will tell tales of me: I am bound to the Count Orsino's Court, farewell. Exit

Ant. The gentlenesse of all the gods go with thee:
I haue many enemies in Orsino's Court,
Else would I very shortly see thee there:
But come what may, I do adore thee so,
That danger shall seeme sport, and I will go. Exit.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Viola and Malvolio, at seuerall doores.

Mal. Were not you eu'n now, with the Countesse Olenia?

Vio. Euen now sir, on a moderate pace, I haue since arriu'd but hither.

Mal. She returnes this Ring to you (sir) you might haue saued mee my paines, to haue taken it away your selfe. She adds moreouer, that you should put your Lord into a desperate assurance, she will none of him. And one thing more, that you be neuer so hardie to come againe in his affaires, vnlesse it bee to report your Lords taking of this: receiue it so.

Vio. She tooke the Ring of me, Ile none of it.

Mal. Come sir, you peruisbly threw it to her: and her will is, it should be so return'd: If it bee worth stooping for, there it lies, in your eye: if not, bee it his that findes it. Exit.

Vio. I left no Ring with her: what meanes this Lady?
Fortune forbid my out-side haue not charm'd her:
She made good view of me, indeed so much,
That me thought her eyes had lost her tongue,
For she did speake in starts distractedly.
She loues me sure, the cunning of her passion
Inuites me in this churlish messenger:
None of my Lords Ring? Why he sent her none;
I am the man, if it be so as tis,
Poore Lady, she were better loue a dreame:
Disguise, I see thou art a wickednesse,
Wherein the pregnant enemie does much.
How easie is it, for the proper false
In womens waxen hearts to set their formes!
Alas, O frailtie is the cause, not wee,
For such as we are made, if such we bee:
How will this fadge? My master loues her deerely,
And I (poore monster) fond as much on him:
And she (mistaken) seemes to dote on me:
What will become of this? As I am man,
My state is desperate for my maisters loue:
As I am woman (now alas the day)
What thriftlesse sighes shall poore Olivia breath?
O time, thou must vntangle this, not I,
It is too hard a knot for me t'vnty.

Scæna Tertia.

Enter Sir Toby, and Sir Andrew.

To. Approach Sir Andrew: not to be a bedde after midnight, is to be vp betimes, and Diluculo surgere, thou know'st.

And. Nay by my troth I know not: but I know, to be vp late, is to be vp late.

To. A false conclusion: I hate it as an vnfill'd Canne. To be vp after midnight, and to go to bed then is early: so that to go to bed after midnight, is to goe to bed betimes. Does not our liues consist of the foure Elements?

And. Faith so they say, but I thinke it rather consists of eating and drinking.

To. Th'art a scholler; let vs therefore eate and drinke, Marian I say, a stoope of wine.

Enter Clowne.

And. Heere comes the foole yfaith.

Clo. How now my harts: Did you neuer see the Picture of we three?

To. Welcome asse, now let's haue a catch.

And. By my troth the foole has an excellent breast. I had rather then forty shillings I had such a legge, and so sweet a breath to sing, as the foole has. In sooth thou was in very gracious fooling last night, when thou spok'st of Pygrogromitus, of the Vapians passing the Equinoctiall of Queubus: 'twas very good yfaith. I sent thee sixe pence for ar thy Lemon, hadſt it?

Clo. I did impeticos thy gratillity: for Malvolios noſe no Whip-ſtocke. My Lady has a white hand, and the Myrmidons are no bottle-ale houſes.

An. Excellent: Why this is the beſt fooling, when ll is done. Now a ſong.

To. Come on, there is ſixe pence for you. Let's haue ſong.

An. There's a teſtrill of me too: if one knight giue a

Clo. Would you haue a loue-ſong, or a ſong of good fe?

To. A loue ſong, a loue ſong.

An. I, I. I care not for good life.

Clowne ſings.

O Miſtreſs mine where are you roaming?
O ſtay and hearke, your true loues coming,
That can ſing both high and low.
Trip no further pretty ſweeting.
Iourneys end in louers meeting,
Euery wiſe mans ſonne doth know.

An. Excellent good, iſaith.

To Good, good

Clo. What is loue, tis not hereafter,
Preſent mirth, hath preſent laughter
What's to come, is ſtill vnſure.
In delay there lies no plenſure,
Then come kiſſe me ſweet and twentie:
Youths a ſtuffe will not endure.

An. A mellifluous voyce, as I am true knight.

To. A contagious breath.

An. Very ſweet, and contagious iſaith.

To. To heare by the noſe, it is dulcet in contagion. ſhall we make the Welkin dance indeed? Shall wee rare the night-Owle in a Catch, that will drawe three ules out of one Weauer? Shall we do that?

And. And you loue me, let's doo't: I am dogge at a tch.

Clo. Byrlady ſir, and ſome dogs will catch well.

An. Moſt certaine: Let our Catch be, Thou Knaue

Clo. Hold thy peace, thou Knaue knight. I ſhall be con-ſtra'd in't, to call thee knaue, Knight.

An. 'Tis not the firſt time I haue conſtrained one to l me knaue. Begin ſoolo: it begins, Hold thy peace.

Clo. I ſhall never begin if I hold my peace.

An. Good iſaith: Come begin. Catch ſung

Enter Maria.

Mar. What a catterwalling doe you keepe heere? If y Ladie haue not call'd vp her Steward Malvolio, and ſ him turne you out of doores, neuer truſt me.

To. My Lady's a Cataian, we are politicians, Malvolios ge-a-ranſie, and Three merry men be we. Am not I elancholious? Am I not of her blood: tilly vally. La-, There dwelt a man in Babylon, Lady, Lady.

Clo. Beſhrew me, the knights in admirable fooling.

An. I, he do's well enough if he be diſpoſ'd, and ſo I too: he does it with a better grace, but I do it more tural.

To. O the twelfe day of December

Mar. For the loue o God peace.

Enter Malvolio

Mal. My maiſters are you mad? Or what are you? ue you no wit, manners, nor honeſtie, but to gabble e Tankards at this time of night? Do yee make an Ale-ſe of my Ladies houſe, that ye ſqueak out your Coſ-Catches without any mitigation or remorſe of voice? ere no reſpect of place, perſons, nor time in you?

To. We did keepe time ſir in our Catches. Snecke vp.

Mal. Sir Toby, I muſt be round with you. My Lady bad me tell you, that though ſhe harbors you as her kinſman, ſhe's nothing ally'd to your diſorders. If you can ſeparate your ſelfe and your miſdemeanors, you are welcome to the houſe: if not, and it would pleaſe you to take leaue of her, ſhe is very willing to bid you farewell.

To. Farewell deere heart, ſince I muſt needs be gone.

Mar. Nay good Sir Toby.

Clo. His eyes do ſhew his dayes are almoſt done.

Mal. Is't euen ſo?

To. But I will neuer dye.

Clo. Sir Toby there you lye.

Mal. This is much credit to you.

To. Shall I bid him go.

Clo. What and if you do?

To. Shall I bid him go, and ſpare not?

Clo. O no, no, no, you dare not

To. Out o'tune ſir, ye lye: Art any more then a Steward? Doſt thou thinke becauſe thou art vertuous, there ſhall be no more Cakes and Ale?

Clo. Yes by S. Anne, and Ginger ſhall bee hotte y'th mouth too.

To. Th'art i'th right. Goe ſir, rub your Chaine with crums. A ſlope of Wine Maria.

Mal. Miſtris Mary, if you priz'd my Ladies fauour at any thing more then contempt, you would not giue meanes for this vnciuill rule; ſhe ſhall know of it by this hand. Exit

Mar. Go ſhake your eares.

An. 'Twere as good a deede as to drink when a mans a hungrie, to challenge him the field, and then to breake promiſe with him, and make a foole of him.

To. Doo's knight, Ile write thee a Challenge: or Ile deliuer thy indignation to him by word of mouth.

Mar. Sweet Sir Toby be patient for to night: Since the youth of the Counts was to day with my Lady, ſhe is much out of quiet. For Monſieur Malvolio, let me alone with him: if I do not gull him into an aywords, and make him a common recreation, do not thinke I haue wittes enough to lye ſtraight in my bed: I know I can do it.

To. Poſſeſſe vs, poſſeſſe vs, tell vs ſomething of him.

Mar. Marrie ſir, ſometimes he is a kinde of Puritane.

An. O, if I thought that, Ide beate him like a dogge.

To. What for being a Puritan, thy exquiſite reaſon, deere knight.

An. I haue no exquiſite reaſon for't, but I haue reaſon good enough.

Mar. The diu'll a Puritane that hee is, or any thing conſtantly but a time-pleaſer, an affection'd Aſſe, that cons State without booke, and vtters it by great ſwarths. The beſt perſwaded of himſelfe: ſo cram'd (as he thinkes) with excellencies, that it is his grounds of faith, that all that looke on him, loue him: and on that vice in him, will my reuenge finde notable cauſe to worke.

To. What wilt thou do?

Mar. I will drop in his way ſome obſcure Epiſtles of loue, wherein by the colour of his beard, the ſhape of his legge, the manner of his gate, the expreſſure of his eye, forehead, and complection, he ſhall finde himſelfe moſt feelingly perſonated. I can write very like my Ladie your Neece, on a forgotten matter wee can hardly make diſtinction of our hands.

To. Excellent, I ſmell a deuice.

An. I haue't in my noſe too.

To. He ſhall thinke by the Letters that thou wilt drop

that

that they come from my Neece, and that shee's in loue with him.

Mar. My purpose is indeed a horse of that colour.

An. And your horse now would make him an Asse

Mar. Asse, I doubt not.

An. O twill be admirable.

Mar. Sport royall I warrant you: I know my Physicke will worke with him, I will plant you two, and let the Foole make a third, where he shall finde the Letter: obserue his construction of it: For this night to bed, and dreame on the event: Farewell. Exit

To. Good night Penthisilea.

An. Before me she's a good wench.

To. She's a beagle true bred, and one that adores me: what o'that?

An. I was ador'd once too.

To. Let's to bed knight: Thou hadst neede send for more money.

An. If I cannot recouer your Neece, I am a foule way out.

To. Send for money knight, if thou hast her not i'th end, call me Cut.

An. If I do not, neuer trust me, take it how you will.

To. Come, come, Ile go burne some Sacke, 'tis too late to go to bed now: Come knight, come knight. Exeunt

Scena Quarta.

Enter Duke, Viola, Curio and others.

Du. Giue me some Musick; Now good morow friends. Now good Cesario, but that peece of song, That old and Antieke song we heard last night; Me thought it did releeue my passion much, More then light ayres, and recollected termes Of these most briske and giddy-paced times. Come, but on verse.

Cur. He is not heere (so please your Lordshippe) that should sing it?

Du. Who was it?

Cur. Feste the Iester my Lord, a foole that the Ladie Olivias Father tooke much delight in. He is about the house.

Du. Seeke him out, and play the tune the while. Musicke playes.

Come hither Boy, if ever thou shalt loue
In the sweet pangs of it, remember me:
For such as I am, all true Louers are,
Vnstaid and skittish in all motions else,
Saue in the constant image of the creature
That is belou'd. How dost thou like this tune?

Vio. It giues a verie eccho to the seate
Where loue is thron'd.

Du. Thou dost speake masterly,
My life vpon't, yong though thou art, thine eye
Hath staid vpon some fauour that it loues:
Hath it not boy?

Vio. A little, by your fauour.

Du. What kinde of woman is't?

Vio. Of your complexion.

Du. She is not worth thee then. What yeeres i'faith?

Vio. About your yeeres my Lord.

Du. Too old by heauen: Let still the woman take An elder then her selfe, so weares she to him, So sweayes she leuell in her husbands heart: For boy, however we do praise our selues, Our fancies are more giddie and vnfirme, More longing, wauering, sooner lost and worne, Then womens are.

Vio. I thinke it well my Lord.

Du. Then let thy Loue be younger then thy selfe, Or thy affection cannot hold the bent: For women are as Roses, whose faire flowre Being once displaid, doth fall that verie howre.

Vio. And so they are: alas, that they are so; To die, euen when they to perfection grow.

Enter Curio & Clowne.

Du. O fellow come, the song we had last night: Marke it Cesario, it is old and plaine; The Spinsters and the Knitters in the sun, And the free maides that weaue their thred with bones, Do vse to chaunt it: it is silly sooth, And dallies with the innocence of loue, Like the old age.

Clo. Are you ready Sir?

Duke I prethee sing. Musicke

The Song.

Come away, come away death,
And in sad cypresse let me be laide.
Fye away, fie away breath,
I am slaine by a faire cruell maide:
My shrowd of white stuck all with Ew, O prepare it.
My part of death no one so true did share it.

Not a flower, not a flower sweete
On my blacke coffin, let there be strewne:
Not a friend, not a friend greet
My poore corpes, where my bones shall be thrown:
A thousand thousand sighes to saue, lay me a whore
Sad true lover never find my graue, to weepe there.

Du. There's for thy paines

Clo. No paines sir, I take pleasure in singing sir.

Du. Ile pay thy pleasure then

Clo. Truely sir, and pleasure will be paide one time, or another.

Du. Giue me now leaue, to leaue thee.

Clo Now the melancholly God protect thee, and the Tailor make thy doublet of changeable Taffata, for thy minde is a very Opall. I would haue men of such constancie put to Sea, that their businesse might be euery thing, and their intent euerie where, for that's it, that alwayes makes a good voyage of nothing. Farewell. Exit

Du. Let all the rest giue place: Once more Cesario, Get thee to yond same soueraigne cruelties: Tell her my loue, more noble then the world Prizes not quantitie of dirtie lands, The parts that fortune hath bestow'd vpon her: Tell her I hold as giddily as Fortune: But 'tis that miracle, and Queene of gems That nature prankes her in, attracts my soule.

Vio. But if she cannot loue you sir

Du. It cannot be so answer'd.

Vio. Sooth but you must Say that some Lady, as perhappes there is, Hath for your loue as great a pang of heart As you haue for Olivia: you cannot loue her: You tel her so: Must she not then be answer'd?

Du. There is no womans sides

Can

he beating of ſo ſtrong a paſſion,
th giue my heart: no woman heare
o hold ſo much, they lacke retention, loue may be call'd appetite,
of the Liuer, but the Pallat, ſurfeit, cloyment, and reuolt,
all as hungry as the Sea,
geſt as much, make no compare hat loue a woman can beare me, owne Olima.
ut I know
hat doſt thou know?
o well what loue women to men may owe:
y are as true of heart, as we.
had a daughter lou'd a man be perhaps, were I a woman ur Loreſhip.
d what's her hiſtory?
blanke my Lord: ſhe neuer told her loue,
cealment like a worme i'th budde
r damaske cheeke: ſhe pin'd in thought, greene and yellow melancholly,
e Patience on a Monument,
greefe. Was not this loue indeede?
ay ſay more, ſweare more, but indeed are more then will: for ſtill we proue
e power, but little in our loue.
t di'de thy ſiſter of her loue my Boy?
n all the daughters of my Fathers houſe, brothers too: and yet I know not o this Lady?
ue's the Theame,
ſſe: giue her this Iewell, ſay,
n giue no place, bide no denay. exeunt

Scena Quinta.

Sir Toby. Sir Andrew, and Fabian.

me thy weyes Signior Fabian.
y life come: if I looſe a ſcruple of this ſport,
by'd to death with Melancholly.
uldſt thou not be glad to haue the niggard-ſheerpe-biter, come by ſome notable ſhame?
uld ſtault man: you know he brought me out
th my Lady, about a Beare-baiting heere.
ngerhim woe'l haue the Beare againe, and le him blacke and blew, ſhall we not ſir An- d we do not, it is pittie of our liues.

Enter Maria,

re comes the little villaine: How now my dia?
es ye all three into the box tree: Malualio's
owne this walke, he has beene yonder i'the ſſing behauiour to his own ſhadow this halfe true him for the loue of Mockerie: for I know will make a contem-platiue Ideot of him. Cloſe of liſtning, lye thou there: for heere comes that muſt be caught with tickling. Exit

Enter Malualio.

'is but Fortune, all is fortune. Maria once did affect me, and I haue heard her ſelf come that ſhould thee fancie, it ſhould bee one of thoſe. Beſides ſhe vſes me with a more exalted reſpect, then any one elſe that followes her. What ſhould I thinke on't?

To. Heere's an ouer-weening rogue.

Fa. Oh peace: Contemplation makes a rare Turkey Cocke of him, how he iets vnder his aduanc'd plumes.

And. Slight I could ſo beate the Rogue.

To. Peace I ſay

Mal. To be Count Malualio.

To. Ah Rogue.

An. Piſtoll him, piſtoll him.

To. Peace, peace.

Mal. There is example for't: The Lady of the Straſby, married the yeoman of the wardrob

An. Fie on him Iezabel.

Fa. O peace, now he's deepely in: looke how imagination blowes him.

Mal. Hauing been three moneths married to her, ſitting in my ſtate.

To. O for a ſtone-bow to hit him in the eye.

Mal. Calling my Officers about me, in my branch'd Velues gowne: hauing come from a day bedde, where I haue left Olima ſleeping

To. Fire and Brimſtone.

Fa. O peace, peace.

Mal. And then to haue the humor of ſtate: and after a demure trauaile of regard: telling them I knowe my place, as I would they ſhould doe theirs: to aske for my kinſman Toby.

To. Bolres and ſhackles.

Fa. Oh peace, peace, peace, now, now.

Mal. Seuen of my people with an obedient ſtart, make out for him. I frowne the while, and perchance winde vp my watch, or play with my ſome rich Iewell: Toby approaches; curſies there to me.

To. Shall this fellow liue?

Fa. Though our ſilence be drawne from vs with cars yet peace.

Mal. I extend my hand to him thus: quenching my familiar ſmile with an auſtere regard of controll.

To. And do's not Toby take you a blow o'the lippes, then?

Mal. Saying, Coſme Toby, my Fortunes hauing caſt me on your Neece, giue me this prerogatiue of ſpeech.

To. What, what?

Mal. You muſt amend your drunkenneſſe.

To. Out ſcab.

Fab. Nay patience, or we breake the ſinewes of our plot?

Mal Beſides you waſte the treaſure of your time, with a foolifh knight.

And. That's mee I warrant you.

Mal. One ſir Andrew.

And. I knew 'twas I, for many do call mee foole.

Mal. What employment haue we heere?

Fa. Now is the Woodcocke neere the gin.

To. Oh peace, and the ſpirit of humors intimate reading aloud to him.

Mal. By my life this is my Ladies hand: theſe be her very C's, her V's, and her T's, and thus makes ſhee her great P's. It is in contempt of queſtion her hand.

An. Her C's, her V's, and her T's: why that?

Mal. To the vnknowne belou'd, this, and my good wiſhes: Her very Phraſes: By your leaue wax. Soft, and the impreſſure her Lucrece, with which ſhe vſes to ſeale: 'tis my Lady: To whom ſhould this be?

Fab. This winnes him, Liuer and all.

Mal.

Mal. Ione knowes Moue, but who, Lips do not moue, no man must know. No man must know. What followes? The numbers alter'd: No man must know, If this should be thee Malvolio?

To. Marrie hang thee brocke.

Mal. I may command where I adore, but silence like a Lucresse knife:

With bloodlesse stroke my heart doth gore, M. O. A. I. doth sway my life.

Fa. A fustian riddle.

To. Excellent Wench, say I.

Mal. M.O.A.I. doth sway my life Nay but first let me see, let me see, let me see.

Fab. What dish a poyson has she dresst him?

To. And with what wing the stallion checkes at it?

Mal. I may command, where I adore: Why shee may command me. I serue her, she is my Ladie. Why this is evident to any formall capacitie. There is no obstruction in this, and the end: What should that Alphabeticall position portend, if I could make that resemble something in me? Softly, M.O.A.I.

To O I, make vp that, he is now at a cold sent

Fab. Sowter will cry vpon't for all this, though it bee as ranke as a Fox

Mal. M. Malvolio, M. why that begins my name.

Fab. Did not I say he would worke it out, the Curre is excellent at faults.

Mal. M. But then there is no consonancy in the sequell that suffers vnder probation: A. should follow, but O. does.

Fa. And O shall end, I hope

To. I, or Ile cudgell him, and make him cry O.

Mal. And then I. comes behind.

Fa. I, and you had any eye behinde you, you might see more detraction at your heeles, then Fortunes before you.

Mal. M,O,A,I. This simulation is not as the former: and yet to crush this a little, it would bow to mee, for every one of these Letters are in my name. Soft, here followes prose: If thou fall into thy hand, revolue. In my stars I am above thee, but be not affraid of greatnesse: Some are become great, some atcheeues greatnesse, and some haue greatnesse thrust vppon em. Thy fates open their hands, let thy blood and spirit embrace them, and to inure thy selfe to what thou art like to be: cast thy humble slough, and appeare fresh. Be opposite with a kinsman, surly with seruants: Let thy tongue tang arguments of state; put thy selfe into the tricke of singularitie. Shee thus aduises thee, that sighes for thee. Remember who commended thy yellow stockings, and wisht'd to see thee euer crosse garter'd: I say remember, goe too, thou art made if thou desir'st to be so: If not, let me see thee a Steward still, the fellow of seruants, and not woorthie to touch Fortunes fingers. Farewell, Shee that would alter seruices with thee, the fortunate vnhappy daylight and champian discouers not more: This is open. I will bee proud, I will reade politicke Authours, I will baffle Sir Toby, I will wash off grosse acquaintance, I will be point deuise, the very man. I do not now foole my selfe, to let imagination iade mee; for euery reason excites to this, that my Lady loues me. She did commend my yellow stockings of late, shee did praise my legge being crosse-garter'd, and in this she manifests her selfe to my loue, & with a kinde of iniunction drawes mee to these habites of her liking. I thanke my starres, I am happy: I will bee strange, stout, in yellow stockings, and crosse Garter'd, euen with the swiftnesse of putting on. Iour, and my starres be praised. Heere is yet a postscript. Thou canst not choose but know who I am. If thou entertainest my loue, let it appeare in thy smiling, thy smiles become thee well. Therefore in my presence still smile, deare my sweete, I prethee. Iour I thanke thee, I will smile, I will do euery thing that thou wilt haue me. Exit

Fab. I will not giue my part of this sport for a pention of thousands to be paid from the Sophy.

To. I could marry this wench for this deuice.

An. So could I too.

To. And ask no other dowry with her, but such another iest.

Enter Maria.

An. Nor I neither

Fab. Heere comes my noble gull catcher.

To Wilt thou set thy foote o'my necke.

An. Or o'mine either?

To. Shall I play my freedome at tray-trip, and become thy bondslaue?

An. Ifaith, or I either?

To. Why, thou hast put him in such a dreame, that when the image of it leaues him, he must run mad.

Ma. Nay but say true, do't worke vpon him?

To. Like Aqua vite with a Midwife.

Mar. If you will then see the fruites of the sport, mark his first approach before my Lady: hee will come to her in yellow stockings, and 'tis a colour she abhorres, and crosse garter'd, a fashion shee detests: and hee will smile vpon her, which will now be so vnsuteable to her disposition, being addicted to a melancholly, as shee is, that it cannot but turne him into a notable contempt: if you will see it follow me.

To. To the gates of Tartar, thou most excellent diuell of wit.

And Ile make one too Exeunt

Finis Actus secundus

Actus Tertius, Scæna prima.

Enter Viola and Clowne.

Vio. Saue thee Friend and thy Musick: dost thou liue by thy Tabor?

Clo. No sir, I liue by the Church.

Vio. Art thou a Churchman?

Clo. No such matter sir, I do liue by the Church: For, I do liue at my house, and my house doth stand by the Church

Vio. So thou maist say the King lyes by a beggar, if a beggar dwell neer him: or the Church stands by thy Tabor, if thy Tabor stand by the Church.

Clo. You haue said sir: To see this age: A sentence is but a cheu'rill glouue to a good witte, how quickely the wrong side may be turn'd outward.

Vio. Nay that's certaine: they that dally nicely with words, may quickely make them wanton.

Clo. I would therefore my sister had had no name Sir

Vio. Why man?

Clo. Why sir, her names a word, and to dallie with that word, might make my sister wanton: But indeede, words are very Rascals, since bonds disgrac'd them.

Vio. Thy reason man?

Clo.

h sir, I can yeeld you none without wordes, ere grownе so falle, I am loath to proue reа-
n.
ssant thou art a merry fellow, and rar'ſt for ſo ſir, I do care for ſomething: but in my condo not care for you: if that be to care for no-would it would make you inuiſible not thou the Lady Olivia ſ foole?

ndeed ſir, the Lady Olivia has no folly, ſhee o foole ſir, till ſhe be married, and fooles are ndſt, as Pilchers are to Herrings, the Hаſ gger, I am indeede not her foole, but her corrds.
w thee late at the Count Orſino's
ery ſir, does walke about the Orbe like the euery where. I would be ſorry ſir, but the l be as oft with your Maſter, as with my Mi-e I ſaw your wiſedome there.
r, and thou paſſe vpon me, Ile no more with there's expences for thee.
w loue in his next commodity of hayre, ſend ny troth Ile tell thee, I am almoſt ſicke for I would not haue it grow on my chinne. Is thin?

uld not a paire of theſe haue bred ſir?
being kept together, and put to vſe.
uld play Lord Pandarus of Phrygia ſir, to bring this Troylus
derſtand you ſir, tis well begg'd matter I hope is not great ſir, begging, but a Iſbida was a begger. My Lady is within ſir. I rothem whence you come, who you are, and ould are out of my welkin, I might ſay Elee word is ouer-worne. exit
s fellow is wiſe enough to play the foole, hat well, craues a kinde of wit
ſerue their mood on whom he teſts, of perſons, and the time
e Haggard, cheeke as euery Feather before his eye. This is practice, bour as a Wiſe-mans Art:
ас he wilfully ſhewes, it ſir,
is folly falne, quite taint their wit
Enter Sir Toby and Andrew you Gentleman.
d you ſir.
ew vow guard Monſieur
vow, voſtre ſeruiture.
hope ſir, you are, and I am yours.
d you incounter the houſe, my Neece is deſiould enter, if your trade be to her.
n bound to your Neece ſir, I meane ſhe is the oyage.
r your legges ſir, put them to motion.
legges do better vnderſtand me ſir, then I vn-ſtand you meane by bidding me taſte my legs.
ome to go ſir, to enter ll anſwer you with gate and entrance, but we rd.
Enter Olivia, and Gentlewoman.
ne accompliſh'd Lady, the heauens raine On.
at youth's a rare Courtier, raine odours, wel.
matter hath no voice Lady, but to your owne
moſt pregnant and vouchſafed eare
And Odours, pregnant, and vouchſafed: Ile get 'em all three already.
Ol. Let the Garden doore be ſhut, and leaue mee to my hearing. Giue me your hand ſir.
Vio My duty Madam, and moſt humble ſeruice.
Ol. What is your name?
Vio. Ceſario is your ſeruants name, faire Princeſſe.
Ol. My ſeruant ſir? 'Twas neuer merry world,
Since lowly feigning was call'd complement
y are ſeruant to the Count Orſino youth.
Vio And he is yours, and his muſt needs be yours:
your ſeruants ſeruant, is your ſeruant Madam.
Ol. For him, I thinke not on him: for his thoughts,
Would they were blankes, rather then fill'd with me
Vio Madam, I come to whet your gentle thoughts
On his behalfe
Ol. O by your leaue I pray you,
I had you neuer ſpeake againe of him:
But would you vndertake another ſuite
I had rather heare you, to ſolicit that,
Then Muſicke from the ſpheares.
Vio. Deere Lady
Ol. Giue me leaue, beſeech you: I did ſend,
After the laſt enchantment you did heare,
A Ring in chace of you. So did I abuſe
My ſelfe, my ſeruant, and I feare me you:
Vnder your hard conſtruction muſt I ſit,
To force that on you in a ſhamefull cunning
Which you knew none of yours. What might you think?
Haue you not ſet mine Honor at the ſtake
And baited it with all th'vnmuzled thoughts
That tyrannous heart can thinke? To one of your receiuing
Enough is ſhewne, a Cipreſſe, not a boſome,
Hides my hearts ſo let me heare you ſpeake.
Vio I pittie you.
Ol That's a degree to loue.
Vio. No not a grize: for 'tis a vulgar proofe
That very oft we pitty enemies
Ol Why then me thinkes 'tis time to ſmile agen:
O world, how apt the poore are to be proud?
If one ſhould be a prey, how much the better
To fall before the Lion, then the Wolfe?
Clocke ſtrikes.
The clocke vpbraides me with the waſte of time:
Be not affraid good youth, I will not haue you,
And yet when wit and youth is come to harueſt,
your wife is like to reape a proper man:
There lies your way, due Weſt.
Vio. Then Weſtward hoe.
Grace and good diſpoſition attend your Ladyſhip:
you'l nothing Madam to my Lord, by me:
Ol. Stay: I prethee tell me what thou think'ſt of me?
Vio. That you do thinke you are not what you are.
Ol. If I thinke ſo, I thinke the ſame of you.
Vio. Then thinke you right: I am not what I am.
Ol. I would you were, as I would haue you be.
Vio Would it be better Madam, then I am?
I wiſh it might, for now I am your foole.
Ol. O what a deale of ſcorne, lookes beautifull?
In the contempt and anger of his lip,
A murdrous guilt ſhewes not it ſelfe more ſoone,
Then loue that would ſeeme hid: Loues night, is noone.
Ceſario, by the Roſes of the Spring,
By maid-hood, honor, truth, and euery thing,
I loue thee ſo, that maugre all thy pride,

Nor wit, nor reason, can my passion hide:
Do not extort thy reasons from this clause,
For that I woo, thou therefore hast no cause:
But rather reason thus, with reason fetter;
Loue sought, is good: but given vnsought, is better.

Vio. By innocence I sweare, and by my youth,
I haue one heart, one bosome, and one truth,
And that no woman has, nor neuer none
Shall mistris be of it, saue I alone.
And so adieu good Madam, neuer more,
Will I my Masters teares to you deplore.

Ol. Yet come againe: for thou perhaps mayst moue
That heart which now abhorres to like his loue. Exeunt

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Sir Toby, Sir Andrew, and Fabian.

And. No faith, Ile not stay a iot longer:

To. Thy reason deere venom, giue thy reason.

Fab. You must needes yeelde your reason, Sir Andrew?

And. Marry I saw your Neece do more fauours to the Counts Seruing-man, then euer she bestow'd vpon me: I saw't i'th Orchard.

To. Did she see the while, old boy, tell me that.

And. As plaine as I see you now.

Fab. This was a great argument of loue in her toward you.

And. S'light; will you make an Asse o'me.

Fab. I will proue it legitimate sir, vpon the Oathes of iudgement, and reason.

To. And they haue beene grand-Iurie men, since before Noah was a Saylor.

Fab. Shee did shew fauour to the youth in your sight, onely to exasperate you, to awake your dormouse valour, to put fire in your Heart, and brimstone in your Liuer: you should then haue accosted her, and with some excellent iests, fire-new from the mint, you should haue bang'd the youth into dumbenesse: this was look'd for at your hand, and this was baulkt: the double gift of this opportunitie you let time wash off, and you are now sayld into the North of my Ladies opinion, where you will hang like an yscicle on a Dutchmans beard, vnlesse you do redeeme it, by some laudable attempt, either of valour or policie.

And. And't be any way, it must be with Valour, for policie I hate: I had as liefe be a Brownist, as a Politician.

To. Why then build me thy fortunes vpon the basis of valour. Challenge me the Counts youth to fight with him: hurt him in eleuen places, my Neece shall take note of it, and assure thy selfe, there is no loue-Broker in the world, can more preuaile in mans commendation with woman, then report of valour.

Fab. There is no way but this Sir Andrew.

An. Will either of you beare me a challenge to him?

To. Go, write it in a martial hand, be curst and briefe: it is no matter how wittie, so it bee eloquent, and full of inuention: taunt him with the licence of Inke: if thou thou'st him some thrice, it shall not be amisse, and as many Lyes, as will lye in thy sheete of paper, although the sheete were bigge enough for the bedde of Ware in England, set 'em downe, go about it. Let there bee gall enough in thy inke, though thou write with a Goose-pen, no matter: about it.

And. Where shall I finde you?

To. We'l call thee at the Cubiculo: Go.

Exit Sir Andrew.

Fa. This is a deere Manakin to you Sir Toby.

To. I haue beene deere to him lad, some two thousand strong, or so.

Fa. We shall haue a rare Letter from him: but you'le not deliuer't.

To. Neuer trust me then: and by all meanes stirre on the youth to an answer. I thinke Oxen and waine-ropes cannot hale them together. For Andrew, if he were open'd and you finde so much blood in his Liuer, as will clog the foote of a flea, Ile eate the rest of th'anatomy.

Fab. And his opposite the youth bears in his visage no great presage of cruelty.

Enter Maria.

To. Looke where the youngest Wren of mine comes.

Mar. If you desire the spleene, and will laughe your selues into stitches, follow me: yond gull Malvolio is turned Heathen, a verie Renegatho; for there is no christian that meanes to be saued by beleeuing rightly, can euer beleeue such impossible passages of grossenesse. He's in yellow stockings.

To. And crosse garter'd?

Mar. Most villanously: like a Pedant that keepes a Schoole i'th Church: I haue dogg'd him like his murtherer. He does obey euery point of the Letter that I dropt, to betray him: He does smile his face into more lynes, then is in the new Mappe, with the augmentation of the Indies: you haue not seene such a thing as 'tis: I can hardly forbeare hurling things at him. I know my Ladie will strike him: if shee doe, he'l smile, and take't for a great fauour.

To. Come bring vs, bring vs where he is.

Exeunt Omnes.

Scæna Tertia.

Enter Sebastian and Anthonio.

Seb. I would not by my will haue troubled you,
But since you make your pleasure of your paines,
I will no further chide you.

Ant. I could not stay behinde you: my desire
(More sharpe then filed steele) did spurre me forth,
And not all loue to see you (though so much
As might haue drawne one to a longer voyage)
But iealousie, what might befall your trauell,
Being skilfesse in these parts: which to a stranger,
Vnguided, and vnfriended, often prooue
Rough, and vnhospitable. My willing loue,
The rather by these arguments of feare
Set forth in your pursuite.

Seb. My kinde Anthonio,
I can no other answer make, but thankes,
And thankes: and euer oft good turnes,
Are shuffel'd off with such vncurrant pay:
But were my worth, as is my conscience firme,

You

ide better dealing: what's to do?
e the reliques of this Towne?
norrow sir, best first go see your Lodging?
ot weary, and 'tis long to night s satisfie our eyes norials, and the things of fame
ene this City.
uld you'd pardon me:
ot danger walke these streeter.
ight 'gainst the Count his gallies,
uice, of such note indeede,
ne here, it would scarse be answer'd.
you slew great number of his people.
ffence is not of such a bloody nature,
lity of the time, and quarrell
ue given vs bloody argument:
since bene answer'd in repaying e from them, which for Traffiques sake ity did. Onely my selfe stood out, be lapsed in this place
re.
t then walke too open.
th not sir me: hold sir, here's my purse,
uburbes at the Elephant
e: I will bespeake our dyet, eguile the time, and feed your knowledge of the Towne, there shall you haue me.
I your purse?
your eye shall light vpon some toy
re to purchase: and your store for idle Markets, sir.
your purse-bearer, and leaue you h'Elephant.

emember. Exeunt.

Scena Quarta.

Enter Olivia and Maria.

sent after him, he sayes hee'l come:
tell him? What best how of him?
ought more of, then begg'd, or borrow'd.
ud: Where's Malvolio, he is sad, and civill, ll for a servant with my fortunes,
lvolio?
's comming Madame:
range manner. He is sure possest Madam.
what's the matter, does he raue?
Madam, he does nothing but smile: your La-ship sa haue some guard about you, if hee
the man is tainted in's wits.
ll him hither.

Enter Malvolio.

e as hee,
ry madnesse equall bee.
lvolio?
es Lady, ho, ho.
thou? I sent for thee vpon a sad occasion.
Lady, I could be sad:
ke some obstruction in the blood:
rrering, but what of that?
If it please the eye of one, it is with me as the very true Sonnet is: Please one, and please all.

Mal. Why how doest thou man? What is the matter with thee?

Mal. Not black in my minde, though yellow in my legges: It did come to his hands, and Commaunds shall be executed. I thinke we doe know the sweet Romane hand.

Ol. Wilt thou go to bed Malvolio?

Mal. To bed? I sweet heart, and Ile come to thee.

Ol. God comfort thee: Why dost thou smile so, and kisse thy hand so oft?

Mar. How do you Malvolio?

Malv. At your request: Yes Nightingales answere Dawes.

Mar. Why appeare you with this ridiculous boldnesse before my Lady.

Mal. Be not afraid of greatnesse: 'twas well writ.

Ol. What meanst thou by that Malvolio?

Mal. Some are borne great.

Ol. Ha?

Mal. Some atcheeue greatnesse.

Ol. What sayst thou?

Mal. And some haue greatnesse thrust vpon them.

Ol. Heauen restore thee.

Mal. Remember who commended thy yellow stockings.

Ol Thy yellow stockings?

Mal And wish'd to see thee crosse garter'd.

Ol. Crosse garter'd?

Mal. Go too, thou art made, if thou desir'st to be so.

Ol. Am I made?

Mal. If not, let me see thee a servant still.

Ol. Why this is verie Midsommer madnesse.

Enter Servant.

Ser. Madame, the young Gentleman of the Count Orsino's is return'd, I could hardly entreate him backe: he attends your Ladyships pleasure.

Ol. Ile come to him.
Good Maria, let this fellow be look'd too. Where's my Cosine Toby, let some of my people haue a speciall care of him, I would not haue him miscarrie for the halfe of my Dowry. exit

Mal. Oh ho, do you come neere me now: no worse man then sir Toby to looke to me. This concurres directly with the Letter, she sends him on purpose, that I may appeare stubborne to him: for she incites me to that in the Letter. Cast thy humble slough sayes she: be opposite with a Kinsman, surly with servants, let thy tongue tanger with arguments of state, put thy selfe into the tricke of singularity: and consequently sets downe the manner how: as a sad face, a reverend carriage, a slow tongue, in the habite of some Sir of note, and so forth. I haue lymde her, but it is Ioues doing, and Ioue make me thankefull. And when she went away now, let this Fellow be look'd too: Fellow? not Malvolio, not after my degree, but Fellow. Why every thing adheres together, that no dramme of a scruple, no scruple of a scruple, no obstacle, no incredulous or unsafe circumstance: What can be saide? Nothing that can be, can come betweene me, and the full prospect of my hopes. Well Ioue, not I, is the doer of this, and he is to be thanked.

Enter Toby, Fabian, and Maria.

To. Which way is hee in the name of ſanctity. If all the diuels of hell be drawne in little, and Legion himſelfe poſſeſt him, yet Ile ſpeake to him.

Fab. Heere he is, heere he is: how iſt with you ſir? How iſt with you man?

Mal. Go off, I diſcard you: let me enioy my priuate: go off.

Mar. Lo, how hollow the fiend ſpeakes within him; did not I tell you? Sir Toby, my Lady prayes you to haue a care of him.

Mal. Ah ha, does ſhe ſo?

To. Go too, go too: peace, peace, we muſt deale gently with him: Let me alone. How do you Malvolio? How iſt with you? What man, defie the diuell: conſider, he's an enemy to mankinde.

Mal. Do you know what you ſay?

Mar. La you, and you ſpeake ill of the diuell, how he takes it at heart. Pray God he be not bewitch'd.

Fab. Carry his water to th'wiſe woman.

Mar. Marry and it ſhall be done to morrow morning if I liue. My Lady would not looſe him for more then Ile ſay.

Mal. How now miſtris?

Mar. Oh Lord.

To. Prethee hold thy peace, this is not the way: Doe you not ſee you moue him? Let me alone with him.

Fa. No way but gentleneſſe, gently, gently: the Fiend is rough, and will not be roughly vs'd.

To. Why how now my bawcock? how doſt? chuck?

Mal. Sir.

To. I biddy, come with me. What man, tis not for gravity to play at cherrie-pit with Sathan. Hang him foul Collier.

Mar. Get him to ſay his prayers, good ſir Toby get him to pray.

Mal. My prayers Minx.

Mar. No I warrant you, he will not heare of godlyneſſe.

Mal. Go hang your ſelues all: you are idle ſhallowe things, I am not of your element, you ſhall knowe more hereafter. Exit

To. Iſt poſſible?

Fa. If this were plaid vpon a ſtage now, I could condemne it as an improbable fiction.

To. His very genius hath taken the infection of the deuice man.

Mar. Nay purſue him now, leaſt the deuice take ayre, and taint.

Fa. Why we ſhall make him mad indeede.

Mar. The houſe will be the quieter.

To. Come, wee'l haue him in a darke roome & bound. My Neece is already in the beleefe that he's mad: we may carry it thus for our pleaſure, and his penance, til our very paſtime tyred out of breath, prompt vs to haue mercy on him: at which time, we will bring the deuice to the bar and crowne thee for a finder of madmen: but ſee, but ſee.

Enter Sir Andrew.

Fa. More matter for a May morning.

An. Heere's the Challenge, reade it: I warrant there's vinegar and pepper in't.

Fab. Iſt ſo ſawcy?

And. I, iſt I warrant him: do but read.

To. Giue me.

Youth, whatſoeuer thou art, thou art but a ſcurvy fellow.

Fa. Good and valiant.

To. Wonder not, nor admire not in thy minde, why I do call thee ſo, for I will ſhow thee no reaſon for't. (Law

Fa. A good note, that keepes you from the blow of law.

To. Thou comſt to the Lady Olivia and in my ſight ſhe vſes thee kindly: but thou lyeſt in thy throat, that is not the matter I challenge thee for.

Fa. Very breefe, and to exceeding good ſence-leſſe.

To. I will way-lay thee going home, where if it be thy chance to kill me.

Fa. Good.

To. Thou kilſt me like a rogue and a villaine.

Fa. Still you keepe o'th windie ſide of the Law: good.

Tob. Fartheewell, and God haue mercie vpon one of our ſoules. He may haue mercie vpon mine, but my hope is better, and ſo looke to thy ſelfe. Thy friend as thou vſeſt him, & thy ſworne enemie, Andrew Ague-cheeke.

To. If this Letter moue him not, his legges cannot: Ile giu't him.

Mar. You may haue verie fit occaſion for't: he is now in ſome commerce with my Ladie, and will by and by depart.

To. Go ſir Andrew: ſcout me for him at the corner of the Orchard like a bum-Baylie: ſo ſoone as ever thou ſeeſt him, draw, and as thou draw'ſt, ſweare horrible: for it comes to paſſe oft, that a terrible oath, with a ſwaggering accent ſharply twang'd off, giues manhoode more approbation, then ever proofe it ſelfe would haue earn'd him. Away.

And. Nay let me alone for ſwearing. Exit

To. Now will not I deliuer his Letter: for the behauiour of the yong Gentleman, giues him out to be of good capacity, and breeding: his employment betweene his Lord and my Neece, confirmes no leſſe. Therefore, this Letter being ſo excellently ignorant, will breed no terror in the youth: he will finde it comes from a Clodde-pole. But ſir, I will deliuer his Challenge by word of mouth; ſet vpon Ague-cheeke a notable report of valor, and driue the Gentleman (as I know his youth will aptly receiue it) into a moſt hideous opinion of his rage, ſkill, furie, and impetuoſitie. This will ſo fright them both, that they will kill one another by the looke, like Cockatrices.

Enter Olivia and Viola.

Fab. Heere he comes with your Neece, giue them way till he take leaue, and preſently after him.

To. I will meditate the while vpon ſome horrid meſſage for a Challenge.

Ol. I haue ſaid too much vnto a hart of ſtone,
And laid mine honour too vnchary on't:
There's ſomething in me that reproues my fault:
But ſuch a head-ſtrong potent fault it is,
That it but mockes reproofe.

Vio. With the ſame haujour that your paſſion beares,
Goes on my Maſters greefes.

Ol. Heere, weare this Jewell for me, tis my picture:
Refuſe it not, it hath no tongue, to vex you:
And I beſeech you come againe to morrow.
What ſhall you aske of me that Ile deny,
That honour (ſau'd) may vpon asking giue.

Vio. Nothing but this, your true loue for my maſter.

Ol. How with mine honor may I giue him that,
Which I haue giuen to you.

Vio I will acquit you.

Ol. Well, come againe to morrow: far-thee-well,
A Fiend like thee might beare my ſoule to hell.

Enter Toby and Fabian.

To. Gentleman, God ſaue thee.

Vio.

Vio. And you sir

To. That defiance thou hast, betake the too't: of what nature the wrongs are thou hast done him, I knowe not: but thy intercepter full of despight, bloody as the Hunter, attends thee at the Orchard end: dismount thy tucke, be yare in thy preparation, for thy assayliant is quick, skilfull, and deadly.

Vio. You mistake sir I am sure, no man hath any quarrell to me: my remembrance is very free and cleere from any image of offence done to any man.

To. You'l finde it otherwise I assure you: therefore, if you hold your life at any price, betake you to your gard: for your opposite hath in him what youth, strength, skill, and wrath, can furnish man withall.

Vio. I pray you sir what is he?

To. He is knight dubb'd with unhatch'd Rapier, and on carpet consideration, but he is a diuell in private brall, soules and bodies hath he diuorc'd three, and his incensement at this moment is so implacable, that satisfaction can be none, but by pangs of death and sepulchre: Hob, nob, is his word: giu't or take't.

Vio. I will returne againe into the house, and desire some conduct of the Lady. I am no fighter, I haue heard of some kinde of men, that put quarrells purposely on others, to taste their valour: belike this is a man of that quirke

To. Sir, no: his indignation deriues it selfe out of a very competent iniurie, therefore get you on, and giue him his desire. Backe you shall not to the house, vnlesse you undertake that with me, which with as much safetie you might answer him: therefore on, or strippe your sword starke naked: for meddle you must that's certain, or forsweare to weare iron about you.

Vio. This is as vncivill as strange. I beseech you, doe me this courteous office, as to know of the Knight what my offence to him is: it is something of my negligence, nothing of my purpose.

To. I will doe so. Signiour Fabian, stay you by this Gentleman, till my returne. Exit Toby.

Vio. Pray you sir, do you know of this matter?

Fab. I know the knight is incenst against you, euen to a mortall arbitrement, but nothing of the circumstance more.

Vio. I beseech you what manner of man is he?

Fab. Nothing of that wonderfull promise to read him by his forme, as you are like to finde him in the proofe of his valour. He is indeede sir, the most skilfull, bloody, & fatall opposite that you could possibly haue found in any part of Illyria: will you walke towards him, I will make your peace with him, if I can.

Vio. I shall bee much bound to you for't: I am one, that had rather go with sir Priest, then sir knight: I care not who knowes so much of my mettle. Exeunt.

Enter Toby and Andrew.

To. Why man hee's a verie diuell, I haue not seen such a firago: I had a passe with him, rapier, scabberd, and all: and he giues me the stucke in with such a mortall motion that it is inevitable: and on the answer, he payes you as surely, as your feete hits the ground they step on. They say, he has bin Fencer to the Sophy.

And. Pox on't I'le not meddle with him.

To. I but he will not now be pacified, Fabian can scarse hold him yonder.

An. Plague on't, and I thought he had beene valiant, and so cunning in Fence, I'de haue seene him damn'd ere I'de haue challeng'd him. Let him let the matter slip, and Ile giue him my horse, gray Capilet.

To. Ile make the motion: stand heere, make a good shew on't, this shall end without the perdition of soules, marry I'le ride your horse as well as I ride you.

Enter Fabian and Viola.

I haue his horse to take vp the quarrell, I haue perswaded him the youths a diuell.

Fa. He is as horribly conceited of him: and pants, & lookes pale, as if a Beare were at his heeles.

To. There's no remedie sir, he will fight with you for's oath sake: marrie hee hath better bethought him of his quarrell, and hee findes that now scarse to bee worth talking of: therefore draw for the supportance of his vowe, he protests he will not hurt you.

Vio. Pray God defend me: a little thing would make me tell them how much I lacke of a man.

Fab. Giue ground if you see him furious.

To. Come sir Andrew, there's no remedie, the Gentleman will for his honors sake haue one bowt with you: he cannot by the Duello auoide it: but hee has promised me, as he is a Gentleman and a Soldiour, he will not hurt you. Come on, too't.

And. Pray God he keepe his oath.

Enter Antonio.

Vio. I do assure you tis against my will.

Ant. Put vp your sword: if this yong Gentleman
Haue done offence, I take the fault on me:
If you offend him, I for him defie you.

To. You sir? Why, what are you?

Ant. One sir, that for his loue dares yet do more
Then you haue heard him brag to you he will.

To. Nay, if you be an vndertaker, I am for you.

Enter Officers.

Fab. O good sir Toby hold: heere come the Officers.

To. Ile be with you anon.

Vio. Pray sir, put your sword vp if you please.

And. Marry will I sir: and for that I promis'd you Ile be as good as my word. Hee will beare you easily, and reines well.

1. Off. This is the man, do thy Office.

2 Off. Antonio, I arrest thee at the suit of Count Orsino

Ant. You do mistake me sir.

1. Off. No sir, no iot: I know your fauour well:
Though now you haue no sea-cap on your head:
Take him away, he knowes I know him well.

Ant. I must obey. This comes with seeking you:
But there's no remedie, I shall answer it:
What will you do: now my necessitie
Makes me to aske you for my purse, It greeues mee
Much more, for what I cannot do for you,
Then what befalls my selfe: you stand amaz'd,
But be of comfort.

2 Off. Come sir away.

Ant. I must entreat of you some of that money.

Vio. What money sir?
For the fayre kindnesse you haue shew'd me heere,
And part being prompted by your present trouble,
Out of my leane and low ability
Ile lend you something: my hauing is not much,
Ile make diuision of my present with you:
Hold, there's halfe my Coffer.

Ant. Will you deny me now,
Is't possible that my deserts to you
Can lacke perswasion. Do not tempt my misery,
Least that it make me so vnsound a man
As to vpbraid you with those kindnesses

That I haue done for you.

Vio. I know of none,
Nor know I you by voyce, or any feature:
I hate ingratitude more in a man,
Then lying, vainneſſe, babling drunkennеſſe,
Or any taint of vice, whoſe ſtrong corruption
Inhabites our fraile blood.

Ant. Oh heauens themſelues.

2. Off. Come ſir, I pray you go.

Ant. Let me ſpeake a little. This youth that you ſee
I ſnatch'd one halfe out of the iawes of death, (heere,
Releen'd him with ſuch ſanctitie of loue:
And to his image, which me thought did promiſe
Moſt venerable worth, did I deuotion.

1. Off. What's that to vs, the time goes by: Away.

Ant. But oh, how vilde an idoll proues this God:
Thou haſt Sebaſtian done good feature, ſhame.
In Nature, there's no blemiſh but the minde:
None can be call'd deform'd, but the vnkinde.
Vertue is beauty, but the beauteous euill
Are empty trunkes, ore-flouriſh'd by the deuill.

1. Off. The man growes mad, away with him:
Come, come ſir.

Ant. Leade me on. Exit

Vio. Me thinkes his words do from ſuch paſſion flye
That he beleeues himſelfe, ſo do not I:
Proue true imagination, oh proue true,
That I deere brother, be now tane for you.

To. Come hither Knight, come hither Fabian: Well whiſper ore a couplet or two of moſt ſage ſawes.

Vio. He nam'd Sebaſtian: I my brother know
Yet liuing in my glaſſe: euen ſuch, and ſo
In fauour was my Brother, and he went
Still in this faſhion, colour, ornament,
For him I imitate: Oh if it proue,
Tempeſts are kinde, and ſalt waues freſh in loue.

To. A very diſhoneſt paltry boy, and more a coward then a Hare, his diſhoneſty appeares, in leauing his frend heere in neceſſity, and denying him: and for his coward ſhip aske Fabian.

Fab. A Coward, a moſt deuout Coward, religious in it.

And. Slid Ile after him againe, and beate him.

To. Do, cuffe him ſoundly, but neuer draw thy ſword

And. And I do not.

Fab. Come, let's ſee the euent.

To. I dare lay any money, twill be nothing yet. Exit

Actus Quartus, Scæna prima.

Enter Sebaſtian and Clowne.

Clo. Will you make me beleeue, that I am not ſent for you?

Seb. Go too, go too, thou art a fooliſh fellow,
Let me be cleere of thee.

Clo. Well held out yfaith: No, I do not know you, nor I am not ſent to you by my Lady, to bid you come ſpeake with her: nor your name is not Maſter Coſario, nor this is not my noſe neyther: Nothing that is ſo, is ſo.

Seb. I prethee vent thy folly ſome-where elſe, thou know ſt not me.

Clo. Vent my folly: He has heard that word of ſome great man, and now applyes it to a foole. Vent my folly: I am afraid this great lubber the World will proue a Cockney: I prethee now vngird thy ſtrangeneſs, and tell me what I ſhall vent to my Lady? Shall I vent to her that thou art comming?

Seb. I prethee fooliſh greeke depart from me, there's money for thee, if you tarry longer, I ſhall giue worſe paiment.

Clo. By my troth thou haſt an open hand: theſe Wiſemen that giue fooles money, get themſelues a good report, after fourteene yeares purchaſe.

Enter Andrew, Toby, and Fabian.

And. Now ſir, haue I met you again: there's for you.

Seb. Why there's for thee, and there, and there,
Are all the people mad?

To Hold ſir, or Ile throw your dagger ore the houſe

Clo. This will I tell my Lady ſtraight, I would not be in ſome of your coats for two pence.

To. Come on ſir, hold.

An. Nay let him alone, Ile go another way to worke with him: Ile haue an action of Battery againſt him, if there be any law in Illyria: though I ſtroke him firſt, yet 's no matter for that.

Seb. Let go thy hand.

To. Come ſir, I will not let you go. Come my yong ſouldier put vp your yron: you are well fleſh'd: Come on.

Seb. I will be free from thee. What would'ſt thou now? If thou dar'ſt tempt me further, draw thy ſword

To. What, what? Nay then I muſt haue an Ounce or two of this malapert blood from you.

Enter Olivia.

Ol. Hold Toby, on thy life I charge thee hold.

To. Madam.

Ol. Will it be euer thus? Vngracious wretch,
Fit for the Mountaines, and the barbarous Caues,
Where manners nere were preach'd: out of my ſight.
Be not offended, deere Coſario:
Rudeſbey be gone. I prethee gentle friend,
Let thy fayre wiſedome, not thy paſſion ſway
In this vnciuill, and vniuſt extent
Againſt thy peace. Go with me to my houſe,
And heare thou there how many fruitleſſe prankes
This Ruffian hath botch'd vp, that thou thereby
Mayſt ſmile at this: Thou ſhalt not chooſe but goe:
Do not denie, beſhrew his ſoule for mee,
He ſtarted one poore heart of mine, in thee.

Seb. What relliſh is in this? How runs the ſtreame?
Or I am mad, or elſe this is a dreame:
Let fancie ſtill my ſenſe in Lethe ſleepe,
If it be thus to dreame, ſtill let me ſleepe.

Ol. Nay come I prethee, would thou'ſt be rul'd by me

Seb. Madam, I will

Ol. O ſay ſo, and ſo be. Exeunt

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Maria and Clowne.

Mar. Nay, I prethee put on this gowne, & this beard, make him beleeue thou art ſir Topas the Curate, doe it quickly. Ile call ſir Toby the whilſt.

Clo. Well, Ile put it on, and I will diſſemble my ſelfe in't, and I would I were the firſt that euer diſſembled in ſuch in such a gowne. I am not tall enough to become the function well, nor leane enough to bee thought a good Student: but to be said an honest man and a good house keeper goes as fairely, as to say, a carefull man, & a great scholler. The Competitors enter.

Enter Toby.

To. Ioue blesse thee M. Parson.

Clo. Bonos dies sir Toby: for as the old hermit of Prage that neuer saw pen and inke, very wittily sayd to a Neece of King Gorboduke, that that is, is: so I being M. Parson, am M. Parson; for what is that, but that? and is, but is?

To. To him sir Topas.

Clow. What hoa, I say, Peace in this prison.

To. The knaue counterfeits well: a good knaue.

Malvolio within.

Mal. Who calls there?

Clo. Sir Topas the Curate, who comes to visit Malvolio the Lunatick.

Mal. Sir Topas, sir Topas, good sir Topas goe to my Ladie.

Clo. Out hyperbolicall fiend, how vexest thou this man? Talkest thou nothing but of Ladies?

Tob. Well said M. Parson.

Mal. Sir Topas, never was man thus wronged, good sir Topas do not thinke I am mad: they have layde mee heere in hideous darkenesse.

Clo. Fye, thou dishonest Sathan: I call thee by the most modest termes, for I am one of those gentle ones, that will use the diuell himselfe with courtesie: sayst thou that house is darke?

Mal. As hell sir Topas.

Clo. Why it hath bay Windowes transparant as barricadoes, and the cleere stores toward the South north, are as lustrous as Ebony: and yet complainest thou of obstruction?

Mal. I am not mad sir Topas, I say to you this house is darke.

Clo. Madman thou errest: I say there is no darkenesse but ignorance, in which thou art more puzel'd then the Egyptians in their fogge.

Mal. I say this house is as darke as Ignorance, though Ignorance were as darke as hell, and I say there was never man thus abus'd, I am no more madde then you are, make the triall of it in any constant question.

Clo. What is the opinion of Pythagoras concerning Wilde-fowle?

Mal. That the soule of our grandam, might happily inhabite a bird.

Clo. What thinkst thou of his opinion?

Mal. I thinke nobly of the soule, and no way approue his opinion.

Clo. Fare thee well: remaine thou still in darkenesse, thou shalt hold th'opinion of Pythagoras, ere I will allow of thy wits, and feare to kill a Woodcocke, lest thou dispossesse the soule of thy grandam. Fare thee well.

Mal. Sir Topas, sir Topas.

Tob. My most exquisite sir Topas.

Clo. Nay I am for all waters.

Mar. Thou might'st haue done this without thy beard and gowne, he sees thee not.

To. To him in thine owne voyce, and bring me word how thou findst him: I would we were well ridde of this knauery. If he may bee conueniently deliuer'd, I would he were, for I am now so farre in offence with my Niece, that I cannot pursue with any safety this sport the vppe-shot. Come by and by to my Chamber. Exit

Clo. Hey Robin, iolly Robin, tell me how thy Lady does.

Mal. Foole.

Clo. My Lady is vnkind, perdie.

Mal. Foole.

Clo. Alas why is she so?

Mal. Foole, I say.

Clo. She loues another. Who calles, ha?

Mal. Good foole, as euer thou wilt deserue well at my hand, helpe me to a Candle, and pen, inke, and paper: as I am a Gentleman, I will liue to bee thankefull to thee for't.

Clo. M. Malvolio?

Mal. I good Foole.

Clo. Alas sir, how fell you besides your fiue wittes?

Mal. Foole, there was never man so notoriously abus'd: I am as well in my wits (foole) as thou art.

Clo. But as well: then you are mad indeede, if you be no better in your wits then a foole.

Mal. They have heere propertied me: keepe mee in darkenesse, send Ministers to me, Asses, and do all they can to face me out of my wits.

Clo. Aduise you what you say: the Minister is heere. Malvolio, Malvolio, thy wittes the heauens restore: endeauour thy selfe to sleepe, and leaue thy vaine bibble babble

Mal. Sir Topas

Clo. Maintaine no words with him good fellow. Who I sir, not I sir. God buy you good sir Topas: Marry Amen. I will sir, I will.

Mal. Foole, foole, foole I say.

Clo. Alas sir be patient. What say you sir, I am sham'd for speaking to you.

Mal. Good foole, helpe me to some light, and some paper, I tell thee I am as well in my wittes, as any man in Illyria.

Clo. Well-a-day, that you were sir.

Mal. By this hand I am: good foole, some inke, paper, and light: and conuey what I will set downe to my Lady: it shall aduantage thee more, then euer the bearing of Letter did.

Clo. I will helpe you too't. But tel me true, are you not mad indeed, or do you but counterfeit.

Mal. Beleeue me I am not, I tell thee true.

Clo. Nay, Ile nere beleeue a madman till I see his braines I will fetch you light, and paper, and inke.

Mal. Foole, Ile requite it in the highest degree: I prethee be gone.

Clo. I am gone sir, and anon sir,
I'le be with you againe:
In a trice, like to the old vice,
your needes to sustaine.
Who with dagger of lath, in his rage and his wrath,
cries ah ha, to the diuell:
Like a mad lad, pare thy nayles dad,
Adieu good man diuell. Exit

Scæna Tertia.

Enter Sebastian.

This is the ayre, that is the glorious Sunne,
This pearle she gaue me, I do feel't, and see't,
And though 'tis wonder that enwraps me thus,

Yet

Yet 'tis not maunette. Where's Anthonio then,
I could not finde him at the Elephant,
Yet there he was, and there I found this credite,
That he did range the towne to seeke me out,
His councell now might do me golden seruice,
For though my soule disputes well with my sence,
That this may be some error, but no madnesse,
Yet doth this accident and flood of Fortune,
So farre exceed all instance, all discourse,
That I am readie to distrust mine eyes,
And wrangle with my reason that perswades me
To any other trust, but that I am mad,
Or else the Ladies mad; yet if 'were so,
She could not sway her house, command her followers,
Take, and giue backe affayres, and their dispatch,
With such a smooth, discreet, and stable bearing
As I perceiue she do's: there's something in't
That is deceiueable. But heere the Lady comes.

Enter Olivia, and Priest.

Ol. Blame not this haste of mine: if you meane well
Now go with me, and with this holy man
Into the Chantry by: there before him,
And vnderneath that consecrated roofe,
Plighte me the full assurance of your faith,
That my most iealious, and too doubtfull soule
May liue at peace. He shall conceale it
Whiles you are willing it shall come to note,
What time we will our celebration keepe
According to my birth, what do you say?

Seb. Ile follow this good man, and go with you,
And hauing sworne truth, euer will be true.

Ol. Then lead the way good father, & heauens so shine,
That they may fairely note this acte of mine. Exeunt.

Finis Actus Quartus.

Actus Quintus. Scena Prima.

Enter Clowne and Fabian.

Fab. Now as thou lou'st me, let me see his Letter.

Clo. Good M. Fabian, grant me another request.

Fab. Any thing.

Clo. Do not desire to see this Letter.

Fab. This is to giue a dogge, and in recompence desire my dogge againe.

Enter Duke, Viola, Curio, and Lords.

Duke. Belong you to the Lady Olivia, friends?

Clo. I sir, we are some of her trappings.

Duke. I know thee well: how dost thou my good Fellow?

Clo. Truely sir, the better for my foes, and the worse for my friends.

Du. Iust the contrary: the better for thy friends.

Clo. No sir, the worse.

Du. How can that be?

Clo. Marry sir, they praise me, and make an asse of me: now my foes tell me plainly, I am an Asse: so that by my foes sir, I profit in the knowledge of my selfe, and by my friends I am abused: so that conclusions to be as kisses, if your foure negatiues make your two affirmatiues, why then the worse for my friends, and the better for my foes.

Du. Why this is excellent.

Clo. By my troth sir, no: though it please you to be one of my friends.

Du. Thou shalt not be the worse for me, there's gold.

Clo. But that it would be double dealing sir, I would you could make it another.

Du. O you giue me ill counsell.

Clo. Put your grace in your pocket sir, for this once, and let your flesh and blood obey it.

Du. Well, I will be so much a sinner to be a double dealer: there's another.

Clo. Primo, secundo, tertio, is a good play, and the olde saying is, the third payes for all: the triplex sir, is a good tripping measure, or the belles of S. Bennet sir, may put you in minde, one, two, three.

Du. You can foole no more money out of mee at this throw: if you will let your Lady know I am here to speak with her, and bring her along with you, it may awake my bounty further.

Clo. Marry sir, lullaby to your bountie till I come agen. I go sir, but I would not haue you to thinke, that my desire of hauing is the sinne of couetousnesse: but as you say sir, let your bounty take a nappe, I will awake it anon. Exit

Enter Anthonio and Officers.

Vio. Here comes the man sir, that did rescue mee.

Du. That face of his I do remember well, yet when I saw it last, it was besmear'd
As blacke as Vulcan, in the smoake of warre:
A bawbling Vessell was he Captaine of,
For shallow draught and bulke vnprizable,
With which such scathfull grapple did he make,
With the most noble bottome of our Fleete,
That very enuy, and the tongue of losse
Cride fame and honor on him: What's the matter?

1 Offi. Orsino, this is that Anthonio
That tooke the Phoenix, and her fraught from Candy,
And this is he that did the Tyger boord,
When your yong Nephew Titus lost his legge:
Heere in the streets, desperate of shame and state,
In priuate brabble did we apprehend him.

Vio. He did me kindnesse sir, drew on my side,
But in conclusion put strange speech vpon me,
I know not what 'twas, but distraction.

Du. Notable Pyrate, thou salt-water Theefe,
What foolish boldnesse brought thee to their mercies,
Whom thou in termes so bloudie, and so deere
Hast made thine enemies?

Ant. Orsino Noble sir,
Be pleas'd that I shake off these names you giue mee:
Anthonio neuer yet was Theefe, or Pyrate,
Though I confesse, on base and ground enough
Orsino's enemie. A witchcraft drew me hither:
That most ingratefull boy there by your side,
From the rude seas enrag'd and foamy mouth
Did I redeeme: a wracke past hope he was:
His life I gaue him, and did thereto adde
My loue without retention, or restraint,
All his in dedication. For his sake,
Did I expose my selfe (pure for his loue)
Into the danger of this aduerse Towne,
Drew to defend him, when he was beset:
Where being apprehended, his false cunning
(Not meaning to partake with me in danger)
Taught him to face me out of his acquaintance,

And

And grew a twentie yeeres removed thing
While one would winke: denide me mine owne purſe,
Which I had recommended to his vſe,
Not halfe an houre before.
How can this be?
Du. When came he to this Towne?
Ant. To day my Lord: and for three months before,
No interim, not a minutes vacancie,
Both day and night did we keepe companie.
Enter Oliuia and attendants.
Du. Heere comes the Counteſſe, now heauen walkes on earth:
But for thee fellow, fellow thy words are madneſſe,
Three monthes this youth hath tended vpon me,
But more of that anon. Take him aſide.
Ol. What would my Lord, but that he may not haue,
Wherein Oliuia may ſeeme ſeruiceable?
Ceſario, you do not keepe promiſe with me.
Vio. Madam.
Du. Gracious Oliuia.
Ol. What do you ſay Ceſario? Good my Lord.
Vio. My Lord would ſpeake my duties huſhes me.
Ol. If it be ought to the old tune my Lord,
It is as fat and fulſome to mine eare
As howling after Muſicke.
Du. Still ſo cruell?
Ol. Still ſo conſtant Lord.
Du. What to perueriſeneſſe? you vnciuill Ladie
To whoſe ingrate, and vnauſpicious Altars
My ſoule the faithfull'ſt offrings haue breath'd out
That ere deuotion tender'd. What ſhall I do?
Ol. Euen what it pleaſe my Lord, that ſhall becom him
Du. Why ſhould I not, (had I the heart to do it)
Like to th'Egyptian theefe, at point of death
Kill what I loue: (a ſauage iealouſie,
That ſometime ſauours nobly) but heare me this:
Since you to non-regardance caſt my faith,
And that I partly know the inſtrument
That ſcrewes me from my true place in your fauour:
Liue you the Marble breſted Tirant ſtill.
But this your Minion, whom I know you loue,
And whom, by heauen I ſweare, I tender dearely,
Him will I teare out of that cruell eye,
Where he ſits crowned in his maſters ſpight
Come boy with me, my thoughts are ripe in miſchiefe:
Ile ſacrifice the Lambe that I do loue,
To ſpight a Rauens heart within a Doue.
Vio. And I moſt iocund, apt, and willinglie,
To do you reſt, a thouſand deaths would dye
Ol. Where goes Ceſario?
Vio. After him I loue,
More then I loue theſe eyes, more then my life,
More by all mores, then ere I ſhall loue wife.
If I do feigne, you witneſſes aboue
Puniſh my life, for tainting of my loue.
Ol. Aye me deteſted, how am I beguil'd?
Vio. Who does beguile you? who does do you wrong?
Ol. Haſt thou forgot thy ſelfe: Is it ſo long?
Call forth the holy Father.
Du. Come, away.
Ol. Whither my Lord? Ceſario, Husband, ſtay.
Du. Husband?
Ol. I Husband. Can he that deny?
Du. Her husband, ſirrah?
Vio. No my Lord, not I.
Ol. Alas, it is the baſeneſſe of thy feare,
That makes thee ſtrangle thy propriety:
Feare not Ceſario, take thy fortunes vp
Be that thou know'ſt thou art, and then thou art
As great as that thou fear'ſt.
Enter Prieſt.
O welcome Father:
Father, I charge thee by thy reuerence
Heere to vnfold, though lately we intended
To keepe in darkeneſſe, what occaſion now
Reueales before 'tis ripe: what thou doſt know
Hath newly paſt, betweene this youth, and me.
Prieſt. A Contract of eternall bond of loue,
Confirm'd by mutuall ioynder of your hands,
Attеſted by the holy cloſe of lippes,
Strengthned by enterchangement of your rings,
And all the Ceremonie of this compact
Seal'd in my function, by my teſtimony:
Since when, my watch hath told me, toward my graue
I haue trauell'd but two houres.
Du. O thou diſſembling Cub: what wilt thou be
When time hath ſow'd a grizzle on thy caſe?
Or will not elſe thy craft ſo quickely grow,
That thine owne trip ſhall be thine ouerthrow:
Farewell, and take her, but direct thy feete,
Where thou, and I (henceforth) may neuer meet.
Vio. My Lord, I do proteſt.
Ol. O do not ſweare,
Hold little faith, though thou haſt too much feare.

Enter Sir Andrew.

And. For the loue of God a Surgeon, ſend one preſently to ſir Toby.
Ol. What's the matter?
And. Has broke my head a-croſſe, and has giuen Sir Toby a bloody Coxcombe too: for the loue of God your helpe, I had rather then forty pound I were at home.
Ol. Who has done this Sir Andrew?
And. The Counts Gentleman, one Ceſario: we tooke him for a Coward, but he's the verie diuell incardinate.
Du. My Gentleman Ceſario?
And Odd's lifelings heere he is: you broke my head for nothing, and that that I did, I was ſet on to do't by ſir Toby Vio Why do you ſpeake to me, I neuer hurt you:
you drew your ſword vpon me without cauſe,
But I beſpake you faire, and hurt you not.

Enter Toby and Clowne.

And. If a bloody coxcombe be a hurt, you haue hurt me: I thinke you ſet nothing by a bloody Coxcombe.
Heere comes ſir Toby halting, you ſhall heare more: but if he had not beene in drinke, hee would haue tickel'd you other gates then he did
Du. How now Gentleman? how iſt with you?
To. That's all one, has hurt me, and there's th end on't. Sot, didſt ſee Dicke Surgeon, ſot?
Clo. O he's drunke ſir Toby an houre agone: his eyes were ſet at eight i'th morning.
To. Then he's a Rogue, and a paſſy meaſures panyn: I hate a drunken rogue.
Ol. Away with him? Who hath made this hauocke with them?
And Ile helpe you ſir Toby, becauſe we'll be dreſt together.
To. Will you helpe an Aſſe-head, and a coxcombe, & a knaue: a thin fac'd knaue, a gull?

Ol. Get him to bed, and let his hurt be look'd too.

Enter Sebastian.

Seb. I am sorry Madam I haue hurt your kinſman:
But had it beene the brother of my blood,
I muſt haue done no leſſe with wit and ſafety.
You ſhrow a ſtrange regard vpon me, and by that I do perceiue it hath offended you.
Pardon me (ſweet one) euen for the vowes
We made each other, but ſo late ago.

Du. One face, one voice, one habit, and two perſons,
A naturall Perſpectiue, that is, and is nos.

Seb. Antonio: O my deere Antonio,
How haue the houres rack'd, and tortur'd me,
Since I haue loſt thee?

Ant. Sebaſtian are you?

Seb. Fear'ſt thou that Antonio?

Ant. How haue you made diuiſion of your ſelfe,
An apple cleft in two, is not more twin
Then theſe two creatures. Which is Sebaſtian?

Ol. Moſt wonderfull.

Seb. Do I ſtand there? I neuer had a brother:
Nor can there be that Deity in my nature
Of heere, and euery where. I had a ſiſter,
Whom the blinde waues and ſurges haue deuour'd.
Of charity, what kinne are you to me?
What Countreyman? What name? What Parentage?

Vio. Of Meſſaline: Sebaſtian was my Father,
Such a Sebaſtian was my brother too:
So went he ſuited to his watery tombe:
If ſpirits can aſſume both forme and ſuite,
You come to fright vs.

Seb. A ſpirit I am indeed,
But am in that dimenſion groſſely clad,
Which from the wombe I did participate.
Were you a woman, as the reſt goes euen,
I ſhould my teares let fall vpon your cheeke,
And ſay, thrice welcome drowned Viola.

Vio. My father had a moale vpon his brow.

Seb. And ſo had mine.

Vio. And dide that day when Viola from her birth
Had numbred thirteene yeares.

Seb. O that record is lively in my ſoule,
He finiſhed indeed his mortall acte
That day that made my ſiſter thirteene yeares.

Vio. If nothing lets to make vs happie both,
But this my maſculine vſurp'd attyre:
Do not embrace me, till each circumſtance,
Of place, time, fortune, do co-here and iumpe
That I am Viola, which to confirme,
Ile bring you to a Captaine in this Towne,
Where lye my maiden weeds: by whoſe gentle helpe,
I was preſerv'd to ſerue this Noble Count:
All the occurrence of my fortune ſince
Hath beene betweene this Lady, and this Lord.

Seb. So comes it Lady, you haue beene miſtooke:
But Nature to her biſs drew in that.
You would haue bin contracted to a Maid,
Nor are you therein (by my life) deceiu'd,
You are betroth'd both to a maid and man.

Du. Be not amaz'd right noble is his blood:
If this be ſo, as yet the glaſſe ſeemes true,
I ſhall haue ſhare in this moſt happy wracke,
Boy, thou haſt ſaide to me a thouſand times,
Thou neuer ſhould'ſt loue woman like to me.

Vio. And all thoſe ſayings, will I ouer weare,
And all thoſe ſwearings keepe as true in ſoule,
As doth that Orbed Continent, the fire,
That ſeuers day from night.

Du. Giue me thy hand,
And let me ſee thee in thy womans weedes.

Vio. The Captaine that did bring me firſt on ſhore
Hath my Maides garments: he vpon ſome Action
Is now in durance, at Maluolio's ſuite,
A Gentleman, and follower of my Ladies.

Ol. He ſhall inlarge him: ſeech Maluolio hither,
And yet alas, now I remember me,
They ſay poore Gentleman, he's much diſtract.

Enter Clowne with a Letter, and Fabian.

A moſt extracting frenſie of mine owne
From my remembrance, clearely baniſht his.
How does he ſirrah?

Clo. Truely Madam, he holds Belzebub at the ſtaues end as well as a man in his caſe may do: has heere writ a letter to you, I ſhould haue giuen't you to day morning. But as a madmans Epiſtles are no Goſpels, ſo it skilles not much when they are deliuer'd.

Ol. Open't, and read it.

Clo. Looke then to be well edified, when the Foole deliuers the Madman. By the Lord Madam.

Ol. How now, art thou mad?

Clo. No Madam, I do but reade madneſſe: and your Ladyſhip will haue it as it ought to bee, you muſt allow Vox.

Ol. Prethee reade i'thy right wits.

Clo. So I do Madona: but to reade his right wits, is to reade thus: therefore, perpend my Princeſſe, and giue eare.

Ol. Read it you, ſirrah.

Fab. Reads. By the Lord Madam, you wrong me, and the world ſhall know it: Though you haue put mee into darkeneſſe, and giuen your drunken Coſine rule ouer me, yet haue I the benefit of my ſenſes as well as your Ladi-ſhip. I haue your owne letter, that induced mee to the ſemblance I put on; with the which I doubt not, but to do my ſelfe much right, or you much ſhame: thinke of me as you pleaſe. I haue my duty a little thoughtful, and ſpeake out of my iniury. The madly vs'd Malualio.

Ol. Did he write this?

Clo. I Madame.

Du. This ſauours not much of diſtraction.

Ol. See him deliuer'd Fabian, bring him hither:
My Lord, ſo pleaſe you, theſe things further thought on,
To thinke me as well a ſiſter, as a wife,
One day ſhall crowne th'alliance on's, ſo pleaſe you.
Heere at my houſe, and at my proper coſt.

Du. Madam, I am moſt apt t'embrace your offer:
Your Maſter quits you: and for your ſeruice done him,
So much againſt the mettle of your ſex,
So farre beneath your ſoft and tender breeding,
And ſince you call'd me Maſter, for ſo long:
Heere is my hand, you ſhall from this time bee your Maſters Miſtris.

Ol. A ſiſter, you are ſhe.

Enter Malualio.

Du. Is this the Madman?

Ol. I my Lord, this ſame: How now Malualio?

Mal. Madam, you haue done me wrong,
Notorious wrong.

Ol. Haue I Malualio? No.

Mal. Lady you haue, pray you peruſe that Letter.
You muſt not now denie it is your hand,
Write from it if you can, in hand, or phraſe,

Or

, tis not your ſeale, not your inuention:
in ſay none of this. Well, grant it then,
ill me in the modeſtie of honor,
you haue giuen me ſuch cleare lights of fauour,
e come ſmiling, and croſſe-garter'd to you,
t on yellow ſtockings, and to frowne
ſir Toby, and the lighter people:
ding this in an obedient hope,
haue you ſuffer'd me to be impriſon'd,
n a darke houſe, viſited by the Prieſt, ade the moſt notorious gecke and gull re inuention plaid on? Tell me why?
Alas Maluolio, this is not my writing,
gh I confeſſe much like the Charracter
t of queſtion, tis Marias hand.
ow I do bethinke me, it was ſhee old me thou waſt mad; then cam'ſt in ſmiling, ſuch formes, which heere were preſuppos'd thee in the Letter: prethee be content, ractice hath moſt ſhrewdly paſt vpon thee:
hen we know the grounds, and authors of it,
ſhall be both the Plaintiffe and the Iudge
e owne cauſe.
Good Madam heare me ſpeake,
t no quarrell, nor no braule to come,
the condition of this preſent houre,
h I haue wondred at. In hope it ſhall not, freely I confeſſe my ſelfe, and Toby is deuice againſt Maluolio heere, ſome ſtubborne and vncourteous parts ad conceiu'd againſt him. Maria writ etter, at ſir Tobyes great importance, ompence wherof, he hath married her:
with a ſportfull malice it was follow'd,
rather plucke on laughter then reuenge,
t the iniuries be iuſtly weigh'd,
haue on both ſides paſt
Alas poore Foole, how haue they baffel'd thee?
Why ſome are borne great, ſome atchiue great-and ſome haue greatneſſe throwne vpon them. I ne ſir, in this Enterlude, one ſir Topas ſir, but that's all one: By the Lord Foole, I am not mad; but do you remember, Madam, why laugh you at ſuch a barren raſcall:
and you ſmile not he's gag'd: and thus the whirlegigge
of time, brings in his reuenges.

Mal. Ile be reueng'd on the whole packe of you?

Ol. He hath beene moſt notoriouſly abus'd.

Du. Purſue him, and entreate him to a peace:
He hath not told vs of the Captaine yet,
When that is knowne, and golden time conuents
A ſolemne Combination ſhall be made
Of our deere ſoules. Meane time ſweet ſiſter,
We will not part from hence. Ceſario come
(For ſo you ſhall be while you are a man:)
But when in other habites you are ſeene,
Orſino's Miſtris, and his fancies Queene. Exeunt

Clowne ſings.

When that I was and a little tine boy,
with hey, ho, the winde and the raine:
A fooliſh thing was but a toy,
for the raine it raineth euery day.

But when I came to mans eſtate,
with hey ho, &c.
Caſtrill Knaues and Theeues men ſhut their gate,
for the raine, &c.

But when I came alas to wiue,
with hey ho, &c.
By ſwaggering could I neuer thriue,
for the raine, &c.

But when I came vnto my beds,
with hey ho, &c
With toſpotes ſtill had drunken heades,
for the raine, &c.

A great while ago the world begon,
hey ho, &c.
But that's all one, our Play is done,
and we'l ſtriue to pleaſe you euery day.

FINIS.

The Winters Tale.

Actus Primus. Scœna Prima.

Enter Camillo and Archidamus.

Arch. IF you shall chance (Camillo) to visit Bohemia, on the like occasion whereon my services are now on-foot, you shall see (as I have said) great difference betwixt our Bohemia, and your Sicilia.

Cam. I thinke, this comming Summer, the King of Sicilia meanes to pay Bohemia the Visitation, which hee iustly owes him.

Arch. Wherein our Entertainment shall shame vs: we will be iustified in our Loues: for indeed—

Cam. Beseech you—

Arch. Verely I speake it in the freedome of my knowledge: we cannot with such magnificence—in so rare—I know not what to say—We will giue you sleepie Drinkes, that your Senses (vn-intelligent of our insufficience) may, though they cannot praise vs, as little accuse vs.

Cam. You pay a great deale to deare, for what's giuen freely.

Arch. Believe me, I speake as my vnderstanding instructs me, and as mine honestie puts it to vtterance.

Cam. Sicilia cannot shew himselfe ouer-kind to Bohemia: They were train'd together in their Child-hoods; and there rooted betwixt them then such an affection, which cannot chuse but braunch now. Since their more mature Dignities, and Royall Necessities, made seperation of their Societie, their Encounters (though not Personall) hath been Royally attorneyed with enter-change of Gifts, Letters, louing Embassies, that they haue seem'd to be together, though absent: shooke hands, as ouer a Vast; and embrac'd as it were from the ends of opposed Winds. The Heauens continue their Loues.

Arch. I thinke there is not in the World, either Malice or Matter, to alter it. You haue an vnspeakable comfort of your young Prince Mamillius: it is a Gentleman of the greatest Promise, that euer came into my Note.

Cam. I very well agree with you, in the hopes of him: it is a gallant Child; one, that (indeed) Physicks the Subiect, makes old hearts fresh: they that went on Crutches ere he was borne, desire yet their life, to see him a Man.

Arch. Would they else be content to die?

Cam. Yes (if there were no other excuse, why they should desire to liue.

Arch. If the King had no Sonne, they would desire to liue on Crutches till he had one. Exeunt.

Scœna Secunda.

Enter Leontes, Hermione, Mamillius, Polixenes, Camillo.

Pol. Nine Changes of the Watry-Starre hath been The Shepheards Note, since we haue left our Throne Without a Burthen: Time as long againe Would be fill'd vp (my Brother) with our Thanks, And yet we should, for perpetuitie, Goe hence in debt: And therefore, like a Cypher (Yet standing in rich place) I multiply With one we thanke you, many thousands moe, That goe before it.

Leo. Stay your Thanks a while, And pay them when you part.

Pol. Sir, that's to morrow: I am question'd by my feares, of what may chance, Or breed vpon our absence, that may blow No sneaping Winds at home, to make vs say, This is put forth too truly: besides, I haue stay'd To tyre your Royaltie.

Leo. We are tougher (Brother) Then you can put vs to't.

Pol. No longer stay.

Leo. One Seue'night longer.

Pol. Very sooth, to morrow.

Leo. We'le part the time betweene's then: and in that Ile no gaine-saying.

Pol. Presse me not ('beseech you) so: There is no Tongue that moues; none, none i'th' World So soone as yours could win me: so it should now, Were there necessitie in your request, although 'Twere needfull I deny'd it. My Affaires Doe euen drag me home-ward: which to hinder, Were (in your Loue) a Whip to me; my stay, To you a Charge, and Trouble: to saue both, Farewell (our Brother.)

Leo. Tongue-ty'd our Queene? speake you.

Her. I had thought (Sir) to haue held my peace, vntill You had drawne Oathes from him, not to stay: you (Sir) Charge him too coldly. Tell him, you are sure All in Bohemia's well: this satisfaction, The by-gone-day proclaym'd, say this to him, He's beat from his best ward.

Leo. Well said, Hermione.

Her. To tell, he longs to see his Sonne, were strong: But let him say so then, and let him goe; But let him sweare so, and he shall not stay, We'l thwack him hence with Distaffes. Yet of your Royall presence, Ile aduenture The borrow of a Weeke. When at Bohemia You take my Lord, Ile giue him my Commission, To let him there a Moneth, behind the Gest Prefix'd for's parting: yet (good-deed) Leontes, I loue thee not a iarre o'th' Clock, behind

What Lady she her Lord. You'le ſtay?
Pol. No, Madame.
Her. Nay, but you will?
Pol. I may not verely.
Her. Verely?
You put me off with limber Vowes: but I,
Though you would ſeek t'vnſphere the Stars with Oathes,
Should yet ſay, Sir, no going. Verely
You ſhall not goe; a Ladyes Verely'is
As potent as a Lords. Will you goe yet?
Force me to keepe you as a Priſoner,
Not like a Gueſt: ſo you ſhall pay your Fees
When you depart, and ſaue your Thanks. How ſay you?
My Priſoner? or my Gueſt? by your dread Verely,
One of them you ſhall be.
Pol. Your Gueſt then, Madame:
To be your Priſoner, ſhould import offending;
Which is for me, leſſe eaſie to commit,
Then you to puniſh.
Her. Not your Gaoler then,
But your kind Hoſteſſe. Come, Ile queſtion you
Of my Lords Tricks, and yours, when you were Boyes:
You were pretty Lordings then?
Pol. We were (faire Queene)
Two Lads, that thought there was no more behind,
But ſuch a day to morrow, as to day,
And to be Boy eternall.
Her. Was not my Lord
The verier Wag o'th' two?
Pol We were as twyn'd Lambs, that did friſk i'th' Sun,
And bleat the one at th' other: what we chang'd,
Was Innocence, for Innocence: we knew not
The Doctrine of ill-doing, nor dream'd
That any did. Had we purſu'd that life,
And our weake Spirits ne're been higher reer'd
With ſtronger blood, we ſhould haue anſwer'd Heauen
Boldly, not guilty; the Imposition clear'd, Hereditarie ours.
Her. By this we gather
You haue tript ſince
Pol O my moſt ſacred Lady,
Temptations haue ſince then been borne to's: for
In thoſe vnfledg'd dayes, was my Wife a Gyrle;
Your precious ſelfe had then not croſs'd the eyes
Of my young Play-fellow
Her. Grace to boot
Of this make no concluſion, leaſt you ſay
Your Queene and I are Deuils: yet goe on,
Th'offences we haue made you doe, we'le anſwere,
If you firſt ſinn'd with vs: and that with vs
You did continue fault; and that you ſlipt not
With any, but with vs
Leo. Is he woon yet?
Her. Hee'le ſtay (my Lord.)
Leo. At my requeſt he would not
Her mone (my deareſt) thou neuer ſpoak'ſt
To better purpoſe.
Her. Neuer?
Leo. Neuer, but once
Her What? haue I twice ſaid well? when was't before?
I prethee tell me: cram's with praiſe, and make's
As fat as tame things: One good deed, dying tongueleſſe, Slaughters a thouſand waiting vpon that.
Our praiſes are our Wages. You may ride's
With one ſoft Kiſſe a thouſand Furlongs, ere
With Spur we heat an Acre. But to th' Goale:
My laſt good deed, was to entreat his ſtay.
What was my firſt? it has an elder Siſter,
Or I miſtake you. O, would her Name were Grace,
But once before I ſpoke to th' purpoſe? when?
Nay, let me haue't: I long.
Leo. Why, that was when
Three crabbed Moneths had ſowr'd themſelues to death
Ere I could make thee open thy white Hand
And clap thy ſelfe my Loue; then didſt thou vtter,
I am yours for euer.
Her. 'Tis Grace indeed.
Why lo-you now; I haue ſpoke to th' purpoſe twice
The one, for euer earn'd a Royall Husband;
Th'other for ſome while a Friend.
Leo. Too hot, too hot:
To mingle friendſhip farre, is mingling bloods.
I haue Tremor Cordis on me: my heart dances,
But not for ioy; not ioy. This Entertainment
May a free face put on: derriue a Libertie
From Heartineſſe, from Bountie, fertile Boſome,
And well become the Agent: 't may, I grant:
But to be padling Palmes, and pinching Fingers,
As now they are, and making practiſ'd Smiles
As in a Looking-Glaſſe; and then to ſigh, as 'twere
The Mort o'th' Deere: oh, that is entertainment
My Boſome likes not, nor my Browes. Mamillius,
Art thou my Boy?
Mam I, my good Lord.
Leo. I'faith:
Why that's my Bawcock: what, has't ſmutch'd thy Noſe?
They ſay it is a Copy out of mine. Come Captaine,
We muſt be neat; not neat, but cleanly Captaine.
And yet the Steere, the Heyfer, and the Calfe,
Are all call'd Neat. Still Virginalling
Vpon his Palme? How now (you wanton Calfe)
Art thou my Calfe?
Mam. Yes, if you will (my Lord.)
Leo Thou want'ſt a rough paſh & the ſhoots that I haue
To be full, like me: yet they ſay we are Almoſt as like as Egges; Women ſay ſo,
(That will ſay any thing.) But were they falſe
As o're-dy'd Blacks, as Wind, as Waters; falſe
As Dice are to be wiſh'd, by one that fixes
No borne 'twixt his and mine; yet were it true,
To ſay this Boy were like me. Come (Sir Page)
Looke on me with your Welkin eye: ſweet Villaine, Moſt deare'ſt, my Collop. Can thy Dam, may't be Affection? thy Intention ſtabs the Center.
Thou do'ſt make poſſible things not ſo held,
Communicat'ſt with Dreames (how can this be?)
With what's vnreall thou coactiue art,
And fellow'ſt nothing. Then 'tis very credent,
Thou may'ſt co-ioyne with ſomething, and thou do'ſt,
(And that beyond Commiſſion) and I find it,
(And that to the infection of my Braines,
And hardning of my Browes.)
Pol. What meanes Sicilia?
Her. He ſomething ſeemes vnſettled.
Pol How? my Lord?
Leo What cheere? how is't with you, beſt Brother?
Her. You look as if you held a Brow of much diſtraction:
Are you mou'd (my Lord?)
Leo. No, in good earneſt.
How ſometimes Nature will betray it's folly?
It's tendernes? and make it ſelfe a Paſſion
To harder boſomes? Looking on the Lynes

Of

yes face, me thoughts I did reſpoyle three yeares, and ſwore my ſelfe va-breach'd, ene Velure Coat; my Dagger muzzel'd, ould bire it's Maſter, and for proue aments oft do't) too dangerous:
(me thought) I then was to this Kernell, ſh, this Gentleman. Mine honeſt Friend, take Egges for Money?
No (my Lord) I'le fight.
ſou will: why happy man be's dole. My Brother o fond of your young Prince, as we it to be of ours?
ſ we haue (Sir)
ny Exerciſe, my Mirth, my Matter;
ſwome Friend, and then mine Enemy;
ſite, my Souldier: Stateſ-man; all:
s a Iulyes day, ſhort as December,
his varying childe-neſſe, cures in me
x, that would thick my blood.
So ſtands this Squire
ith me: We two will walke (my Lord)
e you to your greater ſteps. Hermione,
u lou'ſt vs, ſhew in our Brothers welcome;
is deare in Sicily, be cheape:
thy ſelfe, and my young Rouer, he's e to my heart,
If you would ſee't vs,
rours i'th'Garden: ſhall's attend you there?
o your owne bents diſpoſe you: you'le be found,
ematch the Sky: I am anghry now,
you perceiue me not how I giue Lyne)
, goe too
holds vp the Neb? the Byll to him?
es her with the boldneſſe of a Wife llowing Husband. Gone already, ie'k, knee-deepe, ore head and eares a fork'd one.
(Boy) play: thy Mother playes, and I bout ſo diſgrac'd a part, whoſe iſſue ſe me to my Graue: Contempt and Clamor my Knell. Goe play (Boy) play, there haue been much deceiu'd) Cuckolds ere now,
y a man there is ſcarce at this preſent,
ile I (ſpeake this) holds his Wife by th'Arme,
le thinkes ſhe ha's been ſtray'd in's abſence, Pond fiſh'd by his next Neighbor (by , his Neighbor:) nay, there's comfort in't, other men haue Gates, and thoſe Gates open'd
e) againſt their will. Should all deſpaire
e reuolted Wiues, the tenth of Mankind yang themſelues. Phyſick for't, there's none:
wdy Planet, that will ſtrike is predominant; and 'tis powerefull: thinke it:
ſt, Weſt, North, and South, be it concluded,
ecado for a Belly. Know't,
t in and out the Enemy,
g and baggage: many thouſand on's Diſeaſe, and feele's not. How now Boy?
m. I am like you ſay.
Why, that's ſome comfort.
Camillo there?
I, my good Lord.
Goe play (Mamillius) thou'rt an honeſt man:
this greene Sir will yet ſtay longer.
You had much adoe to make his Anchor hold,
ou caſt out, it ſtill came home.
Didſt note it?

Cam. He would not ſtay at your Petitions, made
His Buſineſſe more materiall.
Leo. Didſt perceiue it?
They're here with me already; whiſp'ring, rounding:
Sicilia is a ſo-forth: 'tis farre gone,
When I ſhall guſt it laſt. How cam't (Camillo)
That he did ſtay?
Cam. At the good Queenes entreatie.
Leo. At the Queenes be't: Good ſhould be pertinent,
But ſo it is, it is not. Was this taken
By any vnderſtanding Pate but thine?
For thy Conceit is ſoaking, will draw in
More then the common Blocks. Not noted, is't,
But of the finer Natures? by ſome Seueralls
Of Head-peece extraordinarie? Lower Meſſes
Perchance are to this Buſineſſe purblind? ſay.
Cam. Buſineſſe, my Lord? I thinke moſt vnderſtand
Bohemia ſtayes here longer.
Leo. Ha?
Cam. Stayes here longer.
Leo. I, but why?
Cam. To ſatisfie your Highneſſe, and the Entreaties
Of our moſt gracious Miſtreſſe.
Leo. Satisfie?
Th'entreaties of your Miſtreſſe? Satisfie?
Let that ſuffice, I haue truſted thee (Camillo)
With all the neereſt things to my heart, as well
My Chamber-Councels, wherein (Prieſt-like) thou
Haſt cleans'd my Boſome: I, from thee departed Thy Penitent reform'd: but we haue been Deceiu'd in thy Integritie, deceiu'd
In that which ſeemes ſo.
Cam. Be it forbid (my Lord.)
Leo. To bide vpon't: thou art not honeſt: or
If thou inclin'ſt that way, thou art a Coward,
Which hoxes honeſtie behind, reſtrayning
From Courſe requir'd: or elſe thou muſt be counted
A Seruant, grafted in my ſerious Truſt,
And therein negligent: or elſe a Foole,
That ſeeſt a Game play'd home, the rich Stake drawne,
And tak'ſt it all for jeaſt.
Cam. My gracious Lord,
I may be negligent, foolliſh, and fearefull,
In every one of theſe, no man is free,
But that his negligence, his folly, feare,
Among the infinite doings of the World,
Sometime puts forth in your affaires (my Lord.)
If ever I were wilfull-negligent,
It was my folly: if induſtriouſly
I play'd the Foole, it was my negligence,
Not weighing well the end: if ever fearefull
To doe a thing, where I the iſſue doubted,
Whereof the execution did cry out
Againſt the non-performance, 'twas a feare
Which oft infects the wiſeſt: theſe (my Lord)
Are ſuch allow'd Infirmities, that honeſtie
Is never free of. But beſeech your Grace
Be plainer with me, let me know my Treſpas
By it's owne viſage; if I then deny it,
'Tis none of mine.
Leo. Ha' not you ſeene Camillo?
(But that's paſt doubt: you haue, or your eye-glaſſe
Is thicker then a Cuckolds Horne) or heard?
(For to a Viſion ſo apparant, Rumor
Cannot be mute) or thought? (for Cogitation
Reſides not in that man, that do's not thinke)

My Wife is ſlipperie? If thou wilt confeſſe,
Or elſe be impudently negatiue,
To haue nor Eyes, nor Eares, nor Thought, then ſay
My Wife's a Holy-Horſe, deſerues a Name
As ranke as any Flax-Wench, that puts to Before her troth-plight: ſay't, and iuſtify't.
Cam. I would not be a ſtander-by, to heare
My Soueraigne Miſtreſſe clouded ſo, without
My preſent vengeance taken: 'ſhrew my heart,
You neuer ſpoke what did become you leſſe
Then this; which to reiterate, were ſin
As deepe as that, though true.
Leo. Is whiſpering nothing?
Is leaning Cheeke to Cheeke? is meating Noſes
Kiſſing with inſide Lip? ſtopping the Cariere
Of Laughter, with a ſigh? (a Note infallible
Of breaking Honeſtie) horſing foot on foot?
Skulking in corners? wiſhing Clocks more ſwift?
Houres, Minutes? Noone, Mid-night? and all Eyes
Blind with the Pin and Web but theirs; theirs onely,
That would vnſeene be wicked? Is this nothing?
Why then the World, and all that's in't, is nothing,
The couering Skie is nothing, Bohemia nothing,
My Wife is nothing, nor Nothing haue theſe Nothings,
If this be nothing.
Cam. Good my Lord, be curd
Of this diſeas'd Opinion, and betimes,
For 'tis moſt dangerous.
Leo. Say it be, 'tis true.
Cam. No, no, my Lord.
Leo. It is: you lye, you lye
I ſay thou lyeſt Camillo, and I hate thee,
Pronounce thee a groſſe Lowt, a mindleſſe Slaue,
Or elſe a houering Temporizer, that
Canſt with thine eyes at once ſee good and euill,
Inclining to them both: were my Wiues Liuer
Infected (as her life) ſhe would not liue
The running of one Glaſſe.
Cam. Who do's infect her?
Leo. Why he that weares her like her Medull, hanging
About his neck (Bohemia) who, if I
Had Seruants true about me, that bare eyes
To ſee alike mine Honor, as their Profits,
(Their owne particular Thrifts) they would doe that
Which ſhould vndoe more doing: I, and thou
His Cup-bearer, whom I from meaner forme
Haue Bench'd, and rear'd to Worſhip, who may'ſt ſee
Plainely, as Heauen ſees Earth, and Earth ſees Heauen,
How I am gall'd, might'ſt be-ſpice a Cup,
To giue mine Enemy a laſting Winke:
Which Draught to me, were cordiall.
Cam. Sir (my Lord)
I could doe this, and that with no raſh Potion,
But with a lingring Dram, that ſhould not worke Maliciouſly, like Poyſon. But I cannot Beleeue this Crack to be in my dread Miſtreſſe
(So ſoueraignely being Honorable.)
I haue lou'd her,
Leo. Make that thy queſtion, and goe rot:
Do'ſt thinke I am ſo muddy, ſo vnſeeled,
To appoint my ſelfe in this vexation?
Sully the puritie and whiteneſſe of my Sheetes
(Which to preſerue, is Sleepe; which being ſpotted, Is Goades, Thornes Nettles, Tayles of Waſpes)
Giue ſcandall to the blood o'th' Prince, my Sonne,
(Who I doe thinke is mine, and loue as mine)
Without ripe mouing to't? Would I doe this?
Could man ſo blench?
Cam. I muſt beleeue you (Sir)
I doe, and will fetch off Bohemia for't:
Prouided, that when hee's remou'd, your Highneſſe
Will take againe your Queene, as yours at firſt,
Euen for your Sonnes ſake, and thereby for ſealing
The Iniurie of Tongues, in Courts and Kingdomes
Knowne, and ally'd to yours.
Leo. Thou do'ſt aduiſe me,
Euen ſo as I mine owne courſe haue ſet downe:
Ile giue no blemiſh to her Honor, none.
Cam. My Lord,
Goe then; and with a countenance as cleare
As Friendſhip weares at Feaſts, keepe with Bohemia,
And with your Queene: I am his Cup-bearer,
If from me he haue wholeſome Beueridge,
Account me not your Seruant.
Leo. This is all:
Do't, and thou haſt the one halfe of my heart:
Do't not, thou ſplitt'ſt thine owne.
Cam. Ile do't my Lord.
Leo. I will ſeeme friendly, as thou haſt aduis'd me. Exit
Cam. O miſerable Lady. But for me,
What caſe ſtand I in? I muſt be the poyſoner
Of good Polixenes, and my ground to do't,
Is the obedience to a Maſter; one,
Who in Rebellion with himſelfe, will haue
All that are his, ſo too. To doe this deed,
Promotion followes: If I could find example
Of thouſand's that had ſtruck anoynted Kings,
And flouriſh'd after, I'd not do't: But ſince
Nor Braſſe, nor Stone, nor Parchment bearers not one,
Let Villanie it ſelfe forſweare't. I muſt
Forſake the Court: to do't, or no, is certaine
To me a breake-neck. Happy Starre reigne now, Here comes Bohemia. Enter Polixenes.
Pol. This is ſtrange: Me thinkes
My fauor here begins to warpe. Not ſpeake?
Good day Camillo.
Cam. Hayle moſt Royall Sir.
Pol. What is the Newes i'th' Court?
Cam. None rare (my Lord.)
Pol. The King hath on him ſuch a countenance,
As he had loſt ſome Prouince, and a Region
Lou'd, as he loues himſelfe: euen now I met him
With cuſtomarie complement, when he Wafting his eyes to th' contrary, and falling
A Lippe of much contempt, ſpeedes from me, and
So leaues me, to conſider what is breeding,
That changes thus his Manners.
Cam. I dare not know (my Lord.)
Pol. How, dare not? doe not? doe you know, and dare not?
Be intelligent to me, 'tis thereabouts:
For to your ſelfe, what you doe know, you muſt,
And cannot ſay, you dare not. Good Camillo
Your chang'd complexions are to me a Mirror,
Which ſhewes me mine chang'd too: for I muſt be
A partie in this alteration, finding
My ſelfe thus alter'd with't.
Cam. There is a ſickneſſe
Which puts ſome of vs in diſtemper, but I cannot name the Diſeaſe, and it is caught
Of you, that yet are well.
Pol. How caught of me?
Make me not ſighted like the Baſiliſque.

I haue

k'd on thouſands, who haue ſped the better
ard, but kill'd none ſo: Camillo, certainely a Gentleman, thereto
e experienc'd, which no leſſe adornes y, then our Parents Noble Names, neceſſe we are gentle. I beſeech you,
w ought which do's behoue my knowledge, be inform'd, impriſon't not s concealement.
may not anſwere
Sickneſſe caught of me, and yet I well?
inſwer'd. Do ſt thou heare Camillo, hee by all the parts of man,
nor do's acknowledge, whereof the leaſt Suit of mine, that thou declare dience thou do'ſt gheſſe of harme toward me; how farre off, how neere, y to be preuented, if to be:
beſt to beare it.
r, I will tell you,
charg'd in Honor, and by him
ke Honorable: therefore marke my counſaile, be ru'n as ſwiftly followed, as were it; or both your ſelfe, and me, d ſo good night.
, good Camillo
im appointed him to murther you.
whom, Camillo?
y the King.
what?
e thinkes, nay with all confidence he ſweares,
ren't, or beene an Inſtrument to't, that you haue toucht his Queene
y.
then, my beſt blood turne
ded Gelly, and my Name with his, that did betray the Beſt:
my freſheſt Reputation, to ait may ſtrike the dulleſt Noſthrill riue, and my approch be ſhun'd, too, worſe then the greateſt Infection
as heard, or read weare his thought ouer rticular Starre in Heauen, and Influences; you may as well
Sea for to obey the Moone, Path) remoue, or (Counſaile) ſhake
k of his Folly, whoſe foundation in his Faith, and will continue g of his Body.
w ſhould this grow?
know not: but I am ſure 'tis ſafer to
't is growne, then queſtion how 'tis borne.
you dare truſt my honeſtie,
cloſed in this Trunke, which you ſtong impawned, away to Night,
wers I will whiſper to the Buſineſſe, twoes, and threes, at ſeuerall Poſternes,
o th' Citie: For my ſelfe, Ile put s to your ſeruice (which are here ouerie loſt.) Be not incertaine, onor of my Parents, I
Truth: which if you ſeeke to proue,
and by; nor ſhall you be ſafer,
ndemnd by the Kings owne mouth:
Execution ſworne.

Pol. I doe beleeue thee:
I ſaw his heart in's face. Giue me thy hand,
Be Pilot to me, and thy places ſhall Still neighbour mine. My Ships are ready, and My people did expect my hence departure
Two dayes ago. This Iealouſie
Is for a precious Creature: as ſhee's rare,
Muſt it be great; and, as his Perſon's mightie,
Muſt it be violent: and, as he do's conceiue,
He is diſhonor'd by a man, which euer
Profeſs'd to him: why his Reuenges muſt
In that be made more bitter. Feare ore-ſhades me:
Good Expedition be my friend, and comfort
The gracious Queene, part of his Theame; but nothing
Of his ill-ra'ne ſuſpition. Come Camillo,
I will reſpect thee as a Father, if Thou bear'ſt my life off, hence: Let vs auoid
Cam. It is in mine authoritie to command
The Keyes of all the Poſternes: Pleaſe your Highneſſe
To take the vrgent houre. Come Sir, away. Exeunt.

Actus Secundus. Scena Prima

Enter Hermione, Mamillius, Ladies, Leontes, Antigonus, Lords.

Her. Take the Boy to you: he ſo troubles me,
'Tis paſt enduring.
Lady. Come (my gracious Lord)
Shall I be your play-fellow?
Mam. No, Ile none of you.
Lady. Why (my ſweet Lord?)
Mam. You'le kiſſe me hard, and ſpeake to me, as if I were a Baby ſtill. I loue you better.
2. Lady. And why ſo (my Lord?)
Mam. Not for becauſe
Your Browes are blacker (yet black-browes they ſay Become ſome Women beſt, ſo that there be not Too much haire there, but in a Cemicircle,
Or a halfe-Moone, made with a Pen.)
2. Lady. Who taught 'this?
Mam. I learn'd it out of Womens faces: pray now,
What colour are your eye-browes?
Lady. Blew (my Lord.)
Mam. Nay, that's a mock: I haue ſeene a Ladies Noſe
That has's beene blew, but not her eye-browes.
Lady. Harke ye,
The Queene (your Mother) rounds apace: we ſhall
Preſent our ſeruices to a fine new Prince
One of theſe dayes, and then you'd wanton with vs,
If we would haue you.
2. Lady. She is ſpread of late
Into a goodly Bulke: good time encounter her.)
Her. What wiſdome ſtirs amongſt you? Come Sir, now
I am for you againe: 'Pray you ſit by vs,
And tell's a Tale.
Mam. Merry, or ſad, ſhal't be?
Her. As merry as you will.
Mam. A ſad Tale's beſt for Winter:
I haue one of Sprights, and Goblins.
Her. Let's haue that (good Sir.)
Come on, ſit downe, come on, and doe your beſt,
To fright me with your Sprights: you're powrefull at it
Mam. There

Mam. There was a man.
Her. Nay, comẽ sit downe: then on.
Mam. Dwelt by a Church-yard: I will tell it softly,
Yond Crickets shall not heare it.
Her. Come on then, and giu't me in mine eare.
Leon. Was hee met there? his Traine? Camillo with him?
Lord. Behind the tuft of Pines I met them, neuer Saw I men scowre so on their way: I eyed them
Euen to their Ships.
Leo. How blest am I
In my iust Censure? in my true Opinion?
Alack, for lesser knowledge, how accurs'd,
In being so blest? There may be in the Cup
A Spider steep'd, and one may drinke; depart,
And yet partake no venome: (for his knowledge
Is not infected) but if one present
Th'abhor'd Ingredient to his eye, make known
How he hath drunke, he cracks his gorge, his sides
With violent Hefts: I haue drunke, and seene the Spider.
Camillo was his helpe in this, his Pandar:
There is a Plot against my Life, my Crowne;
All's true that is mistrusted: that false Villaine,
Whom I employ'd, was pre-employ'd by him:
He has discouer'd my Designe, and I
Remaine a pinch'd Thing; yea, a very Trick
For them to play at will: how came the Posternes
So easily open?
Lord. By his great authority,
Which often hath no lesse preuail'd, then so,
On your command.
Leo. I know't too well.
Giue me the Boy, I am glad you did not nurse him:
Though he do's beare some signes of me, yet you
Haue too much blood in him.
Her. What is this? Sport?
Leo. Beare the Boy hence, he shall not come about her,
Away with him, and let her sport her selfe
With that shee's big-with, for 'tis Polixenes
Ha's made thee swell thus.
Her. But I'd say he had not;
And Ile be sworne you would beleeue my saying,
How e're you leane to th'Nay-ward.
Leo. You (my Lords)
Looke on her, marke her well: be but about
To say she is a goodly Lady, and
The iustice of your hearts will thereto adde
'Tis pitty shee's not honest: Honorable;
Prayse her but for this her without-dore-Forme,
(Which on my faith deserues high speech) and straight
The Shrug, the Hum, or Ha, (these Petty-brands
That Calumnie doth vse; Oh, I am out,
That Mercy do's, for Calumnie will seare
Vertue it selfe) these Shrugs, these Hum's, and Ha's,
When you haue said shee's goodly, come betweene,
Ere you can say shee's honest: But be't known
(From him that has most cause to grieue it should be) Shee's an Adultresse.
Her. Should a Villaine say so,
(The most replenish'd Villaine in the World)
He were as much more Villaine: you (my Lord)
Doe but mistake.
Leo. You haue mistooke (my Lady)
Polixenes for Leontes: O thou Thing,
(Which Ile not call a Creature of thy place,
Least Barbarisme (making me the precedent)
Should a like Language vse to all degrees,
And mannerly distinguishment leaue out,
Betwixt the Prince and Begger:) I haue said
Shee's an Adultresse, I haue said with whom:
More; shee's a Traytor, and Camillo is
A Federarie with her, and one that knowes
What she should shame to know her selfe,
But with her most vild Principall: that shee's
A Bed-swaruer, euen as bad as those
That Vulgars giue bold'st Titles; I, and priuy
To this their late escape.
Her. No (by my life)
Priuy to none of this: how will this grieue you,
When you shall come to clearer knowledge, that
You thus haue publish'd me? Gentle my Lord,
You scarce can right me throughly, then, to say
You did mistake.
Leo. No: if I mistake
In those Foundations which I build vpon,
The Centre is not bigge enough to beare
A Schoole-Boyes Top. Away with her, to Prison:
He who shall speake for her, is a farre-off guiltie,
But that he speakes.
Her. There's some ill Planet raignes:
I must be patient, till the Heauens looke
With an aspect more fauorable. Good my Lords,
I am not prone to weeping (as our Sex Commonly are) the want of which vaine dew
Perchance shall dry your pitties: but I haue
That honorable Griefe lodg'd here, which burnes
Worse then Teares drowne: beseech you all (my Lords)
With thoughts so qualified, as your Charities
Shall best instruct you measure me; and so
The Kings will be perform'd.
Leo. Shall I be heare.
Her. Who is't that goes with me? beseech your Highnes
My Women may be with me, for you see
My plight requires it. Doe not weepe (good Fooles)
There is no cause: When you shall know your Mistris
Has deseru'd Prison, then abound in Teares,
As I come out; this Action I now goe on,
Is for my better grace. Adieu (my Lord)
I neuer wish'd to see you sorry, now
I trust I shall: my Women come, you haue leaue.
Leo. Goe, doe our bidding: hence.
Lord. Beseech your Highnesse call the Queene againe.
Anti. Be certaine what you do (Sir) least your Iustice
Prooue violence, in the which three great ones suffer,
Your Selfe, your Queene, your Sonne.
Lord. For her (my Lord)
I dare my life lay downe, and will do't (Sir)
Please you t'accept it, that the Queene is spotlesse
I'th'eyes of Heauen, and to you (I meane
In this, which you accuse her.)
Anti. If it proue
Shee's otherwise, Ile keepe my Stables where
I lodge my Wife, Ile goe in couples with her:
Then when I feele, and see her, no further trust her.
For euery inch of Woman in the World,
I, euery dram of Womans flesh is false,
If she be.
Leo. Hold your peaces.
Lord. Good my Lord.
Anti. It is for you we speake, not for our selues.
You are abus'd, and by some putter on.
That will be dam'd for't: would I knew the Villaine,

I would

d Land-damne him : be ſhe honor-flaw'd,
three daughters : the eldeſt is eleuen;
rood, and the third, nine : and ſome five :
proue true, they'l pay for't. By mine Honor
'd em all : fourteene they ſhall not ſee ng falſe generations : they are co-heyres, ad rather glib my ſelfe, then they not produce faire iſſue.
. Ceaſe, no more .
nell this buſineſſe with a ſence as cold
dead-mans noſe : but I do ſee't, and feel't, feele doing thus : and ſee withall
ſtruments that feele.
ng If it be ſo,
we no graue to burie honeſty.
not a graine of it, the face to ſweeten whole dungy-earth.
. What? lacke I credit?
d. I had rather you did lacke then I (my Lord)
this ground : and more it would content me re her Honor true. then your ſuſpition m'd for't how yeu might
. Why what needs we une with you of this? but rather follow rceſull inſtigation? Our prerogatiue ot your Counſailes, but our naturall goodneſſe
s this : which, if you, or ſtupified, ming ſo, in skill, cannot, or will not a truth, like vs : informe your ſelues, rede no more of your aduice : the matter,
ſſe, the game, the ord'ring on't, roperly ours
ng. And I wiſh (my Liege)
d onely in your ſilent iudgement tride it, ut more ouerture.
. How could that be?
thou art moſt ignorant by age,
as wert borne a foole : Camillo's flight to their Familiarity
ch was as groſſe, as euer touch'd conieCture, ack'd ſight onely, nought for approbation
ely ſeeing, all other circumſtances p to'th deed) doth puſh-on this proceeding.
e a greater confirmation an Acte of this importance, 'twere ſtreame to be wilde) I haue diſpatch'd in poſt, red Delphos, to Apollo's Temple,
ues and Diana, whom you know
d-ſufficiency : Now, from the Oracle will bring all, whoſe ſpirituall counſaile had top, or ſpurre me. Haue I done well?
d. Well done (my Lord.)
. Though I am ſatisfide, and needs no more what I know, yet ſhall the Oracle eſt to th'mindes of others; ſuch as he ignorant credulitie, will not p to th'truth. So haue we thought it good our free perſon, ſhe ſhould be confinde, hat the treachery of the two, fled hence,
her to performe. Come follow vs.
t to ſpeake in publique : for this buſineſſe iſe vs all.
ng To laughter, as I take it,
good truth, were knowne Exeunt

Scena Secunda.

Enter Paulina, a Gentleman, Cooler, Emilia.

Paul The Keeper of the priſon, call to him :
Let him haue knowledge who I am. Good Lady,
No Court in Europe is too good for thee,
What doſt thou then in priſon? Now good Sir,
You know me, do you not?
Gao. For a worthy Lady,
And one, who much I honour
Paul. Pray you then,
Conduct me to the Queene.
Gao. I may not (Madam)
To the contrary I haue expreſſe commandment.
Paul. Here's a-do, to locke vp honeſty & honour from Th'acceſſe of gentle viſitors. Is't lawfull pray you
To ſee her Women? Any of them? Emilia?
Gao. So pleaſe you (Madam)
To put a-part theſe your attendants, I Shall bring Emilia forth.
Paul. I pray now call her :
With-draw your ſelues
Gao. And Madam,
I muſt be preſent at your Conference.
Paul. Well : be't ſo prethee.
Heere's ſuch a-doe, to make no ſtaine, a ſtaine,
As paſſes colouring. Deare Gentlewoman,
How fares our gracious Lady?
Emil. As well as one ſo great, and ſo forlorne
May hold together : On her frights, and greefes (Which neuer tender Lady hath borne greater)
She is, ſomething before her time, deliuer'd.
Paul. A boy?
Emil. A daughter, and a goodly babe,
Luſty, and like to liue : the Queene receiues
Much comfort in't : Sayes, my poore priſoner,
I am innocent as you.
Paul I dare be ſworne:
Theſe dangerous, vnſafe Lunes i'th'King, beſhrew them:
He muſt be told on't, and he ſhall : the office
Becomes a woman beſt. Ile take't vpon me,
If I proue hony-mouth'd, let my tongue bliſter,
And neuer to my red-look'd Anger be
The Trumpet any more : pray you (Emilia)
Commend my beſt obedience to the Queene,
If ſhe dares truſt me with her little babe,
I'le ſhew't the King, and vndertake to be
Her Aduocate to th'lowd'ſt. We do not know
How he may ſoften at the ſight o'th'Childe :
The ſilence often of pure innocence
Perſwades, when ſpeaking failes.
Emil. Moſt worthy Madam,
your honor, and your goodneſſe is ſo euident,
That your free vndertaking cannot miſſe
A thriuing yſſue : there is no Lady liuing
So meete for this great errand; pleaſe your Ladiſhip
To viſit the next roome, Ile preſently
Acquaint the Queene of your moſt noble offer,
Who, but to day hammered of this deſigne,
But durſt not tempt a miniſter of honour
Leaſt ſhe ſhould be deny'd.

Paul

Paul. Tell her (Emilia)
Ile vſe that tongue I haue: If wit flow from't
As boldneſſe from my boſome, let't not be doubted
I ſhall do good.
Emil. Now be you bleſt for it.
Ile to the Queene: pleaſe you come ſomething neerer.
Gao. Madam, if't pleaſe the Queene to ſend the babe
I know not what I ſhall incurre, to paſſe it,
Hauing no warrant
Paul You need'e not feare it (Sir)
This Childe was priſoner to the wombe, and is
By Law and proceſſe of great Nature, thence Free'd, and enfranchis'd, not a partie to
The anger of the King, nor guilty of
(If any be) the treſpaſſe of the Queene.
Gao. I do beleeue it.
Paul. Do not you feare: vpon mine honor, I
Will ſtand betwixt you, and danger. Exeunt

Scena Tertia.

Enter Leontes, Seruants, Paulina, Antigonus, and Lords

Leo Nor night, nor day, no reſt: It is but weakneſſe
To beare the matter thus: meere weakneſſe, if
The cauſe were not in being: part o'th cauſe,
She, th'Adultreſſe: for the harlot-King
Is quite beyond mine Arme, out of the blanke
And leuell of my braine: plot-proofe: but ſhee,
I can hooke to me: ſay that ſhe were gone,
Giuen to the fire, a moity of my reſt
Might come to me againe. Whoſe there?
Ser My Lord.
Leo. How do's the boy?
Ser. He tooke good reſt to night: 'tis hop'd
His ſickneſſe is diſcharg'd
Leo To ſee his Nobleneſſe,
Conceyuing the diſhonour of his Mother.
He ſtraight declin'd, droop'd, tooke it deeply,
Faſten'd, and fix'd the ſhame on't in himſelfe:
Threw-off his Spirit, his Appetite, his Sleepe,
And down-right languiſh'd. Leaue me ſolely: goe,
See how he fares: fie, fie, no thought of him,
The very thought of my Reuenges that way
Recoyle vpon me: in himſelfe too mightie,
And in his parties, his Alliance: Let him be,
Vntill a time may ſerue. For preſent vengeance
Take it on her: Camillo, and Polixenes
Laught at me: make their paſtime at my ſorrow:
They ſhould not laugh, if I could reach them, nor Shall ſhe, within my powre.
Enter Paulina.
Lord. You muſt not enter.
Paul. Nay rather (good my Lords) be ſecond to me:
Feare you his tyrannous paſſion more (alas)
Then the Queenes life? A gracious innocent ſoule,
More free, then he is iealous.
Anti. That's enough.
Ser. Madam; he hath not ſlept to night, commanded
None ſhould come at him.
Paul. Not ſo hot (good Sir)
I come to bring him ſleepe. 'Tis ſuch as you
That creepe like ſhadowes by him, and do ſighe
At each his needleſſe heauings: ſuch as you
Nouriſh the cauſe of his awaking. I
Do,come with words, as medicinall, as true;
(Honeſt, as either,) to purge him of that humor
That preſſes him from ſleepe.
Leo. Who noyſe there, hoe?
Paul. No noyſe (my Lord) but needfull conference,
About ſome Goſſips for your Highneſſe.
Leo. How?
Away with that audacious Lady. Antigonus,
I charg'd thee that ſhe ſhould not come about me,
I knew ſhe would.
Ant I told her ſo (my Lord)
On your diſpleaſures perill, and on mine,
She ſhould not viſit you
Leo. What? canſt not rule her?
Paul. From all diſhoneſtie he can: in this (Vnleſſe he take the courſe that you haue done)
Commit me, for committing honor, truſt it,
He ſhall not rule me:
Ant. La-you now, you heare,
When ſhe will take the raine, I let her run,
But ſhee'l not ſtumble.
Paul. Good my Liege, I come:
And I beſeech you heare me, who profeſſes
My ſelfe your loyall Seruant, your Phyſitian,
Your moſt obedient Counſailor: yet that dares
Leſſe appeare ſo, in comforting your Euilles,
Then ſuch as moſt ſeeme yours. I ſay, I come
From your good Queene.
Leo. Good Queene?
Paul. Good Queene (my Lord) good Queene,
I ſay good Queene,
And would by combate, make her good ſo, were I
A man, the worſt about you.
Leo. Force her hence.
Paul Let him that makes but trifles of his eyes
Firſt hand me: on mine owne accord, Ile off,
But firſt, Ile do my errand. The good Queene
(For ſhe is good) hath brought you forth a daughter,
Heere 'tis. Commends it to your bleſſing
Leo Out.
A mankinde Witch? Hence with her, out o'dore:
A moſt intelligencing bawd.
Paul. Not ſo:
I am as ignorant in that, as you,
In ſo entit'ling me: and no leſſe honeſt
Then you are mad: which is enough, Ile warrant
(As this world goes) to paſſe for honeſt:
Leo. Traitors;
Will you not puſh her out? Giue her the Baſtard,
Thou dotard, thou art woman-tyr'd: vnrooſted
By thy dame Partlet heere. Take vp the Baſtard, Take't vp, I ſay: giue't to thy Crone.
Paul. For euer
Vnvenerable be thy hands, if thou
Tak'ſt vp the Princeſſe, by that forced baſeneſſe
Which he has put vpon't
Leo. He dreads his Wife.
Paul. So I would you did: then 'twere paſt all doubt You'ſ call your children, yours.
Leo. A neſt of Traitors.
Ant. I am none, by this good light.
Paul. Nor I: nor any
But one that's heere: and that's himſelfe: for he.

The

…or of himſelfe, his Queenes,
…nnes, his Babes, betrayes to Slander,
…harper then the Swords; and will not
…now ſtands, it is a Curſe
…mpell'd too't) once remoue
…a Opinion, which is rotten,
…r Stone was ſound.
…at
…tongue, who late hath beat her Husband,
…me: This Brat is none of mine,
…(Priſoners,
…nd together with the Dam,
…o the fire,
…ours:
…by th'old Prouerb to your charge,
…the worſe. Behold (my Lords)
…rint be little, the whole Matter
…the Father: (Eye, Noſe, Lippe,
…ro wne, his Fore-head, nay, the Valley,
…ples of his Chin, and Cheeke; his Smiles:
…and frame of Hand, Nayle, Finger.)
…Goddeſſe Nature, which haſt made it
…ut got it, if thou haſt
…(the Mind too, mongſt all Colours
…leaſt the ſuſpect, as he do't,
…ot her Husbands.
…le Hagge:
…ou art worthy to be hang'd,
…ay her Tongue,
…g all the Husbands
…e that Feat, you'le leaue your ſelfe
…ſleſs.
…nore take her hence.
…vnworthy, and vnnaturall Lord
…e.
…thee burne.
…not:
…ue that makes the fire,
…burnes in't. Ile not call you Tyrant:
…rwell vſage of your Queenie
…oduce more accuſation
…e weake-hinde'd Fancy) ſomthing ſauors
…nd will ignoble make you,
…to the World.
…ot Allegeance,
…mber with her. Were I a Tyrant,
…r life? ſhe durſt not call me ſo,
…e me one, Away with her.
…you doe not puſh me, Ile be gone.
…Babe (my Lord) 'tis yours: Ioue ſend her
…g Spirit. What needs theſe hands?
…is ſo tender o're his Follyes,
…him good, not one of you.
…, we are gone. Exit
…Traytor) haſt ſet on thy Wife to this
…y with's? euen thou, that haſt
…e a re it, take it hence,
…nely conſum'd with fire.
…none but thou. Take it vp ſtraight:
…are bring me word 'tis done,
…eſtimonie) or Ile ſeize thy life,
…e elſe call'ſt thine: if thou refuſe,
…nter with my Wrath, ſay ſo;
…ynes with theſe my proper hands
…Goe, take it to the fire,
…on thy Wife.

Antig. I did not, Sir:
Theſe Lords, my Noble Fellowes, if they pleaſe,
Can cleare me in't.

Lords. We can: my Royall Liege,
He is not guiltie of her comming hither.

Leo. You're Lyers all.

Lord. Beſeech your Highneſſe, giue vs better credit:
We haue alwayes truly ſeru'd you, and beſeech
So to eſteeme of vs: and on our knees we begge,
(As recompence of our deare ſeruices
Paſt, and to come) that you doe change this purpoſe,
Which being ſo horrible, ſo bloody, muſt
Lead on to ſome foule Iſſue. We all kneele.

Leo. I am a Feather for each Wind that blowes:
Shall I liue on, to ſee this Baſtard kneele,
And call me Father? better burne it now,
Then curſe it then. But be it; let it liue.
It ſhall not neyther. You Sir, come you hither:
You that haue beene ſo tenderly officious
With Lady Margerie, your Mid-wife there,
To ſaue this Baſtards life; for 'tis a Baſtard,
So ſure as this Beard's gray. What will you aduenture,
To ſaue this Brats life?

Antig. Any thing (my Lord)
That my abilitie may vndergoe,
And Nobleneſſe impoſe: at leaſt thus much;
Ile pawne the little blood which I haue left,
To ſaue the Innocent: any thing poſſible.

Leo. It ſhall be poſſible: Sweare by this Sword
Thou wilt performe my bidding.

Antig. I will (my Lord.)

Leo. Marke, and performe it: ſeeſt thou for the faile
Of any point in't, ſhall not onely be Death to thy ſelfe, but to thy lewd-tongu'd Wife, (Whom for this time we pardon) We enioyne thee,
As thou art Liege-man to vs, that thou carry
This female Baſtard hence, and that thou beare it
To ſome remote and deſart place, quite out
Of our Dominions; and that there thou leaue it (Without more mercy) to it owne protection,
And fauour of the Climate: as by ſtrange fortune
It came to vs, I doe in Iuſtice charge thee,
On thy Soules perill, and thy Bodyes torture,
That thou commend it ſtrangely to ſome place,
Where Chance may nurſe, or end it: take it vp.

Antig. I ſweare to doe this: though a preſent death
Had beene more mercifull. Come on (poore Babe)
Some powerfull Spirit inſtruct the Kytes and Rauens
To be thy Nurſes. Wolues and Beares, they ſay, (Caſting their ſauageneſſe aſide) haue done
Like offices of Pitty. Sir, be proſperous
In more then this deed do's require; and Bleſſing
Againſt this Crueltie, fight on thy ſide (Poore Thing, condemn'd to loſſe.) Exit.

Leo. No: Ile not reare
Anothers Iſſue. Enter a Seruant.

Seru. Pleaſe't your Highneſſe, Poſts
From thoſe you ſent to th'Oracle, are come
An houre ſince: Cleomines and Dion,
Being well arriu'd from Delphos, are both landed,
Haſting to th' Court.

Lord. So pleaſe you (Sir) their ſpeed
Hath beene beyond accompt.

Leo. Twentie three dayes
They haue beene abſent: 'tis good ſpeed: fore-tells
The great Apollo ſuddenly will haue

The

The truth of this appeare: Prepare you Lords,
Summon a Session, that we may arraigne
Our most disloyall Lady: for as she hath
Been publikely accus'd, so shall she haue
A iust and open Triall. While she liues,
My heart will be a burthen to me. Leaue me,
And thinke vpon my bidding. Exeunt.

Actus Tertius. Scena Prima.

Enter Cleomines and Dion.

Cleo. The Clymat's delicate, the Ayre most sweet,
Fertile the Isle, the Temple much surpassing
The common prayse it beares.
Dion. I shall report,
For most it caught me, the Celestiall Habits,
(Me thinkes I so should terme them) and the reuerence
Of the graue Wearers. O, the Sacrifice,
How ceremonious, solemne, and vn-earthly
It was i'th' Offring!
Cleo. But of all, the burst
And the ear-deaft'ning Voyce o'th' Oracle,
Kin to Ioues Thunder, so surpriz'd my Sence,
That I was nothing.
Dion. If th' euent o'th' Iourney
Proue as successefull to the Queene (O be't so)
As it hath beene to vs, rare, pleasant, speedie,
The time is worth the vse on't.
Cleo. Great Apollo
Turne all to th' best: these Proclamations,
So forcing faults vpon Hermione,
I little like.
Dion. The violent carriage of it
Will cleare, or end the Businesse, when the Oracle
(Thus by Apollo's great Diuine seal'd vp)
Shall the Contents discouer: something rare
Euen then will rush to knowledge. Goe: fresh Horses,
And gracious be the issue. Exeunt.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Leontes, Lords, Officers. Hermione (as to her Triall) Ladies, Cleomines, Dion.

Leo. This Session (to our great griefe we pronounce) Euen pushes 'gainst our heart. The partie try'd,
The Daughter of a King, our Wife, and one
Of vs too much belou'd. Let vs be clear'd
Of being tyrannous, since we so openly
Proceed in Iustice, which shall haue due course,
Euen to the Guilt, or the Purgation.
Produce the Prisoner.
Officer. It is his Highnesse pleasure, that the Queene Appeare in person, here in Court. Silence.
Leo. Reade the Indictment.
Officer. Hermione, Queene to the worthy Leontes, King of Sicilia, thou art here accused and arraigned of High Treason, in committing Adultery with Polixenes King of Bohemia, and conspiring with Camillo to take away the Life of our Soueraigne Lord the King, thy Royall Husband: the prouinces whereof being by circumstances partly laid open, thou Hermione, contrary to the Faith and Allegeance of a true Subiect, didst counsaile and ayde them, for their better safetie, to flye away by Night.
Her. Since what I am to say, must be but that Which contradicts my Accusation, and
The testimonie on my part, no other
But what comes from my selfe, it shall scarce boot me
To say, Not guiltie: mine Integritie
Being counted Falsehood, shall (as I expresse it)
Be so receiu'd. But thus, if Powres Diuine
Behold our humane Actions (as they doe)
I doubt not then, but Innocence shall make False Accusation blush, and Tyrannie
Tremble at Patience. You (my Lord) best know (Whom least will seeme to doe so) my past life
Hath been as continent, as chaste, as free,
As I am now vnhappy; which is more
Then Historie can patterne, though deuis'd,
And play'd, to take Spectators. For behold me,
A Fellow of the Royall Bed, which owe
A Moitie of the Throne: a great King's Daughter,
The Mother to a hopefull Prince, here standing
To prate and talke for Life, and Honor, fowe
Who please to come, and heare. For Life I prize it
As I weigh Griefe (which I would spare:) For Honor,
'Tis a derriuation from me to mine,
And only that I stand for. I appeale
To your owne Conscience (Sir) before Polixenes
Came to your Court, how I was in your grace,
How merited to be so: Since he came,
With what encounter so vncurrent, I
Haue strayn'd t'appeare thus: if one iot beyond
The bound of Honor, or in act, or wit
That way inclining, hardned be the hearts
Of all that heare me, and my neer'st of Kin
Cry fie vpon my Graue.
Leo. I ne're heard yet,
That any of these bolder Vices wanted
Lesse Impudence to gaine-say what they did,
Then to performe it first.
Her. That's true enough,
Though 'tis a saying (Sir) not due to me.
Leo. You will not owne it.
Her. More then Mistresse of,
Which comes to me in name of Fault, I must not
At all acknowledge. For Polixenes
(With whom I am accus'd) I doe confesse
I lou'd him, as in Honor he requir'd:
With such a kind of Loue, as might become
A Lady like me; with a Loue, euen such,
So, and no other, as your selfe commanded:
Which, not to haue done, I thinke had been in me
Both Disobedience, and Ingratitude
To you, and toward your Friend, whose Loue had spoke,
Euen since it could speake, from an Infant, freely,
That it was yours. Now for Conspiracie,
I know not how it tastes, though it be dish'd
For me to try how: All I know of it,
Is, that Camillo was an honest man;
And why he left your Court, the Gods themselues
(Wotting no more then I) are ignorant.
Leo. You knew of his departure, as you know
What you haue vnderta'ne to doe in's absence.

Her. Sir,

anguage that I vnderſtand not;
n the ſcuell of your Dreames, downe.
h.ſhions are my Dreames.
ard by Polixenes,
n'd it: As you were paſt all ſhame,
: Faſt are ſo) ſo paſt all truth;
,concernes more then auailes: for as been caſt out, like to it ſelfe, ning it(which is indeed in thee, then it) ſo thou Iuſtice; in whoſe eaſieſt paſſage, eſſe then death.
are your Threats:
ich you would fright me with, I ſeeke:
e be no commoditie;
d comfort of my Life(your Fauor)
, for I doe feele it gone,
how it went. My ſecond Ioy,
: of my body, from his preſence
: one infection. My third comfort nluckily) is from my breaſt milke in it moſt innocent mouth)
urther. My ſelfe on euery Poſt Strumpet: With immodeſt hatred
d priuiledge deny'd, which longs f all faſhion. Laſtly, hurried lace, i'th' open ayre, before ngth of limit. Now(my Liege) bleſſings I haue here alive, ſcare to die? Therefore proceed:
this: miſtake me not: no Life,
a ſtraw) but for mine Honor,
ld free: if I ſhall be condemn'd
s (all proofes ſleeping elſe, Iealouſies awake) I tell you ſ not Law Your Honors all,
me to the Oracle:
Iudge.
your requeſt
iuſt: therefore bring forth i's Name) his Oracle.
Emperor of Ruſſia was my Father.
ve alive, and here beholding
a Tryall: that he did but ſee of my miſerie; yet with eyes Reuenge.
ere ſhall ſweare vpon this Sword of Iuſtice, mines and Dion) haue
Delphos, and from thence haue brought
: Oracle, by the Hand deliuer'd
's Prieſt; and that ſince then,
dar'd to breake the holy Seale,
ecrees in't.
All this we ſweare.
te vp the Seales, and read.
relone w chaſt, Polixenes blemeleſſe, Camillo Leontes a ieatlous Tyrant, his innocent Babe uall the King ſhall liue without an Heire, if that ore found.
w bleſſed be the great Apollo.
ſed.
hou read truth?
y Lord; euen ſo as it is here ſet downe.
is no truth at all i'th Oracle:
The Seſſions ſhall proceed: this is meere falſehood.
Ser. My Lord the King: the King?
Leo. What is the buſineſſe?
Ser. O Sir, I ſhall be hated to report it.
The Prince your Sonne, with meere conceit, and feare
Of the Queenes ſpeed, is gone
Leo. How? gone?
Ser. Is dead.
Leo. Apollo's ang'ry, and the Heauens themſelues
Doe ſtake at my Iniuſtice. How now there?
Paul. This newes is mortall to the Queene: Look downe
And ſee what Death is doing.
Leo. Take her hence:
Her heart is but o're-charg'd: ſhe will recouer.
I haue too much beleeu'd mine owne ſuſpition:
'Beſeech you tenderly apply to her
Some remedies for life. Apollo pardon
My great prophaneneſſe 'gainſt thine Oracle.
Ile reconcile me to Polixenes,
New woe my Queene, recall the good Camillo
(Whom I proclaime a man of Truth, of Mercy:)
For being tranſported by my Iealouſies
To bloody thoughts, and to reuenge, I choſe
Camillo for the miniſter, to poyſon
My friend Polixenes: which had been done,
But that the good mind of Camillo tardied
My ſwift command: though I with Death, and with Reward, did threaten and encourage him,
Not doing it, and being done: he (moſt humane,
And fill'd with Honor) to my Kingly Gueſt
Vnlaſp'd my practiſe, quit his fortunes here
(Which you knew great) and to the hazard
Of all Incertainties, himſelfe commended,
No richer then his Honor: How he gliſters
Through myRuſt? and how his Pietie
Do's my deeds make the blacker?
Paul. Woe the while:
O cut my Lace, leaſt my heart, (cracking it)
Breake too.
Lord. What fit is this? good Lady?
Paul. What ſtudied torments (Tyrant) haſt for me?
What Wheeles? Racke? Fires? What flaying? boyling?
In Leads, or Oyles? What old, or newer Torture
Muſt I receiue? whoſe every word deſerues
To taſte of thy moſt worſt. Thy Tyranny (Together working with thy Iealouſies,
Fancies too weake for Boyes, too greene and idle
For Girles of Nine) O thinke what they haue done,
And then run mad indeed: ſtarke-mad: for all
Thy by-gone fooleries were but ſpices of it.
That thou betrayed'ſt Polixenes, 'twas nothing,
(That did but ſhew thee, of a Foole, inconſtant,
And damnable ingrateful:) Nor was't much,
Thou would'ſt haue poyſon'd good Camillo's Honor,
To haue him kill a King: poore Treſpaſſes,
More monſtrous ſtanding by: whereof I reckon
The caſting forth to Crowes, thy Baby-daughter,
To be or none, or little; though a Deuill
Would haue ſhed water out of fire, ere don't:
Nor is't directly layd to thee the death
Of the young Prince, whoſe honorable thoughts
(Thoughts high for one ſo tender) cleft the heart
That could conceiue a groſſe and fooliſh Sire
Blemiſh'd his gracious Dam: this is not, no,
Layd to thy anſwere: but the laſt: O Lords,
When I haue ſaid, cry woe: the Queene, the Queene,

The

The sweet'ſt, deer'ſt creature's dead: & vengeance for't
Not drop'd downe yet.

Lord. The higher powres forbid.

Pau. I say ſhe's dead: Ile ſweare't. If word, nor oath
Preuaile not, go and ſee: if you can bring Tincture, or luſtre in her lip, her eye
Heate outwardly, or breath within, Ile ſerue you
As I would do the Gods. But, O thou Tyrant,
Do not repent theſe things, for they are heauier
Then all thy woes can ſtirre: therefore betake thee
To nothing but diſpaire. A thouſand knees,
Ten thouſand yeares together, naked, faſting,
Vpon a barren Mountaine, and ſtill Winter
In ſtorme perpetuall, could not moue the Gods
To looke that way thou wer't.

Leo. Go on, go on
Thou canſt not ſpeake too much, I haue deſerv'd
All tongues to talke their bitterſt.

Lord. Say no more;
How ere the buſineſſe goes, you haue made fault
I'th boldneſſe of your ſpeech

Pau. I am ſorry for't;
All faults I make, when I ſhall come to know them,
I do repent: Alas, I haue ſhew'd too much
The raſhneſſe of a woman: he is toucht
To th'Noble heart. What's gone, and what's paſt helpe
Should be paſt greefe: Do not receiue affliction
At my petition; I beſeech you, rather
Let me be puniſh'd, that haue minded you
Of what you ſhould forget. Now (good my Liege)
Sir, Royall Sir, forgiue a fooliſh woman:
The loue I bore your Queene (Lo, foole againe)
Ile ſpeake of her no more, nor of your Children:
Ile not remember you of my owne Lord
(Who is loſt too:) take your patience to you,
And Ile ſay nothing

Leo. Thou didſt ſpeake but well,
When moſt the truth: which I receyue much better,
Then to be pittied of thee. Prethee bring me
To the dead bodies of my Queene, and Sonne.
One graue ſhall be for both: Vpon them ſhall
The cauſes of their death appeare (vnto
Our ſhame perpetuall) once a day, Ile viſit
The Chappell where they lye, and teares ſhed there Shall be my recreation. So long as Nature
Will beare vp with this exerciſe, ſo long
I dayly vow to vſe it. Come, and leade me
To theſe ſorrowes.

Scæna Tertia.

Enter Antigonus, a Marriner, Babe, Sheepe-heard, and Clowne

Ant. Thou art perfect then, our ſhip hath toucht vpon
The Deſarts of Bohemia.

Mar. I (my Lord) and feare
We haue Landed in ill time: the skies looke grimly,
And threaten preſent bluſters. In my conſcience
The heauens with that we haue in hand, are angry,
And frowne vpon's.

Ant. Their ſacred wil's be done: go get a-boord, Looke to thy barke, Ile not be long before
I call vpon thee.

Mar. Make your beſt haſte, and go not Too-farre i'th Land: 'tis like to be lowd weather,
Beſides this place is famous for the Creatures
Of prey, that keepe vpon't.

Anti. Go thou away,
Ile follow inſtantly

Mar. I am glad at heart
To be ſo ridde o'th buſineſſe. Exit

Ant. Come, poore babe;
I haue heard (but not beleev'd) the Spirits o'th'dead
May walke againe: if ſuch thing be, thy Mother
Appear'd to me laſt night: for ne're was dreame
So like a waking. To me comes a creature,
Sometimes her head on one ſide, ſome another,
I neuer ſaw a veſſell of like ſorrow
So fill'd, and ſo becomming: in pure white Robes
Like very ſanctity ſhe did approach
My Cabine where I lay: thrice bow'd before me,
And (gaſping to begin ſome ſpeech) her eyes
Became two ſpouts; the furie ſpent, anon
Did this breake from her. Good Antigonus,
Since Fate (againſt thy better diſpoſition)
Hath made thy perſon for the Thower-out
Of my poore babe, according to thine oath,
Places remote enough are in Bohemia,
There weepe, and leaue it crying: and for the babe
Is counted loſt for euer, Perdita
I prethee call't: For this ungentle buſineſſe
Put on thee, by my Lord, thou ne're ſhalt ſee
Thy Wife Paulina more: and ſo, with ſhrieckes
She melted into Ayre. Affrighted much,
I did in time collect my ſelfe, and thought
This was ſo, and no ſlumber. Dreames, are coyes,
Yet for this once, yea ſuperſtitiouſly,
I will be ſquar'd by this. I do beleeue Hermione hath ſuffer'd death, and that Apollo would (this being indeede the iſſue
Of King Polixenes) it ſhould heere be laide
(Either for life, or death) vpon the earth
Of it's right Father. Bloſſome, ſpeed thee well,
There lye, and there thy character: there theſe,
Which may if Fortune pleaſe, both breed thee (pretty)
And ſtill reſt thine. The ſtorme beginnes, poore wretch,
That for thy mothers fault, art thus expos'd
To looſe, and what may follow. Weepe I cannot,
But my heart bleedes: and moſt accurſt am I
To be by oath enioyn'd to this. Farewell,
The day frownes more and more: thou'rt like to haue
A lullabie too rough: I neuer ſaw
The heauens ſo dim, by day. A ſauage clamor?
Well may I get a-boord: This is the Chace,
I am gone for euer. Exit purſued by a Beare.

Shep. I would there were no age betweene ten and three and twenty, or that youth would ſleep out the reſt:
for there is nothing (in the betweene) but getting wenches with childe, wronging the Ancientry, ſtealing, fighting. Hearke you now: would any but theſe boylingbraines of nineteene, and two and twenty hunt this weather? They haue ſcar'd away two of my beſt Sheepe, which I feare the Wolfe will ſooner finde then the Maſter; if any where I haue them, 'tis by the ſea-ſide, brouzing of Ivy. Good-lucke (and's be thy will) what haue we heere? Mercy on's, a Barne? A very pretty barne; A boy, or a Childe I wonder? (A pretty one, a very pretty one) ſure ſome Scape; Though I am not bookiſh yet I can

can reade Waiting-Gentlewoman in the scape: this has scene some staire-worke, some Trunke-worke, some behinde-doore worke: they were warmer that got this, then the poore Thing is heere. Ile take it vp for pity, yes Ile carry till my sonne come: he hallow'd but even now. Whoa-ho-hoa.

Enter Clowne.

Clo. Hilloa, loa.

Shep. What? art so neere? If thou'le see a thing to talke on, when thou art dead and rotten, come hither: what ayl'st thou, man?

Clo. I haue seene two such sights, by Sea & by Land: but I am not to say it is a Sea, for it is now the skie, betwixt the Firmament and it, you cannot thrust a bodkins point.

Shep. Why boy, how is it?

Clo. I would you did but see how it chafes, how it rages, how it takes vp the shore, but that's not to the point: Oh, the most pittyous cry of the poore soules, sometimes to see 'em and not to see 'em: Now the Shippe boaring the Moone with her mainе Mast, and anon swallowed with yest and froth, as you'ld thrust a Corke into a hogshead. And then for the Land-seruice, to see how the Beare tore out his shoulder-bone, how he cride to mee for helpe, and said his name was Antigonus, a Nobleman. But to make an end of the Ship, to see how the Sea flapdragon'd it: but first, how the poore soules roared, and the sea mock'd them: and how the poore Gentleman roared, and the Beare mock'd him, both roaring lowder then the sea, or weather.

Shep. Name of mercy, when was this boy?

Clo. Now, now: I haue not wink'd since I saw these sights: the men are not yet cold vnder water, nor the Beare halfe din'd on the Gentleman: he's at it now.

Shep. Would I had bin by, to haue help'd the olde man.

Clo. I would you had beene by the ship side, to haue help'd her; there your charity would haue lack'd footing.

Shep. Heauy matters, heauy matters: but looke thee here boy. Now blessе thy sellе: thou met'st with things dying, I with things new borne. Here's a sight for thee: look thee, a bearing-cloath for a Squires childe: looke heere, take vp, take vp (Boy:) open't: so, let's see, it was told me I should be rich by the Fairies. This is some changeling: open't: what's within, boy?

Clo. You're a mad olde man: If the sinnes of your youth are forgiuen you, you're well to liue. Golde, all golde.

Shep. This is Fairy Gold boy, and 'twill proue so: vp with it, keepe it close: home, home, the next way. We are lucky (boy) and to be so still requires nothing but thrift. Let my Sheepe go. Come (good boy) the next way home.

Clo. Go you the next way with your Findings, Ile go see if I can finde how my Beare hee gone from the Gentleman, and how he hath eaten: they are neuer curst but when they are hungry: if there be any of him left, Ile bury it.

Shep. That's a good deed: if thou mayest discerne by that which is left of him, what he is, fetch me to th'light of it.

Clo. Marry will I: and you shall helpe to put him i'th ground.

Shep. 'Tis a lucky day, boy, and we'l do good deeds on't.

Exeunt

Actus Quartus. Scena Prima.

Enter Time, the Chorus.

Time. I that please some, try all: both ioy and terror
Of good, and bad: that make, and vnfolds error,
Now take vpon me (in the name of Time)
To vse my wings: Impute it not a crime
To me, or my swift passage, that I slide
O're sixteene yeeres, and leaue the growth vntride
Of that wide gap, since it is in my powre
To orethrow Law, and in one selfe-borne howre
To plant, and ore-whelme Custome. Let me passe
The same I am, ere ancient'st Order was,
Or what is now receiu'd. I witnesse to
The times that brought them in, so shall I do
To th'freshest things now reigning, and make stale
The glistering of this present, as my Tale
Now seemes to it: your patience this allowing,
I turne my glasse, and giue my Scene such growing
As you had slept betweene: Leontes leauing
Th'effects of his fond iealousies, so greeuing
That he shuts vp himselfe. Imagine me (Gentle Spectators) that I now may be
In faire Bohemia, and remember well,
I mentioned a sonne o'th'Kings, which Florizell
I now name to you: and with speed so pace
To speake of Perdita, now growne in grace
Equall with wond'ring. What of her insues
I list not propheſie: but let Times newes
Be knowne when 'tis brought forth. A shepherds daughter,
And what to her adheres, which followes after, (ter
Is th'argument of Time: of this allow,
If euer you haue spent time worse, ere now:
If neuer, yet that Time himselfe doth say,
He wishes earnestly, you neuer may. Exit.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Polixenes, and Camillo.

Pol. I pray thee (good Camillo) be no more importunate: 'tis a sickneſſe denying thee any thing: a death to grant this.

Cam. It is fifteene yeeres since I saw my Country: though I haue (for the most part) bin ayred abroad, I desire to lay my bones there. Besides, the penitent King (my Master) hath sent for me, to whose feeling sorrowes I might be some allay, or I o'reweene to thinke so) which is another spurre to my departure.

Pol. As thou lou'st me (Camillo) wipe not out the rest of thy seruices, by leauing me now: the neede I haue of thee, thine owne goodneſſe hath made: better not to haue had thee, then thus to want thee. thou hauing made me Businesses, (which none (without thee) can sufficiently manage) must either stay to execute them thy selfe, or take away with thee the very seruices thou hast done: which if I haue not enough considered (as too much I cannot) to be more thankefull to thee, shall bee my studie, and my profite therein, the heaping friendshippes. Of that fatall Country Sicilia, prethee speake no more, whose very naming, punishes me with the remembrance of that penitent (as thou calſt him) and reconciled King my brother, whoſe loſſe of his moſt precious Queene & Children, are even now to be a-freſh lamented. Say to me, when ſaw'ſt thou the Prince Florizell my ſon? Kings are no leſſe vnhappy, their iſſue not being gracious, then they are in looſing them, when they haue approued their Vertues.

Cam. Sir, it is three dayes ſince I ſaw the Prince: what his happier affayres may be, are to me vnknowne: but I haue (miſsingly) noted, he is of late much retyred from Court, and is leſſe frequent to his Princely exerciſes then formerly he hath appeared.

Pol. I haue conſidered ſo much (Camillo) and with ſome care, ſo farre, that I haue eyes vnder my ſeruice, which looke vpon his remouednеſſe: from whom I haue this Intelligence, that he is ſeldome from the houſe of a moſt homely ſhepheard: a man (they ſay) that from very nothing, and beyond the imagination of his neighbors, is growne into an vnſpeakable eſtate.

Cam. I haue heard (ſir) of ſuch a man, who hath a daughter of moſt rare note: the report of her is extended more, then can be thought to begin from ſuch a cottage.

Pol. That's likewiſe part of my Intelligence: but (I feare) the Angle that pluckes our ſonne thither. Thou ſhalt accompany vs to the place, where we will (not appearing what we are) haue ſome queſtion with the ſhepheard; from whoſe ſimplicity, I thinke it not vneaſie to get the cauſe of my ſonnes reſort thether. 'Prethe be my preſent partner in this buſines, and lay aſide the thoughts of Sicillia.

Cam. I willingly obey your command.

Pol. My beſt Camillo, we muſt diſguiſe our ſelues. Exit

Scena Tertia

Enter Autolicus ſinging.

When Daffadils begin to peere,
With heigh the Doxy ouer the dale,
Why then comes in the ſweet o'the yeere,
For the red blood raigns in'ſ winters pale.

The white ſheete bleaching on the hedge,
With hey the ſweet birds, O how they ſing:
Doth ſet my pug-ging tooth an edge,
For a quart of Ale is a diſh for a King.

The Larke that tirra Lyra chaunts,
With heigh, the Thruſh and the Jay:
Are Summer ſongs for me and my Aunts,
While we lye tumbling in the hay.

I haue ſerv'd Prince Florizell, and in my time wore three pile, but now I am out of ſeruice.

But ſhall I go mourne for that (my deere) the pale Moone ſhines by night:
And when I wander here, and there
I then do moſt go right.
If Tinkers may haue leaue to liue,
and beare the Sow-skin Bowge,
Then my account I well may giue,
and in the Stockes auouch it.

My Traffycke is ſheetes: when the Kite builds, looke to leſſer Linnen. My Father nam'd me Autolicus, who being (as I am) lytter'd vnder Mercurie, was likewiſe a ſnapper-vp of vnconſidered trifles: With Dye and drab, I purchas'd this Capariſon, and my Reuennew is the ſilly Cheate. Gallowes, and Knocke, are too powerfull on the Highway. Beating and hanging are terrors to me: For the life to come, I ſleepe out the thought of it. A prize, a prize!

Enter Clowne.

Clo. Let me ſee, every Leuen-weather toddes, every tod yeelds pound and odde ſhilling: fifteene hundred ſhorne, what comes the wooll too?

Aut. If the ſprindge hold, the Cocke's mine.

Clo. I cannot do't without Compters. Let mee ſee, what am I to buy for our Sheepe-ſhearing-Feaſt? Three pound of Sugar, five pound of Currence, Rice: What will this ſiſter of mine do with Rice? But my father hath made her Miſtris of the Feaſt, and ſhe layes it on. She hath made-me four and twenty Noſe-gayes for the ſhearers (three-man ſong-men, all, and very good ones) but they are moſt of them Meanes and Baſes; but one Puritan amongſt them, and he ſings Pſalmes to horne-pipes. I muſt haue Saffron to colour the Warden Pies, Mace; Dates, none: that's out of my note: Nutmegges, ſeuen; a Race or two of Ginger, but that I may begge: Foure pound of Prewyns, and as many of Reyſons o'th Sun.

Aut. Oh, that euer I was borne.

Clo. I'th name of me.

Aut. Oh helpe me, helpe mee: plucke but off theſe ragges: and then, deaeth, death.

Clo. Alacke poore ſoule, thou haſt need of more rags to lay on thee, rather then haue theſe off.

Aut. Oh ſir, the loathſomneſſe of them offend mee, more then the ſtripes I haue receiued, which are mighty ones and millions.

Clo. Alas poore man, a million of beating may come to a great matter.

Aut. I am rob'd ſir, and beaten: my money, and apparrell tane from me, and theſe deteſtable things put vpon me.

Clo. What, by a horſe-man, or a foot-man?

Aut. A footman (ſweet ſir) a footman.

Clo. Indeed, he ſhould be a footman, by the garments he has left with thee: If this be a horſemans Coate, it hath ſeene very hot ſeruice. Lend me thy hand, Ile helpe thee. Come, lend me thy hand.

Aut. Oh good ſir, tenderly, oh.

Clo. Alas poore ſoule.

Aut. Oh good ſir, ſoftly, good ſir: I feare (ſir) my ſhoulder-blade is out.

Clo. How now? Canſt ſtand?

Aut. Softly, deere ſir: good ſir, ſoftly: you haue done me a charitable office.

Clo. Doeſt lacke any mony? I haue a little mony for thee.

Aut. No, good ſweet ſir: no, I beſeech you ſir: I haue a Kinſman not paſt three quarters of a mile hence, vnto whome I was going: I ſhall there haue money, or any thing I want: Offer me no money I pray you, that killes my heart.

Clow. What manner of Fellow was hee that robb'd you?

Aut. A fellow (ſir) that I haue knowne to go about with Troll-my-dames: I knew him once a ſeruant of the Prince: I cannot tell good ſir, for which of his Vertues it was, but he was certainely Whipt out of the Court.

Clo.

Clo. His vices you would say: there's no vertue whipt out of the Court: they cherish it to make it stay there; and yet it will no more but abide.

Aut. Vices I would say (Sir) I know this man well, he hath bene since an Ape-bearer, then a Processe-seruer (a Bayliffe) then hee compast a Motion of the Prodigall sonne, and married a Tinkers wife, within a Mile where my Land and Liuing lyes; and (hauing flowne ouer many knauish professions) he setled onely in Rogue: some call him Autolicus.

Clo. Out vpon him: Prig, for my life Prig: he haunts Wakes, Faires, and Beare-baitings.

Aut. Very true sir: he sir hee: that's the Rogue that put me into this apparrell.

Clo. Not a more cowardly Rogue in all Bohemia; If you had but look'd bigge, and spit at him, hee'ld haue runne.

Aut. I must confesse to you (sir) I am no fighter: I am false of heart that way, & that he knew I warrant him.

Clo. How do you now?

Aut. Sweet sir, much better then I was: I can stand, and walke: I will euen take my leaue of you, & pace softly towards my Kinsmans.

Clo. Shall I bring thee on the way?

Aut. No, good fac'd sir, no sweet sir.

Clo. Then fartheewell, I must go buy Spices for our sheepe-shearing. Exit.

Aut. Prosper you sweet sir. Your purse is not hot enough to purchase your Spice: Ile be with you at your sheepe-shearing too: If I make not this Cheat bring out another, and the sheerers proue sheepe, let me be vnrold, and my name put in the booke of Vertue.

Song. Iog-on, Iog-on, the foot path way,
And merrily hent the Stile-a:
A merry heart goes all the day,
Your sad tyres in a Mile-a.
Exit.

Scena Quarta.

r Florizell, Perdita, Shepherd, Clowne, Polixenes, Camillo, Mopsa, Dorcas, Seruants, Autolicus.

These your vnvsuall weeds, to each part of you ue a life: no Shepherdesse, but Flora
g in Aprils front. This your sheepe-shearing, eeting of the petty Gods,
the Queene on't.
Sir: my gracious Lord,
at your extreames, it not becomes me:
on, that I name them:) your high selfe ous marke o'th' Land, you haue obscur'd aines wearing: and me (poore lowly Maide) desse-like prank'd vp: But that our Feasts esse, haue folly; and the Feeders a Custome, I should blush
o attyr'd: sworne I thinke, selfe a glasse.
sse the time
od Falcon, made her flight a-crosse round
Ioue affoord you cause:
rence forges dread (your Greatnesse Hath not beene vs'd to feare:) euen now I tremble
To thinke your Father, by some accident
Should passe this way, as you did: Oh the Fates,
How would he looke, to see his worke, so noble, Vildely bound vp? What would he say? Or how Should I (in these my borrowed Flaunts) behold
The sternnesse of his presence?

Flo. Apprehend
Nothing but iollity: the Goddes themselues
(Humbling their Deities to loue) haue taken
The shapes of Beasts vpon them. Iupiter,
Became a Bull, and bellow'd: the greene Neptune
A Ram, and bleated: and the Fire-roab'd-God
Golden Apollo, a poore humble Swaine,
As I seeme now. Their transformations,
Were neuer for a peece of beauty, rarer,
Nor in a way so chaste: since my desires
Run not before mine honor: nor my Lusts
Burne hotter then my Faith.

Perd. O but Sir,
Your resolution cannot hold, when 'tis
Oppos'd (as it must be) by th' powre of the King:
One of these two must be necessities,
Which then will speake, that you must change this purpose,
Or I my life.

Flo. Thou deer'st Perdita,
With these forc'd thoughts, I prethee darken not
The Mirth o'th' Feast: Or Ile be thine (my Faire)
Or not my Fathers. For I cannot be Mine owne, nor any thing to any, if I be not thine. To this I am most constant,
Though destiny say no. Be merry (Gentle)
Strangle such thoughts as these, with any thing
That you behold the while. Your guests are comming:
Lift vp your countenance, as it were the day
Of celebration of that nuptiall, which
We two haue sworne shall come.

Perd. O Lady Fortune,
Stand you auspicious.

Flo. See, your Guests approach,
Addresse your selfe to entertaine them sprightly,
And let's be red with mirth.

Shep. Fy (daughter) when my old wife liu'd: vpon
This day, she was both Pantler, Butler, Cooke,
Both Dame and Seruant: Welcom'd all: seru'd all,
Would sing her song, and dance her turne: now heere
At vpper end o'th Table; now, i'th middle:
On his shoulder, and his: her face o'fire
With labour, and the thing she tooke to quench it
She would to each one sip. You are retyred,
As if you were a feasted one: and not
The Hostesse of the meeting: Pray you bid
These vnknowne friends to's welcome, for it is
A way to make vs better Friends, more knowne.
Come, quench your blushes, and present your selfe
That which you are, Mistris o'th' Feast. Come on,
And bid vs welcome to your sheepe-shearing,
As your good flocke shall prosper.

Perd. Sir, welcome:
It is my Fathers will, I should take on mee
The Hostesseship o'th' day: you're welcome sir.
Giue me those Flowres there (Dorcas.) Reuerend Sirs,
For you, there's Rosemary, and Rue, these keepe
Seeming, and sauour all the Winter long:
Grace, and Remembrance be to you both,
And welcome to our Shearing.

Pol. Shepherdeſſe,
(A faire one are you:) well you fit our ages
With flowres of Winter.
Perd. Sir, the yeare growing ancient,
Not yet on ſummers death, nor on the birth
Of trembling winter, the fayreſt flowres o'th ſeaſon
Are our Carnations, and ſtreak'd Gilly-vors,
(Which ſome call Natures baſtards) of that kind
Our ruſticke Gardens barren, and I care not
To get ſlips of them.
Pol. Wherefore (gentle Maiden)
Do you neglect them.
Perd. For I haue heard it ſaid,
There is an Art, which in their pideneſſe ſhares
With great creating-Nature.
Pol. Say there be:
Yet Nature is made better by no meane,
But Nature makes that Meane: ſo ouer that Art,
(Which you ſay addes to Nature) is an Art
That Nature makes: you ſee (ſweet Maid) we marry
A gentler Scion, to the wildeſt Stocke,
And make conceyue a barke of baſer kinde
By bud of Nobler race. This is an Art
Which do's mend Nature: change it rather, but
The Art it ſelfe, is Nature.
Perd. So it is.
Pol. Then make you Garden rich in Gilly'vors,
And do not call them baſtards.
Perd. Ile not put
The Dibble in earth, to ſet one ſlip of them:
No more then were I painted, I would wiſh
This youth ſhould ſay 'twer well: and only therefore Deſire to breed by me. Here's flowres for you:
Hot Lauender, Mints, Savory, Marioram,
The Mary-gold, that goes to bed with Sun,
And with him riſes, weeping: Theſe are flowres
Of middle ſummer, and I think they are giuen
To men of middle age. Y'are very welcome.
Cam. I ſhould leaue graſing, were I of your flocke,
And onely liue by gazing.
Perd. Out alas:
You'ld be ſo leane, that blaſts of January (Friend,
Would blow you through and through. Now (my faire
I would I had ſome Flowres o'th Spring, that might Become your time of day: and yours, and yours,
That weare vpon your Virgin-branches yet
Your Maiden-heads growing: O Proſerpina,
For the Flowres now, that (frighted) thou let'ſt fall
From Dyſes Waggon: Daffadils,
That come before the Swallow dares, and take
The windes of March with beauty: Violets (dim,
But ſweeter then the lids of Iuno's eyes,
Or Cytherea's breath) pale Prime-roſes,
That dye vnmarried, ere they can behold
Bright Phœbus in his ſtrength (a Maladie Moſt incident to Maids:) bold Oxlips, and
The Crowne Imperiall: Lillies of all kinds,
(The Flowre-de-Luce being one.) O, theſe I lacke,
To make you Garlands of) and my ſweet friend,
To ſtrew him o're, and ore.
Flo. What? like a Coarſe?
Perd. No, like a banke, for Loue to lye, and play on:
Not like a Coarſe: or if: not to be buried,
But quicke, and in mine armes. Come, take your flowres,
Me thinkes I play as I haue ſeene them do
In Whitſon-Paſtorals: Sure this Robe of mine
Do's change my diſpoſition.
Flo. What you do,
Still betters what is done. When you ſpeake (ſweet)
I'ld haue you do it euer: When you ſing,
I'ld haue you buy, and ſell ſo: ſo giue Almes,
Pray ſo: and for the ord'ring your Affayres,
To ſing them too. When you do dance, I wiſh you
A waue o'th Sea, that you might euer do
Nothing but that: moue ſtill, ſtill ſo:
And owne no other Function. Each your doing,
(So ſingular, in each particular)
Crownes what you are doing, in the preſent deeds,
That all your Acts, are Queenes.
Perd. O Doricles,
Your praiſes are too large: but that your youth
And the true blood which peepes fairely through't,
Do plainly giue you out an vnſtain'd Shepherd
With wiſedome, I might feare (my Doricles)
You woo'd me the falſe way.
Flo. I thinke you haue
As little skill to feare, as I haue purpoſe
To put you to't. But come, our dance I pray,
Your hand (my Perdita:) ſo Turtles paire
That neuer meane to part.
Perd. Ile ſweare for 'em.
Po. This is the prettieſt Low-borne Laſſe, that euer
Ran on the greene-ſord: Nothing ſhe do's, or ſeemes
But ſmackes of ſomething greater then her ſelfe,
Too Noble for this place.
Cam. He tels her ſomething
That makes her blood looke on't: Good ſooth ſhe is
The Queene of Curds and Creame.
Clo. Come on: ſtrike vp.
Dorcas. Mopſa muſt be your Miſtris: marry Garlick to mend her kiſſing with.
Mop. Now in good time.
Clo. Not a word, a word, we ſtand vpon our manners.
Come, ſtrike vp.
Heere a Dounce of Shepheards and Shepheardeſſes.
Pol. Pray good Shepheard, what faire Swaine is this,
Which dances with your daughter?
Shep. They call him Doricles, and boaſts himſelfe
To haue a worthy Feeding: but I haue it
Vpon his owne report, and I beleeue it:
He lookes like ſooth: he ſayes he loues my daughter,
I thinke ſo too: for neuer gaz'd the Moone
Vpon the water, as he'l ſtand and reade
As 'twere my daughters eyes: and to be plaine,
I thinke there is not halfe a kiſſe to chooſe
Who loues another beſt.
Pol. She dances featly.
Shep. So ſhe do's any thing, though I report it
That ſhould be ſilent: If yong Doricles
Do light vpon her, ſhe ſhall bring him that
Which he not dreames of. Enter Seruant.
Ser. O Maſter: if you did but heare the Pedler at the doore, you would neuer dance againe after a Tabor and Pipe: no, the Bag-pipe could not moue you: hee ſings ſeuerall Tunes, faſter then you'l tell money: hee vters them as he had eaten ballads: and all men's eares grew to his Tunes.
Clo. He could neuer come better: hee ſhall come in:
I loue a ballad but euen too well, if it be dolefull matter merrily ſet downe: or a very pleaſant thing indeede and ſung lamentably.

Ser.

ſer. He hath ſongs for man, or woman, of all ſizes: Millainer can ſo fit his cuſtomers with Gloues: he has preſſeſt Loue-ſongs for Maids, ſo without bawdrie ich is ſtrange,) with ſuch delicate burthens of Dil- and Fadings: Iump-her, and thump-her; and where e ſtretch-mouth'd Raſcall, would (as it were) meane therſe, and breake a ſowle gap into the Matter, hee ets the maid to anſwere, Whoop, doe me no harme good : put's him off, ſlights him, with Whoop, doe me no me good man.

'al. This is a braue fellow.

Clo. Beleeue mee, thou talkeſt of an admirable con- ed fellow, has he any imbraided Wares?

ſer. Hee hath Ribbons of all the colours i th Raine- ; Pumps, more then all the Lawyers in Bohemia, can nedly handle, though they come to him by th' groſſe: kles, Caddyſſes, Cambrickes, Lawnes: why he ſings ouer, as they were Gods, or Goddeſſes: you would ke a Smocke were a ſhee-Angell, he ſo chaunts to ſleeue-hand, and the worke about the ſquare on't

Clo. Pre'thee bring him in, and let him approach ſin- ly.

Serd. Forewarne him, that he vſe no ſcurrilous words tunes.

Clow. You haue of theſe Pedlers, that haue more in m, then you'ſd thinke (Siſter.)

Perd. I, good brother, or go about to thinke.

Enter Autolicus ſinging.

Lawne as white as driuen Snow,
Cypreſſe blacke as ere was Crow,
Gloues as ſweete as Damaſcke Roſes,
Maskes for faces, and for noſes
Bugle-bracelet, Necke-lace Amber,
Perfume for a Ladies Chamber:
Golden Quoifes, and Stomachers
For my Lads, to giue their deers:
Pins, and poaking-ſtickes of ſteele.
What Maids lacke from head to heele:
Come buy of me, come: come buy, come buy.
Buy Lads, or elſe your Laſſes cry. Come buy

Clo. If I were not in loue with Mopſa, thou ſhouldſt e no money of me, but being enthrall'd as I am, it will be the bondage of certaine Ribbons and Gloues.

Mop. I was promis'd them againſt the Feaſt, but they ne not too late now.

Dor. He hath promis'd you more then that, or there yars.

Mop. He hath paid you all he promis'd you: May be has paid you more, which will ſhame you to giue him ine.

Clo. Is there no manners left among maids? Will they ire their plackets, where they ſhould bear their faces? here not milking-time? When you are going to bed? kill-hole? To whiſtle of theſe ſecrets, but you muſt ttle-tatling before all our gueſts? 'Tis well they are ſpring: clamor your tongues, and not a word more.

Mop. I haue done; Come you promis'd me a tawdry- , and a paire of ſweet Gloues.

Clo. Haue I not told thee how I was cozen'd by the , and loſt all my money.

Aut. And indeed Sir, there are Cozeners abroad, ther- it behooues him to be wary.

Clo. Feare not thou man, thou ſhalt loſe nothing here Aut. I hope ſo ſir, for I haue about me many parcels harge.

Clo. What haſt heere? Ballads?

Mop. Pray now buy ſome: I loue a ballet in print, life, for then we are ſure they are true

Aut. Here's one, to a very doleſull tune, how a Vſurers wife was brought to bed of twenty money bagges at a burthen, and how ſhe long'd to eate Adders heads, and Toads carbonado'd.

Mop. Is it true, thinke you?

Aut. Very true, and but a moneth old.

Dor. Bleſſe me from marrying a Vſurer.

Aut. Here's the Midwiues name to't: one Miſt. Tale-Porter, and ſiue or ſix honeſt Wiues, that were preſent. Why ſhould I carry lyes abroad?

Mop. Pray you now buy it.

Clo. Come-on, lay it by: and let's firſt ſee moe Ballads: We'l buy the other things anon.

Aut. Here's another ballad of a Fiſh, that appeared vpon the coaſt, on wenſday the foureſcore of April, fortie thouſand fadom aboue water, & ſung this ballad againſt the hard hearts of maids: it was thought ſhe was a Woman, and was turn'd into a cold fiſh, for ſhe would not exchange fleſh with one that lou'd her: The Ballad is very pittifull, and as true.

Dor. Is it true too, thinke you.

Autol. Fiue Iuſtices hands at it, and witneſſes more then my packe will hold.

Clo Lay it by too; another.

Aut. This is a merry ballad, but a very pretty one.

Mop. Let's haue ſome merry ones.

Aut. Why this is a paſſing merry one, and goes to the tune of two maids wooing a man: there's ſcarſe a Maide weſtward but ſhe ſings it: 'tis in requeſt, I can tell you.

Mop. We can both ſing it: if thou'lt beare a part, thou ſhalt heare, 'tis in three parts.

Dor. We had the tune on't, a month agoe.

Aut. I can beare my part, you muſt know 'tis my occupation: Haue at it with you.

Song. Get you hence, for I muſt go
Aut. Where it fits not you to know
Dor. Whether?
Mop O whether?
Dor. Whether?
Mop. It becomes thy oath full well,
Thou to me thy ſecrets tell
Dor: Me too: Let me go thether:
Mop Or thou goeſt to th' Grange, or Mill,
Dor: If to either thou doſt ill.
Aut: Neither.
Dor: What neither?
Aut: Neither:
Dor: Thou haſt ſworne my Loue to be,
Mop Thou haſt ſworne it more to mee.
Then whether goeſt? Say whether?

Clo. Wee'l haue this ſong out anon by our ſelues: My Father, and the Gent. are in ſad talke, & wee'll not trouble them: Come bring away thy pack after me. Wenches Ile buy for you both: Pedler let's haue the firſt choice; follow me girles.

Aut. And you ſhall pay well for 'em.

Song. Will you buy any Tape, or Lace for your Cape?
My dainty Ducke, my deere-a?
Any Silke, any Thred, any Toyes for your head
Of the new'ſt and fin'ſt, fin'ſt wearе-a.
Come to the Pedler, Money's a meddler,
That doth vtter all mens ware-a. Exit.

Seruant. Maiſter, there is three Carters, three Sheepherds, three Neat-herds, three Swine-herds y haue made themſelues all men of haire, they call themſelues Saltiers, and they haue a Dance, which the Wenches ſay is a gally-maufrey of Gambols, becauſe they are not in't: but they themſelues are o'th'minde (if it bee not too rough for ſome, that know little but bowling) it will pleaſe plentifully.

Shep. Away: We'l none on't; heere has beene too much homely foolery already. I know (Sir) we weary you.

Pol. You weary thoſe that refreſh vs: a pray let's ſee theſe four-threes of Heardſmen.

Ser. One three of them, by their owne report (Sir,) hath dane'd before the King: and not the worſt of the three, but iumpes twelue foote and a halfe by th'ſquire.

Shep. Leaue your prating, ſince theſe good men are pleas'd, let them come in: but quickly now.

Ser. Why, they ſtay at doore Sir.

Heere a Dance of twelue Satyres.

Pol. O Father, you'l know more of that hereafter: Is it not too farre gone? 'Tis time to part them, He's ſimple, and tells much. How now (faire Shepheard) Your heart is full of ſomething, that do's take Your minde from feaſting. Sooth, when I was yong, And handed loue, as you do; I was wont To load my Shee with knackes: I would haue ranſackt The Pedlers ſilken Treaſury, and haue powr'd it To her acceptance: you haue let him go, And nothing marted with him. If your Laſſe Interpretation ſhould abuſe, and call this Your lacke of loue, or bounty, you were ſtraited For a reply at leaſt, if you make a care Of happie holding her.

Flo. Old Sir, I know She prizes not ſuch trifles as theſe are: The gifts ſhe lookes from me, are packt and locke Vp in my heart, which I haue giuen already, But not deliuer'd. O heare me breath my life Before this ancient Sir, whom (it ſhould ſeeme) Hath ſometime lou'd: I take thy hand, this hand, As ſoft as Doues-downe, and as white as it, Or Ethyopians tooth, or the fan'd ſnow, that's bolted By th'Northerne blaſts, twice o're.

Pol. What follower this? How prettily th'yong Swaine ſeemes to waſh The hand, was faire before? I haue put you out, But to your proteſtation: Let me heare What you profeſſe.

Flo. Do, and be witneſſe too't.

Pol. And this my neighbour too?

Flo And he, and more Then he, and men: the earth, the heauens, and all; That were I crown'd the moſt Imperiall Monarch Thereof moſt worthy, were I the fayreſt youth That euer made eye ſwerue, had force and knowledge More then was euer man, I would not prize them Without her Loue; for her, employ them all, Commend them, and condemne them to her ſeruice, Or to their owne perdition.

Pol. Fairely offer'd.

Cam. This ſhewes a ſound affection.

Shep. But my daughter, Say you the like to him.

Per. I cannot ſpeake So well, (nothing ſo well) no, nor meane better By th'patterne of mine owne thoughts, I cut out The purity of his.

Shep. Take hands, a bargaine: And friends vnknowne, you ſhall beare witneſſe to't: I giue my daughter to him, and will make Her Portion, equall his.

Flo. O, that muſt bee I'th Vertue of your daughter: One being dead, I ſhall haue more then you can dreame of yet, Enough then for your wonder: but come on, Contract vs fore theſe Witneſſes.

Shep. Come, your hand: And daughter, yours.

Pol. Soft Swaine a-while, beſeech you, Haue you a Father?

Flo. I haue: but what of him?

Pol. Knowes he of this?

Flo. He neither do's, nor ſhall.

Pol. Me-thinkes a Father, Is at the Nuptiall of his ſonne, a gueſt That beſt becomes the Table: Pray you once more Is not your Father growne incapeable Of reaſonable affayres? Is he not ſtupid With Age, and alting Rheumes? Can he ſpeake? heare? Know man, from man? Diſpute his owne eſtate? Lies he not bed-rid? And againe, do's nothing But what he did, being childiſh?

Flo. No good Sir He has his health, and ampler ſtrength indeede Then moſt haue of his age.

Pol. By my white beard, You offer him (if this be ſo) a wrong Something vnfilliall: Reaſon my ſonne Should chooſe himſelfe a wife, but as good reaſon The Father (all whoſe ioy is nothing elſe But faire poſterity) ſhould hold ſome counſaile In ſuch a buſineſſe.

Flo. I yeeld all this; But for ſome other reaſons (my graue Sir) Which yet you know, I not acquaint My Father of this buſineſſe.

Pol. Let him know't.

Flo. He ſhall not.

Pol. Prethee let him.

Flo. No, he muſt not.

Shep. Let him (my ſonne) he ſhall not need to greeue At knowing of thy choice.

Flo. Come, come, he muſt not. Marke our Contract.

Pol. Marke your diuorce (yong ſir) Whom ſonne I dare not call: Thou art too baſe To be acknowledge: Thou a Scepters heire, That thus affects a ſheepe-hooke? Thou, old Traitor, I am ſorry, that by hanging thee, I can but ſhorten thy life one weeke. And thou, freſh piece Of excellent Witchcraft, whom of force muſt know The royall Foole thou coap'ſt with.

Shep. Oh my heart.

Pol. Ile haue thy beauty ſcratcht with briers & made More homely then thy ſtate. For thee (fond boy) If I may euer know thou doſt but ſigh, That thou no more ſhalt neuer ſee this knaue (as neere I meane thou ſhalt) we'l barre thee from ſucceſſion, Not hold thee of our blood, no not our Kin, Farre then Deucalion off: (marke thou my words) Follow vs to the Court. Thou Churle, for this time (Though full of our diſpleaſure) yet we free thee From the dead blow of it. And you Enchantment,

Wor-

y enough a Heardſman: yea him too, kes himſelfe (but for our Honor therein) thy thee. If euer henceforth, thou ſtall Latches, to his entrance open,
e his body more, with thy embraces,
ſeuſe a death, as cruell for thee
ſ are tender to't. Exit.
. Euen heere vndone:
ne much a-feare d: for once, or twice bout to ſpeake, and tell him plainely,
ſe. ſame Sun, that ſhines vpon his Court, ot his viſage from our Cottage, but
s on alike. Wilt pleaſe you (Sir) be gone?
ou what would come of this: Beſeech you r owne ſtate take care: This dreame of mine ow awake, Ile Queene it no inch farther, ke my Ewes, and weepe.
. Why how now Father,
ere thou dyeſt.
. I cannot ſpeake, nor thinke,
re to know, that which I know: O Sir, ne vndone a man of foureſcore three,
ought to fill his graue in quiet: yea,
vpon the bed my father dy'de,
cloſe by his honeſt bones; but now
Hangman muſt put on my ſhrowd, and lay me no Prieſt ſhouels in duſt. Oh curſed wretch, ew'ſt this was the Prince, and would'ſt aduenture ght faith with him. Vndone, vndone:
the dye within this houre, I haue liu'd
when I deſire. Exit.
Why looke you ſo vpon me?
ſt ſorry, not afear'd: delaid,
hing altred: What I was, I am:
ining on, for plucking backe; not following
h vnwillingly.
. Gracious my Lord,
ow my Fathers temper: at this time allow no ſpeech: (which I do gheſſe not purpoſe to him:) and ſtay'd hardly endure your ſight, as yet I feare;
ll the fury of his Highneſſe ſettle
ore before him.
I not purpoſe it:
Camillo.
. Euen he, my Lord.
How often haue I told you 'twould be thus?
ften ſaid my dignity would laſt
twer knowne?
It cannot faile, but by duration of my faith, and then ure cruſh the ſides o th earth together, ere the ſeeds within. Lift vp thy lookes:
y ſucceſſion wipe me (Father) I re to my affection.
. Be aduis'd.
I am: and by my fancie, if my Reaſon
reto be obedient: I haue reaſon:
y ſences better pleas'd with madneſſe,
t welcome.
. This is deſperate (ſir.)
So call it: but it do's fulfill my vow:
muſt thinke it honeſtly. Camillo,
Bohemia, nor the pompe that may e gleaned: for all the Sun ſees, or e earth wombes, or the profound ſeas, hides
In vnknowne fadomes, will I breake my oath
To this my faire belou'd: Therefore, I pray you,
As you haue euer bin my Fathers honour'd friend
When he ſhall miſſe me, as (in faith I meane not To ſee him any more) caſt your good counſailes
Vpon his paſſion: Let my ſelfe, and Fortune
Tug for the time to come. This you may know,
And ſo deliuer, I am put to Sea
With her, who here I cannot hold on ſhore:
And moſt opportune to her neede, I haue
A Veſſell rides faſt by, but not prepar'd
For this deſigne. What courſe I meane to hold Shall nothing benefit your knowledge, nor Concerne me the reporting.
Cam. O my Lord,
I would your ſpirit were eaſier for aduice,
Or ſtronger for your neede.
Flo. Hearke Perdita,
Ile heare you by and by.
Cam. Hee's irremoueable,
Reſolu'd for flight: Now were I happy if
His going, I could frame to ſerue my turne,
Saue him from danger, do him loue and honor,
Purchaſe the ſight againe of deere Sicillia,
And that vnhappy King, my Maſter, whom
I ſo much thirſt to ſee.
Flo. Now good Camillo,
I am ſo ſi aught with curious buſineſſe, that
I leaue out ceremony.
Cam. Sir, I thinke
You haue heard of my poore ſeruices, i'th loue
That I haue borne your Father?
Flo. Very nobly
Haue you deſeru'd: It is my Fathers Muſicke
To ſpeake your deeds: not little of his care
To haue them recompenc'd, as thought on.
Cam. Well (my Lord)
If you may pleaſe to thinke I loue the King,
And through him, what's neereſt to him, which is
Your gracious ſelfe; embrace but my direction,
If your more ponderous and ſetled project
May ſuffer alteration. On mine honor,
Ile point you where you ſhall haue ſuch receiuing
As ſhall become your Highneſſe, where you may Enioy your Miſtris; from the whom, I ſee
There's no diſiunction to be made, but by
(As heauens forefend) your ruine: Marry her,
And with my beſt endeauours, in your abſence,
Your diſcontenting Father, ſtriue to qualifie
And bring him vp to liking.
Flo. How Camillo
May this (almoſt a miracle) be done?
That I may call thee ſomething more then man,
And after that truſt to thee.
Cam. Haue you thought on
A place whereto you'l go?
Flo. Not any yet:
But as th'vnthought-on accident is guiltie
To what we wildely do, ſo we profeſſe
Our ſelues to be the ſlaues of chance, and flyes
Of euery winde that blowes.
Cam. Then liſt to me:
This followes, if you will not change your purpoſe
But vnder go this flight; make for Sicillia,
And there preſent your ſelfe, and your foyre Princeſſe,
(For ſo I ſee ſhe muſt be) 'fore Leontes;

Shee'l

She ſhall be habited, as it becomes
The partner of your Bed. Me thinkes I ſee
Leontes opening his free Armes, and weeping
His Welcomes forth: ayes thee there Sonne forgiueneſſe,
As 'twere i'th' Fathers perſon: kiſſes the hands
Of your freſh Princeſſe; ore and ore diuides him,
'Twixt his vnkindneſſe, and his Kindneſſe: th'one
He chides to Hell, and bids the other grow
Faſter then Thought, or Time.

Flo. Worthy Camillo,
What colour for my Viſitation, ſhall I
Hold vp before him?

Cam. Sent by the King your Father
To greet him, and to giue him comforts. Sir,
The manner of your bearing towards him, with
What you (as from your Father) ſhall deliuer,
Things knowne betwixt vs three, Ile write you downe,
The which ſhall point you forth at euery ſitting
What you muſt ſay: that he ſhall not perceiue,
But that you haue your Fathers Boſome there,
And ſpeake his very Heart.

Flo. I am bound to you:
There is ſome ſappe in this.

Cam. A Courſe more promiſing,
Then a wild dedication of your ſelues
To vnpath'd Waters, vndream'd Shores; moſt certaine,
To Miſeries enough: no hope to helpe you,
But as you ſhake off one, to take another:
Nothing ſo certaine, as your Anchors, who
Doe their beſt office, if they can but ſtay you,
Where you'le be loth to be: beſides you know,
Proſperitie's the very bond of Loue,
Whoſe freſh compleation, and whoſe heart together,
Affliction alters.

Perd. One of theſe is true:
I thinke Affliction may ſubdue the Cheeke,
But not take-in the Mind.

Cam. Yea? ſay you ſo?
There ſhall not, at your Fathers Houſe, theſe ſeuen yeeres
Be borne another ſuch.

Flo. My good Camillo,
She's as forward, of her Breeding, as
She is i'th' reare 'our Birth.

Cam. I cannot ſay 'tis pitty
She lacks Inſtructions, for ſhe ſeemes a Miſtreſſe
To moſt that teach

Perd. Your pardon Sir, for this,
Ile bluſh you Thanks.

Flo My prettieſt Perdita.
But O, the Thornes we ſtand vpon: (Camillo)
Preſeruer of my Father, now of me,
The Medicine of our Houſe: how ſhall we doe?
We are not furniſh'd like Bohemia's Sonne,
Nor ſhall appeare in Sicilia.

Cam. My Lord,
Feare none of this: I thinke you know my fortunes
Doe all lye there: it ſhall be ſo my care,
To haue you royally appointed, as if
The Scene you play, were mine. For inſtance Sir,
That you may know you ſhall not want: one word.

Enter Autolycus

Aut. Ha, ha, what a Foole Honeſtie is? and Truſt (his ſworne brother) a very ſimple Gentleman. I haue ſold all my Trompertie: not a counterfeit Stone, not a Ribbon, Glaſſe, Pomander, Browch, Table-booke, Ballad, Knife, Tape, Gloue, Shooe-tye, Bracelet, Horne-Ring, to keepe my Pack from faſting: they throng who ſhould buy firſt, as if my Trinkets had beene hallowed, and brought a benediction to the buyer: by which meanes, I ſaw whoſe Purſe was beſt in Picture; and what I ſaw, to my good vſe, I remembred. My Clowne (who wants but ſomething to be a reaſonable man) grew ſo in loue with the Wenches Song, that hee would not ſtirre his Petty-toes, till he had both Tune and Words, which ſo drew the reſt of the Heard to me, that all their other Sences ſtucke in Eares: you might haue pinch'd a Placket, it was ſenſeleſſe; 'twas nothing to geeld a Cod-peece of a Purſe: I would haue fill'd Keyes of that hung in Chaynes: no hearing, no ſeeling, but my Sirs Song, and admiring the Nothing of it. So that in this time of Lethargie, I pick'd and cut moſt of their Feſtiuall Purſes: And had not the old-man come in with a Whoo-bub againſt his Daughter, and the Kings Sonne, and ſcar'd my Chowghes from the Chaffe, I had not left a Purſe aliue in the whole Army.

Cam. Nay, but my Letters by this meanes being there
So ſoone as you arriue, ſhall cleare that doubt.

Flo. And thoſe that you'le procure from King Leontes?

Cam. Shall ſatiſfie your Father.

Perd. Happy be you:
All that you ſpeake, ſhewes faire.

Cam. Who haue we here?
We'le make an Inſtrument of this: omit
Nothing may giue vs aide.

Aut. If they haue ouer-heard me now: why hanging.

Cam. How now (good Fellow)
Why ſhak'ſt thou ſo? Feare not (man)
Here's no harme intended to thee.

Aut. I am a poore Fellow, Sir.

Cam. Why, be ſo ſtill: here's no body will ſteale that from thee: yet for the out-ſide of thy pouerty, we muſt make an exchange; therefore diſ-caſe thee inſtantly (thou muſt thinke there's a neceſſitie in't) and change Garments with this Gentleman: Though the penny-worth (on his ſide) be the worſt, yet hold thee, there's ſome boot.

Aut. I am a poore Fellow, Sir: (I know ye well enough.)

Cam. Nay prethee diſpatch: the Gentleman is halfe flea'd already.

Aut. Are you in earneſt, Sir? (I ſmell the trick on't)

Flo. Diſpatch, I prethee.

Aut. Indeed I haue had Earneſt, but I cannot with conſcience take it.

Cam. Vnbuckle, vnbuckle.
Fortunate Miſtreſſe (let my prophecie Come home to ye:) you muſt retire your ſelfe
Into ſome Couert; take your ſweet-hearts Hat
And pluck it ore your Browes, muffle your face,
Diſ-mantle you, and (as you can) diſliken
The truth of your owne ſeeming, that you may
(For I doe feare eyes ouer) to Ship-boord
Get vndeſcry'd.

Perd. I ſee the Play ſo lyes,
That I muſt beare a part.

Cam. No remedie:
Haue you done there?

Flo. Should I now meet my Father,
He would not call me Sonne.

Cam. Nay, you ſhall haue no Hat:
Come Lady, come. Farewell (my friend.)

Aut. Adieu, Sir.

Flo. O Perdita: what haue we twaine forgot?

Pray

a word.
What I doe next, ſhall be to tell the King ape, and whither they are bound;
my hope is, I ſhall ſo prouaile, am after: in whoſe company
iew Sicilia; for whoſe ſight, Womans Longing
ortune ſpeed vs:
et on (Camillo) to th' Sea-ſide.
The ſwifter ſpeed, the better. Exit.
: vnderſtand the buſineſſe, I heare it: to haue an
, a quick eye, and a nimble hand, is neceſſary for ſe; a good Noſe is requiſite alſo, to ſmell out
: th'other Senſes. I ſee this is the time that the n doth thriue. What an exchange had this been, oot? What a boot is here, with this exchange?
Gods doe this yeere connive at vs, and we may ing extempore. The Prince himſelfe is about Iniquitie (ſtealing away from his Father, with t his heeles:) if I thought it were a peece of hoſt quaint the King withall, I would not do't: I t more knauerie to conceale it; and therein am t to my Profeſſion.

Enter Clowne and Shepheard.

le, here is more matter for a hot braine: Euery
d, euery Shop, Church, Seſſion, Hanging, yeelds man worke.
. See, ſee: what a man you are now? there is no
e, but to tell the King ſhe's a Changeling, and our fleſh and blood.
Nay, but heare me.
Nay; but heare me.
Goe too then.
She being none of your fleſh and blood, your blood has not offended the King, and ſo your blood is not to be puniſh'd by him. Shew thoſe u found about her (thoſe ſecret things, all but he's with her:) This being done, let the Law goe warrant you.
I will tell the King all, euery word, yea, and his ancks too; who, I may ſay, is no honeſt man, his Father, nor to me, to goe about to make me
Brother in Law.
Indeed Brother in Law was the fartheſt off you
e beene to him, and then your Blood had beene
, by I know how much an ounce
Very wiſely (Puppies.)
Well: let vs to the King: there is that in this will make him ſcratch his Beard.
I know not what impediment this Complaint
the flight of my Maſter.
Pray heartily he be at' Pallace.
Though I am not naturally honeſt, I am ſo ſomechance: Let me pocket vp my Pedlers excreve now (Buſhiques) whither are you bound?
To th' Pallace (and it like your Worſhip.)
Your Affaires there? what? with whom? the n of that Fartheſt? the place of your dwelling?
es? your ages? of what hauing? breeding, and that is fitting to be knowne, diſcouer?
We are but plaine fellowes, Sir.
A Lye; you are rough, and hayrie: Let me haue it becomes none but Tradeſ-men, and they of-: (Souldiers) the Lye, but wee pay them for it ped Coyne, not Rabbing Steele, therefore they ue vs the Lye.

Clo. Your Worſhip had like to haue giuen vs one, if you had not taken your ſelfe with the manner.

Shep. Are you a Courtier, and't like you Sir?

Aut. Whether it like me, or no, I am a Courtier. Seeſt thou not the ayre of the Court, in theſe enfoldings? Hath not my gate in it, the meaſure of the Court? Receiues not thy Noſe Court-Odour from me? Reflect I not on thy Baſeneſſe, Court-Contempt? Think'ſt thou, for that I inſinuate, at toaze from thee thy Buſineſſe, I am therefore no Courtier? I am Courtier Cap-a-pe; and one that will eyther puſh-on, or pluck-back, thy Buſineſſe there: whereupon I command thee to open thy Affaire.

Shep. My Buſineſſe, Sir, is to the King.

Aut. What Aduocate ha'ſt thou to him?

Shep. I know not (and't like you.)

Clo. Aduocate's the Court-word for a Pheazant: ſay you haue none.

Shep. None, Sir: I haue no Pheazant Cock, nor Hen.

Aut. How bleſſed are we, that are not ſimple men? Yet Nature might haue made me as theſe are, Therefore I will not diſdaine

Clo. This cannot be but a great Courtier.

Shep. His Garments are rich, but he weares them not handſomely.

Clo. He ſeemes to be the more Noble, in being fantaſticall: A great man, Ile warrant; I know by the picking on's Teeth.

Aut. The Farthell there? What's i'th' Fatchell? Wherefore that Box?

Shep. Sir, there lyes ſuch Secrets in this Farthell and Box, which none muſt know but the King, and which hee ſhall know within this houre, if I may come to th' ſpeech of him.

Aut. Age, thou haſt loſt thy labour.

Shep. Why Sir?

Aut. The King is not at the Pallace, he is gone aboord a new Ship, to purge Melancholy, and ayre himſelfe: for if thou bee'ſt capable of things ſerious, thou muſt know the King is full of griefe Shep. So 'tis ſaid (Sir:) about his Sonne, that ſhould haue marryed a Shepheards Daughter.

Aut. If that Shepheard be not in hand-faſt, let him flye; the Curſes he ſhall haue, the Tortures he ſhall feele, will breake the back of Man, the heart of Monſter.

Clo. Thinke you ſo, Sir?

Aut. Not hee alone ſhall ſuffer what Wit can make heauie, and Vengeance bitter; but thoſe that are Germane to him (though remou'd fiftie times) ſhall all come vnder the Hang-man: which, though it be great pitty, yet it is neceſſarie. An old Sheepe-whiſtling Rogue, a Ram-tender, to offer to haue his Daughter come into grace? Some ſay hee ſhall be ſton'd: but that death is too ſoft for him (ſay I:) Draw out Throne into a Sheep-Coat? all deaths are too few, the ſharpeſt too eaſie.

Clo. Ha's the old-man ere a Sonne Sir (doe you heare) and't like you, Sir?

Aut. Hee ha's a Sonne: who ſhall be flayd aliue, then 'noynted ouer with Honey, ſet on the head of a Waſpes Neſt, then ſtand till he be three quarters and a dram dead: then recouer'd againe with Aquauite, or ſome other hot Infuſion: then, raw as he is (and in the hotteſt day Prognoſtication proclaymes) ſhall he be ſet againſt a Brick wall, (the Sunne looking with a South-ward eye vpon him; where hee is to behold him, with Flyes blown to death) But what talke we of theſe Traitorly-Raſcals, whoſe miſeries are to be ſmil'd at, their offences being ſo capitall?

Tell

Tell me(for you seeme to be honest plaine men)what you haue to the King: being something gently consider'd, Ile bring you where he is aboord, tender your persons to his presence, whisper him in your behalfes: and if it be in man, besides the King, to effect your Suites, here is man shall doe it.

Clow. He seemes to be of great authoritie: close with him, giue him Gold; and though Authoritie be a stubborne Beare, yet hee is oft led by the Nose with Gold: shew the in-side of your Purse to the out-side of his hand, and no more adoe. Remember ston'd, and flay'd alive.

Shep. And't please you(Sir)to vndertake the Businesse for vs, here is that Gold I haue: Ile make it as much more, and leaue this young man in pawne, till I bring it you.

Aut. After I haue done what I promised?

Shep. I Sir.

Aut. Well, giue me the Moitie: Are you a partie in this Businesse?

Clow. In some sort, Sir: but though my case be a pittifull one, I hope I shall not be flayd out of it.

Aut. Oh, that's the case of the Shepheards Sonne: hang him hee'le be made an example.

Clow. Comfort, good comfort: We must to the King, and shew our strange sights: he must know 'tis none of your Daughter, nor my Sister: wee are gone else. Sir, I will giue you as much as this old man does, when the Businesse is performed, and remaine(as he sayes)your pawne till it be brought you.

Aut. I will trust you. Walke before toward the Sea-side, goe on the right hand, I will but looke vpon the Hedge, and follow you.

Clow. We are blest'd, in this man: as I may say, euen blest'd.

Shep. Let's before, as he bids vs: he was prouided to doe vs good.

Aut. If I had a mind to be honest, I see Fortune would not suffer mee: shee drops Booties in my mouth. I am courted now with a double occasion: (Gold, and a means to doe the Prince my Master good; which, who knowes how that may turne backe to my aduancement?) I will bring these two Moales, these blind-ones, aboord him. if he thinke it fit to shoare them againe, and that the Complaint they haue to the King, concernes him nothing, let him call me Rogue, for being so farre officious, for I am proofe against that Title, and what shame else belongs to't: To him will I present them, there may be matter in it. Exeunt.

Actus Quintus. Scena Prima.

Enter Leontes, Cleomines, Dion, Paulina, Seruants: Florizell, Perdita.

Cleo. Sir, you haue done enough, and haue perform'd A Saint-like Sorrow: No fault could you make, Which you haue not redeem'd; indeed pay'd downe More penitence then done trespas: At the last Doe, as the Heauens haue done; forget your euill, With them, forgiue your selfe.

Leo. Whilest I remember Her, and her Vertues, I cannot forget My blemishes in them, and so still thinke of The wrong I did my selfe: which was so much, That Heire-lesse it hath made my Kingdome, and Destroy'd the sweet'st Companion, that eie euer Bred his hopes out of.true.

Paul. Too true(my Lord) If one by one, you wedded all the World, Or from the All that are, took something good, To make a perfect Woman; she you kill'd, Would be vnparallell'd.

Leo. I thinke so. Kill'd? She I kill'd? I did so: but thou strik'st me Sorely, to say I did: it is as bitter Vpon thy Tongue, as in my Thought. Now, good now, Say so but seldome.

Cleo. Not at all, good Lady: You might haue spoken a thousand things, that would Haue done the time more benefit, and grac'd Your kindnesse better.

Paul. You are one of those Would haue him wed againe.

Dio. If you would not so, You pitty not the State, nor the Remembrance Of his most Soueraigne Name: Consider little, What Dangers, by his Highnesse faile of Issue, May drop vpon his Kingdome, and deuoure Incertaine lookers on. What were more holy, Then to reioyce the former Queene is well? What holyer, then for Royalties repayre, For present comfort, and for future good, To bleste the Bed of Maiestie againe With a sweet Fellow to't?

Paul. There is none worthy, (Respecting her that's gone:) besides the Gods Will haue fulfill'd their secret purposes: For has's not the Diuine Apollo said? Is't not the tenor of his Oracle, That King Leontes shall not haue an Heire, Till his lost Child be found? Which, that it shall, Is all as monstrous to our humane reason, As my Antigonus to breake his Grosse, And comes againe to me: who, on my life, Did perish with the Infant. 'Tis your counsell, My Lord should to the Heauens be contrary, Oppose against their wills. Care not for Issue, The Crowne will find an Heire. Great Alexander Left his to th' Worthiest: so his Successor Was like to be the best.

Leo. Good Paulina, Who hast the memorie of Hermione I know in honor: O, that euer I Had spar'd me to thy counsell: then, euen now, I might haue look'd vpon my Queenes full eyes, Haue taken Treasure from her Lippes.

Paul. And left them More rich, for what they yeelded.

Leo. Thou speak'st truth; No more such Wiues, therefore no Wife: one worse, And better vs'd, would make her Sainted Spirit Againe possesse her Corps, and on this Stage (Where we Offendors now appeare) Soule-vext, And begin, why to me?

Paul. Had she such power, She had iust such cause.

Leo. She had, and would iuocate me To murther her I married.

Paul. I ſhould ſo:
Were I the Ghoſt that walk'd, I'd bid you marke
Her eye, and tell me for what dull part in't
You chooſe her: then I'd ſhreeke, that euen your eares
Should riſe to heare me, and the words that follow'd,
Should be, Remember mine.
Leo. Starres, Starres,
And all eyes elſe, dead coales: feare thou no Wife;
Ile haue no Wife, Paulina.
Paul. Will you ſweare
Neuer to marry, but by my free leaue?
Leo. Neuer (Paulina) to be bleſs'd my Spirit.
Paul. Then good my Lords, beare witneſſe to his Oath
Cleo. You tempt him ouer-much.
Paul. Vnleſſe another,
As like Hermione, as is her Picture,
Affront his eye.
Cleo. Good Madame, I haue done.
Paul. Yet if my Lord will marry: if you will, Sir;
No remedie but you will: Giue me the Office
To chooſe your Queene: ſhe ſhall not be ſo young
As was your former, but ſhe ſhall be ſuch
As (walk'd your firſt Queenes Ghoſt) it ſhould take ioy
To ſee her in your armes.
Leo. My true Paulina,
We ſhall not marry, till thou bidſt vs.
Paul. That
Shall be when your firſt Queene's againe in breath:
Neuer till then.

Enter a Seruant.

Ser. One that giues out himſelfe Prince Florizell, Sonne of Polixenes, with his Princeſſe (ſhe
The faireſt I haue yet beheld) deſires acceſſe
To your high preſence.
Leo. What with him? he comes not
Like to his Fathers Greatneſſe: his approach
(So out of circumſtance, and ſuddaine) tells vs,
'Tis not a Viſitation fram'd, but forc'd
By need, and accident. What Traine?
Ser. But few,
And thoſe but meane.
Leo. His Princeſſe (ſay you) with him?
Ser. I: the moſt peerleſſe peece of Earth, I thinke,
That ere the Sunne ſhone bright on.
Paul. Oh Hermione,
As euery preſent Time doth boaſt it ſelfe
Aboue a better, gone: ſo muſt thy Graue
Giue way to what's ſeene now. Sir, you your ſelfe
Haue ſaid, and writ ſo; but your writing now
Is colder then that Theame: ſhe had not beene,
Nor was not to be equall'd, thus your Verſe
Flow'd with her Beauty once; 'tis ſhrewdly ebb'd,
To ſay you haue ſeene a better.
Ser. Pardon, Madame:
The one, I haue almoſt forgot (your pardon)
The other, when ſhe has obtayn'd your Eye,
Will haue your Tongue too. This is a Creature,
Would ſhe begin a Sect, might quench the zeale
Of all Profeſſors elſe; make Proſelytes
Of who ſhe but bid follow.
Paul. How? not women?
Ser. Women will loue her, that ſhe is a Woman
More worth then any Man: Men, that ſhe is
The rareſt of all Women.
Leo. Go Cleomines,
Your ſelfe (aſſiſted with your honor'd Friends)
Bring them to our embracement. Still 'tis ſtrange,
He thus ſhould ſteale vpon vs. Exit.
Paul. Had our Prince
(Iewell of Children) ſeene this houre, he had payr'd
Well with this Lord; there was not full a moneth
Betweene their births.
Leo. Prethee no more; ceaſe: thou know'ſt
He dyes to me againe, when talk'd-of: ſure
When I ſhall ſee this Gentleman, thy ſpeeches
Will bring me to conſider that, which may Vnfurniſh me of Reaſon. They are come.

Enter Florizell, Perdita, Cleomines, and others.

Your Mother was moſt true to Wedlock, Prince,
For ſhe did print your Royall Father off,
Conceiuing you. Were I but twentie one,
Your Fathers Image is ſo hit in you,
(His very ayre) that I ſhould call you Brother,
As I did him, and ſpeake of ſomething wildly
By vs perform'd before. Moſt dearely welcome,
And your faire Princeſſe (Goddeſſe) oh: alas,
I loſt a couple, that 'twixt Heauen and Earth
Might thus haue ſtood, begetting wonder, as
You (gracious Couple) doe: and then I loſt
(All mine owne Folly) the Societie,
Amitie too of your braue Father, whom (Though bearing Miſerie) I deſire my life
Once more to looke on him.
Flo. By his command
Haue I here touch'd Sicilia, and from him
Giue you all greetings, that a King (at friend)
Can ſend his Brother: and but Infirmitie
(Which waits vpon worne times) hath ſomething ſeiz'd
His wiſh'd Abilitie, he had himſelfe
The Lands and Waters, 'twixt your Throne and his,
Meaſur'd, to looke vpon you; whom he loues
(He bad me ſay ſo) more then all the Scepters,
And thoſe that beare them, liuing.
Leo. Oh my Brother,
(Good Gentleman) the wrongs I haue done thee, ſtirre
Afreſh within me: and theſe thy offices
(So rarely kind) are as Interpreters
Of my behind-hand ſlacknеſſe. Welcome hither,
As is the Spring to th'Earth. And hath he too
Expos'd this Paragon to th'fearefull vſage
(At leaſt vngentle) of the dreadfull Neptune,
To greet a man, not worth her pitties; much leſſe,
Th'aduenture of her perſon?
Flo. Good my Lord,
She came from Libia.
Leo. Where the Warlike Smalus,
That Noble honor'd Lord, is fear'd, and lou'd?
Flo. Moſt Royall Sir,
From thence: from him, whoſe Daughter
His Teares proclaym'd his parting with her: thence (A proſperous South-wind friendly) we haue croſs'd,
To execute the Charge my Father gaue me,
For viſiting your Highneſſe: My beſt Traine
I haue from your Sicilian Shores diſmiſs'd;
Who for Bohemia bend, to ſignifie
Not onely my ſucceſſe in Libia (Sir)
But my arriuall, and my Wifes, in ſafetie
Here, where we are.
Leo. The bleſſed Gods
Purge all Infection from our Ayre, whileſt you
Doe Clymate here: you haue a holy Father,
A graceſull Gentleman, againſt whoſe perſon

(So sacred as it is) I haue done sinne,
For which, the Heauens (taking angry note)
Haue left me Issue-lesse: and your Father's blest'd
(As he from Heauen merits it) with you,
Worthy his goodnesse. What might I haue been,
Might I a Sonne and Daughter now haue look'd on,
Such goodly things as you?

Enter a Lord.

Lord. Most Noble Sir,
That which I shall report, will beare no credit,
Were not the proofe so nigh. Please you (great Sir)
Bohemia greets you from himselfe, by me:
Desires you to attach his Sonne, who has
(His Dignitie, and Dutie both cast off)
Fled from his Father, from his Hopes, and with A Shepheards Daughter.

Leo. Where's Bohemia? speake:

Lord. Here, in your Citie: I now came from him
I speake amazedly, and it becomes
My meruaile, and my Message. To your Court
Whiles he was hastning (in the Chase, it seemes,
Of this faire Couple) meetes he on the way
The Father of this seeming Lady, and
Her Brother, hauing both their Countrey quitted,
With this young Prince.

Flo. Camillo has betray'd me,
Whose honor, and whose honestie till now,
Endur'd all Weathers.

Lord. Lay's so to his charge:
He's with the King your Father.

Leo. Who? Camillo?

Lord. Camillo (Sir) I spake with him: who now
Has these poore men in question. Never saw I
Wretches so quake: they kneele, they kisse the Earth;
Forsweare themselues as often as they speake:
Bohemia stops his eares, and threatens them
With diuers deaths, in death.

Perd. Oh my poore Father:
The Heauen sets Spyes vpon vs, will not haue
Our Contract celebrated.

Leo. You are married?

Flo. We are not (Sir) nor are we like to be:
The Starres (I see) will kisse the Valleyes first:
The odds for high and low's alike.

Leo. My Lord,
Is this the Daughter of a King?

Flo. She is,
When once she is my Wife.

Leo. That once (I see) by your good Fathers speed
Will come-on very slowly. I am sorry
(Most sorry) you haue broken from his liking,
Where you were ty'd in duties: and as sorry,
Your Choise is not so rich in Worth, as Beautie,
That you might well enioy her.

Flo. Deare, looke vp:
Though Fortune, visible an Enemie,
Should chase vs, with my Father; powre no iot
Hath she to change our Loues. Beseech you (Sir)
Remember, since you ow'd no more to Time
Than I doe now: with thought of such Affections,
Step forth mine Aduocate: at your request,
My Father will grant precious things, as Trifles.

Leo. Would he doe so, I'd beg your precious Mistris,
Which he counts but a Trifle.

Perd. Sir (my Liege)
Your eye hath too much youth in't: not a moneth
Fore your Queene dy'd, she was more worth such gaze,
Then what you looke on now.

Leo. I thought of her,
Euen in these Lookes I made. But your Petition
Is yet vn-answer'd: I will to your Father:
Your Honor not o're-throwne by your desires,
I am friend to them, and you: Vpon which Errand
I now goe toward him: therefore follow me,
And marke what way I make: Come good my Lord.

Exeunt.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Antigonus, and a Gentleman.

Ant. Beseech you (Sir) were you present at this Relation?

Gent. 1. I was by at the opening of the Fardell, heard the old Shepheard deliuer the manner how he found it: Whereupon (after a little amazednesse) we were all commanded out of the Chamber: only this (me thought) I heard the Shepheard say, he found the Child.

Ant. I would most gladly know the issue of it.

Gent. 1. I make a broken deliuerie of the Businesse; but the changes I perceiued in the King, and Camillo, were very Notes of admiration: they seem'd almost, with staring on one another, to teare the Cases of their Eyes. There was speech in their dumbnesse, Language in their very gesture: they look'd as they had heard of a World ransom'd, or one destroyed: a notable passion of Wonder appeared in them: but the wisest beholder, that knew no more but seeing, could not say, if th'importance were Ioy, or Sorrow: but in the extremitie of the one, it must needs be.

Enter another Gentleman.

Here comes a Gentleman, that happily knowes more: The Newes Rogero.

Gent. 2. Nothing but Bon-fires: the Oracle is fulfill'd: the Kings Daughter is found: such a deale of wonder is broken out within this houre, that Ballad-makers cannot be able to expresse it.

Enter another Gentleman.

Here comes the Lady Paulina's Steward, hee can deliuer you more. How goes it now (Sir)? This Newes (which is call'd true) is so like an old Tale, that the verisie of it is in strong suspition: Ha's the King found his Heire?

Gent. 3. Most true, if euer Truth were pregnant by Circumstance: That which you heare, you'le sweare you see, there is such vnitie in the proofes. The Mantle of Queene Hermione's: her Iewell about the Neck of it: the Letters of Antigonus found with it, which they know to be his Character: the Maiestie of the Creature, in resemblance of the Mother: the Affection of Nobleneſse, which Nature shewes above her Breeding, and many other Euidences, proclayme her, with all certaintie to be the Kings Daughter. Did you see the meeting of the two Kings?

Gent. 2. No.

Gent. 3. Then haue you lost a Sight which was to be seene, cannot bee spoken of. There might you haue beheld one Ioy crowne another, so and in such manner, that it seem'd Sorrow wept to take leaue of them: for their Ioy waded in teares. There was casting vp of Eyes, holding vp of Hands, with Countenance of such distraction, that they were to be knowne by Garment, not by Fauor.

Our

Our King being ready to leape out of himſelfe, for ioy of his found Daughter; as if that Ioy were now become a Loſſe, cryes, Oh, thy Mother, thy Mother: then askes Bohemia forgiuenеſſe, then embraces his Sonne-in-Law: then againe worryes he his Daughter, with clipping her. Now he thanks the old Shepheard (which ſtands by, like a Weather-bitten Conduit, of many Kings Reignes.) I neuer heard of ſuch another Encounter; which lames Report to follow it, and vndo's deſcription to doe it.

Gent. 2. What, pray you, became of Antigonus, that carryed hence the Child?

Gent. 3. Like an old Tale ſtill, which will haue matter to rehearſe, though Credit be aſleepe, and not an eare open; he was torne to pieces with a Beare: This auouches the Shepheards Sonne; who ha's not onely his Innocence (which ſeemes much) to iuſtifie him, but a Hand-kerchief and Rings of his, that Paulina knowes.

Gent. 1. What became of his Barke, and his Followers?

Gent. 3. Wrackt the ſame inſtant of their Maſters death, and in the view of the Shepheard: ſo that all the Inſtruments which ayded to expoſe the Child, were euen then loſt, when it was found. But oh the Noble Combat, that 'twixt Ioy and Sorrow was fought in Paulina. Shee had one Eye declin'd for the loſſe of her Husband, another eleuated, that the Oracle was fulfill'd: Shee lifted the Princeſſe from the Earth, and ſo locks her in embracing, as if ſhee would pin her to her heart, that ſhee might no more be in danger of looſing.

Gent. 1. The Dignitie of this Act was worth the audience of Kings and Princes, for by ſuch was it acted.

Gent. 3. One of the prettyeſt touches of all, and that which angl'd for mine Eyes (caught the Water, though not the Fiſh) was, when at the Relation of the Queenes death (with the manner how ſhee came to't bracely confeſs'd, and lamented by the King) how attentiueneſſe wounded his Daughter, till (from one ſigne of dolour to another) ſhee did (with an Alas) I would faine ſay, bleed Teares; for I am ſure, my heart wept blood. Who was moſt Marble, there changed colour: ſome ſwounded, all ſorrowed: if all the World could haue ſeen't, the Woe had beene vniuerſall.

Gent. 1. Are they returned to the Court?

Gent. 3. No: The Princeſſe hearing of her Mothers Statue (which is in the keeping of Paulina) a Peece many yeares in doing, and now newly perform'd, by that rare Italian Maſter, Iulio Romano, who (had he himſelfe Eternitie, and could put Breath into his Worke) would beguile Nature of her Cuſtome, ſo perfectly he is her Ape: He ſo neere to Hermione, hath done Hermione, that they ſay one would ſpeake to her, and ſtand in hope of anſwer. Thither (with all greedineſſe of affection) are they gone, and there they intend to Sup.

Gent. 2. I thought ſhe had ſome great matter there in hand, for ſhee hath priuately, twice or thrice a day, euer ſince the death of Hermione, viſited that remoued Houſe. Shall wee thither, and with our companie peece the Reioycing?

Gent. 1. Who would be thence, that ha's the benefit of Acceſſe? euery winke of an Eye, ſome new Grace will be borne: our Abſence makes vs vnthriftie to our Knowledge. Let's along. Exit.

Aut. Now (had I not the dash of my former life in me) would Preferment drop on my head. I brought the old man and his Sonne aboord the Prince; told him, I heard them talke of a Fardell, and I know not what: but he at that time ouer-fond of the Shepheards Daughter (ſo he then tooke her to be) who began to be much Sea-ſick, and himſelfe little better, extremitie of Weather continuing, this Myſterie remained vndiſcouer'd. But 'tis all one to me: for had I beene the finder-out of this Secret, it would not haue reliſh'd among my other diſcredits.

Enter Shepheard and Clowne.

Here come thoſe I haue done good to againſt my will, and already appearing in the bloſſomes of their Fortune.

Shep. Come Boy, I am paſt moe Children: but thy Sonnes and Daughters will be all Gentlemen borne.

Clow. You are well met (Sir.) you deny'd to fight with mee this other day, becauſe I was no Gentleman borne. See you theſe Clothes? ſay you ſee them not, and thinke me ſtill no Gentleman borne: You were beſt ſay theſe Robes are not Gentlemen borne. Giue me the Lye: doe: and try whether I am not now a Gentleman borne.

Aut. I know you are now (Sir) a Gentleman borne.

Clow. I, and haue been ſo any time theſe foure houres.

Shep. And ſo haue I, Boy.

Clow. So you haue: but I was a Gentleman borne before my Father: for the Kings Sonne tooke me by the hand, and call'd mee Brother: and then the two Kings call'd my Father Brother: and then the Prince (my Brother) and the Princeſſe (my Siſter) call'd my Father, Father; and ſo wee wept: and there was the firſt Gentleman-like teares that euer we ſhed.

Shep. We may liue (Sonne) to ſhed many more.

Clow. I: or elſe 'twere hard luck, being in ſo prepoſterous eſtate as we are.

Aut. I humbly beſeech you (Sir) to pardon me all the faults I haue committed to your Worſhip, and to giue me your good report to the Prince my Maſter.

Shep. 'Prethee Sonne doe: for we muſt be gentle, now we are Gentlemen.

Clow. Thou wilt amend thy life?

Aut. I, and it like your good Worſhip.

Clow. Giue me thy hand: I will ſweare to the Prince, thou art as honeſt a true Fellow as any is in Bohemia.

Shep. You may ſay it, but not ſweare it.

Clow. Not ſweare it, now I am a Gentleman? Let Boores and Franckling ſay it, Ile ſweare it.

Shep. How if it be falſe (Sonne?)

Clow. If it be ne're ſo falſe, a true Gentleman may ſweare it, in the behalfe of his Friend: And Ile ſweare to the Prince thou art a tall Fellow of thy hands, and that thou wilt not be drunke: but I know thou art no tall Fellow of thy hands, and that thou wilt be drunke: but Ile ſweare it, and I would thou would'ſt be a tall Fellow of thy hands.

Aut. I will proue ſo (Sir) to my power.

Clow. I, by any meanes proue a tall Fellow: if I do not wonder, how thou dar'ſt venture to be drunke, not being a tall Fellow, truſt me not. Harke, the Kings and the Princes (our Kindred) are going to ſee the Queenes Picture. Come, follow vs: wee'le be thy good Maſters. Exeunt.

Scæna Tertia.

Enter Leontes, Polixenes, Florizell, Perdita, Camillo, Paulina: Hermione (like a Statue:) Lords &c.

Leo. O graue and good Paulina, the great comfort
That I haue had of thee?

Paul. What (Soueraigne Sir)
I did not well, I meant well: all my Seruices
You haue pay'd home. But that you haue vouchſaf'd (With your Crown'd Brother, and theſe your contracted Heires of your Kingdomes) my poore Houſe to viſit;
It is a ſurplus of your Grace, which neuer
My life may laſt to anſwere.
Leo. O Paulina,
We honor you with trouble: but we came
To ſee the Statue of our Queene. Your Gallerie
Haue we paſs'd through, not without much content
In many ſingularities; but we ſaw not
That which my Daughter came to looke vpon,
The Statue of her Mother.
Paul. As ſhe liu'd peereleſſe,
So her dead likeneſſe I doe well beleeue
Excells what euer yet you look'd vpon,
Or hand of Man hath done: therefore I keepe it Louely, apart. But here it is: prepare
To ſee the Life as liuely mock'd, as euer
Still Sleepe mock'd Death: behold, and ſay 'tis well.
I like your ſilence, it the more ſhewes-off
Your wonder: but yet ſpeake, firſt you (my Liege)
Comes it not ſomething neere?
Leo. Her naturall Poſture.
Chide me (deare Stone) that I may ſay indeed
Thou art Hermione; or rather, thou art ſhe,
In thy not chiding: for ſhe was as tender
As Infancie, and Grace. But yet (Paulina)
Hermione was not ſo much wrinckled, nothing
So aged as this ſeemes.
Pol. Oh, not by much.
Paul. So much the more our Caruers excellence,
Which lets goe-by ſome ſixteene yeeres, and makes her
As ſhe liu'd now.
Leo. As now ſhe might haue done,
So much to my good comfort, as it is Now piercing to my Soule. Oh, thus ſhe ſtood, Euen with ſuch Life of Maieſtie (warme Life,
As now it coldly ſtands) when firſt I woo'd her.
I am aſham'd: Do's not the Stone rebuke me,
For being more Stone then it? Oh Royall Peece: There's Magick in thy Maieſtie, which has
My Euils coniur'd to remembrance; and
From thy admiring Daughter tooke the Spirits,
Standing like Stone with thee.
Perd. And giue me leaue,
And doe not ſay 'tis Superſtition, that
I kneele, and then implore her Bleſſing. Lady,
Deere Queene, that ended when I but began,
Giue me that hand of yours, to kiſſe.
Paul. O, patience:
The Statue is but newly fix'd; the Colour's
Not dry.
Cam. My Lord, your Sorrow was too ſore laid-on,
Which ſixteene Winters cannot blow away,
So many Summers dry: ſcarce any Ioy
Did euer ſo long liue; no Sorrow,
But kill'd it ſelfe much ſooner.
Pol. Deere my Brother,
Let him, that was the cauſe of this, haue powre
To take-off ſo much griefe from you, as he Will peece vp in himſelfe.
Paul. Indeed my Lord,
If I had thought the ſight of my poore Image
Would thus haue wrought you (for the Stone is mine)
I'd not haue ſhew'd it.
Leo. Doe not draw the Curtaine.
Paul. No longer ſhall you gaze on't, leaſt your Fancie
May thinke anon, it moues.
Leo. Let be, let be:
Would I were dead, but that me thinkes already.
(What was he that did make it?) See (my Lord)
Would you not deeme it breath'd; and that thoſe veines
Did verily beare blood?
Pol. Maſterly done:
The very Life ſeemes warme vpon her Lippe.
Leo. The fixure of her Eye has motion in't,
As we are mock'd with Art.
Paul. Ile draw the Curtaine:
My Lord's almoſt ſo farre tranſported, that Hee'le thinke anon it liues.
Leo. Oh ſweet Paulina,
Make me to thinke ſo twentie yeeres together:
No ſetled Senſes of the World can match
The pleaſure of that madneſſe. Let't alone.
Paul. I am ſorry (Sir) I haue thus farre ſtir'd you: but I could afflict you farther.
Leo. Doe Paulina:
For this Affliction has a taſte as ſweet
As any Cordiall comfort. Still me thinkes
There is an ayre comes from her. What fine Chizzell Could euer yet cut breath? Let no man mock me,
For I will kiſſe her.
Paul Good my Lord, forbeare:
The ruddineſſe vpon her Lippe, is wet:
You'le marre it, if you kiſſe it; ſtaine your owne
With Oyly Paintings: ſhall I draw the Curtaine.
Leo. No: not theſe twentie yeeres.
Perd. So long could I
Stand-by, a looker-on.
Paul. Either forbeare,
Quit preſently the Chappell, or reſolue you
For more amazement: if you can behold it,
Ile make the Statue moue indeed; deſcend,
And take you by the hand: but then you'le thinke
(Which I proteſt againſt) I am aſſiſted
By wicked Powers.
Leo. What you can make her doe,
I am content to looke on: what to ſpeake,
I am content to heare: for 'tis as eaſie
To make her ſpeake, as moue.
Paul. It is requir'd
You doe awake your Faith: then, all ſtand ſtill:
On: thoſe that thinke it is vnlawfull Buſineſſe
I am about, let them depart.
Leo. Proceed:
No foot ſhall ſtirre.
Paul. Muſick; awake her: Strike:
'Tis time: deſcend: be Stone no more: approach:
Strike all that looke vpon with meruaile: Come:
Ile fill your Graue vp: ſtirre: nay, come away:
Bequeath to Death your numneſſe (for from him,
Deare Life redeemes you) you perceiue ſhe ſtirres:
Start not: her Actions ſhall be holy, as
You heare my Spell is lawfull: doe not ſhun her,
Vntill you ſee her dye againe; for then
You kill her double: Nay, preſent your Hand:
When ſhe was young, you woo'd her: now, in age,
Is ſhe become the Suitor?
Leo. Oh ſhe's warme:
If this be Magick, let it be an Art

Law-

as Eating.
she embraces him.
She hangs about his necke,
raine to life, let her speake too.
l, and make it manifeſt where ſhe ha's liu'd,
ſtolne from the dead?
That ſhe is liuing,
but told you, ſhould be hooted at old Tale: but it appeares ſhe liues, yet ſhe ſpeake not. Marke a little while:
ou to interpoſe (faire Madam) kneele,
your Mothers bleſſing: turne good Lady,
our is found.
You Gods looke downe,
n your ſacred Viols powre your graces
r daughters head: Tell me (mine owne) aſt thou bin preſeru'd? Where liu'd? How found ers Court? For thou ſhalt heare that I g by Paulina, that the Oracle ge thou waſt in being, haue preſeru'd
, to ſee the yſſue.
There's time enough for that,
ry deſire (vpon this puſh) to trouble es, with like Relation. Go together ious winners all: your exultation

Partake to euery one: I (an old Turtle)
Will wing me to ſome wither'd bough, and there
My Mate (that's neuer to be found againe)
Lament, till I am loſt.

Leo. O peace Paulina:
Thou ſhould'ſt a husband take by my conſent,
As I by thine a Wife. This is a Match,
And made betweene's by Vowes. Thou haſt found mine,
But how, is to be queſtion'd: for I ſaw her
(As I thought) dead: and haue (in vaine) ſaid many
A prayer vpon her graue. Ile not ſeeke farre
(For him, I partly know his minde) to finde thee
An honourable husband. Come Camillo,
And take her by the hand: whoſe worth, and honeſty
Is richly noted: and here iuſtified
By Vs, a paire of Kings. Let's from this place.
What? looke vpon my Brother: both your pardons,
That ere I put betweene your holy lookes
My ill ſuſpition: This your Son-in-law,
And Sonne vnto the King, whom heauens directing
Is troth-plight to your daughter. Good Paulina,
Leade vs from hence, where we may leyſurely
Each one demand, and anſwere to his part
Perform'd in this wide gap of Time, ſince firſt
We were diſſeuer'd: Haſtily lead away. Exeunt.

The Names of the Actors.

..., King of Sicillia.
...millus, yong Prince of Sicillia.
... Foure Lords of Sicillia.
... Queene to Leontes.
Daughter to Leontes: and Hermione.
...wife to Antigonus
Emilia, a Lady.
Polixenes, King of Bohemia.
Florizell, Prince of Bohemia.
Old Shepheard, reputed Father of Perdita.
Clowne, his Sonne.
Autolicus, a Rogue.
Archidamus, a Lord of Bohemia.
Other Lords, and Gentlemen, and Seruants.
Shepheards, and Shepheardeſſes.

FINIS.

The life and death of King Iohn.

Actus Primus, Scæna Prima.

ohn, Queene Elinor, Pembroke, Eſſex, and Sa-lith the Chaſtiſon of France.

Iohn.
ſay Chatillon, what would France with vs?
Chat. Thus (after greeting) ſpeakes the King of France,
my behaviour to the Maieſty,
ed Maieſty of England heere.
range beginning: borrowed Maieſty?
lleanor (good mother) heare the Embaſſie.
y of France, in right and true behalfe
ked brother, Geffreyes ſonne, ugenet, lates moſt lawfull claime
ſland, and the Territories:
oyſters, Anioue, Touraine, Maine, to lay aſide the ſword
n vſurpingly theſe ſeuerall titles,
ſame into yong Arthurs hand,
, and right royall Soueraigne.
What followes if we diſallow of this?
proud controle of fierce and bloudy warre, eſe rights do forcibly with-held,
ere haue we war for war, & bloud for bloud,
n for controlement: ſo anſwer France.
m take my Kings defiance from my mouth,
limit of my Embaſſie.
eare mine to him, and ſo depart in peace,
ghtning in the eies of France;
canſt report, I will be there:
of my Cannon ſhall be heard.
thou the trumpet of our wrath,
ſeage of your owne decay:
de vnpaduſt let him haue,
ke too't: farewell Chatillon.
Exit Chat and Pem.
I from my ſonne, haue I not euer ſaid
bitious Conſtance would not ceaſe ſtilled France and all the world, ſt and party of her ſonne.
ne beene preuented, and made whole
ſle arguments of loue,
he marriage of two kingdomes muſt
l bloudy ſword arbitrate.
ut fleeting poſſeſſion, and our right for vs.
nong poſſeſſion much more then your right,
go wrong with you and me,
onſcience whiſpers in your eare,
Which none but heauen, and you, and I, ſhall heare.
Enter a Sheriffe.
Eſſex. My Liege, here is the ſtrangeſt controuerſie
Come from the Country to be iudg'd by you
That ere I heard: ſhall I produce the men?
K. Iohn. Let them approach:
Our Abbies and our Priories ſhall pay
This expeditious charge: what men are you?
Enter Robert Faulconbridge and Philip.
Philip. Your faithfull ſubiect, I a gentleman
Borne in Northamptonſhire, and eldeſt ſonne
As I ſuppoſe, to Robert Faulconbridge,
A Souldier by the Honor-giuing-hand
Of Cordelion Knighted in the field.
K. Iohn. What art thou?
Robert. The ſon and heire to that ſame Faulconbridge.
K. Iohn. Is that the elder, and art thou the heyre?
You came not of one mother then it ſeemes.
Philip. Moſt certain of one mother, mighty King,
That is well knowne, and as I thinke one father:
But for the certaine knowledge of that truth,
I put you o're to heauen, and to my mother;
Of that I doubt, as all mens children may.
Eli. Out on thee rude man, thou doſt ſhame thy mother,
And wound her honor with this diffidence.
Phil. I Madame? No, I haue no reaſon for it,
That is my brothers plea, and none of mine,
The which if he can proue, a pops me out,
At leaſt from faire fiue hundred pound a yeere:
Heauen guard my mothers honor, and my Land.
K. Iohn. A good blunt fellow: why being yonger born
Doth he lay claime to thine inheritance?
Phil. I know not why, except to get the land:
But once he ſlandered me with baſtardy:
But where I be as true begot or no,
That ſtill I lay vpon my mothers head,
But that I am as well begot my Liege
(Faire fall the bones that tooke the paines for me)
Compare our faces, and be iudge your ſelfe
If old Sir Robert did beget vs both,
And were our father, and this ſonne like him:
O old Sir Robert Father, on my knee
I giue heauen thankes I was not like to thee.
K. Iohn. Why what a mad-cap hath heauen lent vs here?
Elen. He hath a tricke of Cordelions face,
The ſpirit of his tongue affecteth him:
Doe you not read ſome tokens of my ſonne
In the large compoſition of this man?

K. John. Mine eye hath well examined his parts,
And findes them perfect Richard: sirra speake,
What doth moue you to claime your brothers land.
Philip. Because he hath a half-face like my father:
With halfe that face would he haue all my land,
A halfe-fac'd groat, fiue hundred pound a yeere?
Rob. My gracious Liege, when that my father liu'd,
Your brother did imploy my father much.
Phil. Well sir, by this you cannot get my land,
Your tale must be how he employ'd my mother.
Rob. And once dispatch'd him in an Embassie
To Germany, there with the Emperor
To treat of high affaires touching that time:
Th'aduantage of his absence tooke the King,
And in the meane time sojourn'd at my fathers;
Where how he did preuaile, I shame to speake:
But truth is truth, large lengths of seas and shores
Betweene my father, and my mother lay,
As I haue heard my father speake himselfe
When this same lusty gentleman was got:
Vpon his death-bed he by will bequeath'd
His lands to me, and tooke it on his death
That this my mothers sonne was none of his,
And if he were, he came into the world
Full fourteene weekes before the course of time:
Then good my Liedge let me haue what is mine,
My fathers land, as was my fathers will.
K. John. Sirra, your brother is Legitimate.
Your fathers wife did after wedlocke beare him:
And if he did play false, the fault was hers,
Which fault lyes on the hazards of all husbands
That marry wiues: tell me, how if my brother
Who as you say, tooke paines to get this sonne,
Had of your father claim'd this sonne for his,
Insooth, good friend, your father might haue kept
This Calfe, bred from his Cow from all the world:
Insooth he might: then if he were my brothers
My brother might not claime him, nor your father
Being none of his, refuse him: this concludes,
My mothers sonne did get your fathers heyre,
Your fathers heyre must haue your fathers land.
Rob. Shal then my fathers Will be of no force,
To dispossesse that childe which is not his.
Phil. Of no more force to dispossesse me sir,
Then was his will to get me, as I think.
Eli. Whether hadst thou rather be a Faulconbridge,
And like thy brother to enioy thy land:
Or the reputed sonne of Cordelion,
Lord of thy presence, and no land beside.
Bast. Madam, and if my brother had my shape
And I had his, sir Roberts his like him,
And if my legs were two such riding rods,
My armes, such eele skins stuft, my face so thin,
That in mine eare I durst not sticke a rose,
Lest men should say, looke where three farthings goes,
And to his shape were heyre to all this land,
Would I might neuer stirre from off this place,
I would giue it euery foot to haue this face:
It would not be sir nobbe in any case.
Elinor. I like thee well: wilt thou forsake thy fortune,
Bequeath thy land to him, and follow me?
I am a Souldier, and now bound to France.
Bast. Brother, take you my land, Ile take my chances
Your face hath got fiue hundred pound a yeere,
Yet sell your face for fiue pence and 'tis deere:
Madam, Ile follow you vnto the death.
Elinor. Nay, I would haue you go before me thither.
Bast. Our Country manners giue our betters way.
K. John. What is thy name?
Bast. Philip my Liege, so is my name begun.
Philip, good old Sir Roberts wiues eldest sonne.
K. John. From henceforth beare his name
Whose forme thou bearest:
Kneele thou downe Philip, but rise more great,
Arise Sir Richard, and Plantagenet.
Bast. Brother by th'mothers side, giue me your hand,
My father gaue me honor, yours gaue land:
Now blessed be the houre by night or day
When I was got, Sir Robert was away.
Ele. The very spirit of Plantagenet:
I am thy grandame Richard, call me so.
Bast. Madam by chance, but not by truth, what tho;
Something about a little from the right,
In at the window, or else ore the hatch:
Who dares not stirre by day, must walke by night,
And haue is haue, how euer men doe catch:
Neere or farre off, well wonne is still well shot,
And I am I, how ere I was begot.
K. John. Goe, Faulconbridge, now hast thou thy desire,
A landlesse Knight, makes thee a landed Squire:
Come Madam, and come Richard, we must speed
For France, for France, for it is more then need.
Bast. Brother adieu, good fortune come to thee,
For thou wast got i'th way of honesty.
Exeunt all but bastard.

Bast. A foot of Honor better then I was,
But many a many foot of Land the worse.
Well, now can I make any Ioane a Lady,
Good den Sir Richard, Godamercy fellow,
And if his name be George, Ile call him Peter;
For new made honor doth forget mens names:
'Tis too respective, and too sociable
For your conuersion, now your traueller,
Hee and his tooth-picke at my worships messe,
And when my knightly stomacke is suffis'd,
Why then I sucke my teeth, and catechize
My picked man of Countries: my deare sir,
Thus leaning on mine elbow I begin,
I shall beseech you; that is question now,
And then comes answer like an Abcy booke:
O sir, sayes answer, at your best command,
At your employment, at your seruice sir:
No sir, sayes question, I sweet sir at yours,
And so ere answer knowes what question would,
Sauing in Dialogue of Complement,
And talking of the Alpes and Appenines,
The Perennean and the riuer Po,
It drawes toward supper in conclusion so.
But this is worshipfull society,
And fits the mounting spirit like my selfe:
For he is but a bastard to the time
That doth not smoake of obseruation,
And so am I whether I smeche or no:
And not alone in habit and deuice,
Exterior forme, outward accoutrement;
But from the inward motion to deliuer
Sweet, sweet, sweet poyson for the ages tooth,
Which though I will not practise to deceiue,
Yet to auoid deceit I meane to learne;
For it shall strew the footsteps of my rising:
But who comes in such haste in riding robes?

What

nan poſt is this? hath ſhe no husband ake paines to blow a horne beforeher?
my mother: how now good Lady,
gs you heere to Court ſo haſtily?

er Lady Faulconbridge and Iames Gurney.

Where is that ſlaue thy brother? where is he?
in chaſe mine honour vp and downe.
My brother Robert, old Sir Robert's ſonne:
ue Gyant, that ſame mighty man,
bert's ſonne that you ſeeke ſo?
ir Roberts ſonne, I thou vnreuerend boy,
ſonne? why ſcorn'ſt thou at ſir Robert?
obert's ſonne, and ſo art thou.
mes Gurney, wilt thou giue's leaue a while?
Good leaue good Philip.
Philip, ſparrow, Iames,
yes abroad, anon Ile tell thee more.
Exit Iames.
was not old Sir Roberts ſonne, might haue eat his part in me
Friday, and nere broke his faſt:
ould doe well, marrie to confeſſe me ſir Robert could not doe it;
his handy-worke, therefore good mother am I beholding for theſe limmes?
neuer holpe to make this legge.
haſt thou conſpired with thy brother too,
ine owne graine ſhouldſt defend mine honor?
nes this ſcorne, thou moſt vntoward knaue?
night, knight good mother, Baſiliſco-like:
dub'd, I haue it on my ſhoulder:
t, I am not Sir Roberts ſonne, nam'd Sir Robert and my land,
on, name, and all is gone;
I my mother, let me know my father,
er man I hope, who was it mother?
aſt thou denied thy ſelfe a Faulconbridge?
s faithfully as I denie the deuill.
ing Richard Cordelion was thy father,
d vehement ſuit I was ſeduc'd ome for him in my husbands bed:
now my tranſgreſſion to my charge,
e iſſue of my deere offence
s ſo ſtrongly vrg'd paſt my defence.
low by this light were I to get againe,
ould not with a better father:
doe beare their priuiledge on earth,
h yours: your fault, was not your follie,
you lay your heart at his diſpoſe,
tribute to commanding loue,
oſe furie and vnmatched force,
Lion could not wage the fight,
his Princely heart from Richards hand:
force rob's Lions of their hearts,
winne a woman: aye my mother,
y heart I thanke thee for my father:
and dares but ſay, thou didſt not well
e got. Ile ſend his ſoule to hell.
I will ſhew thee to my kinne,
all ſay, when Richard me begot,
ſtood him nay, it had beene ſinne;
it was, he lyes, I ſay twas not.

Exeunt

Scæna Secunda.

Enter before Angiers, Philip King of France, Lewis, Dauphin, Auſtria, Conſtance, Arthur.

Lewis. Before Angiers well met braue Auſtria,
Arthur that great fore-runner of thy blood,
Richard that rob'd the Lion of his heart,
And ſought the holy Warres in Paleſtine,
By this braue Duke came early to his graue:
And for amends to his poſteritie,
At our importance hether is he come,
To ſpread his colours boy, in thy behalfe,
And to rebuke the vſurpation
Of thy vnnaturall Vncle, Engliſh John,
Embrace him, loue him, giue him welcome hether.
Arth. God ſhall forgiue you Cordelions death
The rather, that you giue his off-ſpring life,
Shadowing their right vnder your wings of warre
I giue you welcome with a powerleſſe hand,
But with a heart full of vnſtained loue,
Welcome before the gates of Angiers Duke.
Lewis. A noble boy, who would not doe thee right?
Auſt. Vpon thy cheeke lay I this zelous kiſſe,
As ſeale to this indenture of my loue:
That to my home I will no more returne
Till Angiers, and the right thou haſt in France,
Together with that pale, that white-fac'd ſhore,
Whoſe foot ſpurnes backe the Oceans roaring tides,
And coopes from other lands her Ilanders,
Euen till that England hedg'd in with the maine,
That Water-walled Bulwarke, ſtill ſecure
And confident from forreine purpoſes,
Euen till that vtmoſt corner of the Weſt
Salute thee for her King, till then faire boy
Will I not thinke of home, but follow Armes.
Conſt. O take his mothers thanks, a widdowes thanks,
Till your ſtrong hand ſhall helpe to giue him ſtrength,
To make a more requitall to your loue.
Auſt. The peace of heauen is theirs ỹ lift their ſwords
In ſuch a iuſt and charitable warre.
King. Well, then to worke our Cannon ſhall be bent
Againſt the browes of this reſiſting towne,
Call for our cheeſeſt men of diſcipline,
To cull the plots of beſt aduantages:
We'll lay before this towne our Royal bones,
Wade to the market-place in French-mens bloud,
But we will make it ſubiect to this boy.
Con. Stay for an anſwer to your Embaſſie,
Leſt vnaduis'd you ſtaine your ſwords with bloud,
My Lord Chatillon may from England bring
That right in peace which heere we vrge in warre,
And then we ſhall repent each drop of bloud,
That hot raſh haſte ſo indirectly ſhedde.
Enter Chatillon.
King. A wonder Lady: lo vpon thy wiſh
Our Meſſenger Chatillon is arriu'd,
What England ſaies, ſay briefely gentle Lord,
We coldly paule for thee, Chatillon ſpeake.
Chat. Then turne your forces from this paltry ſiege,
And ſtirre them vp againſt a mightier taſke:
England impatient of your iuſt demands,
Hath put himſelfe in Armes, the aduerſe windes

Whose leisure I haue staid, haue giuen him time
To land his Legions all as soone as I:
His marches are expedient to this towne,
His forces strong, his Souldiers confident:
With him along is come the Mother Queene,
An Ace stirring him to bloud and strife,
With her her Neece, the Lady Blanch of Spaine,
With them a Bastard of the Kings deceast,
And all th'vnfeeled humors of the Land,
Rash, inconsiderate, fiery voluntaries,
With Ladies faces, and fierce Dragons spleenes,
Haue sold their fortunes at their natiue homes,
Bearing their birth-rights proudly on their backs,
To make a hazard of new fortunes heere:
In briefe, a brauer choyse of dauntlesse spirits
Then now the English bottomes haue waft o're,
Did neuer flote vpon the swelling tide,
To doe offence and scathe in Christendome:
The interruption of their churlish drums
Cuts off more circumstance, they are at hand,
Drum beats.
To parlie or to fight, therefore prepare.
Kin. How much vnlook'd for, is this expedition.
Aust By how much vnexpected, by so much
We must awake indeuor for defence,
For courage mounteth with occasion,
Let them be welcome then, we are prepar'd.

Enter K. of England, Bastard, Queene, Blanch, Pembroke, and others.

K. Iohn. Peace be to France: If France in peace permit
Our iust and lineall entrance to our owne;
If not, bleede France, and peace ascend to heauen,
Whiles we Gods wrathfull agent doe correct
Their proud contempt that beats his peace to heauen.
Fran. Peace be to England, if that warre returne
From France to England, there to liue in peace:
England we loue, and for that Englands sake,
With burden of our armor heere we sweat:
This toyle of ours should be a worke of thine;
But thou from louing England art so farre,
That thou hast vnder-wrought his lawfull King,
Cut off the sequence of posterity,
Out-faced Infant State, and done a rape
Vpon the maiden vertue of the Crowne:
Looke heere vpon thy brother Geffreyes face,
These eyes, these browes, were moulded out of his;
This little abstract doth containe that large,
Which died in Geffrey and the hand of time,
Shall draw this breefe into as huge a volume:
That Geffrey was thy elder brother borne,
And this his sonne, England was Geffreys right,
And this is Geffreyes in the name of God:
How comes it then that thou art call'd a King,
When liuing blood doth in these temples beat
Which owe the crowne, that thou ore-masterest?
K. Iohn. From whom hast thou this great commission
To draw my answer from thy Articles? (France
Fra. Frō that supernal Iudge that stirs good thoughts
In any breast of strong authoritie,
To looke into the blots and staines of right,
That Iudge hath made me guardian to this boy
Vnder whose warrant I impeach thy wrong,
And by whose helpe I meane to chastise it.
K. Iohn. Alack thou dost vsurpe authoritie.
Fran. Excuse it is to beat vsurping downe.
Queen. Who is it thou dost call vsurper France?
Const. Let me make answer: thy vsurping sonne.
Queen. Out insolent, thy bastard shall be King,
That thou maist be a Queen, and checke the world.
Con. My bed was euer to thy sonne as true
As thine was to thy husband, and this boy
Liker in feature to his father Geffrey
Then thou and Iohn, in manners being as like,
As raine to water, or deuill to his dame:
My boy a bastard? by my soule I thinke
His father neuer was so true begot,
It cannot be, and if thou wert his mother. (Other Queen. Theres a good mother boy, that blots thy fa-Const. There's a good grandame boy
That would blot thee.
Aust. Peace.
Bast. Heare the Cryer.
Aust. What the deuill art thou?
Bast. One that wil play the deuill sir with you,
And a may catch your hide and you alone:
You are the Hare of whom the Prouerb goes
Whose valour plucks dead Lyons by the beard;
Ile smoake your skin-coat and I catch you right,
Sirra looke too't, yfaith I will, yfaith.
Blan. O well did he become that Lyons robe,
That did disrobe the Lion of that robe.
Bast. It lies as sightly on the backe of him,
As great Alcides shooes vpon an Asse:
But Asse, Ile take that burthen from your backe,
Or lay on that shall make your shoulders cracke.
Aust. What cracker is this same that deafes our ears
With this abundance of superfluous breath?
King Lewis, determine what we shall doe strait.
Lew. Women & fooles, breake off your conference.
King Iohn, this is the very summe of all:
England and Ireland, Anglers, Turaine, Maine,
In right of Arthur doe I claime of thee.
Wilt thou resigne them, and lay downe thy Armes?
Iohn. My life as soone: I doe defie thee France,
Arthur of Britaine, yeeld thee to my hand,
And out of my deere loue Ile giue thee more,
Then ere the coward hand of France can win;
Submit thee boy.
Queen. Come to thy grandame child.
Const. Doe childe, goe to yt grandame childe, Giue grandame kingdome, and it grandame will Giue yt a plum, a cherry, and a figge,
There's a good grandame.
Arthur. Good my mother peace,
I would that I were low laid in my graue,
I am not worth this coyle that's made for me. (weeps.
Qu. Mo. His mother shames him so, poore boy he
Con. Now shame vpon you where she does or no.
His grandames wrongs, and not his mothers shames
Drawes those heauen-moouing pearles fro his poore eies,
Which heauen shall take in nature of a fee:
I, with these Christall beads heauen shall be brib'd
To doe him Iustice, and reuenge on you.
Qu. Thou monstrous slanderer of heauen and earth.
Con. Thou monstrous Iniurer of heauen and earth,
Call not me slanderer, thou and thine vsurpe
The Dominations, Royalties, and rights
Of this oppressed boy; this is thy eldest sonnes sonne,
Infortunate in nothing but in thee:

Thy

es are visited in this poore childe, on of the Law is laide on him,
t the second generation
d from thy sinne-conceiuing wombe.
Bedlam haue done.
I haue but this to say,
s not onely plagued for her sin,
hath made her sinne and her, the plague mooued issue, plagued for her,
her plague her sinne: his injury
e the Beadle to her sinne.
s'd in the person of this childe,
or her, a plague vpon her.
Thou vnduteous scold, I can produce hat barres the title of thy sonne.
who doubts that, a Will: a wicked will,
s will, a cankred Grandams will.
Peace Lady, pause, or be more temperate,
omes this presence to cry ayme ill tuned repetitions:
umpet summon hither to the walles
n of Angiers, let vs heare them speake, tle they admit, Arthurs or Johns.

Trumpet sounds.
Enter a Citizen vpon the walles.
Who is it that hath warn'd vs to the walles?
Tis France, for England.
England for it selfe.
of Angiers, and my louing subiects.
You louing men of Angiers, Arthurs subiects, mpet call'd you to this gentle parle.
For our aduantage, therefore heare vs first.
ggers of France that are aduanced heere
e eye and prospect of your Towne, her march'd to your endamagement
ons haue their bowels full of wrath,
y mounted are they to spit forth
n indignation 'gainst your walles:
ration for a bloody siedge
ities proceeding, by these French, yours Citties eies, your winking gates:
for our approch, those sleeping stones, waste doth girdle you about mpulsion of their Ordinance, me from their fixed beds of lime dishabited, and wide hauocke made by power to rush vppon your peace.
e sight of vs your lawfull King, inefully with much expedient march ught a counter-checke before your gates, ntcratch'd your Citties threatned cheekes:
he French amaz'd vouchsafe a parle,
instead of bullets wrapt in fire
a shaking feare in your walles, ore but calme words, folded vp in smoake,
a faithlesse errour in your eares,
ust accordingly kinde Citizens,
s in. Your King, whose labour'd spirits ried in this action of swift speede, arbourage within your Citie walles.
When I haue saide, make answer to vs both.
is right hand, whose protection ustnely vow'd vpon the right holds, stands yong Plantagenet,
the elder brother of this man,
And King ore him, and all that he enioyes:
For this downe-troden equity, we tread
In warlike march, these greenes before your Towne,
Being no further enemy to you
Then the constraints of hospitable zeale,
In the releefe of this oppressed childe,
Religiously prouokes. Be pleased then
To pay that dutie which you truly owe,
To him that owes it, namely, this yong Prince,
And then our Armes, like to a muzled Beare,
Saue in aspect, hath all offence seal'd vp:
Our Cannons malice vainly shall be spent
Against th'involuerable clouds of heauen,
And with a blessed and vn-vext retyre,
With vnhack'd swords, and Helmets all vnbruis'd,
We will beare home that lustie blood againe,
Which heere we came to spout against your Towne,
And leaue your children, wiues, and you in peace
But if you fondly passe our proffer'd offer,
Tis not the rounder of your old-fac'd walles,
Can hide you from our messengers of Warre,
Though all these English, and their discipline
Were harbour'd in their rude circumference:
Then tell vs, Shall your Citie call vs Lord,
In that behalfe which we haue challeng'd it?
Or shall we giue the signall to our rage,
And stalke in blood to our possession?
Cit. In breefe, we are the King of Englands subiects
For him, and in his right, we hold this Towne.
Iohn. Acknowledge then the King, and let me in.
Cit. That can we not: but he that proues the King
To him will we proue loyall, till that time
Haue we ramm'd vp our gates against the world.
Iohn. Doth not the Crowne of England, prooue the King?
And if not that, I bring you Witnesses
Twice fifteene thousand hearts of Englands breed
Bast. Bastards and else.
Iohn. To verifie our title with their liues.
Fran. As many and as well-borne bloods as those.
Bast. Some Bastards too.
Fran. Stand in his face to contradict his claime.
Cit. Till you compound whose right is worthiest,
We for the worthiest hold the right from both.
Iohn. Then God forgiue the sinne of all those soules,
That to their euerlasting residence,
Before the dew of euening fall, shall fleete
In dreadfull triall of our kingdomes King.
Fran. Amen, Amen, mount Chevaliers to Armes.
Bast. Saint George that swindg'd the Dragon,
And ere since sit's on's horseback at mine Hostesse dore
Teach vs some fence. Sirrah, were I at home
At your den sirrah, with your Lionesse,
I would set an Ox-head to your Lyons hide:
And make a monster of you.
Aust. Peace, no more.
Bast. O tremble: for you heare the Lyon rore.
Iohn. Vp higher to the plaine, where we'l set forth
In best appointment all our Regiments.
Bast. Speed then to take aduantage of the field.
Fra. It shall be so, and at the other hill
Command the rest to stand. God and our right. Exeunt
Heere after excursions, Enter the Herald of France with Trumpets to the gates.
F. Her. You men of Angiers open wide your gates,
And let yong Arthur Duke of Britaine in,

Who by the hand of France, this day hath made
Much worke for teares in many an Engliſh mother,
Whoſe ſonnes lye ſcattered on the bleeding ground:
Many a widdowes husband grouling lies,
Coldly embracing the diſcoloured earth,
And victorie with little loſſe doth play
Vpon the dancing banners of the French,
Who are at hand triumphantly diſplayed
To enter Conquerors, and to proclaime
Arthur of Britaine, Englands King, and yours.

Enter Engliſh Herald with Trumpet.

E. Her. Reioyce you men of Angiers, ring your bels,
King Iohn, your king and Englands, doth approach,
Commander of this hot malicious day,
Their Armours that march'd hence ſo ſilver bright,
Hither returne all gilt with Frenchmens blood.
There ſtucke no plume in any Engliſh Creſt,
That is remooved by a ſtaffe of France.
Our colours do returne in thoſe ſame hands
That did diſplay them when we firſt marcht forth
And like a iolly troope of Huntſmen come
Our louſhe Engliſh, all with purpled hands,
Dide in the dying ſlaughter of their foes,
Open your gates, and giue the Victors way.

Hubert. Heralds, from off our towres we might behold
From firſt to laſt, the on-ſet and retyre
Of both your Armies, whoſe equality
By our beſt eyes cannot be cenſured: (blowes:
Blood hath bought blood, and blowes haue anſwerd
Strength matcht with ſtrength, and power confronted power,
Both are alike, and both alike we like.
One muſt proue greateſt. While they weigh ſo euen.
We hold our Towne for neither: yet for both.

Enter the two Kings with their powers, at ſeuerall doores.

Iohn. France, haſt thou yet more blood to caſt away?
Say, ſhall the currant of our right rome on,
Whoſe paſſage vext with thy impediment,
Shall leaue his native channell, and ore-ſwell
With courſe diſturb'd euen thy confining ſhores,
Vnleſſe thou let his ſiluer Water, keepe
A peacefull progreſſe to the Ocean.

Fra. England thou haſt not ſau'd one drop of blood
In this hot triall more then we of France,
Rather loſt more. And by this hand I ſweare
That ſwayes the earth this Climate ouer-lookes,
Before we will lay downe our iuſt-borne Armes,
We'l put thee downe, gainſt whom theſe Armes wee
Or adde a royall number to the dead: (beare,
Gracing the ſcroule that tels of this warres loſſe,
With ſlaughter coupled to the name of kings.

Baſt. Ha Maieſty: how high thy glory towres,
When the rich blood of kings is ſet on fire:
Oh now doth death line his dead chaps with ſteele,
The ſwords of ſouldiers are his teeth, his phangs,
And now he feaſts, mouſing the fleſh of men
In vnderminn'd differences of kings.
Why ſtand theſe royall fronts amazed thus:
Cry hauocke kings, backe to the ſtained field
You equall Potents, fierie kindled ſpirits,
Then let confuſion of one part confirm
The others peace: till then, blowes, blood, and death.

Iohn. Whoſe party do the Townesmen yet admit?

Fra. Speake Citizens for England, whoſe your king.

Hub. The king of England, when we know the king.

Fra. Know him in vs, that heere hold vp his right.

Iohn. In vs, that are our owne great Deputie,
And beare poſſeſſion of our Perſon heere,
Lord of our preſence Angiers, and of you.

Fra. A greater powre then We denies all this,
And till it be vndoubted, we do locke
Our former ſcruple in our ſtrong barr'd gates:
Kings of our feare, vntill our feares reſolu'd
Be by ſome certaine king, purg'd and depoſ'd.

Baſt. By heauen, theſe ſcroyles of Angiers flout you
And ſtand ſecurely on their bateſments. (kings,
As in a Theater, whence they gape and point
At your induſtrious Scenes and acts of death.
Your Royall preſences be rul'd by me,
Do like the Mutines of Ieruſalem,
Be friends a-while, and both conioyntly bend
Your ſharpeſt Deeds of malice on this Towne.
By Eaſt and Weſt let France and England mount
Their battering Canon charged to the mouthes,
Till their ſoule-fearing clamours haue braul'd downe
The ſtiffe ribbes of this contemptuous Citie,
I'de play incеſſantly vpon theſe Iades,
Euen till vnfenced deſolation
Leaue them as naked as the vulgar ayre:
That done, diſſeuer your vnited ſtrengths,
And part your mingled colours once againe,
Turne face to face, and bloody point to poynt:
Then in a moment Fortune ſhall cull forth
Out of one ſide her happy Minion,
To whom in fauour ſhe ſhall giue the day,
And kiſſe him with a glorious victory:
How like you this wilde counſell mighty States,
Smacks it not ſomething of the policie.

Iohn. Now by the ſky that hangs about our heads,
I like it well. France, ſhall we knit our powres,
And lay this Angiers euen with the ground,
Then after fight who ſhall be king of it?

Baſt. And if thou haſt the mettle of a king,
Being wrong'd as we are by this peeuiſh Towne:
Turne thou the mouth of thy Artillerie,
As we will ours, againſt theſe ſwincie walles,
And when that we haue daſh'd them to the ground,
Why then defie each other, and pell-mell,
Make worke vpon our ſelues, for heauen or hell.

Fra. Let it be ſo: ſay, where will you aſſault?

Iohn. We from the Weſt will ſend deſtruction
Into this Cities boſome.

Aſt. I from the North.

Fra. Our Thunder from the South,
Shall raine their drift of bullets on this Towne.

Baſt. O prudent diſcipline! From North to South:
Auſtria and France ſhoot in each others mouth,
Ile ſtirre them to it: Come, away, away.

Hub. Heare vs great kings, vouchſafe awhile to ſtay
And I ſhall ſhew you peace, and faire-fac'd league:
Win you this Citie without ſtroke, or wound,
Reſcue thoſe breathing liues to dye in beds,
That heere come ſacrifices for the field.
Perſeuer not, but heare me mighty kings.

Iohn. Speake on with fauour, we are bent to heare.

Hub. That daughter there of Spaine, the Lady Blanch
Is neere to England, looke vpon the yeares
Of Lewes the Dolphin, and that louely maid.
If luſtie loue ſhould go in queſt of beauty,

Where

should he finde it fairer, then in Blanch:
us loue should go in search of vertue,
should he finde it purer then in Blanch?
ambitious, fought a match of birth,
veines bound richer blood then Lady Blanch?
the is, in beautie, vertue, birth,
ong Dolphin every way compleat,
ompleat of, fay he is not fhee,
e againe wants nothing, to name want,
it be not, that fhe is not hee:
e halfe part of a bleſſed man,
be finiſhed by ſuch as fhee,
e's faire diuided excellence,
fulneſſe of perfection lyes in him.
ſuch ſiluer currents when they ioyne ifie the bankes that bound them in:
o ſuch ſhores, to two ſuch ſtreames made one,
ch controlling bounds ſhall you be, kings,
e two Princes, if you marrie them:
ion ſhall do more then battetie can ſtall cloſed gates: for at this match, niſter ſpleene then powder can enforce uth of paſſage ſhall we fling wide ope.
e you entrance: but without this match,
enraged is not halfe ſo deafe,
more confident, Mountaines and rockes
ixe from motion, no not death himſelfe tall furie halfe ſo peremptorie, o keepe this Citie.
Hoores a fhey,
akes the rotten carkaſſe of old death is ragges. Here's a large mouth indeede, its forth death, and mountaines, rockes, and leſſe,
as familiarly as roaring Lyons,
da of thirteene do of puppi-dogges.
Cannoneere begot this luſtie blood,
kes plaine Cannon fire, and ſmoake, and bounce,
s the baſtinado with his tongue:
es are cudgel'd, not a word of his ſters butter then a fiſt of France:
I was never ſo bethumpt with words,
firſt cal'd my brothers father Dad.
Qu. Son, liſt to this coniunction, make this match ith our Neece a dowrie large enough.
this knot, that ſhalt ſo ſurely tye
w vnſure d aſſurance to the Crowne, an greene boy ſhall haue no Sunne to ripe
ome that promiſeth a mightie fruite.
welding in the lookes of France:
how they whiſper, vrge them while their ſoules
eable of this ambition,
eale now mocked by the windie breath petitions, pittie and remorſe, nd congeale againe to what it was.
Why anſwer not the double Maieſties,
indly treatie of our threatned Towne.
Speake England firſt, that hath bin forward firſt
ke vnto this Citie: what ſay you?
If thou the Dolphin there thy Princely ſonne,
this booke of beautie read, I loue:
owrie ſhall weigh equall with a Queene:
ours, and faire Touraine Maine, Poyctiers, (that we vpon this ſide the Sea,
e this Citie now by vs beſieged'd) liable to our Crowne and Dignitie, ld her bridall bed and make her rich
In titles, honors, and promotions,
As ſhe in beautie, education, blood,
Holdes hand with any Princeſſe of the world.
Fra. What ſai'ſt thou boy? looke in the Ladies face.
Dol. I do my Lord, and in her eie I find
A wonder, or a wondrous miracle,
The ſhadow of my ſelfe form'd in her eye,
Which being but the ſhadow of your ſonne,
Becomes a ſonne and makes your ſonnes ſhadow:
I do proteſt I never lou'd my ſelfe
Till now, infixed I beheld my ſelfe,
Drawne in the flattering table of her eie.
Whiſper: with Blanch.
Bast. Drawne in the flattering table of her eie,
Hang'd in the frowning wrinkle of her brow,
And quarter'd in her heart, he doth eſpie
Himſelfe loues traytor, this is pittie now;
That hang'd, and drawne, and quarter'd there ſhould be
In ſuch a loue, ſo vile a Lout as he.
Blan. My vnckles will in this reſpect is mine.
If he ſee ought in you that makes him like,
That any thing he ſee's which moues his liking,
I can with eaſe tranſlate it to my will:
Or if you will, to ſpeake more properly,
I will enforce it eaſlie to my loue.
Further I will not flatter you, my Lord
That all I ſee in you is worthie loue,
Then this, that nothing do I ſee in you,
Though churliſh thoughts themſelues ſhould bee your
Iudge,
That I can finde, ſhould merit any hate.
Iohn. What ſaie theſe yong-ones? What ſay you my Neece?
Blan. That ſhe is bound in honor ſtill to do
What you in wiſedome ſtill vouchſafe to ſay.
Iohn. Speake then Prince Dolphin, can you loue this Ladie?
Dol. Nay aske me if I can refraine from loue,
For I doe loue her moſt vnfainedly.
Iohn. Then do I giue Volqueſſen, Touraine, Maine,
Poyctiers, and Anion, theſe fiue Prouinces
With her to thee, and this addition more,
Full thirty thouſand Markes of Engliſh coyne.
Philip of France, if thou be pleaſ'd withall,
Command thy ſonne and daughter to ioyne hands.
Fra. It likes vs well young Princes: cloſe your hands
Aust. And your lippes too, for I am well aſſur'd,
That I did ſo when I was firſt aſſur'd.
Fra. Now Citizens of Angiers ope your gates,
Let in that amitie which you haue made,
For at Saint Maries Chappell preſently,
The rights of marriage ſhallbe ſolemniz'd.
Is not the Ladie Conſtance in this troope?
I know ſhe is not for this match made vp,
Her preſence would haue interrupted much.
Where is ſhe and her ſonne, tell me, who knowes?
Dol. She is ſad and paſſionate at your highnes Tent.
Fra. And by my faith, this league that we haue made
Will giue her ſadneſſe very little cure:
Brother of England, how may we contein
This widdow Lady? In her right we came,
Which we God knowes, haue turn'd another way,
To our owne vantage.
Iohn. We will beſie vp all,
For we'l create yong Arthur Duke of Britaine
And Earle of Richmond, and this rich faire Towne

We

We make him Lord of. Call the Lady Conſtance,
Some ſpeedy Meſſenger bid her repaire
To our ſolemnity: I truſt we ſhall,
(If not fill vp the meaſure of her will)
Yet in ſome meaſure ſatisfie her ſo,
That we ſhall ſtop her exclamation.
Go we as well as haſt will ſuffer vs,
To this vnlook'd for vnprepared pompe. Exeunt.

Baſt. Mad world, mad kings, mad compoſition:
Iohn to ſtop Arthurs Title in the whole,
Hath willingly departed with a part,
And France, whoſe armour Conſcience buckled on,
Whom zeale and charitie brought to the field,
As Gods owne ſouldier, rounded in the eare,
With that ſame purpoſe-changer, that ſly diuel,
That Broker, that ſtill breakes the pate of faith,
That daily breake-vow, he that winnes of all,
Of kings, of beggers, old men, yong men, maids,
Who hauing no externall thing to looſe,
But the word Maid, cheats the poore Maide of that.
That ſmooth-fac'd Gentleman, tickling commoditie,
Commoditie, the byas of the world,
The world, who of it ſelfe is peyſed well,
Made to run euen, vpon euen ground:
Till this aduantage, this vile drawing byas,
This ſway of motion, this commoditie,
Makes it take head from all indifferency,
From all direction, purpoſe, courſe, intent.
And this ſame byas, this Commoditie,
This Bawd, this Broker, this all-changing-word,
Clap'd on the outward eye of fickle France,
Hath drawne him from his owne determin'd ayd,
From a reſolu'd and honourable warre,
To a moſt baſe and vile-concluded peace.
And why tayle I on this Commoditie?
But for becauſe he hath not wooed me yet:
Not that I haue the power to clutch my hand,
When his faire Angels would ſalute my palme,
But for my hand, as vnattempted yet,
Like a poore begger, raileth on the rich.
Well, whiles I am a begger, I will raile,
And ſay there is no ſin but to be rich:
And being rich, my vertue then ſhall be,
To ſay there is no vice, but beggerie:
Since Kings breake faith vpon commoditie,
Gaine be my Lord, for I will worſhip thee. Exit.

Actus Secundus

Enter Conſtance, Arthur, and Salisbury.

Con. Gone to be married? Gone to ſweare a peace?
False blood to falſe blood ioyn'd. Gone to be friends?
Shall Lewis haue Blaunch, and Blaunch thoſe Prouinces?
It is not ſo, thou haſt miſpoke, miſheard,
Be well aduiſ'd, tell ore thy tale againe.
It cannot be, thou do'ſt but ſay 'tis ſo.
I truſt I may not truſt thee, for thy word
Is but the vaine breath of a common man:
Beleeue me, I doe not beleeue thee man,
I haue a Kings oath to the contrarie.
Thou ſhalt be puniſh'd for thus frighting me,
For I am ſicke, and capeable of feares,
Oppreſt with wrongs, and therefore full of feares,
A widdow, husbandles, ſubiect to feares,
A woman naturally borne to feares;
And though thou now confeſſe thou didſt but ieſt
With my vext ſpirits, I cannot take a Truce,
But they will quake and tremble all this day.
What doſt thou meane by ſhaking of thy head?
Why doſt thou looke ſo ſadly on my ſonne?
What meanes that hand vpon that breaſt of thine?
Why holdes thine eie that lamentable rhewme,
Like a proud riuer peering ore his bounds?
Be theſe ſad ſignes confirmers of thy words?
Then ſpeake againe, not all thy former tale,
But this one word, whether thy tale be true.

Sal. As true as I beleeue you thinke them falſe,
That giue you cauſe to proue my ſaying true.

Con. Oh if thou teach me to beleeue this ſorrow,
Teach thou this ſorrow, how to make me dye,
And let beleefe, and life encounter ſo,
As doth the furie of two deſperate men,
Which in the very meeting fall, and dye.
Lewis marry Blaunch? O boy, then where art thou?
France friend with England, what becomes of me?
Fellow be gone: I cannot brooke thy ſight,
This newes hath made thee a moſt vgly man.

Sal. What other harme haue I good Lady done,
But ſpoke the harme, that is by others done?

Con. Which harme within it ſelfe ſo heynous is,
As it makes harmefull all that ſpeake of it.

Ar. I do beſeech you Madam be content.

Con. If thou that bidſt me be content, wert grim
Vgly, and ſlandrous to thy Mothers wombe,
Full of vnpleaſing blots, and ſightleſſe ſtaines,
Lame, fooliſh, crooked, ſwart, prodigious,
Patch'd with foule Moles, and eye-offending marke,
I would not care, I then would be content,
For then I ſhould not loue thee: no, not thou
Become thy great birth, nor deſerue a Crowne.
But thou art faire, and at thy birth (deare boy)
Nature and Fortune ioyn'd to make thee great.
Of Natures guifts, thou mayſt with Lillies boaſt,
And with the halfe-blowne Roſe. But Fortune, oh,
She is corrupted, chang'd, and wonne from thee.
Sh'adulterates hourely with thine Vncle Iohn,
And with her golden hand hath pluckt on France
To tread downe faire reſpect of Soueraignie,
And made his Maieſtie the bawd to theirs.
France is a Bawd to Fortune, and king Iohn,
That ſtrumpet Fortune, that vſurping Iohn:
Tell me thou fellow, is not France forſworne?
Euenom him with words, or get thee gone,
And leaue thoſe woes alone, which I alone
Am bound to vnder-beare.

Sal. Pardon me Madam,
I may not goe without you to the kings.

Con. Thou maiſt, thou ſhalt, I will not go with thee,
I will inſtruct my ſorrowes to be proud,
For greefe is proud, and makes his owner ſtoope,
To me and to the ſtate of my great greefe,
Let kings aſſemble: for my greefe's ſo great,
That no ſupporter but the huge firme earth
Can hold it vp: here I and ſorrowes ſit,
Here is my Throne, bid kings come bow to it.

Actus

...ius Tertius, Scæna prima.

...lohn, Frances, Dolphin, Blanch, Elianor, Philip, Constance.

...is true (faire daughter) and this bleſſed day,
...ver ſhall be kept feſtiuall:
...ze this day the glorious ſunne
...s courſe, and plays the Alchymiſt,
...th ſplendor of his precious eye
...e cloddy earth to glittering gold:
...courſe that brings this day about,
...ſee it, but a holy day.
...wicked day, and not a holy day.
...this day deſeru'd? what hath it done,
...olden letters ſhould be ſet
...high tides in the Kalender?
...turne this day out of the weeke,
...ſhame, oppreſſion, periury.
...ſtand ſtill, let wiues with childe
...eir burthens may not fall this day,
...ir hopes prodigiouſly be croſt:
...day) let Sea-men feare no wracke,
...es breake that are not this day made;
...things begun, come to ill end,
...ſelfe to hollow falſhood change.
...heauen Lady, you ſhall haue no cauſe
...e faire proceedings of this day:
...pawn'd to you my Maieſty?
...ou haue beguil'd me with a counterfeit
...Maieſty, which being touch'd and tride
...leſſe: you are forſworne, forſworne,
...Armes to ſpill mine enemies bloud,
...Armes, you ſtrengthen it with yours.
...g vigor, and rough frowne of Warre
...nitie, and painted peace,
...preſſion hath made vp this league:
...r, you heauens, againſt theſe periur'd Kings,
...ceits, be husband to me (heauens)
...howres of this vngodly day
...the dates in Peace; but ere Sun-ſet,
...iſcord 'twixt theſe periur'd Kings.
...Oh, heare me.
...dy Conſtance, peace.
...ar, war, no peace, peace is to me a warre:
...O Auſtria, thou doſt ſhame
...y ſpoyle: thou ſlaue, thou wretch, & coward,
...valiant, great in villanie,
...ſtrong vpon the ſtronger ſide;
...unes Champion, that do'ſt neuer fight
...er humourous Ladiſhip is by
...ice ſafety: thou art periur'd too,
...ſt vp greatneſſe. What a ſoole art thou,
...ſoole, to brag, and ſtamp, and ſweare,
...attle: thou cold blooded ſlaue,
...not ſpoke like thunder on my ſide?
...me my Souldier, bidding me depend
...hartes, thy fortune, and thy ſtrength,
...hou now fall ouer to my foes?
...e a Lyons hide, doff it for ſhame.
...a Calues skin on thoſe recreant limbes.
...that a man ſhould ſpeake thoſe words to me.
...nd hang a Calues-skin on thoſe recreant limbs
...hou dar'ſt not ſay ſo villaine for thy life.

Phil. And hang a Calues skin on thoſe recreant limbs.
Iohn. We like not this, thou doſt forget thy ſelfe.

Enter Pandulph.

Fra. Heere comes the holy Legas of the Pope.
Pan. Haile you annointed deputies of heauen;
To thee King Iohn my holy errand is:
I Pandulph, of faire Millane Cardinall,
And from Pope Innocent the Legate heere,
Doe in his name religiouſly demand
Why thou againſt the Church, our holy Mother,
So wilfully doſt ſpurne; and force perforce
Keepe Stephen Langton choſen Arſhbiſhop
Of Canterbury from that holy Sea:
This in our foreſaid holy Fathers name
Pope Innocent, I doe demand of thee.
Iohn. What earthie name to Interrogatories
Can taſt the free breath of a ſacred King?
Thou canſt not (Cardinall) deuiſe a name
So ſlight, vnworthy, and ridiculous
To charge me to an anſwere, as the Pope:
Tell him this tale, and from the mouth of England,
Adde thus much more, that no Italian Prieſt
Shall tythe or toll in our dominons:
But as we, vnder heauen, are ſupreame head,
So vnder him that great ſupremacy
Where we doe reigne, we will alone vphold
Without th'aſſiſtance of a mortall hand:
So tell the Pope, all reuerence ſet apart
To him and his vſurp'd authoritie.
Fra. Brother of England, you blaſpheme in this.
Iohn. Though you, and all the Kings of Chriſtendom
Are led ſo groſſely by this meddling Prieſt,
Dreading the curſe that money may buy out,
And by the merit of vilde gold, droſſe, duſt,
Purchaſe corrupted pardon of a man,
Who in that ſale ſells pardon from himſelfe:
Though you, and all the reſt ſo groſſely led,
This iugling witchcraft with reuennue cheriſh,
Yet I alone, alone doe me oppoſe
Againſt the Pope, and count his friends my foes.
Pand. Then by the lawfull power that I haue,
Thou ſhalt ſtand curſt, and excommunicate,
And bleſſed ſhall he be that doth reuolt
From his Allegeance to an heretique,
And meritorious ſhall that hand be call'd,
Canonized and worſhip'd as a Saint,
That takes away by any ſecret courſe
Thy hatefull life.
Con. O lawfull let it be
That I haue roome with Rome to curſe a while,
Good Father Cardinall, cry thou Amen
To my keene curſes; for without my wrong
There is no tongue hath power to curſe him right.
Pan. There's Law and Warrant (Lady) for my curſe.
Conſ. And for mine too, when Law can do no right.
Let it be lawfull, that Law barre no wrong:
Law cannot giue my childe his kingdome heere;
For he that holds his Kingdome, holds the Law.
Therefore ſince Law is ſelfe is perfect wrong,
How can the Law forbid my tongue to curſe?
Pand. Philip of France, on perill of a curſe,
Let goe the hand of that Arch-heretique,
And raiſe the power of France vpon his head,
Vnleſſe he doe ſubmit himſelfe to Rome.
Eleo. Look'ſt thou pale France? do not let go thy hand.
Con. Looke to that Deuill, leſt that France repent,

And

And by disioyning hands hell lose a soule.
Aust. King Philip, listen to the Cardinall.
Bast. And hang a Calues-skin on his recreant limbs.
Aust. Well ruffian, I must pocket vp these wrongs, Because,
Bast. Your breeches best may carry them.
Iohn. Philip, what saist thou to the Cardinall?
Con. What should he say, but as the Cardinall?
Dolph. Bethinke you father, for the difference
Is purchase of a heauy curse from Rome,
Or the light losse of England, for a friend:
Forgoe the easier.
Bla. That is the curse of Rome.
Con. O Lewis, stand fast, the deuill tempts thee heere
In likenesse of a new vntrimmed Bride.
Bla The Lady Constance speakes not from her faith,
But from her need.
Con. Oh, if thou grant my need,
Which onely liues but by the death of faith,
That need, must needs inferre this principle,
That faith would liue againe by death of need:
O then tread downe my need, and faith mounts vp,
Keepe my need vp, and faith is trodden downe.
Iohn. The king is moud, and answers not to this.
Con. O be remou'd from him, and answere well.
Aust. Doe so king Philip, hang no more in doubt.
Bast. Hang nothing but a Calues skin most sweet lout.
Fra. I am perplext, and know not what to say.
Pan. What canst thou say, but wil perplex thee more?
If thou stand excommunicate, and curst?
Fra. Good reuerend father, make my person yours,
And tell me how you would bestow your selfe?
This royall hand and mine are newly knit,
And the coniunction of our inward soules
Married in league, coupled, and link'd together
With all religious strength of sacred vowes,
The latest breath that gaue the sound of words
Was deepe-sworne faith, peace, amity, true loue
Betweene our kingdomes and our royall selues,
And euen before this truce, but new before,
No longer then we well could wash our hands,
To clap this royall bargaine vp of peace,
Heauen knowes they were besmear'd and ouer-staind
With slaughters pencill; where reuenge did paint
The fearefull difference of incensed kings:
And shall these hands so lately purg'd of bloud?
So newly ioyn'd in loue? so strong in both,
Vnyoke this seysure, and this kinde regreete?
Play fast and loose with faith? so test with heauen,
Make such vnconstant children of our selues
As now againe to snatch our palme from palme:
Vn-sweare faith sworne, and on the marriage bed
Of smiling peace to march a bloody hoast,
And make a ryot on the gentle brow
Of true sincerity? O holy Sir
My reuerend father, let it not be so;
Out of your grace, deuise, ordaine, impose
Some gentle order, and then we shall be blest
To doe your pleasure, and continue friends.
Pand. All forme is formelesse, Order orderlesse,
Saue what is opposite to Englands loue.
Therefore to Armes, be Champion of our Church,
Or let the Church our mother breathe her curse,
A mothers curse, on her reuolting sonne:
France thou maist hold a serpent by the tongue,
A cased Lion by the mortall paw,
A fasting Tyger safer by the tooth,
Then keepe in peace that hand which thou dost hold.
Fra. I may dis-ioyne my hand, but not my faith.
Pand. So mak'st thou faith an enemy to faith,
And like a ciuill warre setst oath to oath,
Thy tongue against thy tongue. O let thy vow
First made to heauen, first be to heauen perform'd,
That is, to be the Champion of our Church,
What since thou sworst, is sworne against thy selfe,
And may not be performed by thy selfe,
For that which thou hast sworne to doe amisse,
Is not amisse when it is truely done:
And being not done, where doing tends to ill,
The truth is then most done not doing it:
The better Act of purposes mistooke,
Is to mistake again, though indirect,
Yet indirection thereby growes direct,
And falshood, falshood cures, as fire cooles fire
Within the scorched veines of one new burn'd:
It is religion that doth make vowes kept,
But thou hast sworne against religion:
By what thou swear'st against the thing thou swar'st
And mak'st an oath the suretie for thy truth,
Against an oath the truth, thou art vnsure
To sweare, sweares onely not to be forsworne,
Else what a mockerie should it be to sweare?
But thou dost sweare, onely to be forsworne,
And most forsworne, to keepe what thou dost sweare,
Therefore thy later vowes, against thy first,
Is in thy selfe rebellion to thy selfe:
And better conquest neuer canst thou make,
Then arme thy constant and thy nobler parts
Against these giddy loose suggestions:
Vpon which better part, our prayers come in,
If thou vouchsafe them. But if not, then know
The perill of our curses light on thee
So heauy, as thou shalt not shake them off
But in dispaire, dye vnder their blacke weight.
Aust. Rebellion, flat rebellion.
Bast. Wil't not be?
Will not a Calues-skin stop that mouth of thine?
Dau. Father, to Armes.
Blanch. Vpon thy wedding day?
Against the blood that thou hast marryed?
What, shall our feast be kept with slaughtered men?
Shall braying trumpets, and loud churlish drums
Clamors of hell, be measures to our pomp?
O husband heare me: aye, alacke, how new
Is husband in my mouth? euen for that name
Which till this time my tongue did neere pronounce;
Vpon my knee I beg, goe not to Armes
Against mine Vncle.
Const. O, vpon my knee made hard with kneeling,
I doe pray to thee, thou vertuous Dauphin,
Alter not the doome fore-thought by heauen.
Blan. Now shall I see thy loue, what motiue may
Be stronger with thee, then the name of wife?
Con. That which vpholdeth him, that thee vpholds,
His Honor, Oh thine Honor, Lewis thine Honor.
Dolph. I muse your Maiestie doth seeme so cold,
When such profound respects doe pull you on?
Pand. I will denounce a curse vpon his head.
Fra. Thou shalt not need. England, I will fall from thee.
Const. O faire returne of banish'd Maiestie.
Eli. O foule reuolt of French inconstancy.
Eng. France, y shalt rue this houre within this houre.

Bast

Old Time the clocke ſetter, y bald ſexton Time:
will? well then, France ſhall rue.
The Sun's orecaſt with bloud: faire day adieu,
the ſide that I muſt goe withall?
both, each Army hath a hand,
eir rage, I hauing hold of both,
utle a-funder, and diſmember mee.
, I cannot pray that thou maiſt winne:
eeds muſt pray that thou maiſt loſe:
may not with the fortune thine:
, I will not with thy withes thriue:
r wins, on that ſide ſhall I loſe:
ſſe, before the match be plaid.
Lady, with me, with me thy fortune lies.
here where my fortune liues, there my life dies.
Coſen, goe draw our puiſance together,
n burn'd vp with inflaming wrath,
thoſe bear hath this condition:
hing can allay, nothing but bloud,
d and deereſt valued bloud of France.
Thy rage ſhall burne thee vp, & thou ſhalt turne
, ere our blood ſhall quench that fire:
thy ſelfe, thou art in ieoperdie.
o more then he that threats. To Armes let's hie.
Exeunt.

Scena Secunda.

ens, Exeunt ſome: Enter Baſtard with Auſtria's ad.

Now by my life, this day grows wondrous hot,
ny Deuill houers in the skie,
's downe miſchiefe. Auſtrias head lye there,
Enter Iohn, Arthur, Hubert.
ldip breathes.
Hubert, keepe this boy: Philip make vp,
er it ſtanyted in our Tent,
I feare.
My Lord I reſcued her,
oneſſe is in ſafety, feare you not:
y Liege, for very little paines
g this labor to an happy end. Exit.

, excurſions, Retreat. Enter Iohn, Eleanor, Arthur
d, Hubert, Lords.

So ſhall it be: your Grace ſhall ſtay behinde ſly guarded: Coſen, looke not ſad, oue loues thee, and thy Vnkle will be to thee, as thy father was.
O this will make my mother die with griefe.
Coſen away for England, haſte before,
ur comming ſee thou ſhake the bags
ling Abbots, impriſoned angells ſame: the fat ribs of peace
he hungry now be fed vpon:
Commiſſion in his vtmoſt force.
Bell, Booke, & Candle, ſhall not driue me back,
old and ſilver backs me to come on.
our higheneſſe: Grandame, I will pray.
I remember to be holy) faire ſafety: ſo I kiſſe your hand.
Farewell gentle Coſen.

Iohn. Coz, farewell.
Ele. Come hether little kinſman, harke, a worde.
Iohn. Come hether Hubert. O my gentle Hubert,
We owe thee much: within this wall of fleſh
There is a ſoule counts thee her Creditor,
And with aduantage meanes to pay thy loue:
And my good friend, thy voluntary oath
Liues in this boſome, deerely cheriſhed.
Giue me thy hand, I had a thing to ſay,
But I will fit it with ſome better time.
By heauen Hubert, I am almoſt aſham'd
To ſay what good reſpect I haue of thee.
Hub. I am much bounden to your Maieſty.
Iohn. Good friend, thou haſt no cauſe to ſay ſo yet,
But thou ſhalt haue: and creepe time neere ſo ſlow,
Yet it ſhall come, for me to doe thee good.
I had a thing to ſay, but let it goe:
The Sunne is in the heauen, and the proud day,
Attended with the pleaſures of the world,
Is all too wanton, and too full of gawdes
To giue me audience: If the mid-night bell
Did with his iron tongue, and braſſen mouth
Sound on into the drowzie race of night:
If this ſame were a Church-yard where we ſtand,
And thou poſſeſſed with a thouſand wrongs:
Or if that ſurly ſpirit melancholy
Had bak'd thy bloud, and made it heauy, thicke,
Which elſe runnes tickling vp and downe the veines,
Making that idiot laughter keepe mens eyes,
And ſtraine their cheekes to idle merriment,
A paſſion hatefull to my purpoſes:
Or if that thou couldſt ſee me without eyes,
Heare me without thine eares, and make reply
Without a tongue, vſing conceit alone,
Without eyes, eares, and harmefull ſound of words:
Then, in deſpight of brooded watchfull day,
I would into thy boſome poure my thoughts:
But (ah) I will not, yet I loue thee well,
And by my troth I thinke thou lou'ſt me well.
Hub. So well, that what you bid me vndertake,
Though that my death were adiunct to my Act,
By heauen I would doe it.
Iohn. Doe not I know thou would'ſt?
Good Hubert, Hubert, Hubert throw thine eye
On yon young boy: Ile tell thee what my friend,
He is a very ſerpent in my way,
And whereſoere this foot of mine doth tread,
He lies before me: doſt thou vnderſtand me?
Thou art his keeper.
Hub. And Ile keepe him ſo,
That he ſhall not offend your Maieſty.
Iohn. Death.
Hub. My Lord.
Iohn. A Graue.
Hub. He ſhall not liue.
Iohn. Enough.
I could be merry now, Hubert, I loue thee.
Well, Ile not ſay what I intend for thee:
Remember: Madam, Fare you well.
Ile ſend thoſe powers o're to your Maieſty.
Ele. My bleſſing goe with thee.
Iohn. For England Coſen, goe.
Hubert ſhall be your man, attend on you
With al true duetie: On toward Calice, hoa.
Exeunt.

Scena

Scæna Tertia.

Enter France, Dolphin, Pandulpho, Attendants.

Fra. So by a roaring Tempeſt on the flood,
A whoale Armado of conuicted ſaile
Is ſcattered and diſ-ioyn'd from fellowſhip.
Pand. Courage and comfort, all ſhall yet goe well.
Fra. What can goe well, when we haue runne ſo ill?
Are we not beaten? Is not Angiers loſt?
Arthur tane priſoner? diuers deere friends ſlaine?
And bloody England into England gone,
Ore-bearing interruption ſpight of France?
Dol. What he hath won, that hath he fortified:
So hot a ſpeed, with ſuch aduice diſpos'd,
Such temperate order in ſo fierce a cauſe,
Doth want example: who hath read, or heard
Of any kindred-action like to this?
Fra. Well could I beare that England had this praiſe,
So we could finde ſome patterne of our ſhame:
Enter Conſtance.
Looke who comes heere? a graue vnto a ſoule,
Holding th'eternall ſpirit againſt her will,
In the vilde priſon of afflicted breath:
I prethee Lady goe away with me.
Con. Lo, now: now ſee the iſſue of your peace.
Fra. Patience good Lady, comfort gentle Conſtance.
Con. No, I defie all Counſell, all redreſſe.
But that which ends all counſell, true Redreſſe:
Death, death, O amiable, louely death,
Thou odoriferous ſtench: ſound rottennoſſe,
Ariſe forth from the couch of laſting night,
Thou hate and terror to proſperitie,
And I will kiſſe thy deteſtable bones,
And put my eye-balls in thy vaultie browes,
And ring theſe fingers with thy houſhold wormes,
And ſtop thus gap of breath with fulſome duſt,
And be a Carrion Monſter like thy ſelfe:
Come, grin on me, and I will thinke thou ſmil'ſt,
And buſſe thee as thy wife: Miſeries Loue,
O come to me.
Fra. O faire affliction, peace.
Con. No, no, I will not, hauing breath to cry:
O that my tongue were in the thunders mouth,
Then with a paſſion would I ſhake the world,
And rowze from ſleepe that fell Anatomy
Which cannot heare a Ladies feeble voyce,
Which ſcornes a moderne Inuocation.
Pand. Lady, you vtter madneſſe, and not ſorrow.
Con. Thou art holy to belye me ſo,
I am not mad: this haire I teare is mine,
My name is Conſtance, I was Geffreyes wife,
Yong Arthur is my ſonne, and he is loſt:
I am not mad, I would to heauen I were,
For then 'tis like I ſhould forget my ſelfe:
O, if I could, what griefe ſhould I forget?
Preach ſome Philoſophy to make me mad,
And thou ſhalt be Canoniz'd (Cardinall,)
For, being not mad, but ſenſible of greefe,
My reaſonable part produces reaſon
How I may be deliuer'd of theſe woes,
And teaches mee to kill or hang my ſelfe:
If I were mad, I ſhould forget my ſonne,
Or madly thinke a babe of clowts were he;
I am not mad: too well, too well I feele
The different plague of each calamitie.
Fra. Binde vp thoſe treſſes: O what loue I note
In the faire multitude of thoſe her haires;
Where but by chance a ſiluer drop hath falne,
Euen to that drop ten thouſand wiery friends
Doe glew themſelues in ſociable griefe,
Like true, inſeparable, faithfull loues,
Sticking together in calamitie.
Con. To England, if you will.
Fra. Binde vp your haires.
Con. Yes that I will: and wherefore will I do it?
I tore them from their bonds, and cride aloud,
O, that theſe hands could ſo redeeme my ſonne
As they haue giuen theſe hayres their liberty:
But now I enuie at their libertie,
And will againe commit them to their bonds,
Becauſe my poore childe is a priſoner.
And Father Cardinall, I haue heard you ſay
That we ſhall ſee and know our friends in heauen:
If that be true, I ſhall ſee my boy againe;
For ſince the birth of Cayne, the firſt male-childe
To him that did but yeſterday ſuſpire,
There was not ſuch a gracious creature borne:
But now will Canker-ſorrow eat my bud
And chaſe the native beauty from his cheeke,
And he will looke as hollow as a Ghoſt,
As dim and meager as an Agues fitte,
And ſo he'll dye: and riſing ſo againe,
When I ſhall meet him in the Court of heauen
I ſhall not know him: therefore neuer, neuer
Muſt I behold my pretty Arthur more.
Pand. You hold too heynous a reſpect of greefe.
Conſt. He talkes to me, that neuer had a ſonne.
Fra. You are as fond of greefe, as of your childe.
Con. Greefe fits the roome vp of my abſent childe:
Lies in his bed, walkes vp and downe with me,
Puts on his pretty lookes, repeats his words,
Remembers me of all his gracious parts,
Stuffes out his vacant garments with his forme:
Then, haue I reaſon to be fond of griefe?
Fare you well: had you ſuch a loſſe as I,
I could giue better comfort then you doe.
I will not keepe this forme vpon my head,
When there is ſuch diſorder in my witte:
O Lord, my boy, my Arthur, my faire ſonne,
My life, my ioy, my food, my all the world:
My widow-comfort, and my ſorrowes cure. Exit.
Fra. I feare ſome out-rage, and I'le follow her. Exit.
Dol. There's nothing in this world can make me ioy,
Life is as tedious as a twice-told tale,
Vexing the dull eare of a drowſie man;
And bitter ſhame hath ſpoyl'd the ſweet words taſte,
That it yeelds nought but ſhame and bitternes.
Pand. Before the curing of a ſtrong diſeaſe
Euen in the inſtant of repaire and health,
The fit is ſtrongeſt: Euils that take leaue
On their departure, moſt of all ſhew euill:
What haue you loſt by loſing of this day?
Dol. All dayes of glory, ioy, and happineſſe.
Pan. If you had won it, certainely you had.
No, no: when Fortune meanes to men moſt good,
She lookes vpon them with a threatning eye:
'Tis ſtrange to thinke how much King Iohn hath loſt
In this which he accounts ſo clearely wonne:

Are

you grieu'd that Arthur is his priſoner?
As heartily as he is glad he hath him.
Your minde is all as youthfull as your blood.
are me ſpeake with a propheticke ſpirit:
the breath of what I meane to ſpeake,
e each duſt, each ſtraw, each little rub
e path which ſhall directly lead to Englands Throne. And therefore marke: ſeiz'd Arthur, and it cannot be,
lies warme life playes in that infants veines
plac'd Iohn ſhould entertaine an houre, ze, nay one quiet breath of reſt.
ſnatch'd with an vnruly hand, s boyſterouſly maintain'd as gain'd.
hat ſtands vpon a ſlipp'ry place,
ce of no vilde hold to ſtay him vp:
may ſtand, then Arthur needs muſt fall,
for it cannot be but ſo.
But what ſhall I gaine by yong Arthurs fall?
You in the right of Lady Blanch your wife,
make all the claime that Arthur did.
And looſe it, life and all, as Arthur did.
How green you are, and freſh in this old world?
you plots: the times conſpire with you.
ſt ſteepes his ſafetie in true blood,
e but bloodie ſafety, and vntrue.
ſo euilly borne ſhall coole the hearts people, and freeze vp their zeale, ſo ſmall aduantage ſhall ſtep forth his reigne, but they will cheriſh it ll exhalation in the skie,
of Nature, no diſtempter'd day,
nne winde, no cuſtomed euent,
will plucke away his naturall cauſe,
them Meteors, prodigies, and ſignes,
es, preſages, and tongues of heauen,
nnouncing vengeance vpon Iohn.
May be he will not touch yong Arthurs life,
himſelfe ſafe in his priſonment.
O Sir, when he ſhall heare of your approach,
g Arthur be not gone already,
ſt newes he dies: and then the hearts people ſhall reuolt from him,
the lippes of vnacquainted change,
ſtrong matter of reuolt, and wrath bloody fingers ends of Iohn.
es I ſee this hurley all on foot;
hat better matter breeds for you,
ue nam'd. The Baſtard Falconbridge
England ranſacking the Church,
; Charity: If but a dozen French re in Armes, they would be as a Call ten thouſand Engliſh to their ſide;
tle ſnow, tumbled about,
omes a Mountaine. O noble Dolphine, ne to the King, 'tis wonderfull, y be wrought out of their diſcontent,
their ſoules are topfull of offence,
nd go; I will whet on the King.
ſtrong reaſons makes ſtrange actions: let vs go,
I, the King will not ſay no. Exeunt.

Actus Quartus, Scæna prima.

Enter Hubert and Executioners.

Hub. Heate me theſe Irons hot, and looke thou ſtand
Within the Arras: when I ſtrike my foot
Vpon the boſome of the ground, ruſh forth
And binde the boy, which you ſhall finde with me
Faſt to the chaire: be heedfull: hence, and watch.
Exec. I hope your warrant will beare out the deed.
Hub. Vncleanly ſcruples feare not you: looke to't.
Yong Lad come forth; I haue to ſay with you.

Enter Arthur.

Ar. Good morrow Hubert.
Hub. Good morrow, little Prince.
Ar. As little Prince, having ſo great a Title
To be more Prince, as may be: you are ſad.
Hub. Indeed I haue beene merrier.
Art. Mercie on me:
Me thinkes no body ſhould be ſad but I:
Yet I remember, when I was in France,
Yong Gentlemen would be as ſad as night
Onely for wantonneſſe: by my Chriſtendome,
So I were out of priſon, and kept Sheepe
I ſhould be as merry as the day is long:
And ſo I would be heere, but that I doubt
My Vnckle practiſes more harme to me:
He is affraid of me, and I of him:
Is it my fault, that I was Geffreyes ſonne?
No in deede is't not: and I would to heauen
I were your ſonne, ſo you would loue me, Hubert.
Hub. If I talke to him, with his innocent prate
He will awake my mercie, which lies dead:
Therefore I will be ſodaine, and diſpatch.
Ar. Are you ſicke Hubert? you looke pale to day,
In ſooth I would you were a little ſicke,
That I might ſit all night, and watch with you.
I warrant I loue you more then you do me.
Hub. His words do take poſſeſſion of my boſome.
Reade heere yong Arthur. How now foolliſh rheume?
Turning diſpitious torture out of doore?
I muſt be breefe, leaſt reſolution drop
Out at mine eyes, in tender womaniſh teares.
Can you not reade it? Is it not faire writ?
Ar. Too faire by Hubert, for ſo foule effect.
Muſt you with hot Irons, burne out both mine eyes?
Hub. Yong Boy, I muſt.
Art. And will you?
Hub. And I will.
Art. Haue you the heart? When your head did but ake,
I knit my hand-kercher about your browes
(The beſt I had, a Princeſſe wrought it me)
And I did neuer aske it you againe:
And with my hand, at midnight held your head;
And like the watchfull minutes, to the houre,
Still and anon cheer'd vp the heauy time;
Saying, what lacke you? and where lies your greefe?
Or what good loue may I performe for you?
Many a poore mans ſonne would haue lyen ſtill,
And ner haue ſpoke a louing word to you:
But you, at your ſicke ſeruice had a Prince:
Nay, you may thinke my loue was craftie loue,
And call it cunning. Do, and if you will,

If heauen be pleas'd that you muſt vſe me ill,
Why then you muſt. Will you put out mine eyes.
Theſe eyes, that neuer did, nor neuer ſhall
So much as frowne on you.
Hub. I haue ſworne to do it:
And with hot Irons muſt I burne them out.
Ar. Ah, none but in this Iron Age, would do it
The Iron of it ſelfe, though heate red hot
Approaching neere theſe eyes, would drinke my teares,
And quench this fierie indignation,
Euen in the matter of mine innocence:
Nay, after that, conſume away in ruſt,
But for containing fire to harme mine eye.
Are you more ſtubborne-hard, then hammer'd Iron?
And if an Angell ſhould haue come to me,
And told me Hubert ſhould put out mine eyes,
I would not haue beleeu'd him: no tongue but Hubert's.
Hub. Come forth: Do as I bid you do.
Art. O ſaue me Hubert, ſaue me: my eyes are out
Euen with the fierce lookes of theſe bloody men.
Hub. Giue me the Iron I ſay, and binde him heere.
Art. Alas, what needs you be ſo boiſtrous rough?
I will not ſtruggle, I will ſtand ſtone ſtill.
For heauen ſake Hubert let me not be bound:
Nay heare me Hubert, driue theſe men away,
And I will ſit as quiet as a Lambe
I will not ſtirre, nor winch, nor ſpeake a word,
Nor looke vpon the Iron angerly:
Thruſt but theſe men away, and Ile forgiue you,
What euer torment you do put me too.
Hub. Go ſtand within: let me alone with him.
Exec. I am beſt pleas'd to be from ſuch a deede.
Art. Alas, I then haue chid away my friend,
He hath a ſterne looke, but a gentle heart:
Let him come backe, that his compaſſion may
Giue life to yours.
Hub. Come (Boy) prepare your ſelfe.
Art. Is there no remedie?
Hub. None, but to loſe your eyes.
Art. O heauen: that there were but a moth in yours,
A graine, a duſt, a gnat, a wandering haire,
Any annoyance in that precious ſenſe:
Then feeling what ſmall things are boyſterous there,
Your vilde intent muſt needs ſeeme horrible.
Hub. Is this your promiſe? Go too, hold your toong.
Art. Hubert, the vtterance of a brace of tongues,
Muſt needes want pleading for a paire of eyes:
Let me not hold my tongue: let me not Hubert,
Or Hubert, if you will cut out my tongue,
So I may keepe mine eyes. O ſpare mine eyes,
Though to no vſe, but ſtill to looke on you.
Lo, by my troth, the Inſtrument is cold,
And would not harme me.
Hub. I can heate it, Boy.
Art. No, in good ſooth: the fire is dead with griefe,
Being create for comfort, to be vs'd
In vndeſerued extreames: See elſe your ſelfe,
There is no malice in this burning cole,
The breath of heauen, hath blowne his ſpirit out,
And ſtrew'd repentant aſhes on his head.
Hub. But with my breath I can reuiue it Boy.
Art. And if you do, you will but make it bluſh,
And glow with ſhame of your proceedings, Hubert:
Nay, it perchance will ſparkle in your eyes:
And like a dogge that is compell'd to fight,
Snatch at his Maſter that doth tarre him on.
All things that you ſhould vſe to do me wrong
Deny their office: onely you do lacke
That mercie, which fierce fire, and Iron extends,
Creatures of note for mercy, lacking vſes.
Hub. Well, ſee to liue: I will not touch thine eye
For all the Treaſure that thine Vncle owes,
Yet am I ſworne, and I did purpoſe, Boy,
With this ſame very Iron, to burne them out.
Art. O now you looke like Hubert. All this while
You were diſguis'd.
Hub. Peace: no more. Adieu,
Your Vncle muſt not know but you are dead.
Ile fill theſe dogged Spies with falſe reports:
And, pretty childe, ſleepe doubtleſſe, and ſecure,
That Hubert for the wealth of all the world,
Will not offend thee.
Art. O heauen! I thanke you Hubert.
Hub. Silence, no more; go cloſely in with me,
Much danger do I vndergo for thee. Exeunt

Scena Secunda.

Enter Iohn, Pembroke, Salisbury, and other Lordes.

Iohn. Heere once againe we ſit: once againſt crown'd
And look'd vpon, I hope, with chearefull eyes.
Pem This once again (but that your Highnes pleas'd)
Was once ſuperfluous: you were Crown'd before,
And that high Royalty was nere pluck'd off:
The faiths of men, nere ſtained with reuolt:
Freſh expectation troubled not the Land
With any long'd-for-change, or better State.
Sal. Therefore, to be poſſeſs'd with double pompe,
To guard a Title, that was rich before;
To gilde refined Gold, to paint the Lilly;
To throw a perfume on the Violet,
To ſmooth the yce, or adde another hew
Vnto the Raine-bow; or with Taper-light
To ſeeke the beauteous eye of heauen to garniſh,
Is waſtefull, and ridiculous exceſſe.
Pem. But that your Royall pleaſure muſt be done,
This actte, is as an ancient tale new told,
And, in the laſt repeating, troubleſome,
Being vrged at a time vnſeaſonable.
Sal. In this the Antickе, and well noted face
Of plaine old forme, is much diſfigured,
And like a ſhifted winde vnto a ſaile,
It makes the courſe of thoughts to fetch about,
Startles, and frights conſideration:
Makes ſound opinion ſicke, and truth ſuſpected,
For putting on ſo new a faſhion'd robe.
Pem. When Workemen ſtriue to do better then well,
They do confound their skill in couetouſneſſe,
And oftentimes excuſing of a faule,
Doth make the fault the worſe by th'excuſe:
As patches ſet vpon a little breach,
Diſcredite more in hiding of the fault,
Then did the fault before it was ſo patch'd.
Sal. To this effect, before you were new crown'd
We breach'd our Councell: but it pleas'd your Highnes
To ouer-beare it, and we are all well pleas'd,
Since all, and every part of what we would Doth make a ſtand, at what your Higheneſſe will.

Iohn.

Some reasons of this double Corronation offest you with, and thinke them strong, re, more strong, then lesser is my feare due you with: Meane time, but aske ou would haue reform'd, that is not well, ll shall you perceiue, how willingly
ith heare, and grant you your requests.
Then I, as one that am the tongue of these
d the purposes of all their hearts, my selfe, and them: but chiefe of all esy: for the which, my selfe and them ir best studies, heartily request nchisement of Arthur, whose restraint ue the murmuring lips of discontent te into this dangerous argument.
n rest you haue, in right you hold,
m your feares, which (as they say) attend pes of wrong, should moue you to mew vp ider kinsman, and to choake his dayes barous ignorance, and deny his youth dvantage of good exercise, times enemies may not haue this occasion: let it be our suite, haue bid vs aske his libertie,
or our goods, we do no further aske, hereupon our weale on you depending,
your weale: he haue his liberty.

Enter Hubert.

Let it be so: I do commit his youth direction: Hubert, what newes with you?
This is the man should do the bloody deed:
'd his warrant to a friend of mine,
o of a wicked heynous fault his eye: that close aspect of his,
the mood of a much troubled brest,
fearefully beleeue 'tis done,
fear'd he had a charge to do.
e colour of the King doth come, and go his purpose and his conscience, alds 'twixt two dreadfull battailes set:
on is so ripe, it needs must breake.
And when it breakes, I feare will issue thence corruption of a sweet childes death.
We cannot hold mortalities strong hand.
rds, although my will to giue, is liuing,
which you demand is gone, and dead.
Arthur is deceas'd to night.
ndeed me feat'd his sickneſſe was past cure.
Indeed we heard how neere his death he was,
e childe himselfe felt he was sicke:
I be answer'd either heere, or hence.
Why do you bend such solemne browes on me?
ou I beare the Sheeres of destiny?
mmandement on the pulse of life?
t is apparant foule-play, and 'tis shame
nneſſe should so grossely offer it;
it in your game, and so farewell.
Stay yet (Lord Salisbury) Ile go with thee,
th inheritance of this poore childe,
kingdome of a forced graue.
ad which wand'red the breath of all this Ile,
t of it doth hold; bad world the while:
I must be thus borne, this will breake out
r sorrowes, and ere long I doubt. Exeunt
ey burn in indignation: I repent: Enter Mef.
no sure foundation set on blood:
No certaine life atchieu'd by others death:
A fearefull eye thou hast. Where is that blood,
That I haue seene inhabite in those cheekes?
So foule a skie, cleeres not without a storme,
Poure downe thy weather: how goes all in France?

Mef. From France to England, neuer such a powre
For any forraigne preparation,
Was leuied in the body of a land.
The Copie of your speede is learn'd by them:
For when you should be told they do prepare,
The tydings comes, that they are all arriu'd.

Iohn. Oh where hath our Intelligence bin drunke?
Where hath it slept? Where is my Mothers care?
That such an Army could be drawne in France,
And she not heare of it?

Mef. My Liege, her eare
Is stopt with dust: the first of Aprill di'de
Your noble mother; and as I heare, my Lord,
The Lady Constance in a frenzie di'de
Three dayes before: but this from Rumors tongue
I idely heard: if true, or false I know not.

Iohn. With-hold thy speed, dreadfull Occasion:
O make a league with me, 'till I haue pleas'd
My discontented Peeres. What? Mother dead?
How wildely then walkes my Estate in France?
Vnder whose conduct came those powres of France,
That thou for truth giu'st out are landed heere?

Mef. Vnder the Dolphin.

Enter Bastard and Peter of Pomfret.

Iohn. Thou hast made me giddy
With these ill tydings: Now? What saies the world
To your proceedings? Do not seeke to stuffe
My head with more ill newes: for it is full.

Bast. But if you be a-feard to heare the worst,
Then let the worst vn-heard, fall on your head.

Iohn. Beare with me Cosen, for I was amaz'd
Vnder the tide; but now I breath againe
Aloft the flood, and can giue audience
To any tongue, speake it of what it will.

Bast. How I haue sped among the Clergy men,
The summes I haue collected shall expresse:
But as I trauail'd hither through the land,
I finde the people strangely fantasied,
Possest with rumors, full of idle dreames:
Not knowing what they feare, but full of feare.
And here's a Prophet that I brought with me
From forth the streets of Pomfret, whom I found
With many hundreds treading on his heeles:
To whom he sung in rude harsh sounding rimes,
That ere the next Ascension day at noone,
Your Highnes should deliuer vp your Crowne.

Iohn. Thou idle Dreamer, wherefore didst thou so?

Pet. Fore-knowing that the truth will fall out so.

Iohn. Hubert, away with him: imprison him,
And on that day at noone, whereon he sayes
I shall yeeld vp my Crowne, let him be hang'd.
Deliuer him to safety, and returne,
For I must vse thee. O my gentle Cosen,
Hear'st thou the newes abroad, who are arriu'd?

Bast. The French (my Lord) mens mouths are ful of it:
Besides I met Lord Bigot, and Lord Salisburie
With eyes as red as new enkindled fire,
And others more, going to seeke the graue
Of Arthur, whom they say is kill'd to night, on your (suggestion.

Iohn. Gentle kinsman, go
And thrust thy selfe into their Companies,

I haue a way to winne their loues againe:
Bring them before me.
Baſt. I will ſeeke them out.
John. Nay, but make haſte: the better ſoote before.
O, let me haue no ſubiect enemies,
When aduerſe Forreyners affright my Townes
With dreadfull pompe of ſtout inuaſion,
Be Mercurie, ſet feathers to thy heeles,
And flye (like thought) from them, to me againe.
Baſt. The ſpirit of the time ſhall teach me ſpeed. Exit
Iohn. Spoke like a ſprightfull Noble Gentleman.
Go after him: for he perhaps ſhall neede
Some Meſſenger betwixt me, and the Peeres,
And be thou hee.
Meſ. With all my heart, my Liege.
Iohn. My mother dead?

Enter Hubert.

Hub. My Lord, they ſay fiue Moones were ſeene to night:
Foure fixed, and the fift did whirle about
The other foure, in wondrous motion.
Iohn. Flue Moones?
Hub. Old men, and Beldames, in the ſtreets
Do propheſie vpon it dangerouſly:
Yong Arthurs death is common in their mouths,
And when they talke of him, they ſhake their heads,
And whiſper one another in the eare.
And he that ſpeakes, doth gripe the hearers wriſt,
Whilſt he that heares, makes fearefull action
With wrinkled browes, with nods, with rolling eyes.
I ſaw a Smith ſtand with his hammer (thus)
The whilſt his Iron did on the Anuile coole,
With open mouth ſwallowing a Taylors newes,
Who with his Sheeres, and Meaſure in his hand,
Standing on ſlippers, which his nimble haſte
Had falſely thruſt vpon contrary feete,
Told of a many thouſand warlike French,
That were embattailed, and rank'd in Kent.
Another leane, vnwaſh'd Artificer,
Cuts off his tale, and talkes of Arthurs death.
Io. Why ſeek'ſt thou to poſſeſſe me with theſe feares?
Why vrgeſt thou ſo oft yong Arthurs death?
Thy hand hath murdred him. I had a mighty cauſe
To wiſh him dead, but thou hadſt none to kill him.
Hub. No had (my Lord) why did you not prouoke me?
Iohn. It is the curſe of Kings, to be attended
By ſlaues, that take their humors for a warrant,
To breake within the bloody houſe of life,
And on the winking of Authoritie
To vnderſtand a Law; to know the meaning
Of dangerous Maieſty, when perchance it frowneth
More vpon humor, then aduis'd reſpect.
Hub. Heere is your hand and Seale for what I did.
Iob. Oh, when the laſt accompt twixt heauen & earth
Is to be made, then ſhall this hand and Seale
Witneſſe againſt vs to damnation.
How oft the ſight of meanes to do ill deeds,
Make deeds ill done? Had'ſt not thou beene by
A fellow by the hand of Nature mark'd,
Quoted, and ſign'd to doo a deede of ſhame,
This murther had not come into my minde.
But taking note of thy abhorr'd Aſpect,
Finding thee fit for bloody villanie:
Apt, liable to be employ'd in danger,
I ſtaintly broke with thee of Arthurs death.
And thou, to be endeered to a King,
Made it no conſcience to deſtroy a Prince.
Hub. My Lord.
Iob. Had'ſt thou but ſhooke thy head, or made a pauſe
When I ſpake darkely, what I purpoſed:
Or turn'd an eye of doubt vpon my face;
As bid me tell my tale in expreſſe words:
Deepe ſhame had ſtruck me dumbe, made me break off
And thoſe thy feares, might haue wrought feares in me
But, thou didſt vnderſtand me by my ſignes,
And didſt in ſignes againe parley with ſinne.
Yea, without ſtop, didſt let thy heart conſent,
And conſequently, thy rude hand to acte
The deed, which both our tongues held vilde to name.
Out of my ſight, and neuer ſee me more:
My Nobles leaue me, and my State is braued,
Euen at my gates, with rankes of forreigne powers:
Nay, in the body of this fleſhly Land,
This kingdome, this Confine of blood, and breathe
Hoſtilitie, and ciuill tumult reignes
Betweene my conſcience, and my Coſins death.
Hub. Arme you againſt your other enemies:
Ile make a peace betweene your ſoule, and you.
Yong Arthur is aliue. This hand of mine
Is yet a maiden, and an innocent hand.
Not painted with the Crimſon ſpots of blood.
Within this boſome, neuer entred yet
The dreadfull motion of a murderous thought,
And you haue ſlander d Nature in my forme,
Which howſoeuer rude exteriorly,
Is yet the couer of a fayrer minde,
Then to be butcher of an innocent childe.
Iohn. Doth Arthur liue? O haſt thee to the Peeres,
Throw this report on their incenſed rage,
And make them tame to their obedience.
Forgiue the Comment that my paſſion made
Vpon thy feature, for my rage was blinde,
And foule imaginarie eyes of blood
Preſented thee more hideous then thou art.
Oh, anſwer not; but to my Cloſſet bring
The angry Lords, with all expedient haſt,
I coniure thee but ſlowly: run more faſt. Exeunt

Scæna Tertia.

Enter Arthur on the walles.

Ar. The Wall is high, and yet will I leape downe.
Good ground be pittifull, and hurt me not:
There's few or none do know me, if they did,
This Ship-boyes ſemblance hath diſguis'd me quite.
I am afraide, and yet Ile venture it.
If I get downe, and do not breake my limbes,
Ile finde a thouſand ſhifts to get away;
As good to dye and go; as die, and ſtay.
Oh me, my Vnckles ſpirit is in theſe ſtones,
Heauen take my ſoule, and England keep my bones. Dies

Enter Pembroke, Salisbury, & Bigot.

Sal. Lords, I will meet him at S. Edmundsbury.
It is our ſafeſtie, and we muſt embrace
This gentle offer of the perilous time.
Pem. Who brought that Letter from the Cardinall?
Sal. The Count Melune, a Noble Lord of France
Whoſe priuate with me of the Dolphines loue,
Is much more generall, then theſe lines import.
Big.

morrow morning let vs meete him then.
rther then set forward, for 'twill be ayes iourney (Lords) or ere we meete.
Enter Bastard.
e more to day well met, distemper'd Lords,
y me requests your presence straight.
king hath dispossest himselfe of vs,
lyne his thin-beftained cloake
re Honors: not attend the foote
the print of blood where ere it walkes tell him so: we know the worst.
hat ere you thinke, good words I thinke ere best.
greefes, and not our manners reason now
there is little reason in your greefe.
were reason you had manners now.
ir, impatience hath his priuiledge.
true, to hurt his master, no man else.
is the prison: What is he lyes heere?
eh, made proud with pure & princely beuty.
d not a hole to hide this deede.
ther, as hating what himselfe hath done,
pen to vice on reuenge.
hen he doom'd this Beautie to a graue,
precious Princely, for a graue.
Richard, what thinke you? you haue beheld,
read, or heard, or could you thinke?
most thinke, although you see,
see? Could thought, without this obiect nother? This is the very top,
, the Creft: or Creft vnto the Creft
Armes: This is the bloodiest shame,
Sauagery, the vildest stroke
all-ey'd wrath, or staring rage
the teares of soft remorse.
murthers past, do stand excus'd in this:
ole, and so vnmatcheable, hal nesse, a pitie,
obegotten sinne of times;
deadly blood-shed, but a iest,
this heynous spectacle.
a damned, and a bloody worke,
fashion of a heauy hand,
he worke of any hand.
it be the worke of any hand?
ade of light, what would ensue
reful worke of Huberts hand,
, and the purpose of the king:
obedience I forbid my soule,
fore this ruine of sweete life,
ng to his breathlesse Excellence of a Vow, a holy Vow:
e the pleasures of the world,
infected with delight,
nt with Ease, and Idlenesse,
a glory to this hand,
the worship of Reuenge.
Our soules religiously confirme thy words.
Enter Hubert.
rds, I am hot with haste, in seeking you,
lime, the king hath sent for you.
e is bold, and blushes not at death,
ence! will not, get thee gone. (the Law?
no villaine. Sal. Must I rob
r sword is bright sir, put it vp againe.
till I sheath it in a murtherers skin.

Hub. Stand backe Lord Salsbury, stand backe I say:
By heauen, I thinke my sword's as sharpe as yours,
I would not haue you (Lord) forget your selfe,
Nor tempt the danger of my true defence;
Least I, by marking of your rage, forget your Worth, your Greatnesse, and Nobility.
Big. Out dunghill: dar'st thou braue a Nobleman?
Hub. Not for my life: But yet I dare defend
My innocent life against an Emperor.
Sal. Thou art a Murtherer.
Hub. Do not proue me so:
Yet I am none. Whose tongue so ere speakes false,
Not truely speakes: who speakes not truly, Lies.
Pem. Cut him to peeces.
Bast. Keepe the peace, I say.
Sal. Stand by, or I shall gaul you Faulconbridge.
Bast. Thou wert better gaul the diuell Salsbury.
If thou but frowne on me, or stirre thy foote,
Or teach thy hastie spleene to do me shame,
Ile strike thee dead. Put vp thy sword betime,
Or Ile so maule you, and your tosting-Iron,
That you shall thinke the diuell is come from hell.
Big. What wilt thou do, renowned Faulconbridge?
Second a Villaine, and a Murtherer?
Hub Lord Bigot, I am none.
Big. Who kill'd this Prince?
Hub. 'Tis not an houre since I left him well:
I honour'd him, I lou'd him, and will weepe
My date of life out, for his sweete liues losse.
Sal. Trust not those cunning waters of his eyes,
For villanie is not without such rheume,
And he, long traded in it, makes it seeme
Like Riuers of remorse and innocencie.
Away with me, all you whose soules abhorre
Th'vncleanly sauours of a Slaughter-house,
For I am stifled with this smell of sinne.
Big. Away, toward Burie, to the Dolphin there.
P. There tel the king, he may inquire vs out. Ex. Lords
Ba. Here's a good world: knew you of this faire work?
Beyond the infinite and boundlesse reach of mercie,
(If thou didst this deed of death) art y damn'd Hubert.
Hub Do but heare me sir.
Bast. Ha? Ile tell thee what.
Thou'rt damn'd as blacke, nay nothing is so blacke,
Thou art more deepe damn'd then Prince Lucifer:
There is not yet so vgly a fiend of hell
As thou shalt be, if thou didst kill this childe.
Hub. Vpon my soule.
Bast. If thou didst but consent
To this most cruell Act: do but dispaire,
And if thou want'st a Cord, the smallest thred
That euer Spider twisted from her wombe
Will serue to strangle thee: A rush will be a beame
To hang thee on. Or wouldst thou drowne thy selfe,
Put but a little water in a spoone,
And it shall be as all the Ocean,
Enough to stifle such a villaine vp.
I do suspect thee very grieuously.
Hub. If I in act, consent, or sinne of thought,
Be guiltie of the stealing that sweete breath
Which was embounded in this beauteous clay,
Let hell want paines enough to torture me:
I left him well.
Bast. Go, beare him in thine armes:
I am amaz'd me thinkes, and loose my way
Among the thornes, and dangers of this world

How eaſie doſt thou take all England vp,
From forth this morcell of dead Royaltie?
The life, the right, and truth of all this Realme
Is fled to heauen: and England now is left
To tug and ſcamble, and to part by th'teeth
The vn-owed intereſt of proud ſwelling State:
Now for the bare-pickt bone of Maieſty,
Doth dogged warre briſtle his angry creſt,
And ſnarleth in the gentle eyes of peace:
Now Powers from home, and diſcontents at home
Meet in one line: and vaſt confuſion waites
As doth a Rauen on a ſicke-faine beaſt,
The imminent decay of wreſted pompe.
Now happy he, whoſe cloake and center can Hold out this tempeſt. Beare away that childe,
And follow me with ſpeed: Ile to the King:
A thouſand buſineſſes are briefe in hand,
And heauen it ſelfe doth frowne vpon the Land. Exit

Actus Quartus, Scæna prima.

Enter King Iohn and Pandolph, attendants,

K. Iohn. Thus haue I yeelded vp into your hand
The Circle of my glory.
Pan. Take againe
From this my hand, as holding of the Pope
Your Soueraigne greatneſſe and authoritie.
John. Now keep your holy word, go meet the French,
And from his holineſſe vſe all your power
To ſtop their marches 'fore we are enflam'd:
Our diſcontented Counties doe reuolt:
Our people quarrell with obedience,
Swearing Allegiance, and the loue of ſoule
To ſtranger blouds, to forren Royalty;
This inundation of miſtempred humour,
Reſts by you only to be qualified.
Then pauſe not: for the preſent time's ſo ſicke,
That preſent medicine muſt be miniſtred,
Or ouerthrow incureable enſues.
Pand. It was my breath that blew this Tempeſt vp.
Vpon your ſtubborne vſage of the Pope.
But ſince you are a gentle conuertite,
My tongue ſhall hush againe this ſtorme of warre,
And make faire weather in your bluſtring land:
On this Aſcenſion day, remember well,
Vpon your oath of ſeruice to the Pope,
Goe I to make the French lay downe their Armes. Exit
John. Is this Aſcenſion day: did not the Prophet Say, that before Aſcenſion day at noone,
My Crowne I ſhould giue off? euen ſo I haue:
I did ſuppoſe it ſhould be on conſtraint,
But (heau'n be thank'd) it is but voluntary.

Enter Baſtard.

Baſt. All Kent hath yeelded: nothing there holds out
But Douer Caſtle: London hath receiu'd
Like a kinde Hoſt, the Dolphin and his powers.
Your Nobles will not heare you, but are gone
To offer ſeruice to your enemy:
And wilde amazement hurries vp and downe
The little number of your doubtfull friends.
John. Would not my Lords returne to me againe
After they heard yong Arthur was aliue?
Baſt. They found him dead, and caſt into the ſtreet
An empty Caſket, where the Iewell of life
By ſome damn'd hand was rob'd, and tane away.
John. That villaine Hubert told me he did liue.
Baſt. So on my ſoule he did, for ought he knew
But wherefore doe you droope? why looke you ſad?
Be great in act, as you haue beene in thought:
Let not the world ſee feare and ſad diſtruſt
Gouerne the motion of a kinglye eye.
Be ſtirring as the time, be fire with fire,
Threaten the threatner, and out-face the brow
Of bragging horror: So ſhall inferior eyes
That borrow their behauiours from the great,
Grow great by your example, and put on
The dauntleſſe ſpirit of reſolution.
Away, and gliſter like the god of warre
When he intendeth to become the field:
Shew boldneſſe and aſpiring confidence:
What, ſhall they ſeeke the Lion in his denne,
And fright him there? and make him tremble there?
Oh let it not be ſaid: forrage, and runne
To meet diſpleaſure farther from the doores,
And grapple with him ere he come ſo nye.
John. The Legat of the Pope hath beene with me,
And I haue made a happy peace with him,
And he hath promis'd to diſmiſſe the Powres
Led by the Dolphin.
Baſt. Oh inglorious league:
Shall we vpon the footing of our land,
Send fayre-play-orders and make compriſmes,
Inſinuation, parley, and baſe truce
To Armes inuaſiue? Shall a beardleſſe boy,
A cockred-ſilken wanton braue our fields,
And fleſh his ſpirit in a warre-like ſoyle,
Mocking the ayre with colours idlely ſpred,
And finde no checke? Let vs my Liege to Armes:
Perchance the Cardinall cannot make your peace;
Or if he doe, let it at leaſt be ſaid
They ſaw we had a purpoſe of defence.
John. Haue thou the ordering of this preſent time.
Baſt. Away then with good courage: yet I know
Our Partie may well meet a prowder foe. Exeunt.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter (in Armes) Dolphin, Saliſbury, Melloone, Pembroke, Bigot, Souldiers.

Dol. My Lord Melloone, let this be copied out,
And keepe it ſafe for our remembrance:
Returne the preſident to theſe Lords againe,
That hauing our faire order written downe,
Both they and we, peruſing ore theſe notes
May know wherefore we tooke the Sacrament,
And keepe our faithes firme and inuiolable.
Sal. Vpon our ſides it neuer ſhall be broken.
And Noble Dolphin, albeit we ſweare
A voluntary zeale, and an vn-urg'd Faith
To your proceedings: yet beleeue me Prince,
I am not glad that ſuch a ſore of Time
Should ſeeke a plaſter by contemn'd reuolt,
And heale the inueterate Canker of one wound,

By

aking many: Oh it grieues my ſoule,
I muſt draw this meeſle from my ſide
e a widdow-maker: oh, and there re honourable reſcue, and defiance out vpon the name of Salsbury.
uch is the infection of the time,
for the heeliſh and Phyſicke of our right, annot deale but with the very hand
me Iniuſtice, and confuſed wrong:
is't not pitty, (oh my grieued friends)
we, the ſonnes and children of this Iſle, borne to ſee ſo ſad an houre as this,
rein we ſtep after a ſtranger, march her gentle boſom, and fill vp ſoemies rankes? I muſt withdraw, and weepe the ſpot of this inforced cauſe, race the Gentry of a Land remote,
ollow vnacquainted colours heere:
heere? O Nation that thou couldſt remoue, Nepruner Armes who clippeth thee about,
ld beare thee from the knowledge of thy ſelfe,
cripple thee into a Pagan ſhore,
re theſe two Chriſtian Armies might combine bloud of malice, in a vaine of league, ſort to ſpend it ſo vn-neighbourly.
ph. A noble temper doſt thou ſhew in this, great affections wraſtling in thy boſome make an earth-quake of Nobility:
what a noble combat haſt fought een compulſion, and a braue reſpect:
he wipe off this honourable dewe,
ſiluer'ly doth progreſſe on thy cheekes:
eart hath melted at a Ladies teares,
an ordinary ſoundation:
his effuſion of ſuch manly drops,
ſhowre, blowne vp by tempeſt of the ſoule,
les mine eyes, and makes me more amaz'd had I ſeene the vaultie top of heauen
'd quite ore with burning Meteors.
p thy brow (renowned Saluburie)
with a great heart heaue away this ſtorme:
mend theſe waters to thoſe baby-eyes
neuer ſaw the giant-world entag'd, met with Fortune, other then at feaſts,
warm of bloud, of mirth, of goſſipping:
e, come: for thou ſhalt thruſt thy hand as deepe
the purſe of rich proſperity ew himſelfe: ſo (Nobles) ſhall you all, knit your ſinewes to the ſtrength of mine.

Enter Pandulphe.

uen there, methinkes an Angell ſpake,
te where the holy Legate comes apace,
ue ye warrant from the hand of heauen,
on our actions ſet the name of right
holy breath.
nd. Haile noble Prince of France:
next is this: King Iohn hath reconcil'd ſelfe to Rome, his ſpirit is come in,
ſo ſtood out againſt the holy Church,
great Metropolis and Sea of Rome:
efore thy threatning Colours now winde vp,
ame the ſauage ſpirit of wilde warre,
like a Lion fettered vp at hand, y lie gently at the foot of peace,
be no further harmefull then in ſhewe.
nl. Your Grace ſhall pardon me, I will not backe:
I am too high-borne to be propertied
To be a ſecondary at controll,
Or uſefull ſeruing-man, and Inſtrument
To any Soueraigne State throughout the world.
Your breath firſt kindled the dead coale of warres,
Betweene this chaſtiſe'd kingdome and my ſelfe,
And brought in matter that ſhould feed this fire;
And now 'tis farre too huge to be blowne out
With that ſame weake winde which enkindled it
You taught me how to know the face of right,
Acquainted me with intereſt to this Land,
Yea, thruſt this enterprize into my heart,
And come ye now to tell me Iohn hath made
His peace with Rome? what is that peace to me?
I (by the honour of my marriage bed)
After yong Arthur, claime this Land for mine,
And now it is halfe conquer'd, muſt I backe,
Becauſe that Iohn hath made his peace with Rome?
Am I Romes ſlaue? What penny hath Rome borne?
What men prouided? What munition ſent
To vnder-prop this Action? Is't not I
That vnder-goe this charge? Who elſe but I,
And ſuch as to my claime are liable,
Sweat in this buſineſſe, and maintaine this warre?
Haue I not heard theſe Iſlanders ſhout out
Vive le Roy, as I haue bank'd their Towne?
Haue I not heere the beſt Cards for the game
To winne this eaſie match, plaid for a Crowne?
And ſhall I now giue ore the yeelded Set?
No, no, on my ſoule it neuer ſhall be ſaid.
Pand. You looke but on the out-ſide of this worke.
Dol. Out-ſide or in-ſide, I will not returne
Till my attempt ſo much be glorified,
As to my ample hope was promiſed,
Before I drew this gallant head of warre,
And cull'd theſe fiery ſpirits from the world
To out-looke Conqueſt, and to winne renowne
Euen in the iawes of danger, and of death
What luſty Trumpet thus doth ſummon vs?

Enter Baſtard.

Baſt. According to the faire-play of the world,
Let me haue audience: I am ſent to ſpeake:
My holy Lord of Millane, from the King
I come to learne how you haue dealt for him:
And, as you anſwer, I doe know the ſcope
And warrant limited vnto my tongue.
Pand. The Dolphin is too wilfull oppoſite
And will not temporize with my intreaties:
He flatly ſaies, hee'll not lay downe his Armes.
Baſt. By all the bloud that euer fury breath'd,
The youth ſaies well. Now heare our Engliſh King,
For thus his Royaltie doth ſpeake in me:
He is prepar'd, and reaſon to he ſhould,
This apiſh and vnmannerly approach,
This harneſs'd Maske, and vnaduiſed Reuell,
This vn-heard ſawcineſſe and boyiſh Troopes,
The King doth ſmile at, and is well prepar'd
To whip this dwarfiſh warre, this Pigmy Armes
From out the circle of his Territories.
That hand which had the ſtrength, euen at your dore,
To cudgell you, and make you take the hatch,
To diue like Buckets in concealed Welles,
To crowch in litter of your ſtable plankes,
To lye like pawnes, lock'd vp in cheſts and truncks,
To hug with ſwine, to ſeeke ſweet ſafety out
In vaults and priſons, and to thrill and ſhake,

Euen

Euen at the crying of your Nations crow,
Thinking this voyce an armed Englishman,
Shall that victorious hand be feebled heere,
That in your Chambers gaue you chastisement?
No: know the gallant Monarch is in Armes,
And like an Eagle, o're his ayerie towres,
To sowse annoyance that comes neere his Nest:
And you degenerate, you ingrate Reuolts,
you bloudy Nero's, ripping vp the wombe
Of your deere Mother-England: blush for shame:
For your owne Ladies, and pale-visag'd Maides,
Like Amazons, come tripping after drummes:
Their thimbles into armed Gantlets change,
Their Needl's to Lances, and their gentle hearts
To fierce and bloody inclination.

Dol. There end thy braue, and turn thy face in peace,
We grant thou canst out-scold vs: Fare thee well,
We hold our time too precious to be spent
With such a brabler.

Pem. Giue me leaue to speake.

Bast. No, I will speake.

Dol. We will attend to neyther:
Strike vp the drummes, and let the tongue of warre
Plead for our interest, and our being heere.

Bast. Indeede your drums being beaten, will cry out;
And so shall you, being beaten: Do but start
An eccho with the clamor of thy drumme,
And euen at hand, a drumme is readie brac'd,
That shall reuerberate all, as lowd as thine.
Sound but another, and another shall
(As lowd as thine) rattle the Welkins eare,
And mocke the deepe mouth'd Thunder: for at hand
(Not trusting to this halting Legate heere, Whom he hath vs'd rather for sport, then neede)
Is warlike Iohn: and in his fore-head sits
A bare-rib'd death, whose office is this day
To feast vpon whole thousands of the French.

Dol. Strike vp our drummes, to finde this danger out.

Bast. And thou shalt finde it (Dolphin) do not doubt

Exeunt.

Scena Tertia.

Alarums. Enter Iohn and Hubert.

Iohn. How goes the day with vs? oh tell me Hubert.

Hub. Badly I feare; how fares your Maiesty?

Iohn. This Feauer that hath troubled me so long,
Lyes heauie on me: oh, my heart is sicke.

Enter a Messenger.

Mes. My Lord: your valiant kinsman Falconbridge,
Desires your Maiestie to leaue the field,
And send him word by me, which way you go.

Iohn. Tell him toward Swinsted, to the Abbey there.

Mes. Be of good comfort: for the great supply,
That was expected by the Dolphin heere,
Are wrack'd three nights ago on Goodwin sands.
This newes was brought to Richard but euen now,
The French fight coldly, and retyre themselues.

Iohn. Aye me, this tyrant Feauer burnes mee vp,
And will not let me welcome this good newes.
Set on toward Swinsted: to my Litter straight,
Weaknesse possesseth me, and I am faint.

Exeunt.

Scena Quarta.

Enter Salisbury, Pembroke, and Bigot.

Sal. I did not thinke the King so stor'd with friends.

Pem. Vp once againe: put spirit in the French,
If they miscarry: we miscarry too.

Sal. That misbegotten diuell Falconbridge,
In spight of spight, alone vpholds the day.

Pem. They say King Iohn sore sick, hath left the field.

Enter Melun wounded.

Mel. Lead me to the Reuolts of England heere.

Sal. When we were happie, we had other names.

Pem. It is the Count Melunes.

Sal. Wounded to death.

Mel. Fly Noble English, you are bought and sold,
Vnthred the rude eye of Rebellion,
And welcome home againe discarded faith,
Seeke out King Iohn, and fall before his feete:
For if the French be Lords of this loud day,
He meanes to recompence the paines you take,
By cutting off your heads: Thus hath he sworne,
And I with him, and many moe with mee,
Vpon the Altar at S. Edmundsbury,
Euen on that Altar, where we swore to you
Deere Amity, and euerlasting loue.

Sal. May this be possible? May this be true?

Mel. Haue I not hideous death within my view,
Retaining but a quantity of life,
Which bleeds away, euen as a forme of waxe
Resolueth from his figure 'gainst the fire?
What in the world should make me now deceiue,
Since I must loose the vse of all deceite?
Why should I then be false, since it is true
That I must dye heere, and liue hence, by Truth?
I say againe, if Lewis do win the day,
He is forsworne, if ere those eyes of yours
Behold another day breake in the East:
But euen this night, whose blacke contagious breath
Already smoakes about the burning Crest
Of the old, feeble, and day-wearied Sunne,
Euen this ill night, your breathing shall expire,
Paying the fine of rated Treachery,
Euen with a treacherous fine of all your liues:
If Lewis, by your assistance win the day.
Commend me to one Hubert, with your King;
The loue of him, and this respect besides
(For that my Grandsire was an Englishman)
Awakes my Conscience to confesse all this.
In lieu whereof, I pray you beare me hence
From forth the noise and rumour of the Field;
Where I may thinke the remnant of my thoughts
In peace: and part this bodie and my soule
With contemplation, and deuout desires.

Sal. We do beleeue thee, and beshrew my soule,
But I do loue the fauour, and the forme
Of this most faire occasion, by the which
We will entreat the steps of damned flight,
And like a bated and retired Flood,
Leauing our rankenesse and irregular course,
Stoope lowe within those bounds we haue ore-look'd,
And calmely run on in obedience
Euen to our Ocean, to our great King Iohn.
My arme shall giue thee helpe to beare thee hence,

For

o ſee the cruell pangs of death
n thine eye. Away, my friends, new flight, ppie newneſſe, that intends old right. Exeunt

Scena Quinta.

Enter Dolphin, and his Traine.

The Sun of heauen(me thought)was loth to ſet
id,and made the Weſterne Welkin bluſh,
Engliſh meaſure backward their owne ground
Retire: Oh beauely came we off, with a volley of our needleſſe ſhot,
ich bloody toile, we bid good night.
non'd our ratt'ring colours cleerly vp,
the field, and almoſt Lords of it.
Enter a Meſſenger.
Where is my Prince, the Dolphin?
Heere: what newes?
The Count Melune is ſlaine: The Engliſh Lords perſwaſion, are againe falne off, our ſupply, which you haue wiſh'd ſo long,
ſt away, and ſunke on Goodwin ſands.
Ah foule, ſhrew'd newes. Beſhrew thy very ot thinke to be ſo ſad to night (hare hath made me. Who was he that ſaid ohn did flie an houre or two before mbling night did part our wearie powres?
Who euer ſpoke it, it is true my Lord.
Well: keepe good quarter, & good care to night,
y ſhall not be vp ſo ſoone as I,
the faire aduenture of to morrow. Exeunt

Scena Sexta.

Enter Baſtard and Hubert, ſeuerally.

Whoſe there? Speake hoa, ſpeake quickely, or
I ſhoote.
A Friend. What art thou?
Of the part of England.
Whether doeſt thou go?
What's that to thee?
may not I demand of thine affaires,
ll as thou of mine?
Hubert, I thinke.
Thou haſt a perfect thought:
vpon all hazards well beleeue ars my friend, that know'ſt my tongue ſo well:
art thou?
Who thou wilt: and if thou pleaſe
maiſt be-friend me ſo much, as to thinke
e cauſe way of the Plantagenets.
Vnkinde remembrance: thou, & endleſs night,
done me ſhame: Braue Soldier, pardon me,
my accents breaking from thy tongue,
d ſcape the true acquaintance of mine eare.
Come, come: ſans complement, What newes abroad?
Why heere walke I, in the black brow of night
de you out.

Baſt. Breefe then: and what's the newes?
Hub. O my ſweet ſir, newes fitting to the night,
Blacke, fearefull, comfortleſſe, and horrible.
Baſt. Shew me the very wound of this ill newes,
I am no woman, Ile not ſwound at it.
Hub. The King I feare is poyſon'd by a Monke,
I left him almoſt ſpeechleſſe, and broke out
To acquaint you with this euill, that you might
The better arme you to the ſodaine time,
Then if you had at leiſure knowne of this.
Baſt. How did he take it? Who did taſte to him?
Hub. A Monke I tell you, a reſolued villaine
Whoſe Bowels ſodainly burſt out: The King
Yet ſpeakes, and peraduenture may recouer.
Baſt. Who didſt thou leaue to tend his Maieſty?
Hub. Why know you not? The Lords are all come backe,
And brought Prince Henry in their companie,
At whoſe requeſt the king hath pardon'd them,
And they are all about his Maieſtie.
Baſt. With hold thine indignation, mighty heauen,
And tempt vs not to beare aboue our power.
Ile tell thee Hubert, halfe my power this night
Paſſing theſe Flatts, are taken by the Tide.
Theſe Lincolne-Waſhes haue deuoured them,
My ſelfe, well mounted, hardly haue eſcap'd.
Away before: Conduct me to the king,
I doubt he will be dead, or ere I come. Exeunt

Scena Septima.

Enter Prince Henry, Saliſburie, and Bigot.

Hen. It is too late, the life of all his blood
Is touch'd, corruptibly: and his pure braine
(Which ſome ſuppoſe the ſoules fraile dwelling houſe)
Doth by the idle Comments that it makes,
Fore-tell the ending of mortality.
Enter Pembroke.
Pem. His Highneſſe yet doth ſpeak, & holds beleefe,
That being brought into the open ayre,
It would allay the burning qualitie
Of that fell poiſon which aſſayleth him.
Hen. Let him be brought into the Orchard heere:
Doth he ſtill rage?
Pem. He is more patient
Then when you left him; euen now he ſang.
Hen. Oh vanity of ſickneſſe: fierce extreames
In their continuance, will not feele themſelues.
Death hauing praide vpon the outward parts
Leaues them inuiſible, and his ſeige is now
Againſt the winde, the which he pricks and wounds
With many legions of ſtrange fantaſies,
Which in their throng, and preſſe to that laſt hold,
Confound themſelues. 'Tis ſtrange, that death ſhould ſing:
I am the Symet to this pale faint Swan,
Who chaunts a dolefull hymne to his owne death,
And from the organ-pipe of frailety ſings
His ſoule and body to their laſting reſt.
Sal. Be of good comfort (Prince) for you are borne
To ſet a forme vpon that indigeſt
Which he hath left ſo ſhapeleſſe, and ſo rude.
Iohn brought in.
Iohn. I marrie, now my ſoule hath elbow roome,

It would not out at windowes, nor at doores.
There is so hot a sommer in my bosome,
That all my bowels crumble vp to dust:
I am a scribled form drawne with a pen
Vpon a Parchment, and against this fire
Do I shrinke vp.

Hen. How fares your Maiesty?

Iohn. Poyson'd, ill fare: dead, forsooke, cast off,
And none of you will bid the winter come
To thrust his icie fingers in my maw;
Nor let my kingdomes Riuers take their course
Through my burn'd bosome, nor intreat the North
To make his bleake windes kisse my parched lips,
And comfort me with cold. I do not aske you much,
I begge cold comfort, and you are so straight
And so ingratefull, you deny me that.

Hen. Oh that there were some vertue in my teares,
That might releeue you.

Iohn. The sale in them is hot.
Within me is a hell, and there the poyson
Is, as a fiend, confin'd to tyrannize,
On vnrepreuuable condemned blood.

Enter Bastard.

Bast. Oh, I am scalded with my violent motion
And spleene of speede, to see your Maiesty.

Iohn. Oh Cozen, thou art come to set mine eye:
The tackle of my heart, is crack'd and burnt,
And all the shrowds wherewith my life should saile,
Are turned to one thred, one little haire:
My heart hath one poore string to stay it by,
Which holds but till thy newes be vttered,
And then all this thou seest, is but a clod,
And module of confounded royalty.

Bast. The Dolphin is preparing hither-ward,
Where heauen he knowes how we shall answer him.
For in a night the best part of my powre,
As I vpon aduantage did remaue,
Were in the Washes all vnwarily,
Deuoured by the vnexpected flood.

Sal. You breath these dead newes in as dead an eare
My Liege, my Lord: but now a King, now thus.

Hen. Euen so must I run on, and euen so stop
What surety of the world, what hope, what stay,
When this was now a King, and now is clay?

Bast. Art thou gone so? I do but stay behinde.
To do the office for thee, of reuenge,
And then my soule shall waite on thee to heauen,
As it on earth hath been thy seruant still.
Now, now you Starres, that moue in your right spheres,
Where be your powres? Shew now your mended faiths,
And instantly returne with me againe.
To push destruction, and perpetuall shame
Out of the weake doore of our fainting Land.
Straight let vs seeke, or straight we shall be sought,
The Dolphine rages at our very heeles.

Sal. It seemes you know not then so much as we.
The Cardinall Pandulph is within at rest,
Who halfe an houre since came from the Dolphin,
And brings from him such offers of our peace,
As we with honor and respect may take,
With purpose presently to leaue this warre.

Bast. He will the rather do it when he sees
Our selues well sinew'd to our defence.

Sal. Nay, 'tis in a manner done already,
For many carriages he hath dispatch'd
To the sea side, and put his cause and quarrell
To the disposing of the Cardinall,
With whom your selfe, my selfe, and other Lords,
If you thinke meete, this afternoone will poast
To consummate this businesse happily.

Bast. Let it be so, and you my noble Prince,
With other Princes that may best be spar'd,
Shall waite vpon your Fathers Funerall.

Hen. At Worster must his bodie be interr'd,
For so he will'd it.

Bast. Thither shall it then,
And happily may your sweet selfe put on
The lineall state, and glorie of the Land,
To whom with all submission on my knee,
I do bequeath my faithfull seruices
And true subiection euerlastingly.

Sal. And the like tender of our loue we make
To rest without a spot for euermore.

Hen. I haue a kinde soule, that would giue thankes,
And knowes not how to do it, but with teares.

Bast. Oh let vs pay the time: but needfull woe,
Since it hath beene before hand with our griefes.
This England neuer did, nor neuer shall
Lye at the proud foote of a Conqueror,
But when it first did helpe to wound it selfe.
Now, these her Princes are come home againe,
Come the three corners of the world in Armes,
And we shall shocke them: Nought shall make vs rue,
If England to it selfe, do rest but true.

Exeunt

The life and death of King Richard the Second.

Actus Primus, Scæna Prima.

Enter King Richard, Iohn of Gaunt, with other Nobles and Attendants.

King Richard.

Old Iohn of Gaunt, time-honoured Lancaſter,
Haſt thou according to thy oath and band
Brought hither Henry Herford thy bold ſon:
Heere to make good his boiſtrous late appeale,
Which then our leyſure would not let vs heare,
Againſt the Duke of Norfolke, Thomas Mowbray?

Gaunt. I haue my Liege.

King. Tell me moreouer, haſt thou ſounded him,
If he appeale the Duke on ancient malice,
Or worthily as a good ſubiect ſhould
On ſome knowne ground of treacherie in him.

Gaunt. As neere as I could ſift him on that argument,
On ſome apparant danger ſeene in him,
Aym'd at your Highneſſe, no inueterate malice.

King. Then call them to our preſence face to face,
And frowning brow to brow, our ſelues will heare
Th'accuſer, and the accuſed, freely ſpeake;
High ſtomack'd are they both, and full of ire,
In rage, deafe as the ſea, haſtie as fire.

Enter Bullingbrooke and Mowbray.

Bul. Many yeares of happy dayes befall
My gracious Soueraigne, my moſt louing Liege.

Mow. Both day (till better others happineſſe,
Vntill the heauens enuying earths good hap,
Adde an immortall title to your Crowne.

King. We thanke you both, yet one but flatters vs,
As well appeareth by the cauſe you come,
Namely, to appeale each other of high treaſon.
Coſin of Hereford, what doſt thou obiect
Againſt the Duke of Norfolke, Thomas Mowbray?

Bul. Firſt, heauen be the record to my ſpeech,
In the deuotion of a ſubiects loue,
Tendering the precious ſafetie of my Prince,
And free from other misbegotten hate,
Come I appealant to this Princely preſence.
Now Thomas Mowbray do I turne to thee,
And marke my greeting well: for what I ſpeake,
My body ſhall make good vpon this earth,
Or my diuine ſoule anſwer it in heauen.
Thou art a Traitor, and a Miſcreant;
Too good to be ſo, and too bad to liue
Since the more faire and chriſtall is the skie,
The vglier ſeeme the cloudes that in it flye:
Once more, the more to aggrauate the note,
With a foule Traitors name ſtuffe I thy throte,
And wiſh (ſo pleaſe my Soueraigne) ere I moue,
What my tong ſpeaks, my right drawn ſword may proue

Mow. Let not my cold words heere accuſe my zeale:
'Tis not the triall of a Womans warre,
The bitter clamour of two eager tongues,
Can arbitrate this cauſe betwixt vs twaine:
The blood is hot that muſt be cool'd for this.
Yet can I not of ſuch tame patience boaſt,
As to be huſht, and nought at all to ſay.
Firſt the faire reuerence of your Highneſſe curbes mee,
From giuing reines and ſpurres to my free ſpeech,
Which elſe would poſt, vntill it had returnd
Theſe termes of treaſon, doubly downe his throte.
Setting aſide his high bloods royalty,
And let him be no Kinſman to my Liege,
I do defie him, and I ſpit at him,
Call him a ſlanderous Coward, and a Villaine:
Which to maintaine, I would allow him odds,
And meete him, were I tide to runne afoote
Euen to the frozen ridges of the Alpes,
Or any other ground inhabitable,
Where euer Engliſhman durſt ſet his foote.
Meane time, let this defend my loyaltie,
By all my hopes moſt falſely doth he lie.

Bul. Pale trembling Coward, there I throw my gage,
Diſclaiming heere the kindred of a King,
And lay aſide my high bloods Royalty,
Which feare, not reuerence makes thee to except.
If guilty dread hath left thee ſo much ſtrength,
As to take vp mine Honors pawne, then ſtoope.
By that, and all the rites of Knight-hood elſe,
Will I make good againſt thee arme to arme,
What I haue ſpoken, or thou canſt deuiſe.

Mow. I take it vp, and by that ſword I ſweare,
Which gently laid my Knight-hood on my ſhoulder,
Ile anſwer thee in any faire degree,
Or Chiualrous deſigne of knightly triall:
And when I mount, alone may I not light,
If I be Traitor, or vniuſtly fight.

King. What doth our Coſin lay to Mowbrayes charge?
It muſt be great that can inherite vs,
So much as of a thought of ill in him.

Bul. Looke what I ſaid, my life ſhall proue it true,
That Mowbray hath receiu'd eight thouſand Nobles,

In

In name of leadings for your Highneſſe Soldiers,
The which he hath detain'd for lewd employments.
Like a falſe Traitor, and iniurious Villaine.
Beſides I ſay, and will in battaile proue,
Or heere, or elſewhere to the furtheſt Verge
That euer was ſuruey'd by Engliſh eye,
That all the Treaſons for theſe eighteene yeeres
Complotted, and contriued in this Land,
Fetch'd from falſe Mowbray their firſt head and ſpring.
Further I ſay, and further will maintaine
Vpon his bad life, to make all this good
That he did plot the Duke of Glouſters death,
Suggeſt his ſoone belecuing aduerſaries,
And conſequently, like a Traitor Coward,
Sluc'd out his innocent ſoule through ſtreames of blood
Which blood, like ſacrificing Abels cries,
(Euen from the toongleſſe cauernes of the earth)
To me for iuſtice, and rough chaſtiſement:
And by the glorious worth of my diſcent,
This arme ſhall do it, or this life be ſpent.

King. How high a pitch his reſolution ſoares:
Thomas of Norfolke, what ſayeſt thou to this?

Mow. Oh let my Soueraigne turne away his face,
And bid his eares a little while be deafe,
Till I haue told this ſlander of his blood,
How God, and good men, hate ſo foule a lyar.

King. Mowbray, impartiall are our eyes and eares,
Were he my brother, nay our kingdomes heyre,
As he is but my fathers brothers ſonne;
Now by my Scepters awe, I make a vow,
Such neighbour-nearneſſe to our ſacred blood,
Should nothing priuiledge him, nor partialize
The vn-ſtooping firmneſſe of my vpright ſoule.
He is our ſubiect (Mowbray) ſo art thou,
Free ſpeech, and fearleſſe, I to thee allow.

Mow. Then Bullingbrooke, as low as to thy heart,
Through the falſe paſſage of thy throat; thou lyeſt:
Three parts of that receipt I had for Callice,
Diſburſt I to his Highneſſe ſouldiers:
The other part reſeru'd I by conſent,
For that my Soueraigne Liege was in my debt,
Vpon remainder of a deere Accompt,
Since laſt I went to France to fetch his Queene:
Now ſwallow downe that Lye. For Glouſters death,
I ſlew him not; but (to mine owne diſgrace)
Neglected my ſworne duty in that caſe:
For you my noble Lord of Lancaſter,
The honourable Father to my foe,
Once I did lay an ambuſh for your life,
A treſpaſſe that doth vex my grieued ſoule:
But ere I laſt receiu'd the Sacrament,
I did confeſſe it, and exactly begg'd
Your Graces pardon, and I hope I had it.
This is my fault: as for the reſt appeal'd,
It iſſues from the rancour of a Villaine,
A recreant, and moſt degenerate Traitor,
Which in my ſelfe I boldly will defend,
And interchangeably hurle downe my gage
Vpon this ouer-weening Traitors foote,
To proue my ſelfe a loyall Gentleman,
Euen in the beſt blood chamber'd in his boſome.
In haſt whereof, moſt heartily I pray
Your Highneſſe to aſſigne our Triall day.

King. Wrath-kindled Gentlemen be rul'd by me:
Let's purge this choller without letting blood:
This we preſcribe, though no Phyſitian,
Deepe malice makes too deepe inciſion.
Forget, forgiue, conclude, and be agreed.
Our Doctors ſay, This is no time to bleed.
Good Vncle, let this end where it begun.
We'l calme the Duke of Norfolke; you, your ſon.

Gaunt. To be a make-peace ſhall become my age.
Throw downe (my ſonne) the Duke of Norfolkes gage.

King. And Norfolke, throw downe his

Gaunt. When Harrie when? Obedience bids,
Obedience bids I ſhould not bid again.

King Norfolke, throw downe, we bidde; there is no boote.

Mow. My ſelfe I throw (dread Soueraigne) at thy foote.
My life thou ſhalt command, but not my ſhame.
The one my duties owes, but my faire name
Deſpight of death, that liues vpon my grace
To darke diſhonours vſe, thou ſhalt not haue
I am diſgrac'd, impeach'd, and baffel'd heere,
Pierc'd to the ſoule with ſlanders venom'd ſpeare
The which no balme can cure, but his heart blood
Which breath'd this poyſon.

King Rage muſt be withſtood.
Giue me his gage: Lyons make Leopards tame.

Mo. Yea, but not change his ſpots: take but my ſhame,
And I reſigne my gage. My deere, deere Lord,
The pureſt treaſure mortall times afford
Is ſpotleſſe reputation: that away,
Men are but gilded loame, or painted clay.
A Iewell in a ten times barr'd vp Cheſt,
Is a bold ſpirit, in a loyall breſt.
Mine Honor is my life; both grow in one:
Take Honor from me, and my life is done.
Then (deere my Liege) mine Honor let me trie,
In that I liue; and for that will I die.

King Coſin, throw downe your gage,
Do you begin.

Bul. Oh heauen defend my ſoule from ſuch foule ſin.
Shall I ſeeme Creſt-falne in my fathers ſight,
Or with pale beggar-feare impeach my height
Before this out-dar'd daſtard? Ere my toong,
Shall wound mine honor with ſuch feeble wrong;
Or ſound ſo baſe a parle: my teeth ſhall teare
The ſlauiſh motiue of recanting feare.
And ſpit it bleeding in his high diſgrace,
Where ſhame doth harbour, euen in Mowbrayes face.

Exit Gaunt.

King. We were not borne to ſue, but to command,
Which ſince we cannot do to make you friends,
Be readie, (as your liues ſhall anſwer it)
At Couentree, vpon S. Lamberts day:
There ſhall your ſwords and Lances arbitrate
The ſwelling difference of your ſetled hate:
Since we cannot attone you, you ſhall ſee
Iuſtice deſigne the Victors Chiualrie.
Lord Marſhall, command our Officers at Armes,
Be readie to direct theſe home Alarmes.

Exeunt.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Gaunt, and Dutcheſſe of Glouceſter.

Gaunt. Alas, the part I had in Glouſters blood,
Doth more ſolicite me then your exclaimes,
To ſtirre againſt the Butchers of his life.

But

But ſince correction lyeth in thoſe hands
Which made the fault that we cannot correct,
Put we our quarrell to the will of heauen,
Who when they ſee the houres ripe on earth,
Will raigne hot vengeance on offenders heads.
Duc. Findes brotherhood in thee no ſharper ſpurre?
Hath loue in thy old blood no liuing fire?
Edwards ſeuen ſonnes (whereof thy ſelfe art one)
Were as ſeuen violles of his Sacred blood,
Or ſeuen faire branches ſpringing from one roote:
Some of thoſe ſeuen are dride by natures courſe,
Some of thoſe branches by the deſtinies cut:
But Thomas, my deere Lord, my life, my Glouſter,
One Viol full of Edwards Sacred blood,
One flouriſhing branch of his moſt Royall roote
Is crack'd, and all the precious liquor ſpilt;
Is hackt downe, and his ſummer leaſes all vaded
By Enuies hand, and Murders bloody Axe.
Ah Gaunt! His blood was thine, that bed, that wombe,
That mettle, that ſelfe-mould that faſhion'd thee,
Made him a man; and though thou liu'ſt, and breath'ſt,
Yet art thou ſlaine in him: thou doſt conſent
In ſome large meaſure to thy Fathers death,
In that thou ſeeſt thy wretched brother dye,
Who was the modell of thy Fathers life.
Call it not patience (Gaunt) it is diſpaire,
In ſuff'ring thus thy brother to be ſlaughter'd,
Thou ſhew'ſt the naked pathway to thy life,
Teaching ſterne murther how to butcher thee:
That which in meane men we intitle patience
Is pale cold cowardice in noble breſts:
What ſhall I ſay, to ſafegard thine owne life,
The beſt way is to venge my Glouſters death.
Gaunt. Heauens is the quarrell: for heauens ſubſtitute
His Deputy annointed in his ſight,
Hath caus'd his death, the which if wrongfully
Let heauen reuenge: for I may neuer lift
An angry arme againſt his Miniſter.
Duc. Where then (alas may I) complaint my ſelfe?
Gaun. To heauen, the widdowes Champion to defence
Duc. Why then I will: farewell old Gaunt,
Thou go'ſt to Couentrie, there to behold
Our Couſine Herford, and ſell Mowbray fight:
O ſit my husbands wrongs on Herfords ſpeare,
That it may enter butcher Mowbrayes breſt:
Or if miſfortune miſſe the firſt carreere,
Be Mowbrayes ſinnes ſo heauy in his boſome,
That they may breake his foaming Courſers backe,
And throw the Rider headlong in the Liſts,
A Caytiffe recreant to my Couſine Herford:
Farewell old Gaunt, thy ſometimes brothers wife
With her companion Greefe, muſt end her life.
Gaun. Siſter farewell: I muſt to Couentree,
As much good ſtay with thee, as go with mee.
Duc. Yet one word more: Greefe boundeth where it falls,
Not with the emptie hollowner, but weighs:
I take my leaue, before I haue begun,
For ſorrow ends not, when it ſeemeth done.
Commend me to my brother Edmond Yorke.
Loe, this is all: nay, yet depart not ſo,
Though this be all, do not ſo quickly go,
I ſhall remember more. Bid him, Oh, what?
With all good ſpeed at Plaſhie viſit mee.
Alacke, and what ſhall good old Yorke there ſee
But empty lodgings, and vnfurniſh'd walles,
Vn-peopel'd Offices, vntroden ſtones?
And what heare there for welcome, but my grones?
Therefore commend me, let him not come there,
To ſeeke out ſorrow, that dwels every where:
Deſolate, deſolate will I hence, and dye,
The laſt leaue of thee, takes my weeping eye. Exeunt

Scena Tertia.

Enter Marſhall, and Aumerle.

Mar. My L. Aumerle, is Harry Herford arm'd.
Aum. Yea, at all points, and longs to enter in.
Mar. The Duke of Norfolke, ſprightfully and bold,
Stayes but the ſummons of the Appeſlants Trumpet.
Au. Why then the Champions, are prepar'd, and ſtay
For nothing but his Maieſties approach. Flourriſh.
Enter King, Gaunt, Buſhy, Bagot, Greene, & others: Then Mowbray in Armor, and Harrold.
Rich. Marſhall, demand of yonder Champion
The cauſe of his arriuall heere in Armes,
Aske him his name, and orderly proceed
To ſweare him in the iuſtice of his cauſe.
Mar. In Gods name, and the Kings, ſay who y art,
And why thou com'ſt thus knightly clad in Armes?
Againſt what man thou com'ſt, and what's thy quarrell,
Speake truly on thy knighthood, and thine oath,
As ſo defend thee heauen, and thy valour.
Mow. My name is Tho. Mowbray, Duke of Norfolke,
Who hither comes engaged by my oath
(Which heauen defend a knight ſhould violate)
Both to defend my loyalty and truth,
To God, my King, and his ſucceeding iſſue,
Againſt the Duke of Herford, that appeales me:
And by the grace of God, and this mine arme,
To proue him (in defending of my ſelfe)
A Traitor to my God, my King, and me,
And as I truly fight, defend me heauen.
Trumpets. Enter Herford, and Harold.
Rich. Marſhall: Aske yonder Knight in Armes,
Both who he is, and why he commeth hither,
Thus placed in habiliments of warre:
And formerly according to our Law
Depoſe him in the iuſtice of his cauſe.
Mar. What is thy name? and wherfore comſt y hither
Before King Richard in his Royall Liſts?
Againſt whom com'ſt thou? and what's thy quarrell?
Speake like a true Knight, ſo defend thee heauen.
Bul. Harry of Herford, Lancaſter, and Derbie,
Am I: who ready heere do ſtand in Armes,
To proue by-heauens grace, and my bodies valour)
In Liſts, on Thomas Mowbray Duke of Norfolke,
That he's a Traitor foule, and dangerous,
To God of heauen, King Richard, and to me,
And as I truly fight, defend me heauen.
Mar. On paine of death, no perſon be ſo bold,
Or daring hardie as to touch the Liſtes,
Except the Marſhall, and ſuch Officers
Appointed to direct theſe faire deſignes.
Bul. Lord Marſhall, let me kiſſe my Soueraigns hand,
And bow my knee before his Maieſtie:
For Mowbray and my ſelfe are like two men,
That vow a long and weary pilgrimage.

Then

Then let vs take a ceremonious leaue
And louing farwell of our ſeuerall friends.
Mar. The Appellant in all duty greets your Highneſs,
And craues to kiſſe your hand, and take his leaue.
Rich. We will deſcend, and fold him in our armes.
Coſin of Herford, as thy cauſe is iuſt,
So be thy fortune in this Royall fight:
Farewell, my blood, which if to day thou ſhead,
Lament we may, but not reuenge thee dead.
Bull. Oh let no noble eye prophane a teare
For me, if I be gor'd with Mowbrayes ſpeare:
As confident, as is the Falcons flight
Againſt a bird, do I with Mowbray fight.
My louing Lord, I take my leaue of you,
Of you (my Noble Coſin) Lord Aumerle;
Not ſicke, although I haue to do with death,
But luſtie, yong, and cheerely drawing breath.
Lo, as at Engliſh Feaſts, ſo I regreete
The daintieſt laſt, to make the end moſt ſweet.
Oh thou the earthy author of my blood,
Whoſe youthfull ſpirit in me regenerate,
Doth with a two-fold rigor lift mee vp
To reach at victory aboue my head,
Adde proofe vnto mine Armour with thy prayres,
And with thy bleſsings ſteele my Lances point,
That it may enter Mowbrayes waxen Coate,
And furniſh new the name of Iohn a Gaunt,
Euen in the luſty hauiour of his ſonne.
Gaunt. Heauen in thy good cauſe make thee proſp'rous
Be ſwift like lightning in the execution,
And let thy blowes doubly redoubled,
Fall like amazing thunder on the Caſke
Of thy amaz'd pernicious enemy.
Rouze vp thy youthfull blood, be valiant, and liue.
Bul. Mine innocence, and S. George to thriue.
Mow. How euer heauen or fortune caſt my lot,
There liues, or dies, true to Kings Richards Throne,
A loyall, iuſt, and vpright Gentleman:
Neuer did Captiue with a freer heart,
Caſt off his chaines of bondage, and embrace
His golden vncontroul'd enfranchiſement,
More then my dancing ſoule doth celebrate
This Feaſt of Battell, with mine Aduerſarie.
Moſt mighty Liege, and my companion Peeres,
Take from my mouth, the wiſh of happy yeares,
As gentle, and as iocond, as to ieſt,
Go I to fight: Truth, hath a quiet breaſt.
Rich. Farewell, my Lord, ſecurely I eſpy
Vertue with Valour, couched in thine eye:
Order the triall Marſhall, and begin.
Mar. Harris of Herford, Lancaſter. and Derby,
Receiue thy Launce, and heauen defend thy right.
Bol. Strong as a towre in hope, I cry Amen.
Mar. Go beare this Lance to Thomas D. of Norfolke.
1. Har. Harry of Herford, Lancaſter. and Derbie,
Stands heere for God, his Soueraigne, and himſelfe,
On paine to be found falſe, and recreant,
To proue the Duke of Norfolke, Thomas Mowbray,
A Traitor to his God, his King, and him,
And dares him to ſet forwards to the fight.
2. Har. Here ſtandeth Thomas Mowbray Duke of Norfolk
On paine to be found falſe and recreant,
Both to defend himſelfe, and to approue
Henry of Herford, Lancaſter, and Derby,
To God, his Soueraigne, and to him diſloyall:
Couragiouſly, and with a free deſire
Attending but the ſignall to begin. A charge ſounded.
Mar. Sound Trumpets, and ſet forward Combatants.
Stay, the King hath throwne his Warder downe.
Rich. Let them lay by their Helmets & their Speares
And both returne backe to their Chaires againe:
Withdraw with vs, and let the Trumpets ſound,
While we returne theſe Dukes what we decree.
A long Flouriſh.
Draw neere and liſt
What with our Councell we haue done.
For that our kingdomes earth ſhould not be foyld
With that deere blood which it hath foſtered,
And for our eyes do hate the dire aſpect
Of ciuill wounds plowgh'd vp with neighbors ſwords,
Which ſo rouz'd vp with boyſtrous vntun'd drummes,
With harſh reſounding Trumpets dreadfull bray,
And grating ſhocke of wrathfull iron Armes,
Might from our quiet Confines fright faire peace,
And make vs wade euen in our kindreds blood:
Therefore, we baniſh you our Territories.
You Coſin Herford, vpon paine of death,
Till twice fiue Summers haue enrich'd our fields,
Shall not regreet our faire dominions,
But treade the ſtranger paths of baniſhment.
Bul. Your will be done: This muſt my comfort be,
That Sun that warmes you heere, ſhall ſhine on me:
And thoſe his golden beames to you heere lent,
Shall point on me, and guild my baniſhment.
Rich. Norfolke: for thee remaines a heauier doombe,
Which I with ſome vnwillingneſſe pronounce,
The ſlye ſlow houres ſhall not determinate
The dateleſſe limit of thy deere exile:
The hopeleſſe word, of Neuer to returne,
Breath I againſt thee, vpon paine of life.
Mow. A heauy ſentence, my moſt Soueraigne Liege,
And all vnlook'd for from your Highneſſe mouth:
A deerer merit, not ſo deepe a maime,
As to be caſt forth in the common ayre
Haue I deſerued at your Highneſſe hands.
The Language I haue learn'd theſe forty yeares
(My natiue Engliſh) now I muſt forgo,
And now my tongues vſe is to me no more,
Then an vnſtringed Vyall, or a Harpe,
Or like a cunning Inſtrument caſ'd vp,
Or being open, put into his hands
That knowes no touch to tune the harmony.
Within my mouth you haue engaol'd my tongue,
Doubly portcullis'd with my teeth and lippes,
And dull, vnfeeling, barren ignorance,
Is made my Gaoler to attend on me:
I am too old to fawne vpon a Nurſe,
Too farre in yeeres to be a pupill now:
What is thy ſentence then, but ſpeechleſſe death,
Which robs my tongue from breathing natiue breath?
Rich. It boots thee not to be compaſſionate,
After our ſentence, plaining comes too late.
Mow. Then thus I turne me from my countries light
To dwell in ſolemne ſhades of endleſſe night.
Rut. Returne againe, and take an oath with thee.
Lay on our Royall ſword, your baniſht hands;
Sweare by the duty that you owe to heauen
(Our part therein we baniſh with your cauſes)
To keepe the Oath that we adminiſter:
You neuer ſhall (ſo helpe you Truth, and Heauen)
Embrace each others loue in baniſhment,
Nor euer looke vpon each others face,

Nor

Nor euer write, regreete, or reconcile
This lowring tempeſt of your home-bred hate,
Nor euer by aduiſed purpoſe meete,
To plot, contriue, or complot any ill,
'Gainſt Vs, our State, our Subiects, or our Land.
Bul. I ſweare.
Aum. And I, to keepe all this.
Nor. Norfolke, ſo fare, as to mine enemie,
By this time (had the King permitted vs)
One of our ſoules had wandred in the ayre,
Baniſh'd this frayle ſepulchre of our fleſh,
As now our fleſh is baniſh'd from this Land.
Confeſſe thy Treaſons ere thou flye this Realme,
Since thou haſt farre to go, beare not along
The clogging burthen of a guiltie ſoule.
Mow. No Bullingbroke: if euer I were Traitor,
My name be blotted from the booke of Life,
And I from heauen baniſh'd, as from hence:
But what thou art, heauen, thou, and I do know,
And all too ſoone (I feare) the King ſhall rue Farewell (my Liege) now no way can I ſtray.
Saue backe to England, all the worlds my way. Exit.
Rich. Vncle, euen in the glaſſes of thine eyes
I ſee thy grieued heart: thy ſad aſpect,
Hath from the number of his baniſh'd yeares
Pluck'd foure away: Six frozen Winters ſpent,
Returne with welcome home, from baniſhment.
Bul. How long a time lyes in one little word:
Foure lagging Winters, and foure wanton ſprings
End in a word, ſuch is the breath of Kings.
Gaunt. I thanke my Liege, that in regard of me
He ſhortens foure yeares of my ſonnes exile:
But little vantage ſhall I reape thereby.
For ere the ſixe yeares that he hath to ſpend
Can change their Moones, and bring their times about,
My ryle-dride Lampe, and time-bewaſted light
Shall be extinct with age, and endleſſe night:
My inch of Taper, will be burnt, and done,
And blindfold death, not let me ſee my ſonne.
Rich. Why Vncle, thou haſt many yeeres to liue.
Gaunt. But not a minute (King) that thou canſt giue;
Shorten my dayes thou canſt with ſudden ſorow,
And plucke nights from me, but not lend a morrow:
Thou canſt helpe time to furrow me with age,
But ſtop no wrinkle in his pilgrimage:
Thy word is currant with him, for my death,
But dead, thy kingdome cannot buy my breath.
Rich. Thy ſonne is baniſh'd vpon good aduice,
Whereto thy tongue a party-verdict gaue,
Why at our Iuſtice ſeem'ſt thou then to lowre?
Gaun. Things ſweet to taſt, proue in digeſtion ſowre:
You vrg'd me as a Iudge, but I had rather you would haue bid me argue like a Father.
Alas, I look'd when ſome of you ſhould ſay,
I was too ſtrict to make mine owne away:
But you gaue leaue to my vnwilling tong.
Againſt my will, to do my ſelfe this wrong.
Rich. Coſine farewell: and Vncle bid him ſo:
Six yeares we baniſh him, and he ſhall go. Exit.
Flouriſh.
Aum. Coſine farewell: what preſence muſt not know
From where you do remaine, let paper ſhow.
Mar. My Lord, no leaue take I, for I will ride
As farre as land will let me, by your ſide.
Gaunt. Oh to what purpoſe doſt thou hord thy words,
That abou returnſt no greeting to thy friends?
Bull. I haue too few to take my leaue of you
When the tongues office ſhould be prodigall,
To breath th'abundant dolour of the heart.
Gaun. Thy greefe is but thy abſence for a time.
Bull. Ioy abſent, greefe is preſent for that time.
Gaun. What is ſixe Winters, they are quickely gone?
Bul. To men in ioy, but greefe makes one houre ten.
Gaun. Call it a trauell that thou tak'ſt for pleaſure.
Bul. My heart will ſigh, when I miſcall it ſo,
Which findes it an inforced Pilgrimage.
Gaun. The ſullen paſſage of thy weary ſteppes
Eſteeme a ſoyle, wherein thou art to ſet
The precious Iewell of thy home returne.
Bul. Oh who can hold a fire in his hand
By thinking on the froſtie Caucaſus?
Or cloy the hungry edge of appetite,
by bare imagination of a Feaſt?
Or Wallow naked in December ſnow
by thinking on fantaſticke ſummers heate?
Oh no, the apprehenſion of the good
Gines but the greater feeling to the worſe:
Fell ſorrowes tooth, doth euer rankle more
Then when it bites, but lanceth not the ſore.
Gaun. Come, come (my ſon) Ile bring thee on thy way
Had I thy youth, and cauſe, I would not ſtay.
Bul. Then Englands ground farewell: ſweet ſoil adieu,
My Mother, and my Nurſe, which beares me yet:
Where ere I wander, boaſt of this I can,
Though baniſh'd, yet a true-borne Engliſhman.

Scæna Quarta.

Enter King, Aumerle, Greene, and Bagot.

Rich. We did obſerue. Coſine Aumerle,
How far brought you high Herford on his way?
Aum. I brought high Herford (if you call him ſo)
but to the next high way, and there I left him.
Rich. And ſay, what ſtore of parting teares were ſhed?
Aum. Faith none for me: except the Northeaſt wind
Which then grew bitterly againſt our face,
Awak'd the ſleepie rhewme, and ſo by chance
Did grace our hollow parting with a teare.
Rich. What ſaid our Coſin when you parted with him?
Aum. Farewell: and for my hart diſdained that my tongue
Should ſo prophane the word, that taught me craft
To counterfeit oppreſſion of ſuch greefe,
That word ſeem'd buried in my ſorrowes graue.
Marry, would the word Farwell, haue lengthen'd houres,
And added yeares to his ſhort baniſhment,
He ſhould haue had a volume of Farwels,
but ſince it would not, he had none of me.
Rich. He is our Coſin (Coſin) but 'tis doubt,
When time ſhall call him home from baniſhment,
Whether our kinſman come to ſee his friends,
Our ſelfe, and Buſhy: heere Bagot and Greene
Obſerv'd his Courtſhip to the common people:
How he did ſeeme to dine into their hearts,
With humble, and familiar courteſie,
What reuerence he did throw away on ſlaues;
Wooing poore Craftſe-men, with the craft of ſoules,
And patient vnder-bearing of his Fortune,
As 'twere to baniſh their affects with him.
Off goes his bonnet to an Oyſter-wench,

A brace of Dray-men bid God ſpeed him well,
And had the tribute of his ſupple knee,
With thankes my Countrimen, my loving friends,
As were our England in reuerſion his,
And he our ſubiects next degree in hope.
Gr. Well, he is gone, & with him go theſe thoughts:
Now for the Rebels, which ſtand out in Ireland,
Expedient manage muſt be made my Liege
Ere further leyſure, yeeld them further meanes
For their aduantage, and your Highneſſe loſſe.
Ric. We will our ſelfe in perſon to this warre,
And for our Coffers, with too great a Court,
And liberall Largeſſe, are growne ſomewhat light,
We are inforc'd to farme our royall Realme,
The Reuenew whereof ſhall furniſh vs
For our affayres in hand: if that come ſhort
Our Subſtitutes at home ſhall haue Blanke-charters.
Whereto, when they ſhall know what men are rich,
They ſhall ſubſcribe them for large ſummes of Gold,
And ſend them after to ſupply our wantes
For we will make for Ireland preſently.

Enter Buſhy.

Buſhy, what newes?
Bu. Old Iohn of Gaunt is verie ſicke my Lord,
Suddainly taken, and hath ſent poſt haſte
To entreat your Maieſty to viſit him.
Ric. Where lyes he?
Bu. At Ely houſe.
Ric. Now put it (heauen) in his Phyſitians minde,
To helpe him to his graue immediately:
The lining of his coffers ſhall make Coates
To decke our ſouldiers for theſe Iriſh warres.
Come Gentlemen, let's all go viſit him:
Pray heauen we may make haſt, and come too late. Exeu.

Actus Secundus. Scena Prima.

Enter Gaunt, ſicke with Torke.

Gaun. Will the King come, that I may breath my laſt
In wholſome counſell to his vnſtaid youth?
Tor. Vex not your ſelfe, nor ſtriue not with your breth,
For all in vaine comes counſell to his eare
Gaun. Oh but (they ſay) the tongues of dying men
Inforce attention like deepe harmony:
Where words are ſcarſe, they are ſeldome ſpent in vaine,
For they breath truth, that breath their words in paine.
He that no more muſt ſay, is liſten'd more,
Then they whom youth and eaſe haue taught to gloſe,
More are mens ends marke, then their liues before,
The ſetting Sun, and Muſicke in the cloſe
As the laſt taſte of ſweetes, is ſweeteſt laſt.
Writ in remembrance, more then things long paſt;
Though Richard my liues counſell would not heare,
My deaths ſad tale, may yet vndeafe his eare.
Tor. No, it is ſtopt with other flatt'ring ſounds
As praiſes of his ſtate: then there are found
Laſciuious Meeters, to whoſe venom ſound
The open eare of youth doth alwayes liſten,
Report of faſhions in proud Italy,
Whoſe manners ſtill our tardie apiſh Nation
Limpes after in baſe imitation.
Where doth the world thruſt forth a vanity,
So is be new, there's no reſpect how vile,
That is not quickly buz'd into his eares?
That all too late comes counſell to be heard,
Where will doth mutiny with wits regard:
Direct not him, whoſe way himſelfe will chooſe,
Tis breath thou lackſt, and that breath wilt thou loſe
Gaunt. Me thinkes I am a Prophet new inſpir'
And thus expiring, do foretell of him,
His raſh fierce blaze of Ryot cannot laſt,
For violent fires ſoone burne out themſelues,
Small ſhowres laſt long, but ſodaine ſtormes are ſhort.
He tyres betimes, that ſpurs too faſt betimes;
With eager feeding, food doth choake the feeder:
Light vanity, inſatiate cormorant,
Conſuming meanes ſoone preyes vpon it ſelfe.
This royall Throne of Kings, this ſceptred Iſle,
This earth of Maieſty, this ſeate of Mars,
This other Eden, demy paradiſe,
This Fortreſſe built by Nature for her ſelfe,
Againſt infection, and the hand of warre:
This happy breed of men, this little world,
This precious ſtone, ſet in the ſiluer ſea,
Which ſerues it in the office of a wall,
Or as a Moate defenſiue to a houſe,
Againſt the enuy of leſſe happier Lands,
This bleſſed plot, this earth, this Realme, this England,
This Nurſe, this teeming wombe of Royall Kings,
Fear'd by their breed, and famous for their birth,
Renowned for their deeds, as farre from home,
For Chriſtian ſeruice, and true Chiualrie,
As is the ſepulcher in ſtubborne Iury
Of the Worlds ranſome, bleſſed Marie's Sonne.
This Land of ſuch deere ſoules, this deere-deere Land,
Deere for her reputation through the world,
Is now Leas'd out (I dye pronouncing it)
Like to a Tenement or pelting Farme.
England bound in with the triumphant ſea,
Whoſe rocky ſhore beates backe the enuious ſiedge
Of watery Neptune, is now bound in with ſhame,
With Inky blottes, and rotten Parchment bonds.
That England, that was wont to conquer others,
Hath made a ſhamefull conqueſt of it ſelfe.
Ah! would the ſcandall vaniſh with my life,
How happy then were my enſuing death?

Enter King, Queene, Aumerle, Buſhy, Greene, Bagot, Ros, and Willoughby.

Tor The King is come, deale mildly with his youth,
For young hot Colts, being rag'd do rage the more.
Qu. How fares our noble Vncle Lancaſter?
Ri. What comfort man? How is't with aged Gaunt?
Ga. Oh how that name befits my compoſition:
Old Gaunt indeed, and gaunt in being old:
Within me greefe hath kept a tedious faſt,
And who abſtaynes from meate, that is not gaunt?
For ſleeping England long time haue I watcht,
Watching breeds leanneſſe, leanneſſe is all gaunt.
The pleaſure that ſome Fathers feede vpon,
Is my ſtrict faſt, I meane my Childrens lookes,
And therein faſting, haſt thou made me gaunt:
Gaunt am I for the graue, gaunt as a graue,
Whoſe hollow wombe inherits naught but bones.
Ric. Can ſicke men play ſo nicely with their names?
Gaun. No, miſery makes ſports to mocke it ſelfe:
Since thou doſt ſeeke to kill my name in mee,

…time (great King) is flatter thee
…ild dying men flatter thoſe that liue?
…, no, men liuing flatter thoſe that dye.
…ou now a dying, ſayſt thou flatter'ſt me.
…no, thou dyeſt, though I the ſicker be.
…m in health. I breath, I ſee thee ill.
…w he that made me, knowes I ſee thee ill:
…nd ſee, and in thee, ſeeing ill,
…ed is no leſſer then the Land,
…ul yeſt in reputation ſicke,
…o care-leſſe patient as thou art,
…y'anointed body to the cure
…ſitians, that firſt wounded thee.
…flatterers ſit within thy Crowne.
…ſſe is no bigger then thy head,
…ged in ſo ſmall a Verge,
…no whit leſſer then thy Land:
…randſire with a Prophets eye,
…is ſonnes ſonne, ſhould deſtroy his ſonnes,
…y reach he would haue laid thy ſhame,
…e before thou were poſſeſt,
…olleſt now to depoſe thy ſelfe.
…) were thou Regent of the world,
…me to let his Land by leaſe:
…world enioying but this Land,
…e then ſhame, to ſhame it ſo?
…England art thou, and not King:
…Law, is bondſlaue to the law,

…l thou, a lunaticke leane-witted ſoole,
…n en Agues priuiledge,
…y frozen admonition
…r cheeke, chaſing the Royall blood
…om his natiue reſidence?
…eates right Royall Maieſtie,
…ot Brother to great Edwards ſonne,
…that runs ſo roundly in thy head,
…y head from thy vnreuerent ſhoulders.
…ſpare me not, my brothers Edwards ſonne,
…s his Father Edwards ſonne:
…lready (like the Pellican)
…t ours, and drunkenly carows'd
…Gloucester, plaine well meaning ſoule
…befall in heauen 'mongſt happy ſoules)
…ident, and witneſſe good,
…peet'll not ſpilling Edwards blood:
…he preſent ſickneſſe that I haue,
…ndneſſe be like crooked age,
…ce a too-long wither'd flowre,
…ume, but dye not ſhame with thee,
…hereafter, thy tormentors bee.
…o my bed, then to my graue,
…liue, that loue and honor haue. Exit
…let them dye, that age and ſullens haue,
…thou, and both become the graue.
…beſeech your Maieſtie impute his words
…ickneſſe, and age in him:
…on my life, and holds you deare
…ke of Herford, were he heere.
…e, you ſay true: as Herfords loue, ſo his;
…mine: and all be as it is.

Enter Northumberland.

…Liege, olde Gaunt commends him to your

Rich. What ſayes he?

Nor. Nay nothing, all is ſaid:
His tongue is now a ſtringleſſe inſtrument,
Words, life, and all, old Lancaſter hath ſpent.

Yor. Be Yorke the next, that muſt be bankrupt ſo,
Though death be poore, it ends a mortall wo.

Rich. The ripeſt fruit firſt falls, and ſo doth he,
His time is ſpent, our pilgrimage muſt be:
So much for that. Now for our Iriſh warres,
We muſt ſupplant thoſe rough rug-headed Kernes,
Which liue like venom, where no venom elſe
But onely they, haue priuiledge to liue.
And for theſe great affayres do aſke ſome charge
Towards our aſſiſtance, we do ſeize to vs
The plate, coins, reuennewes, and moueables,
Whereof our Vncle Gaunt did ſtand poſſeſt.

Yor. How long ſhall I be patient? Oh how long
Shall tender dutie make me ſuffer wrong?
Nor Glouſters death, nor Herfords baniſhment,
Nor Gauntes rebukes, nor Englands priuate wrongs,
Nor the preuention of poore Bullingbrookes,
About his marriage, nor my owne diſgrace
Haue euer made me ſowre my patient cheeke,
Or bend one wrinckle on my Soueraignes face:
I am the laſt of noble Edwards ſonnes,
Of whom thy Father Prince of Wales was firſt,
In warre was neuer Lyon rag'd more fierce:
In peace, was neuer gentle Lambe more milde,
Then was that yong and Princely Gentleman,
His face thou haſt, for euen ſo look'd he Accompliſh'd with the number of thy howres:
But when he frown'd, it was againſt the French,
And not againſt his friends: his noble hand
Did win what he did ſpend: and ſpent not that
Which his triumphant fathers hand had won:
His hands were guilty of no kindreds blood,
But bloody with the enemies of his kinne:
Oh Richard, Yorke is too farre gone with greeſe,
Or elſe he neuer would compare betweene.

Rich. Why Vncle,
What's the matter?

Yor. Oh my Liege, pardon me if you pleaſe, if not
I pleas'd not to be pardon'd, am content with all:
Seeke you to ſeize, and gripe into your hands
The Royalties and Rights of baniſh'd Herford?
Is not Gaunt dead? and doth not Herford liue?
Was not Gaunt iuſt? and is not Harry true?
Did not the one deſerue to haue an heyre?
Is not his heyre a well-deſerving ſonne?
Take Herfords rights away, and take from time
His Charters, and his cuſtomarie rights:
Let not to morrow then inſue to day,
Be not thy ſelfe. For how art thou a King
But by faire ſequence and ſucceſſion?
Now afore God, God forbid I ſay true,
If you do wrongfully ſeize Herfords right,
Call in his Leuters Parents that he hath
By his Attorneyes generall, to ſue
His Liuerie, and denie his offer'd homage,
You plucke a thouſand dangers on your head,
You looſe a thouſand well-diſpoſed hearts,
And pricke my tender patience to thoſe thoughts
Which honor and allegeance cannot thinke

Ric. Thinke what you will: we ſeiſe into our hands,
His plate, his goods, his money, and his lands.

Yor. Ile not be by the while: My Liege farewell,

What will enſue hereof, there's none can tell.
But by bad courſes may be vnderſtood,
That their euents can neuer fall out good. Exeunt.
Rich. Go Baſhie to the Earle of Wiltſhire ſtraight,
Bid him repaire to vs to Ely houſe,
To ſee this buſineſſe. to morrow next
We will for Ireland, and 'tis time, I trow:
And we create in abſence of our ſelfe
Our Vncle Yorke, Lord Gouernor of England:
For he is iuſt, and alwayes lou'd vs well
Come on our Queene, to morrow muſt we part,
Be merry, for our time of ſtay is ſhort. Flourish.
Manet North. Willoughby, & Ross
Nor. Well Lords, the Duke of Lancaſter is dead.
Roſſ. And living too, for now his ſonne is Duke.
Wil. Barely in title, not in reuennew
Nor. Richly in both, if iuſtice had her right.
Roſſ. My heart is great: but it muſt break with ſilence,
Ere't be diſburthen'd with a liberall tongue
Nor. Nay ſpeake thy mind: & let him ne'r ſpeak more
That ſpeakes thy words againe to do thee harme.
Wil. Tends that thou dſt ſpeake to th' Du. of Hereford,
If it be ſo, out with it boldly man,
Quicke is mine care to heare of good towards him.
Roſſ. No good at all that I can do for him,
Vnleſſe you call it good to pitie him,
Bereft and gelded of his patrimonie.
Nor. Now afore heauen, 'tis ſhame ſuch wrongs are borne,
In him a royall Prince, and many moe
Of noble blood in this declining Land;
The King is not himſelfe, but baſely led
By Flatterers, and what they will informe
Merely in hate 'gainſt any of vs all.
That will the King ſeuerely proſecute
'Gainſt vs, our liues, our children, and our heires.
Roſ. The Commons hath he pil'd with grieuous taxes
And quite loſt their hearts: the Nobles hath he fin'de
For ancient quarrels, and quite loſt their hearts.
Wil. And daily new exactions are deuis'd,
As blankes, benevolences, and I wot not what:
But what o'Gods name doth become of this?
Nor. Wars hath not waſted it, for warr'd he hath not.
But baſely yeelded vpon compromiſe,
That which his Anceſtors atchiev'd with blowes:
More hath he ſpent in peace, then they in warres.
Roſ. The Earle of Wiltſhire hath the realme in Farme.
Wil. The Kings growne bankrupt like a broken man.
Nor. Reproach, and diſſolution hangeth ouer him.
Roſ. He hath not monie for theſe Iriſh warres:
(His burthenous exactions notwithſtanding)
But by the robbing of the baniſh'd Duke.
Nor. His noble Kinſman, moſt degenerate King:
But Lords, we heare this fearefull tempeſt ſing,
Yet ſeeke no ſhelter to auoid the ſtorme:
We ſee the winde ſit ſore vpon our ſailes,
And yet we ſtrike not, but ſecurely periſh.
Roſ. We ſee the very wracke that we muſt ſuffer,
And vnauoyded is the danger now
For ſuffering ſo the cauſes of our wracke.
Nor. Not ſo: euen through the hollow eyes of death,
I ſpie life peering: but I dare not ſay
How neere the tidings of our comfort is.
Wil. Nay let vs ſhare thy thoughts, as thou doſt ours
Roſ. Be confident to ſpeake Northumberland,
We three, are but thy ſelfe, and ſpeaking ſo,
Thy words are but as thoughts, therefore be bold.
Nor. Then thus: I haue from Port le Blanc
A Bay in Britaine, receiu'd intelligence,
That Harry Duke of Hereford, Rainold Lord Cobham,
That late broke from the Duke of Exeter,
His brother Archbiſhop, late of Canterbury,
Sir Thomas Erpingham, Sir Iohn Ramſton,
Sir Iohn Norberie, Sir Robert Waterton, & Francis Quoint,
All theſe well furniſh'd by the Duke of Britaine,
With eight tall ſhips, three thouſand men of warre
Are making hither with all due expedience.
And ſhortly meane to touch our Northerne ſhore:
Perhaps they had ere this, but that they ſtay
The firſt departing of the King for Ireland.
If then we ſhall ſhake off our ſlauiſh yoake,
Imp out our drooping Countries broken wing,
Redeeme from broaking pawne the blemiſh'd Crowne,
Wipe off the duſt that hides our Scepters gilt,
And make high Maieſtie looke like it ſelfe,
Away with me in poſte to Ravenſpurgh,
But if you faint, as fearing to do ſo,
Stay, and be ſecret, and my ſelfe will go.
Roſ. To horſe, to horſe, vrge doubts to them that feare
Wil. Hold out my horſe, and I will firſt be there.
Exeunt.

Scena Secunda.

Enter Queene, Baſhy, and Bagot.
Baſh. Madam, your Maieſty is too much ſad.
You promis'd when you parted with the King,
To lay aſide ſelfe-harming heauineſſe,
And entertaine a chearefull diſpoſition.
Qu. To pleaſe me King, I did to pleaſe my ſelfe
I cannot do it: yet I know no cauſe
Why I ſhould welcome ſuch a gueſt as greefe,
Saue bidding farewell to ſo ſweet a gueſt
As my ſweet Richard: yet againe me thinkes,
Some vnborne ſorrow, ripe in fortunes wombe
Is comming towards me, and my inward ſoule
With nothing trembles, at ſomething it greeues,
More then with parting from my Lord the King.
Baſh. Each ſubſtance of a greefe hath twenty ſhadowes
Which ſhewes like greefe it ſelfe, but is not ſo:
For ſorrowes eye, glazed with blinding teares,
Diuides one thing intire, to many obiects,
Like perſpectiues, which rightly gaz'd vpon
Shew nothing but confuſion, ey'd awry,
Diſtinguiſh forme: ſo your ſweet Maieſtie
Looking awry vpon your Lords departure,
Finde ſhapes of greefe, more then himſelfe to waile,
Which look'd on as it is, is naught but ſhadowes
Of what it is not: then thrice-gracious Queene,
More then your Lords departure weep not, more's not
Or if it be, 'tis with falſe ſorrowes eie, (ſeene
Which for things true, weepe things imaginary.
Qu. It may be ſo: but yet my inward ſoule Perſwades me it is otherwiſe: how ere it be,
I cannot but be ſad: ſo heauy ſad,
As though on thinking on no thought I thinke,
Makes me with heauy nothing faint and ſhrinke.
Baſh. 'Tis nothing but conceit (my gracious Lady.)
Queene

othing leſſe: conceit is ſtill deriu'd
e father greeſe, mine is not ſo, ith begot my ſomething greeſe,
hath the nothing that I greeue,
n that I do poſſeſſe,
that is not yet knowne, what
'tis nameleſſe woe I wot.

Enter Greene.

en ſaue your Maieſty, and wel met Gentle-
g is not yet ſhipt for Ireland. (men:
hop'ſt thou ſo? Tis better hope he is ſ
ts ſeruue haſt, his haſt good hope,
e doſt thou hope he is not ſhipt?
e our hope, might haue retyr'd his power, s diſpaire an enemies hope,
hath ſet footing in this Land.
Bullingbrooke repeales himſelfe,
iſted Armes is ſafe arriu'd

God in heauen forbid.
am 'tis too true: and that is worſe,
mberland, his yong ſonne Henrie Percie, Ross. Beaumond. and Willoughby, powrefull friends are fled to him.
aue you not proclaim'd Northumberland
f the reuolted faction, Traitors?
ue: whereupon the Earle of Worceſter ſtaffe, reſign'd his Stewardſhip.
iſhold ſeruants fled with him to Bullinbrook.
rene, thou art the midwife of my woe,
ke my ſorrowes dismall heyre:
ſoule brought forth her prodegie,
g new deliuered mother,
woe, ſorrow to ſorrow ioyn'd.
aire not Madam.
ſhall hinder me?
and be at enmitie
ng hope; he is a Flatterer,
eeper backe of death,
would diſſolue the bands of life,
opes linger in extremity.

Enter Yorke

comes the Duke of Yorke.
ſignes of warre about his aged necke,
ſoft buſineſſe are his lookes:
ueen ſakt ſpeake comfortable words:
ort's in heauen, and we are on the earth,
ng liues but croſſes, care and greefe:
d he is gone to ſaue farre off,
e come to make him looſe at home:
ſt to vnder-prop his Land,
with age, cannot ſupport my ſelfe.
he ſicke houre that his ſurfet made,
try his friends that flattered him.

Enter a ſeruant

ord, your ſonne was gone before I came.
as: why ſo: go all which way it will:
hey are fled, the Commons they are cold,
re reuolt on Herfords ſide.
e to Plaſhie to my ſiſter Gloſter, ne preſently a thouſand pound,
y King
Lord. I had forgot
ordſhip, to day I came by, and call'd there,
reuue you to report the reſt.
t is't knaue?

Ser. An houre before I came, the Dutcheſſe di'de.

Yor. Heau'n for his mercy, what a tide of woes
Come ruſhing on this wofull Land at once?
I know not what to do: I would to heauen
(So my vntruth had not prouok'd him to it)
The King had cut off my head with my brothers.
What, are there poſtes diſpatcht for Ireland?
How ſhall we do for money for theſe warres?
Come ſiſter (Cozen I would ſay) pray pardon me.
Go fellow, get thee home, prouide ſome Carts,
And bring away the Armour that is there.
Gentlemen, will you muſter men?
If I know how, or which way to order theſe affaires
Thus diſorderly thruſt into my hands,
Neuer beleeue me. Both are my kinſmen,
Th'one is my Soueraigne, whom both my oath
And dutie bids defend: th'other againe
Is my kinſman, whom the King hath wrong'd,
Whom conſcience, and my kindred bids to right:
Well, ſomewhat we muſt do: Come Cozen,
Ile diſpoſe of you. Gentlemen, go muſter vp your men,
And meet me preſently at Barkley Caſtle:
I ſhould to Plaſhy too: but time will not permit.
All is vneuen, and euery thing is left at ſix and ſeuen. Exit

Buſh. The winde ſits faire for newes to go to Ireland,
But none returnes: For vs to leuy power
Proportionable to th'enemy, is all impoſſible.

Gr. Beſides our neerenеſſe to the King in loue,
Is neere the hate of thoſe loue not the King.

Ba And that's the wauering Commons, for their loue
Lies in their purſes, and who ſo empties them,
By ſo much his their hearts with deadly hate.

Buſh. Wherein the king ſtands generally condemn'd

Bag. If iudgement lye in them, then ſo do we,
Becauſe we haue beene euer neere the King.

Gr. Well: I will for refuge ſtraight to Briſtoll Caſtle:
The Earle of Wileſhire is alreadie there.

Buſh. Thither will I with you, for little office
Will the hatefull Commons performe for vs,
Except like Curres, to teare vs all in peeces:
Will you go along with vs?

Bag. No, I will to Ireland to his Maieſtie:
Farewell, if heart's preſages be not vaine,
We three here part, that neu'r ſhall meete againe.

Bu. That's as Yorke thriues to beate back Bullinbrooke

Gr. Alas poore Duke, the taske he vndertakes
Is numbring ſands, and drinking Oceans drie,
Where one on his ſide fights, thouſands will flye.

Buſh. Farewell at once, for once, for all, and euer.
Well, we may meete againe.

Bag. I feare me neuer. Ex

Scæna Tertia.

Enter the Duke of Hereford, and Northumberland.

Bul. How farre is it my Lord to Berkley now?

Nor. Beleeue me noble Lord,
I am a ſtranger heere in Glouſterſhire,
Theſe high wilde hilles, and rough vneuen waies,
Drawes out our miles, and makes them wearieſomer:
And yet our faire diſcourſe hath beene as ſugar,

Mak in Making the hard way sweet and delectable:

But I bethinke me, what a wearie way
From Rauenspurgh to Cottshold will be found,
In Ross and Willoughby, wanting your companie,
Which I protest hath very much beguild
The tediousnesse, and processe of my trauell:
But theirs is sweetned with the hope to haue
The present benefit that I possesse;
And hope to ioy, is little lesse in ioy,
Then hope enioy'd: By this, the wearie Lords
Shall make their way seeme short, as mine hath done,
By sight of what I haue, your Noble Companie.

Bull. Of much lesse value is my Companie,
Then your good words: but who comes here?

Enter H. Percie.

North. It is my Soone, young Harry Percie,
Sent from my Brother Worcester: Whence soeuer.
Harry, how fares your Vnckle?

Percie. I had thought, my Lord, to haue learn'd his health of you.

North. Why, is he not with the Queene?

Percie. No, my good Lord, he hath forsook the Court,
Broken his Staffe of Office, and dispers'd
The Houshold of the King.

North. What was his reason?
He was not so resolu'd, when we last spake together.

Percie. Because your Lordship was proclaimed Traitor.
But hee, my Lord, is gone to Rauenspurgh,
To offer seruice to the Duke of Hereford,
And sent me ouer by Barkely, to discouer
What power the Duke of Yorke had leuied there,
Then with direction to repaire to Rauenspurgh.

North. Haue you forgot the Duke of Hereford (Boy.)

Percie. No, my good Lord; for that is not forgot
Which ne're I did remember: to my knowledge,
I neuer in my life did looke on him.

North. Then learne to know him now: this is the Duke.

Percie. My gracious Lord, I tender you my seruice,
Such as it is, being tender, raw, and young,
Which elder dayes shall ripen, and confirme
To more approued seruice and desert.

Bull. I thanke thee gentle Percie, and be sure
I count my selfe in nothing else so happy,
As in a Soule remembring my good Friends:
And, as my Fortune ripens with thy Loue,
It shall be still thy true Loues recompence,
My Heart this Couenant makes, my Hand thus seales it.

North. How farre is it to Barkely? and what stirre Keepes good old Yorke there, with his Men of Warre?

Percie. There stands the Castle, by yond tuft of Trees,
Mann'd with three hundred men, as I haue heard,
And in it are the Lords of Yorke, Barkely, and Seymor,
None else of Name, and noble estimate.

Enter Rosse and Willoughby.

North. Here come the Lords of Rosse and Willoughby,
Bloody with spurring, fiercie red with haste.

Bull. Welcome my Lords, I wot your loue pursues
A banisht Traytor; all my Treasurie
Is yet but vnfelt thankes, which more enrich'd,
Shall be your loue, and labours recompence.

Ross. Your presence makes vs rich, most Noble Lord.

Wills. And farre surmounts our labour to attaine it.

Bull. Euermore thankes, th'Exchequer of the poore,
Which till my infant-fortune comes to yeeres,
Stands for my Bountie: but who comes here?

Enter Barkely.

North. It is my Lord of Barkely, as I ghesse.

Bark. My Lord of Hereford, my Message is to you.

Bull. My Lord, my Answere is to Lancaster,
And I am come to seeke that Name in England,
And I must finde that Title in your Tongue,
Before I make reply to aught you say.

Bark. Mistake me not, my Lord, 'tis not my meaning
To raze one Title of your Honor out.
To you, my Lord, I come (what Lord you will)
From the most glorious of this Land,
The Duke of Yorke, to know what pricks you on
To take aduantage of the absent time,
And fright our Native Peace with selfe-borne Armes.

Enter Yorke.

Bull. I shall not need transport my words by you,
Here comes his Grace in Person. My Noble Vnckle.

York. Shew me thy humble heart, and not thy knee,
Whose duty is deceiuable, and false.

Bull. My gracious Vnckle.

York. Tut, tut Grace me no Grace, nor Vnckle me,
I am no Traytors Vnckle; and that word Grace,
In an vngracious mouth, is but prophane.
Why haue these banish'd, and forbidden Legges,
Dar'd once to touch a Dust of Englands Ground?
But more then why, why haue they dar'd to march
So many miles vpon her peaceful Bosome,
Frighting her pale-fac'd Villages with Warre,
And ostentation of despised Armes?
Com'st thou because th'anointed King is hence?
Why foolish Boy, the King is left behind,
And in my loyall Bosome lyes his power.
Were I but now the Lord of such hot youth,
As when braue Gaunt, thy Father, and my selfe
Rescued the Black Prince, that yong Mars of men,
From forth the Ranken of many thousand French:
Oh then, how quickly should this Arme of mine,
Now Prisoner to the Palsie, chastise thee,
And minister correction to thy Fault.

Bull. My gracious Vnckle, let me know my Fault,
On what Condition stands it, and wherein?

York. Euen in Condition of the worst degree,
In grosse Rebellion, and detested Treason:
Thou art a banish'd man, and here art come
Before th'expiration of thy time,
In braoing Armes against thy Soueraigne.

Bull. As I was banish'd, I was banish'd Hereford,
But as I come, I come for Lancaster.
And Noble Vnckle, I beseech your Grace
Looke on my Wrongs with an indifferent eye:
You are my Father, for me thinkes in you
I see old Gaunt alive. Oh then my Father,
Will you permit, that I shall stand condemn'd
A wandring Vagabond; my Rights and Royalties
Pluckt from my armes perforce, and giuen away
To vpstart Vnthrifts? Wherefore was I borne?
If that my Cousin King, be King of England,
It must be graunted, I am Duke of Lancaster.
You haue a Sonne, Aumerle, my Noble Kinsman.
Had you first died, and he beene thus trod downe,
He should haue found his Vnckle Gaunt a Father,
To rowze his Wrongs, and chase them to the bay.
I am denyde to sue my Liuerie here,
And yet my Letters Patents giue me leaue:
My Fathers goods are all distrayned, and sold,
And these, and all, are all amisse imployd.

What

What would you haue me doe? I am a Subiect,
And challenge Law: Attorneyes are deny'd me;
And therefore personally I lay my claime
To my Inheritance of free Discent.

North. The Noble Duke hath been too much abus'd.

Ross. It stands your Grace vpon, to doe him right.

Wille. Base men by his endowments are made great.

Yorke. My Lords of England, let me tell you this,
I haue had feeling of my Cosens Wrongs,
And labour'd all I could to doe him right:
But in this kind, to come in braving Armes,
Be his owne Caruer, and cut out his way,
To find out Right with Wrongs, it may not be;
And you that doe abett him in this kind,
Cherish Rebellion, and are Rebels all.

North. The Noble Duke hath sworne his comming is
But for his owne; and for the right of that,
We all haue strongly sworne to giue him ayd,
And let him ne'r see Ioy, that breakes that Oath.

Yorke. Well, well, I see the issue of these Armes,
I cannot mend it, I must needes confesse,
Because my power is weake, and all ill left:
But if I could, by him that gaue me life,
I would attach you all, and make you stoope
Vnto the Soueraigne Mercy of the King.
But since I cannot, be it knowne to you,
I doe remaine as Neuter. So fare you well,
Vnlesse you please to enter in the Castle,
And there repose you for this Night.

Bull. An offer Yockle, that we will accept:
But we must winne your Grace to goe with vs
To Bristow Castle, which they say is held
By Bushie, Bagot, and their Complices,
The Caterpillers of the Commonwealth,
Which I haue sworne to weed, and plucke away.

Yorke. It may be I will go with you: but yet Ile pawse,
For I am loth to breake our Countries Lawes:
Nor Friends, nor Foes, to me welcome you are,
Things past redresse, are now with me past care. Exeunt.

Scæna Quarta.

Enter Salisbury, and a Captaine.

Capt. My Lord of Salisbury, we haue stayd ten dayes,
And hardly kept our Countreymen together,
And yet we heare no tidings from the King;
Therefore we will disperse our selues: farewell.

Sal. Stay yet another day, thou trustie Welchman,
The King reposeth all his confidence in thee.

Capt. 'Tis thought the King is dead, we will not stay;
The Bay-trees in our Country all are wither'd,
And Meteors fright the fixed Starres of Heauen;
The pale-fac'd Moone lookes bloody on the Earth,
And leane-look'd Prophets whisper fearefull change;
Rich men looke sad, and Ruffians dance and leape,
The one in feare, to loose what they enioy,
The other to enioy by Rage, and Warre:
These signes fore-run the death of Kings.
Farewell, our Countreymen are gone and fled,
As well assur'd Richard their King is dead. Exit.

Sal. Ah Richard, with eyes of heauie mind,
I see thy Glory, like a shooting Starre,
Fall to the base Earth, from the Firmament:
Thy Sunne sets weeping in the lowly West,
Witnessing Stormes to come, Woe, and Vnrest:
Thy Friends are fled, to wait vpon thy Foes,
And crossely to thy good, all fortune goes. Exit.

Actus Tertius. Scena Prima.

Enter Bullingbrooke, Yorke, Northumberland, Rosse, Percie, Willoughby, with Bushie and Greene Prisoners.

Bull. Bring forth these men:
Bushie and Greene, I will not vex your soules,
(Since presently your soules must part your bodies)
With too much vrging your pernitious liues,
For 'twere no Charitie: yet to wash your blood
From off my hands, here in the view of men,
I will vnfold some causes of your deaths.
You haue mis-led a Prince, a Royall King,
A happie Gentleman in Blood, and Lineaments,
By you vnhappied, and disfigur'd cleane:
You haue in manner with your sinfull hours
Made a Diuorce betwixt his Queene and him,
Broke the possession of a Royall Bed,
And stayn'd the beautie of a faire Queenes Cheekes,
With teares drawn fro her eyes, with your foule wrongs.
My selfe a Prince, by fortune of my birth,
Neere to the King in blood, and neere in loue,
Till you did make him mis-interprete me,
Haue stoopt my neck vnder your iniuries,
And sigh'd my English breath in forraine Clouds,
Eating the bitter bread of banishment;
While you haue fed vpon my Seignories,
Dis-park'd my Parkes, and fell'd my Forrest Woods;
From mine owne Windowes torne my Household Coat,
Raz'd out my Impresse, leauing me no signe,
Saue mens opinions, and my liuing blood,
To shew the World I am a Gentleman.
This, and much more, much more then twice all this,
Condemnes you to the death: see them deliuered ouer
To execution, and the hand of death.

Bushie. More welcome is the stroake of death to me,
Then Bullingbrooke to England.

Greene. My comfort is, that Heauen will take our soules,
And plague Iniustice with the paines of Hell.

Bull. My Lord Northumberland, see them dispatch'd:
Yockle, you say the Queene is at your House,
For Heauens sake fairely let her be entreated,
Tell her I send to her my kind commends;
Take speciall care my Greetings be deliuer'd.

Yorke. A Gentleman of mine I haue dispatch'd
With Letters of your loue, to her at large.

Bull. Thankes gentle Yockle: come Lords away,
To fight with Glendoure, and his Complices;
A while to worke, and after holliday.

Exeunt.

Scæna

Scena Secunda.

Drums: Flourish, and Colours.

Enter Richard, Aumerle, Carlile, and Souldiers.

Rich. Barkloughly Caſtle call you this at hand?

Au. Yes, my Lord: how brooks your Grace the ayre,
After your late toſſing on the breaking Seas?

Rich. Needs muſt I like it well: I weepe for joy
To ſtand vpon my Kingdome once againe.
Deere Earth, I doe ſalute thee with my hand,
Though Rebels wound thee with their Horſes hooſes:
As a long parted Mother with her Child,
Playes fondly with her teares, and ſmiles in meeting;
So weeping, ſmiling, greet I thee my Earth,
And doe thee fauor with my Royall hands.
Feed not thy Soueraignes Foe, my gentle Earth,
Nor with thy Sweetes, comfort his rauenous ſence:
But let thy Spiders, that ſuck vp thy Venome,
And heauie-gated Toades lye in their way,
Doing annoyance to the trecherous feete,
Which with vſurping ſteps doe trample thee.
Yeeld ſtinging Nettles to mine Enemies,
And when they from thy Boſome pluck a Flower
Guard it I prethee with a lurking Adder,
Whoſe double tongue may with a mortall touch
Throw death vpon thy Soueraignes Enemies.
Mock not my ſenceleſſe Conjuration, Lords;
This Earth ſhall haue a feeling, and theſe Stones
Proue armed Souldiers, ere her Native King
Shall falter vnder foule Rebellious Armes.

Car. Feare not my Lord, that Power that made you King
Hath power to keepe you King, in ſpight of all.

Aum. He meanes, my Lord, that we are too remiſſe,
Whileſt Bullingbrooke through our ſecuritie,
Growes ſtrong and great, in ſubſtance and in friends.

Rich. Diſcomfortable Couſin, know'ſt thou not,
That when the ſearching Eye of Heauen is hid
Behind the Globe, that lights the lower World,
Then Theeues and Robbers raunge abroad vnſeene,
In Murthers and in Out-rage bloody here:
But when from vnder this Terreſtriall Ball
He fires the prowd tops of the Eaſterne Pines,
And darts his Lightning through eu'ry guiltie hole,
Then Murthers, Treaſons, and deteſted ſinnes
(The Cloake of Night being pluckt from off their backs)
Stand bare and naked, trembling at themſelues.
So when this Theeſe, this Traytor Bullingbrooke,
Who all this while hath reuell'd in the Night,
Shall ſee vs riſing in our Throne, the Eaſt,
His Treaſons will ſit bluſhing in his face,
Not able to endure the ſight of Day;
But ſelfe-affrighted, tremble at his ſinne.
Not all the Water in the rough rude Sea
Can waſh the Balme from an anoynted King;
The breach of worldly men cannot depoſe
The Deputie elected by the Lord:
For euery man that Bullingbrooke hath preſt,
To lift ſhrewd Steele againſt our Golden Crowne,
Heauen for his Richard hath in heauenly pay
A glorious Angell: then if Angels fight,
Weake men muſt fall, for Heauen ſtill guards the right.

Enter Salisbury.

Welcome my Lord, how farre off lyes your Power?

Salis. Nor neere, nor farther off, my gracious Lord,
Then this weake arme; diſcomfort guides my tongue,
And bids me ſpeake of nothing but deſpaire.
One day too late, I feare (my Noble Lord)
Hath clouded all thy happie dayes on Earth!
Oh call backe Yeſterday, bid Time returne,
And thou ſhalt haue twelue thouſand fighting men:
To day, to day, vnhappie day too late
Orethrowes thy Ioyes, Friends, Fortune, and thy State;
For all the Welchmen hearing thou wert dead,
Are gone to Bullingbrooke, diſperſt, and fled.

Aum. Comfort my Liege, why lookes your Grace ſo pale?

Rich. But now the blood of twentie thouſand men
Did triumph in my face, and they are fled,
And till ſo much blood thither come againe,
Haue I not reaſon to looke pale, and dead?
All Soules that will be ſafe, flye from my ſide,
For Time hath ſet a blot vpon my pride.

Aum. Comfort my Liege, remember who you are.

Rich. I had forgot my ſelfe. Am I not King?
Awake thou ſluggard Maieſtie, thou ſleepeſt:
Is not the Kings Name fortie thouſand Names?
Arme, arme my Name: a puniſe ſubiect ſtrikes
At thy great glory. Looke not to the ground,
Ye Fauorites of a King: are we not high?
High be our thoughts: I know my Vncle Yorke
Hath Power enough to ſerue our turne.
But who comes here? Enter Scroope.

Scroope. More health and happineſſe betide my Liege,
Then can my care-tun'd tongue deliuer him.

Rich. Mine eare is open, and my heart prepar'd:
The worſt is worldly loſſe, thou canſt vnfold:
Say, Is my Kingdome loſt? why 'twas my Care:
And what loſſe is it to be rid of Care?
Striues Bullingbrooke to be as Great as wee?
Greater he ſhall not be: If hee ſerue God,
Wee'l ſerue him too, and be his Fellow ſo.
Reuolt our Subiects? That we cannot mend,
They breake their Faith to God, as well as vs:
Cry Woe, Deſtruction, Ruine, Loſſe, Decay,
The worſt is Death, and Death will haue his day.

Scroope. Glad am I, that your Highneſſe is ſo arm'd
To beare the tidings of Calamitie.
Like an vnſeaſonable ſtormie day,
Which make the Siluer Riuers drowne their Shores,
As if the World were all diſſolu'd to teares:
So high, aboue his Limits, ſwells the Rage
Of Bullingbrooke, coueting your fearefull Land
With hard bright Steele, and hearts harder then Steele:
White Beares haue arm'd their thin and hairleſſe Scalps
Againſt thy Maieſtie, and Boyes with Womens Voyces,
Striue to ſpeake bigge, and clap their female ioints
In ſtiffe vnwieldie Armes: againſt thy Crowne
Thy very Beadſ-men learne to bend their Bowes
Of double fatall Eugh: againſt thy State
Yea Diſtaffe-Women manage ruſtie Bills:
Againſt thy Seat both young and old rebell,
And all goes worſe then I haue power to tell.

Rich. Too well too well thou tell'ſt a Tale ſo ill.
Where is the Earle of Wiltſhire? where is Bagot?
What is become of Bushy? where is Greene?

That

That they haue let the dangerous Enemie
Measure our Confines with such peacefull steps?
If we preuaile, their heads shall pay for it.
I warrant they haue made peace with Bullingbrooke.
Scroope. Peace haue they made with him indeede (my Lord.)
Rich. Oh Villains, Vipers, damn'd without redemption,
Dogges, easily woon to fawne on any man,
Snakes in my heart blood warm'd, that sting my heart,
Three Iudasses, each one thrice worse then Iudas,
Would they make peace? terrible Hell make warre
Vpon their spotted Soules for this Offence.
Scroope. Sweet Loue (I see) changing his propertie, Turnes to the sowrest, and most deadly hate:
Againe vncurse their Soules; their peace is made
With Heads, and not with Hands: those whom you curse
Haue felt the worst of Deaths destroying hand,
And lye full low, grau'd in the hollow ground.
Aum. Is Bushie, Greene, and the Earle of Wiltshire dead?
Scroope. Yea, all of them at Bristow lost their heads.
Aum. Where is the Duke my Father with his Power?
Rich. No matter where; of comfort no man speake:
er's talke of Graues, of Wormes, and Epitaphs, ake Dust our Paper, and with Raynie eyes rite Sorrow on the Bosome of the Earth.
t's chuse Executors, and talke of Wills:
d yet not so; for what can we bequeath,
e our deposed bodies to the ground?
Lands, our Liues, and all are Bullingbrookes, nothing can we call our owne, but Death,
that small Modell of the barren Earth,
ch serues as Paste, and Couer to our Bones:
eauens sake let vs sit vpon the ground,
ell sad stories of the death of Kings:
some haue been depos'd, some slaine in warre,
haunted by the Ghosts they haue depos'd,
oyson'd by their Wiues, some sleeping kill'd, rther'd. For within the hollow Crowne unds the mortall Temples of a King,
Death his Court, and there the Antique sits his State, and grinning at his Pompe,
g him a breath, a little Scene,
rchize, be fear'd, and kill with lookes,
im with selfe and vaine conceit,
Flesh, which walls about our Life,
se impregnable: and humor'd thus,
the last, and with a little Pinne ugh his Castle Walls, and farwell King.
r heads, and mock not flesh and blood
ne Reuerence: throw away Respect, orme, and Ceremonious dutie,
e but mistooke me all this while:
read like you, feele Want,
need Friends: subiected thus,
say to me, I am a King?
rd, wise men ne're waile their present woes,
resent the wayes to waile:
e, since feare oppresseth strength,
eakenesse, strength vnto your Foe;
ine, no worse can come to fight,
e, is death destroying death,
dying, payes death seruile breath.
at hath a Power, enquire of him,
ke a Body of a Limbe.
st me well: proud Bullingbrooke I come
To change Blowes with thee, for our day of Doome:
This ague fit of feare is ouer-blowne,
An easie taske it is to winne our owne.
Say Scroope, where lyes our Vnckle with his Power?
Speake sweetly man, although thy lookes be sowre.
Scroope. Men iudge by the complexion of the Skie
The state and inclination of the day;
So may you by my dull and heauie Eye:
My Tongue hath but a heauier Tale to say:
I play the Torturer, by small and small
To lengthen out the worst, that must be spoken.
Your Vnckle Yorke is ioyn'd with Bullingbrooke,
And all your Northerne Castles yeelded vp,
And all your Southerne Gentlemen in Armes
Vpon his Faction.
Rich. Thou hast said enough.
Beshrew thee Cousin, which didst lead me forth
Of that sweet way I was in, to despaire:
What say you now? What comfort haue we now?
By Heauen Ile hate him euerlastingly,
That bids me be of comfort any more.
Goe to Flint Castle, there Ile pine away,
A King, Woes slaue, shall Kingly Woe obey:
That Power I haue, discharge, and let 'em goe
To eare the Land, that hath some hope to grow,
For I haue none. Let no man speake againe
To alter this, for counsaile is but vaine.
Aum. My Liege, one word.
Rich. He does me double wrong,
That wounds me with the flatteries of his tongue.
Discharge my followers: let them hence away,
From Richards Night, to Bullingbrookes faire Day.
Exeunt.

Scæna Tertia.

Enter with Drum and Colours, Bullingbrooke, Yorke, Northumberland, Attendants.

Bull. So that by this intelligence we learne
The Welchmen are dispers'd, and Salisbury
Is gone to meet the King, who lately landed
With some few priuate friends, vpon this Coast.
North. The newes is very faire and good, my Lord,
Richard, not farre from hence, hath hid his head.
York. It would beseeme the Lord Northumberland,
To say King Richard: alack the heauie day,
When such a sacred King should hide his head.
North. Your Grace mistakes: onely to be briefe, Left I his Title out.
York. The time hath beene,
Would you haue beene so briefe with him, he would
Haue beene so briefe with you, to shorten you,
For taking so the Head, your whole heads length.
Bull. Mistake not (Vnckle) farther then you should.
York. Take not (good Cousin) farther then you should.
Least you mistake the Heauens are ore your head.
Bull. I know it (Vnckle) and oppose not my selfe Against their will. But who comes here?
Enter Percie.
Welcome Harry: what, will not this Castle yeeld?
Per. The Castle royally is mann'd, my Lord,
Against thy entrance.

Bull. Royally: Why, it containes no King?
Per. Yes (my good Lord)
It doth containe a King: King Richard lyes
Within the limits of yond Lime and Stone,
And with him, the Lord Aumerle, Lord Salisbury,
Sir Stephen Scroope, besides a Clergie man
Of holy reuerence; who, I cannot learne.
North. Oh, belike it is the Bishop of Carlile.
Bull. Noble Lord,
Goe to the rude Ribs of that ancient Castle,
Through Brazen Trumpet send the breath of Parle
Into his ruin'd Eares, and thus deliuer:
Henry Bullingbrooke vpon his knees doth kisse
King Richards hand, and sends allegeance
And true faith of heart to his Royall Person: hither come
Euen at his feet, to lay my Armes and Power,
Prouided, that my Banishment repeal'd,
And Lands restor'd againe, be freely graunted:
If not, Ile vse th'aduantage of my Power,
And lay the Summers dust with showers of blood,
Rayn'd from the wounds of slaughter'd Englishmen;
The which, how farre off from the mind of Bullingbrooke
It is, such Crimson Tempest should bedrench
The fresh greene Lap of faire King Richards Land,
My stooping dutie tenderly shall shew.
Goe signifie as much, while here we march
Vpon the Grassie Carpet of this Plaine:
Let's march without the noyse of threatning Drum,
That from this Castles tatter'd Battlements
Our faire Appointments may be well perus'd.
Me thinkes King Richard and my selfe should meet
With no lesse terror then the Elements
Of Fire and Water, when their thundring smoake
At meeting teares the cloudie Cheekes of Heauen:
Be he the fire, Ile be the yeelding Water;
The Rage be his while on the Earth I raine
My Waters on the Earth, and not on him.
March on, and marke King Richard how he lookes.
Parle without, and answere within: then a Flourish.
Enter on the Walls, Richard, Carlile, Aumerle, Scroop, Salisbury.
See see, King Richard doth himselfe appeare
As doth the blushing discontented Sunne,
From out the fierie Portall of the East,
When he perceiues the enuious Clouds are bent
To dimme his glory, and to staine the tract
Of his bright passage to the Occident.
Yorke. Yet lookes he like a King: behold his Eye
(As bright as is the Eagles) lightens forth
Controlling Maiestie: alack, alack, for woe,
That any harme should staine so faire a shew
Rich. We are amaz'd, and thus long haue we stood
To watch the fearefull bending of thy knee,
Because we thought our selfe thy lawfull King:
And if we be, how dare thy ioynts forget
To pay their awfull dutie to our presence?
If we be not, shew vs the Hand of God,
That hath dismiss'd vs from our Stewardship,
For well wee know, no Hand of Blood and Bone
Can gripe the sacred Handle of our Scepter,
Vnlesse he doe prophane, steale, or vsurpe.
And though you thinke, that all, as you haue done,
Haue torne their Soules, by turning them from vs,
And we are barren, and bereft of Friends:
Yet know, my Master, God Omnipotent,
Is mustring in his Clouds, on our behalfe,
Armies of Pestilence, and they shall strike
Your Children yet vnborne, and vnbegot,
That lift your Vassall Hands against my Head,
And threat the Glory of my precious Crowne.
Tell Bullingbrooke, for yond me thinkes he is,
That euery stride he makes vpon my Land,
Is dangerous Treason: He is come to ope
The purple Testament of bleeding Warre;
But ere the Crowne he lookes for, liue in peace,
Ten thousand bloody crownes of Mothers Sonnes
Shall ill become the flower of Englands face,
Change the complexion of her Maid-pale Peace
To Scarlet Indignation, and bedew
Her Pastors Grasse with faithfull English Blood.
North. The King of Heauen forbid our Lord the King
Should so with ciuill and vnciuill Armes
Be rush'd vpon: Thy thrice-noble Cousin,
Harry Bullingbrooke, doth humbly kisse thy hand,
And by the Honorable Tombe he sweares,
That stands vpon your Royall Grandsires Bones,
And by the Royalties of both your Bloods,
(Currents that spring from one most gracious Head)
And by the buried Hand of Warlike Gaunt,
And by the Worth and Honor of himselfe,
Comprising all that may be sworne, or said,
His comming hither hath no further scope,
Then for his Lineall Royalties, and to begge
Infranchisement immediate on his knees:
Which on thy Royall party graunted once,
His glittering Armes he will commend to rust,
His barbed Steedes to Stables, and his heart
To faithfull seruice of your Maiestie:
This sweares he, as he is a Prince, is iust,
And as I am a Gentleman, I credit him.
Rich. Northumberland, say thus: The King returnes,
His Noble Cousin is right welcome hither,
And all the number of his faire demands
Shall be accomplish'd without contradiction.
With all the gracious vtterance thou hast,
Speake to his gentle hearing kind commends.
We doe debase our selfe (Cousin) doe we not,
To looke so poorely, and to speake so faire?
Shall we call back Northumberland, and send Defiance to the Traytor, and so die?
Aum. No, good my Lord, let's fight with gentle words
Till time lend friends, and friends their helpefull Swords
Rich. Oh God, oh God, that ere this tongue of mine,
That layd the Sentence of dread Banishment
On yond proud man, should take it off againe
With words of sooth: Oh that I were as great
As is my Griefe, or lesser then my Name,
Or that I could forget what I haue beene,
Or not remember what I must be now:
Swell'st thou proud heart? Ile giue thee scope to beat,
Since Foes haue scope to beat both thee and me.
Aum. Northumberland comes backe from Bullingbrooke.
Rich. What must the King doe now? must he submit?
The King shall doe it: Must he be depos'd
The King shall be contented: Must he loose
The Name of King? o' Gods Name let it goe.
Ile giue my Iewels for a set of Beades,
My gorgeous Pallace, for a Hermitage,
My gay Apparell, for an Almes-mans Gowne,
My figur'd Goblets, for a Dish of Wood,
My Scepter, for a Palmers walking Staffe,

My

,for a payre of carued Saints,
e Kingdome,for a little Graue,
Graue,an obſcure Graue.
yed in the Kings high-way,
f common Trode,where Subiects feet
y trample on their Soueraignes Head:
art they tread now,whileſt I liue;
once,why not vpon my Head?
ou weep'ſt (my tender-hearted Couſin)
e foule Weather with deſpiſed Teares:
nd they,ſhall lodge the Summer Corne,
Dearth in this reuolting Land.
play the Wantons with our Woes, ome prettie Match,with ſhedding Teares?
drop them ſtill vpon one place,
ie fretted vs a payre of Graues,
Earth: and therein lay'd there lyes en,digg'd their Graues with weeping Eyes?
this ill,doe well? Well,well,I ſee
dly,and you mock at mee.
e Prince,my Lord Northumberland,
King Bullingbrooke? Will his Maieſtie
d leaue to liue,till Richard die?
Legge,and Bullingbrooke ſayes I.
My Lord,in the baſe Court he doth attend
ith you, may it pleaſe you to come downe.
owne,downe I come,like glift'ring Phaeton,
e manage of vnruly Iades.
Court? baſe Court,where Kings grow baſe,
Traytors Calls,and doe them Grace.
Court come down: down Court, down King,
wls ſhrike,where mouting Larks ſhould ſing.
hat ſayes his Maieſtie?
Sorrow,and griefe of heart
ſpeake fondly,like a frantick man:
ine.
nd all apart,
ire duzie to his Maieſtie.
e Lord.
ire Couſin.
your Princely Knee,
e baſe Earth prowd with kiſſing it.
ad,my Heart might ſettle your Loue, pleas'd Eye ſee your Courteſie.
vp, your Heart is vp,I know,
t leaſt,although your Knee be low.
y gracious Lord, I come but for mine

ius owne is yours, and I am yours, and farre be mine,my moſt redoubted Lord, ſeruice ſhall deſerue your loue.

ell you deſeru'd:
deſerue to haue,
the ſtrong'ſt, and ſureſt way to get.
e me your Hand: nay,drie your Eyes,
r their Loue,but want their Remedies.
too young to be your Father,
are old enough to be my Heire.
ill haue,I'le giue,and willing to,
moſt,what force will haue vs doe.
arde London
ſo?
e,my good Lord.
ue I muſt not ſay,no.
Flouriſh. Exeunt.

Scena Quarta.

Enter the Queene, and two Ladies.

Qu. What ſport ſhall we deuiſe here in this Garden,
To driue away the heauie thought of Care?
La. Madame,wee'le play at Bowles.
Qu. 'Twill make me thinke the World is full of Rubs
And that my fortune runnes againſt the Byas.
La. Madame,wee'le Dance.
Qu. My Legges can keepe no meaſure in Delight,
When my poore Heart no meaſure keepes in Griefe.
Therefore no Dancing(Girle) ſome other ſport.
La. Madame,wee'le tell Tales.
Qu. Of Sorrow, or of Griefe?
La. Of eyther,Madame.
Qu. Of neyther,Girle.
For if of Ioy,being altogether wanting,
It doth remember me the more of Sorrow:
Or if of Griefe,being altogether had,
It addes more Sorrow to my want of Ioy:
For what I haue,I need not to repeat;
And what I want,it bootes not to complaine.
La. Madame Ile ſing.
Qu. 'Tis well that thou haſt cauſe:
But thou ſhould'ſt pleaſe me better,would'ſt thou weepe.
La. I could weepe,Madame, would it doe you good.
Qu. And I could ſing,would weeping doe me good,
And neuer borrow any Teare of thee.

Enter a Gardiner, and two Seruants.

But ſtay,here comes the Gardiners,
Let's ſtep into the ſhadow of theſe Trees.
My wretchedneſſe,vnto a Rowe of Pinnes,
They'le talke of State; for euery one doth ſo,
Againſt a Change; Woe is forc-runne with Woe.
Gard. Goe binde thou vp yond dangling Apricocks,
Which like vnruly Children,make their Syre
Stoupe with oppreſſion of their prodigall weight:
Giue ſome ſupportance to the bending twigges.
Goe thou,and like an Executioner
Cut off the heads of too faſt growing ſprayes,
That looke too loftie in our Common-wealth:
All muſt be euen,in our Gouernment.
You thus imploy'd,I will goe root away
The noyſome Weedes,that without profit ſucke
The Soyles fertilitie from wholeſome flowers.
Ser. Why ſhould we,in the compaſſe of a Pale,
Keepe Law and Forme,and due Proportion,
Shewing as in a Modell our firme Eſtate?
When our Sea-walled Garden, the whole Land,
Is full of Weedes,her faireſt Flowers choakt vp,
Her Fruit-trees all vnpruin'd,her Hedges ruin'd,
Her Knots diſorder'd,and her wholeſome Hearbes
Swarming with Caterpillers.
Gard. Hold thy peace.
He that hath ſuffer'd this diſorder'd Spring,
Hath now himſelfe met with the Fall of Leafe.
The Weeds that his broad-ſpreading Leaues did ſhelter,
That ſeem'd,in eating him,to hold him vp,
Are pull'd vp,Root and all,by Bullingbrooke:
I meane,the Earle of Wiltſhire,Buſhie,Greene.

Ser. What are they dead?
Gard. They are,
And Bullingbrooke hath seiz'd the wastefull King.
Oh, what pitty is it, that he had not so trim'd
And dreſt his Land, as we this Garden, at time of yeare,
And wound the Barke, the skin of our Fruit-trees,
Leaſt being ouer-proud with Sap and Blood,
With too much riches it confound it ſelfe?
Had he done ſo, to great and growing men,
They might haue liu'd to beare, and he to taſte
Their fruites of dutie. Superfluous branches
We lop away, that bearing boughes may liue:
Had he done ſo, himſelfe had borne the Crowne,
Which waſte and idle houres, hath quite thrown downe.
Ser. What thinke you the King ſhall be depoſ'd?
Gar. Depreſt he is already, and depoſ'd
'Tis doubted he will be. Letters came laſt night
To a deere Friend of the Duke of Yorkes,
That tell blacke tydings.
Qu. Oh I am preſt to death through want of ſpeaking:
Thou old Adams likeneſſe, ſet to dreſſe this Garden:
How dares thy harſh rude tongue ſound this vnpleaſing
What Eue? what Serpent hath ſuggeſted thee, (newes
To make a ſecond fall of curſed man?
Why do'ſt thou ſay, King Richard is depoſ'd,
Dar'ſt thou, thou little better thing then earth,
Diuine his downfall? Say, where, when, and how Cam'ſt thou by this ill-tydings? Speake thou wretch.
Gard. Pardon me Madam, Little ioy haue I
To breath theſe newes; yet what I ſay, is true:
King Richard, he is in the mighty hold
Of Bullingbrooke, their Fortunes both are weigh'd:
In your Lords Scale, is nothing but himſelfe,
And ſome few Vanities, that make him light:
But in the Ballance of great Bullingbrooke,
Beſides himſelfe, are all the Engliſh Peeres,
And with that oddes he weighes King Richard downe.
Poſte you to London, and you'll finde it ſo,
I ſpeake no more, then euery one doth know.
Qu. Nimble miſchance, that art ſo light of foote,
Doth not thy Embaſſage belong to me?
And am I laſt that knowes it? Oh thou think'ſt
To ſerue me laſt, that I may longeſt keepe
Thy ſorrow in my breaſt. Come Ladies goe,
To meet at London, Londons King in woe.
What was I borne to this: that my ſad looke,
Should grace the Triumph of great Bullingbrooke.
Gard'ner, for telling me this newes of woe.
I would the Plants thou graft'ſt, may neuer grow. Exit.
G. Poore Queen, ſo that thy State might be no worſe,
I would my skill were ſubiect to thy curſe:
Heere did ſhe drop a teare, heere in this place
Ile ſet a Banke of Rew, ſowre Herbe of Grace:
Rue, cu'n for ruth, heere ſhortly ſhall be ſeene,
In the remembrance of a Weeping Queene. Exit.

Actus Quartus. Scœna Prima.

Enter as to the Parliament, Bullingbrooke, Aumerle, Northumberland, Percie, Fitz-Water, Surrey, Carliſle, Abbot of Weſtminſter. Herauld, Officers, and Bagot.

Bullingbrooke. Call forth Bagot.
Now Bagot, freely ſpeake thy minde,
What thou do'ſt know of Noble Glouſters death;
Who wrought it with the King, and who perform'd
The bloody Office of his Timeleſſe end.
Bag. Then ſet before my face, the Lord Aumerle.
Bul. Coſin, ſtand forth, and looke vpon that man.
Bag. My Lord Aumerle, I know your daring tongue
Scornes to vnſay, what it hath once deliuer'd.
In that dead time, when Glouſters death was plotted,
I heard you ſay, Is not my arme of length,
That reacheth from the reſtfull Engliſh Court
As farre as Calice, to my Vnkles head.
Amongſt much other talke, that very time,
I heard you ſay, that you had rather refuſe
The offer of an hundred thouſand Crownes,
Then Bullingbrookes returne to England; adding withall,
How bleſt this Land would be, in this your Coſens death.
Aum. Princes, and Noble Lords:
What anſwer ſhall I make to this baſe man?
Shall I ſo much diſhoonor my faire Starres,
On equall termes to giue him chaſtiſement?
Either I muſt, or haue mine honor ſoyl'd
With th'Attaindor of his ſlanderous Lippes.
There is my Gage, the manuall Seale of death
That markes thee out for Hell. Thou lyeſt,
And will maintaine what thou haſt ſaid, in falſe,
In thy heart blood, though being all too baſe
To ſtaine the temper of my Knightly ſword.
Bul. Bagot forbeare, thou ſhalt not take it vp.
Aum. Excepting one, I would he were the beſt
In all this preſence, that hath mou'd me ſo.
Fitz. If that thy valour ſtand on ſympathize:
There is my Gage, Aumerle, in Gage to thine:
By that faire Sunne, that ſhe wes me where thou ſtand'ſt,
I heard thee ſay (and vaunting'ly thou ſpak'ſt it)
That thou wer't cauſe of Noble Glouſters death.
If thou deniеſt it, twenty times thou lyeſt.
And I will turne thy falſhood to thy hart,
Where it was forged with my Rapiers point.
Aum. Thou dar'ſt not (Coward) liue to ſee the day.
Fitz. Now by my Soule, I would it were this houre.
Aum. Fitzwater thou art damn'd to hell for this.
Per. Aumerle, thou lye'ſt: his Honor is as true
In this Appeale, as thou art all vnioſt:
And that thou art ſo, there I throw my Gage
To proue it on thee, to th'extreameſt point
Of mortall breathing. Seize it, if thou dar'ſt.
Aum. And if I do not, may my hands rot off,
And neuer brandiſh more reuengefull Steele,
Ouer the glittering Helmet of my Foe.
Surrey. My Lord Fitz-water:
I do remember well, the very time
Aumerle, and you did talke.
Fitz. My Lord,
'Tis very true: You were in preſence then,
And you can witneſſe with me, this is true.
Surrey. As falſe, by heauen,
As Heauen it ſelfe is true.
Fitz. Surrey, thou Lyeſt.
Surrey. Diſhonourable Boy:
That Lye, ſhall lie ſo heauy on my Sword,
That it ſhall render Vengeance, and Reuenge,
Till thou the Lye-giuer, and that Lye, doe lye
In earth as quiet, as thy Fathers Skull.
In proofe whereof, there is mine Honors pawne,
Engage it to the Triall, if thou dar'ſt.

How

. How fondly do'ſt thou ſpurre a forward Horſe?
r eate, or drinke, or breathe, or line,
eete Surrey in a Wildernesſe,
upon him, whileſt I ſay he Lyes, es, and Lyes: there is my Bond of Faith,
hee to my ſtroog Correction.
end to thriue in this new World,
rm guiltie of my true Appeale.
I heard the banniſh'd Norfolke ſay,
ou Aumerle diaſt ſeend two of thy men,
ute the Noble Duke at Calice.
. Some honeſt Chriſtian truſt me with a Gage, orfolke lyes: here doe I throw downe this,
y be repeal'd, to trie his Honor.
These differences ſhall all reſt vnder Gage, folke be repeal'd: repeal'd he ſhall be:
ough mine Enemie) reſtor'd againe
s Lands and Seignories: when hee's return'd,
Aumerle we will enforce his Tryall.
That honorable day ſhall ne're be ſeene.
time hath baniſh'd Norfolke fought Chriſt, in glorious Chriſtian field ng the Enſigne of the Chriſtian Croſſe, black Pagans, Turkes, and Saracens:
'd with workes of Warre, retyr'd himſelfe
, and there at Venice gave y to that pleaſant Countries Earth, poore Soule vnto his Captaine Chriſt, whoſe Colours he had fought ſo long.
Why Biſhop, is Norfolke dead?
As ſure as I liue, my Lord.
Sweet peace conduct his ſweet Soule
Boſome of good old Abraham.
Appealants your differences ſhall all reſt vnder gage, aſſigne you to your dayes of Tryall.

Enter Yorke.

. Great Duke of Lancaſter, I come to thee
lume-pluckt Richard, who with willing Soule thee Heire, and his high Scepter yeelds poſſeſſion of thy Royall Hand.
his Throne deſcending now from him,
g Ione Henry, of that Name the Fourth.
In Gods Name I'le aſcend the Regall Throne
Mary, Heauen forbid.
in this Royall Preſence may I ſpeake.
I beſeeming me to ſpeake the truth.
God, that any in this Noble Preſence nough Noble, to be vpright Iudge ble Richard: then true Nobleneſſe would him forbearance from ſo foule a Wrong.
ubiect can giue Sentence on his King.
o ſits here that is not Richards Subiect?
s are not iudg'd, but they are by to heare,
gh apparant guilt be ſeene in them:
ll the figure of Gods Maieſtie,
ptaine, Steward, Deputie elect, ed, Crown'd, planted many yeeres,
'd by ſubiect, and inferiour breathe,
himſelfe not preſent? Oh, forbid it, God,
a Chriſtian Climate, Soules refin'de ſhew ſo heynous, black, obſcene a deed.
r to Subiects, and a Subiect ſpeakes,
p by Heauen, thus boldly for his King.
d of Herreford here, whom you call King,
le Traytor to prowd Herefords King.
you Crowne him, let me propheſie,
The blood of Engliſh ſhall manure the ground,
And future Ages groane for his foule Act.
Peace ſhall goe ſleepe with Turkes and Infidels,
And in this Seat of Peace, tumultuous Warres
Shall Kinne with Kinne, and Kinde with Kinde confound.
Diſorder, Horror, Feare, and Mutinie
Shall here inhabite, and this Land be call'd
The field of Golgotha, and dead mens Scull.
Oh, if you reare this Houſe, againſt this Houſe
It will the woefulleſt Diuiſion proue,
That euer fell vpon this curſed Earth.
Preuent it, reſiſt it, and let it not be ſo,
Leaſt Child, Childs Children cry againſt you, Woe.
North. Well haue you argu'd Sir: and for your paines,
Of Capitall Treaſon we arreſt you here.
My Lord of Weſtminſter, be it your charge,
To keepe him ſafely, till his day of Tryall.
May it pleaſe you, Lords, to grant the Commons Suit?
Bull. Fetch hither Richard, that in common view
He may ſurrender: ſo we ſhall proceede
Without ſuſpition.
Yorke. I will be his Conduct. Exit.
Bull. Lords, you that here are vnder our Arreſt,
Procure your Sureties for your Dayes of Anſwer:
Little are we beholding to your Loue,
And little look'd for at your helping Hands.

Enter Richard and Yorke.

Rich. Alack, why am I ſent for to a King,
Before I haue ſhooke off the Regall thoughts
Wherewith I reign'd? I hardly yet haue learn'd
To inſinuate, flatter, bowe, and bend my Knee.
Giue Sorrow leaue a while, to tutore me
To this ſubmiſſion. Yet I well remember
The fauors of theſe men: were they not mine?
Did they not ſometime cry, All hayle to me?
So Iudas did to Chriſt: but he in twelue,
Found truth in all, but one; I, in twelue thouſand, none.
God ſaue the King: will no man ſay, Amen?
Am I both Prieſt and Clarke? well then, Amen.
God ſaue the King, although I be not he:
And yet Amen, if Heauen doe thanke him mee.
To doe what ſeruice, am I ſent for hither?
Yorke. To doe that office of thine owne good will,
Which tyred Maieſtie did make thee offer:
The Reſignation of thy State and Crowne
To Henry Bullingbrooke.
Rich. Giue me the Crown. Here Couſin, ſeize & Crown:
Here Couſin, on this ſide my Hand, on that ſide thine.
Now is this Golden Crowne like a deepe Well,
That owes two Buckets, filling one another,
The emptier ever dancing in the ayre,
The other downe, vnſeene, and full of Water:
That Bucket downe, and full of Teares am I,
Drinking my Griefes, whil'ſt you mount vp on high.
Bull. I thought you had been willing to reſigne.
Rich. My Crowne I am: but ſtill my Griefes are mine:
You may my Glories and my State depoſe,
But not my Griefes; ſtill am I King of thoſe.
Bull. Part of your Cares you giue me with your Crowne.
Rich. Your Cares ſet vp, do not pluck my Cares downe.
My Care, is loſſe of Care, by old Care done,
Your Care, is gaine of Care, by new Care wonne:
The Cares I giue, I haue, though given away,
They 'tend the Crowne, yet ſtill with me they ſtay.
Bull. Are you contented to reſigne the Crowne?

Rich. I, no; no, I: for I must nothing bee:
Therefore no, no, for I resigne to thee.
Now, make me how I will vndoe my selfe.
I giue this heauie Weight from off my Head,
And this vnwieldie Scepter from my Hand,
The pride of Kingly sway from out my Heart.
With mine owne Teares I wash away my Balme,
With mine owne Hands I giue away my Crowne,
With mine owne Tongue denie my Sacred State,
With mine owne Breath release all duttious Oathes,
All Pompe and Maiestie I doe forsweare:
My Manors, Rents, Reuenues, I forgoe;
My Acts, Decrees, and Statutes I denie:
God pardon all Oathes that are broke to mee,
God keepe all Vowes vnbroke are made to thee.
Make me, that nothing haue, with nothing griev'd,
And thou with all pleas'd, that hast all atchiev'd.
Long may'st thou liue in Richards Seat to sit,
And soone lye Richard in an Earthie Pit.
God saue King Henry, vn-King'd Richard sayes,
And send him many yeeres of Sunne-shine dayes
What more remaines?

North. No more: but that you reade
These Accusations, and these grieuous Crymes,
Committed by your Person, and your followers,
Against the State, and Profit of this Land:
That by confessing them, the Soules of men
May deeme, that you are worthily depos'd.

Rich. Must I doe so? and must I rauell out
My weau'd-vp follyes? Gentle Northumberland,
If thy Offences were vpon Record,
Would it not shame thee, in so faire a troupe,
To reade a Lecture of them? If thou would'st,
There should'st thou finde one heynous Article,
Containing the deposing of a King,
And cracking the strong Warrant of an Oath,
Mark'd with a Blot, damn'd in the Booke of Heauen.
Nay, all of you, that stand and looke vpon me,
Whil'st that my wretchednesse doth bait my selfe,
Though some of you, with Pilate, wash your hands,
Shewing an outward pittie: yet you Pilates
Haue here deliuer'd me to my sowre Crosse,
And Water cannot wash away your sinne.

North. My Lord dispatch, reade o're these Articles

Rich. Mine Eyes are full of Teares, I cannot see:
And yet salt-Water blindes them not so much,
But they can see a sort of Traytors here.
Nay, if I turne mine Eyes vpon my selfe,
I finde my selfe a Traytor with the rest:
For I haue giuen here my Soules consent,
T'vndecke the pompous Body of a King;
Made Glory base; a Soueraignetie, a Slaue;
Prowd Maiestie, a Subiect; State, a Peasant.

North. My Lord.

Rich. No Lord of thine, thou haught-insulting man;
No, not no mans Lord: I haue no Name, no Title;
No, not that Name was giuen me at the Font,
But 'tis vsurpt: alack the heauie day,
That I haue worne so many Winters out,
And know not now, what Name to call my selfe.
Oh, that I were a Mockerie, King of Snow,
Standing before the Sunne of Bullingbrooke,
To melt my selfe away in Water-drops.
Good King, great King, and yet not greatly good,
And if my word be Sterling yet in England,
Let it command a Mirror hither straight,
That it may shew me what a Face I haue,
Since it is Bankrupt of his Maiestie.

Bull. Goe some of you, and fetch a Looking-Glasse

North. Read o're this Paper, while the Glasse doth come.

Rich. Fiend, thou torments me, ere I come to Hell

Bull. Vrge it no more, my Lord Northumberland

North. The Commons will not then be satisfy'd

Rich. They shall be satisfy'd: Ile reade enough,
When I doe see the very Booke indeede,
Where all my sinnes are writ, and that's my selfe.

Enter one with a Glasse

Giue me that Glasse, and therein will I reade.
No deeper wrinckles yet? hath Sorrow strucke
So many Blowes vpon this Face of mine,
And made no deeper Wounds? Oh flattring Glasse,
Like to my followers in prosperitie,
Thou do'st beguile me. Was this Face, the Face
That euery day, vnder his House-hold Roofe,
Did keepe ten thousand men? Was this the Face,
That like the Sunne, did make beholders winke?
Is this the Face, which fac'd so many follyes,
That was at last out-fac'd by Bullingbrooke?
A brittle Glory shineth in this Face,
As brittle as the Glory, is the Face,
For there it is, crackt in an hundred shiuers.
Marke silent King, the Morall of this sport,
How soone my Sorrow hath destroy'd my Face.

Bull. The shadow of your Sorrow hath destroy'd
The shadow of your Face.

Rich. Say that againe.
The shadow of my Sorrow: ha, let's see,
'Tis very true, my Griefe lyes all within,
And these externall manner of Laments,
Are merely shadowes, to the vnseene Griefe,
That swells with silence in the tortur'd Soule.
There lyes the substance: and I thanke thee King
For thy great bountie, that not onely giu'st
Me cause to wayle, but teachest me the way
How to lament the cause. Ile beg one Boone,
And then be gone, and trouble you no more
Shall I obtaine it?

Bull. Name it, faire Cosin.

Rich. Faire Cosin? I am greater then a King:
For when I was a King, my flatterers
Were then but subiects; being now a subiect,
I haue a King here to my flatterer:
Being so great, I haue no need to beg.

Bull. Yet aske.

Rich. And shall I haue?

Bull. You shall.

Rich. Then giue me leaue to goe

Bull Whither?

Rich. Whither you will, so I were from your sights.

Bull. Goe some of you, conuey him to the Tower

Rich. Oh good: conuey? Conueyers are you all,
That rise thus nimbly by a true Kings fall.

Bull. On Wednesday next, we solemnly set downe
Our Coronation: Lords, prepare your selues. Exeunt

Abbot. A woefull Pageant haue we here beheld.

Carl. The Woes to come, the Children yet vnborne,
Shall feele this day as sharpe to them as Thorne.

Aum. You holy Clergie-men, is there no Plot
To rid the Realme of this pernicious Blot.

Abbot. Before I freely speake my minde herein,
You shall not only take the Sacrament,
To bury mine intents, but also to effect

What euer I ſhall happen to deuiſe.
I ſee your Browes are full of Diſcontent,
Your Heart of Sorrow, and your Eyes of Teares.
Come home with me to Supper, Ile lay a Plot
Shall ſhew vs all a merry day. Exeunt.

Actus Quintus. Scena Prima.

Enter Queene and Ladies.

Qu. This way the King will come: this is the way
To Iulius Cæſars ill-erected Tower:
To whoſe flint Boſome, my condemned Lord
Is doom'd a Priſoner, by proud Bullingbrooke.
Here let vs reſt, if this rebellious Earth
Haue any reſting for her true Kings Queene.

Enter Richard and Guard.

But ſoft, but ſee, or rather doe not ſee,
My fairе Roſe wither: yet looke vp; behold,
That you in pittie may diſſolue to dew,
And waſh him freſh againe with true-loue Teares.
Ah thou, the Modell where old Troy did ſtand,
Thou Mappe of Honor, thou King Richards Tombe,
And not King Richard: thou moſt beauteous Inne,
Why ſhould hard-fauor'd Griefe be lodg'd in thee,
When Triumph is become an Ale-houſe Gueſt.

Rich. Ioyne not with griefe, faire Woman, do not ſo,
To make my end too ſudden: learne good Soule,
To thinke our former State a happie Dreame,
From which a-wak'd, the truth of what we are,
Shewes vs but this. I am ſworne Brother (Sweet)
To grim Neceſſitie; and he and I
Will keepe a League till Death. Hie thee to France,
And Cloyſter thee in ſome Religious Houſe:
Our holy liues muſt winne a new Worlds Crowne,
Which our prophane houres here haue ſtricken downe.

Qu. What, is my Richard both in ſhape and minde Transform'd, and weaken'd? Hath Bullingbrooke
Depos'd thine Intellect? hath he beene in thy Heart?
The Lyon dying, thruſteth forth his Paw,
And wounds the Earth, if nothing elſe, with rage
To be o're-pow'rd: and wilt thou, Pupill-like,
Take thy Correction mildly, kiſſe the Rodde,
And fawne on Rage with baſe Humilitie,
Which art a Lyon, and a King of Beaſts?

Rich. A King of Beaſts indeed: if aught but Beaſts,
I had beene ſtill a happy King of Men.
Good (ſometime Queene) prepare thee hence for France:
Thinke I am dead, and that euen here thou tak'ſt,
As from my Death-bed, my laſt liuing leaue.
In Winters tedious Nights ſit by the fire
With good old folkes, and let them tell thee Tales
Of wofull Ages, long a goe betide:
And ere thou bid good-night, to quit their griefe,
Tell thou the lamentable fall of me,
And ſend the hearers weeping to their Beds:
For why? the ſenſeleſſe Brands will ſympathize
The heauie accent of thy moouing Tongue,
And in compaſſion, weepe the fire out:
And ſome will mourne in aſhes, ſome coale-black,
For the depoſing of a rightfull King.

Enter Northumberland.

North. My Lord, the mind of Bullingbrooke is chang'd.
You muſt to Pomfret, not vnto the Tower.
And Madame, there is order ta'ne for you:
With all ſwift ſpeed, you muſt away to France.
Rich. Northumberland, thou Ladder wherewithall
The mounting Bullingbrooke aſcends my Throne,
The time ſhall not be many houres of age,
More then it is, ere foule ſinne, gathering head,
Shall breake into corruption: thou ſhalt thinke,
Though he diuide the Realme, and giue thee halfe,
It is too little, helping him to all:
He ſhall thinke, that thou which know'ſt the way
To plant vnrighteous Kings, wilt know againe,
Being ne're ſo little vrg'd another way,
To pluck him headlong from the vſurped Throne.
The Loue of wicked friends conuerts to Feare;
That Feare, to Hate; and Hate turnes one, or both,
To worthie Danger, and deſerued Death.
North. My guilt be on my Head, and there an end:
Take leaue, and part, for you muſt part forthwith.
Rich. Doubly diuorc'd? (bad men) ye violate
A two-fold Marriage; 'twixt my Crowne, and me,
And then betwixt me, and my married Wife.
Let me vn-kiſſe the Oath 'twixt thee, and me;
And yet not ſo, for with a Kiſſe 'twas made.
Part vs, Northumberland: I, towards the North,
Where ſhiuering Cold and Sickneſſe pines the Clyme:
My Queene to France: from whence, ſet forth in pompe,
She came adorned hither like ſweet May;
Sent back like Hollowmas, or ſhort'ſt of day.
Qu. And muſt we be diuided? muſt we part?
Rich. I, hand from hand, my Loue, and heart fro heart.
Qu. Baniſh vs both, and ſend the King with me.
North. That were ſome Loue, but little Pollicy.
Qu. Then whither he goes, thither let me goe.
Rich. So two together weeping, make one Woe.
Weepe thou for me in France; I, for thee heere:
Better farre off, then neere, be ne're the neere.
Goe, count thy Way with Sighes; I, mine with Groanes.
Qu. So longeſt Way ſhall haue the longeſt Moanes.
Rich. Twice for one ſtep Ile groane, the Way being ſhort,
And peece the Way out with a heauie heart.
Come, come, in wooing Sorrow let's be briefe,
Since wedding it, there is ſuch length in Griefe:
One Kiſſe ſhall ſtop our mouthes, and dumbely part;
Thus giue I mine, and thus take I thy heart.
Qu. Giue me mine owne againe: 'twere no good part
To take on me to keepe, and kill thy heart.
So, now I haue mine owne againe, be gone,
That I may ſtriue to kill it with a groane.
Rich. We make Woe wanton with this fond delay:
Once more adieu; the reſt, let Sorrow ſay. Exeunt.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Yorke, and his Ducheſſe.

Duch. My Lord you told me you would tell the reſt,
When weeping made you breake the ſtory off,
Of our two Couſins comming into London.
Yorke. Where did I leaue?
Duch. At that ſad ſtoppe, my Lord,
Where rude miſ-gouern'd hands, from Windowes tops
Threw duſt and rubbiſh on King Richards head.

Yorke. Then, as I said, the Duke, great Bullingbrooke, Mounted vpon a hot and fierie Steed,
Which his aspiring Rider seem'd to know,
With slow, but stately pace, kept on his course:
While all tongues cride, God saue thee Bullingbrooke.
You would haue thought the very windowes spake,
So many greedy lookes of yong and old,
Through Casements darted their desiring eyes
Vpon his visage: and that all the walles,
With painted Imagery had said at once,
Iesu preserue thee, welcom Bullingbrooke.
Whilst he, from one side to the other turning,
Bare-headed, lower then his proud Steeds necke,
Bespake them thus: I thanke you Countrimen:
And thus still doing, thus he past along.
Dutch. Alas poore Richard, where rides he the whilst?
Yorke. As in a Theater, the eyes of men
After a well grac'd Actor leaues the Stage,
Are idlely bent on him that enters next,
Thinking his prattle to be tedious:
Euen so, or with much more contempt, mens eyes
Did scowle on Richard: no man cride, God saue him:
No ioyfull tongue gaue him his welcome home,
But dust was throwne vpon his Sacred head,
Which with such gentle sorrow he shooke off,
His face still combating with teares and smiles
(The badges of his greefe and patience)
That had not God (for some strong purpose) steel'd
The hearts of men, they must perforce haue melted,
And Barbarisme it selfe haue pitied him.
But heauen hath a hand in these euents,
To whose high will we bound our calme contents.
To Bullingbrooke, are we sworne Subiects now,
Whose State, and Honor, I for aye allow.

Enter Aumerle.

Dut. Heere comes my sonne Aumerle.
Yor. Aumerle that was,
But that is lost, for being Richards Friend,
And Madam, you must call him Rutland now:
I am in Parliament pledge for his truth,
And lasting fealtie to the new-made King.
Dut. Welcome my sonne: who are the Violets now,
That strew the greene lap of the new-come Spring?
Aum. Madam, I know not, nor I greatly care not,
God knowes, I had as liefe be none, as one.
Yorke. Well, beare you well in this new-spring of time
Least you be crept before you come to prime.
What newes from Oxford? Hold those lusts & Triumphs?
Aum. For ought I know my Lord they do.
Yorke. You will be there I know.
Aum. If God prevent not, I purpose so.
Yor. What Seale is that that hangs without thy bosom?
Yea, look'st thou pale? Let me see the Writing.
Aum. My Lord, 'tis nothing.
Yorke. No matter then who see it,
I will be satisfied, let me see the Writing.
Aum. I do beseech your Grace to pardon me,
It is a matter of small consequence,
Which for some reasons I would not haue seene.
Yorke. Which for some reasons sir, I meane to see:
I feare, I feare.
Dut. What should you feare?
'Tis nothing but some bond, that he is enter'd into
For gay apparrell against the Triumph.
Yorke. Bound to himselfe? What doth he with a Bond
That he is bound to? Wife, thou art a foole.
Boy, let me see the Writing.
Aum. I do beseech you pardon me, I may not shew it.
Yor. I will be satisfied: let me see it I say. Snatches it.
Treason, foule Treason, Villaine, Traitor, Slaue.
Dut. What's the matter, my Lord?
Yorke. Hoa, who's within there? Saddle my horse.
Heauen for his mercy: what treachery is heere?
Dut. Why, what is't my Lord?
Yorke. Giue me my boots, I say: Saddle my horse:
Now by my Honor, my life, my troth,
I will appeach the Villaine.
Dut. What is the matter?
Yorke. Peace foolish Woman.
Dut. I will not peace. What is the matter Sonne?
Aum. Good Mother be content, it is no more
Then my poore life must answer.
Dut. Thy life answer?

Enter Seruant with Boots.

Yor. Bring me my Boots, I will vnto the King.
Dut. Strike him Aumerle. Poore boy, thou art amaz'd.
Hence Villaine, neuer more come in my sight.
Yor. Giue me my Boots, I say.
Dut. Why Yorke, what wilt thou do?
Wilt thou not hide the Trespasse of thine owne?
Haue we more Sonnes? Or are we like to haue?
Is not my teeming date drunke vp with time?
And wilt thou plucke my faire Sonne from mine Age,
And rob me of a happy Mothers name?
Is he not like thee? Is he not thine owne?
Yor. Thou fond mad woman:
Wilt thou conceale this darke Conspiracy?
A dozen of them here haue tane the Sacrament,
And interchangeably set downe their hands
To kill the King at Oxford.
Dut. He shall be none:
We'l keepe him heere: then what is that to him?
Yor. Away fond woman: were he twenty times my Son,
I would appeach him.
Dut. Hadst thou groan'd for him as I haue done,
Thou wouldest be more pitifull:
But now I know thy minde; thou do'st suspect
That I haue bene disloyall to thy bed,
And that he is a Bastard, not thy Sonne:
Sweet Yorke, sweet husband, be not of that minde:
He is as like thee, as a man may see,
Not like to me, nor any of my Kin,
And yet I loue him.
Yorke. Make way, vnruly Woman. Exit.
Dut. After Aumerle. Mount thee vpon his horse,
Spurre post, and get before him to the King,
And beggе thy pardon, ere he do accuse thee,
Ile not be long behind: though I be old,
I doubt not but to ride as fast as Yorke:
And neuer will I rise vp from the ground,
Till Bullingbrooke haue pardon'd thee: Away be gone. Exit.

Scæna Tertia.

Enter Bullingbrooke, Percie, and other Lords.

Bul. Can no man tell of my vnthrifte Sonne?
'Tis full three monthes since I did see him last.
If any plague hang ouer vs, 'tis he,
I would to heauen (my Lords) he might be found:
Enquire at London, 'mongst the Tauernes there:

For

(they ſay) he dayly doth frequent, reſtrained looſe Companions,
h (they ſay) as ſtand in narrow Lanes,
our Watch, and beate our paſſengers,
e, yong wanton, and effeminate Boy
the point of Honor, to ſupport ne a crew.
dy Lord, ſome two dayes ſince I ſaw the Prince.
him of theſe Triumphes held at Oxford.
and what ſaid the Gallant?
His anſwer was: he would vnto the Stewes,
with the common'ſt creature plucke a Gloue re it as a fauour, and with that d vnhorſe the luſtieſt Challenger.
As diſſolute as deſp'rate, yet through both,
e ſparkes of better hope: which elder dayes ipily bring forth. But who comes heere?
Enter Aumerle.
Where is the King?
What meanes our Coſin, that hee ſtares
kes ſo wildely?
God ſaue your Greece. I do beſeech your Maieſty ſome conference with your Grace alone.
Withdraw your ſelues, and leaue vs here alone:
the matter with our Coſin now?
For euer may my knees grow to the earth,
ue cleaue to my roofe within my mouth,
Pardon, ere I riſe, or ſpeake.
Intended, or committed was this fault?
firſt, how heynous ere it bee,
thy after loue, I pardon thee.
Then giue me leaue, that I may turne the key,
man enter, till my tale me done.
Haue thy deſire. Yorke within.
My Liege beware, looke to thy ſelfe,
ſt a Traitor in thy preſence there.
Villaine, Ile make thee ſafe.
Stay thy reuengefull hand, thou haſt no cauſe
Open the doore, ſecure foole-hardy King:
or loue ſpeake treaſon to thy face?
e doore, or I will breake it open.
Enter Yorke.
What is the matter (Vncle) ſpeak, recouer breath,
how neere is danger,
e may arme vs to encounter it.
Peruſe this writing heere, and thou ſhalt know
ſon that my haſte forbids me ſhow.
Remember as thou read'ſt, thy promiſe paſt:
ent me, reade not my name there,
t is not confederate with my hand.
It was (villaine) ere thy hand did ſet it downe.
from the Traitors boſome, King.
nd not Loue, begets his penitence;
o pitty him, leaſt thy pitty proue
e, that will ſting thee to the heart.
Oh heinous, ſtrong, and bold Conſpiracie,
Father of a treacherous Sonne:
ſtere, immaculate, and ſiluer fountaine,
heuce this ſtreame, through muddy paſſages
d his current, and deſil'd himſelfe.
flow of good, conuerts to bad, abundant goodneſſe ſhall excuſe
adly blot, in thy digreſſing ſonne.
So ſhall my Vertue be his Vices bawd, hall ſpend mine Honour, with his Shame
As thriftleſſe Sonnes, their ſcraping Fathers Gold.
Mine honor liues, when his diſhonor dies,
Or my ſhain'd life, in his diſhonor lies:
Thou kill'ſt me in his life, giuing him breath,
The Traitor liues, the true man's put to death.
Dutcheſſe within.
Dut. What hoa (my Liege) for heauens ſake let me in.
Bul. What ſhrill-voic'd Suppliant, makes this eager cry?
Dut. A woman, and thine Aunt (great King) 'tis I.
Speake with me, pitty me, open the doore,
A Begger begs, that neuer begg'd before.
Bul. Our Scene is alter'd from a ſerious thing,
And now chang'd to the Begger, and the King
My dangerous Coſin, let your Mother in,
I know ſhe's come, to pray for your foule ſin.
Yorke. If thou do pardon, whoſoeuer pray,
More ſinnes for this forgiueneſſe, proſper may.
This feſter'd ioynt cut off, the reſt reſts ſound,
This let alone, will all the reſt confound.
Enter Dutcheſſe.
Dut. O King, beleeue not this hard-hearted man,
Loue, louing not it ſelfe, none other can.
Yor. Thou franticke woman, what doſt y make here,
Shall thy old dugges, once more a Traitor reare?
Dut. Sweet Yorke be patient, heare me gentle Liege.
Bul. Riſe vp good Aunt
Dut. Not yet, I thee beſeech.
For euer will I kneele vpon my knees,
And neuer ſee day, that the happy ſees,
Till thou giue ioy: vntill thou bid me ioy.
By pardoning Rutland, my tranſgreſſing Boy.
Aum. Vnto my mothers prayres, I bend my knee.
Yorke. Againſt them both, my true ioynts bended be.
Dut. Pleades he in earneſt? Looke vpon his Face,
His eyes do drop no teares: his prayres are in ieſt:
His words come from his mouth, ours from our breſt.
He prayes but faintly, and would be denide,
We pray with heart, and ſoule, and all beſide:
His weary ioynts would gladly riſe, I know,
Our knees ſhall kneele, till to the ground they grow:
His prayers are full of falſe hypocriſie,
Ours of true zeale, and deepe integritie:
Our prayers do out-pray his, then let them haue
That mercy, which true prayers ought to haue.
Bul. Good Aunt ſtand vp.
Dut. Nay, do not ſay ſtand vp.
But Pardon firſt, and afterwards ſtand vp.
And if I were thy Nurſe, thy tongue to teach,
Pardon ſhould be the firſt word of thy ſpeach.
I neuer long'd to heare a word till now:
Say Pardon (King), let pitty teach thee how.
The word is ſhort: but not ſo ſhort as ſweet,
No word like Pardon, for Kings mouth's ſo meet.
Yorke. Speake it in French (King) ſay Pardon'ne moy.
Dut. Doſt thou teach pardon, Pardon to deſtroy?
Ah my ſowre husband, my hard-hearted Lord,
That ſet's the word it ſelfe, againſt the word.
Speake Pardon, as 'tis currant in our Land,
The chopping French we do not vnderſtand.
Thine eye begins to ſpeake, ſet thy tongue there,
Or in thy pitteous heart, plant thou thine eare,
That hearing how our plaints and prayres do pearce,
Pitty may moue thee, Pardon to rehearſe.
Bul. Good Aunt, ſtand vp.
Dut. I do not ſue to ſtand,
Pardon is all the ſuite I haue in hand.

Bul.

Bul. I pardon him, as heauen ſhall pardon mee.
Duc. O happy vantage of a kneeling knee:
Yet am I ſicke for feare: Speake it againe,
Twice ſaying Pardon, doth not pardon twaine,
But makes one pardon ſtrong.
Bul. I pardon him with all my hart.
Duc. A God on earth thou art.
Bul. But for our truſty brother-in-Law, the Abbot,
With all the reſt of that conſorted crew,
Deſtruction ſtraight ſhall dogge them at the heeles:
Good Vnckle helpe to order ſeuerall powres
To Oxford, or where ere theſe Traitors are:
They ſhall not liue within this world I sweare,
But I will haue them, if I once know where.
Vncle farewell, and Coſin adieu:
Your mother well hath prai'd, and proue you true.
Duc. Come my old ſon, I pray heauen make thee new.
Exeunt.

Enter Exton and Seruants.

Ext. Didſt thou not marke the King what words hee ſpake?
Haue I no friend will rid me of this liuing feare:
Was it not ſo?
Ser. Thoſe were his very words.
Ex. Haue I no Friend? (quoth he:) he ſpake it twice,
And vrg'd it twice together, did he not?
Ser. He did.
Ex. And ſpeaking it, he wiſtly look'd on me,
As who ſhould ſay, I would thou were the man
That would diuorce this terror from my heart,
Meaning the King at Pomfret: Come, let's goe;
I am the Kings Friend, and will rid his Foe. Exit.

Scæna Quarta.

Enter Richard.

Rich. I haue bin ſtudying, how to compare
This Priſon where I liue, vnto the World:
And for becauſe the world is populous,
And heere is not a Creature, but my ſelfe,
I cannot do it: yet Ile hammer't out.
My Braine, Ile proue the Female to my Soule,
My Soule, the Father: and theſe two beget
A generation of ſtill breeding Thoughts:
And theſe ſame Thoughts, people this Little World
In humors, like the people of this world,
For no thought is contented. The better ſort,
As thoughts of things Diuine, are intermixt
With ſcruples, and do ſet the Faith it ſelfe
Againſt the Faith: as thus: Come little ones: & then again,
It is as hard to come, as for a Camell
To thred the poſterne of a Needles eye.
Thoughts tending to Ambition, they do plot
Vnlikely wonders; how theſe vaine weake nailes
May teare a paſſage through the Flinty ribbes
Of this hard world, my ragged priſon walles:
And for they cannot, dye in their owne pride.
Thoughts tending to Content, flatter themſelues,
That they are not the firſt of Fortunes ſlaues,
Nor ſhall not be the laſt. Like ſilly Beggars,
Who ſitting in the Stockes, refuge their ſhame
That many haue, and others muſt ſit there;
And in this Thought, they finde a kind of eaſe,
Bearing their owne misfortune on the backe
Of ſuch as haue before indur'd the like.
Thus play I in one Priſon, many people,
And none contented. Sometimes am I King:
Then Treaſon makes me wiſh my ſelfe a Beggar,
And ſo I am. Then cruſhing penurie,
Perſwades me, I was better when a King:
Then am I king'd againe: and by and by,
Thinke that I am vn-king'd by Bullingbrooke,
And ſtraight am nothing. But what ere I am, Muſicke.
Nor I, nor any man, that but man is,
With nothing ſhall be pleas'd, till he be eas'd
With being nothing. Muſicke do I heare?
Ha, ha? keepe time: How ſowre ſweet Muſicke is,
When Time is broke, and no Proportion kept?
So is it in the Muſicke of mens liues:
And heere haue I the daintineſſe of eare,
To heare time broke in a diſorder'd ſtring:
But for the Concord of my State and Time,
Had not an eare to heare my true Time broke.
I waſted Time, and now doth Time waſte me:
For now hath Time made me his numbring clocke;
My Thoughts are minutes; and with Sighes they iarre,
Their watches on vnto mine eyes, the outward Watch,
Whereto my finger, like a Dials point,
Is pointing ſtill, in cleanſing them from teares.
Now ſir, the ſound that tels what houre it is,
Are clamorous groanes, that ſtrike vpon my heart,
Which is the bell: ſo Sighes, and Teares, and Groanes,
Shew Minutes, Houres, and Times: but my Time
Runs poſting on, in Bullingbrookes proud ioy,
While I ſtand fooling heere, his iacke o'th Clocke.
This Muſicke mads me, let it ſound no more,
For though it haue helpe madmen to their wits,
In me it ſeemes, it will make wiſe-men mad:
Yet bleſſing on his heart that giues it me;
For 'tis a ſigne of loue: and loue to Richard,
Is a ſtrange Brooch, in this all hating world.

Enter Groome.

Groo. Haile Royall Prince.
Rich. Thanks Noble Peere,
The cheapeſt of vs, is ten groates too deere.
What art thou? And how com'ſt thou hither?
Where no man euer comes, but that ſad dogge
That brings me food, to make miſfortune liue?
Groo. I was a poore Groome of thy Stable (King)
When thou wer't King: who trauelling towards Yorke,
With much adoo, at length haue gotten leaue
To looke vpon my (ſometimes Royall) maſters face.
O how it yern'd my heart, when I beheld
In London ſtreets, that Coronation day,
When Bullingbrooke rode on Roane Barbary,
That horſe, that thou ſo often haſt beſtrid,
That horſe, that I ſo carefully haue dreſt.
Rich. Rode he on Barbary? Tell me gentle Friend,
How went he vnder him?
Groo. So proudly, as if he had diſdain'd the ground.
Rich. So proud, that Bullingbrooke was on his backe;
That Iade hath eate bread from my Royall hand,
This hand hath made him proud with clapping him.
Would he not ſtumble? Would he not fall downe
(Since Pride muſt haue a fall) and breake the neckе
Of that proud man, that did vſurpe his backe?
Forgiueneſſe horſe: Why do I raile on thee,
Since thou created to be aw'd by man
Was't borne to beare? I was not made a horſe,

And

And yet I beare a burthen like an Asse,
Spur-gall'd, and tyred by iauncing Bullingbrooke.

Enter Keeper with a Dish.

Keep. Fellow, giue place, heere is no longer stay.
Rich. If thou loue me, 'tis time thou wer't away.
Groo. What my tongue dares not, that my heart shall say. Exit.
Keep. My Lord, wilt please you to fall to?
Rich. Taste of it first, as thou wer't wont to doo.
Keep. My Lord I dare not: Sir Pierce of Exton,
Who lately came from th'King, commands the contrary.
Rich. The diuell take Henrie of Lancaster, and thee;
Patience is stale, and I am weary of it.
Keep. Helpe, helpe, helpe.

Enter Exton and Seruants.

Ri. How now? what meanes Death in this rude assault?
Villaine, thine owne hand yeelds thy deaths instrument.
Go thou and fill another roome in hell.

Exton strikes him downe.

That hand shall burne in neuer-quenching fire,
That staggers thus my person. Exton, thy fierce hand,
Hath with the Kings blood, stain'd the Kings own land.
Mount, mount my soule, thy seate is vp on high,
Whil'st my grosse flesh sinkes downward, heere to dye.
Exton. As full of Valor, as of Royall blood,
Both haue I spilt: Oh would the deed were good.
For now the diuell, that told me I did well,
Sayes, that this deede is chronicled in hell.
This dead King to the liuing King Ile beare,
Take hence the rest, and giue them buriall heere. Exit.

Scœna Quinta.

Flourish. Enter Bullingbrooke, Yorke, with other Lords & attendants.

Bul. Kinde Vnkle Yorke, the latest newes we heare,
Is that the Rebels haue consum'd with fire
Our Towne of Cicester in Glouestershire,
But whether they be tane or slaine, we heare not.

Enter Northumberland.

Welcome my Lord: What is the newes?
Nor. First to thy Sacred State, wish I all happinesse:
The next newes is, I haue to London sent
The heads of Salsbury, Spencer, Blunt, and Kent:
The manner of their taking may appeare
At large discoursed in this paper heere.
Bul. We thank thee gentle Percy for thy paines,
And to thy worth will adde right worthy gaines.

Enter Fitz-waters.

Fitz. My Lord, I haue from Oxford sent to London,
The heads of Brocas, and Sir Bennet Seely,
Two of the dangerous consorted Traitors,
That fought at Oxford, thy dire ouerthrow.
Bul. Thy paines Fitzwaters shall not be forgot,
Right Noble is thy merit, well I wot.

Enter Percy and Carlile.

Per. The grand Conspirator, Abbot of Westminster,
With clog of Conscience, and sowre Melancholly,
Hath yeelded vp his body to the graue:
But heere is Carlile, liuing to abide
Thy Kingly doome, and sentence of his pride.
Bul. Carlile, this is your doome:
Choose out some secret place, some reuerend roome
More then thou hast, and with it ioy thy life:
So as thou liu'st in peace, dye free from strife:
For though mine enemy thou hast euer beene,
High sparkes of Honor in thee haue I seene.

Enter Exton with a Coffin.

Exton. Great King, within this Coffin I present
Thy buried feare. Herein all breathlesse lies
The mightiest of thy greatest enemies
Richard of Burdeaux, by me hither brought.
Bul. Exton, I thanke thee not, for thou hast wrought
A deede of Slaughter, with thy fatall hand,
Vpon my head, and all this famous Land.
Ex. From your owne mouth my Lord, did I this deed.
Bul. They loue not poyson, that do poyson needs,
Nor do I thee: though I did wish him dead,
I hate the Murtherer, loue him murthered.
The guilt of conscience take thou for thy labour,
But neither my good word, nor Princely fauour.
With Cain go wander through the shade of night,
And neuer shew thy head by day, nor light.
Lords, I protest my soule is full of woe,
That blood should sprinkle me, to make me grow.
Come mourne with me, for that I do lament,
And put on sullen Blacke incontinent:
Ile make a voyage to the Holy-land,
To wash this blood off from my guilty hand.
March sadly after, grace my mourning heere,
In weeping after this vntimely Beere. Exeunt.

FINIS.

The First Part of Henry the Fourth, with the Life and Death of HENRY Sirnamed HOT-SPVRRE.

Actus Primus. Scæna Prima.

Enter the King, Lord Iohn of Lancaster, Earle of Westmerland, with others.

King.

SO shaken as we are, so wan with care,
Finde we a time for frighted Peace to pant,
And breath shortwinded accents of new broils
To be commenc'd in Strands a-farre remote:
No more the thirsty entrance of this Soile,
Shall daube her lippes with her owne childrens blood:
No more shall trenching Warre channell her fields,
Nor bruise her Flowrets with the Armed hoofes
Of hostile paces. Those opposed eyes,
Which like the Meteors of a troubled Heauen,
All of one Nature, of one Substance bred,
Did lately meete in the intestine shocke,
And furious close of ciuil Butchery,
Shall now in mutuall well-beseeming ranks
March all one way, and be no more oppos'd
Against Acquaintance, Kindred, and Allies.
The edge of Warre, like an ill-sheathed knife,
No more shall cut his Master. Therefore Friends,
As farre as to the Sepulcher of Christ,
Whose Souldier now vnder whose blessed Crosse
We are impressed and ingag'd to fight.
Forthwith a power of English shall we leuie,
Whose armes were moulded in their Mothers wombe,
To chace these Pagans in those holy Fields,
Ouer whose Acres walk'd those blessed feete
Which fourteene hundred yeares ago were nail'd
For our aduantage on the bitter Crosse.
But this our purpose is a twelvemonth old,
And bootlesse 'tis to tell you we will go:
Therefore we meete not now. Then let me heare
Of you my gentle Cousin Westmerland,
What yesternight our Councell did decree,
In forwarding this deere expedience.

West. My Liege: This haste was hot in question,
And many limits of the Charge set downe
But yesternight: when all athwart there came
A Post from Wales, loaden with heauy Newes;
Whose worst was, That the Noble Mortimer,
Leading the men of Herefordshire to fight
Against the irregular and wilde Glendower,
Was by the rude hands of that Welshman taken,
And a thousand of his people butchered:
Vpon whose dead corpes there was such misuse,
Such beastly, shamelesse transformation,
By those Welshwomen done, as may not be (Without much shame) re-told or spoken of.

King. It seemes then, that the tidings of this broile,
Brake off our businesse for the Holy land.

West. This matcht with other like, my gracious Lord.
Farre more vneuen and vnwelcome Newes
Came from the North, and thus it did report:
On Holy-roode day, the gallant Hotspurre there,
Young Harry Percy, and braue Archibald,
That euer-valiant and approoued Scot,
At Holmedon met, where they did spend
A sad and bloody houre:
As by discharge of their Artillerie,
And shape of likely-hood the newes was told:
For he that brought them, in the very heate
And pride of their contention, did take horse,
Vncertaine of the issue any way.

King. Heere is a deere and true industrious friend,
Sir Walter Blunt, new lighted from his Horse,
Strain'd with the variation of each soyle,
Betwixt that Holmedon, and this Seat of ours:
And he hath brought vs smooth and welcome newes.
The Earle of Douglas is discomfited,
Ten thousand bold Scots, two and twenty Knights Balk'd in their owne blood did Sir Walter see
On Holmedons Plaines. Of Prisoners, Hotspurre tooke
Mordake Earle of Fife, and eldest sonne
To beaten Douglas, and the Earle of Athol,
Of Murry, Angus, and Menteith.
And is not this an honourable spoyle?
A gallant prize? Ha Cosin, is it not? Infaith it is.

West. A Conquest for a Prince to boast of.

King. Yea, there thou mak'st me sad, & mak'st me sin
In enuy, that my Lord Northumberland
Should be the Father of so blest a Sonne:
A Sonne, who is the Theame of Honors tongue;
Among'st a Groue, the very straightest Plant,
Who is sweet Fortunes Minion, and her Pride:
Whil'st I by looking on the praise of him,
See Ryot and Dishonor staine the brow
Of my yong Harry. O that it could be prou'd,
That some Night-tripping-Fairy, had exchang'd
In Cradle-clothes, our Children where they lay,
And call'd mine Percy, his Plantagenet.

The

Then would I haue his Harry, and he mine:
But let him from my thoughts. What thinke you Coze
Of this young Percies pride? The Prisoners
Which he in this aduenture hath surpriz'd,
To his owne vse he keepes, and sends me word
I shall haue none but Mordake Earle of Fife.

Wor. This is his Vnckles teaching. This is Worceſte
Malecolent to you in all Aſpects:
Which makes him prune himſelfe and briſtle vp
The creſt of Youth againſt your Dignity.

King. But I haue ſent for him to anſwer this:
And for this cauſe a-while we muſt neglect
Our holy purpoſe to Ieruſalem.
Coſin, on Wedneſday next, our Councell we will hold
At Windſor, and ſo informe the Lords:
But come your ſelfe with ſpeed to vs againe,
For more is to be ſaid, and to be done,
Then out of anger can be vttered.

Wor. I will my Liege. Exeunt

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Henry Prince of Wales, Sir Iohn Falſtaffe, and Poines.

Fal. Now Hal, what time of day is it Lad?

Prince Thou art ſo fat-witted with drinking of olde Sacke, and vnbuttoning thee after Supper, and ſleeping vpon Benches in the afternoone, that thou haſt forgotten to demand that truely, which thou wouldeſt truly know. What a diuell haſt thou to do with the time of the day? vnleſſe houres were cups of Sacke, and minutes Capons, and clockes the tongues of Bawdes, and dialls the ſignes of Leaping-houſes, and the bleſſed Sunne himſelfe a faire hot Wench in Flame-coloured Taffata; I ſee no reaſon, why thou ſhouldeſt bee ſo ſuperfluous, to demaund the time of the day.

Fal. Indeed you come neere me now Hal, for we that take Purſes, go by the Moone and ſeuen Starres, and not by Phœbus hee, that wand'ring Knight ſo faire. And I prythee ſweet Wagge, when thou art King, as God ſaue thy Grace, Maiеſty I ſhould ſay, for Grace thou wilte haue none.

Prin What, none?

Fal. No, not ſo much as will ſerue to be Prologue to an Egge and Butter.

Prin. Well, how then? Come roundly, roundly.

Fal. Marry then, ſweet Wagge, when thou art King, let not vs that are Squires of the Nights bodie, bee call'd Theeues of the Dayes beautie. Let vs be Dianets Foreſters, Gentlemen of the Shade. Minions of the Moone; and let men ſay, we be men of good Gouernment, being gouerned as the Sea is, by our noble and chaſt miſtris the Moone, vnder whoſe countenance we ſteale.

Prin. Thou ſay'ſt well, and it holds well too: for the fortune of vs that are the Moones men, doth ebbe and flow like the Sea, being gouerned as the Sea is, by the Moone: as for proofe. Now a Purſe of Gold moſt reſolutely ſnatch'd on Monday night, and moſt diſſolutely ſpent on Tueſday Morning; got with ſwearing, Lay by: and ſpent with crying, Bring in: now, in as low an ebbe as the foot of the Ladder, and by and by in as high a flow as the ridge of the Gallowes.

Fal. Thou ſay'ſt true Lad: and is not my Hoſteſſe of the Tauerne a moſt ſweet Wench?

Prin. As is the hony, my old Lad of the Caſtle: and is not a Buffe Ierkin a moſt ſweet robe of durance?

Fal. How now? how now mad Wagge? What in thy quips and thy quiddities? What a plague haue I to doe with a Buffe-Ierkin?

Prin. Why, what a poxe haue I to doe with my Hoſteſſe of the Tauerne?

Fal. Well, thou haſt call'd her to a reckning many a time and oft.

Prin. Did I euer call for thee to pay thy part?

Fal. No, Ile giue thee thy due, thou haſt paid all there.

Prin. Yea and elſewhere, ſo farre as my Coine would ſtretch, and where it would not, I haue vs'd my credit.

Fal. Yea, and ſo vs'd it, that were it heere apparant, that thou art Heire apparant. But I prythee ſweet Wag, ſhall there be Gallowes ſtanding in England when thou art King? and reſolution thus fobb'd as it is, with the ruſtie cuibe of old Father Antickе the Law? Doe not thou when thou art a King, hang a Theefe.

Prin. No, thou ſhalt.

Fal. Shall I? O raze! Ile be a braue Iudge.

Prin. Thou iudgeſt falſe already. I meane, thou ſhalt haue the hanging of the Theeues, and ſo become a rare Hangman.

Fal. Well Hal, well: and in ſome ſort it iumpes with my humour, as well as waiting in the Court, I can tell you.

Prin. For obtaining of ſuites?

Fal. Yea, for obtaining of ſuites, whereof the Hangman hath no leane Wardrobe. I am as Melancholy as a Gyb-Cat, or a lugg'd Beare.

Prin. Or an old Lyon, or a Louers Lute.

Fal. Yea, or the Drone of a Lincolnſhire Bagpipe.

Prin. What ſay'ſt thou to a Hare, or the Melancholly of Moore Ditch?

Fal. Thou haſt the moſt vnſauoury ſmiles, and art indeed the moſt comparatiue raſcalleſt ſweet young Prince. But Hal, I prythee trouble me no more with vanity, I would thou and I knew, where a Commodity of good names were to be bought: an olde Lord of the Councell rated me the other day in the ſtreet about you ſir; but I mark'd him not, and yet hee talk'd very wiſely, but I regarded him not, and yet he talke wiſely, and in the ſtreet too.

Prin. Thou didſt well: for no man regards it.

Fal. O, thou haſt damnable iteration, and art indeede able to corrupt a Saint. Thou haſt done much harme vnto me Hal, God forgiue thee for it. Before I knew thee Hal, I knew nothing: and now I am (if a man ſhould ſpeake truly) little better then one of the wicked. I muſt giue ouer this life, and I will giue it ouer: and I do not, I am a Villaine. Ile be damn'd for neuer a Kings ſonne in Chriſtendome.

Prin. Where ſhall we take a purſe to morrow, Iacke?

Fal. Where thou wilt Lad, Ile make one: and I doe not, call me Villaine, and baffle me.

Prin. I ſee a good amendment of life in thee: From Praying, to Purſe-taking.

Fal. Why, Hal, 'tis my Vocation Hal: 'Tis no ſin for a man to labour in his Vocation.

Poines. Now ſhall wee know if Gads hill haue ſet a Watch. O, if men were to be ſaued by merit, what hole in Hell were hot enough for him? This is the moſt omnipotent Villaine, that euer cryed, Stand, to a true man.

Prin. Good morrow Ned.

Poines.

Ponnet. Good morrow sweet Hal. What saies Monsieur Remorse? What saies Sir John Sacke and Sugar? Iacke? How agrees the Diuell and thee about thy Soule, that thou soldest him on Good-Friday last, for a Cup of Maders, and a cold Capons legge?

Prin. Sir John stands to his word, the diuel shall haue his bargaine, for he was neuer yet a Breaker of Prouerbs: He will giue the diuell his due.

Poin. Then art thou damn'd for keeping thy word with the diuell.

Prin. Else he had damn'd for cozening the diuell.

Poy. But my Lads, my Lads, to morrow morning, by foure a clocke early at Gads hill, there are Pilgrimes going to Canterbury with rich Offerings, and Traders riding to London with fat Purses. I haue vizards for you all; you haue horses for your selues: Gads-hill lyes to night in Rochester, I haue bespoke Supper to morrow in Eastcheape; we may doe it as secure as sleepe: if you will go, I will stuffe your Purses full of Crownes: if you will not, tarry at home and be hang'd.

Fal. Heare ye Yedward, if I tarry at home and go not, Ile hang you for going.

Poy. You will chops.

Fal. Hal, wilt thou make one?

Prin. Who, I rob? I a Theefe? Not I.

Fal. There's neither honesty, manhood, nor good fellowship in thee, nor thou cam'st not of the blood-royall, if thou dar'st not stand for ten shillings.

Prin. Well then, once in my dayes Ile be a mad-cap.

Fal. Why, that's well said.

Prin. Well, come what will, Ile tarry at home.

Fal. Ile be a Traitor then, when thou art King.

Prin. I care not.

Poyn. Sir John, I prythee leaue the Prince & me alone, I will lay him downe such reasons for this aduenture, that he shall go.

Fal. Well, maist thou haue the Spirit of perswasion; and he the eares of profiting, that what thou speakest, may moue; and what he heares may be beleeued, that the true Prince, may (for recreation sake) proue a false theefe; for the poore abuses of the time, want countenance. Farewell, you shall finde me in Eastcheape.

Prin. Farewell the latter Spring. Farewell Alhollown Summer.

Poy. Now, my good sweet Hony Lord, ride with vs to morrow. I haue a iest to execute, that I cannot manage alone. Falstaffe, Harvey, Rossill, and Gads-hill, shall robbe those men that wee haue already way-layde, your selfe and I, will not be there: and when they haue the booty, if you and I do not rob them, cut this head from my shoulders.

Prin. But how shal we part with them in setting forth?

Poyn. Why, we will set forth before or after them, and appoint them a place of meeting, wherin it is at our pleasure to faile; and then will they aduenture vpon the exploit themselues, which they shall haue no sooner atchieued, but wee'l set vpon them.

Prin. I, but tis like that they will know vs by our horses, by our habits, and by euery other appointment to be our selues.

Poy. Tut our horses they shall not see, Ile tye them in the wood, our vizards wee will change after wee leaue them: and sirrah, I haue Cases of Buckram for the nonce, to immaske our noted outward garments.

Prin. But I doubt they will be too hard for vs.

Poyn. Well, for two of them, I know them to bee as true bred Cowards as euer turn'd backe: and for the third if he fight longer then he sees reason, Ile forswear Armes. The vertue of this Iest will be, the incomprehensible lyes that this fat Rogue will tell vs, when we meete at Supper: how thirty at least he fought with, what Wardes, what blowes, what extremities he endured, and in the reproofe of this, lyes the iest.

Prin. Well, Ile goe with thee, prouide vs all things necessary, and meete me to morrow night in Eastcheape, there Ile sup. Farewell.

Poyn. Farewell, my Lord. Exit Poyn.

Prin. I know you all, and will a-while vphold
The vnyoak'd humor of your idlenesse:
Yet herein will I imitate the Sunne,
Who doth permit the base contagious clouds
To smother vp his Beauty from the world,
That when he please againe to be himselfe,
Being wanted, he may be more wondred at,
By breaking through the foule and vgly mists
Of vapours, that did seeme to strangle him.
If all the yeare were playing holidaies,
To sport, would be as tedious as to worke;
But when they seldome come, they wisht-for come,
And nothing pleaseth but rare accidents.
So when this loose behauiour I throw off,
And pay the debt I neuer promised;
By how much better then my word I am,
By so much shall I falsifie mens hopes,
And like bright Mettall on a sullen ground,
My reformation glittering o're my fault,
Shall shew more goodly, and attract more eyes,
Then that which hath no foyle to set it off.
Ile so offend, to make offence a skill,
Redeeming time, when men thinke least I will.

Scœna Tertia.

Enter the King, Northumberland, Worcester, Hotspurre, Sir Walter Blunt, and others.

King. My blood hath beene too cold and temperate,
Vnapt to stirre at these indignities,
And you haue found me; for accordingly,
You tread vpon my patience: But be sure,
I will from henceforth rather be my Selfe,
Mighty, and to be fear'd, then my condition
Which hath beene smooth as Oyle, soft as young Downe,
And therefore lost that Title of respect,
Which the proud soule ne're pays, but to the proud.

Wor. Our house (my Soueraigne Liege) little deserues
The scourge of greatnesse to be vsed on it,
And that same greatnesse too, which our owne hands
Haue holpe to make so portly.

Nor. My Lord.

King. Worcester get thee gone: for I do see
Danger and disobedience in thine eye.
O sir, your presence is too bold and peremptory,
And Maiestie might neuer yet endure
The moody Frontier of a seruant brow.
You haue good leaue to leaue vs. When we need
Your vse and counsell, we shall send for you.
You were about to speake.

North. Yes, my good Lord.

Thefe

Prisoners in your Highnesse demanded,
Henry Percy heere at Holmedon tooke,
as he (sayes) not with such strength denied deliuerred to your Maiesty:
ther through enuy, or misprision,
ulty of this fault; and not my Sonne.
My Liege, I did deny no Prisoners.
emember when the fight was done,
I was dry with Rage, and extreame Toyle, ietfe, and Faint, leaning vpon my Sword,
here a certaine Lord, neat and trimly dreſt;
a Bride-groome, and his Chin new reapt,
like a ſtubble Land at Harueſt home.
perfumed like a Milliner, with his Finger and his Thumbe, he held cret-box: which euer and anon
e his Nose, and took't away againe:
herewith angry, when it next came there,
t in Snuffe. And ſtill he ſmil'd and talk'd:
the Souldiers bare dead bodies by,
'd them vntaught Knaues, Vnmannerly, ng a ſlouenly vnhandſome Corſe
the Winde, and his Nobility.
nny Holiday and Lady termes ſtion'd me: Among the reſt, demanded ſoners, in your Maieſties behalfe.
all-ſmarting, with my wounds being cold, ſo peſtered with a Popingay)
my Greeſe, and my Impatience,
'd (neglectingly) I know not what,
uld, or ſhould not: For he made me mad,
him ſhine ſo briske, and ſmell ſo ſweet,
like ſo like a Waiting-Gentlewoman,
s. & Drum, and Wounds: God ſaue the mark;
ling me, the Soueraign'ſt thing on earth
armacity, for an inward bruiſe:
it is was great pitty, ſo it was,
illanous Salt-peter ſhould be digg'd
the Bowels of the harmleſſe Earth, many a good Tall Fellow had deſtroy'd wardly. And but for theſe vile Gunnes, uld himſelfe haue beene a Souldier.
ld, vnioynted Chat of his (my Lord)
me to anſwer indirectly (as I ſaid.)
beſeech you, let not this report
ertaine for an Accuſation,
my Loue, and your high Maieſty.
. The circumſtance conſidered, good my Lord,
euer Harry Percie then had ſaid,
a perſon, and in ſuch a place,
a time, with all the reſt retold,
ſonably dy'e, and neuer riſe him wrong, or any way impeach
then he ſaid, ſo he vnſay it now.
. Why yet doth deny his Priſoners,
h Prouiſo and Exception,
e at our owne charge, ſhall ranſome ſtraight ther-in-Law, the foolifh Mortimer, in my ſoule) hath wilfully betraid
es of thoſe, that he did leade to Fight, the great Magitian, damn'd Glendower:
daughter (as we heare) the Earle of March tely married. Shall our Coffers then, ſed, to redeeme a Traitor home?
buy Treaſon, and indent with Feares,
hey haue loſt and forfeyted themſelues.
No: on the barren Mountaine let him ſtarue:
For I ſhall neuer hold that man my Friend,
Whoſe tongue ſhall aſke me for one peny coſt
To ranſome home reuolted Mortimer.
Hot. Reuolted Mortimer?
He neuer did fall off, my Soueraigne Liege,
But by the chance of Warre: to proue that true,
Needs no more but one tongue. For all thoſe Wounds,
Thoſe mouthed Wounds, which valiantly he tooke,
When on the gentle Seuernes ſedgie banke,
In ſingle Oppoſition hand to hand,
He did confound the beſt part of an houre
In changing hardiment with great Glendower:
Three times they breath'd, and three times did they drinke
Vpon agreement, of ſwift Seuernes flood;
Who then affrighted with their bloody lookes,
Ran fearefully among the trembling Reeds,
And hid his criſpe-head in the hollow banke,
Blood-ſtained with theſe Valiant Combatants.
Neuer did baſe and rotten Policy
Colour her working with ſuch deadly wounds;
Nor neuer could the Noble Mortimer
Receiue ſo many, and all willingly:
Then let him not be ſlander'ed with Reuolt.
King. Thou do'ſt belye him Percy, thou doſt belye him;
He neuer did encounter with Glendower:
I tell thee, he durſt as well haue met the diuell alone,
As Owen Glendower for an enemy.
Art thou not aſham'd? But Sirrah, henceforth
Let me not heare you ſpeake of Mortimer.
Send me your Priſoners with the ſpeedieſt meanes,
Or you ſhall heare in ſuch a kinde from me
As will diſpleaſe ye. My Lord Northumberland,
We Licenſe your departure with your ſonne.
Send vs your Priſoners, or you'l heare of it. Exit King.
Hot. And if the diuell come and roare for them
I will not ſend them. I will after ſtraight
And tell him ſo: for I will eaſe my heart,
Although it be with hazard of my head.
Nor. What? drunke with choller? ſtay & paſue awhile, Heere comes your Vncle. Enter Worceſter.
Hot. Speake of Mortimer?
Yes, I will ſpeake of him, and let my ſoule
Want mercy, if I do not ioyne with him.
In his behalfe, Ile empty all theſe Veines,
And ſhed my deere blood drop by drop i'th duſt,
But I will lift the downfall Mortimer
As high i'th Ayre, as this Vnthankfull King,
As this Ingrate and Cankred Bullingbrooke.
Nor. Brother, the King hath made your Nephew mad
Wor. Who ſtrooke this heate vp after I was gone
Hot. He will (forſooth) haue all my Priſoners:
And when I vrg'd the ranſom once againe
Of my Wiues Brother, then his cheeke look'd pale,
And on my face he turn'd an eye of death,
Trembling euen at the name of Mortimer.
Wor. I cannot blame him: was he not proclaim'd
By Richard that dead is, the next of blood?
Nor. He was: I heard the Proclamation,
And then it was, when the vnhappy King
(Whoſe wrongs in vs God pardon) did ſet forth
Vpon his Iriſh Expedition:
From whence he intercepted, did returne
To be depos'd, and ſhortly murthered.
Wor And for whoſe death, we in the worlds wide mouth
Liue ſcandaliz'd, and foully ſpoken of.

Hot. But soft I pray you; did King Richard then Proclaime my brother Mortimer,
Heyre to the Crowne?
Nor. He did, my selfe did heare it.
Hot. Nay then I cannot blame his Cousin King,
That wish'd him on the barren Mountaines starv'd.
But shall it be, that you that set the Crowne
Vpon the head of this forgetfull man,
And for his sake, wore the detested blot
Of murtherous subornation? Shall it be,
That you a world of curses vndergoe,
Being the Agents, or base second meanes,
The Cords, the Ladder, or the Hangman rather?
O pardon, if that I descend so low,
To shew the Line, and the Predicament
Wherein you range vnder this subtill King.
Shall it for shame, be spoken in these dayes,
Or fill vp Chronicles in time to come,
That men of your Nobility and Power,
Did gage them both in an vniust behalfe
(As Both of you, God pardon it, haue done)
To put downe Richard, that sweet lously Rose,
And plant this Thorne, this Canker Bullingbrooke?
And shall it in more shame be further spoken,
That you are fool'd, discarded, and shooke off
By him, for whom these shames ye vnderwent?
No: yet time serves, wherein you may redeeme
Your banish'd Honors, and restore your selues
Into the good Thoughts of the world againe.
Reuenge the geering and disdain'd contempt
Of this proud King, who studies day and night
To answer all the Debt he owes vnto you,
Euen with the bloody Payment of your deaths:
Therefore I say——
Wor. Peace Cousin, say no more.
And now I will vnclasp a Secret booke,
And to your quicke conceyuing Discontents,
Ile reade you Matter, deepe and dangerous,
As full of perill and aduenturous Spirit,
As to o're-walke a Current, roaring loud
On the vnstedfast footing of a Speare.
Hot. If he fall in, good night, or sinke or swimme:
Send danger from the East vnto the West,
So Honor crosse it from the North to South,
And let them grapple: The blood more stirres
To rouze a Lyon, then to start a Hare.
Nor. Imagination of some great exploit,
Drives him beyond the bounds of Patience.
Hot. By heauen, me thinkes it were an easie leap,
To pluck bright Honor from the pale-fac'd Moone,
Or dive into the bottome of the deepe,
Where Fadome-line could neuer touch the ground,
And plucke vp drowned Honor by the Locks:
So he that doth redeeme her thence, might weare
Without Co-riuall, all her Dignities:
But out vpon this halfe-fac'd Fellowship.
Wor. He apprehends a World of Figures here,
But not the forme of what he should attend:
Good Cousin giue me audience for a-while,
And list to me.
Hot. I cry you mercy.
Wor. Those same Noble Scottes
That are your Prisoners.
Hot. Ile keepe them all.
By heauen, he shall not haue a Scot of them:
No if a Scot would saue his Soule, he shall not.
Ile keepe them, by this Hand.
Wor. You start away,
And lend no eare vnto my purposes.
Those Prisoners you shall keepe.
Hot. Nay, I will; that's flat:
He said, he would not ransome Mortimer,
Forbad my tongue to speake of Mortimer,
But I will finde him when he lyes asleepe,
And in his eare, Ile holla Mortimer.
Nay, Ile haue a Starling shall be taught to speake
Nothing but Mortimer, and giue it him,
To keepe his anger still in motion.
Wor. Heare you Cousin: a word.
Hot. All studies heere I solemnly defie,
Saue how to gall and pinch this Bullingbrooke,
And that same Sword and Buckler Prince of Wales.
But that I thinke his Father loues him not,
And would be glad he met with some mischance,
I would haue poyson'd him with a pot of Ale.
Wor. Farewell Kinsman: Ile talke to you
When you are better temper'd to attend.
Nor. Why what a Waspe-tongu'd & impatient fool
Art thou, to breake into this Womans mood,
Tying thine eare to no tongue but thine owne?
Hot. Why look you, I am whipt & scourg'd with rods,
Nettled, and stung with Pismires, when I heare
Of this vile Politician Bullingbrooke.
In Richards time: What do'ye call the place?
A plague vpon't, it is in Glouster shire:
'Twas, where the madcap Duke his Vncle kept,
His Vncle Yorke, where I first bow'd my knee
Vnto this King of Smiles, this Bullingbrooke:
When you and he came backe from Ravenspurgh.
Nor. At Barkley Castle.
Hot. You say true:
Why what a candle deale of courtesie,
This fawning Greyhound then did proffer me.
Looke when his infant Fortune came to age,
And gentle Harry Percy, and kinde Cousin:
O, the Diuell take such Cozeners, God forgiue me,
Good Vncle tell your tale, for I haue done.
Wor. Nay, if you haue not, to't againe,
We'l stay your leysure.
Hot. I haue done insooth.
Wor. Then once more to your Scottish Prisoners.
Deliuer them vp without their ransome straight,
And make the Douglas sonne your only meane
For powres in Scotland: which for diuers reasons
Which I shall send you written, be assur'd
Will easily be granted you, my Lord.
Your Sonne in Scotland being thus employ'd,
Shall secretly into the bosome creepe
Of that same noble Prelate, well belou'd,
The Archbishop.
Hot. Of Yorke, is't not?
Wor. True, who beares hard
His Brothers death at Bristow, the Lord Scroope.
I speake not this in estimation,
As what I thinke might be, but what I know
In ruminated, plotted, and set downe,
And only stayes but to behold the face
Of that occasion that shall bring it on.
Hot. I smell it:
Vpon my life, it will do wondrous well.
Nor. Before the game's a-foot, thou still let'st slip.
Hot. Why, it cannot choose but be a Noble plot,

And

en the power of Scotland, and of Yorke ne with Mortimer, He.
. And ſo they ſhall.
. Infaith it is exceedingly well aym'd.
. And 'tis no little reaſon bids vs ſpeed,
e our heads, by raiſing of a Head:
aine our ſelues as euen as we can,
ng will alwayes thinke him in our debt,
inke, we thinke our ſelues vnſatisfied,
hath found a time to pay vs home.
e already, how he doth beginne
he vs ſtrangers to his lookes of loue.
. He does, he does; weel be reueng'd on him.
. Couſin, farewell. No further go in this,
by Letters ſhall direct your courſe time is ripe, which will be ſodainly:
lle to Glendower, and loe, Mortimer,
e you, and Douglas, and our powres at once,
all faſhion it, ſhall happily meete,
ire our fortunes in our owne ſtrong armes,
now we hold at much vncertainty.'
r. Farewell good Brother, we ſhall thriue, I truſt.
Vncle, adieu: O let the houres be ſhort, lds, and blowes, and grones, applaud our ſport. exit

Actus Secundus. Scena Prima.

Enter a Carrier with a Lanterne in his hand.

Car Heigh-ho, an't be not foure by the day, I'le be . Charles wayne is ouer the new Chimney, and yet
rſe not packt. What Oſtler?
. Anon, anon.
ar. I prethee Tom, beate Cuts Saddle, put a few s in the point: the poore Iade is wrung in the wi-out of all ceſſe.

Enter another Carrier.

Car. Peaſe and Beanes are as danke here as a Dog, is is the next way to giue poore Iades the Bo tes:
ouſe is turned vpſide downe ſince Robin the Oſtler

ar. Poore fellow neuer ioy'd ſince the price of oats t was the death of him.
Car. I thinke this is the moſt villanous houſe in al on rode for Fleas: I am ſtung like a Tench.
ar. Like a Tench? There is ne're a King in Chrine, could be better bit, then I haue been ſince the ocke.
ar. Why, you will allow vs ne're a Iourden, and e leake in your Chimney: and your Chamber-lye
Fleas like a Loach.
Car. What Oſtler, come away, and be hang'd: come ar. I haue a Gammon of Bacon, and two razes of

, to be deliuered as faſte as Charing-croſſe.
ar. The Turkies in my Pannier are quite ſtarued.
Oſtler? A plague on thee, haſt thou neuer an eye in d? Can'ſt not heare? And t'were not as good a drinke, to break the pate of thee, I am a very Vil-
Come and be hang'd, haſt no faith in thee?

Enter Gads-hill.

Good-morrow Carriers. What's a clocke?
I thinke it be two a clocke.
I prethee lend me thy Lanthorne to ſee my Gelding in the ſtable.
1. Car. Nay ſoft I pray ye, I know a trick worth two of that.
Gad. I prethee lend me thine.
2. Car. I, when, canſt tell? Lend mee thy Lanthorne (quoth a) marry Ile ſee thee hang'd firſt.
Gad. Sirra Carrier: What time do you mean to come to London?
2. Car. Time enough to goe to bed with a Candle, I warrant thee. Come neighbour Mugges, wee'll call vp the Gentlemen, they will along with company, for they haue great charge. Exeunt

Enter Chamberlaine.

Gad. What ho, Chamberlaine?
Cham. At hand quoth Pick-purſe.
Gad. That's euen as faire, as at hand quoth the Cham-berlaine: For thou varieſt no more from picking of Pur-ſes, then giuing direction, doth from labouring. Thou lay'ſt the plot, how.
Cham. Good morrow Maſter Gads-Hill, it holds currant that I told you yeſternight. There's a Franklin in the wilde of Kent, hath brought three hundred Markes with him in Gold: I heard him tell it to one of his company laſt night at Supper; a kinde of Auditor, one that hath abundance of charge too (God knowes what) they are vp already, and call for Egges and Butter. They will away preſently.
Gad. Sirra, if they meete not with S. Nicholas Clarks,
Ile giue thee this necke.
Cham. No, Ile none of it: I prythee keep that for the Hangman, for I know thou worſhipſt S. Nicholas as truly as a man of falſhood may.
Gad. What talkeſt thou to me of the Hangman? If I hang, Ile make a fat payre of Gallowes. For, if I hang, old Sir Iohn hangs with mee, and thou know'ſt he's no Starueling. Tut, there are other Troians that thou dream'ſt not of, the which (for ſport ſake) are content to doe the Profeſſion ſome grace; that would (if matters ſhould bee look'd into) for their owne Credit ſake, make all whole.
I am ioyned with no Foot-land-Rakers, no Long-ſtaffe ſix-penny ſtrikers, none of theſe mad Muſtachio-purplehu'd Maltwormes, but with Nobility, and Tranquillitie; Bourgomaſters, and great Oneyers, ſuch as can hold in,
ſuch as will ſtrike ſooner then ſpeake; and ſpeake ſooner
then drinke, and drinke ſooner then pray: and yet I lye, for they pray continually vnto their Saint the Commonwealth; or rather, not to pray to her, but prey on her: for they ride vp & downe on her, and make her their Boots.
Cham. What, the Commonwealth their Boots? Will ſhe hold out water in foule way?
Gad. She will, ſhe will; Iuſtice hath liquor'd her. We ſteale as in a Caſtle, cocke-ſure: we haue the receit of Fernſeede, we walke inuiſible.
Cham. Nay, I thinke rather, you are more beholding to the Night, then to the Fernſeed, for your walking in-uiſible.
Gad. Giue me thy hand
Thou ſhalt haue a ſhare in our purpoſe
As I am a true man.
Cham. Nay, rather let mee haue it, as you are a falſe Theefe.
Gad. Goe too: Homo is a common name to all men.
Bid the Oſtler bring the Gelding out of the ſtable. Farewell, ye muddy Knaue. Exeunt.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Prince Poynes, and Peto.

Poines. Come shelter, shelter, I haue removed Falstaffs Horse, and he frets like a gum'd Veluet.

Prin. Stand close.

Enter Falstaffe.

Fal. Poines, Poines, and be hang'd Poines.

Prin. Peace ye fat-kidney'd Rascall, what a brawling dost thou keepe

Fal. What Poines. Hal?

Prin. He is walk'd vp to the top of the hill, Ile go seek him.

Fal. I am accurst to rob in that Theefe company: that Rascall hath removed my Horse, and tied him I know not where. If I trauell but foure foot by the squire further a foote, I shall breake my winde. Well, I doubt not but to dye a faire death for all this, if I scape hanging for killing that Rogue, I haue forsworne his company hourely any time this two and twenty yeare, & yet I am bewitcht with the Rogues company. If the Rascall haue not giuen me medicines to make me loue him, Ile be hang'd; it could not be else: I haue drunke Medicines. Poines, Hal, a Plague vpon you both. Bardolph, Peto: Ile starue ere I rob a foote further. And 'twere not as good a deede as to drinke, to turne True-man, and to leaue these Rogues, I am the veriest Varlet that euer chewed with a Tooth. Eight yards of vneuen ground, is threescore & ten miles afoot with me: and the stony-hearted Villaines knowe it well enough. A plague vpon't, when Theeues cannot be true one to another. They whistle.

Whew: a plague light vpon you all. Giue my Horse you Rogues; giue me my Horse, and be hang'd.

Prin. Peace ye fat guttes, lye downe, lay thine eare close to the ground, and list if thou can heare the tread of Trauellers.

Fal. Haue you any Leuers to lift me vp again being downe? Ile not beare mine owne flesh so far afoot again, for all the coine in thy Fathers Exchequer. What a plague meane ye to colt me thus?

Prin. Thou lyest, thou art not colted, thou art vncolted.

Fal. I prethee good Prince Hal, help me to my horse, good Kings sonne.

Prin. Out you Rogue, shall I be your Ostler?

Fal. Go hang thy selfe in thine owne heire-apparant-Garters: If I be ta'ne, Ile peach for this: and I haue not Ballads made on all, and sung to filthy tunes, let a Cup of Sacke be my poyson: when a iest is so forward, & a foote too, I hate it

Enter Gads-hill.

Gad. Stand.

Fal. So I do against my will.

Poin. O 'tis our Setter, I know his voyce.

Bardolfe, what newes?

Bar. Case ye, case ye; on with your Vizards, there's mony of the Kings comming downe the hill, 'tis going to the Kings Exchequer.

Fal. You lie you rogue, 'tis going to the Kings Tauern.

Gad. There's enough to make vs all.

Fal. To be hang'd.

Prin. You foure shall front them in the narrow Lane. Ned and I, will walke lower; if they scape from your encounter, then they light on vs.

Peto. But how many be of them?

Gad. Some eight or ten.

Fal. Will they not rob vs?

Prin. What, a Coward Sir Iohn Paunch?

Fal. Indeed I am not Iohn of Gaunt your Grandfather: but yet no Coward, Hal.

Prin. We'l leaue that to the proofe.

Poin. Sirra Iacke, thy horse stands behinde the hedge, when thou need'st him, there thou shalt finde him. Farewell, and stand fast.

Fal. Now cannot I strike him, if I should be hang'd.

Prin. Ned, where are our disguises?

Poin. Heere hard by: Stand close.

Fal. Now my Masters, happy man be his dole, say I: euery man to his businesse.

Enter Trauellers.

Tra. Come Neighbor: the boy shall leade our Horses downe the hill: We'l walke a-foot a while, and ease our Legges.

Theeues. Stay.

Tra. Iesu blesse vs.

Fal. Strike: down with them, cut the villains throates: a whorson Caterpillars. Bacon-fed Knaues, they hate vs youth: downe with them, fleece them.

Tra. O, we are vndone, both we and ours for euer.

Fal. Hang ye gorbellied knaues, are you vndone? No ye Fat Chuffes, I would your store were heere. On Bacons on, what ye knaues? Young men must liue, you are Grand-Iurors, are ye? We'l iure ye faith.

Here they rob them, and binde them. Exeunt the Prince and Poines

Prin. The Theeues haue bound the True-men: Now could thou and I rob the Theeues, and go merily to London, it would be argument for a Weeke, Laughter for a Moneth, and a good iest for euer.

Poines. Stand close, I heare them comming.

Enter Theeues again.

Fal. Come my Masters, let vs share, and then to horse before day: and the Prince and Poines be not two arrant Cowards, there's no equity stirring. There's no more valour in that Poines, than in a wilde Duche.

Prin. Your money.

Poin. Villaines.

As they are sharing, the Prince and Poines set vpon them.

They all run away, leauing the booty behind them.

Prince. Got with much ease. Now merrily to Horse: The Theeues are scattered, and possest with fear so strongly, that they dare not meet each other: each takes his fellow for an Officer. Away good Ned. Falstaffe sweates to death, and Lards the leane earth as he walkes along: were not for laughing, I should pitty him.

Poin. How the Rogue roar'd. Exeunt.

Scæna Tertia.

Enter Hotspurre solus, reading a Letter.

But for mine own part, my Lord, I could be well contented to be there, in respect of the loue I beare your house.

: contented: Why is he not then? in reſpect of beares our houſe. He ſhewes in this, he loues rne better then he loues our houſe. Let me ore. The purpoſe you undertake is dangerous.
certaine: 'Tis dangerous to take a Colde, to inke: but I tell you (my Lord foole) out of Danger; we pluckе this Flower, Safety. The ndertake is dangerous, the Friends you haue name, the Time is ſelfe vnexperted, and your whole
, for the counterpoize of ſo great an Oppoſition.
ſay you ſo: I ſay vnto you againe, you are a Pardly Hinde, and you Lye. What a lacke-e? I proteſt, our plot is as good a plot as euer ur Friend true and conſtant: A good Plotte, ds, and full of expectation: An excellent plot, riends. What a Froſty-ſpirited rogue is this?
Lord of Yorke commends the plot, and the rſe of the action. By this hand, if I were now tall, I could braine him with his Ladies Fan.
my Father, my Vnckle, and my Selfe, Lord
rtimer, my Lord of Yorke, and Owen Glendower? beſides, the Douglas? Haue I not all their lette me in Armes by the ninth of the next More they not ſome of them ſet forward already?
gan Raſcall is this? An Infidell! Ha, you ſhall very ſincerity of Feare and Cold heart, will he , and lay open all our proceedings. O, I could elſe, and go to buffets, for moouing ſuch a diſh ſilke with ſo honourable an Action. Hang him, the King we are prepared. I will ſet forwards

Enter his Lady.

Kate, I muſt leaue you within theſe two hours.
ny good Lord, why are you thus alone?
fference haue I this fortnight bin woman from my Harries bed?
eete Lord) what is't that takes from thee
ke, pleaſure and thy golden ſleepe?
hou bend thine eyes vpon the earth?
ſ often when thou ſit'ſt alone?
hou loſt the freſh blood in thy cheekes?
my Treaſures and my rights of thee,
ry'd muſing, and curſt melancholly
-ſlumbers, I by thee haue watcht, thee murmure tales of Iron Warres:
mes of manage to thy bounding Steed,
e to the field. And thou haſt talk'd and Retires; Trenches, Tents,
oes, Frontiers, Paſſpets,
es, of Canon, Culuerin,
s ranſome, and of Souldiers ſlaine,
current of a headdy fight.
within thee hath beene ſo at Warre,
ath ſo beſiſtr'd thee in thy ſleepe,
of ſweate hath ſtood vpon thy Brow,
es in a late-diſturbed Streame;
face ſtrange motions haue appear'd,
ſet when men reſtraine their breath eat ſodaine haſt. O what portents are theſe?
e buſineſſe hath my Lord in hand,
know it: elſe he loues me not.
hat ho! Is Gilliams with the Packet gone?
is my Lord, an houre agone.
Butler brought thoſe horſes fro the Sheriffe?

Ser. One horſe, my Lord, he brought euen now.
Hot. What Horſe? A Roane, a crop eare, is it not.
Ser. It is my Lord.
Hot. That Roane ſhall be my Throne. Well, I will backe him ſtraight. Eſperance, bid Butler lead him forth into the Parke.
La. But heare you, my Lord.
Hot. What ſay'ſt thou my Lady?
La. What is it carries you away?
Hot. Why, my horſe (my Loue) my horſe.
La. Out you mad-headed Ape, a Weazell hath not ſuch a deale of Spleene, as you are toſt with. In ſooth Ile know your buſineſſe Harry, that I will. I feare my Brother Mortimer doth ſtirre about his Title, and hath ſent for you to line his enterprize. But if you go——
Hot. So farre a foot, I ſhall be weary, Loue.
La. Come, come, you Paraquito, anſwer me directly vnto this queſtion, that I ſhall aſke. Indeede Ile breake thy little finger Harry, if thou wilt not tel me true.
Hot. Away, away you trifler: Loue, I loue thee not,
I care not for thee Kate: this is no world
To play with Mammets, and to tilt with lips.
We muſt haue bloodie Noſes, and crack'd Crownes,
And paſſe them current too. Gods me, my horſe.
What ſay'ſt thou Kate? what would'ſt thou haue with me?
La. Do ye not loue me? Do ye not indeed?
Well, do not then. For ſince you loue me not
I will not loue my ſelfe. Do you not loue me?
Nay, tell me if thou ſpeak'ſt in ieſt or no.
Hot. Come, wilt thou ſee me ride?
And when I am a horſeback, I will ſweare
I loue thee infinitely. But harke you Kate,
I muſt not haue you henceforth, queſtion me,
Whether I go: nor reaſon whereabout.
Whether I muſt, I muſt: and to conclude,
This Euening muſt I leaue thee, gentle Kate.
I know you wiſe, but yet no further wiſe
Then Harry Percies wife. Conſtant you are,
But yet a woman: and for ſecrecie,
No Lady cloſer. For I will beleeue
Thou wilt not vtter what thou do'ſt not know,
And ſo farre will I truſt thee, gentle Kate.
La. How ſo farre?
Hot. Not an inch further. But harke you Kate,
Whither I go, thither ſhall you go too:
To day will I ſet forth, to morrow you.
Will this content you Kate?
La. It muſt of force. Exeunt

Scena Quarta.

Enter Prince and Poines.

Prin. Ned, prethee come out of that fat roome, & lend me thy hand to laugh a little.
Poines. Where haſt bene Hall?
Prin. With three or foure Logger-heads, amongſt 3 or foureſcore Hogſheads. I haue ſounded the verie baſe ſtring of humility. Sirra, I am ſworn brother to a leaſh of Drawers, and can call them by their names, as Tom Dicke, and Francis. They take it already vpon their confidence, that though I be but Prince of Wales, yet I am the King of Curteſie: telling me flatly I am no proud Iack like Fal- ſtaffe, but a Corinthian, a lad of mettle, a good boy, and when I am King of England, I ſhall command all the good Lads in Eaſt-cheape. They call drinking deepe, dying Scarlet; and when you breath in your watering, then they cry hem, and bid you play it off. To conclude, I am so good a proficient in one quarter of an houre, that I can drinke with any Tinker in his owne Language during my life. I tell thee Ned, thou haſt loſt much honor, that thou wer't not with me in this action: but ſweet Ned, to ſweeten which name of Ned, I giue thee this penyworth of Sugar, clapt euen now into my hand by an vnder Skinker, one that neuer ſpake other Engliſh in his life, then Eight ſhillings and ſix pence, and, You are welcome: with this ſhrill addition, Anon, Anon ſir, Score a Pint of Baſtard in the Halfe Moone, or ſo. But Ned, to driue away time till Falſtaffe come, I prythee doe thou ſtand in ſome by-roome, while I queſtion my puny Drawer, to what end hee gaue me the Sugar, and do neuer leaue calling Francis, that his Tale to me may be nothing but, Anon: ſtep aſide, and Ile ſhew thee a Preſident.

Poines. Francis.

Prin. Thou art perfect.

Poin. Francis.

Enter Drawer.

Fran. Anon, anon ſir; looke downe into the Pomgarnet, Ralfe.

Prince. Come hither Francis.

Fran. My Lord.

Prin. How long haſt thou to ſerue, Francis?

Fran. Forſooth fiue yeares, and as much as to——

Poin. Francis.

Fran. Anon, anon ſir.

Prin. Fiue yeares: Berlady a long Leaſe for the clinking of Pewter. But Francis, dareſt thou be ſo valiant, as to play the coward with thy Indenture, & ſhew it a faire paire of heeles, and run from it?

Fran. O Lord ſir, Ile be ſworne vpon all the Books in England, I could finde in my heart.

Poin. Francis.

Fran. Anon, anon ſir.

Prin. How old art thou, Francis?

Fran. Let me ſee, about Michaelmas next I ſhalbe——

Poin. Francis.

Fran. Anon ſir, pray you ſtay a little, my Lord.

Prin. Nay but harke you Francis, for the Sugar thou gaueſt me, 'twas a penyworth, was't not?

Fran. O Lord ſir, I would it had bene two.

Prin. I will giue thee for it a thouſand pound: Aske me when thou wilt, and thou ſhalt haue it.

Poin. Francis.

Fran. Anon, anon.

Prin. Anon Francis? No Francis, but to morrow Francis: or Francis, on thurſday: or indeed Francis when thou wilt. But Francis.

Fran. My Lord.

Prin. Wilt thou rob this Leatherne Ierkin, Chriſtall button, Not-pated, Agat ring, Puke ſtocking, Caddice garter, Smooth tongue, Spaniſh pouch.

Fran. O Lord ſir, who do you meane?

Prin. Why then your browne Baſtard is your only drinke: for looke you Francis, your white Canuas doublet will ſulley. In Barbary ſir, it cannot come to ſo much.

Fran. What ſir?

Poin. Francis.

Prin. Away you Rogue, doſt thou heare them call?

Here they both call him, the Drawer ſtands amazed, not knowing which way to go.

Enter Vintner.

Vint. What ſtand'ſt thou ſtill, and hear'ſt ſuch a calling? Looke to the Gueſts within: My Lord, old ſir Iohn with halfe a dozen more, are at the doore: ſhall I let them in?

Prin. Let them alone awhile, and then open the doore. Poines.

Exeunt Poines.

Poin. Anon, anon ſir.

Prin. Sirra, Falſtaffe and the reſt of the Theeues, are at the doore, ſhall we be merry?

Poin. As merrie as Crickets my Lad. But harke yee, What cunning match haue you made with this ieſt of the Drawer? Come, what's the iſſue?

Prin. I am now of all humors, that haue ſhewed themſelues humors, ſince the old dayes of goodman Adam, to the pupill age of this preſent twelue a clock at midnight. What's a clocke Francis?

Fran. Anon, anon ſir.

Prin. That euer this Fellow ſhould haue fewer words then a Parrot, and yet the ſonne of a Woman. His induſtry is vp-ſtaires and down-ſtaires, his eloquence the parcell of a reckoning. I am not yet of Percies mind, the Hotſpurre of the North, he that killes me ſome ſixe or ſeuen dozen of Scots at a Breakfaſt, waſhes his hands, and ſaies to his wife; Fie vpon this quiet life, I want worke. O my ſweet Harry ſayes ſhe, how many haſt thou kill'd to day? Giue my Roane horſe a drench (ſayes hee) and anſwers, ſome fourteene, an houſe a-peece: a trifle, a trifle. I prethee call in Falſtaffe, Ile play Percy, and that damn'd Brawne ſhall play Dame Mortimer his wife. Riuo, ſayes the drunkard. Call in Ribs, call in Tallow.

Enter Falſtaffe.

Poin. Welcome Iacke, where haſt thou beene?

Fal. A plague of all Cowards I ſay, and a Vengeance too, marry and Amen. Giue me a cup of Sacke Boy. Ere I leade this life long, Ile ſowe nether ſtockes, and mend them too. A plague of all cowards. Giue me a Cup of Sacke, Rogue. Is there no Vertue extant?

Prin. Did'ſt thou never ſee Titan kiſſe a diſh of Butter, pittifull hearted Titan, that melted at the ſweete Tale of the Sunne? If thou did'ſt, then behold that compound.

Fal. You Rogue, here's Lime in this Sacke too: there is nothing but Roguery to be found in Villanous man: yet a Coward is worſe then a Cup of Sacke with lime. A villanous Coward, go thy wayes old Iacke, die when thou wilt, if manhood good manhood be not forgot vpon the face of the earth, then am I a ſhotten Herring: there liues not three good men vnhang'd in England, & one of them is fat, and growes old, God helpe the while, a bad world I ſay. I would I were a Weauer, I could ſing all manner of ſongs. A plague of all Cowards, I ſay ſtill.

Prin. How now Woolſack, what matter you?

Fal. A King's Sonne? If I do not beate thee out of thy Kingdome with a dagger of Lath, and driue all thy ſubiects afore thee like a flocke of Wilde-geeſe, I'le neuer weare haire on my face more. You Prince of Wales?

Prin. Why you horſon round man, what's the matter?

Fal. Are you not a Coward? Anſwer me to that, and Poines there?

Poin. Ye fatch pounch, and yee call mee Coward, Ile ſtab thee.

Fal. I call thee Coward? Ile ſee thee damn'd ere I call thee Coward: but I would giue a thouſand pound I could run as faſt as thou canſt. You are ſtraight enough in the ſhoulders, you care not who ſees your backe: Call you that backing of your friends? a plague vpon such backing: giue me them that will face me. Giue me a Cup of Sack, I am a Rogue if I drunke to day.

Prince. O Villaine, thy Lippes are scarce wip'd, since thou drunk'ſt laſt.

Falſt. All's one for that. He drinkes.
A plague of all Cowards ſtill, ſay I.

Prince. What's the matter?

Falſt. What's the matter? here be foure of vs, haue ta'ne a thouſand pound this Morning.

Prince. Where is it, Iack? where is it?

Falſt. Where is it? taken from vs, it is a hundred vpon poore foure of vs.

Prince. What, a hundred, man?

Falſt. I am a Rogue, if I were not at halfe Sword with a dozen of them two houres together. I haue eſcped by miracle. I am eight times thruſt through the Doublet, foure through the Hoſe, my Buckler cut through and through, my Sword hackt like a Hand-ſaw, ecce ſignum. I never dealt better ſince I was a man: all would not doe. A plague of all Cowards: let them ſpeake; if they ſpeake more or leſſe then truth, they are villaines, and the ſonnes of darkneſſe.

Prince. Speake ſirs, how was it?

Gad. We foure ſet vpon ſome dozen.

Falſt. Sixteene, at leaſt, my Lord.

Gad. And bound them.

Peto. No, no, they were not bound.

Falſt. You Rogue, they were bound, every man of them, or I am a Iew elſe, an Ebrew Iew.

Gad. As we were ſharing, ſome ſixe or ſeuen freſh men ſet vpon vs.

Falſt. And vnbound the reſt, and then come in the other.

Prince. What, fought yee with them all?

Falſt. All? I know not what yee call all: but if I fought not with fifty of them, I am a bunch of Radiſh: if there were not two or three and fifty vpon poore olde Iack, then am I no two-legg'd Creature.

Peto. Pray Heauen, you haue not murthered ſome of them.

Falſt. Nay, that's paſt praying for. I haue pepper'd two of them: Two I am ſure I haue payed, two Rogues in Buckrom Suites. I tell thee what, Hal, if I tell thee a Lye, ſpit in my face, call me Horſe: thou knoweſt my olde word: here I ſtay, and thus I bore my point; foure Rogues in Buckrom let driue at me.

Prince. What, foure? thou ſayd'ſt but two, euen now.

Falſt. Foure Hal, I told thee foure.

Poin. I, he ſaid foure.

Falſt. Theſe foure came all a-front, and mainely thruſt at me; I made no more adoe, but tooke all their ſeuen poinets in my Targuet, thus.

Prince. Seuen? why there were but foure, euen now.

Falſt. In Buckrom.

Poin. I, foure, in Buckrom Suites.

Falſt. Seuen, by theſe Hilts, or I am a Villaine elſe.

Prin. Prethee let him alone, we ſhall haue more anon.

Falſt. Doeſt thou heare me, Hal?

Prin. I, and marke thee too, Iack.

Falſt. Doe ſo, for it is worth the liſtning too: theſe nine in Buckrom, that I told thee of.

Prin. So, two more already.

Falſt. Their Points being broken.

Poin. Downe fell his Hoſe.

Falſt. Began to giue me ground: but I followed me cloſe, came in foot and hand, and with a thought, ſeuen of the eleuen I pay'd.

Prin. O monſtrous! eleuen Buckrom men growne out of two?

Falſt. But as the Deuill would haue it, three miſ-begotten Knaues, in Kendall Greene, came at my Back, and let driue at me; for it was ſo darke, Hal, that thou could'ſt not ſee thy Hand.

Prin. Theſe Lyes are like the Father that begets them, groſſe as a Mountaine, open, palpable. Why thou Clay-brayn'd Guts, thou Knotty-pated Foole, thou Horſon obſcene greaſie Tallow Catch.

Falſt. What, art thou mad? art thou mad? is not the truth, the truth?

Prin. Why, how could'ſt thou know theſe men in Kendall Greene, when it was ſo darke, thou could'ſt not ſee thy Hand? Come, tell vs your reaſon: what ſay'ſt thou to this?

Poin. Come, your reaſon Iack, your reaſon.

Falſt. What, vpon compulſion? No: were I at the Strappado, or all the Racks in the World, I would not tell you on compulſion. Giue you a reaſon on compulſion? If Reaſons were as plentie as Black-berries, I would giue no man a Reaſon vpon compulſion, I.

Prin. Ile be no longer guiltie of this ſinne. This ſanguine Coward, this Bed-preſſer, this Horſ-back-breaker, this huge Hill of Fleſh.

Falſt. Away you Starueling, you Elfe-ſkin, you dried Neats tongue, Bulles-piſſell, you ſtocke-fiſh: O for breth to vtter. What is like thee? You Tailors yard, you ſheath you Bow-caſe, you vile ſtanding tucke.

Prin. Well, breath a-while, and then to't againe: and when thou haſt tyr'd thy ſelfe in baſe compariſons, heare me ſpeake but thus.

Poin. Marke Iacke.

Prin. We two, ſaw you foure ſet on foure and bound them, and were Maſters of their Wealth: mark now how a plaine Tale ſhall put you downe. Then did we two, ſet on you foure, and with a word, outfac'd you from your prize, and haue it: yea, and can ſhew it you in the Houſe. And Falſtaffe, you carried your Guts away as nimbly, with as quicke dexteritie, and roared for mercy, and ſtill ranne and roar'd, as euer I heard Bull-Calfe. What a Slaue art thou, to hacke thy Sword as thou haſt done, and then ſay it was in fight. What trick? what deuice? what ſtarting hole canſt thou now find out, to hide thee from this open and apparant ſhame?

Poinet. Come, let's heare Iacke: What tricke haſt thou now?

Fal. I knew ye as well as he that made ye. Why heare ye my Maſters, was it for me to kill the Heire apparant? Should I turne vpon the true Prince? Why, thou knoweſt I am as valiant as Hercules: but beware Inſtinct, the Lion will not touch the true Prince: Inſtinct is a great matter. I was a Coward on Inſtinct: I ſhall thinke the better of my ſelfe, and thee, during my life: I, for a valiant Lion, and thou for a true Prince. But Lads, I am glad you haue the Mony. Hoſteſſe, clap to the doores: watch to night, pray to morrow. Gallants, Lads, Boyes, Harts of Gold, all the good Titles of Fellowſhip come to you. What, ſhall we be merry? ſhall we haue a Play extempory.

Prin. Content, and the argument ſhall be, thy running away.

Fal. A, no more of that Hall, and thou loueſt me.

Enter Hoſteſſe.

Hoſt. My Lord, the Prince?

Prin.

Prin How now my Lady the Hoſteſſe, what ſay'ſt thou to me?

Hoſteſſe Marry, my Lord, there is a Noble man of the Court at doore would ſpeake with you: hee ſayes, hee comes from your Father.

Prin. Giue him as much as will make him a Royall man, and ſend him backe againe to my Mother.

Falſt. What manner of man is hee?

Hoſteſſe. An old man.

Falſt. What doth Gruitie out of his Bed at Midnight? Shall I giue him his anſwere?

Prin. Prethee doe Iacke.

Falſt. Faith, and Ile ſend him packing. Exit.

Prince. Now Sirs: you ſought faire; ſo did you Peto, ſo did you Bardal: you are Lyons too, you ranne away vpon inſtinct: you will not touch the true Prince; no, fie.

Bard. Faith, I ranne when I ſaw others runne.

Prin. Tell mee now in earneſt, how came Falſtaffes Sword ſo hackt?

Peto. Why, he hackt it with his Dagger, and ſaid, hee would ſweare truth out of England, but hee would make you beleeue it was done in fight, and perſwaded vs to doe the like.

Bard Yea, and to tickle our Noſes with Spear-graſſe, to make them bleed, and then to beſlubber our garments with it, and ſweare it was the blood of true men. I did that I did not this ſeuen yeeres before, I bluſht to heare his monſtrous deuices.

Prin. O Villaine, thou ſtoleſt a Cup of Sacke eighteene yeeres agoe, and wert taken with the manner, and euer ſince thou haſt blu ht extempore: thou hadſt fire and ſword on thy ſide, a id yet thou ranſt away; what inſtinct hadſt thou for it?

Bard. My Lord, doe you ſee theſe Meteors? doe you behold theſe Exhalations?

Prin. I doe.

Bard. What thinke you they portend?

Prin. Hot Liuers, and cold Purſes.

Bard. Choler, my Lord, if rightly taken.

Prin No, if rightly taken, Halter.

Enter Falſtaffe

Heere comes leane Iacke, heere comes bare-bone. How now my ſweet Creature of Bombaſt, how long is't agoe, Iacke, ſince thou ſaw'ſt thine owne Knee?

Falſt. My owne Knee? When I was about thy yeeres (Hal) I was not an Eagles Talent in the Waſte, I could haue crept into any Aldermans Thumbe-Ring: a plague of ſighing and griefe, it blowes a man vp like a Bladder. There's villanous Newes abroad: heere was Sir Iohn Braby from your Father; you muſt goe to the Court in the Morning. The ſame mad fellow of the North, Percy; and he of Wales, that gaue Amamon the Baſtinado, and made Lucifer Cuckold, and ſwore the Deuill his true Liege-man vpon the Croſſe of a Welch-hooke; what a plague call you him?

Poin. O, Glendower.

Falſt. Owen, Owen; the ſame, and his Sonne in Law Mortimer, and old Northumberland, and the ſprightly Scot of Scots, Douglas, that runnes a Horſe-backe vp a Hill perpendicular.

Prin. Hee that rides at high ſpeede, and with a Piſtoll kills a Sparrow flying.

Falſt. You haue hit it

Prin. So did he neuer the Sparrow.

Falſt. Well, that Raſcall hath good mettall in him, hee will not runne.

Prin. Why, what a Raſcall art thou then, to praiſe him ſo for running?

Falſt. A Horſe-backe (ye Cuckoe) but a foot he will not budge a foot.

Prin. Yes Iacke, vpon inſtinct.

Falſt I grant ye, vpon inſtinct: Well, hee is there too, and one Mordake, and a thouſand blew-Coppen more. Worceſter is ſtolne away by Night: thy Fathers Beard is turn'd white with the Newes; you may buy Land now as cheape as ſtinking Mackrell.

Prin Then 'tis like, if there come a hot Sunne, and this ciuill buffeting hold, we ſhall buy Maiden-heads as they buy Hob-nayles, by the Hundreds.

Falſt. By the Maſſe Lad, thou ſay'ſt true, it is like we ſhall haue good trading that way. But tell me Hal, art not thou horrible afear'd? thou being Heire apparant, could the World picke thee out three ſuch Enemyes a-gaine as that Fiend Douglas, that Spirit Percy, and that Deuill Glendower? Art not thou horrible afraid? Doth not thy blood thrill at it?

Prin Not a whit: I lacke ſome of thy inſtinct.

Falſt. Well, thou wilt be horrible chidde to morrow, when thou commeſt to thy Father: if thou doe lowe me, practiſe an anſwere.

Prin. Doe thou ſtand for my Father, and examine me vpon the particulars of my Life.

Falſt. Shall I? content: This Chayre ſhall be my State, this Dagger my Scepter, and this Cuſhion my Crowne.

Prin. Thy State is taken for a Ioynd-Stoole, thy Golden Scepter for a Leaden Dagger, and thy precious rich Crowne, for a pittifull bald Crowne.

Falſt. Well, and the fire of Grace be not quite out of thee now ſhalt thou be moued. Giue me a Cup of Sacke to make mine eyes looke reddie, that it may be thought I haue wept for I muſt ſpeake in paſſion, and I will doe it in King Cambyſes vaine.

Prin. Well, heere is my Legge.

Falſt. And heere is my ſpeech: ſtand aſide Nobilitie.

Hoſteſſe. This is excellent ſport, yfaith.

Falſt. Weepe not, ſweet Queene, for trickling teares are vaine.

Hoſteſſe. O the Father, how hee holdes his countenance?

Falſt. For Gods ſake Lords, conuey my truſtfull Queen. For teares doe ſtop the floud-gates of her eyes.

Hoſteſſe. O rare, he doth it as like one of theſe harlotry Players, as euer I ſee.

Falſt. Peace good Pint-pot, peace good Tickle-braine. Harry, I doe not only maruell where thou ſpendeſt thy time; but alſo, how thou art accompanied: For though the Camomile, the more it is troden, the faſter it growes, yet Youth, the more it is waſted, the ſooner it weares. Thou art my Sonne: I haue partly thy Mothers Word, partly my Opinion; but chiefely, a villanous tricke of thine Eye, and a fooliſh hanging of thy nether Lippe, that doth warrant me. If then thou be Sonne to me, heere lyeth the point: why, being Sonne to me, art thou ſo poynted at? Shall the bleſſed Sonne of Heauen prooue a Micher, and eate Black-berryes? a queſtion not to be aſkt. Shall the Sonne of England prooue a Theefe, and take Purſes? a queſtion to be aſkt. There is a thing, Harry, which thou haſt often heard of, and it is known to many in our Land, by the Name of Pitch: this Pitch (as ancient Writers doe report) doth defile; ſo doth the companie thou keepeſt: for Harry, now I do not ſpeake to thee in Drinke, but in Teares; not in Pleaſure, but in Paſſion; not in Words onely, but in Woes alſo: and yet there is a vertuous man, whom I haue often noted in thy companie, but I know not his Name.

Prin. What manner of man, and it like your Maieſtie?

Falſt. A goodly portly man yfaith, and a corpulent, of a chearefull Looke, a pleaſing Eye, and a moſt noble Carriage, and as I think, his age ſome fifetie, or (by'lady) inclining to threeſcore; and now I remember mee, his Name is Falſtaffe: if that man ſhould be lewdly giuen, hee deceiues mee; for Harry, I ſee Vertue in his Looke. If the Tree may be knowne by the Fruit, as the Fruit by the Tree, then peremptorily I ſpeake it, there is Vertue in that Falſtaffe: him keepe with, the reſt baniſh. And tell mee now, thou naughtie Varlet, tell mee, where haſt thou beene this moneth?

Prin. Do'ſt thou ſpeake like a King? doe thou ſtand for mee, and Ile play my Father.

Falſt. Depoſe me: if thou do'ſt it halfe ſo gracely, ſo maieſtically, both in word and matter, hang me vp by the heeles for a Rabbet-ſucker, or a Poulters Hare.

Prin. Well, heere I am ſet.

Falſt. And heere I ſtand: iudge my Maſters.

Prin. Now Harry, whence come you?

Falſt. My Noble Lord, from Eaſt-cheape.

Prin. The complaints I heare of thee, are grieuous.

Falſt. Yfaith, my Lord, they are falſe: Nay, Ile tickle ye for a young Prince.

Prin. Swearſt thou, vngracious Boy? henceforth ne're looke on me: thou art violently carryed away from Grace: there is a Deuill haunts thee, in the likeneſſe of a fat old Man; a Tunne of Man is thy Companion. Why do'ſt thou converſe with that Trunke of Humors, that Boulting-Hutch of Beaſtlineſſe, that ſwolne Parcell of Dropſies, that huge Bombard of Sacke, that ſtuft Cloake-bagge of Guts, that roſted Manning Tree Oxe with the Pudding in his Belly, that reuerend Vice, that grey Iniquitie, that Father Ruffian, that Vanitie in yeeres? wherein is he good, but to taſte Sacke, and drinke it? wherein neat and cleanly, but to carue a Capon, and eat it? wherein Cunning, but in Craft? wherein Craftie, but in Villanie? wherein Villanous, but in all things? wherein worthy, but in nothing Falſt. I would your Grace would take me with you: whom meanes your Grace?

Prince. That villanous abhominable mis-leader of Youth Falſtaffe, that old white-bearded Satan.

Falſt. My Lord, the man I know.

Prince. I know thou do'ſt.

Falſt. But to ſay, I know more harme in him then in my ſelfe, were to ſay more then I know. That hee is olde (the more the pittie) his white haires doe witneſſe it: but that hee is (ſauing your reuerence) a Whore-maſter, that I vtterly deny. If Sacke and Sugar bee a fault, Heauen helpe the Wicked: if to be olde and merry, be a ſinne, then many an olde Hoſte that I know, is damn'd: if to be fat, be to be hated, then Pharaohs leane Kine are to be loued. No, my good Lord, baniſh Peto, baniſh Bardolph, baniſh Poines: but for ſweete Iacke Falſtaffe, kinde Iacke Falſtaffe, true Iacke Falſtaffe, valiant Iacke Falſtaffe, and therefore more valiant, being as hee is olde Iacke Falſtaffe, baniſh not him thy Harryes companie, baniſh not him thy Harryes companie; baniſh plumpe Iacke and baniſh all the World.

Prince. I doe, I will.

Enter Bardolph running.

Bard. O, my Lord, my Lord, the Sheriffe, with a moſt moſt monſtrous Watch, is at the doore.

Falſt. Out you Rogue, play out the Play: I haue much to ſay in the behalfe of that Falſtaffe.

Enter the Hoſteſſe.

Hoſteſſe. O, my Lord, my Lord.

Falſt. Heigh, heigh, the Deuill rides vpon a Fiddle ſticke: what's the matter?

Hoſteſſe. The Sheriffe and all the Watch are at the doore: they are come to ſearch the Houſe, ſhall I let them in?

Falſt. Do'ſt thou heare Hal, neuer call a true peece of Gold a Counterfeit: thou art eſſentially made, without ſeeming ſo.

Prince. And thou a naturall Coward, without inſtinct.

Falſt. I deny your Maiour: if you will deny the Sheriffe, ſo: if not, let him enter. If I become not a Cart as well as another man, a plague on my bringing vp: I hope I ſhall as ſoone be ſtrangled with a Halter, as another.

Prince. Goe hide thee behinde the Arras, the reſt walke vp aboue. Now my Maſters, for a true Face and good Conſcience.

Falſt. Both which I haue had: but their date is out, and therefore Ile hide me. Exit.

Prince. Call in the Sheriffe

Enter Sheriffe and the Carrier.

Prince. Now Maſter Sheriffe, what is your will with mee?

Sher. Firſt pardon me, my Lord. A Hue and Cry hath followed certaine men vnto this houſe.

Prince. What men?

Sher. One of them is well knowne, my gracious Lord, a groſſe fat man.

Car. As fat as Butter.

Prince. The man, I doe aſſure you, is not heere, For I my ſelfe at this time haue imploy'd him: And Sheriffe, I will engage my word to thee, That I will by to morrow Dinner time, Send him to anſwere thee, or any man, For any thing he ſhall be charg'd withall: And ſo let me entreat you, leaue the houſe.

Sher. I will, my Lord: there are two Gentlemen Haue in this Robberie loſt three hundred Marke.

Prince. It may be ſo: if he haue robb'd theſe men, He ſhall be anſwerable: and ſo farewell

Sher. Good Night, my Noble Lord.

Prince. I thinke it is good Morrow, is it not?

Sher. Indeede, my Lord, I thinke it be two a Clocke. Exit.

Prince. This oyly Raſcall is knowne as well as Poules: goe call him forth.

Peto. Falſtaffe! faſt aſleepe behinde the Arras, and ſnorting like a Horſe.

Prince. Harke, how hard he fetches breath: ſearch his Pockets. He

He ſearcheth his Pockets, and finaeth certaine Papers.

Prince. What haſt thou found?

Poto. Nothing but Papers, my Lord.

Prince. Let's ſee, what be they? reade them.

Poto. Item, a Capon. ii.s.ii.d.
Item, Sawce. iiii.d.
Item, Sacke, two Gallons. v.s.viii.d.
Item, Anchoues and Sacke after Supper. ii.s.vi.d.
Item, Bread. ob.

Prince. O monſtrous, but one halfe penny-worth of Bread to this intollerable deale of Sacke? What there is elſe, keepe cloſe, wee'le reade it at more aduantage: there let him ſleepe till day. Ile to the Court in the Morning: Wee muſt all to the Warres, and thy place ſhall be honorable. Ile procure this fat Rogue a Charge of Foot, and I know his death will be a Match of Twelue-ſcore. The Money ſhall be pay'd backe againe with aduantage. Be with me betimes in the Morning: and ſo good morrow Poto.

Poto. Good morrow, good my Lord. Exeunt.

Actus Tertius. Scena Prima.

Enter Hotſpurre, Worceſter Lord Mortimer, Owen Glendower.

Mort. Theſe promiſes are faire, the parties ſure,
And our induction full of proſperous hope.

Hotſp. Lord Mortimer, and Couſin Glendower,
Will you ſit downe?
And Vnckle Worceſter: a plague vpon it,
I haue forgot the Mappe.

Glend. No, here it is:
Sit Couſin Percy, ſit good Couſin Hotſpurre:
For by that Name, as oft as Lancaſter doth ſpeake of you,
His Cheekes looke pale, and with a riſing ſigh,
He wiſheth you in Heauen.

Hotſp. And you in Hell, as oft as he heares Owen Glendower ſpoke of.

Glend. I cannot blame him: At my Natiuitie,
The front of Heauen was full of fierie ſhapes,
Of burning Creſſets: and at my Birth,
The frame and foundation of the Earth
Shak'd like a Coward.

Hotſp. Why ſo it would haue done at the ſame ſeaſon, if your Mothers Cat had but kitten'd, though your ſelfe had neuer beene borne.

Glend. I ſay the Earth did ſhake when I was borne.

Hotſp. And I ſay the Earth was not of my minde,
if you ſuppoſe, as fearing you, it ſhooke.

Glend. The Heauens were all on fire, the Earth did tremble.

Hotſp. Oh, then the Earth ſhooke
To ſee the Heauens on fire,
And not in feare of your Natiuitie.
Diſeaſed Nature oftentimes breakes forth
In ſtrange eruptions; and the teeming Earth
Is with a kinde of Colick pincht and vext,
By the impriſoning of vnruly Winde
Within her Wombe: which for enlargement ſtriuing,
Shakes the old Beldame Earth, and tombles downe
Steeples, and moſſe-growne Towers. At your Birth,
Our Grandam Earth, hauing this diſtemperature,
In paſſion ſhooke.

Glend. Couſin: of many men
I doe not beare theſe Croſſings: Giue me leaue
To tell you once againe, that at my Birth
The front of Heauen was full of fierie ſhapes,
The Goates ranne from the Mountaines, and the Heards
Were ſtrangely clamorous to the frighted fields:
Theſe ſignes haue markt me extraordinarie,
And all the courſes of my Life doe ſhew,
I am not in the Roll of common men.
Where is the Liuing, clipt in with the Sea,
That chides the Bankes of England, Scotland, and Wales,
Which calls me Pupill, or hath read to me?
And bring him out, that is but Womans Sonne,
Can trace me in the tedious wayes of Art,
And hold me pace in deepe experiments.

Hotſp. I thinke there's no man ſpeakes better Welſh: Ile to Dinner.

Mort. Peace Couſin Percy, you will make him mad.

Glend. I can call Spirits from the vaſtie Deepe.

Hotſp. Why ſo can I, or ſo can any man:
But will they come, when you doe call for them?

Glend. Why, I can teach thee, Couſin, to command the Deuill.

Hotſp. And I can teach thee, Couſin, to ſhame the Deuill,
By telling truth. Tell truth, and ſhame the Deuill.
If thou haue power to raiſe him, bring him hither,
And Ile be ſworne, I haue power to ſhame him hence.
Oh, while you liue, tell truth, and ſhame the Deuill.

Mort. Come, come, no more of this vnprofitable Chat.

Glend. Three times hath Henry Bullingbrooke made head
Againſt my Power: thrice from the Banks of Wye.
And ſandy-bottom'd Seuerne, haue I ſent him
Bootleſſe home, and Weather-beaten backe.

Hotſp. Home without Bootes,
And in foule Weather too,
How ſcapes he Agues in the Deuils name?

Glend. Come, heere's the Mappe:
Shall wee diuide our Right,
According to our three-fold order taene?

Mort. The Arch-Deacon hath diuided it
Into three Limits, very equally:
England, from Trent, and Seuerne hitherto,
By South and Eaſt is to my part aſſign'd:
All Weſtward, Wales, beyond the Seuerne ſhore,
And all the fertile Land within that bound,
To Owen Glendower: And deare Coſen, to you
The remnant Northward, lying off from Trent.
And our Indentures Tripartite are drawne:
Which being ſealed enter-changeably,
(A Buſineſſe that this Night may execute)
To morrow, Couſin Percy, you and I,
And my good Lord of Worceſter, will ſet forth,
To meete your Father, and the Scottiſh Power,
As is appointed vs at Shrewsbury.
My Father Glendower is not ready yet,
Nor ſhall we need his helpe theſe fourteene dayes:
Within that ſpace, you may haue drawne together
Your Tenants, Friends, and neighbouring Gentlemen.

Glend. A ſhorter time ſhall ſend me to you, Lords:
And in my Conduct ſhall your Ladies come,
From whom you now muſt ſteale, and take no leaue.
For there will be a World of Water ſhed,

Vpon

the parting of your Wiues and you.
Hotſp. Me thinks my Moity, North from Burton here, antitie equals not one of yours:
ow this Riuer comes me cranking in,
uts me from the beſt of all my Land,
e halfe Moone, a monſtrous Cantle out.
ue the Current in this place damn'd vp,
ere the ſmug and Siluer Trent ſhall runne,
w Channell, faire and euenly:
ll not winde with ſuch a deepe indent,
b me of ſo rich a Bottome here.
nd. Not winde? it ſhall, it muſt, you ſee it doth.
ſter. Yea, but marke how he bearес his courſe, unnes me vp with like aduantage on the other ſide, ng the oppoſed Continent as much,
the other ſide it takes from you.
er. Yes, by a little Charge will trench him here,
n this North ſide winne this Cape of Land,
hen he runnes ſtraight and euen.
ſp. Ile haue it ſo, a little Charge will doe it.
nd. Ile not haue it alter'd.
ſp. Will not you?
nd. No, nor you ſhall not.
ſp. Who ſhall ſay me nay?
nd. Why, that will I.
ſp. Let me not vnderſtand you then, ſpeake it in h.
nd. I can ſpeake Engliſh, Lord, as well as you:
was trayn'd vp in the Engliſh Court:
e, being but young, I framed to the Harpe
an Engliſh Ditrie, lowely well, gaue the Tongue a helpefull Ornament, rtue that was neuer ſeene in you.
ſp. Marry, and I am glad of it with all my heart, rather be a Kitten, and cry mew,
one of theſe ſame Meeter Ballad-mongers:
rather heare a Brazen Candleſtick turn'd, ley Wheele graze on the Axle-tree,
hat would ſet my teeth nothing an edge,
ng ſo much, as mincing Poetrie;
ke the ſorc't gate of a ſhuffling Nagge.
nd. Come, you ſhall haue Trent turn'd.
ſp. I doe not care: Ile giue thrice ſo much Land
y well-deſerning friend;
the way of Bargaine, marke ye me,
till on the ninth part of a hayre.
he Indentures drawne? ſhall we be gone?
nd. The Moone ſhines faire,
may away by Night:
ſe the Writers; and withall,
e with your Wiues, of your departure hence:
afraid my Daughter will runne madde,
ach ſhe doteth on her Mortimer. Exit.
ſter. Fie, Couſin Percy, how you croſſe my Fa-

ſp. I cannot chuſe: ſometime he angers me, telling me of the Moldwarpe and the Ant, e Dreamer Merlin, and his Prophecies;
of a Dragon, and a finne-leſſe Fish,
-wing'd Griffin, and a moulten Rauen,
ching Lyon, and a ramping Cat,
ſuch a deale of skimble-skamble Stuff,
rs me from my Faith. I tell you what,
ld me laſt Night, at leaſt, nine howres, kening vp the ſeuerall Deuils Names,
were his Lacqueyes:
I cry'd hum, and well, goe too,
But mark'd him not a word. O, he is as tedious
As a tyred Horſe, a raylng Wife,
Worſe then a ſmoakie Houſe. I had rather liue
With Cheeſe and Garlick in a Windmill farre,
Then feede on Cates, and haue him talke to me,
In any Summer-Houſe in Chriſtendome.
Mort. In faith he was a worthy Gentleman,
Exceeding well read, and profited,
In ſtrange Concealements.
Valiant as a Lyon, and wondrous affable,
And as bountifull, as Mynes of Iodia.
Shall I tell you, Couſin,
He holds your temper in a high reſpect,
And curbes himſelfe, euen of his naturall ſcope,
When you doe croſſe his humor: faith he does.
I warrant you, that man is not aliue,
Might ſo haue tempted him, as you haue done,
Without the taſte of danger, and reproofe:
But doe not vſe it oft, let me entreat you.
Wor. In faith, my Lord, you are too wilfull blame,
And ſince your comming hither, haue done enough,
To put him quite beſides his patience.
You muſt needes learne, Lord, to amend this fault:
Though ſometimes it ſhew Greatneſſe, Courage, Blood,
And that's the deareſt grace it renders you;
Yet oftentimes it doth preſent harſh Rage,
Defect of Manners, want of Gouernment,
Pride, Haughtineſſe, Opinion, and Diſdaine:
The leaſt of which, haunting a Nobleman,
Loſeth mens hearts, and leaues behinde a ſtayne
Vpon the beautie of all parts beſides,
Beguiling them of commendation.
Hotſp. Well, I am ſchool'd:
Good-manners be your ſpeede;
Heere come your Wiues, and let vs take our leaue.

Enter Glendower, with the Ladies.

Mort. This is the deadly ſpight, that angers me,
My Wife can ſpeake no Engliſh, I no Welſh.
Glend. My Daughter weepes, ſhee'le not part with you,
Shee'le be a Souldier too, ſhee'le to the Warres.
Mort. Good Father tell her, that ſhe and my Aunt Percy
Shall follow in your Conduct ſpeedily.

Glendower ſpeakes to her in Welſh, and ſhe anſweres him in the ſame.

Glend. Shee is deſperate heere:
A peeuiſh ſelfe-will'd Harlotry,
One that no perſwaſion can doe good vpon.

The Lady ſpeakes in Welſh.

Mort. I vnderſtand thy Lookes: that pretty Welſh
Which thou powr'ſt down from theſe ſwelling Heauens,
I am too perfect in: and but for ſhame,
In ſuch a parley ſhould I anſwere thee.

The Lady ſpeakes in Welſh.

Mort. I vnderſtand thy Kiſſes, and thou mine,
And that's a feeling diſputation:
But I will neuer be a Truant, Loue,
Till I haue learn'd thy Language: for thy tongue

Makes

Makes Welſh as ſweet as Ditties highly penn'd,
Sung by a faire Queene in a Summers Bowre,
With ravyſhing Diuiſion to her Lute.
Glend. Nay, if thou melt, then will ſhe runne madde.

The Lady ſpeakes againe in Welſh.

Mort. O, I am Ignorance it ſelfe in this.
Glend. She bids you,
On the wanton Rushes lay you downe,
And reſt your gentle Head vpon her Lappe,
And ſhe will ſing the Song that pleaſeth you,
And on your Eye-lids Crowne the God of Sleepe,
Charming your blood with pleaſing heauineſſe;
Making ſuch difference betwixt Wake and Sleepe,
As is the difference betwixt Day and Night,
The houre before the Heauenly Harneſs'd Teeme
Begins his Golden Progreſſe in the Eaſt.
Mort. With all my heart Ile ſit, and heare her ſing:
By that time will our Booke, I thinke, be drawne.
Glend. Do ſo:
And thoſe Muſitians that ſhall play to you,
Hang in the Ayre a thouſand Leagues from thence;
And ſtraight they ſhall be here: ſit, and attend.
Hotſp. Come Kate, thou art perfect in lying downe:
Come, quicke, quicke, that I may lay my Head in thy Lappe.
Lady. Goe, ye giddy-Gooſe.

The Muſicke playes.

Hotſp. Now I perceiue the Deuill vnderſtands Welſh,
And 'tis no maruell he is ſo humorous:
By'r Lady he's a good Muſitian.
Lady. Then would you be nothing but Muſicall,
For you are altogether gouerned by humors.
Lye ſtill ye Theefe, and heare the Lady ſing in Welſh.
Hotſp. I had rather heare (Lady) my Brach howle in Iriſh.
Lady. Would'ſt haue thy Head broken?
Hotſp. No.
Lady. Then be ſtill
Hotſp. Neyther, 'tis a Womans fault.
Lady. Now God helpe thee.
Hotſp. To the Welſh Ladies Bed.
Lady. What's that?
Hotſp. Peace, ſhee ſings.

Heere the Lady ſings a Welſh Song.

Hotſp. Come, Ile haue your Song too.
Lady. Not mine, in good ſooth.
Hotſp. Not yours, in good ſooth?
You ſweare like a Comfit-makers Wife:
Not you, in good ſooth; and, as true as I liue;
And, as God ſhall mend me; and, as ſure as day:
And giueſt ſuch Sarcenet ſuretie for thy Oathes,
As if thou neuer walk'ſt further then Finſbury.
Sweare me, Kate like a Lady, as thou art,
A good mouth-filling Oath: and leaue in ſooth,
And ſuch proteſt of Pepper Ginger-bread,
To Velvet-Guards, and Sunday-Citizens.
Come, ſing.
Lady. I will not ſing.
Hotſp. 'Tis the next way to turne Taylor, or be Red-breſt teacher: and the Indentures be drawne, Ile away within theſe two houres: and ſo come in, when ye will. Exit.
Glend. Come, come, Lord Mortimer, you are as ſlow,
As hot Lord Percy is on fire to goe.
By this our Booke is drawne: we'le but ſeale,
And then to Horſe immediately.
Mort. With all my heart. Exeunt.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter the King, Prince of Wales and others.

King. Lords, giue vs leaue:
The Prince of Wales, and I,
Muſt haue ſome priuate conference:
But be neere at hand,
For wee ſhall preſently haue needs of you.
Exeunt Lords.
I know not whether Heauen will haue it ſo,
For ſome diſpleaſing ſeruice I haue done;
That in his ſecret Doome, out of my Blood,
He'le breede Reuengement, and a Scourge for me:
But thou do'ſt in thy paſſages of Life,
Make me believe, that thou art onely mark'd
For the hot vengeance, and the Rod of Heauen
To puniſh my Miſtreadings. Tell me elſe,
Could ſuch inordinate and low deſires,
Such poore, ſuch bare, ſuch lewd, ſuch meane attempts,
Such barren pleaſures, rude ſocietie,
As thou art matcht withall, and grafted too,
Accompanie the greatneſſe of thy blood,
And hold their leuell with thy Princely heart?
Prince. So pleaſe your Maieſty, I would I could Quit all offences with as cleare excuſe,
As well as I am doubtleſſe I can purge
My ſelfe of many I am charg'd withall:
Yet ſuch extenuation let me begge,
As in reproofe of many Tales deuis'd,
Which oft the Eare of Greatneſſe needes muſt heare,
By ſmiling Pick-thankes, and baſe Newes-mongers;
I may (for ſome things true, wherein my youth Hath faultie wandred, and irregular)
Finde pardon on my true ſubmiſſion.
King. Heauen pardon thee:
Yet let me wonder, Harry,
At thy affections, which doe hold a Wing
Quite from the flight of all thy anceſtors.
Thy place in Councell thou haſt rudely loſt,
Which by thy younger Brother is ſupply'de;
And art almoſt an alien to the hearts
Of all the Court and Princes of my blood.
The hope and expectation of thy time
Is ruin'd, and the Soule of euery man
Prophetically doe fore-thinke thy fall.
Had I ſo lauiſh of my preſence beene,
So common hackney'd in the eyes of men,
So ſtale and cheape to vulgar Company;
Opinion, that did helpe me to the Crowne,
Had ſtill kept loyall to poſſeſſion,
And left me in reputeleſſe baniſhment,
A fellow of no marke, nor likelyhood.
By being ſeldome ſeene, I could not ſtirre,
But like a Comet, I was wondred at,

That

would tell their Children, This is hee:
uld say; Where, Which is Bullingbrooke.
ſtole all Courteſie from Heauen,
my ſelfe in ſuch Humilitie, plucke Allegeance from mens hearts,
wes and Salutations from their mouthes,
e preſence of the Crowned King.
keepe my Perſon freſh and new,
ce like a Robe Pontificall,
e, but wondred at: and ſo my State,
ut ſumptuous, ſhewed like a Feaſt,
e by rareneſſe ſuch Solemnitie.
ing King hee ambled vp and downe,
low Jeſters, and raſh Bauin Wits, dled, and ſoone burnt, carded his State,
is Royaltie with Carping Fooles, eat Name prophaned with their Scornes,
his Countenance, againſt his Name,
t gybing Boyes, and ſtand the puſh
Beardleſſe vaine Comparatiue; ompanion to the common Streetes,
himſelfe to Popularitie:
g dayly ſwallowed by mens Eyes,
ted with Honey, and began to loathe of Sweetneſſe, whereof a little a little, is by much too much.
e had occaſion to be ſeene,
t as the Cuckow is in Iune,
s regarded: ſeene but with ſuch Eyes,
nd blunted with Communitie,
o extraordinarie Gaze,
bent on Sunne-like Maieſtie,
hines ſeldome in admiring Eyes:
drowz'd, and hung their eye-lids downe,
s Face, and rendred ſuch aſpect
e men vſe to doe to their aduerſaries, h his preſence glutted, gorg'd, and full.
at very Line, Harry, ſtanded thou:
aſt loſt thy Princely Priuiledge, participation. Not an Eye
rarie of thy common ſight,
, which hath deſir'd to ſee thee more:
w doth that I would not haue it doe,
de it ſeiſe with fooliſh tenderneſſe.
I ſhall hereafter, my thrice gracious Lord, ny ſelfe
For all the World,
rt to this houre, was Richard then,
oon France ſet foot at Rauenſpurgh;
as I was then, is Percy now:
ny Scepter, and my Soule to boot,
nore worthy intereſt to the State
, the ſhadow of Succeſſion;
Right, nor colour like to Right.
ll holde with Hamets in the Realme,
nd againſt the Lyons armed Lawes;
g no more in debt to yeeres, then thou, cient Lords, and reuerent Biſhops on y Battailes, and to bruſing Armes.
er-dying Honor hath he got,
nowned Douglas? whoſe high Deedes,
ht Incurſions, and great Name in Armes,
m all Souldiers chiefe Maiorſtie,
arie Title Capitall
all the Kingdomes that acknowledge Chriſt,
th the Holyſhe Mary, in ſwathing Clothes,
This Infant Warrior, in his Enterpriſes,
Diſcomfited great Douglas, ta'ne him once,
Enlarged him, and made a friend of him,
To fill the mouth of deepe Defiance vp,
And ſhake the peace and ſafetie of our Throne.
And what ſay you to this? Percy, Northumberland,
The Arch-biſhops Grace of Yorke, Douglas, Mortimer, Capitulate againſt vs, and are vp.
But wherefore doe I tell theſe Newes to thee?
Why, Harry, doe I tell thee of my Foes,
Which are my neer'ſt and deareſt Enemie?
Thou, that art like enough, through vaſſall Feare,
Baſe Inclination, and the ſtart of Spleene,
To fight againſt me vnder Percies pay,
To dogge his heeles, and curtſie at his ſtownes,
To ſhew how much thou art degenerate.

Prince. Doe not thinke ſo, you ſhall not finde it ſo:
And Heauen forgiue them, that ſo much haue ſway'd
Your Maieſties good thoughts away from me:
I will redeeme all this on Percies head,
And in the cloſing of ſome glorious day,
Be bold to tell you, that I am your Sonne,
When I will weare a Garment all of Blood,
And ſtaine my fauours in a bloody Maske:
Which waſht away, ſhall ſcowre my ſhame with it.
And that ſhall be the day, when ere it lights,
That this ſame Child of Honor and Renowne,
This gallant Hoſtſpur, this all-prayſed Knight,
And your vnthought-of Harry chance to meet:
For euery Honor ſitting on his Helme,
Would they were multitudes, and on my head
My ſhames redoubled. For the time will come,
That I ſhall make this Northerne Youth exchange
His glorious Deedes for my Indignities:
Percy is but my Factor, good my Lord,
To engroſſe vp glorious Deedes on my behalfe:
And I will call him to ſo ſtrict account,
That he ſhall render euery Glory vp,
Yea, euen the ſleighteſt worthip of his time,
Or I will teare the Reckoning from his Heart.
This, in the Name of Heauen, I promiſe here:
The which, if I performe, and doe ſuruiue,
I doe beſeech you Maieſtie, may ſalue
The long-growne Wounds of my intemperature:
If not, the end of Life cancells all Bands,
And I will dye a hundred thouſand Deaths,
Ere breake the ſmalleſt parcell of this Vow.

King. A hundred thouſand Rebels dye in this:
Thou ſhalt haue Charge, and ſouereigne truſt herein.

Enter Blunt.

How now good Blunt? thy Lookes are full of ſpeed.

Blunt. So hath the Buſineſſe that I come to ſpeake of.
Lord Mortimer of Scotland hath ſent word,
That Douglas and the Engliſh Rebels met
The eleuenth of this moneth, at Shrewsbury:
A mightie and a fearefull Head they are,
(If Promiſes be kept on euery hand)
As euer offered foole play in a State.

King. The Earle of Weſtmerland ſet forth to day:
With him my ſonne, Lord Iohn of Lancaſter,
For this aduertiſement is fiue dayes old.
On Wedneſday next, Harry thou ſhalt ſet forward:
On Thurſday, wee our ſelues will march.
Our meeting is Bridgenorth: and Harry, you ſhall march

Through Glocesterſhire: by which account,
Our Buſineſſe valued ſome twelue dayes hence,
Our generall Forces at Bridgenorth ſhall meete.
Our Hands are full of Buſineſſe: let's away,
Aduantage feedes him fat, while men delay. Exeunt.

Scena Tertia.

Enter Falſtaffe and Bardolph

Falſt. Bardolph, am I not falne away vilely, ſince this laſt action? doe I not bate? doe I not dwindle? Why my skinne hangs about me like an olde Ladies looſe Gowne: I am withered like an olde Apple-John. Well, Ile repent, and that ſuddenly, while I am in ſome liking: I ſhall be out of heart ſhortly, and then I ſhall haue no ſtrength to repent. And I haue not forgotten what the in-ſide of a Church is made of, I am a Pepper-Corne, a Brewers Horſe, the in-ſide of a Church. Company, villanous Company hath beene the ſpoyle of me.

Bard. Sir Iohn, you are ſo fretfull, you cannot liue long.

Falſt. Why there it is: Come, ſing me a bawdy Song, make me merry: I was as vertuouſly giuen, as a Gentleman need to be; vertuous enough, ſwore little, di'd not aboue ſeuen times a weeke, went to a Bawdy-houſe not aboue once in a quarter of an houre, payd Money that I borrowed, three or foure times: liued well, and in good compaſſe: and now I liue out of all order, out of compaſſe.

Bard Why, you are ſo fat, Sir Iohn, that you muſt needes bee out of all compaſſe; out of all reaſonable compaſſe, Sir Iohn.

Falſt. Doe thou amend thy Face, and Ile amend thy Life: Thou art our Admirall, thou beareſt the Lanterne in the Poope, but 'tis in the Noſe of thee; thou art the Knight of the burning Lampe.

Bard. Why, Sir Iohn, my Face does you no harme.

Falſt. No, Ile be ſworne: I make as good vſe of it, as many a man doth of a Deaths-Head, or a Memento Mori. I neuer ſee thy Face, but I thinke vpon Hell fire, and Diues that liued in Purple; for there he is in his Robes burning, burning. If thou wert any way giuen to vertue, I would ſweare by thy Face; my Oath ſhould bee, By thus Face: But thou art altogether giuen ouer: and wert indeede, but for the Light in thy Face, the Sunne of vtter Darkeneſſe. When thou ran'ſt vp Gads-Hill in the Night, to catch my Horſe, if I did not thinke that thou hadſt beene an Ignis fatuus, or a Ball of Wild-fire, there's no Purchaſe in Money. O thou art a perpetuall Triumph, an euerlaſting Bone-fire-Light: thou haſt ſaued me a thouſand Markes in Linkes and Torches, walking with thee in the Night betwixt Tauerne and Tauerne: But the Sacke that thou haſt drunke me, would haue bought me Lights as good cheape, as the deareſt Chandlers in Europe. I haue maintain'd that Salamander of yours with fire, any time this two and thirtie yeeres, Heauen reward me for it.

Bard I would my Face were in your Belly.

Falſt. So ſhould I be ſure to be heart-burn'd.

Enter Hoſteſſe.

How now, Dame Partlet the Hen, haue you enquir'd yet who pick'd my Pocket?

Hoſteſſe. Why Sir Iohn, what doe you thinke, Sir Iohn? doe you thinke I keepe Theeues in my Houſe? I haue ſearch'd, I haue enquired, ſo haz my Husband, Man by Man, Boy by Boy, Seruant by Seruant: the ſhame of a hayre was neuer loſt in my houſe before.

Falſt. Ye lye Hoſteſſe: Bardolph was ſhau'd, and loſt many a hayre; and Ile be ſw[orn] my Pocket was pick'd: goe to, you are a Woman, goe.

Hoſteſſe. Who I? I defie thee: I was neuer call'd ſo in mine owne houſe before.

Falſt. Goe to, I know you well enough.

Hoſteſſe. No, Sir Iohn, you doe not know me, Sir Iohn: I know you, Sir Iohn: you owe me Money, Sir Iohn, and now you picke a quarrell, to beguile me of it: I bought you a dozen of Shirts to your Backe.

Falſt. Doulas, filthy Doulas: I haue giuen them away to Bakers Wiues, and they haue made Boulters of them.

Hoſteſſe Now as I am a true Woman, Holland of eight ſhillings an Ell: You owe Money here beſides, Sir Iohn, for your Diet, and by-Drinkings, and Money lent you, foure and twentie pounds.

Falſt. Hee had his part of it, let him pay.

Hoſteſſe. Hee? alas hee is poore, hee hath nothing.

Falſt. How? Poore? Looke vpon his Face: What call you Rich? Let them coyne his Noſe, let them coyne his Cheekes, Ile not pay a Denier. What, will you make a Younker of me? Shall I not take mine eaſe in mine Inne, but I ſhall haue my Pocket pick'd? I haue loſt a Seale-Ring of my Grand-fathers, worth fortie Marke.

Hoſteſſe. I haue heard the Prince tell him, I know not how oft, that that Ring was Copper.

Falſt. How? the Prince is a Iacke, a Sneake-Cuppe: and if hee were heere, I would cudgell him like a Dogge, if hee would ſay ſo.

Enter the Prince marching, and Falſtaffe meets him, playing on his Truncheon like a Fife.

Falſt. How now Lad? is the Winde in that Doore? Muſt we all march?

Bard. Yes, two and two, Newgate fashion.

Hoſteſſe. My Lord, I pray you heare me.

Prince. What ſay'ſt thou, Miſtreſſe Quickly? How does thy Husband? I loue him well, hee is an honeſt man.

Hoſteſſe. Good, my Lord, heare mee.

Falſt. Prethee let her alone, and liſt to mee.

Prince. What ſay'ſt thou, Iacke?

Falſt. The other Night I fell aſleepe heere behind the Arras, and had my Pocket pickt: this Houſe is turn'd Bawdy-houſe, they picke Pockets.

Prince. What didſt thou loſe, Iacke?

Falſt. Wilt thou beleeue me, Hal? Three or foure bonds of fortie pound apeece, and a Seale-Ring of my Grandfathers.

Prince. A Trifle, ſome eight-penny matter.

Hoſt. So I told him, my Lord: and I ſaid, I heard your Grace ſay ſo: and (my Lord) hee ſpeakes moſt vilely of you, like a foule-mouth'd man as hee is, and ſaid, hee would cudgell you.

Prince. What hee did not?

Hoſt. There's neyther Faith, Truth, nor Woman-hood in me elſe.

Falſt. There's

o more faith in thee then a ſtu'de Prune;
h in thee, then in a drawne Fox: and for Maid-marian may be the Deputies wife ee. Go you nothing: go.
t thing? what thing?
hing? why a thing to thanke heauen on.
thing to thanke heauen on, I wold thou
: I am an honeſt mans wife: and ſetting aſide, thou art a knaue to call me ſo. thy woman-hood aſide, thou art a beaſt

t beaſt, thou knaue thou?
aſt? Why an Otter.
er, ſir Iohn? Why an Otter?
e'n neither fiſh nor fleſh; a man knowes
e her.
t vnruſt man in ſaying ſo; thou, or any re to haue me, thou knaue thou.
ſay'ſt true Hoſteſſe, and he ſlanders thee ith you, my Lord, and ſayde this other im a thouſand pound.

, do I owe you a thouſand pound?
ſand pound Hal? A Million. Thy loue is thou ow'ſt me thy loue.
y Lord, he call'd you Iacke, and ſaid hee u.
dolph?
ir Iohn, you ſaid ſo.
ſaid my Ring was Copper. is Copper. Dar'ſt thou bee as good as u? thou know'ſt, as thou art but a man, I i art a Prince, I feare thee, as I feare the ons Whelpe.

hy not as the Lyon?
g himſelfe is to bee feared as the Lyon:
e ſhe feare thee, as I feare thy Father: nay rdle breake.
hould, how would thy guttes fall about ree: There's no roome for Faith, Truth, his boſome of thine: it is all fill'd vppe Midriffe. Charge an honeſt Woman
r pocket? Why thou horſon impudent f there were any thing in thy Pockets but ngs, Memorandums of Bandie-houſes, my-worth of Sugar-candie to make thee thy pockets were enrich'd with any o-theſe, I am a Villaine. And yet you will ill not Pocket vp wrong. Art thou not ou beare Hal? Thou know'ſt in the ſtate dom fell: and what ſhould poore Iacky

e dayes of Villany? Thou ſeeſt, I haue nother man, and therefore more frailty.
n you picke my Pockets?
ares ſo by the Story.
, I forgiue thee:
reak faſt, loue thy Husband,
uarter, and cherish thy Gueſts:
ne is ſeaſable to any honeſt reaſons:
pacified ſtill,
e goone.

Exit Hoſteſſe.

oeuer at Court for the Robbery, Lad?
ered?

Prin. O my ſweet Beefe:
I muſt ſtill be good Angell to thee.
The Monie is paid backe againe.

Fal. O, I do not like that paying backe, 'tis a double Labour.

Prin. I am good Friends with my Father, and may do any thing.

Fal. Rob me the Exchequer the firſt thing thou do'ſt, and do it with vnwaſh'd hands too.

Bard. Do my Lord.

Prin. I haue procured thee Iacke, a Charge of Foot.

Fal. I would it had beene of Horſe. Where ſhal I finde one that can ſteale well? O, for a fine theefe, of two and twentie, or thereabout: I am heynouſly vnprouided. Well God be thanked for theſe Rebels, they offend none but the Vertuous. I laud them, I praiſe them.

Prin. Bardolph.

Bar. My Lord.

Prin. Go beare this Letter to Lord Iohn of Lancaſter
To my Brother Iohn. This to my Lord of Weſtmerland, Go Peto, to horſe: for thou, and I,
Haue thirtie miles to ride yet ere dinner time.
Iacke, meet me to morrow in the Temple Hall
At two a clocke in the afternoone,
There ſhalt thou know thy Charge, and there receiue
Money and Order for their Furniture.
The Land is burning, Percie ſtands on hye,
And either they, or we muſt lower lye.

Fal. Rare words! braue world.
Hoſteſſe, my breakfaſt, come:
Oh, I could wiſh this Tauerne were my drumme.

Exeunt omnes.

Actus Quartus. Scœna Prima.

Enter Harrie Hotſpurre, Worceſter, and Douglas.

Hot. Well ſaid, my Noble Scot, if ſpeaking truth
In this fine Age, were not thought flatterie,
Such attribution ſhould the Douglas haue,
As not a Souldiour of this ſeaſons ſtampe,
Should go ſo generall currant through the world.
By heauen I cannot flatter: I defie
The Tongues of Soothers. But a Brauer place
In my heart's loue, hath no man than your ſelfe.
Nay, take me to my word: approue me Lord.

Doug. Thou art the King of Honor.
No man ſo potent breathes vpon the ground,
But I will Beard him.

Enter a Meſſenger.

Hot. Do ſo, and 'tis well. What Letters haſt there?
I can but thanke you.

Meſſ. Theſe Letters come from your Father.

Hot. Letters from him?
Why comes he not himſelfe?

Meſſ. He cannot come, my Lord,
He is grieuous ſicke.

Hot. How? haz he the leyſure to be ſicke now,
In ſuch a luſtling time? Who leades his power?
Vnder whoſe Gouernment come they along?

Meſſ. His Letters bezres his minde,not I his minde.
Wor. I prethee tell me,doth he keepe his Bed?
Meſſ. I'le did,my Lord,foure dayes ere I ſet forth:
And at the time of my departure thence,
He was much fear'd by his Phyſician.
Wor. I would the ſtate of time had firſt beene whole,
Ere he by ſickneſſe had beene viſited:
His health was neuer better worth then now.
Hotſ. Sicke now? droope now? this ſickneſs doth infect
The very Life-blood of our Enterpriſe,
'Tis catching hither,euen to our Campe.
He writes me here,that inward ſickneſſe,
And that his friends by deputation
Could not ſo ſoone be drawne: nor did he thinke it meet,
To lay ſo dangerous and deare a truſt
On any Soule remou'd,but on his owne.
Yet doth he giue vs bold aduertiſement,
That with our ſmall coniunction we ſhould on,
To ſee how Fortune is diſpos'd to vs:
For,as he writes,there is no quailing now,
Becauſe the King is certainely poſſeſt
Of all our purpoſes. What ſay you to it?
Wor. Your Fathers ſickneſſe is a mayme to vs.
Hotſ. A perillous Gaſh,a very Limme lopt off:
And yet,in faith,it is not his preſent want
Seemes more then we ſhall finde it.
Were it good,to ſet the exact wealth of all our ſtates
All at one Caſt? To ſet ſo rich a mayne
On the nice hazard of one doubtfull houre,
It were not good: for therein ſhould we reade
The very Bottome,and the Soule of Hope
The very Liſt,the very vtmoſt Bound
Of all our fortunes.
Doug. Faith,and ſo wee ſhould;
Where now remaines a ſweet reuerſion.
We may boldly ſpend,vpon the hope
Of what is to come in:
A comfort of retyrement lines in this.
Hotſ. A Randeuous,a Home to flye vnto,
If that the Deuill and Miſchance looke bigge
Vpon the Maydenhead of our Affaires.
Wor. But yet I would your Father had beene here:
The Qualitie and Heire of our Attempt
Brookes no diuiſion: It will be thought
By ſome,that know not why he is away,
That wiſedome,loyaltie,and meere diſlike
Of our proceedings,kept the Earle from hence.
And thinke,how ſuch an apprehenſion
May turne the tyde of fearefull Faction,
And breede a kinde of queſtion in our cauſe:
For well you know,we of the offring ſide,
Muſt keepe aloofe from ſtrict arbitrement,
And ſtop all ſight-holes,every loope,from whence
The eye of reaſon may prie in vpon vs:
This abſence of your Father drawes a Curtaine,
That ſhewes the ignorant a kinde of feare,
Before not dreamt of.
Hotſ. You ſtrayne too farre.
I rather of his abſence make this vſe:
It lends a Luſtre,and more great Opinion,
A larger Dare to your great Enterprize,
Then if the Earle were here: for men muſt thinke,
If we without his helpe,can make a Head
To puſh againſt the Kingdome; with his helpe,
We ſhall o're-turne it topſie-turuy downe:
Yet all goes well,yet all our ioynts are
Doug. As heart can thinke:
There is not ſuch a word ſpoke of in Scotland,
As this Dreame of Feare.

Enter Sir Richard Vernon.

Hotſ. My Couſin Vernon,welcome by my Soule.
Ver. Pray God my newes be worth a welcome,Lord.
The Earle of Weſtmerland,ſeuen thouſand ſtrong,
Is marching hither-wards,with Prince Iohn.
Hotſ. No harme: what more?
Ver. And further,I haue learn'd.
The King himſelfe in perſon hath ſet forth,
Or hither-wards intended ſpeedily,
With ſtrong and mighty preparation.
Hotſ. He ſhall be welcome too.
Where is his Sonne,
The nimble-footed Mad-Cap,Prince of Wales,
And his Cumrades,that daſt the World aſide,
And bid it paſſe?
Ver. All furniſht,all in Armes,
All plum'd like Eſtridges,that with the Winde
Bayted like Eagles,hauing lately bath'd,
Glittering in Golden Coates,like Images,
As full of ſpirit as the Moneth of May,
And gorgeous as the Sunne at Mid-ſummer,
Wanton as youthfull Goates,wilde as young Bulls.
I ſaw young Harry with his Beuer on,
His Cuſſhes on his thighes,gallantly arm'd,
Riſe from the ground like feathered Mercury,
And vaulted with ſuch eaſe into his Seat,
As if an Angell dropt downe from the Clouds,
To turne and winde a fierie Pegaſus,
And witch the World with Noble Horſemanſhip.
Hotſ. No more,no more,
Worſe then the Sunne in March:
This prayſe doth nouriſh Agues: let them come.
They come like Sacrifices in their trimme,
And to the fire-ey'd Maid of ſmoakie Warre,
All hot,and bleeding,will we offer them:
The mayled Mars ſhall on his Altar ſit
Vp to the eares in blood. I am on fire,
To heare this rich reprizall is ſo nigh.
And yet not ours. Come,let me take my Horſe,
Who is to beare me like a Thunder-bolt,
Againſt the boſome of the Prince of Wales.
Harry to Harry,ſhall not Horſe to Horſe
Meete,and ne're part,till one drop downe a Coarſe?
Oh,that Glendower were come.
Ver. There is more newes:
I learned in Worceſter,as I rode along,
He cannot draw his Power this fourteene dayes.
Doug. That's the worſt Tidings that I heare of
yet.
Wor. I by my faith,that beares a frotty ſound.
Hotſ. What may the Kings whole Battaile reach vnto?
Ver. To thirty thouſand.
Hot. Forty let it be,
My Father and Glendower being both away,
The powres of vs,may ſerue ſo great a day.
Come,let vs take a muſter ſpeedily:
Doomeſday is neere; dye all,dye merrily.
Doug. Talke not of dying,I am out of feare
Of death,or death's hand,for this one halfe yeare.

Exeunt Omnes.

Scæna Secunda.

Enter Falſtaffe and Bardolph.

Fal. Bardolph, get thee before to Coventry, fill me a of Sack, our Souldiers ſhall march through: wee'le ton-cop-hill to N-ght.
Bard. Will you giue me Money, Captaine?
Fal. Lay out, lay out
Bard. This Bottle makes an Angell.
Fal. And if it doe, take it for thy labour. and if it twentie, take them all, Ile anſwere the Coynage.
my Lieutenant Pero meete me at the Townes end.
Bard. I will Captaine: farewell. Exit.
Fal. If I be not aſham'd of my Souldiers, I am a Gurner: I haue miſ-vs'd the Kings Preſſe dam-
I haue got, in exchange of a hundred and fiftie ers, three hundred and odde Pounds. I preſſe me ne good Houſe-holders, Yeomens Sonnes: enquire contracted Batchelers, ſuch as had beene aſk'd on the Banes: ſuch a Commoditie of warme ſlaues, as had neuer heare the Deuill, as a Drumme: ſuch as the report of a Calliuer, worſe then a ſtruck-Foole, ert wilde-Ducke. I preſt me none but ſuch Toſtes nters, with Hearts in their Bellyes no bigger then heads, and they haue bought out their ſeruices:
ow, my whole Charge conſiſts of Ancients, Cor-
, Lieutenants, Gentlemen of Companies, Slaues as d as Lazarus in the painted Cloth, where the Glot-Dogges licked his Sores; and ſuch, as indeed were Souldiers, but diſ-carded vniuſt Seruingmen, younnes to younger Brothers, reuolted Tapſters and
s. Trade-falne, the Cankers of a calme World, and Peace, ten times more diſ-honorable ragged, n old-fac'd Ancient: and ſuch haue I to fill vp the es of them that haue bought out their ſeruices: that ould thinke, that I had a hundred and fiftie totter'd gulls, lately come from Swine-keeping, from eating ang and Huſkes. A mad fellow met me on the way, old me, I had vnlooded all the Gibbets, and preſt the bodyes. No eye hath ſeene ſuch skar-Crowes: Ile arch through Couentry with them, that's flat. Nay, e Villaines march wide betwixt the Legges, as if ad Gyues on; for indeede, I had the moſt of them Priſon. There's not a Shirt and a halfe in all my any: and the halfe Shirt is two Napkins tackt to-
, and throwne ouer the ſhoulders like a Heralds ſleeues: and the Shirt, to ſay the truth, ſtolne from my Hoſt of S. Albones, or the Red-Noſe keeper of Deuiſmary. But that's all one, they'le finde n enough on euery Hedge.

Enter the Prince, and the Lord of Weſtmerland.

Prince. How now blowne Iack? how now Quile?
Fal. What Hal? How now mad Wag, what a Deuill thou in Worwickſhire? My good Lord of Weſt-nd, I cry you mercy, I thought you Honour had al-beene at Shrewsbury.
Weſt. Faith, Sir Iohn, 'tis more then time that I were
, and you too: but my Powers are there alreadie.
ing, I can tell you, lookes for vs all: we muſt away
Night.
Fal. Tut, neuer feare me, I am as vigilant as a Cat, to ſteale Creame.
